for their part, be prepared to make the greatest sacrifices and contributions explained, the government allegedly lacked the Means to ensure that, through a sufficient contribution rate on their part,
to complete the work.

The country should be well–traversed by railways
– is attacked haphazardly and by pro–Reich

a AB

Founders only partially through enormous fraud
But a big project has, one really tackled!

The French had built the Suez Canal.
Zosen and Italians enjoyed, after drilling the Mont
Cenis, the fruits of their labour. Where we have not sown
We wanted to harvest with them. A track through the St.
Gotthard was supposed to restore part of the Indian trade into the German Rhine road, which in the Middle Ages had been so enlivened by this trade. The Italian

Government went – more out of political wisdom and gratitude feasibility rather than economic interest –
Switzerland also showed an inclination to support the company Since Germany is most interested in the matter, he was given the honor of carrying it out.
Count Bismarck was able to handle this important matter entrust, if not to the proven friends of the Reich, .the fed into "great and patriotic financial powers"
So we are not building the railway in Direct
'for the three states, but let us let the «Reichs– friends» to form a joint–stock company for their edification and: let us support it through state subsidies!

The war had delayed the matter. In October 1871

—a consortium was formed, which aimed to form a Actiengesellschaft for the construction of the St. Gotthard railway. The head of the consortium was Hansemann, as whose representative was Miquél. He concluded a contract with the representative of the Swiss cantons, A. Escher, whose Main points are:

“For the purpose of implementing the Gotthard railway Dube eue take over the management of the Discontogesellschaft, the bank for Trade and Industry, the A. Schaafhausen'sche Bankverein and S. Oppenheim Jr. and Co. formed an international consortium, which consists of a group of Swiss railway companies, banking institutions and banking houses, a group of Italian banking institutions and banking houses and a group of l 'German' banking institutions and banking houses.

The German group participates in the consortium with one third of the entire business and each of the two retains other groups have equal participation.

– 44 –

The participation of the German group of one third of the whole business: The management of the discount company with 50%, the Bank for Trade and Industry with 200%, the A. Schaafhausen'sche Bankverein with 15%/, S. Oppenheim jun. and Comp. with 15%, you keep on the other hand the General Directorate of k. Seehandlungs- Societät in Berlin, as well as the banks MA von Rothschild and Sons in Frankfurt a. M. and S. Bleichröder in Berlin the entry into this contract. The Consortium will provide the Godhardeisenbahngesellschaft. The consortium is committed to acquire the 34 million Swiss francs shares at a price of 95% less 3% commission. The amount to be paid on this first deposit of 20%, the course discount of 5% and The commission of 3% will be charged. By depositing the second installment, after which 40% bearer interest term certificates are issued, the obligations of the Consortium regarding the acquisition of the shares The Gotthard Railway Company will issue priority bonds in Spend 68 million francs. The consortium is committed to take over these bonds at a rate of 97% less 2% commission. For each purchase of bonds the price reduction and the commission are only charged on the taken into account.”

Mr. Hansemann appears here as the only financial Entrepreneur. From the first annual report of the company schaft, dated «Lucerne, June 9, 1873», page 23 goes back to or that his deputy is a "Reichstag deputy Miquèl in Berlin", so to speak. Miquèl has used his position of trust as a member of the Reichstag to the foreigners who participated in the company, and are now deceived, to inspire confidence. Was it not intended for this, he had to be in that official report as «Owner of the Disconto-Gesellschaft» because for a financial transaction a bank director is more important than a member of parliament.

Since, according to this treaty, German banking Jewry took the whole thing into his own hands and from foreigners only allowed related or friendly houses, so "make foreign capitalists rightly our German schen Reich-friendly bankers for the now occurred

Bed ee

Krach is responsible. In addition, this is the German Consortium that well-known clique whose members we meet in the Founding period always, united in groups, German capital rescue and who are now already on witness and prosecution bank are familiar phenomena.

The German members of the Board of Directors are led by the first Annual Report as follows: «The Gentlemen Privy Councillor A. von Hanseemann in Berlin (deputy: Reichstag member Miquèl in Berlin), Baron Karl von Rothschild in Frankfurt a. M. (Deputy: Secret rath Gerson von Bleichröder in Berlin), Privy Councillor Mevissen in Cologne (deputy: President Dr. Parcus in .Darmstadt), Privy Councillor Baron Abr. von Oppenheim in Cologne (deputy: Baron Albert von Oppenheim in Cologne) and Commerzienrath V. Wendelstadt in Cologne (Stellrepresentative: Director Movius in Cologne.)»

We meet Mr. Mevissen next to A. von Oppenheim and Wendelstadt also in the administrative council the Rhenish Railway, also Wendelstadt, Movius, . Mevissen in the Schaafhausen'schen Bankverein, Mevissen, Abr. v. Oppenheim in the Cologne private bank, the same and Wendelstadt in the fire insurance company Colonia, the life insurance company Concordia, the Cologne Reinsurance Company and the Cologne Hail insurance company, the Wendelstadt in the Cologne Mining Association, in the Sieg-Rheinischer Bergwerks-association, in the Cöln-Müsener, in the Cologne Mechanical Engineering company with A. von Oppenheim, both of whom united with Mevissen and the Cologne Cotton Spinning Mill, all three in the Darmstadt bank, finally we find some those gentlemen are known as defendants or hard-hit Witnesses, Wendelstadt even as a convicted person in the trial of ` Rheinische Effectenbank. The gentlemen Hansemann-Bleich-röder-Rothschild-Miquél have thus a worthy Cooperative joins forces for this European business. The banking consortium secured an astonishing commissions, which are also deducted from the outset The situation with the shares was as follows: The consortium undertakes to pay 40 percent of the 34 million francs allegedly to be paid = 13,600,000 Fres., and of this 5 + 3 Proc. =

– 48 –

8 Proc. = 2,720,000 Fres. to be retained for themselves, so that:

only 10,880,000 Fres. will flow into the company's coffers. Expressed this means that the company receives 32 percent, which Consortium in commission about 8 Proc., or !/, of what 'The audience paid for the company. In fact, The Consortium even more, because the shares were sold in In-term notes were issued at par on 22 January 1872, but only released to "friends", immediately on 104–105 driven and sold successively. Now 60 percent are paid in.

Of the bonds, the first 3 series were issued by 48,000,000 Fres. nominally paid in. Therefore, the : Commission 2,400,000 Fres, but the profit more, because the bonds at 101 percent and then into the height.

This society, which committed itself to 102 To raise a nominal amount of 100 million francs, the German Reich 20, Italy 45, Switzerland 20 million francs subsidy à fonds perdu, and the German Reich government set up a such noble trust in Mr. Hansemann and comrades that they did not even have a seat in the Council of the Society secured the community!

This company now has the largest light sense or fraudulently. The expenditure on procurement of the construction capital, commissions, exchange rate differences (ie profit of the Consortium) amounted to 3,320,000 Fres. up to ult. 72; in 1872 = 900,000 Fres.; in 1874 – 202,710 Fres.; in 1875 == 700,000 Fres. Total 5,122,710 Fres., while only for 20,400,000 Fres. shares and 48,000,000 Fres. bonds

Capital had nominally entered into. The company has only have the tunnel built in Accord; the 'other works builds them on its own and has, for example, Lines the estimate of 18 $\frac{1}{2}$ million francs for the exceeded threefold by deducting 51 million Eres.

How this could happen can only be determined by an investigation

We, who know the operations by means of which

– 49 –

the Hansemann-Bleichröder-Miquel companies plundered

This is not surprising considering the number of people entrusted to them.

Hansemann has been awarded the rail supply contract for the railway . St. Gotthard Administrative Council to Mr. Hansemann as Director of the – – Dortmunder Union! Likewise He entrusted the supply of rails to the Romanian Bahnen – his brother-in-law Raven, of course not to lowest prices. Now that things are going wrong, the noble consortium neither the 40 percent that have not yet been paid in. on the 34 million French shares in the amount of 13,600,000 Fres., nor the IVth bond series with 20,000,000 Fres. The management of the St. Gotthard has given the Swiss

The Federal Council has drawn up a calculation according to which the deficit the respectable amount of 102 million Fres, and she requests to convene an international conference to new subsidy should be approved! |
Meanwhile, the Italian government has already declared that not wanting to do so. The Italian administrative councils have almost all resigned from their positions, and it is said that Mr. von Hanseemann also wants to withdraw, as one of the board members of the Romanian railways said, They would prefer now (when there is nothing left to earn) has nothing to do with the matter.
| For the time being, the St. Gotthard Railway is a bankrupt railway. Napoleon III pierced the Mont Cenis and the Suez Canal. canal dug. Prince Bismarck is – – less fortunate– But the dear Reich friends, Hanseemann, Bleichröder, Miquél and comrades, have had a nice Skirt on the occasion. The matter will of course There is still a lot of dust, especially in the Italian and Swiss parliaments, stir up the German parliament will probably silently approve a new subsidy. But that this financial heroic deed of our Reich Jews will make the German name popular abroad, is hardly conceivable.

Meyer, founder. * | 4

Let's get down to business! Mortgage banks.

The Börsen-Zeitung had, after the hundred million Premium bond, mainly in opposition to the basic owner of the manor house, had failed to meet the needs of threatened with revenge from high finance. This Revenge would not be long in coming.
| On 10 December 1869 the same newspaper published the News that Bleichröder and other bankers in Berlin a land credit institution based on the model of the French wanted to found Crédit Foncier. The matter was striking enough, since already in March 1869 the fraud, which Haussmann with the Foncier, in the French Chamber had caused a great storm and it was actually meant demanding more from the German people than one could With his sheepish patience, he could reasonably expect that a institute that had just failed abroad is now in Prussia imitated and regarded by the people as a blessing And yet they dared to do it – with luck!

In addition, the Foncier, as already mentioned, is the Realization of the St. Simonist Landbank. intended to make him successively the owner of the entrusted land and thus the land ownership of France under the rule of the capitalists of the Foneier.

Of course, St. Simon had not imagined that his Ideal is so corrupted by the Jews who carry it out
But how could Count Bismarck, who was credited with promoting Bleichröder's project, suddenly become a Jewish St. Simonism had come, appeared to all insightful all the more a mystery, since it was known that the count had plans until recently that were not, like the one above, the ruin of the landowners, but their well-being in mind

'had. " | pd E

It is known that Mr. von Bismarck in the Conflicts-time the idea of winning the sympathies of the working class to win and to politically oppose the bourgeoisie.
which gave him such an unacceptable position in the House of Representatives.
acceptable opposition. His conversation with Lassalle

= 51 -

may have actually taken place, and that he was Wagener's

It is clear that Bismarck lent his ear to the advice of

The paths of socialism had changed at that time, but unlike Napoleon that of St. Simonism. Napoleon was serious about the popular happiness planned by St. Simon. Bismarck wanted to join Lassalle's followers for political purposes an abuse of which Lassalle was aware but which he, trusting in the power of socialism, Wagener always had an economic relationship with Lassalle.
economic reform in the sense that the Legislation allows the diligent and orderly worker in city and country possible. to own and

He was able to achieve independence through the paths
Lassalle did not agree and did not draw the same conclusions.
quences with him. As he sought the upliftment of the workers,
He also wanted to support the craftsmen and small landowners increase and make them more economically efficient.

I A part, namely the larger part of the Conservatives, disapproved of these plans and demanded even then «strict “Discipline” for the workers, as today there are penalties for breach of contract.

But Mr. von Bismarck was inclined to follow Wagener's advice;
The result was universal equal suffrage for the North German Confederation and the lifting of the coalition ban.
Wagener also had the prospect of convincing Count Bismarck to Normal working day, which is not, as the « Kreuz-

Newspaper in its complete ignorance recently

~ claimed, is a social democratic invention, but in all medieval guilds that published the «Kreuz-Zeitung» would like to bring back to life, and the

must be the basis of any new organization of work.
| If one wanted to give the landowner class and the small ones in particular, to help the settlement of the workers and facilitate the transition from «cottage» and «single lieger» to the «landowning free worker»,
So our mortgage relationships had to change.
The cancelable capital mortgage was not subject to such reforms.
Ways. These ideas were shared by Bismarck and Wagener.

| 80 easier to suggest than a so-called
| | |

- 52 -

«Mortgage poverty» of the landowners prevailed – which, in addition to noticed, is now on the rise again.

Mr. von Bismarck now had Lothar Bucher build the great scholars, long since conservative workers friend and socialist Rodbertus to ask him to give him a to develop a reform plan. This was done and The plan was printed under the title: «To explain and relief from the current credit crisis of the real estate.
Rodbertus briefly recommended the pension system and establishment a land rent institute. The plan is excellent and has only the – mistake that the stock exchange in its implementation lichung can no more do business than you this would have been possible when the Central Landscape was founded However, Rodbertus is not a stock market socialist, as the Pereire, Miquel, Bamberger etc.

The farmers themselves faced the new theory
Initially hostile towards the agrarian leaders.
them. Wilmanns described himself in a presentation as «principled opponents» of the same. Without a change their views through a scientific work so far motivated, now claim, after Rodbertus' death, that the same people, they are supporters of the theory, and Niendorf even has the audacity to write to the German Agricultural newspaper by «our» Rodbertus to "speak.

Mr. O. Beta has thoroughly examined it in that paper. and we can testify to the latter that Rodbertus about the unscientific, unsystematic and crude agitation and Polemics of several agrarian chiefs only deal with the biting uttered the most mocking remark. It is desecration of a corpse, if the former, who was dismissed for democratic activities, atheist village schoolmaster Niendorf, who never had three Write lines without major syntactical errors. speaks of «our» Rodbertus:

How Bismarck the work of the great thinker: mip taken, has not become known. But not only did nothing to carry out his plan, the legislation worked rather in the mortgage and sub-mortgage order directly contrary to the intention of Rodbertus, by not ensuring the preservation of the landowner in possession but facilitated his expulsion from the property. Both laws are antisocial and BAD] never But even more!

Already on 20 October 1869, the Börsen-Zeitung published the Moniteur of the «Consortia» – as we call the Disconto-Society with its rat king of political helpers helpers, in contrast to the « Anticonsortia» or the «Bleichröderring» – a fierce attack on the Landscapes founded by Frederick the Great Credit institutions for landowners, which are based on the Principle of mutuality and not of share capital as a guarantee fund: «At present there is no longer any reason to individual corporations at the expense of legal equality to grant such an exclusive position. The privileges of the Today, landscapes are damaging the credit of landowners. The landowner would better protect his interests, if he creates modern credit institutions.

As such a «more modern credit institution», March 21, 1870 the «Preussische Central-Bodencredit-Actien-Gesellschaft zu Berlin», conceded, in violation of of «equality before the law» compared to the already existing Mortgage stock banks and also the landscapes, with unheard-of privileges, both in terms of mobility regarding the interest rate, the rates and loan-to-value limits as well as

The volume of business is concerned. In fact, the already Foncier, who was exposed as a fraudulent bank, copied in Berlin! the concessionaires were Disconto-Gesellschaft (Hansemann-Miquél), Bleichröder, Rothschild, Oppenheim etc. Crédit Mobilier and Foncier had already all arts aimed at exploiting the public, ie in a way that has so far been regrettable under the criminal law fraud that has not yet been foreseen, but which has all the characteristics of fraud otherwise entails, they were of course copied here. Crédit Mobilier invented the non-full payment of the shares, the «young» of the same, the artificial boom of the same with the help of the bribed press, before this institute was founded could justify a bull market, the reservation of the Founder, in new issues “youngsters” to be valued at par draw etc. The Prussian copy for 12,000,000 Thir. shares with only 40 percent deposit Lakes They were only nominally 106 percent of the In fact, the issuing houses had they divided it among themselves and influential people who It was the first case in Berlin that so on a large scale the bribery of influential people, namely politicians, through the accursed system of «Be-division». The first step towards corruption the politician through the stock market had happened in broad daylight. The shares were soon inflated to 130 percent, ie for the interim certificate, for which one paid 40 thalers you received 70 thalers on the stock exchange; you "earned" So with his money in just a few weeks 70 percent!! Those Conservatives who supported Dr. Perrot on the « era articles » now claim, and Diest-Reichsglocke new- ding also, Count Bismarck himself was with one or another half a million in shares at par and have 150--300,000 thalers «Banhans'sché tips) However, the proof of this is not yet and one should think that the simplest wisdom the prince before accepting such participation should have protected it, since it is a criminal abuse of office for personal gain that is to be prosecuted 'qualify and put the prince in chains in the hands of the « Beteiligter», i.e. Bleichröder's, Hansemann's, Rothschild's, Miquel's, Oppenheim's. On the other hand, the Administrative council members will receive a share of 10,000 thalers each. Shares, some even a higher one. From one (the count Arnim) it is claimed that he did not accept it. Among these were the following men of political Influence: Minister a. D. von Bernuth, v. Bethmann-Hollweg, Count Bochoholz, Braun-Wiesbaden, v. Heydén-Cartlow, v.. Kar- dorff, Miquel, v. Singer Grabow, v. Wedell-Malchow, Scheele,

– 54 – |

v. Nathusius–Hundisburg, Kennemann–Klenka, v. Simpgpt

urn

pte Georgenburg, Wilckens, v. Eckardstein–Prötzel, Geh. upper Finanzrath Molle, Count Arnim–Boyttzenburg. The latter joined However, he explained that he was leaving very soon because the business a not clean». Of course, for these gentlemen, which was founded by the Disconto Society and its friends

e and has since been rewarded with handsome royalties

are no longer possible in Parliament or elsewhere the interests of the country» as soon as this is compatible with the Interests of the «Disconto–Bleichröder–Ring» collide.
The effectiveness of this bank is now over Germany
The author had already published in 1870 in the «Berliner Revue » demonstrated that the statute even exceeded the existing laws (whereupon the Department of Finance Ministry, Wollny, expressly pointed out should have!!!), that the purpose of the institute can only be the bankers and their accomplices at the expense of the basic to enrich the owners and to bring them under their control
bring the property finally in favor of a financial |

_.glique to expropriate, as the Jews of Foncier did.

The bank wanted to take over all existing mortgage
Banks and also the landscapes through their competition
I want to make them submit to her and merge into her.
Here we have again Pereire's plan, as it was . Mobilier had already been carried out: the Mobilier buys namely the shares, bonds, etc. of the company founded by him or industrial enterprises subject to ibm, lays them in his safe and on the basis of this security issues his own interest-bearing bonds of up to ten times the amount of its basic capital, so that this is an ee coverage
| granted. . |
| The advantage of this operation for professional «founders» is obvious. Let us assume that Pereire founded a hundred.
various industrial stock companies with a Average capital of 1 million thalers each. If he wants to individually, each paper must have a separate one.
Advertising – through advertisements, press bribery and participation – .

made to lure the audience.
That costs a lot. Some companies «seem» to 566

Audiences don't either, is known as "lazy". How It is different when Mobilier declares: «We have for 100,000,000 thalers. Funds from companies of various Art, all of which we, after careful examination with the assistance of a state commissioner, found to be solid
On the basis of this, as the State Commissioner attests,
We provide funds available in our vault for 100,000,000 Thir. interest-bearing bonds of Mobilier, for which not only those 100,000,000 thalers. various acquired funds, but also our entire share capital ten». For such a one-time issue of 100,000,000 Thir.
you can already depend on something, so the press is worth it bribery. This «paper with the big company» is easy to place, is world marketable, can be a playing paper of all stock exchanges. |

The plan really has a lot to offer and the drum has only one – hole! Who guarantees that the furniture really only buys solid funds? And he has unsolid bought.

Well, the matter was handled by Condor teria
copied under concession from the government. |

The project of the hundred million premium bond was a copy of the – even then already considered «failed» well-known Mobilier system: the Disconto company wanted for 100,000,000 thalers of bonds from 4 railway companies ties in their box and for 100,000,000 thalers.
Issue premium certificates under their guarantee. Likewise, according to the statute the Preussische Central-Bodeneredit-Actien-Company has the right to pay 12,000,000 thalers in cash
Basic capital for 240,000,000 thalers. Mortgage bonds of the individual Landscapes and Asia- Mortgage banks in Germany, Furthermore, communal, district and other bonds can be advertise to put in their box and for the same amount To issue «Central Pfandbriefe». Are among the
If the funds purchased are "bad", the guarantee of the Central bank only 5 percent through its own capital. At Mobilier it was even 10 percent, and yet this was not enough.

wee, IB ye

The dizziness still took hold. The basis of the Berlin

The Institute's structure is only half as solid as that of the then as a fraudulent model institute. Like a. Re-government that has the welfare of the country in mind, such
The question of how the institution could be licensed remains a mystery until you know the exact history of its founding.
We can consider here a general
Nature will not fail. As a result, as before, we find everywhere that the German exploiters French Patterns slavishly and sometimes even misleading
We are dealing here with Jews – Bleichröder, Oppenheim, Landau et al. – or Christian bankers, mostly of Rhineland descent, like Hanseemann, Camphausen, Mevissen, Rautenstrauch, Wendelstadt, Delbrück (although not from the Rhineland). The latter comrades know we from v. Diest's revelations: bankers' sons, too lazy and stupid to qualify for one-year service
In Diest's time, doctors bribed and bought Thus, she escaped from military service. When she was denounced by Diest were, their compatriot, Minister vd Heydt, had the all-zealous district administrator by the minister-honorable Count Schwerin, set off. Incidentally, it is very fair that the stock exchange, whose darlings the neglectful Minister dismissed a conscientious official, later the Minister himself fell. This will happen even more people go. When you see these people, the Hanseatic mann, Bleichröder etc., how incapable they are in Parliament to talk about their robbery plans in the newspapers themselves.
defend, as they also do not have an original thank you for their raids, but slavishly the Pereiras and Lagrands copy, as finally their senselessly constructed fraudulent company – Dortmunder Union et al. – to such an extent that not even a trace of "value" in the pockets of the exploited remains, one is overcome by a feeling of disgust and One rightly asks oneself what interest, what pleasure Statesmen in confidential dealings with such money can find the truly miserable intellectual proletarians

E

How noble and important appear in comparison with them their Parisian role models! Isaac and Emil Pereire were poor Jewish literati, but more learned than the semi-table Penny-liner's of the Berlin Consorteria press. They developed St. Simon's socialist idea to such an extent that it could be exploited to deceive the same people, St. Simon wanted to make happy. After all, a intellectual achievement! Our Pereires can only explain the dizziness coarsen – the ten percent coverage of the Mobilier in the five percent of the Central-Bodencredit-Actien-Gesellschaft weaken.

Just as deep as the German epigones of the French Inventor of the quasi-socialist banking fraud among the Role models, the German MPs and

According to the majority of journalists, anything economic. | knowledge, among their French comrades. It is no doubt that Bebel, Hasselmann and Liebknecht in Reichstags have more thorough economic knowledge _ than the rest of the Reichstag combined.

Since Wagener's departure, the Conservatives have had no Man who has only written three coherent sentences had spoken about economic matters, and the Scholar of the Liberals is Mr. Bamberger, a pure Stock exchange socialist. When the Central-Bodencredit-Actien-Gesellsociety in Parliament and in the press, Nor has a man had so much knowledge to point out assign that we are dealing here with a fraudulent cut St. Simonist idea, which had already gone bankrupt in France! And this clan of ignorant politicians in parliament and in the Press, which laboriously goes from hand to mouth, from Con-versationslexicon on the podium and in the editorial, live, are in complete agreement that if someone turns up who what knows and can, to denounce him or to keep him silent.
As long as Rodbertus lived, the agrarians remained silent about him out. Now that he is dead, they have no seat and cannot shame them with his knowledge, they praise him as "theirs!"

– 59 –

We have only had one founder in Germany,
who, if not in knowledge, then at least in genius can at best compete with the French models, of course also a Jew, Strousberg, and it is high interesting, with what contempt he is treated by our parliamentary mental heroes, from our bankers and banks speaks.

| Strousberg believes that there have always been noble
worse among the Jews, only the emancipation
The same in Germany has resulted in this sank, «while almost exclusively from the low-numerous men have risen to the top
The majority of wealthy and educated

Jews are such upstarts. When the Jews were granted citizenship, they moved from degenerate communities in the East to the big cities. «With less demands and needs (than they have long had here resident «noble» Jews) and unashamedly by Scruples of any kind, it was easy for the new people to exist to acquire wealth and displace the old. The small produce, fur and tallow trader, wealthy moved to a larger city and became the Commissioner of his former colleague in the province. Many from the poorest classes of the Jews seize with zeal and Success the scientific career (now Strousberg taunts quite openly on Lasker), starve themselves with the help of their rich fellow believers at high school and university, achieve a scientific education that is close to the heart education and savoir-faire. The greater the contradiction in this respect, the worse the Episode... The Jewish politician, whose relatives and parents perhaps usurers and crooks in the Province of Posen, in the awareness of his nobler Goals, for something particularly sublime, because he sees himself as an honest man; he feels like a swan hatched by geese and is only too easily inclined to cultivate pathological theories and, by making the real interests only of reprehensible side. Lack of interest as for the public good to be considered as the only healing thing. A higher other life view of the world seems to him unjustified and the other members of society. Comfort and taste, – unknown to him, called luxury and extravagance, He contrasts this with the deprivation of the masses. »

– 60 –

Turning to banking, Strousberg says:
«The small business in the province was, as it is today is still the case, usually with smaller or larger Advances were linked to this, and small Usury and the so-called business customs in the product, stock exchange and banking sectors, which have now also transferred to the big business. The Berlin commissioner became the small usurer usurer, and gradually transformed the commission business into the so-called banking and Commission business and brought out of his lazy Origin brought with it further customs that have developed into time to the entire commercial and stock exchange system and which today unfortunately are also being used by Jews and Christians worship it.

It is a mistake to think of Berliners Banks. These are all just commission transactions for funds and foreign bills of exchange and in the larger and smaller degrees founding houses or green investment companies, speculators and, more recently, with a few exceptions, usurers. The latter term
But it does not only refer to small houses – it is almost universally accepted. Among the old private bankers
Only here you can still find houses that reflect the decent tradition remained true to their business. High dividends are today the criterion of prosperity, while with greater right are an indication of the lack of solidity and speculation. But as far as the view is not common, high dividends must be achieved, and speculation and usury offer the only appropriate means... I only claim that we have no actual banks and that most of those who

yes: GL we) are not a support for the industry and speculation

lation, usury and immorality Hoen uud ver-wide."

Strousberg does not make such claims without proof, but immediately characterizes one of the «largest most decent and finest" banks, as they are in the stock market jargon is called, as a usury institution par excellence. He tells how he bought shares of the company he owned for 2,700,000 rubles.
built railway Brest-Grajewo pledged at a consortium Capitalisten, led by the Berlin Handels-company, for 20 percent with monthly 1 percent Interest on the nominal amount, i.e. for every 20 rubles
One ruble per month or twelve per year, i.e. interest on

Not counting lins, 60 percent per year!

The Berlin professional small pawnbrokers and Of course, usurers take something more, namely from Thaler and month 21, Sgr. The Strousberg pledge
The deal was probably made in 1872. At that time
The owners of the Berlin trading company, Messrs.

Privy Counsellor of Commerce F. Gelpcke sen.; Counsellor of Commerce Wilhelm Conrad, Fr. Gelpcke jun.; Administrative Board: the Privy Commercial Councillor Gerson v. Bleichröder, Alex. Mendelssohn, A. Borsig, H. Zwicker, Mevissen-Cologne, Commerzienrath R. Brook, Consul General V. v. Magnus, the Bankers J. Jacques, Ad. Meyer, Heinr. Wolff, Gustav Güterbock, Privy Councillor Windhorn, Baron Albr. v. Oppenheim- Cologne.

His truly expert and honest judgment Strousberg sums up our banking system: «The banking system as such, properly understood and properly operated, is a necessary for the country and promoting all forms of traffic 'tution. How the same and everything connected with it, but is operated by us, it serves, except the foreign exchange, stock exchange and commission business, entirely wrong purposes. Certainly in terms of their solidarity venz, are our banking and mortgage institutions, bankers, Exchange shops and commission houses are nothing other than Motives for speculation and means for usury and to legalized fraud. The worst thing is, that this result is associated with personal, albeit wrong, with complete honesty. Our law, our state bank, the now prevailing principles and the resulting system are to blame for this. It However, there are trading houses that stick to their old traditions tions are left, these are honorable, but mostly useless, How the Jewish bankers the inventors or at least skilled users of customs that today are rampant and the usury and legalized Fraud opens the door and gate, so the more systematic- philosophical spirit of the Germanic people tries to use principles cipien and, while maintaining everything described above, to perfect our business system the following principle has been established: «In monetary matters the coziness ends». (Well-known saying David Hansemann, the father of the current owner of the Disconto Society.) The disciples of this cult have – Institutes were also founded as temples in which this basic by a number of the most capable priests with with a zeal worthy of the best cause and who at the same time in their loyalty to their convictions, nature investment and their interest and general recognition.» | !

– 62 –

| It is well known and is also mentioned in this book. describes that mainly the Disconto-Gesellschaft Strous- mountain. The above article mainly refers to them.

Passage. These «most capable priests» in the temple of the golden Kalbes are the business owners and board members of the Disconto-Gesellschaft, Such people are the ones who are afraid of the familiar ganges, the friendship of our ministers and of them concessions, such as those of the Central- Bodencredit- Gesellschaft- nu community. | Ze It would have been easy for the «Ring» to sell the shares The latter bank is to be pushed as high as the ,Dortmunder-Union, Laurahütte and other fraudulent companies

7 a Are BRS

if the French war had not come would be broken. |

The bank was unlucky in other ways too. It immediately started to “save” the property with cutthroat tactics. demanded high commissions, damno, administration fee and can only compete with the landscapes by higher, ie at the expense of the security of the Through this means, it has been able to That expanded their business quite quickly by ult. August 1876 for 131,000,000 M. mortgage bonds issued But since their business practices were not unknown,

she only managed to establish a small mortgage company

The landscapes founded the Central landscape and thus saved themselves from their “love”. – | But the government's favour remained with her to the extent that that their sphere of influence extends to the whole of Germany incl. Alsace-Lorraine.

In this newly acquired imperial territory, a similar interesting case.

Minister Delbrück is the cousin of A. Delbrück in Company Leo Delbrück and Co. This cousin is one of the most dangerous founders that ever existed. With the Members of Parliament Dr. L. Bamberger, G. Müller, v. Magnus, E. vd Heydt, A. von Rath, Hardt, Wendelstadt and others green- He founded the Deutsche Bank in Berlin, which Glagau founded «classic foundation» with good reason. With the already by an exploited MP beaten up and City Councillor Kieschke, City Councillor Risch, E. vd Heydt, Levien, B. Oppenheim he founded the «Deutsche Baugesellschaft»; with E. vd Heydt, Geh. Baurath Hitzig (Itzig), B. Oppen- home the «Actien-Gesellschaft für Bau-Ausführungen»; with Count G. Henckel von Donnersmarck, G. Müller, Friedländer the «Donnersmarckhütte»; furthermore the «Hamburger-, Barmer-, Berliner-Bankverein» and a host of other companies. In the «Berliner Bankverein» his administrative board members are nossen and others, Count G. Henckel, Goldschmidt, the well-known Members of Parliament Dr. Kapp, B. Oppenheim, Kieschke; in the «Deutsche Bank» Zwicker (Gebrüder Schickler), Hardt

ze 6

(Disconto-Ring), vd Heydt, the minister's well-behaved Sohn, G. Müller, Member of Parliament Mosle, v. Rath, Wendelstadt (now convicted of fraud in Cologne).

You can see that this is also a very nice, of course if highly liberal, financial rat king, who also has the political connections through the involvement of MPs neten cannot be missing, apart from the relationship with the President of the Reich Chancellery. This « side ring » now – alongside the Consorteria of the Disconto Society and Bleichröder's Anticonsortia is admittedly a mere side-line sun – which has recently been expanded by founding the Hotel Kaiserhof has not been particularly well-known was founded in March 1872 with the concession of the «Actien-Society for Land and Communal Credit in Alsace-Lorraine» was pardoned by the imperial government. But But that is not all! The imperial government of the Reichs-country uses these, certainly very, very (for the state lawyer Tessendorf) dubious people founded bank as – deposit bank!

The paid-in share capital amounted to only 4,800,000 M in ult. 75. The mortgage business is not extensive, as only for 9,000,000 M. mortgages have been acquired. Compared to the The bank owned a tiny share capital of 15,000,000 Frs. at ult. 74. ult. 1875 for 10,000,000 M. Effects that are not specialized and where considerable losses have probably already been made. Nevertheless, this bank appears to the imperial government sure enough that she will give her 21 percent of the following funds

entrusted: There went in 1874 = 28,587,244 Frs., out = |

38,435,778, holding 36,232,103 Frs. public funds. The The government's current account balance amounted to ult. 74 = 17,127,500 Frs. So the government had ult. 74 to demand 53,300,000 Frs. The government deposits contributed ult. 75 == 7,493,069 M., Public funds were In addition, the bank had 34,216,113 M., so that the speculation lantengesellschaft over 41,600,000 M. state funds to a

The government trusts the Bank, ten times its basic capital! Is Is such a grant not a state subsidy?

ui

We have other mortgage stock banks in Germany, which also caused more harm than good However, it cannot be said that they had an outstanding political influence.

| There is the «Preussische Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank», known under the name «the Jachmann'sche». It has truly horrific foundations through her daughter, the «Preussischen Credit-Anstalt», was founded. Its
The council also has outstanding liberal representatives and at its head is the former minister von Bonin, but she has never had any scandalous dealings with the state and cannot exploit the land as much as like the Central-Boden-Credit-Actien-Gesellschaft, since its statutes – as well as those of all other mortgage stock companies Banks – draw much narrower boundaries. From well-known

People still have this bank in its administration: George Beer, von Puttlitz, v. Carstenn, v. Prillwitz, Richter-Muskau, General v. Witzleben, Julius Alexander, Helfft, FW v. Krause and the former MPs Dr. Engel, Ahlmann and the MP Count Wintzingerode ordered. Among them, however, are some evil founders, but not excellent political agents.

‘However, the eighty-year-old former minister von Bonin by a truly astonishing impudence, by on the ruins of the Lindenbau Association – to take care of a new parliamentary mandate, instead of his grey To carefully keep hair out of people's sight and to thank God on his knees every day that Tessenvillage and throw them with disgrace and shame into the pit. But our time has lost the shame and the man still brazenly defies the public conscience, whose one foot is already in the grave. The bank was 1868 and had ult. 1875 for 60 million marks Pfandbriefe issued.

We will come back to Henckel's banks in to speak about another chapter. The Brunswick Hannoversche Hypothekenbank was founded by the Delbrück Nebenring with the help of the Berliner Bankverein (Guido Graf Henckel, Dr. Kapp, A. Delbrück, BH Goldschmidt, 5 Frege, Meyer, Grinder.

– 66 –

B. Rensemman, Count Salm-Reiferscheid) founded; in the Administration we find Frensdorff (Hannöversche Disconto-Society), F. Gelpcke jun. (Berl. Handels-Gesellschaft), F. Kayser (Norddeutsche und Internationale Bank), Ad. Levien (Berl. Bankverein), MPs Laporte, Wallich, (German Bank: Bamberger's foundation: Siemens, Kapp and Consorten). This bank also enjoys excellent political Connexions, to which they probably also owe their Concession. In 1875, it was sold for 28 million marks Pfandbriefe issued.

The Deutsche Grund-Credit-Bank zu Gotha was founded already in 1867 and enjoys even more of the smell of farm air—the administrative councilors, such as Prince Hatzfeld-Trachenberg, Count Maltzahn-Militzsch, Count Pourtalés, Baron v. Cohn-Dessau. It has relations with the Silesian Bank Association (Count Joseph Hoverden, Guido Count Henckel, Prince Carl Hohenlohe, Lehfeld, Count Schaffgotsch) and is owned by the former prosecutor von Holtzendorff, a man who was expelled from the civil service because of conspicuous liberalism. This liberalism did not prevent him from through his notorious agent Bauer, in Berlin very to do dubious business. The bank had ult. 1875 issued mortgage bonds for 78 million marks. i | At the Silesian Soil Credit Association, which was conceded in 1872, Actien-Bank, which in 1875 for 25 million Marks mortgage bonds only the former MP Elsner von Gronau

known. E |

Without significant interest because without political influence in the German Empire, the smaller mortgage banks and the southern German ones. The former include two in Schwerin, of which the Boden-Credit-Actien-Bank and others Mr. Hagen of the Progressive Party owes its existence, among the founders of the second, the Mortgage and Exchange Bank, 'we find the inevitable E. vd Heydt and Mr. Siemens again. In the Rheinische Hypothekenbank to ` Mannheim is home to the parliamentarians Professor Bluntschli, Scipio, Dr. Buhl. The Bavarian Mortgage and Exchange bank in Munich has issued mortgage bonds for 195 million marks issued, but has no representation in the Reichstag.

– 67 –

In contrast, the Süddeutsche Boden-Credit-Bank has just since its Director, Dr. v. Schauss, as well as the administrative rath, Count Arco- Valley was sent to the Reichstag.
the Württembergische Hypotheken-Bank, with 37 million marks Pfandbriefe, we know Mr. Sarwey in Berlin. The Deutsche Hypothekenbank zu Meiningen, with 46 million marks Pfandbriefe, and the Frankfurter Hypotheken-Bank, with 26 million Marks of mortgage bonds, there seem to be no parliamentary

=- to have found a representative.

In total, there are about 30 such institutions in Germany, of which not one in Prussia was built before 1864.
We owe them all to the economic policy inaugurated by Prince Bismarck.

One must say that Prince Bismarck was Paths on which he, following the advice of Wagener
and Rodbertus, and has deviated and a pernicious

Policy for land ownership. Instead of preserving the families in possession and the settlement of the agricultural workers through the pension system and to promote land ownership by free from financial domination, he has the emergence favored by capitalist banks that served the landowners cut off the throat and – which eventually becomes will largely go bankrupt. They 'borrow too much, exploit the debtors too much, and the next basic crisis will make them bankrupt in droves.
we will soon publish a special publication.
The rapid sale of indebted properties enabling new sub-delivery order further increases the Dangers of such mortgage banks. The Bismarck's Agricultural policy is therefore antisocial, capitalist, as far as the mortgage relationships into account.

At the end of this chapter we would like to the extremely expert judgment in this area Strousbergs about our mortgage policy, i.e. law issuing and banking licensing.

He says our mortgage laws make it dangerous ly, to own something that you owe money on. The | N =

ö OBR. i

Usury has taken over and is not only limited to Private limited that if you borrow money against mortgage counters, it is only a matter of time, how soon you will be ruined. The mortgage institutions have capital intended for mortgages largely seized and practice a hideous usury" ...

«Pupil funds, as well as the means of decent private individuals are almost all used by mortgage institutions taken, and these. practice the most ruthless usury. For the first secure mortgages become quasi-Pfandbriefe given that are not delivered, but for which a less than par is paid out, and woe betide him who has to sell mortgages that do not fall into the first category category; no matter how good they are, and whether the buyer is a mortgage institution or a usurer Mosaic or Christian faith – the fur is pulled over his ears and in particular and in part rightly (!) since the introduction of our new mortgage laws (!!), because in the implementation of the theory of our disinterested (?) economists, the natural fixed (real estate) liquid (mobile), i.e. lawsuit, subhastation and To accelerate everything related to this as much as possible,

you have every mortgage property that is not the first place or where the owner of the second position is not can pay the man in front of him under all circumstances, made absolutely unsafe.

«The consequences are already apparent, and they will appear much more elegant. Especially because for a house or Good does not always mean buyer, or more correctly,

Lovers can be found, so in a Land where the circumstances of a debt-ridden landowner

time must be available to ensure that the necessary
Anyone who has had the opportunity to
To observe this, will have found that previously not the creditor always resorted to extreme measures, because he had to lose a lot of time during which he only simple interest; but if it does come to that came, the debtor or owner of subsequent mortgages had

69 –

Iron usually has enough time to get the money 1
Today, short process is made, sub-haste, which ruin the owner and the harm mortgage creditors.

«If you want a speedy procedure,
At most, the terminated mortgage should be due and not all other capitals. I know seemingly decent people who only have good mortgages on Buy for a short time and then cancel to start again to demand a larger or smaller Damno; if not on time interest payment, the screw is tightened in the same way filmed, canceled and renewed with Damno.

«Usury is eating up house and landowners.
constantly, and may the well-off today only not comfort. If they have children, divide their wealth must, it will only be a question of time, how soon the latter will be left penniless.

«No law can determine the market value of a mortgage a mobile deposit; the attempt (to do so) has the Security does not increase, even reduces usury brought to full bloom».

Strousberg's criticism is everywhere justified and exhausted not even the evil. But the most sad thing is that our legislators knew this course of events before those unfortunate laws were given that they other proposals for a conservative mortgage legislation 'which they did not follow.

The policy of the Reich Chancellor is also later towards land ownership has been a fluctuating one.

At the 6th Congress of German Farmers, Dr. Rodbertus; Professor A. Wagner and author a proposal which includes an investigation – actually of all – rural economic conditions aimed at the stated intention to reform agricultural legislation The prince seemed inclined to the matter, because he His Majesty gave a lecture on this and the Emperor ordered that the request be granted. Now the Minister of Agriculture sent the following letter to Mr. Dr. Rodbertus: |

8

Berlin, July 15, 1875.

Ministry of Agricultural Affairs.

Your Highness will be aware that the intention which was proposed by the Sixth Congress of German Farmers to the Reich Chancellery's request for an En-quota, concerning the economic situation of the working classes in the countryside both in itself and in its context with the economic situation of real estate and capital to come closer.

Given the importance of the information provided in the application in question, specific questions and the manifold interpretation, which several of the points contained therein, especially in questions V and VI I would like to invite Your Highness as the main applicant to request me, if it is your time and your well-being allows me to elaborate in more detail in a short exposé want to know in detail the composition of a such a Commission, the course and objectives of its activities investigations, especially with regard to Question VI.

Through a discussion about your Intentions in this inquiry would be the initiation of the right path for it and the overcoming of the opposing difficulties can be greatly alleviated.

I would very much appreciate a reply as soon as possible be. a |
The Minister for Agricultural Affairs.

signed Friedenthal.
To the General Regional Councilor
Dr. Rodbertus
. Your Highness

Jagetzow.

Rodbertus' answer is:

Your Excellency, most esteemed letter of 15 July of this year,
I am most obedient to answer in the following.

Your Excellency kindly informs me that the intention which was proposed by the Sixth Congress of German Farmers to the Reich Chancellery's request for an En-question concerning the economic situation of the working classes in the countryside both in itself and in its context with the economic situation of landowners and capital to come closer.

Your Excellency then adds: "Through a as informative as possible about your intentions in

1

The inquiry would pave the way for the same and the overcoming of the manifold opposing | difficulties are greatly alleviated."

However, there must be a misunderstanding here.

The motion I submitted is not directed at the event
an inquiry", but rather on "establishment of a commission with the task of improving the economic situation of the working classes in the countryside both in itself and in its connection with the economic situation of the landowner and the capital after six points of view known to Your Excellency."

I therefore had no intention of conducting an inquiry and in fact could have had even less, as I – as here
the word Enquête, as it seems, in the technical sense and form in which it is for us to determine of social facts through individual questioning of experts become common practice – when I, I say, was convinced that such an inquiry will never lead to even the slightest approximately correct answers to the six questions of our

Because, even if at most in points I, II and IV a hearing of individual practical experts would be applicable, but points III, V and VI are absolutely not through individual interviews, but only through statistical

This is obvious, without me having to go into it further.

Of course, the applicants have made clear from the outset and therefore, well-intentioned, their approach request for the establishment of a commission and not the event

However, it is possible that the word

– Enquête in Your Excellency's most esteemed letter not in that narrower technical meaning, "but in the general sense of a investigation in any other arbitrary form is, in which case what I have said above is not | would take up space.

 = If Your Excellency wishes to know further how I me the composition of such a commission, the course and the objectives of their investigations, especially with regard to Question VI
 I do not dare to confess to the opinion that, if the six questions are to be answered in detail, in any case the three applicants must be members of the Commission
 'must, because they will not have submitted an application that they not to deal with all of his points thoroughly himself in the
 The personalities of the
 to provide sufficient guarantees for solving the task.
 Professor Wagner is known to be one of the most famous economists and greatest authorities in this science; Nobody surpasses Dr. Meyer in his detailed knowledge of workers' movements throughout Europe; I, for my part, bring at least the fruits of forty years of work on social Questions to the Commission. On the other hand, the Chancellor's office, only two members should be appointed, because Given the notorious aversion of the members of the Reich Chancellor's office against a serious approach to the social question could easy if the majority of the Commission is represented by the Chancellor office, a sufficient answer to the six questions

– 72 –

 : points still fail in the lap of the Commission itself. Nevertheless needs the concern that so easily arises among mere practitioners not to be cherished that the answer to the six questions points in the composition of the Commission would be too theoretical. Such a danger can These questions do not take place at all, because they are either not to be answered or their answers, as already indicated, only the most reliable statistical findings are used can and must. Therefore, the Commission would also authority, but on special questions experts permanent hearings, but mainly also the statistical bureaus of the Reich in order to be able to use the already existing Investigations the necessary notes for the combination of conclusions,
 'which would have to be drawn upon to answer the questions.

| "Course and aim" of the investigations. are in such cases composition and such powers also of the Commission
 The "course" of the work is in the order of the six questions clearly and I would not know what to in the pre-emption they enjoy, their understanding is still Point II, however, leads to a different conclusion.
 of annual wages, as previously generally assumed, alone
 since a Doder the distribution of the English national income illuminated, one must not hesitate any longer in Germany,

the annual salary according to the number of actually occurred Paydays. Multiplying this annual wage with the statistically determined number of actual workers.

then the figure of the annual national wage. This sum, the number not only of real workers, but also of their
To compare the situation of the working people with the classes is necessary because the members of want and need to live on that national annual wage sum. -

Only when this comparison has been made does a simple Division example, how much maintenance is, the average _ falls on every head belonging to the working class. A two-

In my humble opinion, clarity can be found in point V.
solut cannot be found. |

- ora
| \

Nor in point VJ, if only the Commission
The concept of proportional wages is common and at the same time makes it clear that if, as a result of an increase in national production, ductivity and production of the land and capital ownership
Part of this increase is different for land than for capital in the case of land ownership, namely as an increase in ground rent or increase in net yield per acre, with capital against not as an increase in the capital rent or increase in the profit or interest rate per cent, but as an increase of capital rent, because with such an increase in national production
-duction, the capital must always increase accordingly
'and thus the profit or interest rate can easily be calculated on the same pro-
These requirements for the sale
understanding and determination of the relationships contained in point VI.
However, the applicants have the same conditions and circumstances and would certainly be found in the Commission if the applicants have the majority in it. Otherwise, the answer from VI will have greater difficulties, perhaps even possible because the concept of proportional wages belongs to a newer national economic view and still has not generally penetrated into the popular understanding; on the various forms of rent increase in land and Capital was first noticed by me in my social letters been made.

If Your Excellency then finally asks about the "goals"

of the investigation we have requested, these are not others, as a faithful objective picture of the division ratio of the national income between workers, landowners and capital lists and the movement of this division ratio since 30–40 years, because only when a true picture of it is present when one knows without doubt how this relationship to Time and whether and to which side of these three participants of national income has changed over the last 30–40 years has to be judged without risk of error whether, with what Measures and in favour of which part the state should intervene kidneys.

Because positive state intervention, be it in individual relationships, even just by passing other laws – as in the case of Real estate through the introduction of the rent principle – is finally but an honest and successful approach to the social evils. Your Excellency most obedient |
; signed Rodbertus.

Since then, ii has remained silent on the matter.
But one does not want to go through a thorough investigation

BE ae

provide evidence that the 1869–onwards followed agricultural policy only benefits cutthroats and ruined the landowner class. The mortgage shares Societies continue to proliferate – the average Damno, which is one of the most solid, the «Prussian Bodencredit-Actien-Bank zu Berlin» is 11 percent – and so we will continue to work until the same Noise that has already spread to the consortia railways, also about the mortgage banks. Here, as at all other ends of the von Bismarck since 1867 and even more since 1870 failed economic policy – bankruptcy.

os a II. Book.
founding period.

War, billions and culture war.

u The outbreak of war with France hit our Stock exchange and the development into patriotic «world

houses» Reich friends Bleichröder– Hanseemann hard. All big plans had to be postponed. The North German Confederation took out a 5 per cent war loan at Rate of 88 percent in the amount of 100 million thalers. The patriotic Berlin Stock Exchange subscribed to a total of – – three Millions! The bond was far from being fully subscribed, and Mr. Lasker, this hypocritical advocate of his green derian tribesmen, said later in the Reichstag quite coolly, one cannot blame the bankers for this | make, with their «business capital» they would have been able to cannot participate in such an uncertain business, with their They would have done it amply with “private capital”. We know now by Lasker, who was formerly Bleichröder’s paid

Commis – as legal consultant – was that the superfluous fraud.

Pocket money of the Berlin bankers at that time 3 million thalers

One would have thought that the Count’s love Bismarck for his friends Bleichröder, Miquèl, Hanse- man etc. cooled down a bit by this puncture But no, he forgot and forgave in this Fall once, and when he received the 5 billion war contribution imposed on the French, he sent Bleichröder to Paris come to make his advice useful for the fatherland

– 76 –

It must have weighed heavily, because Gerson Bleichröder received the – “Iron Cross” for this, as if he would have used his blood like a brave man from Wörth and Sedan. The “Kladderadatsch” satirized this «Knight» by wearing his decoration in the form of a – coupon scissors.

Recently, Mr Jules Favre wrote: “Gouvernement de la Defense Nationale” is a strange one Revelation about Bleichréder’s activity in Versailles which the former Prussian General Ecclesiastic Schramm in his «Glossaries», published in Milan, to a Suspicion of Prince Bismarck was exploited. The Chancellor initially set the contribution at “six” billion and wished that the French government the help of Mr Bleichröder and

Guido Count Henckel von Donnersmarck at their departure
These gentlemen had their financial plan
Mr Thiers, Mr Favre and a parliamentary committee mission. The lecture, however, had a « meticulous » Impression and was from the « feeling of national.
dignity » was rejected by the French. The financiers
For their efforts, no less than another “three billion” – probably in “guarantee commissions”, a term that we learned from the Romanian business Bleich-Röders will get to know and appreciate even more – Count Bismarck finally agreed to this from the participation of the Prussian Bankers aside and the contribution even increased by «one» Schramm is now, as we hope, defamatory way, the matter as if Bismarck had by the reduction of one billion from the previously determined
The «six» questioned by the French have made the silence about the «meticulous» and «unworthy» proposals of the Prussians.
bankers want to buy. |

Unfortunately, there is no official response to these suspicions.
Correction from Germany has been successful so far. Although
Of course not to Prince Bismarck, so his subordinates
However, traders can be trusted to do anything, provided |

be to a rr

"

only that there is a lot of money to be made. Bleichröder's scandalous greed and dirty business practices are we will get to know more about Count Guido

Henckel von Donnersmarck is also one of the bloodiest

Founder. He sits on the board of directors of the Silesian Bankverein», the «Berliner Bankverein» with A. Delbrück,

B. Oppenheim, Dr. Kapp and others, two horrific

Founder banks. He founded with A. Delbrück and comrades

the "Donnersmarckhütte", to which he guaranteed a dividend of 6 percent but did not perform, furthermore the "Schlesische Actien-Gesellschaft for mining and zinc smelting operations» etc.

After all, one must say that the prince

Bismarck did not have a lucky hand when he financial confidants to support him in the billion dollar business, and it seems as if if the French now accept the greedy propositions wanted to use it to convince the prince himself.

These financiers are disreputable enough for that. By the way, we have learned that

Bleichröder and Count Henckel themselves did not agree Be, since the former only increases the performance of France at 2 billion, the latter at 10 billion. Bismarck initially demanded 8 billion, then went down to 6 and finally dropped to 5. The fact is that Count Henckel was later no longer able to what communication with Mr. Thiers to maintain, while Bleichröder also continued to have relationships with Mr. Thiers remained. It was even claimed that Mr.

von Bleichröder Count Harry Arnim at Mr. Thiers.

suspected and in the duel Bismarck versus Arnim played an ambiguous role.

During the "fructification" of the five billion, bleaching Röder may also have done his work, but

There is still a thick veil over this business. It is said

According to Mr Camphausen, he had the main influence on the Investment, or rather the pretzelization or fragrance – as the «Kreuz-Zeitung» with a amazing joke noticed – had. If it is the case

2

| – 78 –

st, this act secures him a permanent place in the History: Never before has a state had such a colossal sum, and never before has a significant Sum so incredibly useless, even harmful for the people, been applied.

The most important cultural works could be carried out lead, crisscross the country with canals, which are so bad Expand country roads, thousands of useful companies promote – – nothing, nothing of that happened. Camphausen took on his task like a small money changer, whose greatest wish is “not to lose any interest”.
Seldom has absolute inability taken such a massive form assumed, as in Mr. Camphausen.

While the bulk of the government's revenue
Capitals through the rapid departure enforced by Bismarck payment by France in the most incorrect manner was quickly brought to Germany, so that the financial man of the Reich, Delbrück, or rather his friend and Councilor Camphausen, admittedly in embarrassment could, where with the blessing, did Bei de now in turn also the most wrong thing one could do at that time.
They threw money en masse onto the German money market through repayment of government bonds and through Advances to big bankers – more on that later.
This inflow of capital, which is mainly generated through the Berlin Stock Exchange, the founding fraud of the

The years 1872 and 73 were only possible. The stock market saw the billions fought for by our brave men as their rightful booty, and in those years the German people made them poorer by their amount. The billions
We are therefore affected by the wrong policies of the Bismarck-Ministers.
Delbrück-Camphausen has become a curse.

The war brought us a second misfortune: the ecclesiastical discord in Laude and the intensification of social class contradictions.

Social democracy had existed since 1864.
But it was divided. The more energetic and dangerous

Theil, the Lassallean party, still obeyed the leadership

– 7 –

u: A

the learned and politically wise von Schweitzer. The man has been badly slandered. Bebel has condemned him in the Reichstag a "scoundrel" and Forkenbeck has the dead

not defended against this insult.

fasser knew Schweitzer very well. Schweitzer wanted – really the welfare of the workers. Revolutions always call

Reaction and bring down a country by a generation

Schweitzer and Lassalle had followed the path of Reform in sight: reform through strong state power
Prussia. E

Stages on this path were the general, same and direct suffrage and the normal working day. The latter is necessary for the workers to give them the leisure which a person needs who has higher interests
He wants to pursue more than the one for daily bread. He is also the first condition of an organization of work. A man, who works an average of only 10 hours a day, wins Muse, which he may abuse at first, but later

certainly useful for his instruction, technical perfection

or to do domestic work in his family circles. The general right to vote is only then a tolerable institution if one can go through such Muse the mass to a sensible use of this political right. The worker, who is 12 and has to work more hours a day, cannot afford their own political judgment and will blindly follow the first

Agitator to the ballot box and – follow to the barricade.

Schweitzer hoped that Bismarck would, after a victory over

France will follow the law on the normal working day
The workers would then gradually be encouraged to participate involved in political life, more and more send their representatives to Parliament and finally a general implement gradual social reform – as is Louis Blane and Lassalle through the Productivassociation, through whose usefulness can be disputed, this slow and wanted to bring about a bloodless transformation.

In this hope that Count Bismarck will take the serious intention to build on the 1867 award of the – 80 –

to continue along the path taken by universal suffrage.

During the war, Schweitzer kept the Lassalleans in Peace, while against the board of the «Eisenacher» Social list party General Vogel von Falkenstein intervene Shortly before his death, von Schweitzer told the
The author confessed that he had convinced himself in the summer of 1871, that Bismarck would pursue an anti-social policy, and that as a result Lassalleanism in Germany

a radical communism based on the
The moment for revolution is just lurking and I will make way.

That is why he had distanced himself from the agitation withdrawn. His prophecy has come true. We have a thoroughly revolutionary and continuously growing, united, social democratic party in Germany, whose spread through the eternal, only oil in the fire casting, police and judicial prosecutions only is accelerated.

In addition to the increased social unrest, the ecclesiastical struggle. Prince Bismarck also He had previously not thought of any Dispute with the Pope, he wanted to destroy the faith of the Catholics which he valued as a Conservative since 1848.

Under the influence of Wagener's advice,

he, the Bishop of Ketteler as Archbishop of Cologne

This should be the first step towards the appointment of the the same as Prince-Primate of the Catholic Church in Germany-

The Catholic Church should be a privileged corporation in Germany. The Re-government would be through the Primate with the Pope on the one hand, with the German episcopate on the other hand.

Help from von Ketteler, who is so experienced in the social field a conservative-social reform policy should then be pursued and capitalism, Jewish rule will be broken.

When Archbishop Count Ledochowsky, whom Bismarck himself to Posen, was in Versailles in 1871, found he found the prince cooler than he had hoped to find

The Pope's declaration of infallibility could well This can hardly be the reason, since Count Bismarck had previously Proposals by Count Harry Arnim and those of the Prince Hohenlohe had behaved negatively. The latter resulted in an action by various global powers the adoption of that dogma by the Council At the meeting of the first German During the Reichstag, Prince Bismarck expressed his intention to want to merge with the center after the occupation of Rome by the Italians against his will had taken place.

Only after the annexation elements of the Centrists, like Windthorst, by the German particularists, the Bavarian Patriot Party, had been strengthened, irritated the occasional opposition of these people aroused his anger. He also made those who think and vote differently Members of the center are jointly responsible for the attitude these elements of the party. The prince gave this mood Expression in a letter to Count Frankenberg from June 1871. This resulted in the entire central fraction treated him as their enemy from then on.

This may have been pleasant for him from a other consideration: It is not inconceivable that as a result of the unexpected victories and the restoration of the German Imperial Germany, the prince had the idea, or suggested that religious unity in the new kingdom The old empire was indeed interested in the The Habsburg emperors' efforts to achieve this unity on the Catholic basis, split in the Thirty Years' War and thus led towards dissolution. The idea has great appeal for the powerful. In his hour of weakness, Friedrich Wilhelm III had when he promoted the union between Lutherans and Reformed created and to carry out by means of dragonades This union has given the Protestant Church and the Christianity in Prussia was immensely damaged. Bismarck 'was not without learning in Paris and Petersburg. The Gallicanism must have been pleasing to him. The older plan to appoint a Primate for Germany, yes on the summary of the German Catholics and |

l , Meyer, founder. | 6

'in a way that is admittedly never compatible with the Catholic concept of the Church
completely compatible greater independence of. |

Rome. However, the proclamation of the emperor in Versailles the idea of a replica of the Russian Church awakens with the Emperor-Patriarch at the head
The Masonic-humanitarian-inspired old Catholicism seemed perhaps suitable to promote Catholicism and Protestantism into a German national church with the Emperor to merge as Summus Episcopus.
The development of this idea was initiated by two men had a decisive influence, if not the

The inventors are: Miquel and von Bennigsen. The latter

As a member of the Imperial Deputation in Versailles, he senses, and Miquel has – very carelessly – not long afterwards in the Disconto-Gesellschaft local the officials of the same, among whom were also Catholics were, to the effect that one could now work with the Catholic like would soon be finished.

Perhaps this idea would not have been followed,
if the Centre does not meet the above-mentioned particularistic addition from Bavaria and established itself very independently. The prince can independent people and parties. do not suffer at all,

and the leaders of the Center, Windthorst and Savigny,

Of course, he had to be less sympathetic.
tendency to let personal impressions influence his actions

permitting developments, accelerated this arrangement of things the open break. This resulted in the liberal ral majority of the Reichstag opposed the Prince so more unconditionally than she fully realized,
How Bismarck could not have had any con-

= conservative majority in parliament ever again would he-
'To stir up the cultural struggle,' was the liberal Strengthen the system in Germany and keep it in power.

With skillful use of the infallibility contained in the |

The press portrayed it as something unheard of, although the Catholics claim that she has basically always exists, it was easy to convince many evangelicals to the idea

– 83 Z

to win, the German Catholic Church itself must be made permanent by Rome. As a first step

The expulsion of the Jesuits seemed appropriate, which, rightly or wrongly, when the papal watchdogs

the courts of the German bishops. So far,

Many Protestants also followed the prince on his new path.
But they maintained an agreement with the bishops, and through this with the Pope as the goal of the fight in mind.
But they lost more and more and finally all influence influence on the prince, who finally surrenders himself entirely to rivers that flowed from the so-called right side of the ba National Liberals influenced him.

The furthest, up to the expulsion of the Jesuits,
the conservative faction, if I may still say so, Wagener-Blanckenburg with the prince. Author went not so far. Already in 1867 he had given the secret Rath Wagener prepared an exposé at his request, which stated that Germany's interest required

it is that the Pope, as spiritual leader of many millions German subjects, not themselves a subject of a foreign monarch, that is, he would remain sovereign of Rome Italy is also more interested in Rome,
as the free residence of the Pope, an international significance rather than allowing it to become the capital of a country.

In the winter of 1873–74, Moritz von Blanckenburg to restore ecclesiastical peace
'with Prince Bismarck. We believed at that time that peace between Emperor and Pope would be easy to establish if the Pope again sovereign of Rome with Germany's approval
After Wagener had delivered his anti-Jesuit speech,
The author has expressed his regret about it on the same day. Wagener's behavior explains from the consideration of self-employment described above. formation of the bishops of the Order of Loyola. This gentleman was the personal owner of the author's edited «Berliner Revue», which he received from Baron Hertefeld after Keip's death. In the absence of the editor–

teurs was a e against the Jesuits in a sept–
| 6*

= BE,

issue of the year 1872. of the Revue public Ver– Fasser immediately returned and inhibited the continuation, by declaring to Mr. Wagener that he would resign from the editorial office to want to make the paper a playground for culture fight should be made. Mr. Wagener assured that that he himself was nothing less against the Catholic Church as hostile, that Old Catholicism is a deadly born child and that the author's misuse approved article was also directed only against the Jesuits, while should also report such attacks to the editor furthermore, it cannot be expected, and this is also not happen, as the author was informed by the owner of the
The paper has always been given complete freedom of choice.

Incidentally, both Wagener and v. Blanckenburg no friends of a Caesaropapist policy, which alone can provide the final reason for the Culture Struggle,
This is already clear from the fact that both gentlemen did not even belong to the Union: Wagener is an Irvingian and Blancken– castle Altiutheraner. _Both must therefore protect the freedom of Church wants from the state.

Since then both Wagener's and Blanckenburg's influence on the princes stopped – in the winter of 1875–76 Blanckenburg presented Prince Bismarck with his most flexible ideas and has since then completely withdrawn from politics – is both the church than the social policy of the Reich Chancellor a has become more disastrous, and we now have every reason to avoid any external involvement – with two such bitter and powerful parties in the country.

But why did the liberal leaders, namely mainly by Bennigsen and Miquel, the princes of the path of the cultural struggle further and further? The fact The matter itself is fixed and is also once again been divulged, because that Mr. v. Bennigsen was one of the main factors that contributed to the “Cultural Struggle” driven, it is clear from the fact that he was in an unguarded Hour once declared in the Reichstag that the Center knew not at all «how difficult it was for the government» to take up the ecclesiastical struggle.

TE 3

–

How does Mr. v. Bennigsen know this? Surely only because he was with one of those who for political, social and anti-church reasons, Head of State Power for Action against the Catholics and Protestant Conservatives?

Mr. Miguel, the author of the revolutionary student tic Wartburg address of the year 1848, is of course also not yet a Christian, although he is a member of the Protestant – Provincial Synod is! People love religion over-at all and would like to completely “educate” them away. The But the Kulturkampf came at such a good time in 1871 because to employ the people and thus deprive them of the exploitative rhetorical actions that Miquèl, Bam-berger, Bennigsen and comrades were planning. The Culture struggle is the Spanish wall behind which the «Founders» hid. Just pay attention: All of those. Papers that made the most enthusiastic advertisement for foundations and who today are the loudest in calling for the exposers of the fraud scold, they have most violently fueled the Culture War and are still seeking through anti-church propaganda to keep the people busy and to keep them on the trail of the founders distract. |

No writer today is likely to be able to all the unfortunate circumstances which have led to this hopeless and completely unnecessary dispute between the state and the most efficient Christian denomination or church have ignited and promoted, accurately and completely know and represent. So much is certain that Prince Bismarck became a cultural fighter against his will, but unfortunately, it seems, is becoming more and more involved in his found a new role and became friends with her.

After Prince Bismarck had been defeated by the opposition individual Centrum members in the spring of 1871 in a

In an irritable mood, Mr von warned:

Keudel, then a member of the Reichstag, one of his personal personal friend, who was a member of the center, with following words: «You will be amazed at the measure- _: rules that Prince Bismarck took against the Catholics ' will.' The more he fought the Catholic Church, the more The liberal majority became more compact and submissive in the Parliament, the more the liberal press celebrated him as the Culture War hero that he never wanted to become, never should have been. That's how things happened.

– 86 –

Some have not seen it, others want it not see and say that Bismarck started the war against the Church had long planned how to wage war against France.

empire for a long time, although he always wanted to >.

Afterwards, the liberal party did not let him and still does not want to give it to the «German-Conservatives». They pretend that peace is only through «the penitential procession to Canossa» and – one seems to find credence in this absurdity. The Culture Struggle has now been conducted in a way which is entirely in keeping with capitalist atheism and liberty.

ralism is adequate. Modern liberals recognize only one power: money. Their only means in culture Fighting is also “hanging the bread basket higher”. The founder Hammacher presented this idea to Mr. Falk. They want to starve the Catholic clergy. A extremely crude and simple idea! The church has inexhaustible resources and an executor against whom the state's tax executor is a real orphan.

The ever-flowing source of help of the Church is this. Sin-consciousness of people and its executor is the death fear of the rich sinner who trembles before his judge

The Church has received more donations from dying “Liberals”, atheists and unbelievers receive as contributions of their believers. People like Hammacher and Miquél, into whose hands the ill-gotten property of the poor, the widows and orphans, they are the ones who in the last hour enrich the church. And as long as such people are not die, the Church's resources do not dry up. Furthermore, It is a historically established fact that punishments, and namely fines, eye ine not break but strengthen.

The fact that deportations and prison sentences are also punishments against clergy, is of course not necessarily agile in the liberal system, but in our new German Habits that have given us a legion of political and pressing processes, a total of about 6000. – of which 19 percent for insulting Bismarck.

The idea, with the help of the executor and prison guard Fighting the clergy is certainly original but not happy. The power of the clergyman does not lie in the clergy themselves, but in the millions of Christians hearts who believe in this spiritual leader, find comfort in him and hope for forgiveness of their sins. What is the use of Archbishop Ledochowsky to be deposed if the hundred thousands of his archdiocese see him as their shepherd of souls

= worship, regardless of whether he is in the palace in Posen, or in the prison in Ostrowo or in exile in Rome. What Mr. Kubetzack in the parsonage benefits the state to Xions, if no parishioner comes to him in the church With fines, imprisonment and exile one cannot have a religious community in which faith lives. Only. People who do not believe in anything supernatural believe that only physical force and the power of Knowing and acknowledging the importance of money, could in this way Culture struggle, which has no effect on the Church, State is doing a lot of damage. But one must admit that founders cannot fight culture any other way. The founding itself is not a consequence of the culture fight, but she has done it excellently as a backdrop © It is no exaggeration to say that claim that almost all founders, with very small exceptions, were cultural fighters and liberals and, to establish, under the protection of the government, cultural In this respect, there is a connection between Founders and Culture Struggle. Now that the founding frenzy has faded into the hangover of liquidation, we see the fiercest heroes of the founding and cultural fight, like Miquel, take the shirt to protect the Absolution for double sin by one and the same Bussgang. But first we have the actual founding period is now being historically illuminated to submit to the law. í

The Body Robbery at Strousberg.

Strousberg also has his political agents held, and it is for our democratic re-direction towards the form of government, which Circles previously and which now these agents are taken from were or will be: The «Discontu-Gesellschaft» is the Creation of the liberal minister a. D. Hanseemann; it has retain their liberal veneer to this day. But they represent perceives the liberalism of the higher and more «educated» Bourgeoisie. As a more plebeian-democratic bank, next to it is the «Deutsche Genossenschafts-Bank». The dis-Until 1869, the conto company withdrew its political agents the high liberal bureaucracy, penetrated through them into the Ministries and through Wehrmann into His Majesty's Cabinet. From 1869 onwards, when the centre of political power shifted from _ Court and ministry sank more and more into parliament, She preferred to engage liberal parliamentarians, Miquèl, Bennigsen, v. Bernuth, v. Rönne etc. The democratic «Deutsche Genossenschafts-Bank» was of course, as it was Court and in the ministries had no course on «people's men» and was led by such as Parrisius, Sörgel, Schultze- Delitzsch, Halske, Soltmann, Reichenheim – which has not prevented them from founding quite lazy companies to provide services such as «Rheinisch-Westfälische Genossenschaftsbank» – Cours 43, «Brauerei Königstadt» – Cours 23, (sugar fabrik Körbesdorf» – Cours 29 B, «Admiralsgartenbad» – Course 8 B, «Hallesche Maschinenfabrik» – Course not no longer listed, «Stadtbank» – in liquidation etc. sees, even people can – justify, whereby we want to notice that Schultze's friend, Löwe- Calbe, also Founder, Berger-Witten and Hagen too. In addition, we also have two «conservative» banks that were also founded The calculated price for the same customer base as the Deutsche Genossenschafts-Bank is the «Schuster'sche Gewerbebank», whose board of directors includes, among others: von Olfers, Count Solms-Sonnenwalde, Geh. Rath Wagener, Quistorp-Stettin, von Hülsen-Magdeburg, von Werdeck, –von Sprenger, the craftsmen Kafka, Neuhaus and the manufacturers Reimann and O. Krause. It is known that this bank also founded heavily, however, at the founding period, ie 1871, Wagener, Quistorp, von Werdeck, v. Sprenger, von Olfers had already resigned and was replaced by Baron v. Czettritz– Neuhaus auf Colbenitz, Schlittgen, P. Kahle, v. Ohlen and Adlerskron and Oder. Wagener has only the business of the Pommer'sche Centralbahn with the bank made.

This Schuster'sche Gewerbebank had a social political purpose: They wanted to support the artisans of free themselves from dependence on the Jewish usurer.

Another interest group was the Henckelian institutes, on the status of the landowners. 'Henckel, a very clever patron of lowly origin knew a number of aristocrats for the idea of green formation of a conservative financial power in Berlin, which also separated the landowners from the Jews. The captured aristocratic Amateurs became the victims of the clever Henckel, who Landowners did not benefit at all, but quickly richer and finally in his business with Strousberg some of his aristocratic extras and We find at Henckel's banks as

i. Administrative Board: Count Eberhard Stolberg, Count of

Solms– Barnth, Count Kleist–Juchow, Count Schaffgotsch – Koppitz,

Duke of Ujest, v. Treskow–Grocholin, Prince Putbus,

v. Brand–Lindau, Count Praschma, v. Krause–Schwartzow, General v. Derenthal, Count Lehndorf–Steinort, v. Meding, v. Ruffer, v. Seydewitz– Görlitz, v. Plötz–Gr. Weckow, Engel– ken– Potsdam, Tresorier Sr. Majesty Geiling, Iffland–Bückeburg, Lieutenant General Prince of Hohenlohe, lawyer Munckel. =

– 9 –

Director Langheinrich won for a lifetime insurance company «Friedrich Wilhelm» from similar Gruinden – the gentlemen: Duke of Ratibor, Prince Karl of

Hohenlohe, Count Maltzahn-Militzsch, Count Schulenburg-Filehne, v. Wedell-Cremzow, Count Johannes Renard, Count Pourtalés, Count Hagen-Möckern, v. Wallenberg-Pachaly. > |

Only a modest number of these men are under the professional founders and these were either never belonged to the old conservative party or are from Her participation in the above-mentioned Institutes had, as already mentioned, socio-political reasons. The situation is quite different for those among them, who later made a profession out of this. They were only fooled by Strousberg Initially, it was about businesses, which in themselves are also to be approved in order to facilitate the production of railways for our neglected eastern provinces zen. East Prussian magnates finally had an Englishman found, which was to build the East Prussian Southern Railway. This Englishman happened to be approached by Dr. Strousberg and finally pushed him out, Strousberg stepped here in relations with Count Lehndorf, Baron Romberg, Baron vd Goltz-Kallen, Chancellor v. Gossler, v. Mirbach -Sorquitten, President Maurach, Count Schwerin-Sandau, Count Schwerin-Parlese, v. Simpson -Georgenburg. =

At the Right-Oder-Ufer-Railway, his Administrative Councillors: Duke of Ujest, Councillor Heise – conservative delegate —, v. Muschwitz, v. Ruffer, v. Rother, v. Ysselstein, Duke of Ratibor, v. Schmackowsky, v. Krenski. J |

Furthermore at «Berlin-Görlitz»: Geh. Rath Richtsteig, Geh. Rath Dulon, Count Solms-Baruth, v. Seydewitz, Jacques.

At the «Märkisch-Posener»: Geh. Rath Ambronn, District Administrator Wocke, Assessor Plewe, v. Unruhe-Bomst.

– 91 – |

At -«Halle-Sorau-Guben»: Ambronn, Count Solms-Sonnenwalde, Duke of Ujest, Prince Putbus, Count Eberhard to Stolberg-Wernigerode.

Finally, Strousberg acquired the concession of the «Romanian Railways» for themselves, the Dukes of Ujest and Ratibor and the Counts of Lehndorf-Steinort.

All these tracks were built according to the – not by Strousberg but has long been common practice in France – ' System Strousberg was built. The completely outdated Prussian The Railway Act of 1838 prohibited the issue of shares below par. It was circumvented by issuing fake drawings for a commission taught by respected and solvent people.

The shares were then taken over by the general contractor in payment and gave them partly in payment to entrepreneurs, had them partially sold by bankers. As such Henckel and Jaques served Dr. Strousberg.

A number of the above-mentioned

ten gentlemen and should invest 5 percent of the building capital in the rule for such start-up costs

Unfortunately, the list of those involved has not yet been have not yet been able to determine.

Although the building was constructed as poorly as possible, the shots were made as high as possible. Nevertheless

The proceeds from the shares, the press bribery and the lavish office attitude and lifestyle

Strousberg, not for the construction of the lines for which the or shares, and sought out Strousberg

To obtain a new concession, he is required to

Number of above-mentioned board members of older companies were undoubtedly helpful, although Strousberg in his published memoirs he tries to deny this.

He now issued the notes received for newly concessioned lines

Action and expanded the old lines tant bien que mal

the proceeds of the new shares. Of course, the

The drum will soon have a hole, especially since the old, very incompetent but honest Trade Minister Itzenplitz gradually dizziness and no longer conceded as with the express provision that henceforth

et. 92 –

should not be built in general contract. Such a v. Bennigsen, Adikes, Graf Münster also agreed and comrades when they received the concession for Hanover-Altenbeken. Nevertheless, they broke this promise and entrusted the construction to Strousberg. 300,000 thalers were "made" in founder's expenses.

As Strousberg became more and more embarrassed, he bought all kinds of objects, goods, houses, mountains, works and burdened them with enormous mortgages. Finally, around 1871, he was at the edge of his resources. The bank Rot was in sight. If it broke out, all his accomplices are compromised.

An influential party intervened.

Disconto-Bleichröder requested the «great, patriotic money power» to redeem the bankrupt Strousberg. This liquid They quietly eliminated him. They took over the Romanian

Railways by entering into a cooperation agreement with the Romanian government. special convention by virtue of which they formed an Actien-Society for the completion of the construction of these railways
The Romanian Government all criminal and criminal law related Claims against Strousberg and its co-concessions, the for example, for many millions of thalers more bonds spent more than they were entitled to spend. Strangely enough, the Hanseemann-Bleichröder Administration Mr. Strousberg & Co. not how, Despite the notoriety of that embezzlement, no state lawyer in Prussia felt compelled to take Strousberg and his The Russians were left to accuse to bring that great fraudster to justice.

The management of the new company agreed rather with Strousberg, to the great detriment of the shareholders and from then on, through its business practices, damaged the shareholders entrusted to their care even more, The government Germany and Prussia, however, supported these disloyal Manager of foreign funds: Mr. Delbrück lent the Romanian Eisenbahn-Actien-Gesellschaft 3 million thalers from the Reichshauptkasse, ie from tax groschen, of which one after one year, a second after two and the last should be repaid after three years, at 4 percent Interest. Camphausen also lent her money through the Seehandlung 2 million thalers at bank interest. Both transactions against Deposit of Romanian priorities and guarantee of Disconto-Bleichröder. The management of the company councillors pay their shareholders 4 percent per annum, by taking 8 percent from the railroad company. So they made with these 5,000,000 thalers of state money a profit of 200,000 thalers annually! Furthermore, v. Hanseman gave his relative von Oppenheim a funded loan to the railway company at 6 percent interest and 4 percent. up front, quarterly with 1 percent, deductible commission He entrusted his brother-in-law Ravené with the rail delivery for the Romanian Railways, without any Delivery would have been publicly tendered. This and Other scandalous things were reported by the editor of the «Eisenbahn-Zeitung», now «Deutsche Reichsglocke», Mr. Joachim-Gehlsen, revealed, alone instead of the prosecutor for exploitation of the care of those administrative boards shareholders entrusted to them, furthermore due to invalid, by straw men composed of general assemblies and similar malfeasance, against the guilty parties, should have gone, he sued the editor for insult and secured a conviction. The prosecutor Simon von Zastrow made the claim that the public prosecutor's The society has been involved in the "domestic dispute" between Action-members and the Board of Directors do not actually have to interfere. The Court acknowledged that Hansemann-Bleich-Röder had got into a «crooked position» when they themselves in the railway company for the benefit of their Banks did business, but declared 8 percent for a cheap interest, 4 percent guarantee commission for completely correct and justified his harsh judgment against Gehlsen by the aggravating circumstance that the attacked «people in | | highly respectable social position. A radical newspaper said that with this ruling the court had reached a limit which can no longer be exceeded without...

– 94 –

A Viennese newspaper called this story «a railway scandal such as the world has never seen before» and In a well-motivated article, he described Berlin as the «Eldorado of rogues and the metropolis of fraud», in which one can only «find a few counts or more higher-born scoundrels need to be involved” in order to Free bonus on the most daring fraud, while Anyone who gives the baker a loaf of bread or a pair of boots from a cobbler.

This Romanian railway company is by two straw men, the former wine traveler Nitsche and the former non-commissioned officer Ottermann, as « directors » allegedly directed. The actual direction is exercised by Hansemann by the Administrative Board, which also includes: v. Bleichröder, Scheele, Lent, Miguel, Wiener, Wölffel, Reinhard, Riem. |

The Disconto – Gesellschaft also replaced Strousberg at the German railways built by him by joining his . contractual obligations. This made it the banker of these mostly already half bankrupt railways and she managed to make them completely insolvent within a few years by charging commissions, interest, under-par and similar “benefices”, as the French say care, until there was nothing left to clean.

How they represent the interests of Hannover-Altenbeken damaged, Strousberg complains in his work touching. When concluding a single deal, she In addition to interest and commission, there is a "profit sharing" of 400,000 Thir. for himself and 200,000 Thir. for the Magdeburg, which is also under her «protection»

Halberstadt Railway from the contractor. How

Can you be surprised that the money at Hannover-Altenbeken is never enough, despite ever new bond creation! But one can wonder that a man like Bennisen, who approved of this fraud as a member of the supervisory board, still politically and as a civil servant is possible.

=, OB: Je

The aristocratic administrative councils of the Strousberg Almost all of the railways withdrew, except for Mr. v. Seydewitz and some others stayed.

In contrast, the Disconto-Gesellschaft took over the liberal Founding partners of Dr. Strousberg, therefore v. Bennisen and Adikes also in the administration of Hannover-Altenbeken, after the Disconto company had already Strousberg had been displaced.

The Disconto company was far from bankrupt Railway King had to cede his Dortmund steelworks, to found the «Dortmund Union» and contributed a collective mortgage on all his houses and goods, As a result of which they are now partly already in the

_. Substation was acquired. So at the beginning of 1872

Strousberg into the Bohemian forests, to Sbirow, and Bleichröder, but even more so the Disconto-Gesellschaft, had succeeded him in Germany. | | For these services, which Hanseemann -Bleichröder some

- high, compromised nobles, they themselves received the nobility. They provided Strousberg's shareholders with That is no use. If the bankruptcy of 1871 really broke, they received more than they have today. The Romanian bonds were still worth 70 $\frac{1}{4}$ in 1871, the Shares in October 1872 only 50 percent, and in August 1876

they have come down to 15 percent. In this way Hansemann– Bleichröder– Miquèl have «German Capital saved," as they brazenly claimed in the Gehlsen trial.
. If they had kept their dirty hands off it,
The small German capitalists would be better off.
– Disconto-Gesellschaft took over the stock exchange share of Strousberg-sic booty, and in this case, it is known as corpse robbery
The two, who had been together until then,
stock market wolves hunting on the same trail.
7 With the fall of Strousberg, the last founding : activity of those involved in it at all, relative moderately few numerous high- aristocrats, except some weak attempts at independent railway construction. But it is a gross untruth when some con-

– 96 –

conservative papers, led by the N of the Agrarian the liberal iu

Party alone is responsible for the entire founding fraud.
Trying to make it literal is just as tendentious and unjustified, as Lasker's insults of some not liberal founders. Even today, the Herrenhaus still has a number of aristocrats who are considered the founders of The tendency to quickly and without Getting rich through work is not a privilege of class and is evident in all parties, but it must be noted that in the clerical party there is no and in the altcon-almost no founders could be found. So strong
The sense of honour in this party has proved itself.
the high aristocrats of the free conservative party
However, a number of them have given in to the founder's vice, they have heaped shame on their class and the bourgeois-` Leaves given a right to aristocratic founders ` to speak. –

However, even these occur at the beginning of the actual founding period, 1871 and 72, already from the stage and now the liberal party is throwing itself headlong into the Foundry, far, far surpassing their aristocratic predecessors.
Only a few aristocrats make this Dance with and are cut off from their peers
and socially shunned. |

Finally, the first energetic Reaction against the founding system and the enabling legislation, a reaction whose merit
but not on the side of the conservative MPs
– in recent years men of rare incompetence –

but a part of the conservative press rests, and Again, not in the main paper of the party, the | «Kreuzzeitung », » may be searched.

– 97 –

Founding madness. |

In 1872, a two-year period began in Germany.
year-long founding frenzy, the likes of which no other country has to date. Many Founding groups, which usually operated independently, Occasionally, however, they also meet with others ad hoc to to let go of a particularly big dizziness. The Most of these groups were not in the fortunate cial position to have political agents, could not on legislation or administration in the interest of their businesses. They exploited the private public
But the more such groups win over politicians, had, the more successful their ventures became, inwhich they extended to state and society and both plundered.

Mr. Otto Glagau has in his highly interesting and meritorious book: «The Stock Exchange and Founding Fraud in Berlin», the second part of which will be published soon, this Founding activity described in a captivating way. Here can only refer to the most dangerous of the «political founders»
As the Parliament

We have already spoken about this. It is However, it must be emphasized that 'they are also were directly supported by the government. The House of Leo Delbrück & Co. received support from the Reich government, through the aforementioned concession of the «Actien-Society for Soil and Communal Credit for Alsace-Lorraine». S. Abel jun. is supported by the «Welfenfonds» supported. Also Bleichröder. The "Welfenfonds" was the capital compensation paid by the Crown Prussia to the dethroned princes of Hesse and Hanover for confiscation of domains and castles these ex-monarchs, but provisionally from a be-should be administered by a special authority in Berlin so that the princes did not use the capital stock for hostile operations measures against Prussia. Since these ventures were allegedly planned and initiated,

Meyer, founder. 7

In 1868, the government requested that it temporarily suspend the collect income from these funds and use them to combat hostile agitations of the Welfs and Hessians
One must, said Count Bismarck, «their reptiles to their caves.» The Landtag gave (this approval and released the government from the accounting on the use of income from these funds.

They are intended in part to influence, in particular the domestic press, used in the interests of German politics
About a year ago, the Hessian may be given to the heirs of the deceased Elector
However, the government still has the Disposal of the 16,000,000 thalers of the Welfenfonds. The administrative authority established by the founding law
The fund was never formed. In the summer of 1876, Rather, it turns out that the Finance Minister has indeed income from it, but that Mr. von Bleichröder the. Capitalstock usable. Now the Fear is close and it is undisputed in the « Reichs-bell» that Mr. von Bleichröder invested the fund in very bad securities, which contributed to the Partly based on his own foundations, such as Posen-Kreuzburger Railway, to a lesser extent in the S. Abel financed Berlin-Dresden Railway shares
This allocation of funds, which entrusted to the government for administration, to founders could probably be called state aid. If the fund are endangered by, the government can in very unpleasant complications, since the King of Hannover has only one unmarried son. Dying both men without male descendants, she inherits the Prince of Wales, who was given the undiminished capital stock of the Welfenfonds. If then Bleichröder should no longer be solvent enough to 16,000,000 thalers in cash, the state men who are involved in the formation of the statutory administration authority and gave her Mr. Gerson von Bleichröder substitutes, personally for the lost sum to be used.

The Disconto company still enjoys the

1 Camphausen's favor, which not only gave her several million

_ Thaler at $2\frac{3}{4}$ percent without security, but the Preussische Seehandlung, a state bank, completely –at her disposal. This is not only a Founders and jobbers bank, but has also developed middleman and the figurehead for shady business the Disconto-Gesellschaft and the state directly as well as harm the audience in favor of the Disconto-Gesellschaft. |

'Let us now turn to 'the period falling within s founding activity of the two, until their beginning friends defended, «great and patriotic financial powers»! The house of S. Bleichröder was originally only The Berlin agency of the House of Rothschild has been entrusted with this task. the political influence of the Disconto-Gesellschaft grew, .the closer Rothschild came to the rising sun, This already aroused Bleichröder's envy.

Much more. Reason for dissatisfaction with Hanse: man received Bleichröder through his behavior at of Strousberg's inheritance. In order to pay for the removal of those Compensation amount which Strousberg paid to the Romanian

_ Railway company to pay for unfinished construction to raise the necessary funds, was Strousberg was forced to sell part of his property But instead of Hansemann, who represents the interests of the Romanian shareholders, the sale purchase value of the works offered by Strousberg to his total amount to cover his debt to the Romanian Railway Company. related, bought he used Strousberg's works for himself and the Disconto-Gesell- and used only a portion of the proceeds to that debt, while he pays the remaining amount of the debt had Strousberg's other property mortgaged, 'so that the Romanian Railway Company is now this demand has failed. According to another version

– l 7 * j

state Library?
Bamberg,

– 100 –

he left the remaining 2 million thalers for the discount – company and now acquires the Strousberg'schen Gentlemen for themselves personally, so that the Disconto-Gesell-

The reports of both companies are .
artificially kept so dark that it is impossible to con-determine which of the two versions is the correct one.
But it is anyway. It must be noted that the Public Prosecutor's Office, which investigated all these matters through various denunciations have been suggested, persistently every refuses to take action against Mr von Hanseemann.

In the manner described above, Hanseemann had personally or the Disconto-Gesellschaft von Strousberg the Dortmunder Hütte, Glückauf-Tiefbau and Othfresen for the enormous price of 6,000,000 thalers. This Hanseemann used his new property to acquire a very expensive
He had, as he had mentioned in Chapter I, with Goldschmidt the Henrichshütte had to take over personally and owed the discount Society 1863 from this 1,200,000 thalers, which by retained by !/, the royalties of the owner and the administrator treasury in favor of the Disconto-Gesellschaft
In order to get rid of small possessions,
Hanseemann transformed the Henrichshütte company 1863 into a limited partnership and 1869 into a joint-stock company with 2,250,000 thalers alleged share capital value, remained However, he had to sit with his shares, because in 1870 with great difficulty only managed to distribute 3½ percent dividend.
The administrative board of this Hanseemann family property consisted of Scheele, Miquèl, Bauendahl, v. Hanseemann, J. Kauffmann, Salomonsohn, Peters and C. Waldthausen-Aachen. Hanseemann was the discount banker on this account.
company still owed 902,131 thalers on October 29, 1872.
On this day, the General Assembly of the Disconto-Gesellschaft, 5 million thalers new shares of the Dis- | account- company. The Board of Directors and the management waived Y, their royalties from the increased capital for the future, and for this the _ Reserve fund of the Disconto-Gesellschaft die Hanseemann'sche

bone a = se | |

Debt of 902,131 thalers, ie the shareholders of the Disconto-
They gave him company in return for the fact that he would with 20 percent royalties from the increased share capital of 20,000,000 Thir., whereas previously he had received 25 percent.
of only 15,000,000 thalers of basic capital! Certainly
- a nice deal that Mr. v. Hanseemann did there!

Now Hanseemann increased the capital of Henrichshütte to 2,500,000 thalers, ie he said that from now on it should be < worth a lot, the company bought Nova Scotia for

2,500,000 Thir. and threw these two companies with those Strousberg smelting works and mines, which were valued at 6,000,000 thalers. The share capital resulting from the merger of these three companies The Dortmund Union, founded by the Germans, was first founded 11,000,000 thalers; for every 100 thalers Henrichshütte and Nova Scotia received 100 thalers of «Union».

In October 1872 the capital was increased to 13,200,000 thalers

This now marked the beginning of a tremendous, sinful and wicked
For the sake of appearances,
to those objects a few small huts and terrains Only Nova Scotia was profitable. The value of the
The total was estimated by experts at 3–4,000,000 thalers
The shares were allegedly issued at 108 percent, but she swindled successively up to 180 percent, which was a fictitious value of 23%, million thalers represented! Hanseatic
The Henrichshütte, which was built in 1870 at | Gross profit was 185,000 thalers, of which 171,000
Thllr. depreciation, so that the net income →
14,000, and whereupon he owed the Disconto-Gesellschaft 902,000 thalers owed, to be sold for 4,500,000 thalers! And

Miquel called this accursed fraud in the Reichstag

«the most correct business», which can only be achieved by «wrong
Measures of the management and the dire situation of the iron industry in general in hopefully temporary difficulties

No one told him that he even the Administrative Board of the Union and Henrichshütte

Also sitting next to him were: v. Hanseemann,

W. Bauendahl, W. v. Born, C.v. Born, v. Bernuth, JM Frens

—

dorff-Hannover, H. Gericke- Mühlheim, G. Hanseemann, J. Loeb, Russell, Geh. Rath Dr. Esse, Fr. Grillo, Kauffmann, A. v. Oppenheim, W. Peters, CM v. Rothschild, Scheele, R. Schulte-Gevelsberg, C. Waldthausen, Geh. Rath Wehrmann. The company distributed per 1873 = 12 percent dividend, of which there was none. The royalties of these gentlemen for 1873 amounted to 141,555 thalers, of which she generously gave half "for the benefit of the workers." These "people in highly respectable position", to which title she was legally condemned, as is well known, always perform benevolent deeds, when they cheat people. The directors received 12,000 thalers salary and 3000 thalers royalties. Their 3 and 2 deputies. Director later became a former non-commissioned officer, Ottermann, who also served as Director of the Romanian Railways! Already in 1873 it was decided 6,000,000 thalers to be issued in 6 percent priorities, of which but only 5,000,000 Thir. issued, ie in the boxes of the Disconto-Gesellschaft took over of which 3,333,000 thalers. The Royal Prussian Maritime Handbook | The development cooperation participated in the adoption of priorities of this company! The shares of the Union are now 6-8 Proc., but are completely worthless.

In relation to: this most dizzying foundation, the occurred at all – on a large scale – in this period, The report of the Disconto-Gesellschaft for 1875 contains the following: shameless passage: «The establishment of society Union was the most correct and loyal business. It fell at a time when iron prices were still normal, and no overestimation of industrial values was present. Not in education, but in the development The cause of the subsequent evil lay in the development of the Union. When the iron economy suddenly and sharply increased, from the shares of the Union with a continuous increase in the Courses became a playing paper, went with this movement in the immediate direction the objective judgment and the Reins of order lost. What in connection with the general suffering of the iron industry, is the reports of the Dortmund Union from 1874 and 1875. It is factually and documentary evidence that that the Disconto company has fulfilled its duty as a warning Banker did not fail to do so, and long before Mr. Russell He took the reorganization into his hands and did everything he could to the evil of financial overburdening of the Union: stop Already now, in this respect, the successful extensive reorganization, a turn to Better things have occurred, and experience should teach that the Disconto company in its conduct in this regard, also both: one's own interest, as well as the acted correctly in the interests of the Union."

However, it is clear that Hansemann and Accomplisen who valued the Union's objects far above their value, themselves through their stock exchange agents drove the shares and playing paper and not the administration of the Union from senseless business, since the _ Disconto-Gesellschaft with the Union the same administration had! All lies and deception! j We cannot deny ourselves the opportunity to read Strousberg's very competent judgment on this foundation to follow
He says: «The premium in this case was so unjustified that they are considered immoral.
. Can draw. What would Mr. Lasker say if the – Disconto-Gesellschaft these factories for 11,000,000 Thaler bought and spent 15,000,000 shares? And but this happened in a different, legal (!) and noble (!)
way; namely, in the price at which these shares are traded on the brought to market was more than this difference.
The times were favorable and the emission credit of the Disconto-Gesellschaft large (because one can get away from their administrative councillors did not deceive), one has both used, and the process was far from being ready; the audience received the Stocks are not yet available; first things got really lustful made so that it can be bought at the best price, and if not no errors have been made, the systems are fully would have been profitable and the shares would have been worth par were, the audience would always have, apart from

104th

from Speed, over 13,000,000 thalers at Agios 7 lost."

The Disconto company had given Mr Bleichröder a "Participation" in the founding of the Union was promised,
But he did not keep his word, and when Bleichröder complained,
Hansemann offered him a "compensation". Indignantly,
Mr. Gerson von Bleichröder took this "tip" and the Hostility between the two houses broke out loudly and brightly.

The house friend of the Prussian Prime Minister quarreled with the house friend of the Prussian Vice-Prime Minister, because he prevented those from participating in a great raid against the German publikum has not participated. Truly, a spectacle for –

Social Democrats! And these financial evils remained wichter to this day house friends of that highest Prussian civil servants.

It is highly original how Mr. Gerson v. Bleich-Röder took revenge on Mr. von Hanseemann; he did it in
In a most ingenious way, the German people bear the costs of
He paid for his revenge by quickly founding a company which was perhaps even more dizzying than the Union; at least it was just as rotten as it was bad.
accomplices for this raid against the German Nation he joined Count Hugo von Henckel-Don-nersmarck at.

The Silesian knight had in 1870 from Psi len 1
State – it is as if Disconto-Bleichröder could not Let go of dizziness, at whose last depths you cannot encountered the “rabble of state” – the royal hut for 1,300,000 thalers and the Laurawerk
From this Henckel-Bleichröder welded under friendly assistance from Landau, v. Kardorff and others.
Actiengesellschaft Königs- und Laurahütte», on which gave them the modest share capital of 6,000,000 thalers.
which was already increased to 9,000,000 thalers in 1873.
Real value allegedly about 2,000,000 thalers. To the scraper- |
nack for Mr. von Hanseemann, the «Union» only on 180
Proc. could push up, the Bleichröder-

| – 105 –

Consortium «0 Laura –Actien v to 261 / Proc., unfortunately had to the German people the compensation – Hanseemann's Today the shares are at 57, of course still around half too high. Dividends were distributed from 1871 –75 = 121/,, 29, 20, 10, 2 Perc.; royalties calculated the appointed administrators of foreign funds 1871 = 44,100 Thlr., 1872 271,000 Thlr. General Director is Mr.
Judge who is at the head of those protectionists, who oppose the abolition of the iron tariff. The following malicious question of the «Reichsglocke» is not so unpredictable t: «How high must the iron toll be so that «Laura» at 9,000,000 Thir. share capital profitable?» The administrative rath consists of Gerson von Bleichröder, v. Kardorff, J. Landau,
v. Westenholz-Hamburg, H. Heimann, Geh. Rath v. Carnall-Breslau, go. Rath Krienes-Breslau, F. Friedensburg –Breslau, L. Behrens-Hamburg, Egells, Bergrath Ficenus, Wirkl. Legationsrath Graf P. Hatzfeld, L. Ravené.

| These two colossal industrial enterprises have not only through the premium in their shares, the
with a massive drop in share prices to the detriment of shareholders ended, exploited the audience, but they also the solid industrialists in the iron industry have been damaged. Their directorates generally undercut all deliveries Competitors to outcompete everyone, bankrupt to buy out and secure the monopoly for sales in their area. In order to obtain the to be able to carry out the numerous orders taken on, They drew the most skilled workers from the workshops of their competitors by increasing wages enormously. Now they throw the workers out into the streets by the thousands. an eminently antisocial performance, which is reflected in the Growth in the number of Social Democrats occurs. Of course They harmed the solid entrepreneurs, but they achieved did not achieve their purpose, but suffered enormous losses themselves. In connection with the Laurahütte, the Posen-Kreuzburger Bahn, by Bleichröder, J. Landau, v. Kardorff, Count Bethusy-Huc and Friedenthal, which was also founded by The Guelph Fund supported this railway. This railway has only the a destination that will allow the Laurahütte to reach the Stettin market by about 5 miles. Furthermore, she, touching the border, without any lateral Traffic area, no purpose in God's world. Such purely senseless paths were concessions and are now to be purchased expensively by the state because they are naturally doomed to eternal unprofitability. dam, its builders, Bleichröder and his associates, to bankrupt But if Bleichröder goes bankrupt, the Welfenfonds bankrupt, the Welfenfonds is bankrupt so yes, We do not want to mislead the public prosecutor too much. investigation.

~

– 106 –

Of course, Hansemann also had to make a contribution to his "Union" have a distinctive railway. So he built the Münster-Emscheder Bahn, on which the Discontu company is now working hard To build Posen-Kreuzburg and Laurahütte-To exploit iron, Bleichröder founded with Rothschild in Frankfurt, Friedenthal-Breslau, J. Landau and v. Kardorff the «German Reich and Continental Railway – Construction Society», which oversaw the entire railway construction in Germany land, but after taking over a number of construction commitments. On the share capital of 10,000,000 thalers, 40 percent were added. counted, the shares were driven to 123, so that the interimsschein cost 63. Now you can get it for 25. You also began the construction of the Weimar–Gera railway, whose Founders Bleichröder and Landau are also. How now Bleichröder as a railway engineer in this company with himself as a representative of the railway shareholders The following is instructive in explaining what he did:

Bleichröder, Landau, v. Kardorff and comrades entrusted the construction to the above company, i.e. themselves. The shares were, less 1,164,000 thalers, which the Adjacent took part in the German Imperial and Continental Railway Construction Company from the bankers for 78 percent. and they also received 650,000 Thaler commission, so that for 10,836,000 Thaler shares only 7, 800,000 thalers of the construction company available for construction remained. If you add to this the ones from the adjacent ones. The sum brought, it is clear that for the construction instead of 12,000,000 Thaler not the full 9,000,000 Thaler could be used. The track is open, but not finished. Recently, it, the society wants to take up a priority and the Sue the construction company! The latter news is supposed to serve to make the priority palatable to the audience.

– 107 –

Such transactions with oneself are not easy for both Houses often appeared. Together they made Hansemann and Bleichröder at the Romanian Railways. At the Gott-hardtbahn handed over the rails to Hansemann himself the Dortmund Union, etc.

Strousberg calls this: Business that the Commiselonkr | "in itself" and in which the shareholder can always cheat About the case of Kreuzburg–Posen and the very Similar to the Berlin–Dresden railway, Strousberg says: «The construction companies became general contractors and Capital subscribers, and the members of the supervisory boards of Construction company formed the whole or a significant part of Part of the supervisory board of the railways where the construction The company was a construction contractor. This was essentially ual, although not in name, builder and Construction contractor one, and the opportunity and interest was available, the shareholders in favor of the Bau– Gesell How this could happen is a mystery. bright: The construction contract could be too cheap and the Supervision should be relaxed. »

This explains why the earth's body barely opened Posen–Kreuzburg railway line This identity of the entrepreneur and builder

is the government (which is responsible for the supervision and construction duty is incumbent) probably not e » – noticed |

Strousberg is extremely malicious.

Between two rival houses, Disconto: Bleich:
rider, a formal competition in founding now arose.
Bleichröder created:

Mine «Hibernia-Schamrock» with Conrad (trading Society of Berlin»), Mulwani and others became Director

– 18 –

Mayor and MP Weber, Lasker's special friend and faction member. The shares were introduced in the stock exchange on March 13, 1873 equal to 130 to 150 percent.
driven and now stand at 37. Dividend per 73 = 13, 1874 == 6, 1875 == 21), percent. Capital 5,000,000 Thlr. He bealso participated in the establishment and expansion of «Menden and Schwerte», «Messener Mines», «Phönix».

The Disconto company made contributions in this area:

«Gelsenkirchen» mine, together with the North German Bank in Hamburg (Godeffroy, Westenholz), bank association Schaafhausen (Wendelstadt, Movius, Königs, Mevissen, vom Rath, Wittgenstein), Provinzial-Disconto, Rothschild-Frankfurt, Sal. Oppenheim, Eltzbacher, J. Landau, Bauendahl, Grillo, Frensdorff. The registered capital is 4,500,000 Tblr. The Shares were immediately driven up to 133 percent on the first day, rose to 172, now stand at about 88. Dividend per 1873 – 25, 74 = 17, 75 = 10 percent. These shares also have the royal Prussian maritime trade which took over!!
The Disconto-Gesellschaft also participated in the mines «Bensberg-Gladbach», «Bochum», »Vereinigter
Bonifacius», «Phoenix». _ | | i

It contributed less to industrial societies.
man sits peacefully next to Bleichröder in the «Berliner Immobilien-Actien-Gesellschaft». In this field, he is Bleichröder, who was still involved in the company
societies: «German Mirror Glass Society», «Nordstern, Life Insurance Company», «Tivoli Brewery», «Central-Telegraphen-Compagnie», finally to «Oeffentliche Waterworks» and «Zoological Garden», both of which Participations to satisfy «civic charitable

ity». |

Bleichröder has invested in banks and founded companies
He has achieved a lot. He is a member of the «Berliner Handels-Gesellschaft» with Conrad, Gelpcke, A. Mendelssohn, Borsig, Zwicker, V. v. Magnus, Güterbock – because of drawing on the French Austrian bond during the war as a traitor condemned but pardoned – Jaques, Windhorn, Mevissen, A. v. Oppenheim; «Preussische Central-Bodencredit», as already said; «Sächsische Bank» with v. Kaskel, R. v. Magnus, F. Mart. Magnus, Sal. Oppenheim, HC Plaut – convicted of fraud – Prince Schönburg – Waldburg, Count Königsbrück; «International Bank of Luxembourg v with Mevissen, A. v. Oppenheim, R. v. Erlanger, D. Oppenheim – Cologne, V. Wendelstadt – convicted of fraud – Königs; «Breslauer Disconto-Gesellschaft Friedenthal & Co.» with J. Landau, v. Wallenberg-Pachaly, E. Oppenheim, Molinari, PG Friedenthal, Isidor Friedenthal; «Braunschweigische Credit-Anstalt», Provinzial-Actien-Bank zu Posen». Not, that he was the administrator everywhere, but in most; He helped the others to create and give birth to young stocks.

– 19 –

Much less extensive, but more intensive, the Disconto -Gesellschaft worked in this field. She wanted compete with the Royal Prussian Main Bank and therefore created the «Provinzial Disconto-Gesellschaft», which have their own in all major cities in Germany Establish banks or join existing banks and from the Disconto-Gesellschaft in Berlin

. was managed uniformly. The management of this bank consisted from the gentlemen v. Hanseemann, Miquèl, Salomonsohn and Reinhardt, was the same as that of the Diseonto -Gesellschaft, except that Hecker was replaced by Reinhardt. In The Board of Directors consisted of Scheele, W. Bauendahl, M. Goldschmidt, R. Hardt, J. Kauffmann, M. Reichenheim, Wilckens, v. Eckardstein, v. Hanseemann, Miquél, Hecker, Salomonsohn, G. Reimer, A. Lent, A. de Werth-Elberfeld, Geh. Oberfinanz rath Mölle, JW Schulten. The statutes are already so It is a constant

«Boys», but this is prevented by the «noise»
The 10,000,000 thalers shares were placed under the green which is distributed. Then on 22 November 1871 they are led at 120 percent on the stock exchange, immediately drives it to 131, and then in a short period of time up to 186 percent. Deposit 60 percent, meaning you paid for an interim certificate of 60 Thir. nominal 146 Thir. cash. Now these shares are 79 percent, which means you pay for the same note now 39 thalers. This bank now established itself independently in

– 110 –

Hanover, Bernburg, Elberfeld, Strasbourg, Hamburg, Ludwigshafen, Aachen, Duisburg, Braunschweig, Halle. They wanted to give the Reichsbank, which was to be created, the customer circle. Of course, the Berlin leaders the overview is lost all the more as it is criss-crossed and which cross the subsidiary institute at its own discount bank company foundations, and the young bank would have have long since had to liquidate if a liquidation was winding up and combining the transactions would be feasible.

The main business of the Disconto-Gesellschaft, however, was in the field of railways, which they successively all under her control. That is why she had not only the concession for "Dortmund-Gronau", but Also for «Marienburg-Mlawka» and bought them almost all priorities that were on the market at that time In order to purchase a portion of such funds from the Breslau-Schweidnitz-Freiberg railway, it came into heavy Conflict with the Darmstadt Bank for Trade and Industry, although in whose administration Mr Hansemann firmly friends A. v. Oppenheim, Wendelstadt, Mevissen, Königs among others, sit.

At the end of this founding period, i.e. 1873, we see So the two enemy groups at the head of a Series of dependent institutes, competing, more and more such things under their leadership. Bleichröder disposes of the 16 million thalers of the Guelph Fund. to whom he only gave S. Abel Jr. a little something for Berlin-Dresden The Disconto-Gesellschaft draws on the Sea trade. At the Romanian Railways, both jointly the Seehandlung and the Reichshauptkasse at their disposal. Both groups have affiliated banks institutes throughout Germany, both large iron and steel werke, both with 2 of their own railways, and the Disconto-Gesellschaft The company is still pursuing the plan to own all railways In 1873, the Mecklenburgische State Railways. The government sees this creation of two 'huge financial powers in the state not only quietly, but favors their business, whose fraudulent nature leads to

toy =

The part was no longer a secret. She loses one capable official after another, who from their – service in the more lucrative of the bankers; she knows and tolerates that one parliamentarian after another, yes, diplomatic, with the most important and secret state Foreign Office officials entrusted with matters, in the dependence on the banks and other not only knows political men in these financial agents, but listens to their advice primarily, although it is It is obvious that the same is a business-interested The ministers themselves deal with these issues in the most intimate way bloody founders. Prince Bismarck's family in Bleichröder's house, although certain officer corps had the same are not allowed to enter. Camphausen and Scheidtman (See-handlungs-rath) are the intimates of Hansemann, Lothar Bucher is his summer guest at Lanken Castle. Delbrück favors open the related house Leo Delbrück & Co., Hammacher, a multiple founder millionaire and silent main figure of the _ national-liberal party, is a friend and advisor of Delbrück and Falk and finally promotes his good friend 'Achenbach to the ministerial chair. Lasker works for the House Bleichröder and – takes with his friend and Fraction comrade Weber help insight from his high-interesting business books. Judaism penetrates with his agents in all influential circles. The – Foreign Office is teeming with full and half Semites. The entire press is subservient to the founders. The conservative Kreuzzeitung, since October 1872 under the leadership of Mr. von Nathusius-Ludom, Scheele's nephew, whose 'wandte, v. Nathusius-Hundisburg and other Nathusiusse also administrative boards of discount deposits 'are, is silent about all the deception and cultivates even more and more in its section "Trade, Commerce and Industry" and in «Submitted» above the advertisement line the ashamed advertising, takes all founder advertisements and sells There is no word of warning. In short, we are on the best ways to Jewish rule, the good Lord had an insight and created the – «noise»!

Book III Liquidation.

harbingers of the noise.

| The Disconto-Gesellschaft was able, despite having its capital to 20,000,000 thalers and the Provincial-Disconto-Society with its 6,000,000 thalers at its disposal had impossible to collect all the funds raised by the iron

railways and industrial enterprises in the safe
She actually only wanted to keep the commissioner Nevertheless, through the billions, through which

National debt was paid off, a lot of money under the z audience and this was all the more inclined by the press

was made, always new papers without checking the value | to take – if only they were from a «great house that should not abandon his children»,
when these big houses ensured a sustained bull market,
So the audience could not, with the best will in the world,
the new values absorb, and the discount society
kept huge sums of shares in the box.

Mr Camphausen was happy to help her. He lent her firstly, 3 million thalers at $2\frac{3}{4}$ percent without deposit from the Prussian state treasury. He discounted and loaned barded through the set action. Mr. von Dechend, the President of the Royal Prussian Main Bank, saw with Shaking your head at the founders' activities. . The founders moved one on the other ride changes and discounted them at the Bank. The Viennese founders, who worked with the Berliners together, set up such for up to 50,000,000 thalers.

113

| : o Moved to Berlin. Already in September 1872,
Herr von Dechend den Diseont. Finally, in December,

The main bank refused bills of exchange, which apparently only were put into circulation by founders to make money
and which were not based on a “legitimate business”.
This measure was sent by the Breslau Chamber of Commerce in December a complaints commission, from the bloody Founders Friedenthal and Ruffer, to Berlin.
Mr. von Benda, who, along with Eugen Richter, is the most open-hearted always took the side of the stock exchange in parliament, questioned Mr. v. Dechend in the House of Representatives. Despite his brilliant justification, such pressure on the bank president that he on 20 December instructed the Breslau branch to discuss the change of founders again.
contiren! But the Disconto-Gesellschaft sent whole Laundry baskets full of bills of exchange and funds after the Camphausen sche Seehandlung, got money for it and thus thwarted Dechend's wise policy, which has already given rise to the entrepreneurial in the autumn of 1872 might have been put to an end if

Ministry did not have a close founding friendship
Mr. Camphausen is directly responsible for a large part of the September 1872 still in Scene set foundations and for the thereby the losses inflicted on the public. Mr. von Kardorff, as

Vir will see him in Parliament and he justified that attack in an election speech in August 1876

as follows: «I would not contact Mr Camphausen have taken effect, if not all my efforts on Remedy of the grievances complained of would have been in vain. If I was a little irritated, the reason was that that I have heard the testimony of the bank president Mr. Dechend

u had requested because during the discussion on the bank

law the ministers accused the bank president of this made it clear that the bank encourages over-speculation and at the same time millions of people from the sea
trading to trading houses at low interest rates
I have not taken on the position of Finance Minister shaken; a finance minister shakes his position only
Meyer, founder. | 8

27

To e

himself, if he does not 'adjust the economic conditions and promoting the prosperity of the country's interests.» |

But the most interesting thing is Miquél's behavior, the According to Mr. von Dechend in the House of Representatives, a moral Speech about the reprehensibleness of the foundations, he, the great founders, but especially from foreign, Romanian ian values. The audience should rather "follow local

'buy industrial funds.' So he used the good fortune opportunity to alert the public to the upcoming « Gelsenkirchner ». greedy, the « Romanians » were yes, mostly already discontinued!

According to this, there were cracking and cracking noises at every corner and Ends Beginning 1873, and now a spectacle piece staged in the most infamous way to entertain the audience. while simultaneously experiencing an unprecedented planned a major attack on the state coffers and also, covered by the dust of Lasker's revelations – in the “Disabled Fund”.

The Real Privy Senior Government Councillor Wehrmann, who had given the lecture to His Majesty was ill and unfit for service. According to his rank, Mr Wagener replace: Wehrmann was very Until he took up this influential position in the In His Majesty's Cabinet he had been a member of its board of directors. Then his wayward son was taken to the same company, and after his retirement he joined the military mann again in the Board of Directors of Disconto – Gesellsociety and even the “Union”. In this influential Position in the Emperor's Cabinet should now– Mr. Wagener which all liberals, especially Mr Camphausen, hated since 1848, who controlled all the affairs of the Disconto–Gesellschaft saw through, or at least thwarted –would have. And they were just about to do a deal, where one had to work on the heart of His Majesty, the Establishment of a fund for the glorious invalids, which the

Disconto–Gesellschaft then wanted to plunder and plundered

This fund is notoriously owned by the Disconto company invented. The law in question is the arches: how Windthorst aptly said on another occasion: “retrieved” been.

– 15 –

Sonnemann, one of the ET Typew of our «people-friendly» Jewish fraudulent politician, is "himself been involved in a myriad of foundations. The Disconto – Society, however, must support this influential man “cut” because he sometimes chatted in his «Frankfurter Zeitung» the most unpleasant things. At the beginning of February 1872 he reported that the discount

Company has 16,000,000 Thlr. Bergisch-Märkische and 5-6,000,000 Thlr. Magdeburg-Halberstadt priorities «for a disability fund to be dissolved. Nobody suspected something about such a fund, and already bought the Disconto-Gesellschaft priorities that they later really got him! It takes the political agent of the Disconto company to control the government for the horrendous, all economic science in the face plan of a successive self state fund from which the disability pensions

In March 1873,
Delbrück introduced the bill in the Reichstag. Before that, however,

Wagener, who in any case gave His Majesty «the actual would have revealed the “real purpose” of this fund.

It is highly comical that Mr. Lasker dares Mr. Wagener in a house that was filled with founders to declare him as founder and condemn him He joined him two aristocrats, princes Putbus and Prince Biron of Courland. he described the founding and construction of the “Pomeranian Centralbahn » and the « Berliner Nordbahn ». |

Now it should be noted that Wagener, firstly, speculative purposes are not pursued professionally and habitually Until 1869 he was a member of the board of directors of Schuster's Gewerbebank, which in fact pursues social policy purposes long pursued when Wagener and v. Olfers were involved: Promoting the credit of craftsmen. Until 1870, it had only 1, and until 1872 only 2 million registered capital.

8* 1

3 5 : i ` . š so f . =
– 0 a we ee | ee
` š or ae

14 supervisory board members 1 per 1869 approx. 11,800 thalers.

Royalties. We will later Miquel – Wehrmann; sche Get to know royalties. The founding activity of the bank only began in 1872, the share capital was increased from 1871 to 6,000,000 thalers. The bank distributed per 1871 to only 12 supervisory board members, among whom Wagener was no longer, 50, 126 thalers. The royalty on 9 members The merged administrative council received per 1872 90,000 thalers. So Wagener has

The bank's founding period with its profits did not part.

On the other hand, he founded the "Pommersche Centralbahn"

For a dozen years, the circles have been trying Dramburg-Neustettin for a railway, negotiated with all kinds of financiers, without «opinion» for their located area, bombed their deputy, |

Wagener, incessantly, on the way of the state or joint-stock company to get a railway.

Two district councillors informed him that he could not would have to expect re-election if he did not support a railway

In 1870 he decided, with the help of the shoemaker
schen Bank to establish a joint-stock company for construction.

The capital was set at 7,360,000 Thir, half shares, half Priority ordinary shares for 146,, kilometers, ie
50,000 Thlr. per kilometer. Berlin- Görlitz costs 73,000 Thlr., Halle-Sorau-Guben 83,000 Thlr., Hannover- Altenbeken for the constructed routes 112,000 Thlr., taking into account is that all 3 lanes have about half of the capital through bonds to be issued at a higher value. Nevertheless, the railway, even after Lasker's revelations, was completed,

if the government issues 1,000,000 thalers of bonds gations, without those revelations the Railway with the preliminarily provided capital, because it was,

This is what the investigative commission has done against its will determined, much more solidly founded than those railways.
The track, like all the others, was built according to the Private railways, thanks to the law of 1838, only possible System Strousberg was built. The founders alone were

- 117 - |

more distinct than usual with new ideas is fashionable in Prussia. They had only 40,000 thalers in compensation for their efforts, and at the Berlin Stock Exchange people mocked that they were being Lasker is quite right, since through such scoundrelry they «the business». a

A royal Daor onin was born set up, at the head of which the President of the Seehandlung, Günther, who was responsible for the railway and founding fraud yes, had to know exactly. Incredibly, the applicant received plaintiff Lasker also has a seat on the Commission as a judge.

The Commission's report is available in print and proves that Lasker managed to spare the liberal founders and only the founders he attacked on | to follow all their ways.

The commission report on the « Bormersche Central- | bahn» fills 51 pages, which covers over 25 other railway foundations.
and projects only – – 100 pages!! At Wagenersche

All the artists will be identified by name and drawing amount mentioned, this does not happen with any other. In these . rather, reference is always made to «special acts», which have never been made available to the public.
Nevertheless, the report revealed much more serious things about other Railways, namely via Hannover – Altenbeken, Berlin Lehrte, – Halle–Sorau–Guben and A, via the Central Railway. Fürst

i Putbus from the Northern Railway was attacked by a military

Court of Honour on the basis of the 'Investigation of the Commission acquitted, a scrutiny procedure against Wagener
There was no indication for initiating disciplinary proceedings.
Nevertheless, he had to leave the civil service and resigned his seat in the Reichstag. Bennigsen, Kardorff, Prinz Handjery, Braun and others, who also and mostly were more compromised, by the report of the Commission- _ sion alone, apart from its other foundations, are today still MPs or civil servants. \

1 It was horrifying to see the profound hypocrisy, with which the deputies, almost all of whom were the founders _ and the 333 rangers in their midst knew the

– 118 –

Lasker's revelations about the crimes of three notorious Amateurs listened to the reasons. Particularly reprehensible was the behavior of the Conservatives, who among themselves some founders had that they did not immediately turn the tables returned and a thorough investigation of all, including the liberal foundations. No one dared to challenge Lasker who « knew Bleichröder's business books ».
“This shot went close to my back,”
a high lord said.

Prince Bismarck visited Wagener and 1874 used in official shipment to Eisenach. Eye-Apparently he was persuaded to remain silent and tolerate by promising a later rehabilitation. This is not done. When he went to the Reichstag at that time and | turned his defense into an attack,

He had already discovered the whole liberal fraud about the
He would thereby bring the country an enormous
It seems to us that he Samson (Judges 16, v. 26–30) as a model:
Samson also waited quite a while before taking revenge.
long and then took it very thoroughly. |

Strousberg speaks about the following process-dimensions:

«Political tolerance is a quality that Liberals of all countries; they are always more or less fewer sans-culottes and fanatics . . . party passion Everyone is perceived to the highest degree by Lasker
and this alone explains the irreconcilable position, which he has taken against Wagener; as well as party Sympathy on the other hand, the consideration with which he comrades, makes it understandable. (This latter Partiality has v. Diest in: '«the moral ground in State life» convincingly and documented).
«Wagener was a long-time political opponent, he is said to have earlier years in connection with the Kreuzzeitung, the their well-known activities today without him with unimaginable weaker force, many seriously injured and many
He held an influential position.

– 119 –

wealthy position and was politically inconvenient. His behavior
In the case of the Pomeranian Central Railway there were sufficient starting points for a devastating attack, and this opportunity was used ruthlessly... It is correct that Wagener's position gave him the utmost view; it seems to have been proven that he was wrong in this and it is clear that he, Schuster and the third college at Founding of the Pomeranian Central Railway so manipulated, that they follow the law of form, but not of spirit that they thus fulfilled empty forms and thereby Profit without risk, power without responsibility, and it cannot be denied that this is for a High Council of the Crown is compromising. Nevertheless,

The attack would never have been so bitter if it had would not have been incited by party hatred. Finally,
But the matter has been exaggerated. To what extent Wagener's position in obtaining the concession
I don't know how to judge how this happened. (Not at all!
The concession had already been sold a decade ago to a consortium, where Count Kleist-Juchow was based, under the Condition that the railway was built without a state guarantee.
It could not cope with this and gladly transferred and without any compensation the preparatory work on Wagener,
as he had the prospect of getting the money, with the help of the Schustersche Bank, without providing a state guarantee). «One thing is clear, that the concessionaires of this railway, if they decide to build it,
' and had not committed any other crimes

deserve medals and awards. The railway was a necessity for a neglected poor part of the country and, by raising it, a merit for the state. As speculation, even properly conducted, they never bring any benefit. If this is admitted, the accusation of abuse of official influence continued, because it was done for a good in the state interest Purpose. Furthermore, Councilor Wagener had the manor.

owner, an interest and a right to the projected track to strive to produce them. It would only be wrong to if he is other applicants, or a different direction

55

en 120 nr

| in rank that would have, and this. was not the case.

If, as I undoubtedly believe, Wagener has been two points are not to be blamed, a large part the accusation to the ground, and the only question that remains is whether he has crossed the line of legality in pursuit of profit and decency. The former is a question for the accused and the prosecutor, where, as I As already mentioned, every foreign suggestion is an arrogance and every amateur service documents malice; the
But the question of propriety concerned the gentleman's department heads.
(The permission to build the railway from his department heads Wagener had written evidence of this. As for the profit he was aiming for,

It was absolutely and relatively the lowest that any private railway company of that period

Was, because Wagener did not even move into it) «Here

Under certain circumstances, it could be the duty of the people's representative to draw attention to it, but only after a remedy has been provided by the superiors

A production like the one in the previous
The decision chosen in this case was unnecessary, discrediting for the Civil service, inconvenient for the superior and hard for those affected. From every syllable, from the whole demeanor, breathes revenge, not justice. I have no Reason to defend Wagener ... I am only outraged the injustice, vindictiveness and expulsion of

The fate of the Northern Railway and the Central Railway is particularly instructive. Of course, the still unknown shares of the same since the Lasker revelations not to sell it, at any price. In vain the organs of those railways petitioned the government for permission to issue priority bonds.

What you can expect from Hannover-Altenbeken and all other railways almost without exception, had readily granted this
The Re suggested that the foundations chosen as scapegoats government this harmless means of information. According to the Lasker's revelations nor supported the Reichs. and State government the Altenbeken, Magdeburg-Halberstadt, Halle - Sorau- Gubener and other railways through purchase

- 121 -

their priorities for the «invalid sovereign wealth funds». The Poznan Kreuzburger shares had already been sold by the "Welfenfonds"
Of course, such a subsidy did not exist for the von Lasker and his liberal friends to ruin consecrated «conservative» tracks. Nor are there any state guarantee was – as later for Halle–Sorau–Guben, – approved, and the half-finished railway lines were also bought not for the state, but they were left in Coneurs rathen and finally bought it from the forced sale for the state. One would think that the government constituted a precedent through which for all similar In all cases their behaviour is firmly determined; however, one could be very wrong, because not only did it have a guarantee in 1876 for Halle–Sorau–Guben, as we will see, and enforced, but in the same year it also

Purchase of Berlin–Dresden requested. This procedure of Government is biased and cannot be justified by anything.

The hated Wagener was not only overthrown, but he and his fellow concessionaires were also financially ruined and the shareholders lost every penny they invested. The tracks were purchased for their “demolition value”!

Not even those attacked by Lasker measured with the same yardstick. Wagener had to –lament. Prince Biron and Prince Putbus, however, kept their seats in the House of Lords. Wagener was criticized in the press outrageously insulted and socially ostracized, by the high bureaucracy and "cut". Biron and Putbus still appear at court. And yet

Wagener had only one track through his constituency Biron and Putbus have business from the However, Biron is only active in the Breslau–Warsaw Railway, Putbus, on the other hand, is a Professional, albeit inexperienced founder. We have His name was already found in Chapter VIII of the Henckel's societies and the Halle–Sorau–Gubener Bahn. But he still has to deal with the ennobled banker FW von Krause, the main importer of the «Russians», the Police President of Berlin, v. Wurmb and others the fraud.

– 122 –

company «Flora» was founded, which is now in bankruptcy and whose founding history is of interest to the public prosecutor is certainly suitable as an object of investigation. When the Northern Railway, Biron and Putbus had Mr. von Bülow, who has so far inexplicably concealed this fact from the Publicly kept secret and also Lasker did not denounce, to the colleague who is now Prussian

Minister of State and alter ego of Prince Bismarck is! All these people are still held in high esteem today, But Wagener was sacrificed for the founding So far, Wagener has, as I said, remained silent and Lasker's revelations have their purpose achieved. Lasker had killed two birds with one stone. beat: Wagener had to leave the civil service and was thus able to prevent the intended plundering of the state cash registers by the Disconto-Gesellschaft, and the audience was treated to the «Revelation about the Railway Swindle» that it neither the Founding fraud in mines nor the disability fund founding and plundering. Strousberg says openly, he had reason to believe that the big bankers Lasker's attacks were largely responsible for them. achieved their purpose. Under the dust that Lasker raised «Gelsenkirchen» was staged and on 22 May the "Disabled Fund" was founded.

In addition to this, a Reichstag building and A fortress construction fund was donated. These 3 funds received 247 million thalers capital. A special authority should be to manage these funds. As these but came into operation on 1 October, she found, in contradiction with the clear words of the law, the fund almost completely constantly invested, and the sea trade had on request order of the Reich Chancellery. The The first purchase took place on February 1, 1873, when there was no law on the Fund yet was in hand!

There were no guaranteed railway priorities from Reich Chancellery purchased for 92,658,300 thalers nominally.

– 13 –

The authority appointed to manage those funds purchased for another 1 million thalers. The prices were very high, average 99½ percent for 4½ percent unguaranteed priority ritities. And people bought even more of these papers, so that the three funds whose value in October 1875 was 322½ million marks This business was founded after the Green popular scheme. Otto Glagau presents this Scheme page 47 ff. of his excellent book. Factory owner Flau wants to sell his factory worth 250,000 thalers

He sells the factory for 400,000 thalers to the Founder Bär. Bär now sells the factory to a Founding Committee, the parent company of the new joint-stock company,

Wolf, Fox and Co. for 1,000,000 thalers. That's how it went This also applies here: the Disconto company plays the role of . Factory owner Flau. She owns 242,000,000 M. Priorities different paths, which they follow successively and usually quite low, let us say on average 95 percent.
She wants to get rid of them and gets in touch –
not with the founder Bär, but with the royal Prussian sche Seehandlung, which provided these funds to her for average price of 99½ percent. Not the founder Bär, but the Royal Prussian Sea Trading Company is now looking a stock company Fuchs, Wolf and Co., to which they priorities. As such, to be cheated |
The Reich Chancellery presents itself to society, which should place a disability fund and, as Privy Councillor Michaelis said he did not know where to get the papers Should. The Seehandlung now allows this fund to for 99½), Proc. acquired priorities at 99½ Proc. Now Minister Delbrück was able to present the « truth-“accordingly” – such people never lie, they only engage in “politicking”.
hypocrisy» – claiming that the funds are all from the Acquired from a sea trader for a very reasonable commission!

In April 1873, a fourth fund was created for Endowment of the Prussian provinces by law in the amount of 18 million marks and provisionally under NE of Mr. Camphausen.

124 –

During the debates about the 3 Reich Funds,
Above all, the safety of the facility was emphasized and yet
one can determine the purchaseability of regional mortgage bonds and permitted “provisionally” the purchase of railway Priorities. However, the Provincial Fund was legally required to Occupancy in such funds is not permitted, so he would have von Camphausen should be applied «pupillary safely»

But that suited the great patron of the Lord von Hansemann not; this stronghold of constitutionalism

called on some deputies, namely the Jewish peace-

thal and Lasker and some other friends of the same and sought their advice on how to Millions are most effectively “fructified”. Parliament ad hoc with its own mandate, of course, advised to set priorities buy. Which is what happened. The Disconto-Gesellschaft accordingly delivered to the 3 Reichsfonds for 961/, million M. Priorities of the merged Hannover-Altenbekener and Magdeburg-Halberstadt railways, for 93 million M. Cologne-Minden, for 46 million M. Bergisch-Märkische; to the Provincial Fund for 3 million M. Hannover-Altenbekener, for 3 million M. Berlin-

Görlitz. For 1,, million M. Halle-Sorau-Gubener were last fund from the Berliner Handels-Gesellschaft (Conrad, v. Bleichröder) was hung. With a post of 66 million marks. Magdeburg-Halberstädter demonstrably "deserved" the disconto-Gesellschaft 1,800,000 M. The entire profit of the disconto company at state expense is not R but it must be colossal.

Those with such state support – further on is the. | too expensive purchase of priorities nothing – pardoned Some of the tracks have already been built by Strousberg and his plundered by aristocratic accomplices, partly only by the liberal supporters of the Disconto-Gesellschaft, but mostly E of both. There had to come a time when the. state government the necessary losses on the securities could no longer cover up such foul paths, and she came..

– 12% De
Noise and state aid.

In May 1873 the great catastrophe struck Austria- F rich, without this having a major impact on the Berlin Stock Exchange. impression. only the Pharisaical pride, with which one can rely on the "much more solid conditions" at home was little justified by the facts, and So not only a crisis like 1856-57 came, but a huge "noise" that never ends but the character of an incurable, insidious disease that, it seems, leads to end, to death, that is, to bankruptcy.

It is not surprising that the founded companies that provide shareholders with the same Capital not credited at the usual national rate Interest, since a large part of this capital is not in the 'foundations.' but rather in the pockets of the 'Founder'. Most of the founding

Objects are managed too carelessly and too expensively.
One should at least be able to expect a moderate pension.
But it turns out that not only this is missing,
but also that all undertakings which are Dizziness was not infected, suffer, and now
For three years, the health situation got worse every month make shafts.

| It cannot be the task of this work to discuss the = Nature of crises in the system of self-superiority

traffic and the ever-increasing international trade here a scientific study to investigate, for example, how it is that broad masses of people, many, many millions of people who are productive and willing to work, have to celebrate, because they themselves are unable to economize due to lack of cash,

although they would like to consume. This would immediately into the abyss of the no longer gelatinizable social question, while this little book is the summit of the fraud, which of course the social prag 80 is serious.

a 106

On the other hand, it will be permissible to point out that from year to year the destructive economic...
laws have their effect, which since 1867 made in Germany. Were we able to Conservatives are not entirely free from the founding fraud.

We must say, however, that they are at the overthrow of all old order in the economic sphere are innocent. Prince Bismarck has the same with «his» Ministers, his officials – Delbrück, Camphausen, Aachen–

bach, Michaelis – and with the liberal party in parliament solely to blame and solely responsible.

Of course, the new trade regulations can only be implemented after exert their destructive influence. But now, after

7 years, she has already lost a good part of the old, solid artisan class was destroyed and the technical-moral

Education of our industrial youth has thoroughly deteriorated.

The almost complete implementation of free trade makes

only noticeable in years, since the traffic time | needs to break new ground. Now the through cheaper capital, raw materials and cheaper transport port before our manufacturers, the English awarded the found its way into our own factory districts. Finally drives the completely silly system of weight tariffs instead of

Value tariffs, which are merely the laziness of the high officials owes its existence to our manufacturers on the way the mass production of crude products. And so because from the most competent source from the exhibition

Philadelphia the verdict on the results of the Bismarck economic policy: «Cheap and bad»!

Our free trade policy is, as we have already stated in gange have noticed, also a copy of the French pattern, but of course a misunderstood, un-constant, distorted copy. Napoleon III. that so much for improved communications, for opening new branches way of setting and was so careful not to lose the solid foundations industrial production, through the dissolution of the craft institutions, for example, to destroy that he is all the more likely to the path of reducing protective tariffs.

| – 127 –

N when he had foolish Germany as his neighbour, which which soon opened up a lucrative market for French imports.

Moreover, the French have by no means given us the silly weight-based customs system, but they stuck with the reasonable value tariffs. Regarding this nonsense We were certainly original. Nor did they have any opened its borders wide, its industry is rather in the most important sectors 2 to 3 times higher protects than ours. And where the trade-compatible protection is not sufficient, French commercial practice helps for example by granting the acquits à caution, which a premium on the export of French iron to Germany. French trade policy was clever and wise, ours is simply narrow-minded. That is Even the Social Democrats are now pointing out in very sensible editorials. Hasselmann is truly and without any joke smarter than Delbrück, Michaelis and Camphausen Zu-taken together.

That mainly the insane customs laws .
Ruin of our industry, one can clearly see in the decline of the industry of Alsace-Lorraine.

The cotton industry must also focus on manufacturing production of crude mass-produced goods, and the iron industrialists

Are already building factories beyond the borders, |

to gradually bring their people and their machines to France.
rich and seek an existence there that they in the German Empire. Alsace-Lorraine impoverished under German rule, although there were much fewer taxes than the neighboring French departments.

For these reasons, we have no temporary crisis, but a constantly evolving worsening disease of all economic conditions.

Of course, the large founding houses, whose safes are not full of cash, but full of "industrial values lie, feel this crisis very hard: the No one in the audience took the funds away from them. Firstly, the audience itself became poorer from month to month, and Secondly, it did not trust even the "finest and largest houses"

rightly no longer, especially since, despite the enormous sacrifices, could not keep the price of their own papers high.

Disconto-Commandit shares fell from 350 to 110 percent!

The "values" lying in the vaults of the founders' houses – were not only unsellable, but they usually brought no dividend at all or only a small dividend. Some Companies, especially railways, even threatened bankruptcy. A large number of founders, namely those who had no political power behind them and were not subsidized from the state coffers, already broke. | |

Of course, the eyes of the big, over founders who had political influence immediately returned to the dear state. Now the millionaires cried out for state help! We have here, since it has been granted, again a Piece of socialism, which is just as much after-socialism as the Pereiresche After-St. Simonism was.

| This state aid was now in the most cordial agreement mood from the Reich Chancellery, from the Prussian Ministry and granted by the Landtag and Reichstag. Everywhere the founders' friends or agents. i

The Reich government came to the aid of the stock exchange through the Coinage Act. This resulted in the devaluation of silver and the The bankers, especially the patriotic ones, The traditional houses Plaut, Warschauer and others bought the minted new gold coins by replacing them with silver into the state coffers, they melted them down and sold the bars more expensively to the mint than they minted coins. Many millions of thalers

are at the dirty hands of these «arbitrageurs» stuck, thanks to a wrong coin policy Delbrück-Camphausens. |

Then the Royal Prussian Main Bank was raised, which is only partly financed with private funds, partly with state money, and created for the German Empire a Reichsbank, which was only funded by share capital.

A huge agiotage was now again driven and those who succeeded in receiving Reichsbank shares

– 129 –

u earned large sums of money. Unfortunately, the list of those pardoned with share certificates is not yet available, but she too will be investigated and horrific stripes shed light on the swampiness of our situation.

The main thing, however, is that the Reichsbank has ultimately the influence of big capitalists and the The influence of the government is different. The narrow The committee decides on the management. It consists from the following gentlemen: 1) Gerson von Bleichröder; 2) Gelpcke (Berliner Handels-Gesellschaft); 3) Zwicker (Gebr. Schickler); 4) Warschauer; 5) Plaut; 6) A. Meyer (EJ Meyer); 7) S. Behrend (Gebr. Behrend und Co.); 8) Arndt (EN Engelhard); 9) A. Borsig; 10) Mendelssohn; 11) A.v. Hanseatic – all in Berlin; 12) MC v. Rothschild-Frankfurt; 13) Th. Stern-Frankfurt; 14) P. Rauers-Hamburg (north | Deutsche Bank); 15) Abr. v. Oppenheim-Köln.

Our southern German allies, the Saxons, Hesse etc. rightly complain that the main bank, which has granted such significant monopolies in their countries are exclusively Berlin-Frankfurt-Hamburg financial magnates. This bank is in fact itself a Monopoly of a close-knit clique: Bleichröder, Zwicker, Borsig, A. Meyer, Mendelssohn, Gelpcke, Warschauer, Oppenheim in the Berlin trading company; Warsaw, Gelpcke, Mendelssohn, Zwicker, Arndt, Behrend, Meyer in

Berliner Kassen-Verein; Bleichröder, Hansemann, Gelpcke,

Henoch, Zwicker in the Berliner Immobilien-Actien-Gesellschaft; Hansemann and Bleichröder alternate as agents von Rothschild; Hansemann is related to Oppenheim; Bleichröder and Hansemann are well-known for their many deals with the bank managed by Rauers. Ten to twelve of these 15 gentlemen are – Jews. |
The 15 deputies are: 1) LW Simon (in the cash club); 2) Liebermann; 3) student (FM Magnus); 4) Julius Bleichröder (nephew of Gerson v. Bleichröder); 5) R. Hardt Oisconto-Gesellschaft); 6) Ravené (brother-in-law of Hansemann's); 7) G. Keibel; 8) v. Eckardstein (Semit, Disconto-Gesellschaft); 9) Th. Sarre; 10) B. Simon (Veit and Co.); 11) N Cohn;

Meyer, founder.

– 130 – p

12) E. Riess (Cash Association); 13) S. Simonsohn; 14) Helfft (Discount Society and Cash Association); 15) Henoch. –
These are all Berliners, including nine Semites or representatives of Jewish banking houses. These related and commercially grown into a pair of large rat kings, mostly Jewish bankers is the Imperial German Reichsbank, the creation of Bamberger – Delbrück –Camphausen, been handed over. This can affect our allies.
These Berlin Jews and Jewish
Not only have we enjoyed every credit at the bank, as the holder of many shares, the highest Benefit from their business, but they make for the whole empire the «price of credit», increase or decrease approve it according to their needs, since the bank discount normal price of the credit. The Presidium must of course, follow the orders of the committee. Now Mr. von Dechend may no longer cause difficulties for the founders. actions, even if he wanted to do so. Like ministers, who represent the state and not the welfare of the Jews should transfer this important function into the hands of those Jewish clique could play, that is still a mystery for the time being, but hopefully not forever.
We now come to the naked stock exchange Lassaileauie mus, the undisguised subsidy of large speculators with state funds and thus to a period which last years of the Napoleonic Empire, when Government made the – unsuccessful – attempt to State Connivance raised, evaded financial institutes through state support before the collapse

to save. |

First we have T business of the «Berliner Stadt-track.) A completely indelible eyesore

We have already pointed out the public danger of –national liberal MP Hammacher. He is the soul of the «German Railway Construction Company», which was intended to build railways on a large scale; Concessions were secured through their connections. Strousberg says that Hammacher and Paderstein gave him a

– 131 –

Concession that Hammacher secured through his influence wanted to create in order to sell at a high price 'want. The company was founded in 1872 by the. Deutsche Union-Bank (progressive member of the city council) rath Hagen, national liberal MP Dr. Hammacher, Liebermann, W. von Krause, national liberal MP Dr. Braun etc.), the International Bank of Hamburg (Godeffroy, Westenholz), the Mitteldeutsche Creditbank (Ober-countries, national liberal MP Consul G. Müller), the Silesian Bank Association (Count G. Henckel von Donnersmarck, Prince Carl Hohenlohe, Count Hoverden, Count Schaffgotsch, Schweitzer), Henoch and Goldschmidt and G. Müller. The new foundation was led and advised by Consul G. Müller, Real Estate Senior Government Councillor and speaker Councillor in the Reich Chancellery Hartwig, who of course quit his job, but not without friends and influence remained, Baurath Mellin, son of the former General Construction Director von Preussen, Mr. Hammacher and various bankers. The share capital was set at 6,100,000 thalers The company undertook the construction of various tracks, which she was unable to complete, and acquired the concession for the Berlin Stadtbahn. This was to be Ostbahnhof to Charlottenburg through all of Berlin, or rather, lead away from it. This has now been colossal – «made». People bought at fabulous prices for about 12,000,000 Thir. properties in Berlin. Some commissioners were only granted 2 percent of the provisional .sions rich people. The second issue of Baubank shares, through which the capital will be brought to 20,000,000 Thir. failed because every Berliner was convinced by the fraud. The company could not meet its obligations and was facing bankruptcy. Then she turned turned to the state for help. The state granted it. In particular the noble Miquèl spoke in favor of the project in the House of Representatives. The railway is a military necessity. In the case a war with Russia, the army from the West 4 days faster through Berlin than without this track. You always have a patriotic cloak

9*

[before

for their own business. A new law was introduced Actien-Gesellschaft, «Berliner-Stadt-Eisenbahn» came into being, in which the state participated as a shareholder. The state Prussia should give 7, the Berlin-Potsdam-Magdeburg Bahn 2, the Magdeburg-Halberstädter 2, the Berlin-Hamburger 1, the German Railway Construction Company 4 million.
Thaler. The properties were sold to the company for 10 percent.
below book value, i.e. approximately three times the
It is already clear that Neither the Magdeburg-Halberstadt Railway nor the construction companies society pay their quota of 6 million thalers that the stop is much too low, and – the
The state will probably have to pay another 15–20 million thalers!
But the construction company is so poorly managed,
that their shares, despite this enormous state aid, were 9 percent.
note. "

The government has not learned from this that it, just as
as little as the Napoleonic era, such bankruptcy societies cannot be saved, because it makes them
Rescue attempts even today among the enemy brothers
Disconto- Bleichröder. oe

The speech of the honorable people is precious to the state.
tribune Miquèl, that is, it is actually very expensive for him.
The honourable man asserted that the bill was very advantageous for the state and one should quickly
Due to his extensive experience in such
He assured that otherwise the state, with the rising
Real estate economy, the Berlin terrain of society will have to pay much more in a few years.
would today, as mentioned, be half the price of the new Society paid for it to be acquired, and where is the rising property economy, if in a week
53 sub-departments advertised by the Berlin City Court
They are traitors to the people, but not representatives of the people, these Miquèl's and co.; representatives of the people at best!

| – 133 –

The enemy brothers.

The Disconto-Gesellschaft states in its business report for 1873 that railway priorities in the course of year «came to the fore all the more sought-after, as to establish certain categories of these effects by Establishment of the Reich Invalids Fund and Similar Funds opened up a larger sales area. The report fails to mention that Mr. von Hanseemann, through his agents, the idea of these now almost unrealizable funds and pushed through in the Reichstag, yes, that he almost alone benefited from them. Because it is characteristic that larger items of priority are determined exclusively by the Disconto – Gesellschaft. In particular, it is that one cannot find Bleichröder's « values » in the invalid funds, neither Posen-Kreuzburger nor Weimar-Geraer. He was solely focused on the “fructification” of the 16 million Thaler of the Welfenfonds limited, poor Bleichröder!

Was he already concerned about the intrusion into the Roth-Schild's agency and sole exploitation of the audience at the Dortmunder Union, angry at the Disconto company his anger at her reached its peak, when he even talked about the robbery of the «four invalid state funds» received nothing:

“Two women in one house,
Two cats and a mouse,

A Bone and Two Dogs:
There is no time for peace!”

| Why did the Disconto company have this last colossal bones were also peeled off all by themselves!

The Disconto-Gesellschaft was, as mentioned, intimate with Camphausen. The house Leo Delbrück & Co. of course with Minister Delbrück. Both independent founding houses approached. Camphausen and Delbrück were very Prince Bismarck, on the other hand, valued Mr Gerson von Bleichröder. He also had more sympathy for the head of Bleichröder's parliamentary cohort, Mr. von Kardorff, who is a member of the free conservative, ministerial and

– 134 –

Ambassador faction, than for the national-liberal and even the unacknowledged progressive scholarship holders Hanseemann's. The Prince-Chancellor was already given the Coterie Delbrück-Camphausen, which has its own parliamentary Tarian party, uncomfortable, but it was still too powerful enough to fight them openly. The war began quietly, behind the scenes. At first, the Disconto-Gesellschaft still had victories to record and contributed with even greater hopes. The more tangible the Crisis in the course of 1873, the more The Disconto company intervened that the huge plan to To transform state railways into joint-stock railways, for this time The House of Rothschild also sought to enormous railway commitments. Both friendly Groups came up with the obvious idea of obligations to the state. Rothschild has As is well known, he has now partially realized his plan: he sold the Lombard railways to the Italian state.

So Mr. von Hanseemann decided to gradually the Reich government the idea of the «Reich Railway System» to be brought back. The Reich was to buy all the railways. The price alone had to be high, otherwise it was impossible for him and his friends did not earn anything. So the real plan was kept secret and played next the «pro-Reich» trump card, the power of the Kaiser in the German vassal states was a very 'rings and must be enlarged. In particular, a Reich Railway Office was created to supervise over all railway matters throughout the Reich strictly The idea was popular with the centralization-hungry In mid-1873, the Imperial Iron railway office was created and – in 1869 from the civil service transferred to Mr. Scheele, who had resigned, although he in all the fraudulent foundings of the Dis e shaft was involved.

The newspapers praised Scheele's patriotism, which «to more than 60,000 Thir. annual revenues from the

' Disconto- Gesellschaft and affiliated institutes have renounced and content himself with 5000 thalers of the Reich salary. Scheele had deserved so much and more. He was

Board of Directors of the following companies: Disconto- Gesell- schaft, Dortmunder Union, Erste Preussische Hypotheken- Stock Company, Preussische Central-Bodencredit- Stock Company

Society, Provincial Disconto – Society, Romanian Eisenbahn-Actien-Gesellschaft, Berlin – Anhalter, Magdeburg- Halberstädter, and some other railways. And these bloody founder, the Reich government provided ministerial . rank!!

: After this success, the Hansemann'sche Con-sorteria Grosses: She wanted to bring the state completely under her control Miquel was to replace Delbrück as President of the

: Reich Chancellery and v. Bennigsen Minister of the Interior
First Councillor in the State Ministry was, after Defense

mann's farewell, Schumann, former administrative councilor of the

Disconto-Gesellschaft, and as well as the 1876 resigned, it was said, Lothar Bucher, who had already served the old David Hansemann has rendered literary services and the young Hansemann's friend, should become Undersecretary of State and received the lecture from His Majesty. In privy

At that time, Miquel was openly referred to as the Bismarck's protected successor Delbrück, the «old and become dull, especially since he, the sixty-year-old, a young Woman taken.» The

'hostile brothers Disconto-Bleichröder together again
.economically, Bleichröder was able to purchase all railways
through the Reich, as he was in contact with Weimar
.Gera and Posen-Kreuzburg. But he still had his little private plan: As the main owner of Laurahütte-_Actien was interested in the rise in iron prices. Delbrück was

Free Trader. and passed the resolution in the Reichstag in 1873
'by abolishing every iron tariff from 1 January 1877

If this happened, the price of iron would have to fall even lower Laurahütte, about 2, at most 3 million thalers

-value, is burdened with 9 million share capital. This Aetien had to become almost worthless. Bleichröder

- 136 -

suddenly became a protectionist, his political maker, of Kardorff, studied Carey and made his debut in 1875 with a protective customs brochure: "Against the Current". He took From now on, the free traders Delbrück and Camphausen in Parliament, Bleichröder did this in «his lectures» with Prince Bismarck and in the dependent Press. Delbrück, as a stock bureaucrat, had less support than Camphausen, who had been a member of the liberal Party is pleasant and has repeatedly proven itself as a parliamentary constitutional model minister. Delbrück was also who had more official dealings with Bismarck than Camphausen, became even more inconvenient for the prince than this one. Delbrück was therefore easier to overthrow. The first attacks.

Bleichröder, as Privy Councillor and political representative, maid of honor of the Chancellor, as well as administrator of the Welfen-fund, a lot of influence on the foreign press, the distinguished was fed from its revenues. He used it, around 1874 Mr. Delbrück in a Viennese newspaper following article: /

«One begins (in the Reich Chancellery) to E e the Germany from its growing monetary wealth so far _

no fruits, but only regrettable consequences
One allows oneself to use the Ent-to subject damages to criticism... One asks Furthermore, whether the last measures, instead of purely cameralistic, rather than commercial, way should have been tried (Bleiehröder would have Billions have been «fructified» quite differently.) One has also the trade and transport policy measures, the reduction reduction of iron tariffs, tariff increases of railways and see things from a different perspective than the

tried to assess the previous positions.
Factual reasons are followed by personal ones.
Differences between the bank's board (Dechend) and the financial spiritus rector (Camphausen, Delbrück's Friend) of the Reich government has already made some things known to the public Also about the tension of the latter (ie

- 137

Delbrück's) with the largest German bank (Roth-shield) there was a lot to tell. At the same time, however,

The Berlin representative of that bank (the secret Councillor Mr. Gerson von Bleichröder) a persona gratissima in a decisive position. That all this results in a Decoration change is imminent, can be assumed as a fact 'will be.' |

Mr. Miquèl now seriously prepared himself to make his dream of 1848. At that time he played the communist demagogues in the Göttingen academic gymnasium association and once exclaimed: «What we have with these ministers want? You down and we up!" Now he wanted to "go up". He resigned from his position as director of the Disconto-Gesellschaft in November 1873 and remained only administrative council, in order not to go directly from the founder to the ministerial chair rise, probably also because the status of the Bank gradually felt itself to be "lazy" and he did not, if it should ever «crash», as a personally liable partner his quickly acquired princely fortune. He retreated to the less responsible full Board of Directors of the Disconto-Gesellschaft. But Mr. Scheele immediately went about his actual task. For Disconto-Bleichröder, it was a matter of providing the Reich to sell the private railways as expensively as possible. After the Prussian Railway Law, the state must, if it has a railway, which he has the right to do after a certain number of years, Twenty-five times the average net income of the last five years of the company in cash. It came i.e. the Disconto-Bleichröder-Ring, it is important to make the net profit as high as possible. . The only act of Mr. Scheele was that he a freight tariff increase of 20 percent.

The gross railway revenue in 1873 was 610 million M., of which 65 percent comes from freight transport. The Net income was 180 million marks. It was estimated that the Tariff increase the revenue of freight transport by 15 percent and the average net income of all German Orbits from 4, to 5.5, i.e. by 1, would be increased. By .

t

– 138 –

This clever measure will be the price that the empire or the state, if it builds the railways according to the Prussian iron railway law buys, increased by 35 percent!

After the tariff increase was implemented, the personal sacrifice of Mr. Scheele was unnecessary and he resigned from office in July 1874. The Leo Delbrück'sche Coterie now wished her director of the German Iron railway construction company, Mr. Hartwig, as his successor. This did not work. Minister Delbrück wavered 1874 already strong. An official, Maybach, stepped in to the place. |

The railways must protect postal items against fixed fee. In order to increase the revenue of the railways and to increase their price when purchased by the state. To increase the number of children, liberals in Parliament demanded that the post office should pay like any other carrier. escaped the General Post Office, which was not part of the Consortia. director Stephan a word, which is reminiscent of Itzenplitz's statement: «He has no shares, but the stock market knows very well which minister has such a thing. -Stephan called namely, «the Reich's barrel should be tapped once again. This time the experiment was successful for the «Reichskellermeistern» not. It is interesting that the progressive, Mr. Eugen Richter, who became an eloquent advocate of the «Reichskeg tapper», on this and other occasions, On the other hand, Prince Bismarck was won over for the project of purchasing all railways for the Reich. Since he met with the most vehement opposition in the Federal Council, When he met with opposition, he came up with the plan to first and then all Prussian state railways «for the cost and acquisition price" to the Reich.

Prussian private railways from the state of Prussia

This idea is also evidently an «apportioner», because it fits the «Ring» perfectly. In the Federal Council The representatives of the federal states sit, which are responsible for the financial arts of the «Reichskellermeister» have long since seen through. Or do you mean that the Saxon, Bavarian and other

= 139 -

Federal Council members do not know who manages the disability fund, which is funded by the Empire?

: If they really consent to the acquisition of the
If there were to be private railways, they would only do so if the railways would be assessed and acquired at their real value.
Then the jobbers' income from the stock exchange would disappear.
But they make it straight, and the acquisition suits them according to the Prussian Railway Law, especially after they had net profit through Scheele's efforts artificially inflated. The stock market is even discounting already the robbery to be made, because the bull market is different in Hannover-Altenbekener and other railway shares not to So we are again faced with a schematic proper foundation: The main railway owner Flau (Dis.conto-Bleichröder) wants to sell its railways to the consortium Fox and Wolf (German Empire) be rid of. Flau sold them to the founder Bär (State of Prussia) for the twenty-fifth times the artificially generated net income and makes his «correct» nonsense. Bär generously leaves the Founding object to the Consortium Fuchs und Wolf (to the German Reich) at cost price! So it was yes also done with the disability fund: Flau was discount
Society, Bear was the sea trade, and the cheated
Actien-Gesellschaft Fuchs und Wolf was the disability fund.
You can see that with little effort, ideas and
The most enormous results can be achieved through intellectual means!
We shall see by what measures the Prussian Ministry and the Prussian Landtag for this raid should be made susceptible to the state coffers!
| However, it can hardly be claimed that the Role which the maritime trade plays in the business of the conto company played with the disability fund, and which the state of Prussia is supposed to play in the Reichsbahn business, namely that of the founder commissioner and fictitious buyer, a worthy one. The German vassal governments will
Of course, they also see through this maneuver, but they have Unfortunately, they have just as little power to prevent it as they the plundering of the funds of their and our invalids

– 140 –

What is certain, however, is that the Reich eisenbahnproject already the vassal states very excited has, and that is to say, people and government equally. The party cularism has made it a powerful weapon against the Reich

won. Now comes an execution of the project | which, quite frankly, is the Berlin swindle stock exchange

many millions of thalers of Reich money, then the love for the new German Reich in the German Small and medium-sized states probably won't proliferate very much.

It is a serious political mistake that
From Berlin, this wedge can be driven into the young and still very.
loose imperial unity. This is already being violated so deeply hurt sense of sovereignty and – the wallet in the small states equally, thus hitting the heart and stomach.

the same with a hard fist, and a well-known dictating heart –
and stomach together in the given case also – the Actions. It is assumed that the gratitude for these Reich politics could not be avoided and once in very fatal deeds will find expression.

With the project itself, the private railways in 'insite |

paths gradually, one can of course imagine understood, of course under the condition that.

the former can be acquired at their true value. Even then but it might be advisable to assign them to the individual states in which they are located; and only about certain main lines or railways crossing several states to administer directly for the empire. For a uniform

Railway policy is then easily understood through the Au.

developing Reich Railway Office.

We cannot resist the opportunity to present a preliminary |
To make a remark in passing, which we have already made in the

«Reichsglocke», which was, however, used by the whole German press has ignored: |

The Reichseisenbahn project is again a pretty tough piece of practical socialism. The Social Democrats L. Blane and Lassalle claim that only the largest Capitalist, the state, the abuse of big capitalists They want to end the monopoly of rw

the latter for certain branches of production in which particularly noticeable, by breaking this

Productions are transferred to workers' associations, to whom the state advances the employment and working capital and whose business practices he temporarily controls. These – Productive associations gradually take control of the collective production and enter into a relationship of solidarity to each other. Finally, all private property has tools of production and the land: and is in the collective ownership of the entire people passed over.

We are now on the path of absorption of individual ownership by collective ownership, except that it appears as state property, exploited by state enterprises. Bismarck says, just like L. Blanc: «The nonsense of the great Railway companies are too big, they must disappear But he does not say: «we want to give them to workers Associations for independent management of but he says: «we want them for the state In our opinion, this is how the socialism initially in the form of state industry in our country Make no mistake, everything that is centralized and for state omnipotence is socialist, and a step necessarily and quickly draws the other after it.

This is also what happened in the Roman Empire. The craft cooperatives suffered more and more – in the third century in particular – their private character and approached the state office. Significantly, 5, the transport intermediaries took the lead in this direction, especially how to transform the railways into state institutions today

The grain for the Romans' food was brought from the Navieulariis, the state sailors. These The route and duration of the journey were prescribed, each Private transport is prohibited and a fixed wage of $\frac{1}{2}$ of the transported grain by state routes. Final All crafts became hereditary state offices. This is the typical form of cisarist socialism: the

ba AD. an i

Imperial Palace, to the right the state factory, to the left the barracks, to keep the state slaves in order and at work hold.

The army of the German Reich is a model in this regard. Admittedly, it does not do what Schiller described his Wallenstein as let her demand, she does not give birth to herself, that is what other people for her, but she creates and produces herself now already has almost everything it needs. The military treasury – is the army's "industry chief" and the role model of the «Railway boss», «Postal boss», in short «Social Caesar» in its functions, which can still be increased infinitely. The Military Treasury has its own apartments for the army and authority, the barracks. He bakes himself, at least often and for many regiments. He manufactures powder, weapons, cannons. He is an army tailor and shoemaker, in short, he is the head of a huge productive association, whose purpose

unfortunately not production in the economic sense, but the satisfaction of needs of a state within the state, which

Army, is.

If one thinks that the railway treasury will follow the example not follow? Surely he will. He will take the loco-motifs in their own factories, as he already has his own repair shops. He will compete with Borsig to death or buy his factory from him, probably by first becomes its creditor, as the state today is already Krupp's and Gruson's creditor. Why should he buy the wagons from private individuals? Ridiculous! He will build their own wagon building works. The coal that

He already partly comes from his own coal mines and he can'

yes, buy even more of the same. The necessary iron, he It will dig in its own mines, sell in state-owned smelters, work. The millions of railway, telegraph and postal workers,

the fiscal miners and steelworkers, machine manufacturers |

edges, etc., etc., they are all gladly in state apartments. Why should the state not provide for them? Bake bread, like for his soldiers? Why the picture continues

We are at the beginning of an era of ciisa-istic socialism, although of course it does not occur to us to claim that Prince Bismarck knew that he was a socialist and plans and promotes socialism. God forbid! distinguishes him from Napoleon III. Napoleon was Socialist by conviction and with full knowledge of what he did. Bismarck is the socialist against his knowledge and will and it affects those who believe in socialism in its different shades, always hilarious when He sees and hears how Bismarck attacks the Social Democrats. fights and is described by his officials as despicable people ', since he was much more successful in promoting socialism himself prepared the way for Hasenklever and Bebel together

" |

Everything that promotes the Capital Association promotes their transfer to the state administration and is therefore In contrast to production under free self-responsibility individuality, is therefore anti-individualistic, i.e.

socialist. Bismarck has the growth of the with disconto-Bleichröder-grown capitalist rat king
This rat king has about twenty large tracks

dependent on himself and can now do nothing

start with them, he can not take the huge bite

in downstream, which got stuck in his throat and caused him to

Now the same rat king is shouting at the state for help so that he could take the too large bites down, and the dear state is happy to do that too.
Voila tout!

The famous Beier ech opened in September received another form and is in this the Reich Chancellor on the most Reich-friendly presentation plate brought – from the Chamber of Commerce in Elberfeld. It is said a Reichs-Eisenbahn-Actien-Gesellschaft was founded, which all private railway companies and also the states and the Reich as shareholders. The Reich guarantees the Holders of unified railway titles a pension of 3 percent and shares the excess of $4\frac{1}{2}$ percent with the shareholders. Here again we have Credit-Mobilier with his large, uniform bonds, which he put into public and as their security the papers of all Private and state railways in Germany. Now

– 144 n

But there is a significant difference: In the German : | Replica, the empire itself is the largest shareholder. And

This largest shareholder guarantees the other shareholders a Minimum of 5 percent pension. This is a completely new .

Form of nn and of Credit Mobilier even !

Let us take a look at these gigantic stocks.

company!

According to Htibener's statistical table for 1876,
Germany 12,063 kilom. state and 15,894 kilom. private
There are already more now, as according to the Reichseisenbahnamt the private railways of Germany excl.
Bavaria and with billing of some small routes ult.

June 1876 already had a length of 16,393 kilometers. Let us calculate

i.e. around 17,000 kilometres of private and 13,000 kilometres of state

According to the report of the Reich Iron and Steel railway office, the private charges invoiced there cost tracks on average per kilometre. 263,000 M. Let us take

If we also apply this price to the state railways, we get a share capital of 7,890 million marks, of which 3,439 million marks

State shares and 4.451 million marks private shares. The |
The Reich's guarantee obligation would therefore be 133,, million M. annually. This would probably -

The total could be even higher, as all efforts will do to increase the price of private railways - and to allocate to them more titles of the Reichsactien-Gesellschaft

This interesting company, and this is currently cited in praise of her, would be a counterpart to the Reichsbank in which the «Select Committee», ie the Berlin Jews, the rash over the entire railway Finally, it would be advisable to entire state administration of a joint-stock company – in lease

France had been under the Ancien Régime for known as financial tenants.

Why do you think that this hair-raising idea of a Reichsactien-Gesellschaft has expired? Well, the failed Prussia's hundred-million state loan for railway purposes of the summer of 1876 has given the bankers proof delivered that the 'State Hereditary of Prussia, thanks to the «genius-len» economic policy of the country for 10 years, already is failing and drying up. A huge Reich loan of pp 5 to 6 billion marks would probably.

g not at all, at least only with enormous loss of price

On the other hand, an annual subsidy, a guarantee tiesumme, if not by way of taxes so on the annual recurring government bonds for a number of years. In September

In 1876, the conditions under which the Türkiye wanted to make peace with Serbia. Among them

The payment of a larger war cost compensation was
But if the creditless state of Serbia does not pay this amount,
As expected, it could not raise the necessary funds, an annual tribute to the High Porte must be accepted. The stock exchange assesses Germany's national credit as Turkey's Serbia. The European Union is pumping us six billion Bank Judaism no longer, but an annual stock exchange tribute
The Executor is still driving for a number of years by German taxpayers. With the help of the political agents can be considered the worst bankruptcy grab as many titles of the Reich Society as possible, and by bribing the press in these new «values»

organize an unprecedented Agiotage. On both'
` cases are «earned» by the Boursiers, and on this alone |
Austria already pays 26 million annually lion guilders guarantee subsidy to private railways, that is but for our Judaism a very worthy example Example! N

It is assumed that Disconto-Bleichröder also the project of a Reichseisenbahn-Actiengesellschaft
'stood, and so the matter has every prospect of Realization. Unfortunately, the enemy brothers are in some We disagree on other points, as we regret to say will have to announce soon. But first, one most strange phenomenon in the field of the press
be remembered, the «Deutsche Eisenbahn-Zeitung», now German Imperial Bell», which in history
Meyer, Grinder, 10

ER a oy, To oe ee

where ; 2 : F “ –

Peay TA

this increasingly boggy period of history a occupies a very strange position and perhaps to Acceleration of the decomposition process is not insignificant contributed.

The “German Railway Newspaper”.

The massive founding fraud and the associated growing corruption of politicians in parliament went hand in hand with an ever-increasing corruption of the political press. Not only that numerous stock market newspapers which, incidentally, has an averagely liberal, political part, but the stock market gained after and to exert decisive influence on the purely political Press, of course through bribery.

A very effective but still relatively
A moderately decent bribery method was the donation large advertisements. If a newspaper criticized any foundation,

The friendly founders sent the paper in the future no more advertisement, just as a newspaper of the official laundry list and official news from the Foreign Office loses if there is any government. This made it possible in a short time to prevent any derogatory criticism in the press.

But they also demanded direct advertising in the editorial. The founders therefore sent the advertisement at the same time a note which the paper in the editorial section had to include if it also included advertising. These notes are almost always correct. The "Kreuz-Zeitung" newspaper also reported she slowly but very noticeably growing intake, since Mr. von. Nathusius-Ludom, the nephew of Mr. Scheele, took over the editorial work of this paper.

Even more important was the advertising, which through clever Drafting of the report on the course of the Berlin Stock Exchange Every bull market was carefully analyzed in Dis-

en 147 –

5 9 Laura, Dortmunder Union etc. recorded and a The public was stimulated to make more and more purchases. Reclame can be found, mostly consistent, in the «Kreuz-

' Zeitung», «Post», «Norddeutsche Allgemeine» etc.

'Many newspapers worked in this way in the service of the Stock exchange only for the advertisement. Others demanded, and if they were influential – gained more. They were "involved"

their publishers, editors or stock market reporters, individually or everyone together in the founding business by giving them Shares at par without having to make a deposit

If the founding consortium completes its business, the participant received the premium. If the founding, and the shares were not to be issued above par, So the pressman of course did not accept the shares, had

So no loss. Such transactions are, for example, the Berlin “National-Zeitung o, the representative and owner of the «Frankfurter Zeitung», Mr. Sonnemann, the «Berliner Börsencourier».

In addition, people appeared who founded newspapers: to extort subsidies and a share of the robbery from founders. They threatened to expose the fraud at this or that foundation, if one does not involve them and achieve mostly serve their purpose. Since they give the founders, so to speak, the

Put a gun to your chest and with every new foundation new claims have been made, so now you can « “A KOROL Groni: nalists ».

Finally, from an insignificant local newspaper Obarlottenburg, a very strange press organ, which Deutsche Eisenbahn-Zeitung», and its editorial staff In 1874 he moved to Berlin. The paper was headed by a Mr. Joachim-Gehlsen, who in his younger years years as a book printer throughout much of the world wanders and finally literary. the most diverse The paper openly confronted the Purpose of examining Lasker's revelations on their true value, to provide the world with proof, that it is a liberal party maneuver and not a purest patriotism and noble moral indignation

| 10*

– 148 –

carried action, through which Lasker some conservative founder dilettantes were pilloried that Rather, this was done mainly to protect one's own,

far more dangerous founding members and party comrades to escape the attention of the audience. Character- It is teristic that the first funds to establish the paper were supplied by two Jewish-liberal founders, Mr. S. Abel Jr. and “Bankassessor” Hermann Löwen- field. Abel "financed" the Berlin-Dresden railway.

after Lasker's revelations Nobody Fonds jungen Bahnen bought, S. Abel saw his bankruptcy before his eyes – which even despite support from the «Welfenfonds», broken – if it was not possible to achieve the Laskerian fraud. Therefore, he helped the “Railway.
newspaper». |

The editor now described quite truthfully
true to the railway construction practice in Prussia,

like all practices criticized by Lasker with prior knowledge of | Government in all railway construction projects of the last decade, and although even more ruthlessly judged by the liberal founders than von Wagener-Biron-Putbns. On the other hand, the paper draws the audience's attention to the actual ual founding of the past years, which almost exclusively: | was primarily run by liberals and Jews.

A reaction against the founder began | also in some other papers. Since December 1874 Otto Glagau published in the widely read “Gartenlaube”

a series of articles about the startup scam. |

They described systematically in full truth
the events of the great exploitation process of the Founding to liquidation. Glagau claimed that Ninety percent of all founders were Jews. Mr. Glagan had these excellent works have now been collected and distributed.
Result of the already published work, which i in Parliament was repeatedly evoked and to educate the public has worked in a highly meritorious manner. And the – Agrarian Niendorf led «Deutsche Landes-Zeitung»

ar 5

began a not inglorious campaign against the Jews and Founder, who since the founding of the «German-Conservative tive party» seems to be falling asleep. The «citizens
' Zeitung», a paper widely read among the small middle class, occasionally brought excellently written articles about the plundering of the «disabled fund», the corruption in the editorial office of the «National-Zeitung» and the fuss the MP and owner of the «Frankfurter Zeitung», Sonnemann. The most consistent newspaper was the «Eisenbahn – Zeitung» on the trail of the founders. Until spring 1875, the sheet on the young tracks and provided evidence, that Lasker's friends and party comrades, the gentlemen Braun-Wiesbaden, von Bennigsen, Adikes, the Freiconservative Count Münster, von Kardorff, just the same and worst done more than those "revealed" by Lasker.

The editorial team examined the state of the mortgage-Actien-Banken and finally reached the Disconto-Gesellschaft and thus logically to the actual ground of the _ most valuable entrepreneurship, as well as to the support which the state government and the parliament lent it. In June 1875 Gehlsen published an article entitled "Camp-hausen-Hanseman", who | openly disclosed this scandalous relationship explained.

On August 1, he published the first article of a whole series, which was titled: «The Schwindel en gros and the Romanian Railway Company

- society». These articles were not always in line with the written with due care, but its content has essentially fully confirmed. The editor intervened in The founders of the "Romanian Railway Company" Society» ruthlessly attacked the gentlemen from Hanseman, by Bleichröder, Miquel, Riem, Reinhardt, Scheele etc. He called them fraudsters and deceivers. The attackers fenen did not dare to sue Mr. Gehlsen for defamation to prosecute, only the public prosecutor, who otherwise charges as a rule, pursued exceptionally the Editor for «insult». In such processes: the proof of truth only on the decision of the battle

=. 150 -

The accused offered to prove the truth of the to prove the alleged fraud. Strikingly, The prosecutor protested against this, but the court decided to allow it in a restricted manner, and Now Gehlsen did not prove everything he claimed but there was still a lot of extremely offensive stuff. a conviction of the editor in two instances, But the matter is not yet over, as Gehlsen has requested criminal proceedings against the informants. It must be mentioned that the Disconto-Gesellschaft loyal press had claimed that Gehlsen had used these Articles made an attempt at blackmail, and that the The prosecutor tried to prove this. The same failed completely and left the impression of a failed Since then, this suspicion has confirmation of Gehlsen's tendencies, 'at least in the press, stopped and it has been a dishonorable act for him

has not been proven.

On the other hand, attempts have been made to prevent to render the man «harmless». Immediately after the first hearing in this scandalous trial, which has a tremendous Shame on the millionaires and their political accomplices
The «National-Zeitung» published an article about the "political madness". In times of excitement, Often, otherwise quite intelligent people are told that they have a monomania. Such a situation prevails now, the persecution or denunciation madness. The matter had its very serious side. The testimony of an unscrupulous doctor enough to send a person to a madhouse as insane.
to be blocked are thereby completely «harmless»
According to this site, the revelations, which the "Volksstaat" in the summer of 1876 about the fate sal of a Mr. von Puttkamer, a tremendous and very – embarrassing fuss. This v. Puttkamer, a man embittered by multiple misfortunes, accused Prince Bismarck, the Pomeranian feudal order 1867 by law to have changed so that the prince's wife, a née von Puttkamer, heir

| – 151 –

Him, the «Revealer», and other vassals,
A large fortune was lost and the woman
The prince's estate fell to him. This Lord of Puttkamer was declared "crazy" and sent to a mental institution near Berlin
After a long time he escaped, fled to the Switzerland, and the "Volksstaat" now publishes official Reports from doctors and officials from Switzerland that Mr. von Puttkamer there as a completely reasonable person lives. – The friends of Mr. Gehlsen were informed by this strange article in the national liberal Moniteur. very «peculiar». However, one has not yet heard that he had been declared insane by a doctor. |
When later in the «Reichsglocke», as the «Eisenbahn-Zeitung» now means the revelations about the looting
. the sovereign wealth fund began, the whole crowd, from which «Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung» to «Tribüne», official and national liberal newspapers, let loose. They threatened Next, the impudent slanderers who are hiding behind the center, held accountable,
'be destroyed and exposed. All these threats were asked by the
. «Eisenbahn-Zeitung» is regularly printed and explains, she waited with calmness for the things that were to come. The Articles about sovereign wealth funds were intentionally written that they insulted ministers and MPs, and Even the public prosecutor was openly threatened with a case threatened, as the journalist Mandt did in Brussels against the Royal Chief Prosecutor when he had appointed Lagrand and the ministry that was favorable to this swindler fell.

All these bloody insults were quietly and it is the paper, despite a truly cynical
In writing, it has not yet been possible to «rob the State through the Disconto-Gesellschaft and Bleichröder » to bring it before the courts in any form.

It was no secret that the author Mr Gehlsen at that time, that is, from October 1875 onwards, literary
The «classical founder» (see
O. Glagau, the stock exchange and start-up fraud in Berlin, Page 168) Dr. L. Bamberger, Member of Parliament for Bingen, in – 1652 –

Reichstag called the author a revolver journalist |
When asked for pistols, the hero of Kirchheim – Bolanden, author was charged with challenge accused and sentenced to imprisonment in a fortress. In the presence of the prosecutor and the panel of judges, he explained the Bamberg residents for «unable to provide satisfaction», without he protests or the court calls the witness Bamberger

But now comes the characteristic of our conditions: In France, such a person would must immediately resign his mandate and politically and be socially dead. Completely different in Germany.
Bamberger is still the recognized leader of the National liberals and the «Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung», then only official organ of the Prince-Imperial Chancellor, today exempt which also belongs to the German Conservative Party, spoke

after this – by French standards sufficient – moral destruction of Bamberger expresses the hope that He and his followers from the «right wing» of the national-liberal party joined the newly formed conservative party.

and become one of its leaders. –. We 'will continue to look once again at the sad sight game that shows the depravity of a great
-Part of the so-called "Society" in the German Empire offers at the moment. Of course, the Reichstag, if it satisfies faction refusing members, who are known to be through the | court for insults committed in Parliament can be prosecuted, does not expel its members under the censorship of the riding whip. And since then it has been a deputy and bloody founder on the open street

'was beaten up when he was leaving the House of Representatives

The name of this first victim of the Bamberger's case of the only possible lynching procedure against scoundrel members of parliament deserves posterity
It is the Member for the Royal berg in Pr., Privy Senior Government Councillor and Senior Citizen former master craftsman Kieschke, Director of the Deutsche Baugesellschaft

(A. Delbrück, Bensemann, Georg Halske, E. vd Heydt, B. Oppenheim), founder of the «Kaiserhof? and main

– 153 –

co-supporter of Lasker in his attack on the founding dilettante Wagener. Otto Glagau describes p. 212 of his often quoted book the moral indignation with which This slapped main founder against «state aid and damage to the national wealth.
One does not consider the mention of such names superfluous or even consider it as an expression of scandal-mongering. If also in a large part of the upper social class

the sense of honor and shame is completely lost and the gold-laden shame and disgrace to the If the poor man of honour is openly preferred, then the Middle and working class – admittedly still latent – a good fund. This fund of “moral warmth” must only free. and this is best done when one calls with Bismarck: “un chat un chat et Collin un coquin». | 2 8

During these proceedings in Parliament and its Echo in the press, the «Eisenbahn-Zeitung» continued undeterred with her revelations and gained from month to month . month by month in terms of the quality of its content and its influence. The paper had been publishing excellent editorials since 1874 about social-political issues, which one can Privy Councillor Wagener. From October 1875 onwards Articles appeared in the «Eisenbahn-Zeitung», the distribution of have remained unknown to date, but which have the highest social classes and partly diplomacy. They made Prince Bismarck in its foreign and economic policy to counter-state of a witty, but biting and hateful Criticism. These expertly written reports sentences gave the paper access to the highest Finally, the author of this Study since October 1875 for about three quarters of a year at the _-«Eisenbahn-Zeitung » and wrote economic, financial political articles, especially the criticisms of the Allocation of state funds in bad papers and through the entire Delbrück-Camphausen-Hanseemann system. He took This is just a work that he has been working on since 1870.

et

in the «Berliner Revue» and whose results

which he now summarizes in this book.

Finally, in the autumn of 1876, a small brochure appeared by Mr. von Diest-Daber: «The moral basis in the state living, in which not only the representative Lasker thoroughly and proof has been provided that the same had already noticed in 1870, like Miquel, Kardorff, Adickes among others, made laws in their commercial interest and how the number of these political stock market agents in the party lament increased noticeably, but also the hidden Attack of the Kreuzzeitung era article against the prince Bismarck repeated this with greater clarity. The «Deutsche Reichs-Glocke» now accused on the basis of this

Brochure the Reich Chancellor openly a consortium-division with a profit-making intention at the time of the establishment of the Prussian Central-Boden-Credit-Actien-Gesellschaft, one official misconduct, which the criminal law punishes with imprisonment and punished with imprisonment. The newspaper explained openly provoking a libel suit from the prince, to provide proof of truth. |

What will become of this cannot yet be foreseen.

The period to be described now of the exploitative have been systematically promoting enlightenment since October 1875 of the audience is mainly a story of the «Eisenbahn-Zeitung», now called «Deutsche Reichsglocke» and this is what we want to turn to now.

Exposing the government.

As early as May 1875, the «Eisenbahn-Zeitung» the conspicuous preferential treatment of the Disconto-Gesellschaft by means of the maritime action by Minister Camphausen to counter state of their criticism. Mr. von Bleichröder, who was involved in the of the invalid state funds.

Deputy von Kardorff on 10 June at this sore

Fleck: Camphausen had financed the project through loans from

– 155 –

Millions at 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ percent without supporting documents '(to the Disconto-Society) 'thwarted Dechend's banking policy, the put a stop to the founders by withdrawing credit The Seehandlung had established itself as a flagship for Emissions of bad founder papers (Dortmund Union) and unsound railway – priorities abused, it is ` Blame for over-speculation. Our economic policy is wrong and creates a deficit. Mr. Camphausen was to blame for this. – From then on Bleichröder worked with his followers openly support the downfall of Delbrück-Camphausen. Immediately the counter-attack came from the other side, and Although a very strange arm was used to lead him.

A number of very honorable conservative nobles had knowledge of some of the relations of our Ministers to bankers and took offense at this. They sought Already in May 1875 a man who had this relationship and found Dr. Perrot

The «Kreuz-Zeitung» provided him with their columns. Which procedures with the Articles before printing are still beyond the

Public. But one must remember that the Editor of the «Kreuz-Zeitung,» Mr. von Nathusius-Ludom, the nephew of Mr. Scheele and v. Nathusius-Hundisburg (Pr. Central-Boden-Credit), as well as a relative of two Nathusiusse is at the Magdeburg-Halberstädter Bahn, so This makes it very close to the Disconto-Ring. Consciously or unconsciously he may be recording and perhaps also in- inspiration of this article influenced by therefore In any case, they were able to give the Disconto company would not be more convenient if they were given by Miquel himself. would have been written. | |

In these articles there is a complete falsification The facts were: It was said that Prince Bismarck had the Consortium: Bleichröder-Delbrück-Camphausen the in- intellectual inspiration of the North German economic law assignment, so to speak, completely given to Entreprise. Mr. v. Bleichröder was the national economic spiritus familial liaris of the German Reich, whose policy was a Jewish policy Lasker, Bamberger and Oppenheim are the real political leader of the national-liberal majority, «Miquèl represents the Christian minority of the banking Liberalism, which was associated with the Semitic leadership by Dick and Dunn goes». Mr. von Bleichröder has the coverage of the self-consuming disability fund. Finally, Kardorff's attack on Camphausen because of the naval action as a Bleichröder maneuver thought. |

Only the latter is truth, everything else is fable, and We assume that this whole series of articles is only in Interest of the Disconto-Gesellschaft admission in the «Kreuz- Newspaper». Of course, the conservative organizer and most likely Mr. Perrot, yes perhaps also Mr. von Nathusius-Ludom himself, this meaning not aware of the matter. At least for the counter- There is no direct evidence so far, and we do not want anyone on the basis of a false evidence The Disconto company is only occasionally 'lich of Kardorff's attack, although they were Miquèl and her other agents on the economic politics alone has been effective since 1872 and although At that time, Bleichröder tried in vain with Prince Bismarck intrigued against this power. 'There was no "Consortium Bleichröder-Delbrück-Camphausen» , but a consortium I «Hansemann (Miquel, Scheele)- Delbrück -Camphausen»; did everything and lived in fierce feud with Consortium II "Bleichröder-Kardorff. The latter consortium leaned Prince Bismarck more and more. Consortium I continued free trade, Consortium II was and is at the Head of the agitation for high iron tariffs (Laurahütte). The Invalidity Fund was founded in 1872 by the Disconto - Gesellschaft invented and 1873- by her alone, excluding Bleichröder, been looted. The revelation in the Kreuz newspaper about Bleichröder's invention of the Disability Fund was so complete are untruthful and hurtful for Bleichröder, that it prompted Gibson to later produce the first reliable

0

157 -

to make revelations about this fraud. |

Such a completely distorted representation of the situation served to hold Bleichröder responsible for his actions of which he was not only innocent, but which he had even tried to prevent. Prince Bismarck was also suspected, as already mentioned, of having Bleichröder had done dishonorable business. It was very that the prince did not bring the paper under accusation, The social democratic "people's state" reproduced the

and wrote. For months in every issue: «He has not yet sued»: One of the conservative authors of the Article spoke openly to anyone who wanted to hear it:

«No prosecutor will bring charges because of this. Reason: One can prove the truth of all claims Prince Bismarck later said in Parliament, the greatest legal authorities have declared that Articles were written "so cleverly" that a judgment cannot be made on the basis of this, therefore he had failed to file charges. It was argued made that the prince is not so so meticulous that he even read printed indictments formulare and never consulted legal opinions beforehand before he brought charges that 19 percent of the so-paid rich pressing processes are solely the responsibility of the Bismarck-Be-insults that the judges even dealt with great severity in such cases by adopting the view of the Public Prosecutor Simon in Berlin, the prince, who

more than an average person, is particularly easy, even «hypothetically» to insult and to make such slightest

Insulting the larger-than-life man was particularly

The President of the City Court, Mr.

Majunke to a long prison sentence, Mr. Meissner, motivated this judgment with the fact that «Prince Bishop Marck was at the head of the state», a motivation,

which actually amounts to an insult to the majesty:
At the head of the state, thank God, is still His Majesty.

ity of the Emperor and King, Wilhelm I! – At this notarial cal welfare of the Berlin three-man

collegium, the city judge Reich-Osowski-Makomaski, took

It is very surprising that Prince Bismarck did not attempt whether this perfidious attack by high-ranking men, whose cautious form is precisely characterized by its sophistication testimony was not punishable. Since the prince continued drives, accusations for the smallest of trivialities against the most insignificant people, even against a maid (!!)

to raise, it has become regrettable in large circles – Way spread the belief that he actually had a judicial investigation into his relations with Mr. von Bleichröder. The Social Democrats are moving out such suspicions of high statesmen a great

Part of their power over the minds of the currently starving

People. We, for our part, hold the Emperor's time 2

Tiberius invented lèse majesté trials, which recently they have been targeting ministers and officials for insulting stretches, for not only extremely useless, but directly harmful for the existing authority. In certain happier countries get along just fine without them.

But if you are aware of them at all, they are primarily there indicated where a suspicion of integrity after the pecuniary side. The fact that the «Kreuz-Zeitung» later declared that she had suspicious dealings of the prince does not change anything, since this Declaration is a notorious lie, which, apart from the many other Conservatives at any moment can be established as such in court.

Mr. v. Bleichröder was grateful for this era-
Article of the Disconto Society not guilty.

Immediately after Kardorff's speech, the (ironbahn-Zeitung», «Deutsche Landes-Zeitung» and (Volks-Zeitung» that Camphausen-Delbrück the Disconto -Ge- _ company not only through the loan at 2%, percent

supported, but also the creation of the state funds had been given to her. Then the Lasker-Bennigsen -Miquel published or at least inspired Berliner Allg. Corresp.» , the official correspondence of the

– 159

$ aaao: –liberal party, end of Ju uni with the hack 1

the Disconto-Gesellschaft was not responsible for the allocation of funds for these funds, but the maritime trade.

We have already shown that the maritime transaction is merely
y was pushed forward. At the end of September, Bleichröder | through the then subsidized by him (Welfenfonds)

«Neue Freie Presse» in Vienna the first authentic news about the disability fund business by

7 He revealed that the Disconto-Gesellschaft had sold 74 million marks

Magdeburg – Halberstädter and for 7½ million Marks Hannover-Altenbekener (Bennigsen's paper) supplied for the funds.

This claim was confirmed in early October by the main organ of the Disconto-Gesellschaft, the «Berliner Börsen-Newspaper once again vigorously contradicted, with a very blunt threat against Bleichröder.

The « Eisenbahn-Zeitung » exposed the mendacity of this – claim on October 3, and at the same time designated the Aera articles as a backdrop behind which the actually guilty: Miquèl, Scheele, Disconto – Society tried to hide.

The Disabled Fund Act had the allocation of funds for the three Reich funds in Hungarian guaranteed priorities «only provisionally approved. They were to be available until July 1, 1876 be replaced by other named funds.

But now the Disconto company had notoriously ` unrealizable, because partly uncertain, partly completely worthless priorities which the government: not

. 'sell. She came to the Reichstag with a Law that provides for an extension of 4 years for the requested sale.

What would be the use of this deadline? The worthless funds do not receive any higher value through deposition, as Tobacco or wine? Well, since then the «Reichs-railway project bo into the public. The Reich should all railways, including those whose bad papers the funds owned, buy, then these priorities became state papers and therefore «fine», in this way the past hellish fraud. Really a cleverly worthless plan, which of course again from the

– 160 –

'Disconto-Gesellschaft', from those who were responsible for their 9

Ministers who were concerned about their own situation but later readily accepted Bleichröder later also stood up for him because he the « Welfenfonds » also with railway waste paper has spied. | a

On 9 November, this proposal came to the first reading in the Reichstag. Prince Bismarck was still in Varzin.

Windthorst wanted to refer the matter to a commission.

otherwise it would have to become "concrete" immediately. Delbrück again tried to by telling the old tale of the sea trade A member of the administrative authority of the Invalidenfonds, v. Nostitz-Wallwitz, explained that the priorities almost all were before the competent authority met "on the orders of the Reich Chancellor." Eugen Richter from the Progressive Party claimed that the absent Reichs-Chancellor alone bears all the blame and – those present the minister remained silent on this!

It was decided to temporarily suppress Windthorst's revelations.
referred the matter to the Budget Commission, whose chairman was – – Mr. von Bennigsen, whose lazy Altenbeken priorities also owned by the state funds

The «Eisenbahn-Zeitung» now published a Article about this session in which she correctly predicted that the corruption system of the liberal consortium is now:
revealed and is facing bankruptcy. «The current
The most important question is: Will Prince Bismarck liquidate take into his own hands what he can still do, or will he will be involved in the bankruptcy and liquidated?

He has a choice, but only this choice.

© The article earned the editor 14 days in prison – because of Bismarck – insult. But the paper proved now in a series of articles from the printed business _
Reports from the Disconto company itself, which horrendous Sums of bad papers the Disconto-Gesellschaft the Reichs-funds. For individual items, the Newspaper even the one given by the Disconto-Gesellschaft

– 161 |

| TR, profit. The government representatives had, even still in the first Commission meeting, refused to accept the purchase price and the terms of purchase. Those Revelations by the “Eisenbahn-Zeitung” made the veiling system was unnecessary, and now came the shameless Plundering of the state coffers by the Disconto Society to the light. =

Now, behind the scenes, events have taken place that will probably only be known later. Prince Bismarck returned. There was a rumor that he wanted peace the one with Rome.

When the Disability Fund Act came into force for the second time, Windthorst was not «concrete», Mr. v. Schorlemer – Alst
The government only acted timidly, the compromised parties lament comrade Miquél, Bennigsen not at all, and as When Mr. v. Ludwig did this later, he was his faction, Windthorst, publicly disavowed. Delbrück committed the great imprudence of taking responsibility for the Allocation of funds from the shoulders of the Reich Chancellor to take on his own, and the liberal majority of the Reichstag gave Mr. Delbrück a vote of confidence! |

It is assumed that in high and military circles the endowment of the Disconto-Gesellschaft with the money intended for the disabled was disgruntled and that the careless person who assumes responsibility for this, Delbrück, now lost all support in those circles. He fell then not too long later, uncomplained and unwept.

In the House of Representatives, von Camphausen later The "provincial funds" that were also "negligently" invested were also mentioned. The case ended just like that of the Disability Fund in Reichstag. The center remained silent, and the incompetent Conservatives embarrassed themselves. The latter then brought the Results of the Lasker Railway Investigation Commission mission, which is more serious for Liberals than for Conservatives, in the House of Representatives. Mr.

von Below-Saleske had a major attack on the liberal

Founder promised. Then suddenly the story appeared 'emerges that Prince Bismarck wants to restore Conservatism Meyer, founder. | 1i

e eta 7

Negotiations between him and conservative people began. Mr. von Below had a conversation with the prince and – suddenly traveled from Berlin to his sick and now also deceased deceased woman. The remaining Conservatives were unable to carry out the attack planned by Below and were thoroughly influenced by the superior liberal speakers. Mr. von Below is said to have even sent Mr. von Bennigsen sent a letter of apology!

Another blatant scam occurred at the Provincial Fund. The provinces had to use the funds that were in it and 1876 were distributed, at the rate of the last December 1875. Now suddenly in the last December week a bull market in these funds on the stock exchange At the beginning of January, the artificially driven funds back to their old level. This course driving could only have the purpose of preventing the damage to the provinces by to conceal Mr. Camphausen's negligent occupancy. The minister was therefore also elected to the House of Representatives interpellated, but was not ashamed to declare, enemies of the Government would probably have put an end to this peddling set out to embarrass her. With devastating The «Eisenbahn – Zeitung» seized the scorn of this original excuse; she gave the names of the brokers, who had listed the fictitious purchases on the stock exchange and demanded in an article full of insults against ministers the public prosecutor's intervention against the guilty parties. Unfortunately, in Prussia the public prosecutor is appointed by the Minister of Justice. Because of all the insults from the ministers teeming articles in the "Eisenbahn-Zeitung" about the fraud with the «invalid state funds», which are were written in such a way as to initiate a trial against the sheet to m... and thus this dizziness before Ge-Blatt more than a dozen accusations pia quite un- had to endure a series of insults against Bismarck. The matter was too dirty for the government to dare to submit them to judicial investigation.

f

he . 163 –

Of course, the prosecutor did not take action against the fraudulent course driver.

In the provincial parliaments this matter came up again in the Brandenburg Provincial Parliament. Mr. von Winterfeld-Menkin gave a sharp speech against the government. A commission was set up to examine the. In August, the same declared that the government. There was no blame, and with profound silence the Provinzial-Landtag. this resolution of Count von Kleist-Tschernowitz. It was the first act of love that the young German-conservative party of the government that and the first indelible disgrace that she thereby piling it upon itself. Another big scandal tainted the winter session of the Prussian Landtag.

The Provincial Fund had priorities of the « Halle-Sorau-Gubener » Bahn. This was about to declare bankruptcy. The Berlin trading company, where Mr. von Bleichröder Board of Directors, the last issue had priorities the railway with the help of the shipping company, the discount Society had given the disability fund priorities of this railway hung and even owned something similar in her

Safe. The operating surplus of the railway was in 1878 | 106,000 thalers, per 1874 = 227,000 thalers, for interest. The priorities required in those years were 325,000 Thlr.

and 447,000 thalers; the railway was thus operating with a colossal deficit. She had to go to bankruptcy, and then the Disconto-Gesellschaft, the Handels-

The company and the provincial fund all the money which they had invested here, totalling about 4½ million thalers;

The provincial fund owned approximately 600,000 thalers of such «Ladepfüter». To save them, the government introduced a = submission, according to which they guarantee for 380,000 thalers. Priority _ assume daily interest, ie annually: presumably 150,000 Thlr. wanted to close. House of Lords and: House of Representatives agreed: Conservatives and Liberals were in this Bahn. compromised. As we have seen in an earlier chapter proven, the railway was a Strousberg foundation, the first 8 of which were led by Henckel's aristocrats

| R 11*

- 164 - `

was in which many High Tories, especially Free Conservatives, . as a mock draftsman. Later, the railway fell into the hands of the Disconto-Gesellschaft and finally even in the trading company. All parties had an interest in keeping the matter as quiet as possible the world, all but the center. This but again behaved very tamely, aur Schröder- Lipp-city could not contain its mockery. Centrum had heard from the first consultation on the disability fund to the last via Halle-Sorau-Guben it in the Hand, both the German Imperial and the Prussian to overthrow the state government and did not use his power. This can only be understood if one looks at the people behind the negotiations between Bismarck and the Germans and Rome and considers that they not on the efforts of Cardinal Hohenlohe in Rome limited. | T

The Berlin-Dresden railway is also facing Bankruptcy. It was saved by Prince Handjery with the help of Bankhaus S. Abel jun., of course according to the Strous system. berg, was founded. Although the government was involved in the « Pomeranian schen Central-» and «Berliner Nordbahn» any subsidy dismissed and the tracks from the competition had just bought, she preferred a different procedure here. She introduced a bill that would require the state to should buy a bankrupt railway; and not because of a expert valuation. This proposal was rejected in the ordnetenhouse: S. Abel jun. did not have enough political agents to push the matter through here. The The government, however, made every effort to protect this founder from bankruptcy, [which he has since fallen into and Camphausen even made the political mistake of to draw attention to how important it is for Prussia It must be a must to have a railway line «that leads directly into the heart of the Kingdom of Saxony». An official newspaper of the Saxon government did not fail to point out this strange Prussia's "benevolence" towards a country that had proved so successful in 1870 Allies. There are almost no mistake of which the present German Reich and Prussian state governments do not would have already committed a crime just to protect her scandalous relationships: 2 and R financiers

– 165 –

2 u obscure.

Occasionally the Berlin–Dresden railway is indicated sewaan that Prince Bismarck was notoriously on the lookout Positions that he personally considers trustworthy People value a lot. Such a man is master of Bleichröder and is also the Cöslin Jew Behrend. The latter owned a paper factory in Berlin. He founded in Varzin – –a wood pulp factory and thus joined Prince Bismarck into a contractual and business relationship, which gives the latter a – made beneficial use of the Varzin forests possible. It is unchallenged in the «Reichsglocke» asserted It has been reported that the prince had also provided Behrend with operating capital 8 percent annually borrowed. From the wood pulp of the Varziner Forests were used in the Cöslin factory to produce papers for the German Reichspost, telegraphy and the state railways into dispatches, envelopes, tickets, postcards, etc. The social democratic papers have not failed to point out to point out the «skewed position» in which the Reich Chancellor This was because he had a relationship with the Reichs– administration, albeit indirectly through Behrend, in business: relations. Although Behrend did these state works awarded as minimum bidder in public tender should have received – the Supreme Audit Office would have Otherwise, these transactions would be criticized – but one will must say that the emperor's grace had already even the richly endowed chancellor would have avoided the evil appearance and Behrend's business deal with the Reichs- und State government had to thwart it. Since he did not do so, ~ thus he has supplied the revolutionary party with a nasty weapon.

However, it is claimed that Behrend had the Reich Chancellor
: also managed to obtain papers from the Berlin-Dresden Railway for the Welfenfonds and later for the purchase of the Berlin-Dresden Railway worked to make this possible in such lazy
3 3 papers proved Capital . V. to save, whose management

| – 166 –

tung er and Camphausen – entrusted to Mr. von Bleichröder
This is claimed with even more appearance of credibility than after the rejection of the purchase of the railway by the state as a result of the non-saleability of the Berlin-Dresden Fund – the shares were on ult. August 18, the priorities 36 percent – S. Abel Jr. went bankrupt and as a result of this bankruptcy both the Norddeutsche Paper factory in Cöslin as Mr. Behrend himself in Concurs got into trouble – because S. Abel Jr. is the banker of the Lord Behrend! It is now said that the government wants to give the new Landtage again the proposal already rejected by the old to send it back to at least the Welfenfonds from serious loss, of course at the expense of the Taxpayer!

Note: The «German Reichsglocke» has December 1876 had a very harsh fate, which perhaps will not be easily overcome by it. It is in almost the entire German press as a rejected paper branded as having been recklessly defamatory tailoring, because of an article in which the city court director Reich of Berlin was violently attacked
It was completely ignored that how that article got into the paper.

More than half a year ago, Mr Joachim Gehlsen the responsible editor of the paper – in Following a sentence of five months in prison for Bismarck-Bleichröder-Hanseemann-Insult, not Verslander – and transferred it to Mr. Talchau, However, he retained control of the paper.
On November 14, Mr. Talchau was suddenly arrested without he had been convicted, even accused, until then
In his place came a Mr. Schellenberg, a young . man who had never worked on any newspaper and wanted to learn editing here. He had an unfortunate

Of course, the entire burden of 'Editorial now even more on the shoulders of the Lord
Gehlsen, as the young editor in charge at every

| – 167 –

was still incapable of independent action. On December 6th Mr Gehlsen received the secret message that he should be arrested, namely, so that the witness
They wanted him to give an explanation say whether the Legation Secretary, Mr. Otto
'von Loë, some articles unpleasant to Prince Bismarck the «Reichs-Glocken». Mr. Gehlsen withdrew escaped this arrest by fleeing to Switzerland, and The editorial office of the «Reichs-Glocke» was now in Hands of a young man who is about 6 weeks
long to even deal with the press.
This means, of course, that the paper had actually no editorial staff!

Mr. Schellenberg introduced the next number, so nii it went, from the still existing manuscripts together:
He found the article against Reich already set and received him unsuspectingly. If Mr. Gehlsen had been at the place would be a thorough research into the reliability content preceded the publication of the article
This research has now been omitted. Puzzling
It remains unclear how that article reached the editorial office.
The paper itself speaks about this, as well as about its publication.
task and his fate as follows:

A boy with the intention of destroying our newspaper is piece of the most sophisticated kind was conceived and carried out, With the help of a shameful mystification, it has been possible
seditious accusations against a member of the Berlin
City Court in our newspaper.
The victim of this mystification is severely punished.
This sacrifice is of course not the real Guilty, because the real culprit is not the one who in good faith in the truth of those against a judge charges brought against him, has the courage to publish.
The real culprit is the one who edited into believing that it is «truth», and thus with respect for the integrity of the judiciary, in order to a fact of the utmost importance. |
The real culprit had the intention of damaging the reputation to deal a fatal blow to the «Reichsglocke»

" .

– 168 –

set; it was not an enemy of the. Mr. City Court Director, + gia Rich, because he had to, like every human being, start from the most primitive...

Think that this slander is the city court's fault.

director Reich not harm, but through the inevitable –

Clarification of the facts will only benefit him and him, as an un-guilty persecuted, would gain sympathy, for which he otherwise perhaps would have tried in vain, | |
The anonymous informer is certainly one of them.
Circles that hate the Reichsglocke deadly, or he.
is a paid tool of these circles.

The most characteristic feature of the affair is the fact that,

as has now become clear through the trial against Schellenberg.
has proven the untruth of the accusations against Reich complaints to the authority, where a similar denunciation had already been investigated.
It is not true, as is often claimed, that Schellenberg was arrested after the «Reichsglocke» with the Reich-article had already been published. Schellenberg is.
arrested before the Reichsglocke was issued, and before the
A legal copy was submitted to the police. It is before the
An inquiry was made before the arrest as to whether the person in question
Number is already finished in print. =
| We hope that the prosecutor's zeal will succeed to discover the villainous enemy of the «Reichsglocke» and .
in the interest of truth and the «Reichsglocke», for the welfare to receive the punishment he deserves.
It will then become clear whether this man, like the Lord

Public Prosecutor considered it possible to be a stain on the judicial profession, or the disgrace of another society economic class.

Unfortunately, to our regret, Mr. Gehlsen has left, = for the reason already mentioned in the previous issue, and is therefore not in a position to contribute to the
To contribute to the clarification of the boy's prank. It would help Presence may already be possible to the world.
prove how sophisticated the insidious lie in our editorial office has been brought in. `

We can now demand that all decent
People contribute to the goal that one wanted to achieve namely our honest efforts in the dirt of this to stifle slander is not achieved; that they are know how this matter is being wrongly and perfidiously to condemn those targets for which

which the «Reichsglocke» has always courageously advocated.

The Reichsglocke had no other task, as the mask from the face of all wicked men

m 169 –

to tear, all those who in "covered position the main responsibility for the nameless economic misery of Germany, for the founding fraud, for the «Bleichröderthum» and for the associated social corruption bear, all those who are responsible for ensuring that the transfer procreative fidelity and the moral courage of the German nation in parliaments, the press and civil service in the cult of power perishes.

Not with general sounding phrases, but through con-
In some individual cases we have to open the nation's eyes, and tried to make it clear to her which paths she is walking on,

It is not through the desire for scandal that we have scandalous financial, diplomatic and legal transactions.
Nature, but in the feeling of indignation and carry the awareness that a nation is doomed
when she loses her sense of morality and honor.

Not the «frivolous, useless undermining of the Authority», as we are accused of, is the motive for our attacks, but the exposure of the despicable, lowest Reptile, which in turn harms the authority of that reptilian lity, which out of slavish submission also approves of what is bad, which is silent everywhere, where every independent and a man driven by a sense of justice, loudly and audibly should raise his voice, even at the risk of

to displease authority.

We only wanted to see the authority preserved, which, from fundamental moral views, the demands of the justice, not the needs of personal power to guideline for their actions. ll _ .

We will of course admit that form and tone are not always the deep meaning and the high value of the good matter which we represented; we are also free courageous enough to acknowledge that between wheat sometimes chaff, which was thrown to the wind by a careful editorial team should have been handed over to the press instead. But the things that had to be said could not help but be painful
For it is natural that to the extent that the flattering tones of the official press lulled the nation to sleep

have sung, in which Maasse the sharp sounds of criticism rudely touch the ear of the, as we hope, awakening nation.

stirred. have.

We were therefore not surprised when some shrouded in deep silence when we removed the mask of reptilianity, officioness and correct founding mercilessly removed from her frightened face when the others, conscious of their means of power, accuse us of insults

2s 170. 23

search and treacherous malice without the proof of their
But we find this contemptuous
Indian-like howls of rage of those who have broken the trap into which we have fallen.
lured, use as a vain pretext to go through completely meaningless, cynical statements that far exceed our language's insults for the truths we have told them, now seek revenge.

We find contemptuous the tirades of one, the Pharisaic cloak of virtue around their nakedness beating newspaper about the "eerie figures scurrying past in the background," while this newspaper has every reason to be some of her relationships, such as those of her "silent one" to certain stock companies, to remain silent. – Boring, how always, we find the admonitions of those suffering from the fever of Aera articles and protest declarations healed, improved, to cross-crawled newspaper.

Despicable: we find the hypocritical language of those who say:

«We should have expected that the « Reichsglocke » through their shameless behavior: in all circles, in who still value honor and morality, rejected

We regret that the paper often contains found a way where, out of fear of the moral Dirt it should have stayed away from."

We reply that thousands of readers who have Eh | and morality still applies, the tendency and the action of our did not refuse their consent because we have shown have seen how much moral filth exists where it is most least expected, because we are at beating, countless Examples have shown that honor and morality of the whole Nation is at stake when many of those who Bearers of honour and morality should be committed to this are not sufficiently aware of their responsibility. l

It is not our fault that when we carry the torch of the frank word have shone everywhere where un-honor, immorality, untruth and corruption in the splendor of fame and luxury spreads: that the light
this torch, which we, in order to fulfill our duty, spread, on "dark spots" and on "dirt"
fall.

Those we fight are to blame.

Will the "Reichsglocke" continue to exist or will it die as a result?
a prank, and the obstacles of external coercion.
means perish, it will be 'as a product of our, after remedy demanding conditions, in their historical serious significance be appreciated by all independent thinkers, it will be

A

o

to De

Ä Recognition should not be denied that they are courageous and without any good will, although not always with the right means, has occurred for the material and moral emergency of the nation. £

It is more meritorious in our press conditions, criticism to practice than for 8 reasons Halleluj jah

to sing». |

The mysterious affair remains to admire the speed with which the unfortunate

Schellenberg was sentenced: In five days everything was happened! The young man appeared without warning

theidiger in the dock, and the refutation of the The defamation of Mr. Reich referred only to the third part of the ineriminished article! |

It was claimed in the article, firstly, that

Mr. Reich received money that was given to him to pay for a banquet

This was considered unproven true. Only a small. remainder of the bill had been paid somewhat late. Secondly, it was claimed that Mr Reich was disciplinarily disciplined for inappropriate conduct in and out of office with a reprimand

punished and therefore no longer allowed to take the oath

' President of the Court. The article follows that such a man should not be elected chairman for press and political processes, in which it is mainly mainly on the observation of public decency and

Tacts: This second and for the judicial

Position of Mr. Reich far more important school

The prosecutor has not mentioned the complaint in any and has not been refuted. Since the defendant
'appeared without a defender and in self-defense

was completely incapable, so from his side this important

The matter has not been brought to justice either.

The documents about this catastrophe of the «Reichs-Glocken» are far from closed, and it is to be hoped that one day "a little more light" will be shed on her final hours.

Schwindi's distress and last hope.

We have shown in the previous chapters,
that the large, too «patriotic and efficient houses to be brought in by the “financial powers”, Disconto-Bleichröder, .
– were united until 1872 and were able to deal with the gigantic French carried tarpaulins modelled on French patterns, the personnel and mortgage lending in Germany, to seize control of all its railways and initially
The iron industry was also affected by great competition to make closing companies dependent on them.
We also saw how they moved over the Strousberg
They divided the prey and fought from then on. They hang the state for Welf, Invalid Fortress and Imperial day construction and provincial funds look for bad papers and find
In the midst of the crisis, we are finally able to
to be burdened with unrealizable values that the Bankruptcy is a certain prospect if they do not at least all railway funds in their vaults in government securities

They are therefore hatching, as they have already done with the sovereign wealth funds, invented earlier, the Reichseisenbahn project, «apportiren» it to the government, and the government also responds to it.
the desperate financial situation of these «Reichskellermeister» or «Reich Priority Friends», as they call the «Reichsglocke» now some details have to be added HEISE, be brought.

The Bleichröder group, which includes von Kardorff E

and the well-known, «unorthographic» Jew J. Landau Hearing him proudly say: «I am the money power!», the Posen-Kreuzburg and Weimar-Gera built, the former with 12, the latter 61/, million capital.

Both railways are not yet finished, or at least unprofitable |

and their papers are virtually unsellable; only shares of the
The latter railway has come to the stock exchange and is 58b, so they only have one "done" course. The Financial group is deeply involved in the German Reich and Continental Iron Building Company with 4,000,000 Thaler.
cash capital and a nominal rate of 68 percent,

ee

\

at Königs- und Laurahütte with 9,000, 000 Thaler capital, a Cours 66b; at the St. Gotthard and Romanian Railway very, very deep. Smaller commitments are beyond the public knowledge. These listed tiberian

The wealth of those financiers is far exceeded. If they
'so the state does not at least the German railway funds decreases, they must liquidate. The Guelph Fund alone would not save her, even if she constantly asked him to be her kept at their disposal.

= The business of the Disconto-Gesellschaft can be better overlooked, although their annual reports are as dark as possible and certainly darker than the spirit of the Act. There is a huge upswing to be confirmed, but since 1873 an equally terrible Collapse follows, as can be seen from the course
The Disconto-Commandit shares were at the beginning of the dizziness period, ult. 1868 = 121 Proc, were up to over 350 percent and recorded in the summer of 1876 about 108-118 percent, i.e. lower than before the "upswing".
It is instructive to have an overview of the location of this bank at the end of the last 7 years.

In 1000 thalers each amounted to:

royalty dividend

of the Ver- | = we

The capital of the bank: the owner: ee | Summa: | Proc.
1869 = 10000 ` 162 32 950 91),

1870 = 10.902 265 53 1.300 13

1871 = 13,282 702 140 25,880 24

1872 = 20,000 982 196 4,320 27

1873 == 20,000 519 106 2,800 14

1874 = 20000 370 84 . 2,400 12

1875 = 20.00 138 31 1.400 7

äurchsehn: 16,300 Sa. 3,138 642 16,050 ahb. 151/6

The reserve fund contained ult. 1868 = 847,000 thalers,
'old. 1875 – 4,238,000 thalers, so more than 3,391,000 thalers.
Menn now the state of society in 1876 was still just as solid as ult. 1868, the average ar–

– 114 –

working capital of 16, million thalers in 7 years the enormous sum of 23,321,000 thalers or 3,331,000 annually
Thlr. = 24 percent, which sum is divided among all

The merit of the Business owners, four in number since 1869. Mr. Miquèl has his share from November 1869 until 1873

and then as Chairman of the Board of Directors until spring year 1876. Of course, 4,300,000 thalers flowed from the premium when issuing new shares, ie the shareholders have the entire current reserve fund. |

Currently, the status of the Disconto-Gesellschaft – but a highly questionable one. She has so much confidence lost that the deposits entrusted to it, which ult.

1872 = 5,575,000 Thlr., 1873 == 21,596,000 Thlr., 1874 K– 12,167,000 thalers, in 1875 it was 3,067,000 thalers.

= had fallen. In contrast, the company's own effects

= Account 1872 at 10,186,000. Thlr., 1873 = 15,846,000 Thlr.,

1874 = 11,807,000 Thlr, 1875 = 13,721,000 Thlr.; that Debtors account 1872 = 26,912,000 thalers, 1873 =

31,626,000 thalers, 1874 = 29,702,000 thalers, 1875 = 21,005,000 :

Thlr. With these colossal commitments in effects and

The reserve for debtors has not increased but reduced. It amounted to 7,328,000 thalers in 1872 and 1873 ==

7,813,000 thalers, 1874 = 7,621,000 thalers and was

Losses in 1875 had shrunk to 4,238,000 thalers!

The bank is driving the system of obfuscation and

Obfuscation in their annual reports so bad that they therefore already been denounced to the public prosecutor
It does not specialize the effects and has even since
In 1869, its participation in the Dortmund-Gronau railways Enschede and Marienburg-Mlawka with no word in mentioned in their reports! The commitment of the Disconto-Company at these two railways, whose funds, because unsellable, not traded on the stock exchange at all, should amount to 6-8 million thalers. It also sits on the Provincial Discount Company, very strong in the God-hard and Romanian railway, at the Dortmunder Union

- with 3,300,000 thalers in priorities alone, without including the shares.

ag 1% -

BEN - the ER EN and at very many railways. Finally, they buy, or rather their manager
v. Hansemann, now a Strousberg dominion over the other to «save her mortgage», which she then Experts assure that those gentlemen companies on average 11% of the Debts enter!

You can see that both financial giants are bankrupt if the state does not subsidize them. Now, of course, the state not only no interest in rescuing the two banks

"houses, rather, its leaders should be happy if

Such great financial powers would collapse, which have have means of power that are greater than those of the monarchy.

archen himself. The king can only employ officials if they have passed the required examinations. The salaries are limited, the advancement is through strict ' Standards regulated. A person promoted to a higher salary level
A civil servant who is also a Member of Parliament must

How much greater is the grace which
Mr. von Hansemann can impose on those who
In the three good years 1871–73, the Head of the owner almost 200,000 Thaler annual royalties, on that of the Administrative Council more than a Prussian ministerial salary. And his loyal followers were given a cumu- | lation of lucrative offices. Mr. Miquel was. among others.
also Director or Board Member at Dortmunder

–` Union, Provincial Discount Company, Prussian Central

Boden-Oredit-Gesellschaft, Bochumer Bergwerk, the Romanian Nien, St. Gotthard (Hansemann's deputy), Braun-silent track etc., etc. And this, «correct
_.Man of honour» told Parliament that when he took over his position in the Disconto-Gesellschaft to 6–8000

Thlr. annually, although already in the year of his Entry the owners of the Disconto company together 162,000 thalers received royalties and he took over the position very good. with other lucrative positions.

Mr. Scheele earned less than Miquel, only about 60,000

Thaler annually. The Board of Directors of the Disconto-Gesell-

En

ee MIG ar

society took more money from this sinecure, as Miquel and himself describes, as the entire Prussian state-l ministry in salary! These royalties are open and rightly described as a shameful corruption fund subscribed, against which the reptile fund disappears.

And what opportunity did these boards of directors have to.

profitable speculation on the stock market! They were in the position of players who know all the cards, while the audience only knew their own.

These, equipped with such means of corruption Financiers now brought an official and a member of parliament after one another into their nets. A wise government would have must use all permissible means to stop the corrupt powers

But we also see them today nor strive to support them and even at the expense of the

to subsidize citizens.

There must be one that is mentioned particularly often. Track here ~-

Mention should be made which is rightly disreputable and soon, with good prospects of success, to turn to the state for subsidy by way of purchase or interest-` guarantee. It is the Hannover-Altenbekener Railroad.

It was presented to Count Münster, and to our embassy in London, v. Bennigsen, the President of the House of Representatives House and State Director of Hanover, the national liberal MP Adikes and other gentlemen con-

Despite the commitment not to
To build a general enterprise, these gentlemen entrusted the Bau to a certain Cohn. Strousberg says: «The same has, under the provision of the share subscribers on my part and against -` a compensation cedes his contract to me. It

A considerable founder's royalty of approximately 300,000 thalers. The reports and balance sheets are full of Irregularities and violations of the law and are Subject of a denunciation to the public prosecutor's office.
The railway merged with the also very lazy Magdeburg-Halberstädter. Both are owned by the discount about:

'ring hosted, as the previously given agreement
list of its Board of Directors.

| Strousberg describes this connection of things
as follows:

. According to the regulation of the Romanian e am
I had to rely on the discount bank
To put society on a good footing. The Magdeburg Halberstadt Railway was at that time in intimate relations _ to this institute (ie it was founded by the Disconto-Ge-- company; Scheele is chairman of its board of Councillor) and wanted under all circumstances to Hannover-Altenbekener Bahn in their hands to through them for the Berlin-Lehrter. to achieve certain purposes

I have already mentioned that Hannover - Altenbeken could only earn interest if the concession was granted to the coalfield. However, this was given to a

Entrepreneurial Society, whereby, in addition to Privy Councillor Hartwig, an assessor from the Ministry of Trade served as director. Whether the influence of the Magdeburg Halberstädter and Disconto-Gesellschaft was also used, to paralyze Hannover-Altenbeken, I do not know.
Enough this railway, in its design so unprofitable, could the Halberstadt society incalculable benefit
But the latter did not want to buy her, because she

+ could have the advantage much cheaper, and so arranged

she, the Disconto-Gesellschaft, with me about takeover a sum of priority ordinary shares in negotiation
If I use the same and the Halberstadt railway
I was unable to fight and had to enter into a contract with a heavy heart that in his character almost as immoral

and in the execution I will focus on

According to this contract,
I belong to the Disconto-Gesellschaft and Halberstädter Bahn.
Number of millions of ordinary priority shares of Hannover-Altenbekener Bahn to one, the former course: only reasonable prices and involved the two institutes as Participants in my construction company under the following conditions:

Meyer, founder. 12

– 178 –

conditions: You assume no obligations under Outside and did not have to pay any subsidies if a loss that was also proven in fact because the services were paid for in cash, which I expected were withdrawn with the help of my societies. The winn – I had a positive share of 600,000 thalers as a minimum and was obliged to pay monthly of the à account payments that the railway made to me, a To pay a certain percentage. This is effectively 200,000 thalers were paid. The shares needed the Magdeburg-Halberstadt railway to the Hannover-Altenbekener to conclude a contract (ie to establish the actual shareholders of the Hannover-Altenbekener Bahn on the 2

General Assembly.) . . . It was now to obtain approval to issue bonds (for Hannover-Altenbeken), and since it was assumed, that the Disconto-Gesellschaft and the Magdeburg-Halberstadt Railway the necessary influence

(at the Ministry), a company takeover contract with the latter. The direction --

The latter also became Director here, and members of the Disconto and Halberstädter joined the supervisory board (from Hannover-Altenbeken). The requested privilege was readily granted (the Central and Northern But not the track. Who has had the greatest influence, Mr. Lasker? Perhaps Wagener-Putbus or Miquel-Scheele- | Bennigsen??), and the railway was completed. . Through the withholding of my funds I was forced to Disconto – Society for help, and this

I was granted a loan of 350,000 thalers, because it suited
You don't know that I was embarrassed before I got to know the railway regarding my construction contract, since otherwise their share of profit would be lost and the other purposes would be As security, the discount bank was able to Society various objects and also my demand against Hannover – Altenbeken with the obligation, to release the former as soon as they are in possession of the rest their share of profit of 400,000 thalers.

19 "Be

The Halberstadter was, I believe, also at this Arrangement. My claim was, as far as this is possible, examined on this occasion, and one must have gained the conviction that the same

I transferred all rights to the Dis-account company, with the obligation to be suable for me to become or authorize me to do so. Now every pressure was exerted on me; my societies stood as powerless, although they had all the power to protect the legium should not or could not be granted until I abandoned the construction, and so I was forced to build a Contract, after which I agree to continue construction & Account of the last month's work was a to pay a certain amount, my demands should I later liquidate and for my delivery contracts, those which I mentioned earlier, I was given 400,000 thalers.
paid in cash and these were paid by the Disconto company for himself and Halberstadt as the remainder of the guaranteed profit of 600,000 thalers, which is thus fully paid

Was kept. . . Of course the track never prospered; because although the building company (Hartwig), which had the concession to Westphalia, did not no longer owns (this construction company has failed), then it is not in the interest of the Halberstadt railway, to make Hannover–Altenbeken independent.
Contracts are concluded with neighboring railways which will benefit traffic in the interests of the people of Halberstadt.

Railway will benefit; on every other side the peculiar design of the Hannover–Altenbekener used for the same purpose, and even if the Shares that Halberstadt owns and despite its low

Courses in their balance sheet at par (un-legal! happens to pay dividends for Halberstadt to be able to do so, although there is already a deficit there) nothing should bring, the indirect advantage for Halbercity far outweighs this; the other shareholders at Hannover-But Altenbeken will never get anything.

80 This track was constructed with the help of the Disconto-

a 12*

- 180

Society EE First Cohn takes for himself and his accomplices 300,000 Thir., then Disconto- Halberstadt

600,000 thalers, then the railway traffic is cut off in favor of Halberstadt, and v. Bennigsen remains quietly in the administrative building of Hannover-Altenbeken and says not a word about such fraud!

Both railways were constantly given new concessions and used the money raised for new lines to rebuild old Lines. Magdeburg-Halberstadt can now use the line Magdeburg-Erfurt could not be built due to lack of funds, although the

_ - shares based on this Lit. C. in the amount of 10,000,000

Thir. are issued and the money released from them has disappeared Hannover-Altenbeken can also use the Goslar-Grauhof and Hildesheim-Braunschweig do not build, although the 2,225,000 thalers. priorities which are allocated to these routes have already disappeared. Of these "Luftbahnactien" has even received the precautionary Ministerium Delbrück-Camphausen-(Bismarck?) which was in the inva- Of course, this is characterized by this use of funds for purposes for which they are not are considered as «disloyalty» within the meaning of the criminal law, But despite the notoriety of these crimes, no action is Public Prosecutor against the high-ranking founders, and they continue to play a role in Parliament, yes, ~ Bennigsen even presides over the House of Representatives and Lasker, who first allegedly every fraud, finally less wanted to uncover every railway fraud, and remains his best friend! And such people who will now the railways they themselves plundered for expensive

Sell money to the state and get the corresponding Help make the law as good representatives of the people! How it incidentally, under the proper supervision of the Prussian Han-Minister of Finance Achenbach could happen that the administration of those railways that serve Magdeburg-Erfurt and Goslar-Grauhof embezzled funds for other purposes could, is still dark and will not be sooner

be clarified, as until the Consorteria no longer has the dominated parliaments.

– I

'Current situation and prospects.

The economic situation in Germany is currently an extremely sad and, moreover, desolate one, because neither the government nor any political party so far was able to come up with a reform plan that was not from the outset the class and one-sided interests stamped on it. German exports are increasing from year to year, because, as the most competent and inmost powerful critic, Professor Reuleaux proves, our Industry is cheap but poor and tasteless production and agriculture no longer meets the needs of the population. Added to this is the lack of solidity in the delivery of our exporter, which gives us more and more closes the world market. Imports from other Countries are decreasing here and there, but simply –the reason because our consumption power is also lessens our productive power. A people that If you don't earn anything, you can't spend anything. The prince Bismarck has predicted the decline of our industrial performance in Parliament on the account of the Social Democratic Agitation was wrong. The Social Democrats led the proof that it is precisely the industry of the Social Democrats preferably conquered places in Philadelphia –

I have done the best I can, and that is not falling, since intellectual activity always educates. The devotion to socialist reading and research, this educational Effect of course as good as any other intellectual work, and the person who has come to research and reflection works qualitatively better than the mentally dull one. By the way

The Parisian worker is also and since the thirties years Socialist and. yet all workers of the world
A model of taste and elegant performance.

Minister Camphausen has highlighted the decline of our industry found in too high wages and suggested that may reduce them The Minister of Trade Achenbach has complied with the Council by reducing fiscal wages at railways, mines, etc. He also en ee

The workers were accused of performing less than before.
Professor Nasse has drawn on reports from the Minister of Trade even about mining fiscal operating results to the –

Minister's ignorance of his department and untruth
what the alleged reduction in work performance. Professor A. Wagner has presented the Vice Minister–

President that his claim that too high Wages are to blame for the crisis, at least not knowingly.
scientifically proven, but most likely false, baseless and unsubstantiated accusations against workers by such a high state official but embitter the masses and endanger social peace. The Wages in France are at least as high as in Germany– country, considerably higher in England, and yet we can both countries do not compete. N

It is true that the working population
a great discontent has taken hold, which is not without had no influence on their performance, but this inadequacy Peace is the result of wrong treatment, which were subjected to legislation and entrepreneurs and the responsibility falls largely on a wrong legislation. The discontent of the wrong impoverished middle and lower civil service classes is no less than that of the workers. Modern law environment also bears the greatest blame for the crisis.

As long as the Conservatives were at the helm in Prussia, they proved to be economically unproductive, impotent. The legislation fell short of urgent time requirements. demands. Since the Liberals – from 1866 onwards

E rule has not been reformed, but shaved.

The Lasker-Miquél trade regulations and those of The stock legislation originating from these same gentlemen

destroyed the craft and accelerated the emergence large factories. Craftsmen made more and more

The factory workers were given space. However, they did not wear any technical and moral education nor for safety and comfort of the existence of the factory workers.
from year to year more sloppy workers and more

8

Dissatisfied people, i.e. Social Democrats. Finally, always poorer industrial products. a Industrial production and wholesale trade became more and more dependent on banks, on large capitalists. These are mostly Jews. Jewish factory owners and dealers are becoming more and more numerous. These primarily work on «cheap but bad» performance, and the Honest competitors must pay even more attention to this

Because customs legislation with its weight

tariffs on crude mass production compared to fine, light goods. The excellent cotton industry of Alsace is already deteriorating for this reason.

We can see the harmful influence of Judaism on not control our industry, since the same is already done by the liberal minister, Count Schwerin, who had until then been con-

. convert confessional into non-confessional general statistics

The Jews are looking for their activities everywhere to hide. They will soon say like the ancient Romans:

'When our slaves begin to count us, it is end of our rule.

The too rapid transition to free trade has already created export premiums for many foreign industries, when they visit the German market. Thanks to cheap Water freight and differential tariffs provide manufacturers
England's goods for less freight to the heart of Germany, than Silesian or Rhineland industrialists have to pay.

The French grant their iron exporters bonuses for Export to Germany. On the other hand, we close

Russia and America are dividing their borders by high tariffs, mostly have a prohibitive character, even Austria, France and Italy are securing their markets more against domestic competition than we do. In short, we are suffocating under foreign imports and become impoverished by inhibited exports,

our trade balance is getting worse and worse, already we lose about 1 million thalers to foreign countries every day, and have already received more than the 5 from France Billions sent back across the border to protect our economy.

economic deficit. Our cash is already

– 184 –

Capital for this purpose is insufficient and we think to reduce the deficit by sending out debt securities, cover, like Turkey. The government is already looking for to place loans in Amsterdam! Of course! The tax power Prince Bismarck has a financial program in Reichstag, which proves how he was able to The cause of our calamity is completely unclear. He said, the English people bear their taxes more easily than the German, because it pays almost only indirect taxes. The
The essence of his financial art is to reduce the direct and increase in indirect taxes.

In England, however, the direct ones relate to the indirect taxes like 1: 3%, in Germany like 1 : : This, but this ratio is not what determines taxes in . England is easier to bear than in Germany, but the fact that in England the head of the population more than three times the income and not three times as much tax as in Germany. The Englishman with an average income of 675 M: pays 34 M. tax annually more easily than the German with 231 M. Income 12 M. Tax. Bismarck's position is that of a financial tenant who asks himself through which Tricks he made the people have a certain tax demand so that the people will notice it the least and A statesman in the Colbertian sense would see it as his first task to productive power and thus increase one's income. If this has happened, then, of course, the second priority is Stener mode also has its justification. You have already heard of a government loan for productive purposes in the amount of 100 million marks only a quarter of which was subscribed. What will be the result of the subscription to bonds for coverage of deficits, and we are facing the era of the deficit, despite all the tax tricks. The expenditure of the State, especially for military purposes, grow, the ` National income is decreasing. This is the perennial deficit with the prospect of national bankruptcy. The national wealth is diminishing and the people

288 – 18. – 3

Even ame: S faster the prosperity, a h. the number of small but self-employment-giving assets The founding and the sinful, through the share-law and facilitated by the lax penal law Fraud on the stock exchange has depleted capital, and He lured them out of the Pockets of small, 'independently producing' or 'for the Old people collecting modest pensions in the Arnheims rich Jews and Jewish comrades, The divorce in Reich and poor has happened unnecessarily quickly, class Contrasts have intensified, class hatred has become widespread. In the «morally corrupt France» "Breach of trust" is punished more severely than theft. Miquel has become a millionaire through professional breach of trust He has played an outstanding role in the German Criminal Code and is still chairman of the Reich Justice commission. The goat as gardener! Of course our Code pénal no punishment for breach of trust, otherwise some of the fathers of the same are already in prison. – To the unsatisfaction with their own economic situation often came the feeling of religious oppression. The Social Democrats became more powerful and more radical at the same time. the Catholic . Masses became alarmingly agitated, revolutionary . Evolutions with a religious-social character are becoming more and more probably in case of a foreign conflict, which

A huge army is engaged on the borders. It is getting dark in Germany and the night wants to descend.
From the government: Help is not to be expected as far as the current ministers come into question. Prince Bis-Marck is notoriously knowledgeable about economic matters Nothing. His intervention, because it was unprofessional, only Damage has been done and would only cause more damage, as from his support for iron tariffs without systematic Reform of trade agreements in social-protectionist sense. Delbrück was a fanatic of laissez-faire.
He did not want to revise the Stock Corporation Act before the Commercial law would also be revised, «the matter is also urgent not, because, he said years ago, the crisis in the decline

N

| – 16 – Se
He has – thank God – said goodbye, the _ Crisis – unfortunately not. His successor, Hoffmann, is «still not oriented or rather instructed. Like no Influence the people despite all alleged constitutionalism on the government is clearly evident from the fact that he was given a position leading trade policy Minister whose economic views are a secret niss! The «Reichsglocke» said at his appointment scornfully, Bismarck must first paint it before its color. Unfortunately, we do not yet know whether Bismarck put the brush in Bleichröder's protectionist Green or into Michaelis' free-trade grey.
There is no hope of any of the parties either. The thin The horse of the Princip has long been unsaddled and one has boldly mounted the round horse of interests. The liberal The party has been led by its leaders into the wake of the Great capitals and swims with the course sheet. Your.
The principle is: high course! Now the protectionist tariff promises Party a rise of them, and like the bees from the edge of the shot glass, they fall into the spiritual fluid that Löwe, Berger, Hammacher, Kardorff, Miquel and the rest the «economic and ee», as they – Windthorst's Irony titled.
The protectionists have a central association for the Industry was created, at the head of which v. Kardorff and Reimann, both founders, stand. He wants to protect every industry with 8–10 percent of the value. The association stands by of the iron industrialists, with the General Director Richter von – Bleichröder's Laurahütte at the top. It closes the Central Association because he was denied access Bleichröder to Prince Bismarck the iron tariff lighter hopes to push through tariffs on the entire industry. The craftsmen would benefit from the industrial protection peace, but they also call for protection for the small trade, and that does not suit the big industrialists. Both interest groups believe that the working class is always become more unbridled and demand strict discipline and order, breach of contract penalties.

This again does not serve the workers and They declare that protection or free trade is not an option for them

– indifferent, as the mass of workers is only an object the exploitation by manufacturers, craftsmen and landowners

u be the owner.

The landowners, the core of the agrarians and German | ne may not want to know anything about protective tariffs,
On the other hand, they sympathize with the craftsmen and manufacturers edges regarding the freedom of the workers planned measures. They demand tax relief, Tax reform, transfer of property tax to districts and Communes, introduction of the stock exchange tax – which of course now would not result in much, but in principle of course very is justified.

A lot of work has gone into the creation of this party and yet it is still anything but doubtful.
without and promising.

The agrarians had already started to emerge from the Congress of Farmers. Already in 1869 desires for political assertion of their interests according to the author («Berliner Revue» of 19 February 1869), as the first in the press, the formation of a «political Landowners' Party» and developed the basic principles of a
The program of the same can be found in the 56th and 57th volumes of that journal.
From 21 April 1869 onwards the then von Wegner edited « Deutsche landwirthschaftliche Zeitung», from 1870.
from «Niendorf's Newspaper for Farmers and Landowners», the «Revue». From the Wagener side, which the «Revue» has always served, the idea of a political agrarian party in 1870 through a brochure: «The Future–

partisanly developed in detail from all sides. Author 'worked in 1871 on the creation of the current main organ of the party, the «Deutsche Landes-Zeitung», which represents the representation of the May 15, 1869 «Breslau Programme» set itself the task. It was long Mr. Niendorf soon, the author of the responsible for the political section of the paper and from the new party itself. The political – 18 –

business dealings with the mostly noble landowners
has its hardships if one does not accept the position, which they grant to the inspectors on their estates

There were, however, very important fundamental Disagreements exist. The author recommended in the Blatt der. Agrarier the legal normal working day as basis of a social reform.] | The highly conservative and noble board intervened and declared, «the normal working day will be given the law of supply and demand Demand will always remain a theoretical fiction.

different views, cooperation was impossible.

By smoothly adapting to the social natural habits of his protectors and unconditional

Representing their favorite ideas in the press, Mr. Nien-village the leadership of a country that is largest in terms of number and influence in th

Prussia's respectable party into his hands.

The Agrarians dominate the Congress of Farmers and have through the downright dangerous manners

some leaders of scholars inclined towards conservatism

A. Wagner, von Goltz and others were displaced from the same, so that in their meetings, an opposition no longer

The editorial staff of your paper can make it hardly with the «New Social Democrat», the science economics of the content. not with the smaller

E 'social democratic newspapers in Germany.

The agrarians now form the core of the «German-con-

Conservative Party». Since 1874, there had been rumors that Prince-

Bismarck was fed up and tired of the liberals, he wanted the Formation of a large, conservative party to to rule her from now on. The news received confirmation - through Wagener's dispatch to the Kathedersocialistencon- | Congress of October 1874. Wagener was appointed by the Chancellor and had the author «as an expert»,

as it said in the invitation. Unfortunately, the Prince of the proposals that the 'result of this new were, there was no consequence. 5 Ze Ä

Bismarck's alleged conservative tendencies considered even greater credibility by

r

- 189 -

Mr. von Blanckenburg in the summer of 1874 to the agricultural wanted to make him Minister of Economics, but the latter refused. and that he had presented His Majesty with the entry in February 1875. Establishment of a commission to investigate the situation of agricultural workers, but actually the entire economic : Development of Germany, recommended, on the basis of an contribution by Rodbertus, A. Wagner and the author. In- This request has not been followed either, and In Blanckenburg's place, the Semitic industrialist Friedenthal, member of the free-conservative faction, rural - Economic Minister. At the same time, it was reliably casual that Bismarck was thinking about replacing the «sick» Delbrück by Miquel and Eulenburgs by v. Bennigsen. It has been said that Bismarck really did «con-

want to become "-servative", but are convinced of the impossibility the formation of a strong and yet «compliant» conservative . vative party and made peace with the Liberals rales. It has also been claimed with equal credibility that he had only used Wagener and Blanckenburg as an excuse to to scare the liberals and make them more compliant. The latter He would have succeeded completely.

Finally, in November 1875, the scandalous Association in the allocation of the four state funds for public It was foreseeable that the Welfenfonds would be the subject of an illumination and the history of billions as well. The official «Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung» wrote about these impending revelations In mid-November, the authorities still stated that «all unclean Suspicions about the shiny armor of integrity our heads of state would slide powerlessly. We believe to have demonstrated in the course of this book that the Actions of our statesmen, as far as financial transactions with the banks Leo Delbrück, Bleichröder and Hanse- man in question, only for lack of integrity or in the usual and average business transactions the position of the ministers. Now it is fatal if | a government of a large party in the component on an = BEA e

Lack of integrity or. Average person seriously:
is checked. |

At that time, people close to the author
–sons and he himself a big misunderstanding
First, Count Spee, in the November; negotiations from Berlin with Rome to begin tried to establish relations; the mission of Cardinal Hohenlohe
The benevolent treatment, which was informed persons of the change in the economic – policy in the protectionist–socialist sense
The proposal was made to meet the author with Rodbertus in October at the Academic Socialist Congress, as well as other signs seemed to indicate the prince's intention Bismarck, to get rid of the liberals and to pursue a conservative reform policy, to make peace with the Catholic Church. The best means
The fall of the liberal ministers and the destruction of destruction of the liberal party by the von Lasker against Wagener had successfully tested maneuvers, namely by the people were shown how these people with their money
Of course, people believed at the time that Bismarck on the management of the state funds entirely was innocent.

The « Eisenbahn-Zeitung» now published the revelations about the «invalid state funds»; the Center and the Conservatives made a move against the Government – – but both parties were not serious.
On the other hand, the
by Count Finckenstein and Udo Stollberg with the Prince Bismarck's negotiations finally ended with bypass Wagener's plan was brought to an end: the German-Conservative Party.
appeared, led by nothing but insignificant people, in the Summer 1876 on stage, one third old conservative, by the «Kreuz-Zeitung», the second third agrarian,
by the « Deutsche Landes- Zeitung» and for the third Third Bismarckian, by the «Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung». The program was unclear. At the same time, the «Deutsche Landes-Zeitung», which until then was mostly

. energy-led campaign against the founders, the

Brandenburg Provincial Parliament, which a little months ago Mr Camphausen was so vehement about the occupancy of the Provincial Fund, gave him in a –debate–free session a testimony of honor, the friendship

the «German–Conservative Party» with Prince Bismarck was The tacit agreement was: no unpleasant revelations! Finally, it was announced that beginning of September that Cardinal Hohenlohe had a new, serious attempt to persuade the Pope to make peace

But the «Reichsglocke» said that peace between

State and Church should be built on the ruins of the Invaliden and Welfenfonds are closed, and the continuation of the Peace negotiations can be seen in the rise of the course from Hannover–Altenbeken! What a turn by God's providence! Messrs. Miquèl and Bennigsen invent and stir up the cultural struggle in order to be able to establish

Hannover–Altenbeken, among others; and now should and must

The Culture Struggle must be ended in order to prevent the founding of Miquèl and Bennigsen – including Hannover–Altenbeken

– to save from bankruptcy! |

| The District Administrator of the Posen District Samter, Mr.
von Knobloch, has given the keyword, the new con–

Servative (?) party must above all the principle ` `

have to support Bismarck. Another option is Not from their program. About the economic Reform it contains only ambiguities. The «cross sign» tung» but still stands on the ground of Reaction: How to help the craftsmen, that is so easy to say. Regarding history and nationality economy, the paper develops a hair-raising inconsistency _ knowledge. The old guilds are considered heavenly, peaceful, ready-made institutions, although strike, lockout and

Civil War will mark their history; the craft is to raised – on the basis of free trade, although it flourished on the «protected market»; the normal working day is the foundation of social democratic theory. i while it existed throughout the Middle Ages; the value

– 192

a + thing will be through the service beaten des: it performs, ie a thing has as much value as it has its services has to varying degrees required appraisers, thus no fixed value – and so it goes on, a scribble, certainly up to the standard of the well-known stylistic exercises Karlchen Miesnick's in Kladderadatsch.

If this party, in fact, with the help of the Prince Bismarck in the near future the economic policy of Germany-country, one must of course beware of unpleasant Revelations are certain, but any reform will This coalition will prove incapable, as there is neither knowledge nor principles but only preconceived opinions and interesting inclinations. Of course it is possible ically, a capable and useful core will emerge from the mass of «empty rivets». But for that, you have no clue yet. ¥ |

Let us summarize our party constellation in broad terms

trains on!

The Catholic party, a militant party, must be eliminated.

party ad hoc, which will divide into interest groups, as soon as they have fought for their higher, religious principle Because the principles of party formation are subordinate. Religion is at the top, followed by economic Interest and then nationality.

Apart from the centre, we have two interests classes: haves and have-nots. The latter are no longer ` predominantly indifferent. The thinkers are either migratory or social democratic. The former are divided into two groups, Capital-Liberals and Agrar-Conservervative. The fight between the two is actually that of the guilty landowner against his mortgage and bill of exchange. believer. The success cannot be in doubt. The latter will cut the throat of his debtor and his place: «Ote toi, que je m'y mette! That is

Mr. Niendorf certainly won't change anything. |
| Mr. von Subhastanski on and about small bankruptcies quarrels with his creditor Itzig and calls the state for protection. on. Will do him little good. Subhastirt now.

– 193 –

him away and sends his son as owner to Klein-Bankrupts. Of course, he is now baptized and will then raised to the nobility as «Lord of Hitzig».
His son will then be responsible for the editorial work of the hopefully still flourishing «Kreuz-Zeitung», which he published during his breaks between hunting, dinner and similar serious work, «Christian-lich-conservative». The day laborers, servants and Court-goers on small bankruptcies think: «It is quite no matter whether the gracious Lord von Subhastanski or Itzigsohn lives in the castle. We have to work equally for both long and reward the one gives us no more penny than the other.» These "People of the Sultry Fist" to emigrate. On They say to the neighboring big bankrupt when they among themselves: «If only the time had come when we set fire to the castle, Mr. von Subhastanski next to Itzigson hang on the two doorposts and lead us into the could divide the country as the French did 80 years ago
We probably saw many construction projects there in 1870–71.
But no manor owners have been seen, and it goes into France without them!

We had the intention to negotiate between Mr. von Subhastanski and the workers on small bankruptcies a better relationship, to establish an alliance against Mr. Itzig.
But the bankrupt Baron is still too noble for that. Well, the Pride will probably subside. But today the national liberal correspondence right, if they, the growing Social Democracy, the agitation of the agrarians a suicidal. If the agrarians want and can not to join the mass of the people against big capitalism.
seriously ally themselves, they must ally themselves with the capitalists and unites the masses in submission and Try to keep the job. Itzigsohn will certainly let Mr.
von Subhastanski as his inspector for small bankruptcies.
As far as we are concerned, we see this policy of the agrarians,
backwards and forwards – against capital and labor –
to strike at the same time, with arms folded and.
Meyer, founder. 7 13 i

– 194

in the certain expectation of soon having them on their backs to see fall.

This is the situation of the country, the composition the government and the situation of the parties. Everything is the same desolate. Even more desolate is the physiognomy of society.

Let's start with what you can find in capital cities
Circles with. «Society» par excellence! They began in the past «at the Baron». Today, many Baron von exeludirt, like Baron von Hanseemann, von Bleichröder, for example. Of course, the aristocracy of the Birth plays an outstanding role, alone. in their salons the bourgeois scholar and artist; the daily writers, however, only in exceptional cases; these latter In Berlin, the men are mostly Jews, and to a large extent extremely insignificant phrases. In these really good Salons one would in vain find the founder, the aristocratic Founder's agent and also in vain one of our ministers, with the exception of Eulenburg and the military members of the Cabinet.

In contrast, the founders have ostensibly invested themselves in the They let horses run, give glittering dinners and balls. Strousberg, as the Noble Casino did not want to accept him, a special aristocratic club, in which his aristocratic protégé's had to participate.

The Millionaire Club not only unites the haute Finance, but also Minister Camphausen is a regular guest «at the table of the carp heads» in the same Camphausen, Delbrück, Falk, Achenbach, Hammacher, Miguel and others are the regular guests of Bavené and his brother-in-law Hanseemann. The house of Mr. von Bleichröder may Although not by the officers of the Regiment Garde du corps entered, but enjoys the high honor of being a family members of the Prince-Imperial Chancellor. The Ambassadors and envoys impose the gêne on themselves, Bleichröder to. because they thereby rightly or Injustice – to hope to oblige Prince Bismarck, because Bleichröder is the man «the prince wanted honor" (Esther Chapter 6 Verse 6). Of course, one sees in these salons hardly ever had a visitor of the above-described good salon, and Mr. von Bleichröder and his comrades one likes to measure in these. The behavior of high civil servants with the most notorious founders is often and rightly bitter been criticized, so far without success.

– 1% –

The middle class is exploited by the founders, by the lack of business he becomes more and more impoverished, religious is He is mostly indifferent. He gives himself to a hopeless pessimism. 5

The workers are partly religiously embittered, partly won by the Social Democrats and thus revolutionary minded, for the most part still a dull mass, which, however, here as everywhere and at all times, with breaking unrest with scandal and upheaval.

The society gives the faithful picture of a declining the people! 1

13*

slander,

At the end of our work we ask ourselves whether we have solved the task for which we were asked to attacked. |

We wanted to prove that the corruption of the higher layers of society have progressed far enough to this society became easy prey for the social democracy to do. |

Well, it seems that we have the promised proof. have brought. E

We have shown how since 1848 the traditional regional paternal politics of the Hohenzollerns as an overcome viewpoint. – We have shown that since the beginning of the Bismarck era of the state carriage on the breakneck path with increasing 'the speed of the steam continues to roll towards the abyss. The aim is to increase the productive power of our inhospitable The aspirations of the country are not only in the faded into the background, but was completely abandoned. It is replaced by a system of extraction and robbery of the people by bloodsuckers who curried favor with the highest government authorities, Prince Bismarck and some of « his » ministers, a System of robbery, which is not the result of happy times, and not with the demand for the Nation can be excused for having unavoidable national tasks. It is invented or imitated imitated to the disgusting greed for quick money

107 –

the ruling Jewish and Christian founders. Clique to satisfy.

We have shown that the proven traditions, which the sovereign authority used to
to promote the welfare of the country, has not been replaced are of organs that would have formed from the addition cooperation of all economic forces of the nation. –
Rather, we have shown that the position of the caring authorities have been taken over by the monsters
a completely barbaric egoism of the po gunen financial ellen Consorteria.

This clique had to be liberal to enjoy the light art:
pieces of liberalism – which as a hollow product of shallow Köpfe has long been recognized where he was born – before the stupid eye of the German Michel once again to provoke him to destroy everything that what he had inherited from his ancestors like a Property for all time. |

A clean slate had to be made because the National robbers and slanderers had to eliminate the resistance, which they would have found in the traditions.

Eerie figures have passed before our eyes
drawn, the disgusting rat kings – the discount Bleichröder-Delbrück-Rings – are always and always reappeared as soon as we reached the bottom of the ruin
researched, to which the German people are addicted. |

We saw how the first violent attack that the Discontogesellschaft on the hundred million premium bond undertook to join the then still unbroken resistance of the manor house failed.

Then the Bleichröder ring appears, and after it Having captured the minds of the leading figures, he sets in motion an even more dangerous ransomware company – the Central-Boden-Credit-society – in Scene. All resistance is broken and the means by which he became A are not secret. ;
Then the tumult of the great war resounds!

– 198 –

The people come out from the holy fire and ketit i

home as winners. :

It returns, but it finds itself in the long-awaited i

Homeland the most unholy flames – fanned by those, who shed no blood for the national cause, even if

on her dress shines the badge of honor of the brave.

The dance around the golden calf begins. The Jews make a circle. The biggest ones crowd into the circle.

The worker, the farmer, who has the rich war booty. not a penny of the billions of dollars will fall in the lap. Activities without any ground, without any demonstrable purpose,
in such enormous numbers that a dictionary would be incomprehensible. | words must be invented to express the only, almost word that fits all: «General Robbery Acts-society" over and over again.

The German fraud will soon cross borders of the Reich. In Romania, in the Gotthard tunnel com-he proclaims the German name. In Philadelphia, he was caught red-handed in the act of disgusting incompetence.

He cheats the invalids out of their peculium.
Fortification funds intended for the protection of our borders will
The depot, which was a displaced royal family has been forced to leave in our hands, is entrusted to a founder, his revenues become used for an unfair purpose, the Capitalstock itself perceives probably diminished in its existence.

The mere idea that it should be returned,
encounters harsh defense.

The scorn with which the proposal of the former subjects of the exiled king is answered, poorly concealed the anxieties of the previous administrators of the entrusted Good. 5

The peace of the confessions is disturbed.

The brutal, arrogant term «Cultur-Kampf» is to the slogan, as if liberalism was the undoubted claim the privilege of culture for themselves as if it were patriotic, moral to take part in a fight between citizens of the same country. That the «Cultur-Kampf» as Prince Bismarck leads or leads it

These patriots don't care whether a war will lead to civil war.

Then comes the noise! |

The state should help. To get rid of the devalued papers
To make it socially acceptable and suitable for storage again, the Reichs-Whether we have canals, whether we have the whether we build the necessary railways, whether we build roads, whether Farmers should be able to use the raw material of to produce the first necessities of life: All this is the samevalid. If only the founding elite does not fail. May some of the “little ones” also perish. But the matadors should not be touched. The prosecutor punishes the attack double, which is directed against the «high social position».
The hypothesis that the “high social position” is not climbed on straight paths is punishable.

All concepts have become confused. The old and alone correct idea that the noble man in his Judgments about decent and indecent never from behind view of money, is becoming more and more important every day.
thrown into the junk room of prejudices. Raw pleasures, for whose sake no man will take even one step should deviate from his straight path, dukes,
Princes, citizens, merchants into slaves.

And yet the “culture” you speak of has nothing won!
=- You are barbarians like before! Flat, send half-educated Products of the worst newspaper literature. «You learn.
much in Germany and knows little” – sneers a Strous-berg! What you call education and culture, you have it.
for a month on the Boulevard des Italiens.
which you think is France, and you hékert. the follies of the boulevard: with corner-standing
Accent under the Linden trees. |

But among you there is a daily growing army by bitter proletarians who, in silence and with Patience, but with dogged determination after the

- 200 -

Life and the little bit of gold tinsel that you |

what is left.

Only in the army is there still moral support. The «Lieutenantnant» is the bearer of the principles on which the building of society rests. He alone is the selfless

Devotion to the whole is still capable of what the human
to the master of himself and the tamer of his wild:

fellow human beings.

But it is also difficult for him to find his basic to remain true to his principles. It is nice to see him societies of the ennobled founder, who –

the civilian lieutenant from the list of invitees
His general is no longer allowed to visit him a disreputable founders' club, in which the Aristocrat sits next to the jobber. Meanwhile he also remains without orders from the circle into which he did not enter.
heard.

But who is to blame?

We are not afraid to say it: The man is Guilt: never once used his immense power needed to stop this destruction. Whoever thus imprinting the stamp of his being on his time and to impose the claim, like Prince Bismarck,

He is responsible for the shape of the sign, which our society carries on its forehead.

When a man of such authority through his body sheet an ex-revolutionary declared incapable of satisfaction.

proclaimed leader of "his" party and placed him in his salon when he sees the greediest and shakes hands with Europe's most notorious founder and in his house, receives him as a daily guest, then it is

Of course, the idolaters of all classes who opposed him see how he clears his throat and how he spits, to his credit expect to have intimate relationships with the head of the ring
No wonder that court nobility, court marshals, ceremonies master of the palace and ladies-in-waiting entrusted him with their savings.
trust and sit at his table without being afraid of their savings to be safe, and that Parliament can branded coward, to whom the powerful Chancellor probably wants!

– 201 –

There is no minister of any European State that is in such friendly relations with a .. Upstart of the money ostentation, as Prince Bismarck to his house Jew Bleichröder.

One would be wrong to say that our age, our country is so rotten and corrupt, like the France of Louis XV. But the
We want to say, and we want to stand up for this, that the Corruption has reached unprecedented dimensions in Germany since the Bismarck system ruled there.

This system is responsible for the German Nation has not shown itself worthy of the great destinies, to which they belonged after the wars of 1866 and 1870.
seemed to call.

The fortunate wars which Kaiser Wilhelm and led by his generals are not the beginning of a new cultural era, but the end of the Christian civilisation lization, whose bearers we thought we were. The system, which weighs on us like a nightmare, carries from Christianity no trace. Everywhere only one God, before whom everything bows and all: God Mammon and his filthy priests;

Everyone except the army and the warlord! |

Sadowa and Sedan are not highlights of a higher, continuing movement, but the result of the Emperor with fatherly care ordered military Excellence.

The German Empire in its present form is not – the total expression of all the slumbering in the nation Forces. Rather, these are suppressed and Development hindered by the terrible pressure exerted by the Capitalism exerts on us, a capitalist rule that has its Its creation is solely due to the fact that Prince Bismarck lent her his mighty arm. And whoever opposes rebels is an enemy of the empire and will be ostracized and crushed.

Under the protection of this arm she thrives and blooms, the

– 202 –

Money tyranny, and the Jewish-Christian fraud, and they again produce these disgusting, varnished, tasteless Barbarism, which on its flat feet the staffage of Mühlendamm through the streets of our big cities and, where abroad, alongside the representatives less brilliantly managed nations than competitors dares to pose is contemptuously rejected.

It can be proven that Prince Bismarck was responsible responsibility for this outrageous mismanagement is not his shoulders onto other shoulders. or
He had to do it if he wanted to do it or could, as the plundering of those funds for public Cognition came, in which the bloody honorary salary of our
The brave should have rested safely as in a holy chest,
He was responsible for the protection and protection of this holy box, and when it came out that he had been touched, the Prince did not strike the looters with the kick of his heavy foot into the deserved abyss of shame and punishment down, but he has raised him up against the few poor men who had the courage to face the predators
to want to snatch the prey; he has raised this foot, and who knows how soon he will trample on those who have nothing to oppose him, like clean hands and a heart full of honour and love of country. Since he does not .
wanted to let go of those who plundered what was not his, what was ours, we must turn away from him.

He has used his power to such a ruthless used that we are in a state of service
lism, which has no analogy in the evilized world and finds only one parallel in history; and even this only parallel is – a fable, the fable of Gessler's Hut! | |

A Berlin court declares the prince to be the Man who is at the head of the state, a leaflet of the alleged conservatives told that the prince Minister dismisses, and yet he is not our monarch!

The German press is silent about him, where it does not flatter smile, because criticism is dangerous and the state

– 203 –

lawyer successfully argues in court that the Prince, because more than an average person, already hypo- could be insulted theoretically.

| We are already an incomprehensible spectacle to the
In America they write: «The current German

Government is one of the most absolute that the world has ever

There have been autocracies, but there has never been such a thorough and systematic rule of the state over the individual. The German Reich is the embodiment permeation of the paternalism system. The state is everything, the Citizens nothing. It is the principle of universal responsibility The political ignorance of the people is almost unbelievable. The people are getting used to the system and even loves it at the expense of personal Freedom".

The «state», the «empire», the «government», all these Terms, they are always only the description of a grip, of the «secular man Bismarck»!

Anyone who takes everything for themselves is also responsible for Everything! The glory that everyone has won, he has for himself alone – harvested. Quod multorum fuit unus habet. – The Rich thum, which belongs to Allen, his friends, the founders, | distributed. With angry force he demands laws which to protect the authority, and the – – Parliament be- consents to laws by forgetting whose authority it protects whose sins it approves, which comes from the authority Even the laws of neighboring countries he throws, demands its tightening and presses the bite Mark stamp in the Code pénal of the Belgians. |

It is a terrible regime under which we live. His
But the name is Bismarck!

Not without a compassionate smile can we look at the naive Striving of the weak, so-called conservatives to see those who strive to bring the holder of such power into the nets of their meaningless programs.

He will catch you, you weaklings!

On your neck he will place his heavy foot sit down and do not let you get up again until your

– 204 – 2

humble face the traces of the stamp of his soles |
wears! | E
For us the question is different. |

We now know for sure that Prince Bis-Marck, the return to healthier conditions is no longer possible
ly. In vain have his oldest friends, friends.
warned him in his youth and his prime, asked him
sought to separate from people whose breath. polluted, which only his strong hand before the prosecutor laboriously
He has wasted the time of grace.
have it painted.

We know that if the government of the country
other hands since 1871, if simple, plain men sat in the king's council not one of the horrific foundations that would exist that would desecrate the price list of the Berlin Stock Exchange.
We know that the "Culturkampf" the German nation not to fragment, not to hide the need in palaces and huts
As long as Prince Bismarck alone powerful idol remains, the German nation will be the Reich, the empire will be sacrificed to the Chancellor, and the Chancellor – belongs to the Jews and founders. Therefore, there is our policy only has a fixed course of action:

Elimination of the current system and its operator.

– ee ee RÜ-og— Rfi. and Bu tee 333333333333

Printed by Oskar Leiner in Leipzig.

state (Library
' bamberg

v – 2 re

HE + SENSE +
— myr teta Aa *

— 2 N
L

of woe

vp,
— * '

Ae) if Ps

" Kis

German → English ▼

Full text of " Alhwardt, Perrot "

See other formats

The
desperate struggle
the

Aryan peoples with Judaism.

FERS

Stapr-Biruirung |
FRANKFURT a» MAIN |

The

desperate struggle

the

Aryan peoples with Judaism,

Pa . aa as

From

Hermann Ahlwardt
Rector in Berlin.

Never reach into a wasps nest,
But when you grasp, grasp firmly.

Berlin 1890.

S

Publisher of F. Grobhäufner.

CITY T- BIBLIO THER |
: FRANKFURT au MAN §

1

2

3. Jew and farmer to ae .

4. Jew and craftsman aana aaa

5. Sude and Mrbetter ea Be RS} Ge eke we

6. Jew and official. 2.22: Cm

7. Sacrifice of the Mother

8. Jew and small business owner. . Ö HDV Kn

9. Jew and wholesale . ;ituẽ h -·· te ee ee

10. Jew, nobility and officer .. [0 (ii». aa aa a aa

11. The Jew and the Princes and Powers

12. The Jew in Justice, Medicine, Art and Science.

S . sends n . ae ds

15

16

47th minute

18th

19th

20th

22nd

28th

24th

table of contents.

Cinleitung ee ok ere Ä be oe ee ee

The German WolfSharafter.. mm·ööq(!KemÄn: ..

The Jew and the Social Question tž! ä aa

. The Jew in the community service.... 2... 22.2...

The Jew and the Higher School Mefen eae

The Jew and the Elementary School

judgments of important men

closing remarks

a E "% c

The Semitic folk character n ·E· UBU m

= * i = = = = = m ù ë E , , , , , =

The Jew and the Press c
The Jew and Public Morality ew |
21 The Rude alg Patriot oo oo ra ans

The Jew in France, Russia 2... aaa aaa

The path to self-liberation

[illegible]

IY Hae 0I po

we hI |
* 72

Introduction.

According to Schopenhauer, history is not a science, because it lacks the most necessary preconditions, but it is much more, namely the same for the whole human race, what reason is for the individual. Its value is therefore for humanity immeasurably, if it succeeds in its teachings, which are drawn from a wealth of details, and then to heed them.

But I am firmly convinced that our opposition—current historians and philosophers of history in their Research is largely based on false assumptions, therefore also come to wrong conclusions.

The later posterity will define the present historical period as the time of the struggle between the Indo-European original inhabitants

Europe and the Semite invaders, or, if they Struggle should be based on principles other than the struggle of of idealism with the Semitic realism of De-draw.

À However, this fight is winding up, Toward it of the will the invading Semites, for many centuries in
But in terms of cruelty, this fight is not
The only one equal. Those killed by the Semitic victors Germanic tribes sink after a hard struggle to death without glory into a silent, often longed-for grave. No poet describes their suffering, no Historians pay tribute to their steadfastness, and yet
Many of them fought more bravely than the heroes of whom what modern war history has to say.

Those historical facts which are currently considered the cardinal points are brought to the fore, e.g. the thousand-year-long struggles of the West Franks and East Franks for the Lothar's legacy with its battles at Roßbach, Jena, Leipzig,
Sedan will only be regarded as an interesting Intermediate pieces that separate the eye from the actual, much like a revolving drama. The catbrawls of 1848, the constitutional struggles in Prussia from 1861 to 1866, the so-called Kulturkampf of 1871–1878 are only are considered as spectacle pieces. In contrast, historical

"

Processes that are now only in the second or third line, e.g. the Elevation of the Jewess Esther to the status of Royal Beloved by the King Casimir of Poland, which enabled the Jews to centuries in Poland, as well as the partition of Poland.
by the three neighboring powers, as this country by the.
Judaism was ripe for destruction, and in the future:
the division of Prussia, Austria and Russia by the Polish.
Jews will be called the rule of Cremieux and Gambetta in.
France, the Berlin Congress with its extradition of Romania.
to his Jewish oppressors, the Jewish emancipation of 1848, Lasker's defection from the Progressive Party in 1866 and.
his transition to the government camp in order to gain control of the government.
German craftsmen to let their people be slaughtered, for acquired greater significance for later historians.

The fight is as old as history itself.

Earlier, during the battles for the Mediterranean Sea and.
the coastal countries of the same was often the decision of the weapons, which ultimately turned out unfavorably for the Semites.
Since then, that branch of the Semitic peoples which has remained with them.
one's own tribesman despises and detests him.
referred to as Hebrews, Israelites or Jews, the fight in quite.

silent, insidious moment. He has smuggled into all Aryan peoples, almost everywhere influencing the clutch is won, sucks the peoples dry and makes them then become mindless slaves. The Jewish tribe with the most wonderful gifts, a significant one. understanding, tireless energy and high community spirit. and has thereby achieved its goal of the complete subjugation of the Peoples who, in unfortunate delusion, granted him hospitality, taft reached. If the last hour does not bring salvation, then the femitic rule became unconditional.

How it became possible 15 that a numerous, warlike and hard-working, freedom-loving and proud tribe another, far less numerous, unwarlike and unprofessional ductive tribe, I will in the following investigate.

That I bring my own experiences to the forefront basic, requires some explanatory remarks. On and for themselves they are as indifferent to the whole as the experiences of one person can only be. lack them, especially since many unpleasant circumstances exist in them occur, all interesting. Nevertheless, I am writing this article experiences a high value because they are typical of what thousands have already met and thousands will still meet. My weakness, a lot of friends beyond my strength Unfortunately, it is a common habit among our people to support them, will not be eradicated among our descendants. Likewise, is the clever use of this weakness by the Hebrews. Same Cause, same effect! Therefore, my life story is quite not as insignificant as it seems. That my person

– VII –

This representation does not win, of course, but with the goal that I have set for myself, also absolutely the same guilt.

My representations are calculated only for the general public, and if these should help to close the eyes of the open and to a unanimous and ruthless fight with all legal means against the femiftic oppressors, Thus the highest goal of my life has been achieved.

The first two chapters, which are written by the German and femific national character, are by no means determined to be a exhaustive presentation. They are only intended to provide the basis form a basis on which the following can be built.

Only the final chapters summarize the final result.

The end result can, according to the nature of history, only a product of many details.

I cannot therefore avoid doing many actions living, specifically designated persons who, at least in the eyes of my own tribe, impossible I am, however, far from being able to to describe the named persons as special villains and to punish them particularly by mentioning their names. it is simply a matter of choosing from a wealth of facts to gain leading foundations that will serve the German people for later Decisions can serve as a guideline for his actions. Every Punishing individual people is far from my mind.

And now go out, my book, delight my fellow fighters, inspire the lukewarm and show all German men who are now in unfortunate delusion fight for the femitic oppressors, what inheritance they leave to their own children!

The author.

The German national character.

The German people belong to the great Aryan or Indo-Ermanian tribe. The same has his homeland true= fupon in the highlands of Iran and from there on the one hand over the Indian subcontinent, on the other hand over almost all of Europe However, there are also outstanding scholars who seek its home in Nordic countries, thus a spread from north to south. The Greeks, Romans, Gauls, Germanic and Slavic peoples are branches of the great Aryan peoples= family. The word "Aryan" is related to the Greek Word dgısrör, "the best". In fact, this tribe is in Consequence of his physical and mental constitution at the top of the human race. Do the individual peoples differ this tribe also diverse, so they have their main characteristics= fpöfe together. We turn to the purpose of this essay, to the German national character. To achieve the same To understand, we must visualize the location in which in which the German people spent their youth. It is the Jungle with all its dangers. Nowhere more than here could a strong and defiant gender will develop. The eternal closeness the danger and the constant readiness to fight for life and Death awakened bold and courageous spirit, and these have the advantages passed on to their offspring. Fear of external dangers has always been alien to the German national character. A popular saying of the modern times therefore describes a deed= thing that has been in constant validity for thousands of years. The solemn silence of the forest led the Germans to metaphysical

Daydreams in which he likes to forget the little daily worries and accustomed to not seeing material existence as the
The reality was therefore not always the necessary attention. What greatness, what Depth of feeling shines out to us from the Germanic doctrine of the gods, which had been dreamed of in the dark forests! The gods of all peoples reflect the innermost national character best again. As a man is, so is his God!

Military honour, loyalty, both of a friend and of a man, and
They valued fidelity to their spouse more than life.
They held on to the existing facilities with iron energy.

1

– 2 –

The Germans later took a liking to the “red” gold and strove to possess it, not out of greed, but out of Ife the one on the shiny shimmer. In ah jener friends gave
I, the German, am very fond of the pure, untroubled enjoyment of life, although almost always excessive drinking is
The fresh desire for the dangerous car only led him too often to the most questionable games of chance, in which often house and Lost his farm, wife and child and the freedom he valued above all else gins. Their law was based on popular customs. Scholar They therefore did not need judges. They held on to their opinion to the point of sacrificing her life. The woman took a fuper high position than among any other people in the ancient world. Their Advice was often decisive. Marriage was sacred.
In sexual matters the greatest modesty prevailed.

In forests, however, the horizon is very limited, which
It is obvious that it is necessary to observe more closely.
climbed to the top of a tree, then has a much greater field of vision, but the lower branches now almost completely obscure the earth from which he came. Thousands of years have passed since then, and what events have taken place during this time! The Germans rose to the highest peak of glory, world empires sank into the dust before them, and many German tribes went in their own conquests. A new religion was brought to them, who in their Balder cult had such a beautiful an= point of contact. They rose and fell over the years= hundreds, a new law replaced their old popular law.
The culture of the ancient Greeks and Romans was revealed to them and fulfilled fhe with new ideas. Their disunity made them a plaything of the peoples, until in the seventeenth century they almost completely worn out.

Two centuries were needed to distinguish them from the rest,

to ensure that rapidly flourishing peoples regain a respected position.
Taught by experience, they are now striving upwards again with great power.
What a change over the millennia! And yet! See
We deviate from the external changes of culture, we enter into a to their innermost being, we find the ancient Germans fully come back. The millennia with all their changes have the core of her character with all its good and bad
He was able to change little on either side. His pieces .
from external dangers, his bravery in war, even a white comfort, life, property and blood in the fresh, cheerful carriage is still present in German today. His He still retains a penchant for metaphysical daydreaming. Even the subordinate natures feel inclination to decide how and where human existence comes from, about the ultimate reasons for everything Beings. Hence the terrible seriousness in treating all religious questions. The regrettable tendency towards dangerous Gambling has remained, as has the tendency to play in merry company society to free oneself from all earthly worries, whereby even now the drink is often over-indulged.

he

--

wan

—

*

am it m . mnp *
ee ee -- an im
Et hr. = aE Bee la AA
E *. PE N ia Ft

a 7 Fr ET, ri
een ee ee Wa ee
J ne T
Sy Ca ate eee ee ee te pie he ea: en ai ce fr TN 4 ee al * r
— * E * *

*
— 5 —

Only one German could speak:
I will say to the moment:

Stay a while! You are jo fhon! –
Then you may put me in chains,
Then I will gladly perish!

The German is more, than any other, the human being of the eyes freed from all conditions of material existence= view. This is, on the one hand, the source of his greatest happiness, on the other hand= the reason for his severest suffering.

Goethe saw this most clearly, as a true master by no means block this source of purest happiness, but the 75 linked later suffering. He called his Volke to:

: Day's work! Evening guests!

Hard weeks; happy holidays!
Be your future magic word.

Of course, Mephistopheles has also made great progress since then made! Insidious intrigues are still considered by Germans today as something repulsive. His trustfulness and his tendency to make the greatest sacrifices for his friends, despite the fworst experiences cannot be eradicated. He is in the change of all times remained an idealist. What was said above about the perspective of the
The old Germans' belief in practical matters is still valid today.
Everyone pays careful attention to what is happening in their immediate vicinity, and over these even the lowest standing has, as Stein has already surprised, often a wonderfully healthy judgment.
Furthermore, even the most educated circles of people often lack calm, probing insight, and a skillful agitator who knows how to
To talk sensibly about the things of one's immediate environment can the Germans with the help of analogy about distant things, e.g. about political issues, they can lead to the most incredible views.

Finally, the German scholars, who, in order to refer to the Old German Wald= to return to life, climbed to the top of a tree, have an incredibly large overview and are considered as lights of science throughout the world, but they

the view of the ground from which they emerged is again missing.
Nowhere in the world are scholars further away from popular life, than in Germany. Anyone who considers what has been said so far,
He will fully understand German particularism, plays into the smallest relationships and at all times so drove many Germans into the camp of their enemies. In this pPoints, foreign countries have always judged the Germans correctly and took its measures accordingly.

| What the German means as a politician is something we have Robert Hamerling in his great joke play "Teut" a frightening true picture before our eyes, and it would be desirable that every German man who is involved in politics must first would be reflected here. The session in the Teutoburg Forest, which deals with the question of the German Reich=

1*

—

j 1

colors. Of course, agreement cannot be reached, and the
The outvoted minority always leaves the assembly in protest collection, or is thrown out with derisive laughter, until only only one, the final winner, remains, but he has the last question cannot be agreed with oneself.

} And I will not bear this conflict any longer!

I am a German, and as long as I live |

I will carry the curse of conflict with me.

Because this problem, I do not solve it, whether my Thought warhorse I also whip bloodily —

(He pulls a small rope out of his pocket.)

At that big, beautiful oak tree over there.

I hang myself. Farewell, golden light!

The last German dies of inner conflict! —

(He hangs himself on the nearest oak tree.)

But the Germans do not lack political understanding in any White. The precious package that contained it is our Forefather Teut during his immigration several thousand years ago only stolen and now found again. Before=

Currently only a few have a share in the treasure, but it is to be hoped that it will again become common property of the entire German people. Then the time will come of which it is said: P

And it will be on the German Mefen
Enchant the world once again!

The question arises: How is it possible that the Germans
despite their political ignorance, they did not perish

and in all millennia the attacks of their opponents, which this lack of understanding served as the basis for their undertakings, fuftally qu naught? However, the German is for all the things further away are difficult to warm, and if it is warmed, fo is the path from feeling to thought and from thought to Indeed, it is very long. But once this path has been completed, There is a fire that is difficult to extinguish. Was the old Germans once decided to fight to the death for their fatherland, he burned, if necessary, house and courtyard, in an emergency also his forests, and around him it became light and clear.

The furor Teutonicus awoke in all its fearsomeness, and he did not rest until his enemies were crushed to his feet. The furia Francese, says Carlyle, is an easy to igniting fire, and you can quickly make a cup of coffee while cooking; the furor Teutonicus is like anthracite, very difficult to set on fire – but then you can burn iron with it melt. | |

It is difficult for me to conclude this chapter with such brief hints to close, but further explanations would distract me from my actual purpose. I ask the reader, however, To take note of the fourteenth of Fichte's "Speeches to the German nation" and what Richard Wagner said about "German" and hunted the "German spirit". |

5

All this can be found in the materials to a Catechism of Social Reform, Berlin, Aktiengesellschaft "Pioneer", Bernburgerstr. 13.

The Semitic national character.

The Semitic tribes have their homeland in Mesopotamia. These include the Assyrians, the Babylonians, the Phoenicians, the Arabs and as the most subordinate of all the Jews, who the latter has always been despised by their fellow tribesmen Our character description refers to the latter alone. While the German tribe lived in dark forests femitically grew up in a completely different surroundings. Treeless deserts and endless grasslands formed fhis homeland. He could freely look in all directions, grasp the near and the far with equal sharpness. The outward– fighting into the distance was even more necessary to see approaching

 To discover enemies in time, and this clarity of vision has
 The Jews have preserved this to this day. As far as their own Advantage, they are undoubtedly superior to the German in terms of broad perspective superior. The German could at any moment in his forests be attacked by a wild animal or hidden enemies.
 Boldness, perhaps bold attack alone could save him, courageous became his mind. The Hebrew saw his enemy in the distance Distance and could find a way to overcome him or to escape. Cunning, deceit and aversion to open honest fight are the basic features of his character
 His nomadic life in the desert gave him the peculiar
 He did not need to work the field and to win profits from him by the sweat of his brow.
 He looked after his cattle or left this work to his servants and was mainly engaged in the cattle trade, the must have been profitable enough, since Abraham gave his servant
 Eliezer would not have given so many golden and silver gifts for the bride his son. Disgust for any productive Work has remained a characteristic feature of the Jews until today. They leave the creation of values to others, but these values know few with admirable
 To bring cleverness into their possession. In pursuit of this goal
 It cannot be denied that they are very active and tireless.
 They understand the high art of getting the cheapest possible products from the producers to buy, or rather to buy his products without any consideration and sell it to the consumer at the highest possible price.
 The former does not receive the appropriate wage for his work and impoverished, the latter gives more for the goods than they are worth and, becomes impoverished too. Every nation in which the Jews are more numerous must therefore, by natural necessity, first of all be in poverty, then into Jewish dependence, finally into Jewish servitude

—

—püb

— 6 —

fall, which is important in the known sexual inclinations of the Judaism, after it has been physically enervated, is also morally spoiled and then an easy prey (this not yet, or not yet so fully Jewified, opponent. That is the course of history from the beginning to this day. The Jews form to talk to their greatest defender Mommien, a ferment of national decomposition. | :
 We said in the previous chapter: As one eats, so is God.
 To fully appreciate the femific character, we must

Ancestors, first in and of themselves, then in the context-relationship with their God. Abraham stood by his God in the Relationship of giving and taking, usually it is used for all booty, as Jacob later did, gave 10 percent. The latter However, she only promised. Abraham always had his advantage at the top, and to this he assigned his husbandly and fatherly love In Egypt he passed off his wife as his sister and left it to the king to benefit from it. Who knows, How long this relationship would have lasted if the King of Egypt had not been caused by "secret plagues" to A second time Abraham tried this highly profitable business with the Philistine king Abimelech, but this business, which also brought rich profits, insofar as favorable than the beautiful Sarah, who has patiently waited for everything had endured, despite her age, of great love for this man was seized and fih was not inclined to do this relationship on command. Verses 16, 17 and 18 in 20th chapter of Genesis contains much more than the harmless reader suspects. Sarah finally separated herself from Abraham and entrusted her life in Hebron, while Abraham in the grove of Mamre, after he had acquired enough riches, tajt degenerated into a bon vivant, as Chapter 25 proves. The Old Testament always gives its reader new riddles The person who has penetrated the most deeply into this is H. Haug, Stuttgart, who in his book "The Old Testament" astonishing truths Unfortunately, the work is immediately after printing disappeared in an incomprehensible way, and only a single erem-plar, which escaped general destruction, chance has into my possession. I remember these learned and high-interesting research for your own work. But We return to Abraham. With his maid Hagar, who although he did not belong to his tribe, he had fathered a child, and with the knowledge and consent of his wife. Leading for this The idea was that with her infertility and her higher Abraham's entire possessions fell into foreign hands would come; it would therefore be better that he should produce heirs, even if she was not the mother. But when she unexpectedly her stay in the Philistine country she became a mother herself, fich AE vou to commit an action that is in the There is no equal in the whole history of the world. He chased away the u growing boy, so that he would not be with Sarah's son heir, along with his mother, of the house and farm. He, who has so many thousands of cattle, sheep and camels, as well as many servants and maids, gave to this his child, which he had with a woman from another tribe, nothing to do with some food and pushed him and his mother out into the desert, where, according to human calculation, they are a safe had to die of starvation. i

It will be the subject of later investigation whether Diele horrible character trait of Abraham even now in his descendants can be found.

Isaac did the same to his beloved wife as he did to his Father, but he, who bore no resemblance to Abraham, was probably less to blame for this than the speculative Rebecka.

Jacob, whom we rightly call Abraham the Great knew only one thing: to get rich as quickly as possible, and this He subordinated everything to these points of view. He cleverly used the Opportunity to help his tired and hungry brother, the harm= loose and trusting Esau, by granting a small, momentary enjoyment of great, highly significant rights, He also later betrayed his father in his own interest. Uncle and later father-in-law, who took him, the homeless refugee compassionately received into his house, he later cheated so much, that he became richer than him. He would have made him completely poor made if he had not been given reason to fear. After his * he bought a piece of land near Sichem, where he settled. Here he and his sons celebrated his harmlessly trusting guests a crime that in fo horribly, even the worst bands of robbers have never been came to mind. The feat of Abraham in Egypt and He could not do this with Abimelech because Leah did not have the necessary Physical stimuli were not present, but Rahel's current condition was made such an attempt impossible. Then Dina went, his daughter, to see the daughters () of the country, what all The harmless Sichem, the son of King, let himself be caught, and he slept with her. In order to make amends for his wrong To make her happy, he wanted to marry her and give her rich gifts. But Jacob's sons cunningly demanded that he first meet with his The whole people had to be circumcised. The harmless, peaceful The inhabitants agreed to everything, and the sons of Jacob led the Circumcision was carried out very thoroughly. When all the men were sick and were defenseless, they were all defeated by the sons of Jacob murdered. Let the Bible continue to speak.

ö Genesis, chapter 34, verse 26.

And they killed Hamor and his son Shechem with the edge of the sword and took their sister Dina from the house of Shechem and went away.

27. Then the sons of Jacob came upon the slain, and pean perten the city, because they had killed their sister:

changes.

28. And they took their flocks, their herds, their cattle, and their city and in the field.

29. And they took all their possessions, all their children and their wives captured and plundered everything that was in the Dauser.

Rachel herself was so horrified that she was child died. But Jacob now had every reason to leave the area to leave as quickly as possible and to give his new name Israel now officially in order to mislead the persecutors.

The Jewish people reached the height of their development Character in Joseph. The wonderful psychological truth that shines forth from the entire Old Testament and this book in Reality makes the book of books, can be seen in his person one of the best ways to prove it.

He was conceived by Jacob at a time when he needed his cunning to get hold of his father-in-law's possessions The beloved Rachel, the confidante of his soul, was of course, initiated into all the tricks. Her son Joseph was also a worthy product of their union. On his youth= history, also on his relationship with the wife Potiphar I will not go into this, especially since there are two different statements about it. He was appointed to an important state office, and in this alone he is of our greatest interest.

It was he who abolished the Jewish system of exploitation that had could only be exercised in private circles, into state life What had previously only been implemented de facto was now by right. He was therefore the worthy forerunner of a sweet, Lasker, Gambetta &c. He knew that after a series of good Years of inflation would set in. Instead of now fhis duty as a civil servant, which simply consisted in to inform the people of his science in a timely manner, he kept them for himself, bought up all the grain stocks cheaply, and When the famine struck, he had all the grain in his hands and was able to determine the prices. These were then set so suppose that the Egyptians, in order not to lose their property, Wife and child, finally had to give up themselves in order to To obtain grain that they themselves had previously grown in the fields A similar example is that a whole free People through its own government with the help of the products of its own diligence into complete slavery, is in the History is difficult to remember, but his relatives, He gave grain to foreigners. That he thereby committed theft on Egyptian property, he was in view of the fact that that he cared for his relatives, indifferent. Soon He took them to Egypt and gave them the best part of the land to his own. However, he was able to use the previous income residents, since he had already made them without rights. So a Jude knew how to gain the favor of a king and used this to enrich his relatives at the expense of the country and to give them a privileged position. They knew to make the best use of their new position, while providing them with a suitable

PER G amh

Legislation has come to the rescue. They studied the character of the Egyptians and soon found out where to start They made a large cattle market out of the land of Goshen and soon no longer needed to work. To maintain their power strengthen, they joined forces with all dissatisfied elements, which our present-day progressives and social democrats correspond, and soon formed a state within a state.

The Egyptians were undoubtedly of Indo-European descent, the had immigrated from the East. Their religion, the caste= being and many facilities point to the Indian subcontinent. As such they needed a longer time before they could get over the unbearable became aware of their situation and even longer before they acted. But finally their patience ran out and they forced the Jews at least to pay tax, which is mainly in bricks which the kings used for their great buildings. Now it was time to work. Yes, work! Now it was time for them the right to emigrate. The Egyptian people were that it is only a short, for worship purposes Reasons necessary distance, and the Egyptians were willing enough to give them their golden and silver vessels, the acquisition of which furnished enough. They were given to the Egyptians now stolen.

Characteristic for the Jews was the dance around the golden Kalb, the desire for revolutionary uprisings against the Führer, finally the unprecedentedly cruel extermination of an entire people, to take possession of their land. They only let as many Life, when they were used to cultivate the fields and to the 1 of all other work. To eliminate dangerous enemies In later times, assassination became the preferred method. Men and women who had committed such a crime were celebrated as national heroes and heroines.

David left the subjects of a king who easily betrayed him had been sawed alive.

Nothing contributes to the characterization of the Jewish and German character than the comparison of the two national heroes Samson and Siegfried. |

Incidentally, it was already then with the heroism of the Jews are not far away. If there is no assassination, deceit or surreptitious everything was at stake, the fortune of arms rarely flourished for them. The small people of the Philistines, inhabiting only a few square miles, was their most dangerous enemy for several centuries.

"The Babylonian king, Nebuchadnezzar, knew fine Hebrew brothers best. He led them out of their country and settled the kept her near him so that he could always keep an eye on her. He gave them good land on which they could feed themselves, the otherwise completely separated himself from all peoples, so that could not cause any further harm. Otherwise, as we from the story of Susanna and Daniel, more than humane treated.

They had their beautiful houses with shady gardens. | they are cutting off their own jurisdiction, even the right to life and death. |

Of course, we also see from the story of Susanna why Jewish judges in the position. | |

When Susanne did not want to accept the two judges they accused her of adultery and without Consider a false oath. According to the Jewish character, the never and nowhere anything other than one's own pleasure to the center of his thinking, something else would also be unnatural.

When the Indo-European Cyrus came to world domination, the Jews had won their game. He did not know the same and was flattered until he put her on the A number of them returned to the old Fatherland, but the rest scattered like locusts— swarmed over the whole country and began the activity that which has now, after more than two millennia, brought them close to their goal.

An apparently highly important minister of a later Persian king, Haman, recognized the danger we now face are about to succumb in time. But the attempt to do the same He paid with his life to eliminate them. A Jew, Mordecai, who, through a denunciation of 2, most likely innocent people at court and his niece had brought to the king as a prostitute, knew in association with to bring about Haman's downfall through his niece.

Like Joseph and Mordecai, Daniel knew how to attain a high position at a royal court.
He used it to destroy the popular religion, but without to be able to replace it with something better. E

Let us take another look at the female gender.
There too, real sensual pleasure is the only thing that can be compared to an ideal
Love is not capable of the same.

The only idealized female person of the Old Testament, the Sulamith in the Song of Songs, highly poetic in her speeches, where alone does she think? Only about the joys of sexual pleasure and the physical constitution of the lover, which leads him to procure particularly capable of this enjoyment. |

Let us summarize the first two millennia of Jewish history.
and until the birth of Christ, so we see the following:

Despite all the changes in fate, the Jewish character remained completely the same from beginning to end. His
The basis is optimistic realism. The Jew wants the Enjoy the comforts of life without consideration, because a life after death is completely unknown to him. He wants the goods but do not earn the money of this life themselves, but rather obtain it with cunning or Take away power from other people. He is with sharp ft and great activity equipped and well suited to this
To achieve the goal. Cruelty on a scale that no other

1

People are caught, as well as unbridled. Wool air appears at all times as characteristic peculiarities. His religion forms an alliance with his private god, which is closed against all other people
The latter had to deal with everything that they had fat, as slaves fat. They alone were the chosen people of God, who gave them prosperity and wealth and only became angry when they turned away from him.

They thought of their God as selfish as they themselves were.
However, it cannot be denied that at times men appeared who the insignificance of Jewish egoistic behavior and the longing for something higher. But in vain they preached to their People. As soon as they recognized their true purpose, they sought to kill them. Then they immersed themselves in the future, and you God-blessed eye saw in the distant future the Redeemer, who break the bonds of unrestrained egoism and the brotherhood love will replace it.

From such God-blessed men are the books of Old Testament, and therefore of lasting value to us. It is only wrong to describe the men identified therein as imitators. worthy examples. The unknown author of the Pentateuch undoubtedly had the intention of giving future generations the To show Jews what they are, to protect the world from them favet. His books would be destroyed, he himself He would have been doomed to death if he had wanted to do this openly. He had to therefore choose the form of glorification of those men who he wanted to denounce to the world. Therefore he sparsely glorifies elucidation is least evident where it records the most shameful deeds. However, he often reveals his intentions in a hidden way.

However, the exact explanation requires a separate book. Among all –

The Old Testament is at the forefront of anti-Semitic writings.

Have we found that the Jewish character in the years= thousands until the birth of Christ has not changed, so the question whether the Jews, after the appearance of the Savior, the preached to them self-denial and brotherly love and his love to humanity sealed with death, changed its character This is not the case. When the disciples of the Savior founded a Christian community in Jerusalem and who were preparing to lead a life according to scriptural principles, were They were killed or driven away, and Christianity now migrated to the Aryan peoples, who welcomed it with enthusiasm. Everywhere it sought to tame the egoism, to break the slave chains and people to brotherly love and denial of their own self The Roman and Greek abandoned their gods, who also only promised pleasure, the German learned the far-reaching Bowing their necks before the man on the cross. The Jew alone remained felf-faithful and therefore also a scourge for the humanity. How far he went in his selfishness is demonstrated by best of all, the Talmud, the Jewish religious book, which in the first centuries after Christ and still today the a guiding principle for Judaism.

– 12 =

As far as it extends to religious regulations, it does not concern us, but we are all the more interested in the regulations, which regulate the contact of the Jews with the other Bölker, because We ourselves have to suffer from these.

| The Talmud first establishes that the Mosaic propositions fcripts, as contained in the Ten Commandments, only to the binding towards Jews, because only in the Jew does every Jew have to see his "neighbour", but not in his relatives other tribes. Since nothing is forbidden with regard to them, Everything is permitted.

The non-Jews are called Goyim, also donkeys, pigs, dogs called.

The following sentences, which I partly attribute to the anti-Semitic Catechism by Frey, Leipzig at Fritzsche, which I found at
I would like to recommend this book as an excellent one,
find a job: |

"One single Israelite soul for you is in the eyes
God is more valuable than all the souls of an entire people.

. (Shefa tal. praef.)"

"The sun shines on the earth, the rain fertilizes it,

just because the Israelites live there.

(Tr. Jebam, f. 63. 1 Jalk Shim. f. 124. 2.)"

"The non-Jewish peoples are like baskets into which straw and fertilizer.

"They do not have the soul that is given to the beasts.

(Jalh, Chad. f. 154. 2.)

"A non-Jew who studies the Talmud or a Jew who teaches a non-Jew the Talmud shall be punished with death.

(Sanh. 59a and Chagiga 13a.)"

On the words of the Bible text: You follow the day laborer who suffers need and is poor, do not oppress your brothers,
The Talmud adds:

"The others are excluded.

(Tr. Bav. mez. f. III.)"

"You shall not exact usury from your brother, Brother it is forbidden, but to the rest of the people of world it is permitted. (Jad. chas. f. 172, I.)"

Rabbi Levi ben Gerfon comments:

"These words are a commanding command. To the
You shall prosper from strangers." |

"It is lawful for the righteous to act deceitfully, as Jacob did. (Jalk. Rub. f. 20, 2.)"

Since the Talmud had gradually grown to such an extent that it could no longer 1, so in the year 1565, i.e. only before

300 years ago, an excerpt was made which is called Shulchan Aruch.
| "Set table." | | |

ee TR: u

It contains the following provisions:
| "It is forbidden for the Jew to pay 105 h. for one Akum.
non-Jews) to the detriment of others.

. ha- mish. 26. I.)

"The money of the Akum is like ownerless property.
(Ch. ha- mish. 156. 5,

"If a Jew does business with an Akum,
and another Jew helps to cheat the Akum
and cheat, both must share the winnings.

(Ch. ha- mish 183. 7)"

"Has a Jew sold something to another that stolen from an Akum, and the Akum demands his
If the seller returns the item, the seller must return it to the buyer
Not to give back money. (Ch. ha-mish. 225. 2.)"

"There is no deceit towards the Akum.

(Ch. ha- mish. 227, 26.)

"One should not assist an Akum in childbirth Sabbath. (Orach chayim 330. 2.)"

"Whoever returns a found Bam to an Akum commits a great sin. If he does not do it, to bring the Jews into good repute, 10 it is permitted.

(Ch. misch. 259.)"

"If a Jew has denounced other Jews or wants to denounce, he is liable to death, and whoever kills him, has a merit.

i (Ch. ha-misch. 388. 10.)°

The Col-nidre prayer, which every Jew recites every year on days of atonement, reads:

"All vows and obligations and conspiracies and oaths which we have made from this Day of Atonement until to the next vow, fhall 0 and promise, we all regret them and should be dissolved, released, lifted, destroyed, ineffective and invalid; our Vows shall not be vows and our oaths shall no oaths. (Shulchan Aruch I. § 619,)"

The Jews deny that the teachings of the Talmud are still be followed. | u E

But if this were the case, it could be seen in individual, personal examples, it could only be proven that the rules of the relatively young Shulchan Aruch have general validity, then the Jews formed an organic fired criminal society whose complete elimination the state with should be pursued by all means. u

The Jews themselves seem to realize this, because Lemberger Hebrew Journal writes: "A translation of the Promoting Shulchan Aruch is a baseness and God-despising gefenheit in the highest degree. Because this 1 will, if fit would come to pass, which God forbid, the misery of our Brothers 300 years ago in Spain necessarily also about summon us up."

dd

= A ee

We can close this chapter, especially since in the following Chapters the details of the Jewish character become even clearer will represent. |

But we can already say one thing: |

Throughout the millennia the character has remained the same. No time, no cultural change, no need, no luck has been able to change that. The forms have changed, the Revenge has remained. The fight against the Aryan peoples has been her release by Cyrus is an uninterrupted and will not end sooner, until they have completely subjugated them or they completely rid of their tormentors. In 1848 they also Germany, which had already repeated them in previous centuries had been completely unleashed. It was believed to assume that they are aware of the great trust that is placed in lay, worthy to, so to speak, step out of their skin would. |

Externally, this often happens, and even men, like Eduard von Hartmann believe that in 2 or 3 people= As we grow older, an inner transformation will also take place.

Yes, a change has taken place and will continue continue to perform, but what a.

Despite baptism and non-kosher food, more united than ever, a more dangerous enemy as ever, and will be the last moment of Salvation, then we can only patiently return to our Find the slave role.

The following chapters are intended to explain the Korum= pirung rej. Destruction of all classes by Judaism in individual to prove.

Jew and farmer.

We first quote a fragment from a speech that the Chancellor Prince Bismarck in 1847 in the united Landtage held:

"I want to give an example in which a whole story the relationship between Jews and Christians. I know a area where the Jewish population in the countryside is large, where there are farmers who do not call anything their property on their entire property. From the bed to the oven fork, everything belongs Furniture belongs to the Jew. The cattle in the stable belong to the Jew, and the farmer pays for each one his daily rent, the Grain in the field and in the barns belongs to the Jew, and the Jew sells the farmer the bread=, seed and fodder grain metzenweise. From a similar Christian usury = I at least in my practice I have never heard of it!" So said Prince Bismarck.

= | =

In general, a farmer is understood to be a landowner owner who, with the help of a few people, managed to cultivate a fine field himself and one, at most two teams of horses

People with smaller land holdings, especially those who "without X Wad outside help to cultivate their fields, are in the country not considered peasants themselves. They are called half-peasants, Small farmers, cottagers, Büdner etc. For our purposes it is but it is not necessary to make this distinction. We understand Farmer therefore absolutely every landowner who alone, or at least can manage his property without the help of many people.

The farmer was not always the free master of his property; he had the same from the nobleman, from the state or a larger Corporation as a fief. His farm could not be taken away from him unless he died without legitimate heirs. But Without the consent of the feudal lord he was not allowed to buy it, nor burden it with debts. To the feudal lord he had certain duties, which vary according to time and circumstances In some countries, these duties gradually grew to a heavy burden, especially in France, and these burdens ft are the ones who gave the French Revolution its terrible extent In some German countries these burdens are also been difficult, although with regard to the fubstantial dependence in which a large part of the peasants to the Jews are seen as disappearing The terrible Peasants' War in the 16th century with all fhis terrible consequences broke out in Swabia because a landowner forced his peasants to work for him in the forest To look for berries. I have stories of the villages Friedrichsfelde and Lichtenberg, in which the burdens of the individual farms are precisely are listed.

One farm had to provide a cockerel annually, the other a few bushels of grain, a third annually a boot for the Mr. Pastor etc. The most unpleasant were certainly the Hand and haulage services, which many farmers needed especially in the period had to do when they themselves were overwhelmed with work. They ft usually provided a so-called court-walker. In Prussia is the peasant class, which at that time was the lowest class formed, the entire social direction of his ruling house fpeaking, always protected against too much pressure. The duties were strictly demarcated at a very early stage. Friedrich Wilhelm I. decreed: "I do not want my officials to deal with the "Go for a walk with my farmers' horses." Frederick the Great could not be happier than when he was travelling Throughout the country it was learned that farmers had large sums of money on the Bank. It happened that some people had invested up to 60,000 Thalers. But even the poor farmer was in his Existence secured insofar as he has no debts on his account make it so that it could not be taken away from him. Through the Stein's legislation made the farmer a free owner, whereas it strangely, many peasants resisted, which several historical

U.N

scriber as proof of the boundless depravity of the peasant class. In the 1930s, the Separation was added. Until then, the farmers' fields were in the old German way, everyone had a piece of the better, middle and worse fields. A significant
The area was a community pasture, and everyone, even the poorest resident of the place had the right to have a cow on this pasture, often also to keep a pig, a sheep or a number of geese, which are were looked after by the community shepherds. During the separation, the individual fields were understandably combined so that the one who received good land received a smaller number of acres.
Unfortunately, the community pastures were also divided up, and here=
The rural proletariat was created by the non-peasants
the possibility of keeping pets, especially a cow
For this reason, the separation of small People in ferely bad memory. From now on the farmer was a free lord like the nobleman. He could sell his property sell at will, mortgage it, divide it among his children share etc. In some areas the farms are so It has been widely shared that the owners of their land only Others have their farms
given undivided to one child, for the benefit of the other children but burdened it with mortgages to such an extent that it could only can still hardly receive. Still others have the remaining children settled with the money saved. Where this was the case,
There is still a productive peasant class.
In general, however, the farmer should not long be happy, because a new master was found who was excellent knew how to appropriate the reward for his hard work. It was the Hebrew, who, in incomprehensible shortsightedness, was denied the full Civil rights had been granted. Certain character traits
It was the farmer's fault that the Jew, who was righteous in all saddles, and can slip through any hole, used to attack the farmer=
it, one of the pillars of the fatherland, to the very core Mark. First of all, this includes the unconditional
The farmer's secrecy towards his closest acquaintances. His Pride does not allow this to be done for a favor in eldan affairs=
He does not need to do this with the Jew, because this brings the money into his house with the greatest dignity.

Secondly, there is the tendency of some farmers to take legal action.

The Jew, who knows every farm well, who is in every secret and discover every sick spot, finds itself here, especially as an agent of a certain class of law~~=~~ lawyers, a rich field of his activity. Thirdly, we have The gullibility of many farmers is to be taken into account here, as soon as richer benefits are promised, or he gives in to enjoyment. spirituous beverages have been somewhat over-indulged.

In such conditions, thousands of peasants are forced to drawing of documents whose meaning they.

only later became clear in a terrible way.

Of all the examples I will only mention 2 here, the latter has the advantage of approaching the very last weeks-belong.

Schweinfurt. A picture of base greed, linked with an almost outrageous lack of conscience, the last Thursday by the holiday chamber of the Royal Regional Court trial conducted here against the merchant couple Salomon and Sophia Reis from Oberwaldbehrungen unrolled. A farmer from the area of Mellrichstadt, which is located in the most favorable financial circumstances, was for some reason forced to take out a small loan. Instead of turning to a wealthy neighbor, who probably helped him with full mortgages~~=~~ free presence would have willingly granted the requested assistance, to The farmer turned his attention to Salomon Reis. After A certificate of receipt was issued after the settlement of 340 M. and read to the farmer. Before the However, the signing of this promissory note attracted the attention of the Farmers were distracted from this document and in the meantime a promissory note previously written by Sophia Reis of 3400 M. were pushed into the place of that and also by the farmer signed without further review. Half a year later he was again forced to pay a debt of 250 M.

What was more obvious than that he turned to Salomon Reis, the he had already paid him the first amount against interest compensation of only 4 pCt. had advanced. Here he found the same friendly concessions, like the first time. But here too, the same manipulation as with the first debt certificate, When it was time to sign the debt certificate, 250 M. had arrived, the farmer, from Sophia Reis on Tugging at her coat sleeves, and discussing with her some indifferent Things, whereby he of course did not notice that instead of the previous Certificate for 250 Mk. and one for 6554 Mk. on the table which he then, without reading it again, under- The farmer, with a grateful heart for the nobility of the Salomon Reis, who, although he hardly knew him, gave him two loans at 4 pCt., walked home with a confident spirit with the firm conviction that loyalty and faith, one of the Cardinal virtues of the German people, but not yet as completely as is often said claimed to have disappeared from the world. But what a sudden end This madness had to be experienced when the farmer one day received a was served with a legal complaint demanding payment of 6554 Mk. He immediately realized that that he had become the victim of a shameful fraud, alone with the unfortunately peculiar fear of farmers to tell anyone to communicate even the slightest thing about his distress, he had omitted to sign both debt documents to call in instrumental witnesses, while on the other hand in the service Salomon Reis's standing people easily found the correctness of the debt documents and the actual receipt of money The farmer signed this. The result was

2

.

– 1 =

Of course, the farmer, who confirmed the correctness of his signature could not deny, in two instances to pay the the claimed amount of 6554 Mk., as well as to bear the very was sentenced to pay significant legal costs. So the man who had previously been in a not unfavourable financial situation, with his large family to the edge of the brought to complete financial ruin, from no other Reason, as because insatiable greed the peasant credulity, and we may also say that we knew how to take advantage of stupidity. But the matter was not yet to be settled. Despite the both civil law judgments condemning the farmer to pay– knowledge, which the farmer's plea of infringement fraud could not be taken into account due to lack of evidence, if the criminal investigation that had been initiated finally succeeded – to create as much evidence as possible to prove the criminal, certain= loose conduct of the Reis couple before the forum of the The hearing of the previous Thursday has now in its course a just as bright as unfortunately also true picture of the management of certain people Eyes that we are no longer concerned about the over– from the unfavourable situation in which our rural population finds itself, If, for example, Salomon Reis should not be afraid, to admit that in 2 cases he was responsible for loans in the amount of 1800 Mk. fiH a commission of 1100 Mk. each, alfo more than 60 pCt., has been promised and there are also people who to make such a promise, it can rightly be said It can be argued that our current social conditions are unhealthy and corrupt to such a high degree that a Reaction to improvement is an urgent requirement of necessity. However, this goal can only be achieved if unanimous on the one hand, the doings and activities of businessmen of a certain kind is ruthlessly exposed, but on the other hand the farmer in his financial difficulties, in which everyone gets involved at some point can, is no longer afraid to, be it at his wealthy neighbors, be it to aid funds of any kind, and thus the merciless usury has every opportunity to operate it is withdrawn. Neis has also not been ashamed to Realization of his greedy manipulations one more time to use other means, defend moral reprehensibility already for this reason it is so high, because it increases the awareness of the law the people must be harmed just as much as it harms the judge not in a position to make a substantively correct judgment. Reis was looking for his maid in a small claim case to Making a false statement, thus knowingly making a false statement secure on oath to the Fg Salomon Reis has in his Boss Sophia found a worthy assistant who understood has to support her husband in all his usurious and fraudulent To strongly support manipulations. The defenders sought the innocence of their clients on the basis of a failed escape evidence of indictment and requested for both defendants

= In

Acquittal, while the prosecution by the public prosecutor in its entirety – Salomon Reis was, apart from the previous-mentioned Reate also accused of theft – upright he – The verdict finally announced is likely to many personalities whose business activities are not entirely as a real one, serve as a warning to protect oneself from to avoid an unpleasant collision with the criminal law, On the other hand, it is also suitable to counteract the displeasure which the shameful loose, deceitful behavior of these people aroused some satisfaction-faction. Salomon Reis was convicted of two offenses of Fraud and an offence of attempting to induce Guilty of making a false hand vow and therefore a prison sentence of three years and a fine of 1200 M.: at the same time the citizens-deprived of his honorary rights for a period of five years. The verdict against Maria Reis was for two offenses of fraud to six months in prison. The two convicted persons also all costs are to be borne. (Mannh. Tagebl.)

The second example of this kind occurred a few weeks ago in Berlin. The large farmer Springer in Karow near Blankenburg near Berlin, living in regular conditions, about:

often exceeds the limits of moderation when drinking and is not always fully responsible. A few weeks in a bar in Berlin, and two existing Jewish Students recognized his condition. A third one was soon
A Jew was brought in to act as a buyer. The farmer saw soon at a notary, the students were witnesses, and before the Bauer still knew what had happened to him, the farm was which is worth 72000 Mk., sold for 36000 Mk. The
The money to be paid to the farmer Springer in addition to the mortgage is only due after years. Wife and children are driven from the farm, a bid of 9000 Mk. from relatives to give the children the Court has been rejected. I believe that easily 500
Prisoners found with a total of 2000 years in prison which, probably forced by necessity, have not caused as much damage to money and property as these Gentlemen, who acted entirely legally. Such actions—we have come under the rule of Roman law.

Of course, not every farmer will allow himself to be treated in such a crude manner.
But the Jew stalks him like a fox around a hen—court and tries to find the most favorable point of attack.
If the farmer is short of money before the harvest, he buys the grain on the stalk, the wool on the sheep and the calf in the mother:
Is the farmer
If a piece of cattle falls, he lends him new ones. What fetters the farmers through the notorious cattle lending contracts, Nieman has portrayed it as truthfully as Dr. Böckel of Marburg in his imperial herald. The Jew is incomparable in art, to sell things to the farmer as a peddler, which he does not

Jk

— 20 —

3 and does not want to have it at all. No weakness escapes him, a developing love relationship. |

If the farmer has gone far enough back, the Jew, how he could best put an end to it
He does it in order to gain as much as possible. Depending on Circumstances either for compulsory sale or for parcelling, depending after he has more prospect of selling the acquired farm either in whole, or broken into pieces, to sell more profitably.
Let us assume that the parcelling is preferred. The farmer is already in a difficult situation, but the Jew as completely hopeless. All creditors suddenly start He doesn't know why. In the whole area, this difficult situation is known and portrayed in the blackest colours= asked, he does not know where from. Yes, dear friend, it was all the Hebrews who are stalking you, but you can prove it

He just finds the moment opportune to ask you about house and court. The Jew now often discusses in the presence the whole family the desperate situation and suddenly moves in with this humane rescue plan, the farm must
The debts are added together and
The Jew assumes the guarantee that when the farm is sold, situation of the matter several hundred or even several thousand thalers
To get more out of it. This allows you to get a larger City, far from the malicious neighbors, a profitable business, or it can be done in America, where the field is still non-arable land can be bought with five dollars, where no district administrator can fchoorn, the taxes are low and the son is not a soldier needs to be established, a new home. A purchase contract will be concluded at a price consisting of the above-existing debts and the agreed surplus of the farmer.
Now the Jew is the owner, without of course even a penny
For those who withdraw from the contract, a high conventional penalty of 3000 Mk. to 6000 ME is imposed=
Now the field is divided into plots, with care being taken fhowever, the acquisition of each plot always involves several Neighbours have an interest. The auction will take place at a Time when the grain is still in the field, as short as possible before the harvest. The beautiful grain is of course particularly attractive.
At the auction there will be free beer and liquor, as well as cigars, and this attracts many who originally were not thinking about buying land. Thanks to the generous donations-
But with time, a fresh life is awakened in the drinking water. Here
The Jew is in his element. He has a friendly Word. He points out that here is the opportunity to provide for wife and child through favorable purchase, and that this but the very first duty of a proper family father is to fpeakingly favorable payment terms, fts as a selfless friend good mortgages in sight, draws attention to the good harvest, has from an employee of the great house of Itzig or Meyer heard that grain prices will rise significantly in the near future, secretly squeezes the hand here, steps on the foot there, winks

The one with the eyes closed, asks casually what mother is doing, how Wilhelm is doing in the military, and whether Bertha is grieving for him had not already died, whether the brown cow was laying well, and whether Sailor still has not stopped chasing the
To grab cows by the udder etc. In no time at all,
With lots of toasting, the purchase is completed.

Unsaleable items remain provisionally the property of the Jews. He has earned many thousands, the farmer receives his few thalers in compensation. Yes, does he get it? There are here and there still small forgotten debt items, here and there still have to pay costs, what is left over will be given to him carry not heavy. If he wants to go to America, the Jew as emigration agent, gets the tickets and knows the family to agents in America. What kind of people are they,
Captain Carl Jenzen describes in his Illa von der Recknitz (Merfeburg) in an almost unsurpassable manner. Even the youngest Emigration process in Austria, in which an organized slave trade, provides clarity on this. As a rule he will still be able to count himself lucky if he finally succeeds—manages to hire himself out as a worker for a farmer. Often he becomes a tramp who ends up in some corner.

But if he actually manages to buy a small farm, fuch often helps him little. We know how it is over there Vacant farms whose owners have run away, are found there in large numbers. One piece of land after another is sold due to arrears in taxes, from the houses
Doors, windows, boards disappear, which the neighbors consider good prey
If the farmer does not go to America, but wants to live in a
If you want to start a business in the city or buy a small farm,
The Jew helped him with this too. But don't ask me how!
The end is obvious! Either he goes drunk—bold, or he finds himself as a worker in a City employment. The existing order has given him a Mortal enemy, the Social Democrats, whose goals he, however, understands nothing, has gained an ardent supporter. The state—He blames his misfortune on God knows! If he were to case may even be right?!

Even rich farmers are lured by the illusion of the magnificent Life as a reindeer in a city often led to their farm and move to the city. There he leaves it then his more noble tribesmen, who were known as barons, Commercial Councillors, Commercial Councillors, General Consuls, Heads of all possible charitable institutions are held in high esteem there and have highly respected banks with a world-renowned reputation, him so gradually with Confols, East Prussian Southern Railway, Marien= burg=Mlawka, building bank, land credit sc. fits beautiful thalers—
button up. |

Dear farmer or reindeer, do you want to know where you are ind, jo take a walk through Berlin, wide open spaces, and be

If you are friends with any porter there, try to take a look into the magnificent rooms of those houses against which the magnificent rooms the Imperial Palaces disappear. For you and your descendants= Of all the gold that is buried here, nothing will come reappear, unless conditions in Your family, which in chapter 12 at Kunst or 20 at Morality is examined in more detail.

There is a company called Simon Böhm in Berlin.

The same currently works with millions, enjoys a World-renowned and has a large part of the spirit and grain-trade into their hands. Thousands and thousands of Producers are dependent on it. N

The founder of the company used to make money in East Prussia in farms, and the impoverished farmers know a thing or two about it fing. A totally impoverished farmer was suddenly, probably by suicide. The woman loaded the body onto a Car, drove up to Mr. Böhm and brought him the same the words: "You have pulled the wool over his eyes, here you have it completely"! However, this did not harm Mr. Böhm further, least of all in his cheerfulness.

He is not yet a commercial councillor, but he has
Mr. Aron Meyer, to whom I will return later,
Negotiations had already taken place earlier. |

Well-thinking men, among whom Baron von Schorlemer-Alst, who also in other respects represents the ideal of a German man is, which takes first place, in recent years farmers-clubs have been founded, which are experiencing great growth.
Westphalian Farmers' Association currently has 23,000 members both denominations. Hopefully, these associations will help to put a stop to the Jewish activity among the country people be pushed forward, especially if the state through legislation comes to the rescue.

Jew and craftsman.

The artisan class emerged from the bannister class.
When Henry the Fowler saw the need to few existing fortified cities a large number of new ones to provide the farmer with a place of refuge in case of war he had great difficulty populating the cities. The Germans, real children of nature, accustomed to living alone in their fields or but to live in spacious villages, they were reluctant decided to move to a city that they saw as a coffin for Only coercion and the promise of great advances parts, which especially includes the liberation from all bondage were able to force every ninth man into the city. At first they remained farmers there and in the small

Cities to this day. With the close connection—

= Of =e

However, individuals were more dependent on mutual help:

and whoever was able to meet a need in a particular to satisfy him in a good way, soon found that it was better for him fe, from the satisfaction of this need in others a business So soon people were found who were less concerned with concerned with extracting the products from the soil, as this soil products through their work into a use for the people to transform into a more bare state, that is, the first Craftsmen. With the increasing division of labour, the artisan class more and more, and as a result it leads individuals to ever greater artistic skill. To mutual For protection and defense, these craftsmen joined guilds and associations They ensured that no fraudulent treatment took place—that the apprentices were properly trained, that breeding and good morals were maintained, only properly trained were allowed to practice crafts, etc. The artisan class produced magnificent flowers, and its products still arouse the Admiration of every connoisseur. Since the clergy also have their Educational institutions were moved to the cities, they also found Opportunity for intellectual education. They also have general Things, especially in politics, played a big role. As When poetry died out among the nobility, it was taken up by the craftsmen. The Nuremberg Poets School with its Michael Behaim and Hans Sachs is still well-known today. Also a philosopher, Jacob Böhm, the craftsmen gave us. Almost every craft gradually became a craft, and the red-founder Peter Vischer in Nuremberg left us works of art that are still serve as a study for our greatest artists. The craftsman— ft became one of the greatest pillars of the empire, without which many emperors could not have held. The Thirty Years' War, which caused boundless misery everywhere in Germany, also deeply shocked the artisans. Many arts and crafts were completely lost, and only very gradually did he begin to Protection of benevolent princes, who after the war all power in their hand, began to recover. The Hohenzollerns have always devoted the utmost care to the artisan trade.

Two of the most important * a did not tolerate foreign production= niffe in the country, whose production is carried out by native craftsmen was possible. The French Reformed Church who immigrated to Berlin brought back some of the artistry that had been lost in the terrible wars. When in this century the Transport routes were constantly improving, the mobility of the people= population grew and steam power changed conditions, it became necessary to remove the rigid barriers, with which every single trade had surrounded itself, something loosen to make it possible for immigrant craftsmen to to seek their bread. A reformation of the guild system became necessary. The Jews used this moment to the legislation to abolish all order in the artisan trade. It It is known that the Jews in the conflict period of 1861/66 played a major role. When, under the impression of the events vøn 1866 the national liberal party under Jewish leadership party that was compatible with the government, the Jews, that they were primarily rewarded for their cooperation with the The year 1869 brought accordingly, full freedom of trade. It sounded wonderful when At that time it was said that everyone should be allowed to earn his bread in to search for any honest way. Unfortunately, with the complete dissolution of all orders of the artisan class Conditions had deteriorated to such an extent that it could soon be said: Every craftsman is free to starve wherever he pleases. This drastic decline of one of the oldest classes was felt but the German Michel was all too obvious and stretched uncomfortably back and forth. Then the fairy tale was invented, which increasing replacement of human hands by machine power, the so-called introduction of the hundred thousand iron slaves, the artisan class in favor of large-scale industry, i.e. the Jewish Stock companies destroyed, while the introduction of machine power, especially after the invention of gas engines, the Craftsmen were a great blessing if one could Organisation would not have been completely paralyzed. We will discuss this in more detail below, but first we will examine how it was possible for Judaism to achieve this glorious state, which bravely defied all the storms of the centuries and defended his rights had steadfastly defended, in less than twenty years fully= to destroy constantly. It was a real incalculable misfortune that his solid organization mainly at the instigation of the Jew Lasker at that very moment ft beaten when the same was changed in the production and sales conditions would have been most necessary to achieve the But the strong army disintegrated into a bunch of lone fighters, each of whom acted as

He thought it was good. Now the Jews had free rein. They always acted unanimously, and what one lacked in operating capital, The other gave that, and through their stock companies they knew to force thousands of small capitalists into their service. The craftsman stood there at a loss. What the well-meaning Schulze-Delitzsch with fine cooperative banks, could not even remotely replace what he had achieved with his old organization itself could have created. What should the i 3 a + syra OT? 7 + , - ena s Cet |
Craftsmen benefit from a modern bill of exchange that pays in a short time must be?

Every change is an instrument for him, with which he can only cut his fingers. His outstanding debts are fell after calculation, while unpunctuality in changing= solving is known to be accompanied by the most disastrous consequences. The first signature of a bill of exchange is for the craftsman the first step into the abyss. Even in its inner values the craftsman quickly found it. If the apprentice liked it, he left his master before completing his apprenticeship and worked elsewhere as a journeyman. His knowledge and skills could. only be amateurish. A proletariat of artisans emerged, and. with this the Jew began to work.

-

25

|

| We want to go into the individual professions and the rapid decline. Previously, there was a correspondingly large number of self-employed master tailors. No one was allowed to operate the business without the necessary knowledge nis and skills. He employed a larger or smaller number of journeymen, who work in the most diverse. Workshops in the country and often abroad demonstrate their skills- sought to increase their independence in order to eventually become independent. After the introduction of freedom of trade, Jewish businesses appeared employers who, of course, know nothing about the tailoring trade- ftände, for how could they have spent four years from morning to: to sit on the table in the evening with the needle in your hand! But the entrepreneur had money and with the Jewish students dealers rich credit. He rented a nice shop and found in the tailoring proletariat, which was just beginning to form itself, work- forces enough to not starve to death, for incomprehensibly cheap money. He gave them advances as soon as possible in order to always have it in your hand. The ones from England

The transplanted manufacture of shoddy woolen fabrics suited him perfectly.
These fabrics are made from woolen rags and are hardly understood by the expert, let alone by the layman of good woolen fabrics. They are around 50 to 75 percent.
cheaper, but their durability is extremely low. The real Craftsmen cannot carry these materials. Since the Jew jomit fvery cheap raw materials and fvery cheap labor, he could set incredibly cheap prices and still earn a lot of money.
The goods in his shop window are extremely tasteful and attractively displayed, frequent newspaper advertisements draw attention to it= noticeable, and once you are in the store, you will not easily That the seams of the purchased suit were already burst after a few days, the material becomes damaged after a few weeks.
is unpleasant, but in view of the cheap price easily forgotten. The master craftsmen gradually lost their customers one, especially those from the working class. The master:
Mainly those customers remained who only after years.
or did not pay at all. Finally, he had no choice but to simply=
if they were to become workers in a Jewish business.
Competition even for starvation wages. People tried to The woman had to help diligently, the nights became help, and while the organized factory workers constantly reduced their working hours, he had to extend his.
How often do we find the craftsman and his wife long after Midnight busily at work. Finally, young girls or widowed women, who of course were even more had to be satisfied with starvation wages. The following table may.
illustrate the prices that a master craftsman and a.
Jew pays |

master craftsman | Jew .
Schneider Möller, Several of the finest companies
| Kraufen=Str., in Leipziger Str.
Overcoat . Mk. 13.00 – 15.00 3.50–4.00
Black skirt " 13.00–15.00 3.50–4.00
Hofee " 3.50 – 4.00 1.00 – 1.50
Vest "° 3.00 – 4.00 1.00 – 1.59

The same applies to the production of the female Clothing (ready-made clothing), only with the difference that here not a solid organization was to be destroyed. The seamstresses went either for an average payment of two marks to their customers into their homes, received good food and Drink, work in a heated room and have a good be= trade, or they made the clothes in their homes against a previously fixed price, whereby they are usually were even better off. They saved a solid living nice money and brought with them a self-employed family when they later married.
worked on dowry and often also a pretty penny for her spouses into the marriage. Today the situation is different.

Most of these self-employed seamstresses have become workers for the Jews. The starvation wages make it impossible to give her body the right care.
The long working hours ruin the body completely. Apart from the necessary—
Apart from the most versatile clothing, they usually have nothing of their own.
Unemployment, they have the choice between hunger and Shame. Should they enter into marriage, it will happen immediately with debts. Her weakened body can only giving birth to children who cannot be fed
The high infant mortality rate is the consequence of this.
they are alive, only weak workers and bad soldiers are created. If shame is chosen, it will at best through a short life full of splendor into the abyss.

The fate of these girls was described in an article years ago of the Deutsche Tageblatt in a moving way. We let the—
I will follow it here in full, as far as I remember it:

Sewing, sewing, sewing in the dark December night,

Sew, sew and sew, when the sunny spring smiles,
When the cheerful swallow hovers around the gable in the courtyard,

As if she wanted to show me, to my torment, how freely she lives!

With these moving verses, Thoms
Hood the misery of London's seamstresses, and after his After his death, no one knew how to honor him better than on his grave—to put the inscription on the stone: "He sang the song of the shirt!"

If only someone would appear today who could sing the song of the coats, that veritable, from the middle of reality torn out image in which a piece of our social life in this whole misery is revealed. The gratitude of twenty—
A thousand female souls would be his for sure. Perhaps the Poet already among us and in the meantime only sharpens his weapons.
Of course, he could not strike a deeper note than the English

Poet would strike here, but he would find an even richer field for his activity, for his tendency, and could one day Cultural historians excellent material for a work: "Jewish Clothing manufacturers as promoters of prostitution in the middle of the 19th century. The poor of the nation, the poor
The deplorable Jews claim never to have been live chastely and modestly with their wives, except with the.
Christians, build golden mountains, of course in the sweat of Germanic people, the poor and miserable. It is easy to save with the descendants of Ifidor and Rebekka, who five years ago in Rofenthaler Straße bought old clothes, adjusted them—and sold again at 100 to 200 pCt.

and now one of the largest women's coat shops in Leipzig Street. But the other side of the coin must one should always only look at oneself, for the sake of justice. Who would not be surprised at the sight of the increasing taking ostentatious clothing stores the lot of the legions thought up by coat seamstresses?

There is a coat in the shop window with 50–100 Mk. from= praised, on which the sweat of the Christian slave sticks, of course—completely invisible, because it cannot be delivered stained, otherwise there will be a deduction from the needle money. Needle money, bitter Ironically, for three days of uninterrupted work three marks (now only still 2 marks). The Jewish wage will probably be identical with the Judas wage. For raincoats the price is 1 Mk. to 1.25 Mk. Thread, Silk and needles must also be paid from this 1.25 Mk. Yes, the Jews pay so badly! is the constant slogan these mostly young and flourishing coat seamstresses, who will one day become a curse for them. One day the Jewish clothing manufacturer or his clean manager the girl better than the goods.

Now all greed is over, and Jerusalem shows itself in this whole chastity and frivolity. One also enjoys a warm evening meal instead of the eternal diet of coffee and bread. And one night we meet on the street—dressed women who have recently become the crowd of public prostitutes They once had shame, but not anymore. If you ask One, two, three: What were you before? A coat seamstress! And Have you not been able to maintain your dignity? The Jews be—pay so badly! is the final answer.

Yes, the Jewish clothing stores are expanding, need, Misery and shame too. |

The English poet continued, not without reason:

“Sew, sew and sew, when the roosters crow in the morning,
Sew, sew and sew when the stars are in the sky!
What is the misery that eats away at the slave's work,

If the toil here that devours us is a Christian work!

Much like in the tailoring industry, the Shoemakers. The Jewish bazaars also took over the Craftsmen's bread. If there was no cheap labor locally, forces, the production was moved to areas with cheap Housing and food prices. How the Jews tailoring introduced the shoddy goods, so they used here imitation leather made from leather waste and all kinds of fabrics—The remaining masters feed on—weighed down by mending work. If they want to make new boots, they have to they go to the Jewish leather dealer, since Germans are hardly present anymore—

The Jew controls the leather trade so completely, that he also sets the prices for the tanners and white tanners, which they become impoverished on a massive scale. Glove makers and saddlers Things are not getting any better. The little shoemaker comes, who usually does not once he can pay cash, to the leather dealer, he will be given prices calculated, where it cannot exist for the duration, since the Jewish bazaars have significantly lower prices. If Flick= work in the family, a self-employed

*

Master shoemakers are a rarity. |

In carpentry and wood carving there is hardly any still independent masters who sell their products directly to the public sell, at least not in Berlin. If the guild had not had been destroyed at the crucial time, this would have can be different.

The small masters, or as they sometimes call them, the self-employed workers, sit with their journeymen in the workshops, which are found in the back buildings of the suburbs, and manufacture—adorn all the wonderful furniture that is Berlin's pride.
Friday or Saturday morning they drive with the finished items to the Jewish furnishing shops, which were located in the main streets the city. The masters tremble, because the in and of itself low price is reduced to a ridiculous sum if the smallest error can be discovered. The later buyers about these mistakes, which he could not see with the layman's eyes discovered, completely irrelevant. If the master likes the offered

If he doesn't pay the price, he can take the things back with him. Yes, with—

If only the journeymen would not be on Saturday evening their reward! It would be a beautiful performance,
If it were not for the utmost punctuality here. Often the goods are taken over but paid for with a bill of exchange, which is not always immediately discountable. If a simply dressed, sweaty man in the streets
Berlin passed us with conspicuous haste, so with great Probability to assume that such a master craftsman is someone who is trying to find wages for his journeymen somewhere.

How much the master receives for his products, and how how much they are ultimately paid for by the public, following table shows.

I notice that I have seen the selling prices in a very

I researched the real equipment store and then to the famous master (carpenter or woodcarver), who showed me the delivery prices from his books.

Both tables show the same pieces.

Delivery price. Retail price.

Large carved buffet. . 185 Mk. 350 Mk.

Medium " z . " 135 * 260 "

Small 8 i 33 1 a 210 "

Large carved seal with

Cryftallalas 3 S . 65D 185"

Small mirrors. 37.50 " 60 "

They consist of sofa,

2 large, 4 small armchairs with red, pressed plush cover 670 u 990 "

Antoniette table. : cj DL y

I expressly note that the furniture store in question a highly real ijt, and the master was happy to have his fine products here— niffe to be able to settle.

Furthermore, I have read from the books of the master convinced that he can enjoy 2 large buffets (there are always 2 at the same time) made) after deduction of the price for wood, fittings, wages for carpenters, woodcarvers, polishers, a net profit of 22 Mk., say twenty-two marks, the cost of which is Glue, transport, polishing on site and are not included in the calculation. Now it often happens that the— apparently healthy wood is damaged inside and not related Then he works without any benefit.

It is not uncommon for a man to be upset after it gave the masters bills of exchange for their goods for a long time: Then, as a rule, many masters perish at the same time, while the wife of the previous furniture dealer was a fine Quar= animal in the best part of town and her husband, the absolutely nothing is to be taken except to take in sleeping boys.

The bakery used to be quite profitable. Now that the fall grain and a is in Jewish hands, it also this

The construction belt throwers, as there are Schlofter. ee glazier, Upholsterers, potters, carpenters, bricklayers, plasterers, Painters are ruined in other ways, about which we want to pronounce it as it is.

The apartment is one of the most necessary and expensive furnishings—needs. Anyone who builds housing to sell it to others rent, wants to achieve a benefit that is also fully eloquent
But when the Jews took over the building site, the building of houses and the mortgage business, the housing conditions, especially in the big cities, in even Bahnen, yes that most tenants for their apartment a lot have to spend a larger amount than is economically justified.
In addition, the tenants often become slaves of the landlord, as the well-known Berlin rental contracts prove. "My house is my castle," this proud English word has for the Berliner

tenants only have a very modest significance. |

Jewish speculators have long owned a large part of the Building land in and around Berlin was acquired cheaply, and the same is in their hands increased many times its value. The art
The unprecedented increase in the building ground is the main cause the housing shortage.

Secondly, they have understood how to renovate old, dilapidated or unto acquire numerous modern houses.

This was made possible by the fact that they took out a higher mortgage to to take possession of such a house, if necessary with some sacrifices and then canceled it. New mortgages are of course not possible on old houses, and so it is that the perhaps in quite comfortable ee living owner, who had kept fic) completely away from the Jew, suddenly is driven out of his house by the forced sale. The
The house itself is then sold for demolition. The building site or The new plot of land to be built on is then preferably sold to less capital-rich building contractors in the hope of the finished to get the house back into their hands. As soon as the
When the builder has run out of capital, the Jew gives up the building—money, which is paid in installments after each beam laying and well spent—interest. Until then, the matter is completely in order, and The Jew is convinced that in case of emergency the builder can help in another way, or, as the technical term goes,

ftill the back is stiff, no further incidents occur.
However, this regular course is an exception. In
As a rule, the builder has somewhat overestimated his strengths, and unexpected difficulties, which the Jew naturally solved by this agents. The stone or wood merchant, for example, suddenly does not want to continue delivering without immediate cash payment, the Construction funds are left behind, the construction workers are also being paid-forty and do not deliver any further. So the house comes during of the building for compulsory sale. Since each bidder / of the value, ie in Berlin you never have to pay less than 20,000 Marks bail, so The craftsmen cannot bid. At best the stone comes-dealer nor to his money, since this is usually capital-is strong.

The Jew as holder of the first mortgage buys the house, the
The builder and the builders lose their money, but the Jew has managed to establish itself on its own land without significant costs-to build a new house in one go. Often the builder succeeds contractor to finish the house, but he is out of danger not yet. The house must stand empty for half a year, the
The first tenants are often unable to pay, because not everyone is man's business to live in a newly built house, the interest become due, and so he often falls at the same moment,
where he could believe he had reached his goal. |

ge

The number of construction workers who have had similar accidents in Berlin entrepreneurs who have of course lost their money are legion.
There are people from all walks of life who have some money and were caught up in the construction devil. Their number would still be greater if it were not for the peculiar addiction among them, on the property that once held their brightest hopes sions, and which now belongs to their worst enemy, Whether they think that this will keep the owner in peace to disturb? That would be regrettable, because then they would be with their Dying was based on false assumptions, as was the case with lifetime. Only a few weeks ago, a by no means un= wealthy master mason Röpke, Melanchtonstr. 17, on the new= built property Swinemünderstr. 66, now 60/61. Röpke had the building site of 3 Halpert and Pinnert, Grenadierftr., acquired. The whole neighborhood described the manipulations this construction company, which is said to have driven Röpke to his death, as unheard of.

I managed to establish relationships indirectly,
who gave me detailed information about the company's business practices.

I will share some of them here.

For better orientation let us take a specific case.

Mr. Müller purchases a building plot from the same, on which he 100,000 Mk. remains in debt; he has to pay this separately 1 pCt. commission to the company, 1 pt. to the bank, the capital to be charged interest at 5 percent.

The offered construction funds, which are paid in installments after each beam position, are also subject to interest at 5 pCt., in addition they are reduced by 1 pCt. for the company, 1 pCt. for the Bank. Since the building funds are calculated in such a way that they never run out enough, the builder will quickly find himself in financial difficulties.

He must give the company ongoing acceptances for further money, and then calculates 6 pCt. interest, 1 pCt. commission.

Prolongations will again incur 1 pCt. commission in addition to the interest

The acceptances will be paid in the next construction installment where the usual 2 pCt. are also deducted.

Now, of course, as construction continues, larger amounts of money will be generated—embarrassments, and now the company has almost won the game. The Construction is completed, the builder shoots himself or runs away, the House is purchased by the company in the foreclosure auction and then sold at great profit.

From the monstrous manipulations of the Jews to all—

Gradually almost all of Berlin's land was directly or indirectly to bring their possession, customer gives a highly interesting brochure a former vice-innkeeper of the company A. Ehrlich in Berlin, Universitätsstraße. The title page with the name of the author has unfortunately been lost in the last few days and so not available again quickly, but the name of the printer: Gödecke, formerly Müller, Berlin N., Friedrichstr. 105a, should be able to

– 32 –

Enable this highly interesting, not to say indispensable to obtain a brochure.

The Jew Mr. A. Ehrlich came with a small fortune to Berlin, bought a house, set up a wholesale lumber business and knew how to work in such a way that his company now owns 54 houses, which ftall are listed by street and number. Woe to the builder who only needed a few beams for his new house from Mr. Ehrlich took!

These beams look exactly like those of the Holländermichel in the Haufſchen fairy tale. before anyone who is with Mr. A. Ehrlich entered into any business relationship! Three times

But woe to every craftsman who works for Mr. Ehrlich in his houses took over the work!

The author's depictions are downright horrifying. Ehrlich probably never paid without a trial, and at this The craftsmen literally perished in these lawsuits. The tricks There was no craftsman to match Mr. Ehrlich's skills.

The vice landlords and tenants were pure objects of exploitation. That is right, that is how it had to happen, so that finally the Germans the eyes – are far from opening.

Mr. Ehrlich is finally sentenced to a harsh prison sentence for pimping– sentenced to punishment, but was pardoned. Unfortunately, the author It is not clear who was involved in the mediation. I I have my own thoughts about this. A second charge of Mr. A. Ehrlich evaded usury, extortion and fraud by death.

Now Mr. Moritz Ehrlich, the son of the deceased, is Owner of the 54 houses, and according to the brochure, this exceeds fhis father. Mr. Bolle, now the largest dairy owner in Berlin, is said to have been brought down by Mr. A. Ehrlich, when he, equipped with great means, opened a number of houses and put Mr. Ehrlich in the hands of fell. Mr. Bolle did not despair, but rather took part in an honorable– business enterprise. Such tension– But only a few have the strength. Even the Burchardt brothers, known in Berlin as “Tapeten–Burchardt”, tells so many things happen. The father is in chains in prison– died, the sons are now multi-millionaires, one of them is Royal Court Supplier. One of these brothers is said to have his own Office only for “change of goods”, of course only for high Gentlemen. The former owner of the Orpheum, Mr. Bente, owed one of the brothers an insignificant sum, which was used as a mortgage: But he had awakened the appetite and the up– attracted attention. Mr. Burchardt acquired with victims another mortgage that was issued for a Hamburg bank on the Property was registered and then brought the same despite punctual Interest payment for the forced sale. He should pay a full million earned.

= 9.

In the processes described so far, it is mainly on the building contractor, and the construction workers fall just incidentally into ruin.

But with the actual fake buildings, it is especially aimed at this.

There are countless people in Berlin, including builders, who, completely destroyed by Judaism, to this at mercy and 1 surrender. How is that possible? Bufch, whose masterly humorous illustrations therefore appeal to us so much cozy and always interesting because they have deep psychological observations, leads us to the monkey Fips, who fits enemies Grippe, the cat, and Schnipps, the Dog, treated so cruelly and shamefully that she be filled with the greatest respect and with the greatest pleasure. Among the ruined Master builders, real, qualified master builders, will be given an chosen, with which the following sophisticated fraud is put into action:

A building plot is left to the builder. The The highest possible purchase price is entered as the first mortgage The construction begins. The absolutely necessary money is where the Hebrew owner standing in the background provided, but all construction workers will be charged with the Payment at a later date, possibly until the end of the If you absolutely do not want to wait, you will probably receive a Small thing. Will the rush of the suspicious Craftsmen, who all invested their small capital in the construction ftucked away, too big, then one fine day the builder is gone— disappeared. Even if it is finally found, it turns out out that he lives in a small room with table, bed etc. and has absolutely nothing. He has a comfortable life at the expense of the Jew year spent.

The house is being sold forcibly. workers also register their claim, what use is it to them? Because of the high deposit, they cannot bid. So the Jew a house in which the floors, stairs, windows, Water pipes, stove, wallpapering and painting, roofs, Mb— flow tubes etc. don't cost a penny and usually look very nice= And the craftsmen? Yes, about their fate 4 the newspapers nothing. But don't go straight with Ver— respect and noble self—confidence when you are in the gutter= ftone a totally drunk, ragged person lying or lead a group of arrested vagabonds past the police You see, who knows why they have sunk so low!

What you are now, I was too,

| What I am, you can become!

But if you see a commercial councillor walking past, of any charitable foundation, for my part, such a for the betterment of the fallen, whose generous protector he is. If you visit someone, do not take off your hat too devoutly:

knows how he or his ancestors rose so high!

3

ee

– 34 –

It's a pity, a pity that Leibnitz has been gone for so long. I would have would have liked to have seen a face with which he could Factually our world is the best of all conceivable worlds clarified! Yes, if it weren't for the Jews!

These days the Roman bath in Zimmer Street is were forcibly sold. About a million were lost – gone. It was built by a Jew, Hoffmann, who ran a cafe in Vienna. He came to Berlin at the instigation of the Jewish company Fedor Berg in Beffel=Straße.

Last year, a Jewish company with 17 new
A Jewish friend of the company owner in Beffel=
Street bought all the houses at the foreclosure auction.
How much champagne might both of them have consumed that evening,
when the last house was purchased! |

Joseph in Egypt could almost be jealous of these people= become addicted! And yet these are just bunglers compared to our present-day money and grain Jews.

I cannot leave the chapter Jew and Craftsman, without even looking at the delivery system. It leaves fimperially all authorities do not accept the terrible accusation fave that they are in almost all deliveries, which are State funds amounting to many millions are involved, the Jews, rejp. prefer their middlemen. Sometimes this Preference has an almost sinister character

A very capable tailor friend of mine in Köpenicker Straße had a delivery for the post office actually made the lowest demand. Nevertheless, the same into Jewish hands.

How is that possible? The Jew knows the means and ways, to obtain the supplies that were hidden from the Germans fhe fuffices, and even if he knew them, he would never because his honor does not allow it. If he does it once, he will surely fall in. Some of these means and ways we will get to know in the chapter "Jew and Official" learn. Through their deliveries, many Jews have become more= multi-millionaires. We just name the companies Sachs & Co., Mohr & Speyer, Lachmann and others. We want not claim that these are not real companies and good delivered, but what blessing would it bring if the millions, which fall into the hands of the suppliers, partly for the benefit of the state come, partly directly into the hands of the producers. Making The craftsmen have to sell the goods anyway, but the profit flows into the pockets of the suppliers. Our craftsmen would not have sunk to such a low level if he had the state and Reich deliveries. One should not object that the authorities in dealing with the individual craftsmen much would have more work and would have to employ more civil servants. The few. Officials would be concerned about the well-being of one of the most important Estates pay a thousandfold, and no parliament in the world would dare to refuse to employ such officials.

In addition, the state no longer needs to employ a single civil servant—suppose, if he, instead of dealing with the individual craftsmen, act, would establish direct relations with the guilds. The military authorities have made a weak start, by ordering a number of supply wagons directly from the wheelwright. The head master of the guild has appointed the work distributed to his guild comrades, who have a nice Grofchen money earned, the authority is inexpensive and well served and the officials have not been found guilty of bribery yet. May all authorities do so, and the first step towards the rebirth of an independent craftsman—its would be done. When purchasing products from the country—Economically, in recent years, we have also started to deal directly with the producers. In the case of direct submissions only guild masters are allowed to do so. The officer class It would be advisable to have fine uniforms and other equipment directly from skilled craftsmen. Why buy the officers, why do all the Johanniter buy legal and Honorary knights, as well as a large part of the district administrators, higher foresters Tax— and police officers their uniforms etc. at the company Mohr & Speyer, which is certainly not cheap? Why a large part of the senior Reichspost officials buy their supplies at Sachs & Co.? How many craftsmen, who are certainly not worse, but would deliver much cheaper, could live from this and as independent master craftsmen occupy a respected position! My master tailor Möller in Krausen—Straße explained to me, that he, like all other masters, wears these uniforms at highest quality workmanship at 33 pCt. cheaper and yet earn good money. I don't want to be bitter, but the authorities and official persons, I cannot spare the accusation, that they participate in the overgrowth of Judaism and the decline of the craft with incomprehensible shortsightedness. This has embarrassed me, and certainly thousands of others, that the dowry of the present Crown Princess of Greece—country, the company Gerfon delivered and yet countless thousands

The hands of German workers have produced the works of art and also the drawings designed. The Jew pocketed the money, and his services are praised by all the newspapers in the world. Should the art= fent Creator of all the splendors not without mediation of a Jewish merchant? Has one but the most precious piece, the bridal veil, without such mediation Shouldn't at least the German companies Rudolf Hertzog, Heefe, Gebr. Buſch and others, of whom we know, that their workforce is paid very decently, with the Jewish company Gerson in terms of value for money and elegant design= leadership can compete?

How to become an army supplier, the following small Give an illustration to the event. At a local shoe= A young man named Nolte learned shoemaking from a master maker.

| ji

i

=e A

craft, and he also learned cutting. He then joined Jacobi's leather business as a tailor, König=Straße, because it is well known that in the leather shops the flicensing is already partly concerned. The same person carried out experiments here with canvas and made shoes from it. Mr. Jacobi soon found that the invention of his cutter was practically He submitted the sailing shoes to the army administration and was applauded. Instead of asking these leather merchants to moods that were made public in his time, for To reward the invention of his cutter, he was appointed Army supplier for sailing shoes and knapsacks. However, the regulation is that army suppliers have their own tannery had to own, so he bought the tannery from Naumann.

A comment on this is superfluous. The inventions are made by Germans, the Jews become great because of it.

I will give another example of this last sentence as extra encore.

A master plumber in Silesia had in his leisure hours Chains made of zinc and copper. Through the touch Both metals are known to generate electricity, but not as he assumed, permanently, since the shiny surfaces soon oxidize. In front of the chains he had a wrapped in a shawl Pieces of sulphur were hung. It was a harmless game.

The right to manufacture these chains was acquired from him by a Jewish schoolmaster Goldberger, turned the distribution into a World business, all newspapers echoed with the praise of this Chains that were supposed to eliminate rheumatism (ö). In sulfur In any case, the same should accumulate and could then be: loved ones. These rheumatism chains, against who finally had to warn the police, Mr. Goldberger is became a rich man, his sons, Commercial Councillor Goldberger and Consul General Goldberger, have used the money to Bank, are multi-millionaires, are now directors of the international bank and jointly with other similar banks throughout Europe. Without their will, Europe can Nothing major should be undertaken. | |

And this has to do with zinc=copper waste
A master plumber done it!

Jew and worker.

The word worker does not in and of itself refer to a specific Stand. Anyone who exemplifies positive, spiritual or material values= has the right to use the honorary title of worker for fic Since it is essentially only the Jews fthose who stay away from the production of material values, fo the term worker contains a certain opposition to Judaism But people have become accustomed to seeing among workers a to understand a very specific class of people who are not independent, but for the account of others with the creation of positive values or engaged in other physical work. With the increasing large-scale industry, the working class has also mainly at the expense of the ee increased and is still increasing daily through new arrivals of craftsmen, farmers, merchants and civil servants, all of whom lost their independence Although the worker has fulfilled all civic duties has to fulfill, in particular the duty to defend the fatherland with its Blood, as a result of which at least in Germany enjoys all the rights of a citizen, the situation of the same is a rather regrettable one. Competition on the world market pushes down the price of the products, and since the manufacturer, still but more the merchant seeks to make a big profit, fuch the wages of the worker are reduced as much as possible. Especially In times of major business slowdowns, it is exposed to the worst social Exposed to dangers. Illness and incapacity to work as well as every accident led to his ruin until recently. Princely House of Hohenzollern, its socialist direction always has begun to free the worker from his oppressive

Be nes

 The laws on health, accident and Disability insurance funds bear witness to this. The full effect of the Only the future will show. Nevertheless, the situation of the Workers are still quite depressed. We will try to to be proven by calculation. Let us imagine a worker's family, consisting of husband, wife and 2 children, and take we assume that the man has the relative BR earnings of 18 marks per week. The following weekly expenses must of these 18 marks must be disputed under all circumstances.

a) 1 (0ofwohnung von Stube and kitchen. . . Mark 4.00 0 classmates 8 " 0.25

 Class tax, 3rd tax bracket 12.00 Mark " 0, 25
 d) Lunch daily Mark 0.60 . . N " 420
 e) Bread. " 1.50
 f) 1 kilo of lard (butter must not be baptized 3 , : " 1.60
 g) Bathing goods, daily Mark 0.20. 8 8 " 1.40
 h) Mart 0 and light on average daily
 t 0.20 ar » 1.40 0 ei (rye and eichoria) e wm oh » 0.35
 k) Mi " 0.35
 l) Beer or liquor daily Mark 0, 10 „ 0, 70
 m) Contribution to the various funds .. " 0.40
 Mark 16:40

consequently, there remains for clothing, laundry, procurement the most necessary tools and business
 fts of property an amount remaining of . . " 1.60

Mark 18.00

u,

1 fhall the means for any extraordinary Expenditure may be incurred, e.g. 25 cents per day for milk, if the Child is still an infant and the mother in her powerless life because the breast cannot reach, furthermore in case of illness or Deaths in the family, births, blessings, etc.?
 Should a child have high talents for an art or science show, then training them cannot be considered at all.
 It is precisely these untrained talents that we find, if not a kind fate puts them on the right path, later in the breeding

The worker, however, who regularly works weekly Anyone who earns 18.00 marks is already an aristocrat among his peers. The Reichspost pays its assistant postmen and assistant workers daily Mark 2.00 and 2.25, the same amount the railway pays its Workers. Of course, the assistant postmen arrive after 10 to 12 years of service for permanent employment, and the railway workers are used as auxiliary brakes, where they are used for kilometers—funds to generate additional income, but to more than 18.00 Marks They will not come weekly. But what should one do about the Garden Administration of the City of Berlin, which charges its workers for daily 12 hours of work weekly Mark 12.00, say twelve Mark. In winter, some of them are laid off completely, then of course occasionally employed as a snow shoveler. Whoever the readers want to undertake the feat of accounting according to— How do these people survive? It is said that the a could also earn something, but how is that possible, if she has a large number of children, a child in her arms and lives with another in hope! Was such a Garden workers are unable to work after 15 to 20 years of service, he became a poor man. I had such a case 2 years ago experienced it myself. A worker Reinicke was after 15 years of loyal Work in consequence of indebtedness of his next superior from the high— and became unable to work. Everything Possible tried even to send a petition to the — to get him a pension, but all in vain. With What feeling must this man, formerly a respected farmer, receive the poor relief, which gives him a part of his ftitular rights and forces him to fave his legacy— fity, which not entirely improbably includes inheritances, to the city? The new social policy laws have also created a remedy for such a case. But the workers— circumstances require a thorough change for the better, No intelligent person can deny this. However, in many cases the presented classes of insight into the true fate of the worker and form their opinion from individual, blatantly apparent outgrowths.

The Manchester doctrine of the free play of forces and the rejection of any state interference in the economic conditions have caused the greatest disadvantage to the working class. brought luck. Just as an unarmed man cannot defend himself against heavily armed, even if air and light are equal distributed, the capitalless worker can hardly fight against the capitalist strong employer, even if he does not have the equal political rights. His slavery must be abolished in time worse than ever, because previously the slave owner had at least a material interest in the labor of his

— 86 =x

To keep slaves as long as possible. Representatives of the Manchesterity in Germany are the Jews and those in the service of the

the same political parties. When the state made a gesture, to break with Manchester, he encountered the fiercest Resistance of the Jewish parties. The struggle of the state, the the economically weak forces against the draining by the Capital, i.e. essentially against the Jews, with those parties that continue to oppose capitalist exploitation want to keep a clear path, fills the history of the last ten The state could hope that the workers would organize and join forces on his side.

He could hope that the workers would set themselves achievable goals and would strive for these with united strength. Without question, the state aims to create an unto seek a solid foundation for his strength. Acceptance was allowed

He admittedly believes that human nature, as it is, demands have been made here and there to the class that has been plagued for so long would be unfulfillable, but he counted on the-funde judgment of the great masses of the people. "Raise Germany only in the saddle", Bismarck once said, "it will be able to ride".

Here Judaism, the first enemy of the working class, committed a crime that surpassed all previous crimes-and can never be atoned for. It has systematically mis-trust sown between the state and the working class, the organized People's forces through the most useless machinations against the State incited, destroyed the living connection and the state, which had set itself such an ideal task as never before a state, partially paralyzed. Judaism sought to cut the thread of a healthy development, by pointing the workers to the revolution. In the chapter "The Jew and Politics" we will examine this in more detail.

Meanwhile, the Jew forces the worker more and more into his services and exploits him in the most shameful way, whereby he

'I still boast, the best friend of the same too fine. The

In his eyes he wants the best of them, namely the Money. Horrible mockery of the human race! Every single

Worker knows where the shoe pinches, but if they are together, fo nobody knows anything about it, because one person is afraid of the other fhamed. In the form of installment deals, pawnshops, through

Clearance sales of fraudulent goods, by increasing the prices of Workers' housing as a result of fraudulent land speculation

tions, artificial increase in the price of all necessities of life, the Jewish millions and millions of workers and built his magnificent palaces for it. Almost in all later

We will return to this horrific activity in the following chapters.

= e

Jew and civil servant.

The civil service is much more dependent on craftsmen and workers—often viewed with a certain envy. The same has a firm mefen income, strictly regulated working hours and provision for the old age. The aim of social democracy is to Essentially, to make every citizen a civil servant—That is why so many parents strive to make their sons into a civil service career, and every mother is happy if her daughter has an official as her son-in-law in the House. And yet there is so much hidden in the civil service It is unfortunate that he deserves the crown in this respect. At least 60 percent of all officials are in debt and owed to the Jew—ity as a mindless prey. In the past, this was not the case. Prussia in particular had every reason to rely on its civil service to be proud. The greatest princes from the House of Hohenzollern could only carry out their social reforms with absolute loyalty to duty and incontestability of the civil service. A ver—Debt was never tolerated and was always met with dismissal punished, but neglect of duty is punished with the harshest punishments. Friedrich Wilhelm J. had one of the highest administrative official in Königsberg who had embezzled state funds without Further hanging, although he offered to pay the missing money The Prussian civil service enjoyed success under him and under the reign of his son, a world-famous figure. The Befol= The training of officials was then, even if one considers the changed Taking food prices into account, a much lower figure than now. The state was then too poor to provide its servants with a comfortable To be able to provide for one's life. Since that time, income has increased. of the officials more and more increased, here and there is even a Nevertheless, the situation of the civil servant—fts constantly deteriorated and is currently a completely un—The uninitiated cannot possibly understand this—He must say to himself as a reasonable person: The official has a certain income that he has to make do with. If he restricts his needs, as is the duty of every poor people, he can still make savings that once Children benefit. $7\frac{1}{4}$ of all civil servants are in debt, they simply do not understand how to organize themselves economically and raise Claims that do not apply to them. But if this is the case, then one can rightly proclaim: "Finis Germaniae"! These the civil service, which is made up of all sections of the population layers would indicate a depravity of the whole people, which would bring about a rapid downfall. But there is no reason for this unfortunate state of affairs, thank you Bott.

inner, moral corruption, in most cases not easy-sense or a too expensive lifestyle, but the destruction is brought about from outside, by Judaism. The civil service, like the other classes, is subject to the cunning of Judaism not – as been. The same has first caught individuals and through these with the help of Guarantees, which a friend denies to a friend, always further circles were drawn into misfortune. Only after the officials were completely gagged up to the top, the Jewish system with its actual goals. Instead of all further Discussions I leave the life story of Rector Bombe which I wrote and published 4 years ago in the Staatsbürger newspaper published.

Victims of usury.

From time to time the audience is informed by news chatter, in which the announcement is made that an official laid hands on himself because, as he usually laconically continues, means, has been pressed too hard by fine creditors and that Life had become unbearable for him. Such news find only the symptoms of a in the circles of the bureaucracy existing evil, which is secretly spreading in a terrifying manner cease and only outwardly manifests itself through such incidents This evil consumes like a creeping poison on the brand of bureaucracy and requires a number of victims that is even greater than is generally known. It is precisely the civil service with its precisely fixed income, which therefore governs itself according to very specific norms, is exposed to this evil and falls victim to it to a far greater extent than any other profession, namely the most harmful of all trades: usury. Because it is precisely the steady and secure income that attracts those dark Men of honour who, against unaffordable percentages, “Humanity” and encourages them to effortlessly Acquisitions. On the other hand, however, it is precisely for the civil service that Exploitation by usurers is doubly dangerous, because with their fixed income, usually calculated on the necessary subsistence come, it is not possible for them to incur extraordinary expenses They are usually not able to deny a larger sum at once and therefore see themselves, if you ever need the help of such a “friend of humanity” have taken advantage of the loan and are unable to repay the loan amount to be able to repay on the due date; then they proceed to Prolongation, to which the “philanthropist” is also willing can be found, of course against due “compensation”; among the skillful hands of the usurer, the initially relatively moderately small sum with frightening speed into the giant robe, and soon the official is no longer able to

Jinfen for the increased capital, although he continued= while paid and the originally borrowed amount has long since with interest and compound interest. This is how it goes for some Years until the usurer made a good deal + and nothing loses more, even if he does not receive a penny more. Is it jo far, then the mask of humanity is removed thrown. The noose is tightened and the victim is lost.

=

But how is it that the official, despite his firm intention= comes into the situation of having to resort to the help of usurers gain weight?

Considering that the state and the municipality are doing everything they can to to create a carefree existence for their officials, to give them a to grant a reasonable income, one may, because of this advantage, omniffie will probably be suspicious.

The impartial judge must say to himself: The official has a fixed income that he knows exactly for the next few years. He has to arrange for this and also ensure that in case of emergency a nr is available. If he does this not, he has to take all the consequences on himself. In debt, especially in usurious debts, he cannot, without his own fault, come.

Is the civil service so uneconomical, reckless or wasteful that, despite their sometimes quite ample income, coming so massively falls prey to usury?

In its generality, the question must undoubtedly be answered in the negative become.

But where is the cause of the civil servants' debt to be found? We have studied this question for years and believe to have come to a final judgment. However, in order to In order to find my understanding, we needed a concrete case. We had to face a closed civil service life from beginning to to the end in all its nu: can follow, and that this only Everyone will understand that this is possible in very isolated cases.

When Professor Klinker= committed suicide some time ago fues, who was in front of his pressing creditors sought rest in the grave, and in which the fatherland a force first rank, we made every effort to to collect sufficient material to use this case to to start a fight against usury, but in vain.

The Gabriel case, which the city of Berlin has dealt with far more than 100,000 Mk. had to pay, would be suitable for this, but the exact details were missing. A few weeks ago, the headmaster Ernst Bombe poisoned himself in a cab, who as a writer and teacher of commercial sciences in- wide was known in circles. Various circumstances came together, to let us know exactly what this man's circumstances are, and Therefore, we choose this case in order to fight the battle against one of the most horrific dark sides of our modern culture, the proliferation of the civil service, to begin 2

We first give the bare facts.

On Monday, 4th of March, an acquaintance met the rector Bomb in a post office at Potsdamer Tor, where he was busy. He looked very pale, but answered to some questions in a very calm manner.

In the evening, a servant in the Bombe's apartment delivered a package of documents to the apartment. The oldest, fourteen-year-old daughter opened it and found the following at the top- the letter:

"Berlin, January 4, 1886, 4:30 p.m.
Dear Johanna!

I say goodbye to you and my 6 dear children forever! My worries are overwhelming me - I can't live this life full of mental anguish, could no longer bear it. Harassed and persecuted by I don't know what to do on all sides. I have been struggling with myself for a long time fought and struggled - ah! I would have loved to have my those children to whom my whole heart is attached. For their: For this reason, it is difficult for me to say goodbye to life.

On the attached pages you will find my latest dispositions.

I thank Karl and Louise, Kunert and Buffe and Siegert for all the good you have shown me. May you loved ones have a be better off when I am no longer here.

I urge my dear children to be faithful to one another and to stand by you. |

Farewell!
Forgive
Your unfortunate father.

postscript.

Now it is 7 o'clock! I am still struggling with myself. Oh, that is more than a hundred deaths!

It must be!

Farewell!

Ernst.

The attached notes contained provisions regarding the School, funeral, distribution of a portion of the dead-funds to individual creditors etc.

Mrs. Bombe wandered through the streets during the night searching Berlin and found her husband the next morning as Corpse in the Charité. |

On the 9th of March, the Rector Bombe was shot at the Georgen-churchyard buried.

Apart from his superior and many colleagues, un-Counted crowds of former students at the coffin, and the tears the latter showed what the Rector Bombe had said to the schoolchildren entrusted to him.

A heart-rending prayer of the clergyman, a dull voice sound of earth falling on the coffin, and everything was over.

Over? No! We think that the light that shines from this grave radiates forth, shall fall into the dark night, which fills itself quietly and scary to many of our fellow citizens, especially to the officials=

ft, has lowered, To show the outrageous exploitation, the

This class in particular has fallen victim to this, and the countless Men prematurely laid in the grave, abroad, in prison-niffe, into the madhouses, into despair.

The life of Rector Bombe is almost typical for the running track of an infinite number of officials of all categories.

Ernst Bombe, born in 1836 in Kottbus, came in 1859 to Berlin to get a job as an elementary school teacher in the Ge-to seek municipal services. |

But every teacher who aspired to such a position had to at that time initially for a number of years at a Berlin private-school. The private school principals therefore never lacked of applicants, and accordingly they paid for a teacher who they fully and completely exploited, an extremely small sum, about 300 thalers annually. In case of long-term illnesses, conscription to Military 2c. this salary was also lost. Exceptions were made, but very rarely. That especially many parish teachers in the high and highest salary levels in extremely broken relationships—nisen live, has fine reason in the above. The current City School Councilor Dr. Bertram, who has eliminated this evil, is said to This will not be forgotten by the teaching staff.

Ernst Bombe went to Berlin with rare energy to the Filling the gaps in his knowledge and skills, so that he can years several languages, but especially the commercial sciences completely mastered.

After five years of service, he was appointed with a salary of 300 thalers. employed as a parish teacher.

Now he married, trusting in his work, at the age of 28.

It happened as is often the case in marriages where If the husband has a moderate income, any further material reason—situation is missing. Two children were born in quick succession – i both died after a long illness. Then the woman became ill, in order to also, after two years of very painful illness, die. Of course, in these sad years, the The available funds are far from sufficient to cover the emergency—most necessary expenses. An unavoidable credit need. To satisfy such a need for credit, At that time, however, there were none for the official, and even now there are only few adequate measures were taken. Relatives and relatives knew who were approached for a loan, but they refused.

And now came the moment that finally in the life of the most young officials once, the unconditional advice= At this unfortunate moment he encountered a Mr. Max Cohn. This gentleman willingly lent him= willingly pay 50 thalers for 3 months against deposit of his voca—tion and a change.

Since his wife's illness continued, the 50 thalers not be repaid, and now he has been threatened with Complaint and report to the authorities forced to pay per Thaler and

= AR i

Monthly interest of 50 Pf. to be paid, ie 200 pCt. pa Uner= fear, terrible distress, false shame, the fear of the—hear, the hope of soon still a slightly interest-bearing to obtain loans, everything contributed to getting him into these nets and this is exactly what happened to thousands of officials.

There is no escape from these nets.

The interest consumed the salary to a large extent, and since the woman's illness was not cured, a new Credit source should be sought, which of course has similar conditions In particular, a Mrs. M. later turned out to be a creditor She only charged 6 pCt. per month, that is 72 pCt. pa, also deferred the interest, which then became the capital were struck and charged interest. A debt of 300 thalers. Ral under these circumstances the entire salary in interest away. Now everyone can calculate how fine relationships Jeon when his wife died after two years of illness.

This fight with his believers, whose number eventually reached 25, Ernst Bombe fought for 21 years.
incites, sues, his energy never dies out.

He worked with incredible strength, always hoping, end= ly to get a low-interest loan somewhere, big enough to pay off all his debts. In this hope, he pushed his debts forward from quarter to quarter, always paying the high interest. The second wife brought 600 thalers. into marriage with, but it was a drop in the ocean, especially since the expenses again increased significantly; because 6 children were born in short intervals, some of whom were sick for a long time. |

Essentially, we are interested in the design of fine locations after publication of the usury law in 1881.

But before we go into this, we must ask ourselves a question answer that is obvious to every reasonable person:

Why did Ernst bomb after he had separated from the unsustainability of his circumstances, not his numbers lungs?

The legal benefit of bankruptcy, through which a merchant fease from a situation that has become untenable, the official is not at his side, but the salary deduction procedure is yes, also a legal benefit. He would be, since his authority because of his outstanding achievements he has since been appointed Rector of the 59th community school, with a significant salary of 3180 Mk. plus free accommodation and heating, even after the salary deduction procedure is more than sufficient amount left over.

The authority, which in such cases is sometimes on the disciplinary path, would hardly remove him from office removed because his official performance was outstanding and there is no evidence of his lavish life could be.

he ee:

_ To understand why this did not happen and almost never happens until it is too late, we must remember that first

e every official conceals his indebtedness for as long as possible.

m. talented officials, such as Rector Bombe, also find on the part of their less important colleagues in and of themselves all sorts of exposed to malice. According to Schopenhauer, it is an unavoidable irreversible feature of human nature that intellectually inferior men everything is easier to forgive in others than outstanding talent, as woman knows no greater crime against others than her=nn beauty. The relationships among the officials differ of course, no different from those of the rest of humanity.

All the more, Bombe did not want to give anyone the satisfaction allow yourself to learn something about your indebtedness.

A collection of the Mo-biliars, as it was requested by the creditors before the initiation of the salary deduction procedure is always initiated, completely destroys the reputation of an official not only among acquaintances, but in the entire neighborhood. But if Bombe had all this over him he had to accept this outrageous exploitation system continue to comply, because of the guarantors. As soon as the moneylenders Believing that they have tied up their victim tightly enough, they demand Prolongations the guarantee of one or more officials. This Unfortunately, guarantees are also granted in most cases: Rector Bombe was generally known as a solid, hardworking and extremely humble man. How could probably an acquaintance who asked for a guarantee in confidence was made, they would reject it. To harm these guarantors, His honorable character did not allow it, and in addition, everyone fearing the worst from the authorities, the colleague in this financial ruin. Therefore, the enormous Let's keep on towing.

In 1881 the usury law was published. fame essentially determines: "Whoever the frivolity, the indifference= fahrenheit, or the plight of a person to attain higher, than paying or promising the usual interest rates, will be punished for usury." Of inexperience and recklessness This cannot be said for older, permanently employed civil servants,

It is up to the judge to decide whether the emergency situation has been exploited. If a maximum interest rate were set, beyond which eo ipso If usury existed, this law would have a beneficial effect. We see very well that in the case of unfunded loans, interest= rate of 10 to 15 pCt. would not be too high. But as it is, under the usury law, conditions that defy description and the entire fatherland by corrupting the civil service, with serious dangers. To understand this, let us return back to the bomb case.

When the usury law was published, all Creditors get their money. Those creditors who do not have guarantors now acted ruthlessly. |

The collection and the public 1 of the furniture did take place. the salary was seizable for years seized. The remaining creditors, to whom Bombe secured had provided guarantors, withdrew from personal contact, but hired agents who now worked with the Rector Bombe as with the countless indebted officials in relationships occurred.

These agents now came to the fore.

The Institute of Agents, alias Money Brokers, for Usury= There are currently around 50 people in Berlin who are with each other in close relationships, have their meetings and are informed about all the affairs and relationships of their Victims are well informed. Their activity consists in making changes. to "buy" and then sell them back to the lender= buy in order to conceal the usury. Handing over the purchase money to the person seeking money will of course a damno deducted, which fih between 80 and 120 pt. pa In addition, they demand a reasonable compensation. That occasionally an agent the entire money= fum is nothing unusual and especially the Rector met three times, once with the sum of 1600 marks. The financier stands as an unknown fate in the background and guides the secret paths of his creatures with invisible threads.

If a lender enters into direct contact with the loan seeker relationships, which is still to be regarded as a favorable case he protects himself against the usury law in the simplest way: He grants a loan at 6 pCt. interest pa, pays half in cash, the rest in cigars, wine etc. The price of these Goods (and what kind!) was an "appropriate" one, he can certify in writing. If he thinks so, he buys these goods for a small jofort back again. Otherwise the help= fearching officials even put these more than worthless things in his dwelling. That they are not suitable for enjoyment, everyone will say to themselves. But what impression does it make on the neighbors, who usually see the distressed situation of a fowed officials know when they fet the 1 fty labeled wine arrive, while the children until then Maybe there was a lack of bread?! A financier in Straßburgerstraße flooded the Rector Bombe with cigars, which ber = today as unusable in the hands of the surviving relatives find. -

Since the publication of the usury law, however, the the money men and agents strive to create artificial criminal cases to construct in which the money seeker may possibly be involved would be, in order to be thoroughly secured against the fact that the In his desperation he finally sought the protection of the law. In this way they create a denunciation from a third party, in the latter case even the best means of protection. In this respect, too, Rector Bombe has sufficient evidence-experiences. The ones under the letter B. at the official

Bills of exchange claims received in Berlin under Article I come to the En No. 26 for the hearing. The District Judge Volkmann, who worked here until his transfer to another department several years, had a deep insight into the Official misery and handed over incoming complaints as soon as he usury, without further ado to the public prosecutor. Here- Of course, Berlin's financiers and agents got into great excitement.

During the preliminary investigation by the public prosecutor following the denunciation filed by District Judge Volkmann- ciation, a major donor in the Neuenburgerstrasse was in danger. But he had a bomb from the headmaster a note, which we will discuss in more detail below. On the basis of this appearance he had Rector Bombe released from the- various sides, threatened him with denunciation- ziation at the authorities and the public prosecutor's office, and Rector Bombe actually arranged his statements in such a way that the investigation did not He would otherwise perhaps have been, like many others, Officials, escaped from the hands of the usurers.

In this construction of artificial criminal cases, Agents and money men have been brought to an unheard of skill, and one must shudder to think of all that has already been is prepared.

First, every money man demands the following certificate: Here- I hereby certify that I live in regulated circumstances and I have no bills of exchange. My furniture is my unlimited Property. I use the money for a beach trip, purchase of gold items x. Of course, the official has bills of exchange debts, says this also to the lender; the latter, or the agent, declares, that the whole thing is just a formality. The money seeker signs in his distress and the first point to threaten him to intimidate with a denunciation of fraud, if – The furniture belongs according to Brandenburg marriage law, if it is brought in by the wife, then she alone. Here, too, a second presentation of false facts. The third passage shall protect against the later possible objection that the emergency exploited, is also ideally suited to the officials occasionally to lower the general esteem; because that the same in his sad situation never had such luxury as stated in the certificate, has permitted, only the next acquaintances.

Everyone will of course, despite all the explanations, that the whole is absolutely meaningless, have the greatest reservations about such a to sign, but the terrible distress, the hope, that salvation is near, and as it says in "Kabale und Love"? "They did it cunningly!" This prelude is then followed by illegal wage pledges and even worse Things.

49 –

Now the Beante is well prepared and is plundered until he either like a bomb and a thousand other dead tired volunteers dies, or like one of Bombe's acquaintances, the Ministerial Secretary H., ends up in the madhouse, or finally, as e.g. the founder of the "Pädagogische Zeitung" and the German civil servants' association, both of which are now flourishing, his office The latter was recently given to one of the most capable teachers and most capable music teachers in Berlin. Most of the time these people are so shaken inside that they can no longer even be able to formulate and implement a systematic plan. The Criminal wins, his victim bears the shame due to him still on top.

To show this with a concrete example,
We now want to try to answer the following questions:

1) What attempts has Rector Bombe made to get to the to withdraw from knitting? |

3 Where to find the usurers and agents?

3) What is the extent of the proliferation of the civil service assumed?

4) How can help be provided?

Before we answer the first question, let us ask we ourselves: Was in the 1 of the Rector Bomb, refp. this family, to find any point that fo rapidly to= increasing indebtedness? According to the most detailed and most reliable information, we must definitely ask this question We can, with a clear conscience, deny all persons who who have ever been in the Bombe family, to witness this— for calling for the fact that rarely in a family in a similar position of budget was managed with fewer resources than in this one. The apartment, which the family had occupied for eight years, cost annually 450 M. Miethe, while the city to the Rector Bombe paid a rent compensation of 600 M. Mrs. Bombe has in in the 17 years of their marriage never visited a theater, is never a social pleasure, has her six children alone fed and educated, has never had the help of a maid in= claimed and the clothing of the boys and girls alone made.

The children were considered famous throughout the neighborhood and in the schools they attended for a model of decency and cleanliness. Rector Bombe has, apart from the fact that He sometimes after the end of the lesson on the last day before during the holidays with his teaching colleagues in a public place never participated in festivities, nor for a long time in a public place.

He never played cards, nor did he had considerable needs.

Sometimes, however, he is in a confectionery shop reading Journals have been made; but since he was in the often short time between two private hours fine apartment not reach and in case of bad

4

Weather could not stay on the street, so he had to look for accommodation somewhere.

He has been trying to escape from the entanglement of the usurers for 17 years to redeem through the most strenuous, one may well say most unheard-of work and by the effort to create a larger, low He has what we would have without the most direct evidence would never believe, as Rector year after year rke 63, previously as a teacher even 70 teaching hours per week granted.

He has carried out his duties with the greatest conscientiousness managed and especially in his lessons, which are inspiring had an effect on the children, found forgetfulness and gained new strength-gathers for further work. Even before the start of school- He taught young merchants, as well as the end of school. From 2-4 o'clock he taught in families, from 5-9 o'clock in the commercial school of Fix, from 9½ -10½% in the evening He again gave commercial science lessons to merchants- people, and only then could he pursue his own scientific and to devote himself to literary work. That he did this successfully has, as evidenced by his collection of laws, his 1 be= works for teaching in further education schools, his churches- history and drawing books, which are available in many Berlin community schools introduced.

On Sundays he taught advanced training courses from 8am to 1pm. 0 from 2 to 4 o'clock in his fine apartment. At 5 o'clock he went fuh a commercial business, whose books he had kept for years- has led. i

His salary in recent years amounted to 3540 M. nebit 600 M. rent compensation and free heating. His year: cial additional income lasted for a number of years- by 3600 - 4000 M., ie the total income was fo great that, had he succeeded in improving his circumstances through to arrange a sufficient, low-interest loan, fhis Debts would have been quickly paid off and then a fortune- can collect.

He can prove by calculation that he has 17 years, about 70,000 marks were used to enrich the usurers- There was probably much more. Consider that this money from the beginning again led to usurious and that the bomb case is only one of thousands is, one will hardly be surprised, as it is for so many, who come here as the most miserable scroungers, succeed in a few years to accumulate a fortune and build magnificent palaces in to build the finest areas of the city; and on the other hand, one will the end of so many officials in madhouses, prisons, as Tramps in Australia or cowboys, waiters or street sweepers in America. The burial mounds of suicides form a necessary contrast to the magnificent palaces. Blessed are the children of the poor victims, if they serve messengers are received in the palaces! The council at the plans for the future of the Bombe children about Not to move beyond the most modest limits is Ms. Bomb has already been given. The children of the usurers are putting Of course, the business of their fathers did not continue. Several of them, one

= SE ==

3. B. as a high-ranking director, another as a commercial councillor, who already lives on fine pensions, are now making in – Volfs-happiness. |

Rector Bombe has, at his death, almost 30,000 Mark debts. However, this money is only partially paid off the usurers; for that is the bitter, truly devilish irony this, like many other civil servants' lives, that in the end the most honest and humane people who gave their money, to provide rescue to the disadvantaged. To achieve this ft, we must remember that Bombe has been tried to convert his high-interest debt into a low-interest That one individual cannot give up the entire sum It was to be expected that he would be able to borrow money. So he lent money here and there while concealing the full truth, larger or smaller Sums of money against little or no interest on gradual repayment. If he had acquired these sums of money at the same time, fuch would have helped him; fuch, however, he could only ever part of his debts, and the rest swelled in a short time again so that the help was in vain. The matter was here= by even worse; because Rector Bombe did not even get to it, to make even a significant partial payment to these honorable people The usurious creditors, or rather their agents, were lurking at the Salary days in and outside his home, in front of school, in the office rooms, in front of the apartments where he gave private lessons, in front of and in the city's main treasury, while others the different hours of the day in different locations in the city expected.

Dead tired and completely robbed, he arrived in the evening his apartment. These days of salary were probably the most frightening brightest of his life. For the decent creditors nothing remained left, and who can blame them, who finally for their goodwill nor their capital if they have lost the Rector Bombe made a very harsh judgment. The context in its totality they simply cannot understand, because it is lacks any experience in this area. That he has precisely this People, the fearsomeness of his last eyes– views have increased. This is not only evidenced by his repeated– brought complaints in his final dispositions, but also the Pe– mood that the funeral costs are kept to the lowest possible limited, but a part of the death benefit is paid to the individual creditors. But this deserves full recognition= recognition that before his death he had all colleagues who Are the means also those that one can only grasp shortly before death, but visibly revealed that his character remained noble until the last Moment.

= Js ==

But with what tenacity the usurers seized their victims—
know how to hold on to it, as they try to take away every possibility,
To free yourself from their clutches, follow this procedure:

2½ years ago, Bombe was close to being completely rescued
A Protestant clergyman had a number of capitalists found who were willing to pay a sufficiently large sum of money—together to release it completely. The release of a But of course this valuable sacrifice could not stop all the usury—believers, and there was no lack of attempts to to thwart plans.

One of the accountants of the above mentioned gentleman in the Neuenburgerstrasse actually managed to do this. The same was lurking near the Bombefe apartment, and went to one Sunday, when the family had just sat down to dinner, expected in the same.

This, full of happy hope and also the birthday of a child, had, to her greatest misfortune, a calf=
roast, a real, real roast veal on the table.
Now of course a gathering of the worst of the worst!

How can a man who is so burdened with debt allow such a luxury! There was much talk of a another rector who is in a similar situation.
you can have a flour soup, potato soup, potatoes and bacon,
On Sundays, fresh meat is also possible, but never find such waste! i

A deputation was sent to the clergyman concerned, and, what was even worse, to the people behind it, whose Names that Bombe had been coaxed out of him, to bring this case forward and since some of the gentlemen really came to believe, that the Bombe family was not thrifty enough,
the thing! N | |

Bomb continued to fight, now totally broken. Since then Thoughts of death were already on his mind. Only the thought of my Children, he often said, keep me from breaking down. The
The man in question in Neuenburgerstrasse now forced him to
To teach children two hours a day. This also reduced Bombe's income was significant.

| Now imagine this highly gifted and scientifically highly educated man, as he was treated by his creditors like a treated and scolded like a schoolboy and still must remain friendly and calm! Now imagine thousands and thousands of officials in this situation and then think of the consequences for the whole!

I am quite completely agree in condemning slavery of the antiquity, the servitude of the Middle Ages; but our advanced There seems to be no means to prevent the seizure of the victim of body and soul by the usurers. Even the whip of a slave overseer would make a man cannot cause unheard of and sustained feats of strength, as the modern usurers and their agents do with bombs and.

thousands of others could have done! Of course, the right of slaves= owners of antiquity to kill their worthless slaves, The modern slave owners do not have, but it is the same unnecessary, since the victims themselves, as the Bombe case proves, take this work off their hands.

We now come to the question: Where are the usurers and <- to look for agents?

If we answer the question where the usurers to search find, not with the full name of the person who people who have become known in this field, this has Firstly, the reason is that the "material" is too diverse, but then we are guided – and this is the main reason – by the The view that by naming names prematurely we may now would achieve just the opposite of what we intend, as we would have to fear giving the usurers new sacrifices, because in times of need some people might even do not shy away from turning to those for help, whom we want to warn and protect him. We will therefore only then come forward with full name mention when we have= testify that the person concerned has thoroughly mastered the craft is laid, and that this happens, we will, as far as possible in our strengths, that our contribution. We conceal by no means that we are faced with various difficulties that many people have not imagined will have to fight; but hopefully the fight

*

nevertheless not in vain.

There are about a dozen usurers in Berlin who large capitals, hundreds of thousands of thalers. Their Names are of course the least known, as they are only known by their

By the way, we have been doing business as a loyal, proven agent for years. They entertain city travelers who receive a daily salary of 10 marks and only with the confiscation of research. A bank in the center of the city opens the Reigen. The customers of these houses are served genuinely and pay maximum of 60 pCt. pa These include high-ranking officials. The most extravagant fantasy will hardly reach the top pull too far.

The above-mentioned company, which Bombe's last hope so mercilessly destroyed, works with not much smaller sums. In recent years she has mainly devoted herself to the army: The fact that it has already had a disastrous effect here is explained a captain who was known in the Bombe family and rushed to the first support of the same, on whose body He himself has rescued some comrades by Part of his fortune sacrificed. Of course! the comradely Spirit, which has made our officer corps an incomparable ornament in field, is in times of peace the hand of the usurers, in order to help not only the indebted officers but also the wealthy ones. The medium-sized companies with a capital of 2000 There are countless people who work for up to 30,000 thalers.

The annual profit, which after all losses still amounts to half of the invested capital, will certainly As soon as the usurers feel rich enough, they move withdraw from business. Their main customer base can be found under the subordinate officials of all ranks, clergy and teachers, Yeats: railway and postal officials, superiors and subordinates often wait in different rooms at the same time for processing.

Rank does not grant any preference here, only punctuality.

Among these usurers one finds the most outrageous crooks.

For example, a former cardboard box lived at Görlitzer Bahnhof-manufacturer Berndes, who started the business with 6000 Marks 13 years ago opened and at his death last year on the Reichs-bank had assets of 75,000 marks, while the Outfights were colossal. He still suffered great losses- However, a forgery had earned him 2 years in prison registered, but he needed it because of proven illness not to serve. It was the same "honorable man" who Editor, when the "Staatsbürger Zeitung" received a poor letter-carrier, whom he had thoroughly abused, through had his lawyer file a defamation lawsuit, which which ended with the editor of the "Staatsb.=Ztg."

spoken and the offended usurer in the knowledge not a declaration of honor was just made. But the lawsuit showed enough of what such a usurer thinks he can risk.

Near the Friedrichshain lives a former miller owner. He lacked the desire to work. Therefore, he sold He sold his property about 21 years ago and used the proceeds several thousand thalers into the hands of his wife, while he himself spent his life in contemplative peace and – religious writings
This woman has become one of the worst usurers developed. The most dangerous agents in Berlin are loyal to her to the side.

It is mainly to her that Rector Bombe owes his misfortune.
The recently escaped bailiff Bock 1 also has nor as an actor laid the foundation for his ruin. Unfortunately, he had not the moral strength of the Rector Bombe. When he could not save more, he gave himself over to gambling and drinking, and finally cheated Friends and acquaintances and became a fugitive. The world confuses Here again cause and effect, because Bock was formerly a dutiful official.

This Mr. Bock had also seized the property of the above lady.
gen to A On one Christmas Eve he also the Bombe family, including the married shoeing the eldest boy's gifted cradle horse, took away the children's underbeds and the blankets and liquid feathers. The woman was left with only one dress.
She had to take off her dressing gown – 24 days before she had
Of course, Bock did all this only under the Influences of his clients, who also had him in their hands. Now the rich family has withdrawn from the "business".

CP el ar F ET a re en og a Era ECE DE yt ae ets free ka 2 ne Te ME rt a a en nn I r – 1 1 :

The eldest daughter is supposed to marry a cleric,
the youngest of whom is engaged to a trainee lawyer.

As, by the way, the views of large masses of the people in this Points were, one could see a few years ago in the city ordinance=
A gentleman who was running for re-election was in public assembly by a teacher of usury
He did not deny it, but declared: My money is my goods. Every businessman tries to sell his goods—serve as much as he can.

These are the fruits of the Manchester theory, the doctrine of the "exploitation!"

The third category of usurers is the infinite army the opportunistic usurer. They understand such transactions mainly on the persuasion of the agents. In the discovery such people is the main skill of these gentlemen. These Occasional usurers often lose their money.
those changes which "connoisseurs" no longer want.
In the eventual fall of the official, people are always the main substantially damaged. In surprising speed, people are who, in the hope of multiplying their wealth, do so through the agents invested large sums of money.

Especially distillers, who often quickly come into possession of small capitals, small businessmen with open Shops etc. are exposed to the siren songs of the agents. Some these people are to be pitied. The desire to get rich quickly, produces wonderful flowers!

We now come to the question:

To what extent has the proliferation of civil servants reached?

The uninitiated will find it difficult to make a correct make an introduction.

No category of civil servant has protected itself from the proliferation—
Almost a quarter of all civil servants are hopelessly have fallen into usury, while an incalculable number of 1

oe,

less indebted officials from their situation nor a strict secret power. g e n e e e n

If we include those who are covered by guarantees as well as those who gave loans to indebted colleagues and have not received back, we may say:

90 percent of all officials are affected by usury.

— How did this enormous debt come about? We have learned a lot from the bomb case and needed just such a 1 to gain insight into these relationships. We are the following discussions:

The civil service includes:

- a) senior officials;
- b) Subordinate officials, which also include elementary teachers must count;

c) junior officials.

ie –

– 56 –

Anyone who wants to attain the position of senior official has to State after completing his university studies longer or the time, depending on the available vacancies, free of charge

ienen. |

The subordinate officials consist of civil and Military candidates. The civil candidates must, depending on the authority, where you are looking for employment, either the Abitur exam or have achieved the maturity for Prima. They appear as Supernumeraries without salary and move up after 1 to 2 years in the position of a dietician. |

For the prospective senior civil servants, see the university studies and the discharge of the costly military service the means very often, but among the subordinate officials it is almost always exhausted.
will therefore be increased for both categories in the years in which they dedicate themselves to public service without pay, rarely without small debts
| en, especially if a longer military exercise is taking place

It will also happen that young, fun-loving People in this most dangerous age here and there unnecessary out-make gifts without being spendthrift.

If the young official finds in his family or friends–

knows a reasonable creditor who will lend him a small sum for such a long time until he can get it from his own resources come back, the way to an honorable career path; if this does not happen, or the creditor demands this money too early, and on top of that there are tradesmen's bills, so the usurer is often the only way out.

. We therefore conclude: The debts of these two officials Categories come in the first years of their employment, the High usurious interest rates make repayment impossible, and all later salary increases, bonuses, even small inheritances, cannot stop the destruction.

Here and there, perhaps, someone saves himself through a rich marriage.

The ideality which, thank God, the civil service

but makes it impossible for some to behave differently, than out of deepest inclination to marry, and the assets=
circumstances are rarely taken into consideration.

As much as this, according to Schopenhauer, is due to future generations to the benefit, – accrues to the official himself, as we have seen in Bomb, from it an army of worries.

If the official has escaped all dangers, he is then withdrawn–
A guarantee for a friend can still lead to ruin.

The lower-ranking officials consist entirely of military candidates.
These are awarded after twelve years of service or earlier in the case of discharged with a civil pension certificate due to total disability.
They are free to apply for any position they believe to be growing. But before a position is found, Years often pass. Until then, they often have their wife and numerous children from a pension of 5–8 thalers per month to live comfortably, to get civilian clothes, to travel frequently for the purpose to obtain a job, finally to cover the travel costs to a = 4. 75 are in 7 ig amt u. ee the CCC .

rb MT 2 :

the often distant place where they have found employment,
to dispute, and then, since the salary is usually postnumerando paid to live out of their pocket for another full month.
Here, too, there is often an urgent need.
If the same must be satisfied by the usurer, we know
already the final outcome. |

The elementary teachers resign after completing their seminar:
time immediately into an office, even if only moderately paid. This They escape, although they have the opportunity to live because of their educational path-conditions know very little, very many dangers. For this Basically, the economic situation of most teachers is infinitely better than one would expect given their low salary.

That and why the Berlin community teachers until recently made and had to make a most distressing exception, we saw above.

Now we come to the fourth and most important question–
How can salvation be achieved?

Since the entire state system is under pressure from the increasing number of civil servar
If there are great dangers arising from indebtedness, the first step could be

The question arises: Can the state and municipalities not an old regulation that required officials to sign Prohibits exchanges, with a sharp cut all deeply indebted office? The measure would be terrible; but we would the last, a necessary in the interest of the state as a whole to criticize this flexible measure because many are painfully affected by it
This approach by the authorities alone would Officials, as long as they have a need for credit, completely are left helplessly to the usurers. The secret—
The reduction in debt would then be even greater and the usurer to prevent him from reporting to the authorities, everything must be sacrificed. The Officials to the usurer, however, as soon as it is most necessary lacks and no other help is available. No ban can be imposed.
nothing can protect you from extreme hardship.

* The current behavior of the authorities is already cheap enough. From any legal action against an official an official copy is sent to the authority concerned.

His boss summons him and decrees: In three, five zc.
days you have to provide proof that the debt has been paid is!" Of course this must happen, but where will the money come from added?! So it must remain the case that the only be concerned with the elimination of notoriously useless, frivolous and wasteful officials.

A tightening of the usury law, so that usury can actually be met, would bring an improvement, but rescue is not possible as long as legal credit needs are not satisfied.
The best law offers loopholes, and the
The profit of usury is too tempting.

The only way out is to establish a Event that the official accused of immoral or deviant lavish lifestyle cannot be proven, in Need a sufficiently high loan without too heavy burden conditions granted.

But how should such events be organized?
The cooperative banks cannot help the official.
You have your money on notice, so you can only borrow for short periods of time, usually three months.
The official needs long repayment periods and has to pay part-payments. Nevertheless, the companies previously took nfcientific officials and granted loans. Most of them.
but have found a hair in it and now reject every request.
an official for admission, and with full justification.

The officials tried to help themselves and associations

founded for self-help.

There is:

1) The Prussian Civil Servants' Association in Derjelbe has its own, very beneficial life insurance policy establishes and also grants loans with absolute security.

2) The German Civil Servants' Association in Berlin, Belleallianceplatz 7/8. The same has corporate rights, provides 3 members many advantages and benefits, also grants loans and has done a lot of good, including its own "civil servant newspaper" created.

3) The General Civil Servants' Loan Association, Berlin,

Prinzeffinnenstr. 28.

This association forms a community, has previously had large had losses and charged its members 40 percent of their deposits. written, but now stands just like the other two clubs—under good management, secure and guaranteed to its members. some benefits.

But none of these associations can bring salvation; because

1) Sft their capital against the need, jo. significant: no matter how it may appear, a drop of water on—a 1 6155 stone. | |

2) In case of sudden emergencies, the acquisition is possible. a loan is much too slow, especially for new entrants—members.

3) The funds collected by the kassen in the interest of their other members members' required securities are rarely available and often put friends and colleagues in danger.

4) Especially the non-employed civil servants, whose preservation before debts is the most important thing, can be find the least help in these associations.

5) To redeem indebted officials who have many and exhausting negotiations with creditors are necessary. makes it impossible for the board members, who are themselves civil servants always lacking in time and often also in expertise.

– 50, –

For the thorough liberation of the civil service it is necessary the association of capital for this purpose and a change of the existing laws. The capital is to be had if it is moderate profit finds absolute security.

The state has achieved this security through insignificant changes—to create a framework for the existing laws.

| At present, the official offers through fine position to the Lenders have little security. The salary deduction procedure takes an end as soon as the official retires. A life insurance The officer can let the insurance policy expire at any time, since the Authority never understands 3 * to deduct the bonuses from the salary She also has no legal right to do so.

“ Another thing would have to happen: Firstly, a legal provision necessary that the non-revocable statement by an official, the relevant state and municipal insurance companies are obliged to pay the premiums of an acquired life insurance insurance permanently from the salary, if it takes place later= to deduct the retirement from the pension and to Secondly, the health insurance funds must be obliged to Statement by the official in response to a moderate, legal regarding the. Maximum amount but precisely fixed part of the salary, over which statutory salary deduction, to a specific place against Receipt to pay. Of course, this will mean extra work for the cash registers, consequently also incur additional costs. However, these are meaningless, as long as the entire civil service is saved can be.

If these two preconditions are fulfilled, capital in establishing a civil servants' bank, which is what it seeks in the first place, absolute security.

Losses are only conceivable in the case of dismissals or vacancies. willing resignation of office. Exact statistical calculations would have to be employed to determine what percentage of the Officials have so far left office in this way. Involuntary removal from office is known in Prussia very difficult.

According to our surveys, which are not guaranteed to be accurate, claim because the sufficient statistical material missing, one out of about 200 officials leaves voluntarily or involuntarily from the service. =

Let us assume that the number after the founding of the civil servants=

bank would not decrease, which would undoubtedly be the case is, for would be $\frac{1}{2}00 = \% \text{ pCt.}$ of the loaned capital possibly can result in loss. |

This loss would of course have to be borne by those who use, be covered, either by a fixed loss premium of pCt. of the loan, or through annual levies. Perhaps The cash could also be linked to loss insurance, as Privy Councillor Schraut suggests.

Such a bank could only take the form of an Attiengefellichhaft have. A community is due to the termination of the apitalien

– 60 –

excluded. The bank would have to have significant capital and have branches in the provincial capitals. It would have to provide long-term loans with small repayment rates grant. i |

= We ask men of understanding to consider these proposals to subject it to scrutiny and to help alleviate the misery of the official– Here it is necessary to eliminate one of the sources of social emergency and to block the capital that has been criminal– exploitation, to return to honest employment– turn to it."

Now, after 4 years, I have not changed anything about these statements. But the courage to draw the final conclusions from the facts At that time I could not find any reason to draw conclusions. The reader will find this understandable when he considers that I am dealing with my numerous families would have been exposed to ruin. This is followed by I can easily tell my own life story. I can say that– fure: I have always followed the purest truth in my presentation– ity, nothing is glossed over or covered up. Since nothing is more difficult ift, as with regard to one's own person and experience completely To remain objective, I ask the reader to examine impartially and how false conclusions that I have unconsciously made, to de– right one.

a. youth.

I was born in 1846, on December 21st, as the son of a small craftsman and farmer in Crien near Anclam and attended the village school there until I was 14 years old Observed abilities brought father and teacher to the point– to introduce me to the teaching profession, which is the farmer's highest achievable goal. At the age of 16% I came to the teacher training college in Oranienburg, was in the 2nd year of class-foreman, in the 3rd year head foreman, and on 1 October 1866 with the certificate "No. I. "very well qualified". It could not that at that time when the heat of the political struggle went up, I also had to form an opinion. Most I was outraged by the numerous peace petitions that were submitted by Gemunicipal administrations, corporations and individuals to a Time addressed to the King, as well as clear to the blindest

It had to be clear that only armed force could break the deadlock. My ancestors had served as soldiers from the Seven Years' War or corporals fought in every war, and in every one was . one of them. Emulating them was my greatest I therefore asked 20 of my colleagues to join me in an immediate submission directly to His Majesty the King with to ask them to let us join the army. All Other attempts to achieve this had failed. The literacy for this step, which may be quite embarrassing fuffificife could have been accompanied by serious consequences, I, as head of the institution all alone. But I lived in the hope that the

- - - _
*

Headteacher of the institution, Mr. Böckler, who took the place of the sick

Director, whose patriotic spirit we all was known to protect us against the worst in an emergency. As I later informed him of our unauthorized action, he also declared himself willing to dedicate his whole person to us, although he had to criticize our unlawful actions. How pleasing the heart of His Majesty the King at that time has been affected by our immediate submission, the following Notice: |

Immediate report and highest order, the task and Effectiveness of the elementary school concerning: f

In the appendix 1 about which Your Royal Majesty has deigned to request a report 21 pupils of the Protestant Teachers' Seminary in Oranienburg for immediate recruitment into the army. The same dated 26 June of this year and is a beautiful proof of the patriotic spirit of these seminarians, who at a time when the decision of the fate of the fatherland by the sword was imminent, with all personal advantages in this decision to take part.

In the meantime, under God's gracious guidance, the Circumstances have changed; the fatherland does not currently need the military arm of these youths, but expects that they instead enter the profession they have chosen in life to become a teacher
To help educate the youth of the people for the army in the fear of God and loyalty to Your Royal Majesty's army, which has now fought and won, has passed through the Prussian elementary school and emerged from it; the seminarians who in the hour were prepared to risk their lives in Your Majesty's Army for King and Fatherland, will in the time of peace as teachers know how to do their duty in the school, where Youth of the people in arms.

We respectfully request Your Royal Majesty, through grace= full implementation of the Most Highest Order us to give appropriate notice to the relevant Pupils of the school teachers' seminar in Oranienburg to want to gain power.

Berlin, August 27, 1866.

by Roon. by Mühler.
To the King's Majesty
U 16750

In response to the report of the 27th of this month, I authorize you to delay the opening of the Protestant Teachers' Seminary in Oranienburg, which in the immediate presentation following the appendix have asked for a fair recruitment into the army, among the now changed circumstances, your request is to be rejected separately, but also to open them (often, as I know from their patriotic willingness to defend the Fatherland in my army to help defend myself.

— 6&2? =

What the report says in general about the task and effectiveness of the elementary school, has My approval, and I instruct you, the Minister of Spiritual Affairs—that, your immediate report and this My order for your information to the school administration authorities and the elementary teaching profession bring to.

Berlin, August 30, 1866.

signed Wilhelm
von Roon, von Mühler.

b. The first years as a teacher. War experiences.

On October 15, 1866, I was appointed as a teacher in Neu-Ruppin and stayed there until October 1, 1869. There I volunteered for a six-week military exercise and was also accepted. Through friendly Cooperation of the high school teacher Labarre and the teacher Schwenk I was able to lay the foundation for a somewhat sufficient knowledge of the two old and the two most important new languages. On October 1, 1869, I went to the higher-Buse's girls' school in Berlin, where I attended until October 1, 1873. At the sudden outbreak of war in 1870, I was I was on a holiday trip, but was able to get to the 20th Infantry Regiment in Wittenberg. My first Attempt to immediately enter the field failed because no main Man wanted a man who had only served 6 weeks. When I turned to Major von Jena, I was turned back. because I was wearing glasses. I did throw them at the Earth and shouted: "Vanity glasses", but the from behind without any order pushing comrades, who also if everyone tried to come along, they were pushed to the ground. Later I still found a job with the 2nd Company of the 20th Infantry terie Regiment and was one of the few who survived the campaign until the last day. I was able to short training period, I may not be a particularly good soldier, but I I tried to do my duty everywhere. Some small Incidents at Metz had even given me the reputation of being completely fearless and capable of dangerous missions. The Representation does not really belong here, but since the memory-rungen an dieft about the hardest hours of my life helped me out, I must almost against my will stay with them. At the outpost near Plappeville a huge shell was fired over us. When we involuntarily bent down, I found a half-dried plant, Plantago major, our well-known Plantain, which showed a very peculiar development. The Inflorescence had turned into a panicle. It was therefore a newly discovered plant. I called my comrades, sat explained to them the wonder of my discovery and made with them that we can use the new plant Plantago plappvilliana. Our interest was so great that we decided to create another grenade and several rifle shots. The Lieutenant von Daffel came forward, took the 1 and gave me the nickname: Botanist of Metz. But he had my composure was highly valued, even the officer corps told, and I enjoyed a lot of goodwill. A few days Later the following incident occurred: The outposts on both sides fought each other incessantly. The guard line of the Lübben hunters to our right almost resembled a battle line. We had again= brings dead and wounded. The completely useless fight, which was not encouraged by any superior, was probably mainly due to the fault of the newly arrived recruits. Between us and the French chain lay a field planted with wine, which unfortunately was not accessible. Musketeer Senz paid for his attempt to shoot a gun close to his To pick a hanging grape, with life. After I was relieved from the outpost, I stepped freely onto a stone hut, waved to the French, and they understood immediately. Right and On the left, the fire was stopped as if on command, and it developed a perhaps unique Scene. Friend and foe soon found themselves together in the vineyard and picked grapes, although our Bread bags mainly because of the salt from the French were quickly emptied. The leaders of both sides made the performance soon comes to an end, on our side the idol of Battalion, Major von Stocken, but the useless fighting had In a forest battle near Orleans my foot was I was seriously injured by a sprain, but I stayed with the troops, although the doctor still has my pay book today—whom I had sent a note to the hospital. On December 4th, the 2nd day of the battle of Orleans, I was able to meet my captain Liedke, who, despite being fatally wounded, still led us across a dangerous gap led, but collapsed at the worst point, behind a covering pile of wood. On January 6, 1871, In the meeting at Azay, I was the first to storm a ferm in the walled garden and was given access from the front and back to fire immediately. Later I was able to meet my comrade Fetkenheuer, who was left lying seriously wounded in the midst of the hail of bullets, Ferm. Here was also my special patron, the Lieutenant von Daffel, seriously injured in a similar attempt wounded. On January 10, I went with a Sergeant Hofe fo so far into the enemy line that we suddenly found ourselves in the middle of a retreating French battalion. The enemy was already so discouraged that the appearance of only 2 Prussians caused him to retreat more quickly. The following Comrades left a number of prisoners in the trenches When, late in the evening of January 11, our completely tired battalion was continually weakening because the comrades collapsed, I was able to carry on despite my painful On 12 January the Invasion of Le Mans, and thus for us the end of the war.

u. B

I was supposed to be sent to the hospital, but I was unable to and was assigned to the headquarters, where my entire Service—which consisted of being given directly to Prince Friedrich Karl to deliver the dispatches arriving to him. The dispatch I was able to inform His Royal Highness about the concluded armistice

His Highness personally handed over.

e. My experiences as a private school teacher in Berlin.

After the campaign I returned to my old school and remained there until October 1, 1873. The income was indeed small, originally as many thalers per month as I weekly lessons, then it gradually increased monthly until to 100 marks, which was little in the Gründerzeit, especially since Clothing &c. but not insignificant demands were made, But I got out and felt incredibly comfortable there.

At this high school for girls I first had the opportunity to get to know Judaism in its essence. In each class there were about 20 percent Jewish women, a ratio that since then, probably at all higher girls' schools, of the German girls. There was a Number of exceptionally talented and hardworking, then a number absolutely unindustrious, pushy and disgusting Jewish women who became the terror of all teachers. Average— I have never known any Jewish students learned.

My observations prompted me to that I thought of anti-Semitism, to make the definite judgment:

Jewish and German girls must be taught separately This is due to the different development of the female sex in both nations. Of course, the Children are innocent of this. The Jewish girl matures very early to the woman, then fades more quickly. The Jewish Girls of 14–15 years are fully developed, the German Girl of the same age is still physically a child, as is the mood, unless the senses are violently stimulated

In a Jewish woman, the awakening of the sexual drive is natural at that age, unnatural for a German girl and then causes physical deterioration, nervousness, reluctance to Work.

Through their dealings with Jewish girls, the German—folic girls are spoiled, they hear things there that the Sensuality must be put on alert.

The much lamented nervousness of our female sex,
the most terrible modern disease that affects families more causes more harm than many people suspect, comes from the greatest Part of the premature awakening of the sexual drive, which German girls through their interaction with Jewish peers girl is awakened. |

. - 65 -

I once took a fake letter from a Jewish woman, which she had already circulated in the class in which the incidents were portrayed in such a drastic manner on the wedding night that I myself blushed with shame.

It is quite incomprehensible that not all the leaders of higher girls' schools have said this publicly. Inside everyone must be convinced of the truth of what has been said. Furthermore is caused by this treatment of Jewish girls in the German classmates a demanding character. The later Life can often only meet these exaggerated demands with difficulty and under Causing great pain to return to their legitimate position= Why do so many high-ranking men, after they have looked around in all possible circles, in the election their wives finally to former elementary school students who in terms of education? Because they have remained natural and do not make unrealizable demands. Give our German Girls a German education again by separating them from the Semites, and you will soon be a more robust woman again-human sex grow up and every man enable him to take a wife who will go with him on-approximately the same educational standpoint. We are in drive, our most beautiful pearl, the real, ideal German housewife to lose. |

A truth, albeit insignificant, but nevertheless telling:
I must mention one more example. When I was a teacher at the school
I was often asked by the parents of Jewish children Gifts were sent to the house, the children themselves often brought and with. German parents or children have never done.

But when I was in the field and my return was not very was probably told to me by the parents of many German Girls, I still fondly remember the names Gertrud Collin, Pauline Wentzel, Ida Striegler, Cäcilie Kafche, yes, a lot of life means, warm underclothes, cigars, rum etc. sent, that I must necessarily become a benefactor of half the company

Jewish children did not participate in this. The final-
The reader may draw his or her own conclusions from this.

I also experienced the Gründerzeit and the noise back then Countless German, and even some Jewish, companies broke together.

From the fathers of the German girls in my class
Two of them shot themselves, one in his apartment in Leipzig street, the other in the field near the Gefundbrunnen.

A fallen Jewish merchant moved to Lützowstraße and now owns several properties and a large sawmill.

At that time, it was far from my intention to combine these individual perceptions into a to unite the overall wording.

| To u BE

d. My experiences as a parish teacher. The founding of the German ann A guarantee and its consequences.

On October 1, 1873, I was enrolled at the 7th Community School in the Stallfchreiberstraße and married in
May 1874. |

In the meantime, it had found an opportunity to know my niffe in old and new languages, it was I was also able to give a number of lectures at the University to visit. My friendship with the Consul General Sturz, who was enthusiastic about all humanitarian endeavors and preferred to position when thousands of Germans entered the Brazilian slavery became important to me in another respect.
Through him I was first introduced to the confusing circumstances of economics and social policy.

In 1876 I passed the exam as a teacher for secondary schools,
In 1878 he passed the rectorate examination.

Apart from serious illnesses in the family, I lived at that time in quite happy circumstances and could still be happy-face more difficult,

But during this time I had made observations that filled my whole soul with horror and put me into a fight which for me, as for everyone else who dared to take it, had to be disastrous.

As an unmarried man, I had a tradesman: family lived here. Other craftsmen also came here, and through This gave me an insight into the exploitation of the craftsmen-state by the Jews.

As I became better known in teaching circles, I made a deep View into terrible misery. Most of them were deeply indebted and were exploited by the Jews. The devastation among the peasant class in my homeland appeared to me now in a new light. The characters were Here too, with one exception, Jews. When I once at the then city court, I saw the black-haired sons of Israel in the vast majority. The plaintiffs were mostly Jews, the accused and convicted were Germans. I said to myself: the court is, among other things, the main substantially to put a stop to the sophisticated Jewish exploitation to impose legality. In my superior authority the Jews ruled, partly directly, partly through their German masters. hang. Anyone who could make himself popular with an important Jew, was safe for all time. With me at the same school was a teacher named Hartwig. The whole faculty talked about him because he was at times found everywhere more than in his class. In a botany lesson he had to teach in a foreign class, He had appeared rarely and had written in the Penza book of 1 April

Registered until October 1st: Kitchen plants. At the middle school=

He had initially failed the exam, but had a teacher Tägert will do the great pedagogical work for him help. But he gave private lessons in the family of Dr. Straßmann. He was hired as rector.

It was mainly Jewish girls through whom the Kaiser received during his entry at the Brandenburg Gate in 1871 was, and yet I had only seen 2 Jews in the campaign, one Refervelieutenant, who only attracted ridicule, and behind which regularly echoed: "Mother, where is my Tompagnie", and a soldier who reported sick before the battle.

At the time of the founding of the country, the Jews owned all property brought, and when they then needed a bafe, Lasker had to Blame of the founder's fraud on a harmless German, the Princes of Putbus, push. 5

In 1876 I decided to fight against the overgrowth of Judaism, which I now understood in its totality, My friends at the 7th community school advised

but I strongly advise you to refrain from doing so in your own interest.
I decided to try to at least
To save the civil service from the hands of the Jews, hoping that this then gain the strength to help the other estates
I must admit that this decision, which I made instead a comfortable, pleasant life a stormy future had to bear, was unwise insofar as all business=
lack of knowledge.

My basic idea was the following: the civil service is only therefore fell victim to the most horrific Jewish exploitation, because he is interested in private matters without any organization.
The individual does not have sufficient real credit because his position that can be lost at any moment through death &c., does not provide sufficient security. It therefore falls in emergencies the usurer. He must provide guarantors, and through
This guarantee system will ultimately destroy the entire profession.

But if the officials join a large, all-Germany comprehensive union, they form a power that can satisfy credit needs within itself. At that time the enthusiasm for life insurance is general. I told me: Several hundred thousand officials can have their own life= insurance that can have far better conditions than the rest.

If the authority, after irrevocable termination, claim deducts the bonuses from the salary and pays them directly to the society, even after retirement, and if then all the officials form a society with limited Liability, the capital will be invested in the German-the civil servants' association, and every civil servant will be responsible for all In future cases, have sufficient credit to protect yourself from usurious hands save, give his sons a good education, his daughters a appropriate dowry. Officials' daughters will not no longer remain unmarried in such large numbers.

N

– 68 –

The interest, maximum $5\frac{1}{2}$ pCt., is to be paid on time, the Repayment can be arranged as desired, since in case of death-if the police are liable. That would have been a complete rescue, which is offset by the small additional workload of the authorities regarding the Settlement with the life insurance company not at all in I discussed this with Be= knew, e.g. the teachers Rafchke, Deichen, Gohr, the accountant= Councillor Fröhlich, the postal official a. D. Buchmann, all of whom have similar

I gave a public lecture about it. The State authorities were not approached about this matter at that time, The mayor of Berlin, Mr. Hobrecht, however, refused Hab, saying: Getting into debt is immoral!

u But it went well, as it always goes in Germany. The Particularism gained the upper hand. Four or 5 clubs at the same time, which soon reached the point where they could only They kept the external peace with great effort. Internally they were torn The Prussian Civil Servants' Association was founded in Hanover, which initially formed a pure life insurance company, it Furthermore, smaller associations were formed, of which my As far as we know, only the general civil servants' loan association in the Zeffinnen-Straße has come to fruition, finally the German official-association that wanted to implement my principles and Accordingly, in my opinion, as soon as possible with the Prussian civil servants' association would have had to merge. The German I was a member of the board of the civil servants' association and helped me through the first difficult years, although my own existence was seriously endangered. Members reported fuffed at the new club, but everyone wanted money immediately, and yet there was nothing. Without any money, the club could not The authorities had not provided us with the corporation-rights as soon as we had proven ourselves viable. Then we received an offer from the life insurance company Friedrich Wilhelm was very pleased. She wanted to give us 10,000 marks, later even more at a low interest rate, if our members would insure themselves with her. Until The entire board of directors should be members are jointly liable for this debt. It obliges us, two of their officials, the medical officer and the head-Inspector as board members, who are just-if they should be obliged as guarantors. Several members of the board-members did not like this solidarity guarantee and they left. I thought: If you want something, you have to do it completely want, and since I was willing to take over the guarantee, so were the others. We chose the teacher Gohr as chairman. He had become active in the teachers' movement, the I, by the way, was only cool about it at the time, great merits he-and founded the Pedagogical Newspaper, which the city-administration from the first day like a young Hercules The city councillor Dr. Hermes, for example, was described Mr. Gohr as the man with the broken tertian education. ir

Mr. Gohr apparently lived in excellent conditions, had fhe married a rich widow and lived in the Leipzig Street a large quarter. After the Friedrich Wilhelm loan, the club experienced a rapid upswing and soon had 900 members. Mr. Gohr told me confidentially that he was involved in the founding of the pedagogical newspaper had contracted a debt that his wife should not know about. I should therefore give him a guarantee of 600 marks, which by the way, a mere formality. I chased this after some Hesitation. After the meeting, when we had all the board members members had gone to a bar, I was then in a hurry a bill of exchange was presented, which Robert Gohr had accepted, and in on which the amount of money was entered with numbers and letters. After a quarter of a year, Mr. Gohr declared that he was making the change: and I will sign a new one for 585 marks So it went on from quarter to quarter. The The bills became smaller and smaller, 400 Marks, 4 times 300 Marks, 2 times 200 marks. The club had flourished more and more, and the granting of corporate rights was imminent. I wanted then immediately proceed to my main goal and had to negotiations with high-ranking persons for this purpose The Prussian Civil Servants' Association also did not show His director came to Berlin and met with us in Relationships. Unfortunately, while I was studying for the Rectorate exam was absent in several meetings, due to the fault of Mr Bachmann a Jewish Mr. Fließ was elected to the board. This knew how to divide the board members and tried to overthrow the chairman by completely indebted situation, of which nobody knew anything until now, and the which he had discovered in an unknown manner and made public. The unclouded unity was lost, parties were formed, which made any progress impossible. The Friedrich Wilhelm threatened to withdraw her money, which brought us all into misfortune I then called a confidential board meeting without the Jews, and many board members declared themselves ready to support Mr. Gohr, who had to explain his situation, to enter. I refused me to sign, but gave 480 Marks, my entire assets, cash, for which the promissory note is still in in my hands. A railway operations secretary Pechartfcheque, a thoroughly solid man who does not allow himself the slightest pleasure and others gave signatures for important Sums. Later, after receipt of the corporate rights and better foundation of the association, Mr. Gohr should be removed from the board and be fully redeemed by the association. The Jew was deprived of his influence. Everything went back on track, the corporate rights were granted. But now fidh a Incident whose causes cannot be clarified. Mr. Gohr, by the way, a highly ideal nature, whose two creations, the Association of Berlin Teachers and German Officials= association, which is now in full bloom, had been transformed by the greening

u J ==

dition of the pedagogical newspaper and the proliferation by German Civil Servants' Association, which works against Judaism, many powerful enemies, and now he was open to the anti=

femitism, which at this time showed its first signs of life
 Shortly before its complete release, these enemies made a thorough attempt to overthrow him. It was urgent
 A previously unknown Lieutenant Stücker approached Gohr approached, investigated all the fine conditions, attracted a timber merchant Mr.
 Flemming, whom Gohr kept afloat, and to whom he gave his entire
 He trusted him and extracted all his secrets.
 Then he denounced Gohr to the municipal school deputation because of his debts and also gave all guarantors. The School deputation immediately initiated the disciplinary investigation and suspended him from office. The backers have a lot of joy men of Mr. Stücker did not have any involvement in this. The fhe was later convicted of poisoning his wife,
 As soon as Gohr's suspension from office became known, all creditors, and I learned things that led me to ground. In the changes that Gohr gave me to under-drawing, and which, according to his statement, always were redeemed within a quarter, never had a maturity date date. Since I assumed that he would have done the same when issuing ftill I wrote in it, I had not attached any importance to it.
 However, he had only used all subsequent bills of exchange to pay the interest for the old ones. Only the first one over 600 marks and yes and no. They contacted me, but only after and after,

*

1. Mrs. Mielenz with Mark 585.00) S8 28
2. Mr. Engelhardt " " 400.00 2.8. S p. 85
3. Mr. Reihn " 330.00 ESS 38
4. Mr. Max Cohn " " 300.00 | S58
5. Mr. Krätke 8 " 300.00 f seers
6. Mr. Peter Wirtz " " 300.00 | 5 = "RS.
7. Mr. Ehmert 1 " 200.00 | S S. s S
8. „ i ; „ W0) -& FE

Summa 2615.00

id) was thus doomed, because all except No. 3 demanded immediate payment or high interest, for which they were legally fully justified, because a usury law existed not yet. Mrs. Mielenz, for example, charged 6% interest monthly,
 Mr. Wirtz a quarter of the capital in interest quarterly, Mr.
 Max Cohn from the Thaler monthly 50 Pfennig, equal to 200% pa
 Mr. Ehmert had a friend, the master builder Schönert, ft immediately complain. It was clear from his own letters that he had addressed to Gohr that the first bill of exchange was replaced by the second was paid, but Mr. Schönert swore that he knew nothing about it, and in the exchange process no witnesses are accepted. A Claim for 400 marks from a deceased creditor,

for which Pechartfcheck and I were jointly obliged, is been paid off by us in installments. Whatever I decide I didn't see any hope of salvation. I was faced with my position as Rector, who could not be missed, since the city is only two or three Rectorate candidate. If I let it come to a complaint, then the employment is unlikely. From my little teacher= But paying off the debt was impossible. I paid the interest, which I now had to borrow myself. So My debts grew rapidly. In this distress, in which I fo feverishly excited that I could still see clearly, offered Mrs. Gohr came to her rescue. She wanted to pay off her husband with 6000 Marks, but her husband should be kept fufficed to hand over his salary in full to them. Half should be used to pay off the debt. It should be made from all Clubs and receive pocket money from them. During the hearing, Mrs. Gohr was appointed guardian of her children first marriage, a Jewish merchant named Cristeller moved in. We had to provide guarantors for this operation, with the exception of Mr. Pechartfcheck we commit ourselves to Mrs. Gohr, first the Ministerial Secretary Halwar, then the Railway Secretary Flemming, and finally me. The matter thus gained a better outlook= fee, because in the worst case scenario I only had to do with a single solid creditor. At this time I could consider myself saved. My condition was that Mr. Cristeller, who in his calm and highly understanding nature a highly favorable impression, almost that of a patriarch, on made me settle the Gohrfe debts myself take over.

Whatever may have happened now is for me in impenetrable Shrouded in darkness. The investigation against Gohr continued= gang, Mr. and Mrs. Gohr were in the next 8 days for I could not find Mr. Cristeller. in his apartment. Only one thing was certain, that the= those creditors to whom I was obliged, No one for the sake of payment. When I finally forced my way into the Gohrfche apartment, I was informed that one of the worst

Jewish creditor with the bailiff Rindfleifch in Mp- essence of the family with the help of the castle in the Nobel de apartment and stole all the valuable furniture Mrs. Gohr's property was seized and immediately, with the greatest excitement, I took her with me to Leipzigerstrasse. Mrs. Gohr was unable to speak to anyone since then and was now completely under foreign influence. However, she later received again, but for fear of new annoyances of these Art had her husband, who under all these impressions full= constantly stunned and had become a child without will, because of knowing, apparently to separate from her and also to To agree to divorce from mutual dislike. That she promised him that she would remain loyal to him in the future, It is clear from the fact that she met him in his new apartment, which I only found out much later, was often visited and with fresh

Fi

i
ie

Laundry and all comforts. If Gohr on it expected that this relationship should be a permanent one, he was mistaken fvery. With the day of divorce, all relations between fhis wife and him. Gohr pulled himself together once more, he negotiated with rich people about founding a large anti-femific newspaper. Luckhardt with his Deutsche Tageblatt came before him. The same has now turned to the National: liberals. Gohr was not allowed to show his face there. was now rapidly coming to an end. He also wrote the conservative ABC, became editor of the Deutsche Wacht, an excellent anti-Semitic magazine, but the leger could not hold on, and the German Guard went to Reason. Later I managed to give him a small private teaching circle, which, however, immediately, since it did not have a concession was threatened with dissolution. The grief over the loss- keep his wife, whom he loved until the end, the grief over all the misfortune that he, who in his drive to save humanity from to redeem them from their tormentors, but in doing so he himself was brought to ruin- The damage that had been done was too powerful. In the bottle he sought oblivion. He followed under miserable conditions in. died in a hospital. He intentionally did not wanted to cause harm, but the circumstances have put him in serious Driven by guilt. This is how one of the most brilliant, completely self-- loose men, hunted to death by Jews. Even Mrs. Gohr, the who really loved her husband, is terribly struck by misfortune= Her two sons had to be searched for in the dead of night escape from Berlin, who had been convicted of serious embezzlement a merchant Herzfeld in Heiligengeiststraße. Both have spent their beautiful money and are perhaps long since spoiled and died. One daughter married a book= holder, who later also committed embezzlement. In order to To save the child, the woman brought all her father's wealth to the boss, but during her absence her husband had a knife. Honor of such a woman who for her husband, who, however, through his desire to become rich, fic) to Börjenspeculations that eventually led him into serious

She has given her last. She is allowed to Raise your eyes proudly, even if they struggle through life
She would rather become poor than leave her husband
The only question that arises is who Mrs. Gohr herself is the terrible, completely un-German decision to a beloved and faithful man who is only unhappy, not bad
He could have caused much harm with his abilities
Maybe my following Experiences are the key to this. Mrs. Gohr had the change over 6000 Marks to Mr. Crifteller, who described himself as He asked Halwas, Flemming and me to Payment. The first two had enough of it. Halwas, in Concept of marrying a wealthy lady was afflicted by the worst paranoia and of a fine nature:

"

rl * aa Ir. 8 5 Fe ie ee – Sigh PeT oe AEREE d Em ei
e eee ene Le eee ae

= +
– i 2 –

belongings to Pankow not without risk to life and limb Flemming resigned from his post and sought a job as a business traveler to earn an honest living. Now the Jew Christeller turned with the entire claim against me. I would have on the Legal processes can probably achieve something; I ran from a legal lawyer to the other, but with the high object of 6000 Marks
A significant advance was demanded, while I did not even knew how to feed my family. When complaining about
But you will not need 300 marks to represent your own
The case is admitted and a default judgment is made. Lawsuits However, an official cannot claim the right to poor relief, even if he would make an attempt. Thus, in the last half of the ninth century, tenth century in a constitutional state that a Citizens are completely deprived of rights. Even with a completely fictitious demand, one would have to be condemned.
is the Jewish-Roman law, that is our much-praised Jewish Freedom; Michael Kohlhas must still find his headless body in
I had to deal with Mr.
Crifteller gave him a number of smaller bills of exchange and paid a large part of it in cash. When I later got my hands on some money, I had it put on trial and come, won the first, lost the second due to a form error because of that, then my art was over again. Further advances

I could not pay. I had to pay 104 marks for lawyer's fees to pay.

Later, Mrs. Gohr had the rest of the claim back in hands, and I also paid her a little. But when she began to threaten the authorities, I stopped answering letters.

e. My position as principal.

My debts were settled by the Gohr company feurch, in which I under threat of severe punishment by the Investigating judge Zelle was forced to commit suicide, of course
But since no one accused me of waste, an unsound lifestyle or even just a useless expenditure,
the creation of the debt through an unlawful act
Gohrs was also not disputed by any side, yes, my arm-position as Rector, especially since other candidates were almost non-existent.
were present, at least probably. In 1880 I was because also by the school councilor Dr. Bertram on the suggestion of the school= Inspector Dr. Krähe was proposed to the school deputation for election.
I was so sure of my choice that I did not even consider it necessary held the obligatory visits to the members of the school:
deputation. I did not even ask Dr. Hermes me for the purpose of the otherwise absolutely necessary political tic exam. If my choice had been made then, Everything turned out well. Unfortunately, however, a member of the school committee= members by some insinuation, perhaps by a secret Supervisory Committee that I was in contact with the editor of the lit. Bureau in the Ministry of the Interior is well known and occasionally deliver articles in a conservative sense. This broke my neck. I was rejected, at the same time against my Willen transferred to another school, where I also as at all schools I have been to so far, very nice

– 74 –

A colleague from this school, who is now
Rector and showed me warm friendship, tried felf in my interest, and at his instigation a Conversation between me and the city council chairman
Dr. Straßmann, about / years after my rejection as Rector through the school deputation. This gentleman came to me in very openly, I would say, magnificently. I denied in no way my affiliation with the Conservative Party, nor less my anti-Semitism, which I did however express towards him based only on my experiences. He recognized the eligibility-bluntly accepted my views and declared that he himself a mortal enemy of usury and this also through its founding of the association against impoverishment. He also helps officials to the best of his ability, and if they were worthy of his help, he also completely financed it through the Königftädtische Genoffenschaftsbank, as he did, for example, with Rector Paulick with 18,000 Mk. He now thinks quite differently about political conditions, as before. But it is absurd to blame the sins of individuals denominational 3. He left it to me to think, what I like, but I must promise him that I will never to participate in sectarian agitation. I did this and thereby committed an injustice that is the tragic center of my entire Life. However, I said to myself at that moment: You You can make this promise calmly, because you will never throw in your life, any person because of his to attack religion. I have never done that, never approved of it, and if I do not condemn the Jews absolutely because of their social activity They could build a synagogue in any build a road. But unfortunately this reservation of conscience little use, because I knew very well what Dr. Straßmann with the euphemistic term "religious agitation"! Dr. Straßmann has done a lot of good for me. my urgent request to allow me to take the political exam with Mr. To spare Dr. Hermes, which I, as he well knew, was impossible could pass, he agreed and advised me to simply cancel the visit. Furthermore, he provided me with a completely interest-free loan of 1200 Mk., which I was able to pay off very slowly. Finally he offered me complete debt repayment through the Royal City Government noffenfschaftsbank in prospect if I after one year Whether he meant this officially or politically, he said However, not. Dr. Straßmann is now dead, but the justice requires that I reflect on my guilt and his Honourable, even humane behaviour does not veil of night, especially since it is not wrongly claimed that that he had done more for the rule of his people in Berlin,

m= Sy

than any other Jew. It would have really upset me in my conscience and from the disclosure of my views held when his subordinates, partly of Germanic stock, so traitors of their own people, not in clumsy and Pte Weife again violently pushed onto the battlefield eat.

Dr. Straßmann was the enemy commander in Berlin, buthe was a skillful general! |

On October 1, 1881, I was without any further effort appointed as a rector. employed at the 119th Community School.

f. Beginning of political entanglements.

At the time of my appointment, the political waves were Berlin was very high. I had the anti-Semitic-social movement before years ago as one of the first to help bring it to life, now it was I was forced to stay in the background. It was a fetical situation. My whole soul lived in the thought of social reform, and I felt keenly that my views. better and more correct than those of many public fighters, who I, by the way, had the warmest sympathy. In

In 1876 I took part in a militia exercise in Guben.

Among the conscripted soldiers was also a highly regarded intelligent, thoroughly honourable and sober Social Democrat, a hatter's assistant Wambsgans. I missed it even then not the victorious power of the one presented with inner conviction-social democratic ideas. Nor did it escape me that it is easy to spread the absolutely wrong ideas of social democracy with the true, legitimate and at the same time the unbiased listeners and unite them into an inseparable whole. I had discussed this with my dear comrade Wambsgans to have heated debates that did not convince either side, but both sides were not left without an impression.

One thing became clear to me even then:

"Not playing with social reform, but real, full reform with the complete elimination of Judaism alone can protect the fatherland from the most terrible crises."

Now, in 1881, when for me points of contact and connections found plenty of information, I had to keep quiet, because no doubt: My life position and thus existence My family, which was already shaken enough, was in serious Danger, if I, subordinate of a Jewish progressive city authority, made me politically noticeable.

I was almost violently pushed forward. First I received a letter from the office manager Meyer from the municipal School deputation, in which I was asked to join a progressive to join the club. Statutes and a membership fee receipt were immediately attached. This was a few days after the publication the highly significant Imperial Proclamation of 17 November Vember 1881, which caused a real storm of enthusiasm in me

The association in question had previously been non-partisan, and I would have liked to have listened to him. But now, so to speak, as In response to the Imperial Proclamation, he had entered into a I had no choice, I had to the semi-familial request decided and with explanation of the reasons, reject. |

The need to have a presence through one's own party press on the I could not suppress the desire to be kept up to date. I read the Deutsche Tageblatt, which was very well edited at the time. It was inevitable that the newspaper was often published in my office, and that my teachers, who were in the office, were eating their breakfast together, fell into their hands. Political debates were therefore inevitable, and coercion Nobody was upset about it, as I was on friendly terms with everyone—return stand.

| Suddenly a teacher, Mr. Klockow, asked for a secret conversation and informed me that all my statements by a teacher Beffe, who also attended the school I led institution was employed, the city councilor, member of the city. School deputation and house curator of my school, Mr. Nip—at, partly directly, partly through another Rector. |

That the very well-intentioned warning was unfortunately justified, I had to realize all too soon.

Mr. Ripberger invited me to his apartment, discussed with me some official matters and then drove in quite fharshly continued: We are a liberal city administration also very liberal in political terms. You can, for all I care, reddest Social Democrat, but we hate the anti-Semitics and They will not tolerate it in the city administration. An anti-Semite is under all circumstances an indecent person, you notice fich that! That was a different language than that of Dr. Straß—man, and I was so thoroughly irritated by it that I, a However, towards members of my authority in an inappropriate Weife replied: In my eyes, many more are indecent those Germans who, because of personal interests, People betrayed to a foreign one! — |

The fact that this conversation had not remained secret must I found out soon enough. My superior, Mr. School Inspector Dr. Jonas, who undoubtedly meant well by me at the time, began A few days later a conversation with the words: I just want not chase that all anti-Semitics, of which there are now so many, un—are decent, but etc.

Soon after, the official and extra-official= official political persecutions, which have not ceased in 9 years and have developed with ever greater intensity to such an extent that ul now the highest state authorities make a decision must.

What such persecutions mean and what intrigues are involved The reader will see from what follows how this has happened.

i - i { =>

A compassionate smile can only evoke in me if I was persecuted by the authorities for political opposition the country. I know the conditions there too. What will it say, if an overzealous gendarme once an opposition= funny farmer for some irregularity to report and has to pay a fine of 3 Mk.? or if one of our convenient order for road improvements etc. is issued? The Anyone who believes that even one only one out of fear of such skirmishes in his political superiority conception could be influenced. The opposite is the case. Whoever political slavery and the most sophisticated, deadly political persecution domination and enslavement until the end, the come to Berlin. The richest German man is unfree here, as the farmer's foreman, who is the truly is a free man. More details about this follow below.

g. The development of my debt relationships.

If I had become rector in 1880, I would have had to face the huge Growth of debt perhaps, but only perhaps a dam Now this was impossible. They wanted to always remember that at only 100 pCt., without agent fees, every debt doubles in one year, in two years. Anyone who has a debt of 1000 Mk. for twenty If it were maintained for years, it would have a debt of 4, 145,152,000 Mk., with his own income still extra for ssd Sv ctu.

Agent fees would be charged. Exactly how much debt but the entire German Empire with all its states.

After I became rector and received a loan of 1200 Marks, I believed at least the largest part the usurious debts, but it did not work. What my considerations could not prevail over the cunning of the blood-suckers into whose hands I had fallen!

My goal for the future could only be the usurious debts in some way into low-interest debts. If the latter succeeded, I was saved, because I had a high income from which I could annually receive the entire. I was able to use most of it to pay off debts. That to my I was able to earn the necessary living expenses on the side, because Gradually, the literary works became well paid. Several Sometimes I have received low-interest loans from well-meaning people. Received money, but unfortunately I could never completely free myself, because almost all usurers keep their promises for a certain agreed to pay off the debt at a low price, did not hold, as soon as it came to paying. My friends were angry, The reduced debt quickly grew again, as At the beginning the total income was not sufficient to pay the interest. When the usury law came into force, no lender was involved directly with the debtor, but used the agents, through which made the money even more expensive. I was

4

and after having known a whole number of them, name before—only the names Zucker, Levyfohn, Grävenitz, Lehmann, Stückgold, Conrad Troffin, Siegbert Cohn, Zodek, Mach, Klingfpor etc. They arranged financial transactions for Paris, Halpert, Zimmermann, Nikolai, M. Cohn, Redlich Dann, Stadthagen, Gericke and Balke, P. Wirtz, Natfchelsky, Tietz, Schiftau in Breslau, as well as with companies in Hamburg, Driesen etc., and also with many small business people. Since the salary together with my additional income Far from being sufficient to pay interest, the debt grew in In a flash, and the agents, in secret agreement living, new usurers were constantly coming, who were profiting from the fat When I didn't have much left to do, was to get, they took my bill of exchange from a small German business people, even at 100 pCt. They then have trouble and I've had enough worries. | They could not help but listen to the siren song of the agents who were attacking their me wanted to relieve the client, could not resist. In the period from October 1, 1881 to May 1, 1886, where my situation began, a to be regulated, above all no more usurious interest rates were paid, I have paid 20,000 marks in interest, whereby but the guilt continued to grow. When I arrived in the spring of 1886 could really think about paying off debts, the Debt annually by 2500 Marks. As evidence for this I continue below print the receipts from a single quarter, mostly postal receipts. The 35 creditors have sunk to date to 11. I cannot spare the reader a day's salary in the period from 1 October 1881 to 1 April 1886 with through= I received 795 marks quarterly as a salary, rent= damage 150 Marks, additional income about 70 Marks, total after Deduction of 13.50 Marks widows' fund contributions approx. 1000 Mk. |

Did I manage to get the creditors and agents, I quickly went to a beer local at Moritzplatz. Agent Conrad Troffin was waiting there, who worked for the company Redlich (). Mr. Redlich got 1000 Marks. I gave Troffin the 1000 Marks, a bill of exchange over 1000 Marks and a sales receipt, as follows:
"I hereby authorize Mr. Conrad Troffin to make a bill of exchange 1000 Marks, due on... 188 "to be sold as best as possible and to transfer the amount to me." |
Mr. Troffin brought the money to Redlich and received 750 Marks on the new bill of exchange he brought me. 50 marks were Then came the reward for his efforts. With the 700 marks

he to the other money people; what I finally had left,

were 550 marks. It was now 4 o'clock, and another Agent was waiting for me at the corner of Köpenicker= and Prinzen=Straße, who was

Mr. Dann did something similar, then I went to Mr. Peter Wirtz, redeemed my bill of exchange, which was only renewed the next day and then went home with 10 or 20 marks. The There was no rent left. At home, the other agents or financiers who are postponed to the next day

". e

ET IL ee
=f eee
5

He re 5

FAIRY

1 ata vient
Dye ast Ag TE
2 3 Taal eee
i " e

were comforted. The next day, some came to into the office. If the money from Wirtz arrived on time, I paid the rent, the other agents something, although it was mostly
There was a lot of noise, the agents had to find new sources of money fearch until I, after personally meeting Mr. Keller, Mrs.
Mielentz and others had visited, on the 3rd or 4th day of rest received, provided that the documents handed over to Mr. Tietz and received from the Bills of exchange coming to the Reichsbank did not have to be protested.
Nothing was left for the family. How close things often were Everyone can imagine. Fortunately, I kept chickens that lived on the bread thrown away by the children. The
I had to support my family through private work. Sometimes
I also did not pay the rent on time. The agents met
I spoke to all kinds of officials, prosecutors, magistrates, School inspectors, police councillors, accountants, building inspectors, criminal commissioners, preachers, rectors, teachers, secretaries, etc.
A public prosecutor who worked in Moabit, had his furniture on loan from a lender. A In his desperation, District Judge Storch finally addicted to morphine. I do not want to name living people, Maybe it harms them, but of deceased persons
I the Rectors Gericke and Mehlhofe. Both are as a result of their Kummers sank into the grave early. Some particularly instructive
I would like to particularly emphasize the following circumstances.

To the Jewish cigar dealer Mr. Keller brought me the teacher Krüger. Mr. Keller gave the money interest-free. For For 100 Mk. he gave 50 Mk. and some boxes of cigars. Since these Cigars were not made of tobacco, so I preferred a only box, so for 300 Mk. 150 Mk. in cash and 3 boxes of cigars.
However, whatever the nature of these, the teacher
Krüger was able to testify, to whom I gratefully dedicated some of them.
This business continued for two years. Finally,
Keller said he was fed up with the business. He earned at most 25 pCt., the lion's share will be taken by Krüger, the financier and leader at the same time and for the effortlessly earned money I bought a house on Thaerstrasse.

The teacher Krüger declared this information at that time to be un= true, but did not sue Keller. Mr. Stückgold brought bills of exchange to a Jewish banker Natfchelsky or sent them to a Jewish company in Stuttgart. Mr. Pariser only talked to me
2 transactions, one through an agent (for 150 Mk. – 100 Mk.), one directly (150 Mk. – 120 Mk.), then he gave me a
Mr. Halpert, who then did further business with me.
Mr. Siegbert Cohn, who was old and frail and only brokered smaller deals, gave precise information about the Business with the officers, which is still far from grey= lame exploitation went beyond the civil service. Mr. Cohn, who only charged me 100 pCt. pa, said: "With a married officials you have to be solid, but with an officer it doesn't matter whether he bets 50 marks more or less on the boy!"

er Ei iy 87 4 ae AT 1 e =. - an Par 1. oF Cae L 2 12 E. i Dai iy ers El on 27 7 a Sa Ee eS a 1 i. ee Tighe clea a Le eS e yep ee a Pe BE ih Ka

- 80 -

He had earned a lot of money, but this was through a large speculation= tion, which involved the purchase of a mine, lost again. Now he was poor and was supported by the great Banks were no longer allowed to do officer business. Later, discounted he gave me a bill of exchange from a master shoemaker in Zion= Kirchstrasse. He embezzled the amount of 200 marks. I have can only pay off this sum very slowly. The wife of the A few days later he handed over to the shoemaker a colorfully printed Sheet, which became security 1, and on which he still a sum of money. In order to prevent denunciation, Neither the Jewish community nor a larger Jewish association Money paid to the shoemaker. In my case, they did not considered necessary because they knew that I would not denounce without exposing my entire situation to the public roll and thereby, with regard to my office, into serious danger As a replacement, Mr. Cohn wanted to give me a bundle of officers= certificates of honor, which he later voluntarily left behind. The Agent Mr. Levyfon was essentially a collector for uncertain Demands. Through his fault, the teacher Dasel is expelled from the Office. The most interesting thing for me was the Jewish agent Zodek, because the man still had a trace of conscience. He was a sub-agent for the Lautrup cigar store in Hamburg, (Jewish company). He ordered cigars from the same company, had himself In return for payment, he gave me a bill of exchange and brought the cigars then to the main agent. He paid half of the value Mr. Lautrup finally sued me for the bill of exchange must, strangely enough, by the Christian lawyer Kleinholz, who also took care of the complaints of Mr. P. Wirtz. I have paid off most of it, but when Mr Lautrup came to of the last little remnant threatened me and said that I was a criminal, because I sold the cigars straight away, I was a bit strong. I didn't pay the rest and have been waiting for four years in vain for further steps on his part. It was similar from the agent Zodek with a wine deal. Finally

Mr. Zodek sought a more honorable occupation by Catholic areas traded in crucifixes that glowed at night.
The greeting: "Praise be to Jesus Christ", he said with much Anointing. The worst of all the creditors was the manufacturer Berndes in Wienerstrasse, who had already been mentioned in the bombshell article called. The tailor Zimmermann at Küftrinerplatz, whose Managing Director Jacobsohn had a completely different method.
He passed his bills of exchange on to Wandel Jacoby, formerly Hiller, Schlefinger ufw If the bills were not paid, he had sue him. But if he received the money to redeem the bills of exchange, he could not find them again afterwards. He always wanted to have information about rent compensation, which he had also misplaced on the due date. I had to write new ones, and then he himself came to receive the money to the town hall. Later he had a divorce male recognition, waived interest and allowed

*
E

+

--

81

Partial payment. Later, however, he found all the old bills of exchange and rent receipts again, and sued for the former. So he from a debt of perhaps 500 marks to a very wealthy gentleman payment of 2000 to 3000 Marks. Mr.
I later got to know Redlich personally, but I was not sure know nothing of blessing. Now I got several dozen bags= knife, dozen ashtrays, Chinese goods and all kinds of worthless things in payment. Finally, he declared that he now I have earned money from me, I should send him a notarial deed= recognition, then I could slowly withdraw the money without interest
His representative, Mr. Bruno, who works in the Bombeßsche
The person who played a role in the roast veal story went with me to the notary.
Immediately after the notarial hearing, however, he had my all furniture seized by the bailiff Bock I Er later explained laughingly that he had learned in secret that a Creditor intended the same, and he wanted to forestall this.
The remaining usury transactions, some of which are very interesting,
I will spare the reader for the time being in order not to be tiring.
But if the public prosecutor wants to know exactly about it, she only needs to go through the files of all bailiffs= leaf through. Thousands of witnesses would then be identified (affair. Regarding Halpert, the files of the court-Maronde, regarding Mr. Zimmermann the files of the Bailiff's students have already discovered some interesting things. Of course, such comprehensive measures would require an infinite amount of Officials, and the cancer damage would not be eradicated on this way.

There would have been an easy way out for me if I my furniture would have been quiet and my salary, as far as it was legally seizable, had it seized. 1500 Marks remain completely free, of the remaining salary only, seizable. But I wanted to spare myself the shame of having to to be picked up by the bailiff, since so far only very few of my acquaintances knew about my situation and I also always hoped to free myself completely through a larger loan, but then I was not allowed to do this because of my authority. Which Intentions of official persons who represent the majority of the school deputation had behind them, were plotting against me, the reader will see below. When the first complaint came, I was proto=Kollarisch interrogated, where I was told that I

The worst would be expected if new lawsuits were to come forward.

These warnings not to allow new lawsuits to arise, were then repeated many times. I had to Pay interest rates, also tolerate fraud, embezzlement of all kinds, in order to just not to let new complaints arise. Previously it was reported that the authorities would take action against usurers themselves. Since then, at least 10,000 Up to 20,000 lawsuits have been filed, but I am not aware of any protection of the civil service by reporting even those persons who have hundreds of lawsuits filed, nothing has been announced. The 6

– 82 –

Usurers eventually became so bold that they took every opportunity threatened with the authorities and also occasionally – complaint to of the same. This behavior of the authorities makes every self-assistance provided by the law through the salary deduction procedure permitted, impossible. When I finally did not expect the worst could no longer prevent it, the circumstances had become so complicated, that the salary deduction procedure was no longer of any use to me. The usurers had meanwhile devised all sorts of means to to prevent the officials from denouncing them. They were been examined by lawyers and found to be good. Buz

Next, the following certificate was requested:

I, NN, hereby certify that I am in good standing niffen, have no further debts and the borrowed Money for a bathing trip, (business venture, Be-fupply of better furniture). All Furniture is my absolute property.

To my knowledge, I have never signed such a certificate.
But whoever did so was faced with an artificial criminal case.
The last passage was almost always untrue, because after According to Marriage Law, the furniture brought by the woman belongs this alone. When the court dismissed these notes as meaningless-threw, came the pledging of salary and rent receipts Legally, this is of no value, because nobody can pawn what he does not yet own, but artificial criminal cases could also be created from this. The agents now demanded touching unanimity such receipts, allegedly to legitimize tion. These were carefully prepared by the donors to be used occasionally as a deterrent. Such
I have also repeatedly submitted income and rent receipts.
Finally, when this was no longer sufficient, they sought after even worse things. In a meeting that after Conviction of a usurer was held, it was decided to obtain unrealistic bills of exchange under all circumstances.
I immediately informed one of the agents. The following Manipulations were very interesting. Every official remained now suddenly somewhere a payment is made, which he is sure had calculated, and which caused him terrible embarrassment.
Suddenly an agent appeared and brought him the happy news, that some Mr. Cohn or Levy would immediately give him the sum of money favorable interest rates, but he should hurry, because it reflects Another man waited for the money. Both of them hurried to the lender,
He was willing, but still required a signature so that the
The whole thing no longer has a businesslike appearance. Whoever signs, fee it is equal to him, since the 1 of the borrower is complete Security. The change remains in its 1 -
Now the money seeker left to quickly find a guarantor
But outside there was already another agent who also wanted the money, at least that's what his own agent said and now began to sing his siren song. He should quickly write the name of his friend there, I could after= obtain his permission, or he may use any name write down who is in the address book. Perhaps someone is waiting at home the hungry family waited for the money, perhaps the innkeeper threatened with Execution! Woe to him who let himself be caught! Before he can this friend was able to obtain subsequent permission, the

The lender had long been with him and had the bill of exchange forgery
I claim that in Berlin among the officials and There are numerous such exchangers who are now, for the rest of their lives, end up being exploited and not being allowed to say a word. Whether I would not have fallen into these nets if I had not been Who knows? But I put those of my acquaintances who were closer to me, of these Things in mind. We simply concluded written contracts, that each could obligate the other up to a maximum of 600 marks.
But countless officials have met their downfall, for example:
Only recently the teacher Dasel. He had given Mr. Levyfon a given such a bill of exchange, which passed it on to the lender, who immediately went to the guarantor, even before Dasel for his subsequent approval. The Lord took the matter very seriously and denounced immediately.
When he later appeared to obtain permission, the Denunciation already sent. Dasel is now in Plötzensee and is serving a longer sentence because he was removed from office through the need still let it drift further. He is considered as excellent teacher and had thereby fallen into debt, that he was forced to file a divorce suit against his wife to initiate.

If all temptations did not lead to the goal, then
An attempt was made which, in terms of ingenious cunning, surpassed all surpassed the rest, and which, I know for sure, infinitely many to victims fell.

The agent agreed to a meeting to settle the business arrival in a Viennese café. While he was walking to Geldman, There was a very pretty, unambiguous lady who was a conversation started etc. Woe, woe! The poor devil who then fell into it, was caught by witnesses, and he bleeds even more devotedly and allows itself to be exploited until the end of life even more peacefully than all otherwise bound.

I was struck by the statement of a Jewish Gentlemen. I had been hurt by a colleague, I was angry about it and told about it when this gentleman at came in. What did he say? Give me 100 M. and I will let him by a woman thoroughly! That is moral the present time.

8 *

h. Beginning of official persecution. Rescue attempts.
failure of the same as a result of criminal acts authorities and private individuals.

There is a regulation that a rector can carry out major repairs may only be carried out with the permission of the house curator. and I was informed by a letter from the mason Hertel about= brought, requested by Mr. Ripberger, to carry out repairs which were then carried out. When the bill was later sent in, I received from the municipal school depu= tation without prior questioning a reprimand for unauthorized repairs. I immediately sent a protest to the city's school deputation, to which I also still in my hands letter from the curator Mr. Ripberger. School inspector Dr. Jonas brought me but the next day he protested again and gave me the advice, I prefer to remain silent. In this matter I will be proved right, but I may not increase the hostility against me, who must ultimately be defeated. Dr. Jonas thought at the time ft very well with me. I followed his advice. But this first little beginning, in which absolute malice could already be discovered, because after Mr. Ripberger's lecture the reference was feen closed, already showed what I still have to achieve for the future= had to wait.

| Incidentally, Mr Ripberger's letter also had a little story. The bricklayer Hertel had taken the same back requested, but later, when measuring the rooms, in a class In the meantime, I was repeatedly close to leaving from the hands of usurers.

An agent named Zucker, who offered me several high-interest loans from a Mr. Tietz, informed me that the Dod= respected and rich Count Königsmarck of Kammnitz near Tuchel in West Prussia has already freed many officials from difficult situations.

6 cents (previously I had paid between 60 and 200 cents) with moderate I had to provide the necessary collateral

I went with Mr. Zucker to him, where he, who was with knows jet, called for the regulation Then he gave a check for 4000 Mk. to the

I is

IL
to:

pros =
KERET

Kurmärkische Ritterschaftsbank into my hands, I gave the same to Mr. Zucker, and we collected the money. The presentation of the now following events, as far as my memory serves me does not let you down, literally the sworn statement that I made in usury lawsuit against sugar last year: "A Part of the money, which I can no longer specify exactly, was handed over Mr. Zucker to pay off all the small debts that did not allow action. The ü Mr. Zucker kept the rest for himself. The next day he sat down with two creditors, Mielentz and Keller, in contact. He threatened them so much that both issued their claims for much smaller amounts than we had recorded themselves, Mr. Keller received about half, Mrs. Mielentz for 910 Mk. = 91 Mk. | There were some tough scenes, Mrs Mielentz cried and screamed and the situation became horrifying to me, so I asked Mr. Zucker himself asked us to pay the money we had offered. But I got off badly with that. He explained, I don't remember, whether in the presence of Mrs. Mielentz or Mr. Keller: If you dare to say one more word on this matter to speak into it, I will immediately send the money to the Count explaining the facts!" Both eventually took the money and gave the debt These were, in my opinion, the most persistent beliefs bigger, and Mr. Zucker explained that he and the others now had easy game. On the advice of Mr. Zucker, I wrote to Mr. Count a thank you letter that same evening, in which I announced that the matter would be resolved after the worst Creditors are already as good as finished, and I hope even to keep some money left over. Mr. Zucker did not return and is not Creditors have not approached me any further. : In the Kortum trial, Mr. Zucker himself swore that he was still at the end of December 1882 or the beginning of January 1883 had the Königsmark money in his pocket. How much he I cannot say exactly what he kept, because I cannot remember exactly I know how much he gave me. I also gave him promised compensation of 500 Mk. I therefore only want a very small sum, 1100 Mk., was declared as retained. Defendant Zucker: that I myself am supposed to have sworn that, is absolutely untrue! : Mr President, I request leave of half a year hour, then the files are there. President Friedländer: Witness, I tell you to calm down. The whole matter is not up for negotiation. Finally, let's get down to business! | | When I confronted Zucker, he explained: I have the Convinced that I would not be able to get by with the money— I have realized that you have given the Count false pretenses. reflections. I will therefore keep the money and start a paper business with it, in which big money is lost—

Then I will pay your debts. Do you want denounce or write to the Count, you are free to do so. But I have looked deeply enough into your circumstances and know exactly what the authorities think about you. You are then loren, but not me!

I paid the Count on the due date the first 300 Mk., then I took his secretary's son into boarding house, for who were paid 240 Mk. annually, which at least covered the interest
This, however, again reduced the previously extremely limited Life in the family was impossible. The boy had to live in his simplest needs are satisfied, and the rejection of my own children behind them would not have done any good either.

I had 4000 Mk. of debts more, without being redeemed.
an attempt was made. A friend of mine, a Jew, Mr.
Crohn, who knew my anti-Semitism and had to approve of it had witnessed the whole development in the Gohrfe family, and he undertook, entirely on his own, a very hopeful-full rescue attempt without any selfish intention, and this was all the more promising as he had the Crysteller affair, which I wanted to settle the matter by litigation, also wanted to settle it peacefully and at fhis personal relationships could. He went to a relative, the multi-millionaire Mr. Weisbach in the Tier= garden street, and this provided a sum of money, only 4 pt. in Prospect of paying off all usurious debts. However, he demanded a Testimony from me about my conduct in office. I requested the latter from the school inspector Dr. Jonas, and the same was more than brilliant. I received this testimony on a Sunday and brought it to Mr. Weisbach immediately. The next Tuesday after-
I was supposed to get the money at 5 o'clock. On Sunday evening
I sat down in my office and, with meticulous precision, ity all my liabilities, which I have had for some time Months, – it must unfortunately be said, – even all overview had lost.

Including the Crysteller requirement, which I consider to be doubtful, it was over 20,000 Mk., of which the usury:
debts of about 3000 Mk. had to be paid off. This time
I demanded written promises from the usurers.
I locked this display in the table of my American room, in which I also found various manuscripts:
preserved, fpeculiarly a serious editorial for a Newspaper. The next morning the list and manuscripts were disappeared, but the table cabinet was locked again.
Tuesday morning I received a letter from Mr. Weisbach, in.
who informed me that Dr. Jonas had written to him
I have, my debt amounts to so and so much, whereby the

The amount set out in the statement of Sunday evening, up to the One was specified exactly. He did not believe that I was with the er-I can get by with the requested amount, although I have claimed this, and since he had also learned that I was involved in connections-

let go of people who were not sympathetic to him, he must

E i FF

os RY

last pp. I went to see Dr. Jonas and learned that Mr.
NRipberger told him the exact number yesterday. On my Question whether he has any certainty as to the accuracy of the information
BBefe beffffen, since he had relied on mere phrases, so far
I know him, it is impossible to predict the future of an entire family, whose ancestors and also with fine ones of their own in the closest relationships | would have been (he belonged to the count's family on his mother's side
Schwerin, on which my ancestors have depended for centuries
5), he replied: Yes. To my second question, = whether I might have a list of debts from my own hand
He did not answer at all when asked whether the matter had been submitted. That much was c berger had the stolen document, and consequently also the stolen Manufcripts, which, however, contain some not very pleasant things contained, in his hand, but how was he in the time of evening 11 am to 7 am in the morning came into possession of the same? The only one who had access to the office, but no key to the My new school servant, Augustin, was the one who owned the table cabinet. He wanted but knew nothing about it. I therefore went to his former rectors, and what they said about him was enough for me. He had made mistakes everywhere, was also Police vigilant, had this secondary job because of the prohibition of the Be-heard only nominally resigned and should eventually be dismissed
His colleagues were astonished that he was nevertheless sent to me. I knew enough. i
Mr. Ripberger was away the next day and for me not to speak. Soon after his return, the | Knowledge of my situation spread like wildfire throughout the Jlachbar:
En fchacht. But the effect was not what I wanted. I had my school, the 119th Community School in Königsbergerstraße,
In the meantime, he had secured a comfortable position and was gradually became known to the parents of my school children. I did not in the slightest respect, have never heard a bad remark need, and as I have heard from many teachers from all parts of the city who asked for my help in examination matters in An= fay took, fuch also from all possible people the neighbor-5 ftschaft, who asked my advice in all sorts of things. It is

OF has not occurred in the entire four years that in disputes
p between parents and teachers, the former or the latter with my consent divorce and called the authorities.

In this respect, every attempt to harm me was in vain,
155 and in the next election three-quarters of the district voted conservative.
15 Mr. Ripberger himself was elected to the next city council
| through, but was then assigned to a 1st department of a completely foreign district was given a mandate again.

But due to the rumors flying around, we later secretly instructed various teachers—fee to take steps for me, and one of them was also from success.

A highly respectable lady, unknown to me until then, Mrs.
Chief Forester Arendt, had been represented by members of my teacher—

— 88 —

felt compelled to hand over my redemption money but also required an official certificate. This time I did it more wisely. I went to my highest boss, the city school councilor Profeffor Dr. Bertram. This gentleman, although personally liberal, has never had anything else in mind than the Empor= flourishing of the Berlin school system, and political considerations of any what kind he has never used in assessing a rector or teacher. The entire Berlin teaching staff adores him as an absolutely pure, noble character, and his image shines in this time of dark night like a calm and clear star and will still shine in coming centuries. These words
I write this with a heavy heart, because praise from my Mouth?! But I want to tell the whole truth, without worrying about everything else, and this man, who is beyond reproach= dares, even my praise can no longer hurt. Yes, what would the Berlin school system, if it is from this side alone would be directed!

I received the requested certificate, soon the money, a Teacher of the school was helpful in regulating, only about 4000 Mk. of usurious debts had to be covered, for which the remaining 1000 Mk. were enough. Our activity was interrupted by the public school ramen. On the morning of this day I gave the last thousand-mark note available so that my father-in-law—father would exchange him later at the post office. In the afternoon We will then make further arrangements. It is common practice that the Rectors on this examination day of the examination commission, which consists of the school inspector, the house curator and some city:
as well as the neighboring school commission heads,

a breakfast. My wife had on this day, the
for them there was a lot of work involved, and since at that time, despite the number:
rich flock of children did not have a maid, a woman swing who lived with the school servant Augustin.
for a woman who otherwise almost never sees guests, in such Everyone can imagine that the excitement is great. After After breakfast, the father-in-law changes the money wanted, the thousand marks were gone. On Mrs. Schwung alone Suspicion could fall, but she stubbornly denied it. Only after Weeks later, light came to this matter. Augustine, who had just found himself in a difficult situation and suddenly made large expenses.
He invited large gatherings to his house, where there was great entertainment, dressed the whole family well, and I could also see that he debts. But Augustin was not at all in my
The only thing left was the assumption that that Mrs. Schwung, probably already previously from Augustin a required to spot the opportunity to steal the money stolen and given to Augustin.

But before I went to the extreme, I called him into my office, pointed out to him all the suspicious aspects and asked him to at least hand over the remaining money

ee
EE ae
ee

atl

* = 9 i BiaLa ai à * 5 1 br "as will hs D rig ge EY cP ae aiui Fian pat lra pa aat et m ar a > = TE na uh a Te aa = " . es Fer af er, oe Ta Sy 2 NA are ee ee ee amr L T. - ni =f 'x `TA: ee? * i F aa - a. * E ra.) D 74 ur, foe =i ae y FH. ' * - r - K Je eg aoe ep pi tle ee Ha Sr a ee . aa ae a eee a Fe Le me a oe A na Be 117 1 e al, ee E , eee TA u , HB m ft
ue] oe a f . 2 ne a EA ee | Dopa a! ba u * ry 4 - l er a 7 ee aa EN, Seen Be Me raae aa a tea" eat, ame 2 ele , ar Se a ee ru, Er KF a ee re re ei Alk Rn Bez re, : * a ia mie Be ae
: eat ae K ER mE TER Leg: home 1 * wa Kr r =H 22 a Biking: ey es a 220 WA = De i 2 5 7 E - a Pre Lu 5 lri seer tyr agg ai wu 2 . 7 abe ~ i * 4 f FFE ei 1 E rii ai :

just in which case I wanted to remain silent, which I would have could do when Augustin was to be transferred, namely to the Principal Bombe's school. I don't know why there.
Since this also held anti-Semitic views,
The following also sheds light on this.

Augustin refused everything, and when I started to threaten to speak, the man who had been so friendly until then suddenly

He took a completely different approach. He said: "Be completely calm, otherwise you will soon be in trouble. I have long been instructed by Mr. Ripberger to accompany you everywhere observe and also go to the clubs when you speak there That is why I am already a member of the conservative association "East Berlin" at Krampf. (Mr. Krampf was the forfeiting member of this association.) I also received money that I the Christian-social correspondence paper can read, I have leave it lying around more often so that you can see it. Mr. Ripberger has also received some things from you that you have not yet wiffen. The papers that they lost, I have Mr. Ripberger because he asked me to. If I If I get it, I will get a school clerk position at the Köllnische Gymnasium, where I can still sell beer. Let me in Quiet, then I'll leave you alone too! Say at the town hall fhe all that the thousand-mark note is just nonsense." The last remark became his misfortune. Up to a certain limit I can endure everything. But if this limit is exceeded, then for me all considerations. I immediately went to the police, gave the facts of the case, and the thief and fence were arrested that same evening. Both denied it, but Mrs. Schwung that same evening, with tears in his eyes, he made a repentant gesture— She gave the certificate to her father-in-law, who yes with the same to go to the Poft to change, from the notebook that he had in the side pocket of his jacket while he was playing with my little son She then got the certificate when she told my wife something had to obtain, to Augustin. The latter has the same— hold, and when she wanted to have some of the money, with threatened with immediate expulsion. Augustine denied everything, and only Detective Inspector Maaß was able to contact him after weeks. Augustin had met his brother-in-law in a distant pub met him, showed him a handful of hundred-mark notes and said: "You have helped me for so long, now I can help you too!" Witnesses had seen this, and when the brother-in-law sworn was taken, he immediately said, despite the family relationship the full truth. During the search of Augustin's apartment Hundreds of books were found, which, along with some Manuscripts partly to me, partly to the schoolchildren, partly to his former Rectors had been lost. Augustin was appointed to 13/, years, Ms. Schwung was sentenced to / years in prison.

All friends, including the criminal inspectors involved, gave me the urgent advice to be careful in my testimony

= to limit itself to the present charge and the incident not to mention official persons in order not to be irreconcilable— to create hostility, since after this trial I was to whom the municipal school deputation also sends a deputy had, I will leave it alone. For a year this is also really happened, but then Mr. Ripberger had liked to

to tell several teachers in a public place that I was was arrested for forgery of bills of exchange, which he confessed to Sources know. At that time I had already come from the East to The news spread in a few Days all over Berlin. Former students, my Friends, but above all all believers from all
City residents came to my apartment to find out more.
My acquaintances on the street avoided me. I was apparently still free, but that had to be an illusion
The author of this shameful prank, the city appointed Mr. Ripberger, who with his political friends in the municipal school deputation at any moment majority decisions
I was able to establish later that he was able to bring about this. The Nor:
Chairman of the Berlin Teachers' Association, Mr. Gallee, decided liberal, but thoroughly honest man, had this matter jo em= found it disturbing that he told me the author and the witnesses= nete, and under his full responsibility. I would have could have sued, but what would have been the use of this single lawsuit? I thought: Put it with the rest! In the meantime, the misfortune in my family has become a regular guest. Of the nine children flowly five died, the remaining four and my wife had to repeatedly endure serious illnesses. The worst misfortune hit me just at the time when the confusion was greatest.
I had a wonderful boy, Benno, who was born on severe catarrhal diseases. In the diseases in
I had already gradually given away three of the family members who were I asked doctors I knew and who were politically friendly for help. I could not pay anyone; they had to wait years for the fee for their efforts. I could not therefore dare to ask one of the gentlemen to visit me. When I made it possible to get a doctor, help was too late.
The catarrh had developed into a lung disease that after a year and a half of illness, he died. Finally
The decisive turning point seemed to come in 1885=
A Jewish agent brought me to the previously unknown knew Mr. Aron Meyer. He explained to me that he had I will free myself from my situation very quickly and thoroughly. He is from his youth onwards a close friend of the Privy Councillor 1 Some in the secret civil cabinet of His Majesty the Emperor.

I have lived with him for many years and still come daily several times with him. He will already have an out= find a way to create a more than sufficient sum for me.
The 10,000 marks more would not matter at all, although would be used for other purposes. Of course I was 12923 - - - nn

.

'ws BREE

SE .
So ta gt ag ce
Rage 2
unfair a e TEE ei]

È.

oa ae
S
* . a el

ie
ae eer ies ts

fen

5
s
f

i 1

**

Everyone agreed. A committee of six was formed:
respectable gentlemen. They wrote a confidential letter, which was copied and sent to known people. The
But there was no success. A creditor was given about 200 marks
I myself received 120 marks, then at death one of my children another 20 marks. The 120 marks are surely came from the committee member's own pocket.
Finally, I wrote the cover letter myself accompanied of Mr. Meyer, who knew the relationships of Mr. Manche, turned to some rich people and got about 500 marks, with which I could at least improve my situation. When I but finally several gentlemen said they were in the same matter

it already been claimed by other persons!
I didn't worry about the whole matter any further.

Several committee members meant well, but the author pursued purely selfish interests, for which my person was only I was therefore able to provide the rest of the Committee members would like to thank them for their goodwill, but not Mr. Maude and Mr. Meyer. The former had my views through unknown persons and has »since then against me for a very long time in intentionally hostile disposition

ze He didn't hide the reason from me for a moment.
The latter finally wanted to use me to meet rich people to establish relationships into which he could not gain access, to introduce him there, whereupon he began the same negotiations wanted to connect with the purpose of obtaining titles &c. Then he demanded a large advance from the people. This business did not seem to me to be beyond doubt, and I rejected the same decidedly, although, as everyone can tell, with a heavy heart. Later, however, I made observations from which I concluded had to that Mr. Meyer had been doing this business for years and on a large scale and that he also achieved real success through Mr. Mauchs That a high-ranking German official would agree to such things I was unable to understand how I could give it away until Mr. Meyer about Mr. Mauchs. According to this, Mr. Mauchs Jewish tribe. His grandfather was called Moses, his religion changed and adopted the name Manche, from which then further many things became. Through some influence he is in this highly responsible position, which enables him to for good money his Jewish tribesman title and to obtain pardons. The intermediary was Mr. Meyer, who lived from this business for many years. He was but finally because of several player affairs probably in his own Kreisen had become somewhat persona minus grata, and now it came I felt as if someone wanted to use me to be a means-person. I have the willpower despite my fear-substantial emergency, not to give me any money Only a Mr. Thomas from the Keiling company & I told Thomas about this whole situation; he is went to Mr. Manche, and what happened there,

I will tell you further below. Perhaps a whole number of Jewish commercial councillors, e.g. Mr. D. Levin, Jacob Landsberger, Jacob & Valentin, for the Geh. Kommerzienrat Mannheimer, Friedländer, Pincus and others can provide further information on this. There is still much to be determined, as many entries Mr. Meyer himself wrote. All manipulations of the Mr. Some were based on an accurate knowledge of His Majesty of the late Emperor Wilhelm I. – Emperor Wilhelm J. had such a gentle disposition that he accepted requests addressed to him personally– He was relentless only in three things, namely military offenses, offenses of nobles Persons and moral offenses, especially against school-age children children. In all other matters he granted almost every request. However, there are daily in the secret civil cabinet whole laundry baskets full of petitions, and the secret civil abinet is there to organize these letters and to These will be forwarded to the relevant authorities for assessment, then come back and, if the goods– consider it a favourable one, by the presenting Council of His Majesty for decision. Because every request that the Kaiser once had in hands, was as good as granted, so each Authority, if facts do not make this impossible, would be happy to favorable report, as soon as His Majesty notes it in blue pencil had z. BW (that is to say to the report Wilhelm), because every The authority already saw from this that His Majesty had had previously in my hand. His Majesty sought the senior officials of the secret civil cabinet in every way against temptations. He gave it to their state= Income nor free accommodation from own resources. Also All possible precautionary measures have been taken. For example, if a Application for appointment as Commercial Councillor is received, the same will to the Ministry, from there to the President, from there to the Police– Prefidium. This allows on the one hand through the district police, on the other hand by a police councillor, until recently by the Police Commissioner Greif, conduct research on the following matters: 1. moral leadership, 2. punishment, 3. military conditions, 4. assets, 5. Services to the industry or trade of the fatherland, 6. Charity, 7. Education. To top it all off, nor the elders of the merchant community were asked for an expert opinion. One would think that leaks would be completely unthinkable here. But Mr. Mauchs was able to be of use to his friends. He made it easy to get such preferential requests into the hands to reach His Majesty before they went to investigate. If the W. was on it, this was of course a great profit. Unworthy people could never do business= become a councilor or receive an order, but among the very many Those with 3rd BW enjoyed a great advantage. You can't blame rich people for a title that expresses so many advantages, and it has yes, no one would be harmed by it, even that would not be a disaster

a * r Eee

$ 1 ar
e

-
*
a

fr a Le 2
en

fe, if you subsequently thank the people involved would testify by the act, although officials do not accept gifts should have accepted, but Mr. Meyer has given himself large advances let them pass on to Mr. Manch's, and that is difficult Many have not achieved their goal and Fear of publicity did not claim their money. Something like that would not be possible if men of German descent in all positions of trust. Here, through the Christian Religion of Mr. Mauché deceived, and according to his Mb-ftance, especially since he had pupated himself as a Frenchman, was not asked.
Hopefully no persons of Jewish descent will ever again in positions of trust.

Making such an outrageous claim requires of course, irrefutable evidence. I will present some of it.
I witnessed a conversation that a Mr. Valentin (son-in-law of Commercial Councillor Mr. V. Mannheimer) in presence of his partner Mr. Jakob with Mr. A. Meyer
Mr. Valentin said the following, almost word for word:
| It is true that we children have the urgent desire have invited our father-in-law to his anniversary for a secret
To see the position of Commercial Councillor promoted. But everything has its Borders. Mr. v. Madai hunts every day that it will soon be far it, and yet nothing happens. Mrs. Greif visits us every day and wants to have it, but nothing helps.
"It went much faster with my brother-in-law!"

a {from these two statements it emerged that the two bohen officials must also have been in a bad situation. I was owed money to a Jewish gentleman from Stadthagen. He had a seizure was made from me.

It was at the time when the committee was formed, in 1885. I asked Mr. Meyer to go to him and get me a deadline.

Last year, 1888, Mr. Stadthagen, to whom I meanwhile gradually lost a large part of his credit paid, with the following:
11 Are you still in touch with Meyer? No. Well, that is not the best brother either. He boasted to me, to be able to enforce everything, then my son, the Cashier at Büxenstein ift, 12000 Mk. given and again fo much is promised if Bürenfstein becomes a commercial councillor. But it is nothing happened. We will collect the 12000 Mk.

have to. Do you want to tell him that? No. |

When I once, about 2-3 years ago, received my salary on the
When the town hall rose, Meyer was already there and waiting for me. He urgently demanded a sum of 200 Mk. from me, since today
He had to pay rent and was in great distress. He said he would give them back soon. I gave the 200 Mk., and he told me the following story: A herring dealer joked,
resident of Präfidentenftraße, had embezzled large sums of money.

HE | TE

we,

ia Ek
– 351

{He ann –
e aig ad

= ae 2 3 . – | + . 1

te THTT eee – fe ibe T eT – 21 F

, . ee wen

a ee r e eee eee

"Ha

ofA T
=
r * *

– 94 –

A house in Stettin was accused of presenting false books, whereby it had seen itself compelled to grant credit, denounced, and Scherz received 9 months in prison. The mother of the Lord Scherz had known him from old times and had given him the He immediately applied for a pardon—submitted a request to Mr. Manche, and he gave him an official certificate, which he immediately submitted to the State—lawyer and thereby postponement of the sentence Mr Mandé has now submitted the request for a report. In the next few days I may accompany him for fun, there he would receive money and give me mine back. I could of course only use the 200 Mk. for a maximum of 3 days. behren. Then I went to Meyer. He had a message from Mr. Manché in his hand that the request for report fe; he took this with him to Mr. Scherz, while I was in front of the door remained. When he appeared again, we went into a pastry shop, which is there in the neighborhood, and he brought one not over to me= fight amount of paper money from his pocket, of which he 100 Mk. He didn't want to have any more than that, since the the entire amount must be delivered by him to Mr. Manche must, who then does not give him more than he necessarily uses.

I paid the rest in installments over 2 years from 1–3 Mk. back. |

Mr. Meyer had a princely residence, Fürbringer: Street No. 18, maid, wet nurse and his family never drove different than in a first class cab.

I also learned from him that a very important and the circles of the fine world because of its reality and absolute Indifference with which he lost or won hundreds of thousands, highly respected player Reuter by Mr. Manchs on his mediation was avoided a severe punishment. I hung up This information is of little value. Last year, however, when Mr. Meyer at the same time with a detective inspector Trommer was complained about, which everyone was talking about at the time, a former former detective that Meyer always found himself in these fine gaming circles and has already made an immeasurable fortune wasted. |

He later secretly informed the police and left in time at the fateful hour. The companions= division went right through me. I know very well that In times of terrible hardship, man allows himself to do many things that he in another situation would not do, but harmlessly trusting people, also if they are on the path of injustice, secretly betrayed, but with remain good friends with them on the outside, then use his connection, to help them for a lot of money; no, that can no German, even if he is a criminal. Artificially, criminals, in order to then pardon them for a large sum of money

= create. I got to know the gentlemen completely and completely in following case.

= GE ==

Keyling's factory is near my school and Thomas, which employs 600 - 700 people. The workers of the Factory feel satisfied, and the children of the same are characterized at school through good clothing and nutrition from others Children. It is also known throughout the area that both Gentlemen do a lot of good. In previous years I received 20 Mk., which I received from Mr. Thomas, later even more to clothe poor children. With this Mr. Thomas I came About 3 years ago in a long conversation, from which I initially he saw that he belonged to the anti-progressive party and also had anti-Semitic views. Of course, I was This makes it highly interesting, first of all because of the party that has one of its main benefactors through useless, probably intentional, Statements by a leader who ultimately also exploded the same help, but then I also thought about my own Person. Regarding the Christmas list, he referred me to various Companies, including Jewish ones, with the remark that they were charitable purposes could still give something first, and that these matter had nothing to do with politics. Then he complained fuch that the rich Jews have all the awards that the State 3 could, however, receive German men despite all their merits, were not taken into account. On this occasion He told me that years ago he had received a letter from the secret Cabinet of His Royal Highness the Crown Prince with the request to a building inspector or master builder Jung (for the exact I cannot vouch for the correctness of the name) in his distress help. The document from the Crown Prince's Secret Cabinet was presented to me. I had long been aware of similar letters. The Crown Prince had just taken his mild, charitable spirit from from his father. From his youth he has inherited most of this not so great income to quiet charitable activities for Members of all classes, and since he knew no boundaries here, he himself had fallen into Jewish hands. He is, as I later wrote in the article: "Jews and the great and powerful" due to this weakness, which in other considered the greatest princely virtue of the present time would have, even for many years in terrible sorrows which also caused his physical deterioration and death To be a Kaiser was infinitely higher as a human being than this greatest eulogists suspect. Freytag swims with his judgment everywhere on the surface. But more about that later. When the Crown Prince could no longer help himself, he recommended those seeking help, whom he would like to help after personally examining the situation, to rich people. Mr. Thomas had, on this recommendation, 38,000 marks were given. A letter of thanks from the Crown Prince was also owned by Mr. Thomas. Later, the men-his factory a report written by a General Staff Secretary Immediate submission sent to His Majesty the Emperor with the request to appoint Mr. Albert Thomas as Commercial Councillor.

This was rejected. I then told

a E

Mr. Thomas about my acquaintance with Mr. Manche and Aron Meyer, did not conceal from him the relationship between the two-other, also refused any mediation or personal-to adopt the idea, but that Mr. Manchs in this thing can do something and upon fulfillment of certain things also
I considered it positive that I would do something.
There is no question between us that we could have any advantage
I only met Mr Thomas much later asked for a small loan, which I received against bill of exchange Later I learned from Mr. Thomas as well as from Mr. Meyer that the former had visited the latter and went with him personally to Mr. Manche. Mr. Thomas has donated 30,000 marks, of which 20,000 marks were donated to charitable foundations, 10,000 marks for any other use (F. Valentin and Jakob) were intended, because there were still 5000 Mk. in a closed envelope,

Then I heard nothing about it for about a year, until Mr. Thomas called me in and explained that he was cheated, that he therefore had to return the money from Mr.
He only received 20,000 marks, the rest was allegedly charged arbitrarily according to his own statement.
These 10,000 M. were later found by the lawyer Wesener under threat of immediate legal action on behalf of Mr. Thomas also demanded back and also paid. I could only say that I told him in good faith the matter
I have stated that I am not responsible for anything. This
He also admitted without further ado, explaining to me that he did not and told on this occasion that he had a high-ranking general, whom he identified by name and address, 10,000 M. to various foundations and hope to reach my goal now. But it didn't happen. I was very sad about this, because I had told Mr. Thomas the names called, and besides, I also calculated in secret, without knowing to speak, that Mr. Thomas, if he has his heart wish would be very useful to me and the party
In particular, I hoped that he would provide me with the means to to establish a large, anti-Semitic, social-reformatory organ.
For this purpose I had already met with many leaders of the Party in relation. When months passed again, Without anything happening, I went myself to Messrs. Manche and Meyer, confronted her seriously, made her aware of the fact what a predicament I had gotten myself into. I was told. that nothing could be done because the elders of the merchant community had not reported favourably enough that perhaps in the future still possible jei x., but one of the gentlemen left the word "Such a locksmith!" This outraged me beyond belief.

Measures. So a German who through his own spirit to become a major factory owner and multi-millionaire: workers, bread for countless people and the fatherland's economy duftury had created a large sales article, is being sold by Jews as locksmiths, while the number of Jews,

ss GE

who had done nothing for the fatherland and had become rich through speculation made rich, dozens of Privy Counselors of Commerce and Commercial Councillors find!

So I decided to simply use my citizenship rights to make use of it, to spurn all detours, and even with To present himself to His Majesty. Emperor Frederick was reigning at that time, on which Mr. Thomas had every reason to place his hopes. I wandered through my entire city area, introduced the individual charitable acts of Mr. Thomas personally, me all the papers of Mr. Thomas and asked the most esteemed citizen and master of the area, unfortunately also Teacher Berner, who declared himself to be an outspoken anti-Semite, to sign an immediate submission written by me, under= then drew it himself and searched for this input bypassing the Secret Civil Cabinets directly into the hands of His Majesty the Emperor Frederick. My attempts to bring about political Attempts to obtain a further recommendation from party comrades failed. This time the application was successful, because Mr Thomas was decorated with a medal. Through this I believed that friendship of Mr. Thomas and built the a great speculation, which completely change.—I had in the meantime made various discoveries made, especially a large clay deposit directly on the Elbe, which fit was ideal for the construction of a brickworks, then another important discovery in the North Sea. In Berlin, a brilliant Danish engineer and officer, Mr. Bagge, of Jews hunted to death, shot. He had various fertilizer powders invented, whose recipes along with the raw materials were placed in the hands of his Existing letters from France testified that that these fertilizers are almost completely absent there, but in a worse form ly used to grow the wonderful vegetables that one paid so dearly for it. The basis of this fertilizer powder was referred to as silt, which is found in large quantities on the Danish coast, in smaller quantities also species of the Eider, Elbe and Ems: estuary. In Espierg in Jutland, A factory was set up to extract this silt, dry it and entire shiploads to France. Mr. Bagge had founded this factory, but was then taken over by well-known people in the usual way, Mr. Bagge was a brilliant man, but impractical in business matters and rested now in the grave. The factory is said to be in good foweft. I connected me with the former worker of the Excavator, acquired the Recipes that Bagge had brought back from France and harvested then covered with his help at the mouth of the Ribau in Jüt= land a magnificent, 4 m high silt deposit and secured me and the worker jointly the same by contract with the owners for 20 years. The first lease should be in four weeks= be paid. After my return I went to the professor Dr. Petri, who explained to me that the silt was not so concentrated= rich, when I assumed on the basis of another expert opinion that

7

(ee IE Se lial a A RL eee Sp r' - a = Ml Se

—
e

SS —
— eeee,
inna Ta

ATY er ET e
— A

—
.

ae |: u

the same but in combination with fine fecal masses, some chili= faltpeter and lime, a fertiliser of very significant value. He is not averse to connecting with me and for this purpose the offers of several cities to give them a ton system according to its principles in order to receive a lot of fecal masses. Then I went to Professor Orth at the Agricultural College and also requested his opinion. It was consistent with that of the Pro= feffors Dr. Petri agreed. b Chu was only a little over 1½ pCt. present, so addition of chili saltpeter necessary. Since the sample, which Professor Orth had received, directly from the mouth of the river, which carries some sulphurous soap with it, for this was also found to be a harmful component. The remaining silt did not contain this iron sulphide, and the elimination of iron sulphide by adding caustic lime was an easy matter. Now I went to Mr. Thomas, he had to examine the matter and then declared himself willing to work with us to exploit this discovery and to provide the necessary money for it. 7 of the net profit should be his and / to both of us. I travelled there again, this time not on own costs, took terrain surveys, negotiated purchase a storage area, in Hamburg with wholesale companies because of waste-taking etc. After my return I sent the above mentioned Worker to Riebeck, the next town from the camp, who The rest had to be put in order. This resulted in essential ous expenses, and he wrote for money, as he was in great embarrassment. I brought this letter to Mr. Thomas, who is now with me. On the way he told me that he had a small founded a company that will exploit the matter. Unfortunately I also received the inner certainty that in this society Jewish bankers. Then I knew the course of the matter in advance. Dr. Petri should not be called in, but can buy what he needs from us. It was enough that we should grant this society the right to to convert at any time into a stock company, in which case our share of the profit will be lost and we will have to pay a small compensation In Hamburg, a gentleman was introduced to me as Representative of Mr. Thomas, who concluded the proceedings fufhrte to Riebeck. The gentleman came along, inspected the camp, found it excellent and wanted to finish immediately, which we refused most emphatically, since our rights there-with would simply be given away. In the case of the conclusion, the Expenses there, which caused great concern, were covered. In We travelled home in a rather gloomy mood. Here I came after a short time behind a wonderful fact. The worker had negotiated with Mr. Thomas alone to obtain a position at the new company and was without my knowledge was sent to Riebeck, because the four-week-deadline had expired in the meantime, only a new contract I immediately returned and managed to find the

au DO. u

To permanently secure my rights. By Mr. Thomas

I then stepped back completely and looked for a new money-man. In the meantime, however, a notice appeared in all newspapers, in which attention is drawn to the content of iron sulphide which Professor Orth had found. The worker, who was now causing me every possible harm, still hoped to the help of Mr. Thomas at least a garden manure powder—to set up a factory, but this also failed because I and even knew the secrets of the manufacturing process. Since then I have not seen Mr. Thomas again. Not long ago I tried in writing to get the matter back on track with him to bring, but without success. In the meantime, however, my suggestion to further expand the fertilizing power of lake mud A few days ago, in the North—German Allgemeine-Zeitung that the state has larger stocks of sea silt in order to make the Lüneburg Heath productive close.

When I recently wrote to Mr. Thomas asking him This year again a donation for the clothing of several To make the children named, he sent the letter to department of the police. That was the thanks for my efforts regarding of the Order. The question arises: How did the man come to this suddenly changed attitude? The reader will almost guessed. It was inevitable that some people When they became aware of my relationship with Mr. Thomas, especially the teacher Berner and also my immediate superior, the School inspector Dr. Zwick, who urged me with great energy, to give information about my current situation. A useless intrigue to separate Mr. Thomas from me, initially without success. The following letter, for example, was sent to him sent to the bathroom. Mr. Thomas brought the same to me, had but the names were cut out.

Dear Sir .

In the matter in question I was with Mr . .. and According to this statement, I am convinced that Rector Ahlwardt ijt. The personal description is accurate and has fhe said that he would ensure that you .. . receive, but you'll bleed a lot first.

He has made unambiguous statements that you thank you very much and he has you in his hands. The process is fpeaks that you receive it completely; it should be earlier against the The person concerned must have been subject to disciplinary proceedings and he should now again be involved in a ... process. The whole The incident is said to have happened in a bar and was reported by an eyewitness a very wealthy man and gentleman . .. communicated fine (the The passages in brackets are from Mr. Thomas in the original cut out, then the letter was sent to me by this person.)

TF

Mr. Thomas remarks in passing: If you knew, how you would harm and hurt me with those words. You certainly refrain from doing so. I have now already heard from two sides such letters! Silence is golden!

In view of the fact that, in addition to the above-mentioned both gentlemen with no one about Mr. Thomas's matter spoken, the co-signatories of the immediate input of nothing further knew that I had not been to a bar for at least a year also by Mr Thomas except for the above-mentioned loans never asked for a penny of money, I wrote to Mr. Thomas a very harsh letter, and when he returned to Berlin, I demanded most emphatically the naming of the names of the Ars gift of the pub, so that I can account for these perfect scoundrels= Mr. Thomas said: Just leave it, it must. It is enough for you that I do not believe the whole thing, which you fthou canst see that I sent you the letter You wouldn't be able to stand up to the men. You Ion is also an open anti-Semite, you have to like something like that ate!"

Shortly afterwards I had to admit that Mr. Thomas was only joking when he boasted of his own anti-Semitic tendencies. He had founded the Norddeutsche Brewery into a stock company, and when I once had to do business in the Darmstadt bank and had to wait there for a long time I witnessed some strange conversations. First there was a senior officer, who was very warmly recommended shares of Ludwig Loewe The banker's third word was: Thomas says that and that, consequently, you have to buy now. Then came two older Ladies, and again they were told by citing Mr. Thomas a paper recommended. I was very embarrassed by this process, and I also told this to Mr. Thomas. But he found all this quite in order and said among others: "Cheating is the audience under all circumstances at every turn of Papers. All bankers agree that if a Paper comes into the audience, or if it is held back foll. The initiates always know everything in advance, and Who else should they take the money from if not the audience! Everyone has to accept that the other person is or sale of securities!

Summing everything up, I had to come to the following conclusion.

come: "Mr. Thomas as well as all other German rich

Dr

Men who still achieve greater financial success on the stock market want to, are no longer allowed to compete with their German brothers, but must, even against their will, stand with the Jews.

Men then limp to the right and left. For my

| I was in February when I received my instruction on stock exchange transactions, because came to the conclusion that a layman could take his hand from this dangerous toy! That Mr. Thomas had to fall as soon as the femitic backers of the

. aa =-

- 101 -

When the letter writers entered into personal contact with him, it was clear to me and I could not even explain it to him from his point of view

On the other hand, he will not blame me either for

I to achieve my goal, which he has known for a long time, take the material where I find it, without regard to friend and enemy.

After writing this months ago, I just realized

feven during the printing of this book, the monstrous aftermath report that Mr. Albert Thomas, this multi-millionaire, who debts never knew, the debt-free houses in Victoria-street, in 1 2c. owns, can not consume fine income and has no children, is completely bankrupt and also has all the assets=

fcies. The reader will ask in great surprise:

How is that possible? I don't find it strange in any way.
All well-off Germans are opposed to the Jew,
– please forgive the expression, which is absolutely nothing offensive should have, but it fits perfectly – what the fattened pig has to farmers. The more fattening such an animal proves, the more it is naturally fed. With its fat, its beautiful Ham more than pays for all the effort and expense. Mr. Thomas had become very rich as an intelligent manufacturer and had this Wealth increased by some clever speculations. The Jews knew how to win him over, caused him to speculate, where he always earned, let him look behind the couliffes, and He already counted himself among the initiated, who was aware of the stupid audience. It certainly made him feel good when the Puckel scratched, that is, when his insight was praised.

Finally he was fat enough and was sold into large time stores.
wrapped, the abyss opened, and differences of many millions stared at him. The rest is silence.

Yes, you rich German men, don't rub your hands.
Thomas was not only a good man, concerned about the well-being of his workers, thoughtful, but also a clever man. But Mephistopheles was him. Today it is not your turn yet. It would be wrong to slaughter too many at once. But your time will come, despite all wisdom. Have you not gradually See others fall? Then you rejoice and say: Was the but stupid! Thomas will have often said that, so one will of you too! Your grandchildren will reap the reward of your sweat furely not inherit. Do not be afraid of the red ghost. The fimpily the Jews to you, that will never become flesh and bone,
No, the Jews alone attract everything to themselves. You are the fattened pigs, who are treated well, whose pimples are scratched, the rest
People are animals that must feel the whip. The screaming
They are not forbidden to do so. Freedom is a must! Power finally Open your eyes! Let the sacrifices made so far be enough!
Away with the Jews!

– 102 –

The Treitel case.

Among those committee members concerned with the regulation my situation was serious, belonged first and foremost to Mr. Crohn, but unfortunately at the time when it was most needed, was travelling. Before his departure, however, he already realised that through the-fame would not be of any real benefit. Despite its Benevolence for me, he also sought Mr. Mauché for his own

A lawyer in Königsberg was accused of convicted of fraud, and to this end, if not as a lawyer, fo to reinstate him as a magistrate, negotiated
He was in lively contact with Mr. Mauché. When he was older he wrote to me
If I remember correctly, I received a letter from Italy in which he invited me a Mr. Moritz Treitel, Bendlerftr. 9, who was probably in
Be able to help me, as he is interested in working with Mr.
Mauché. I showed this letter to the
Mr Meyer and Mauché, and both advised me to contact Mr Treitel
I went to him and soon recognized him as a understanding and benevolent man. After I gave him a After giving an overview of my entire situation, he said that he knew someone who would help me and who no matter how high my liabilities were, but it would be necessary to consult Mr. Mauché beforehand. The be-apt gentleman (his name, Sulzbach, I learned much later, namely through Mr. Meyer) is a hundred-times millionaire and lives in Frankfurt a/ M. He had the urgent wish to have one of his to obtain a title corresponding to its financial significance. He is member of the Chamber of Commerce, have also already from a Thuringian Lande, I think Coburg-Gotha, received the title of Financial Councillor, but which was not recognized in Prussia. He was aware that
To obtain the title of Commercial Councillor, proof of
That is why he, Treitel, wanted a meeting with Mr. Mauché to find out whether the-solution of a completely unknown rector in Berlin at the relevant be counted as an act of charity.

I brought this message to Mr. Mauché. This gentleman had no time to receive Mr. Treitel, but sent Mr. A. Meyer with a power of attorney to him.

What these gentlemen negotiated with each other is only partially and much later became known, as especially

Mr. Treitel was definitely not a fan of superfluous talk.
I had no reason to prevent Mr Meyer from maintaining interested in my well-being. When I got to know him, He, a sixty-year-old bachelor, did not live in splendid circumstances. But then his prosperity increased rapidly. He forgot-married a young, poor girl, set up a almost princely household, kept maids, later also wet nurse and made all journeys in Berlin only in a 1st class cab, while
The committee's work was of little benefit to me.
But with Treitel he really acted on me, because this gentleman

i!
k iy
$
1

— . T Bree as An

—

1 —

— 103 — I—

introduced myself a few days later and told me that he
I will pay him my creditors from a certain day onwards daily in groups of 4 or 5 who would then have to bring all the debt securities with them.

Where deductions are to be made, I should say so.

Like the weary traveller, who in dark storm and Rainy night on the heath, nowhere a resting place finds, and yet with every step forward into the unknown, perhaps into the abyss, rejoices brightly as soon as the rising sun with its first golden rays illuminated his path and his
When the target was right in front of his eyes, I also cheered inwardly, the golden sun of salvation suddenly warmly greeted me=
shone and showed me a life full of contentment and happiness.

flowers, the blessed,
Flames, the cheerful,
They spread love,
They bring joy,
Heart as it likes.
Words that are true,
Aether in the Clear
Eternal Hosts,
Day everywhere.

urn

lichsten-Weft. Although they both may have ulterior motives, the
the former general, relating to his people, the other egoistic,

but the benefit for me became worse, less effective? A tear went through my soul; I was still inside= I was delighted with the sun of happiness, but my Enthusiasm; the divine breath that I felt surrounded me, was no longer there for me. An insoluble dilemma arose fpliance in my soul, and the present hour was at at least capable of eliminating it. |

I believe that nowhere else will the Lefer be given less than here. fall that I suddenly break the thread of events and in theoretical considerations. Which writer could be compared with our very unique Jean Paul, but It is hardly read at all, at least at present. Why? Because while you want to follow the plot with excitement, falls to interrupt it at any moment and to thoughts and feelings that will delight the reader who merely wants to follow the development of the facts on which torture. But perhaps Jean Paul wants such readers not at all.

– 104 –

My state of mind imperatively demands this interruption, and many readers too. The sensible, serious man, the caring Father of the family, of course, will be the same, the unspeakable, almost find the confusing joy quite natural and would uninhibitedly read more. It is the duty of every human being, first and foremost, to felf, to take care of his own. A great success in this In this respect it is certainly worthy of pure joy. Virchow has this This point of view was once discussed in a brilliant speech, and this made such an impression on me that I still remember some passages, at least in its meaning, keep it faithfully in my memory. "Every individual has to take care of himself. Every individual has the duty to raise oneself higher than one's ancestors stood and to ensure that his children rise higher than he himself The sum of these individual advances means the cultural progress of humanity!

The whole world is much too big,
To take them to heart.

For this only God's lap is sufficient,
It is up to him.

A human heart is much too small,
To lovingly dedicate oneself to the world!

Understanding readers who think so will understand my former,

Let us say it bluntly, understand the egoistic state. But what What does the philosopher say to this? I do not mean those people who are perfection of their minds also studied philosophy and occasionally make use of it to achieve personal purposes,

but those men who ruthlessly seek everything and everyone the truth, which with Plato, Kant, Schopenhauer in deepened the source of eternal truth?

You will be told:

Dear friend, with reference to Schopenhauer you have book started. A discussion of the psychological truth of the Old Testament, on the occasion of the birth of Joseph, strongly towards naturalism. Here you kneel, where a purely personal, and not so appetizing looking advantage, before your God in dying gratitude and feel the breath
this immediate vicinity, what should we make of you do? The probable thing is that you are a confused person and besides, pure egoist, because how can you because of an external advantage, which is not entirely beyond doubt, without exaggerated Egoism in this mood? Does your devotion to your God with money? What right do you have, from such a standpoint, which is actually not a standpoint at all—point is to intervene in the workings of the world? Do you demand

— — — — *

— 105 —

perhaps because some Jews earned a good penny from you have, which by the way is from your tribesmen e.g. Peter Wirtz, Zimmermann etc. can also be said that now your whole people, who truly have better things to do, the sacred Violating the right of hospitality, driving out the peacefully immigrated Jews, acquired wealth in whole or in part for the benefit of the whole ity away? Didn't Dr. Straßmann do you nobly?
Because you don't imagine that he is just I was afraid of you and your anti-Semitism. He has other men. Didn't your friend Crohn honorably Wasn't there two committee members Jews? Doesn't Sulzbach in Frankfurt am Main pay all your Debt without any return? Travel through Europe to all directions, whether you can find such noble spirit again.
That's right, he wants to achieve something by doing this. By proves beneficial in many respects, not only to you, he wants

Commercial Councillor, for which all other prerequisites are present Is that something bad? Almost every person strives for external honor. Why does every academic seek the doctorate, which is of no use at all? Why does the craftsman hold the
Is the title of "master" so high? A hundred-times millionaire is certainly in the right to strive for an outward sign of one's wealth, such as the scholar is looking for an outward sign of learning
He wants to be a benefactor to you, and in return you will draw you bring him into this discussion? Have your tribesmen helped you, and do you deserve help at all? You have your assumption of guarantees has brought you into misery, which you have to pay for it fairly. Go away! How one bed, so one sleeps!

These are harsh and justified accusations, but I want an answer give it to it.

I will first address the first group of questions that on my conviction. |

I have to answer: Yes, it is true that my Soul has not achieved clarity for a quarter of a century
I could come to the point where I am filled with the most varied thoughts and feelings and to inner balance could not have achieved. This struggle for the truth is It was precisely this that made me so un-cleverly made and made me express my personal interests so poorly. But I am egoistic when it comes to traded in external goods, as little as a person, so absolutely little that I can retrospectively egoistic motives in order to make them understandable Originally they were not there at all. If
But then the need struck too terribly, I did many things, which would have been better left undone. I was brought up in the rock-solid Belief in the Bible and as a boy I immersed myself in religious things, have already spent hours of the holiest religious enthusiasm. Therefore, I loved solitude and am

* en m .

– 106 –

my playmates hardly ever a pleasant companion
I have this absolute, unshakable belief preserved until about the 21st year. At that time, I first noticed that extremely shallow life of Jesus of Nazareth into the hands, but that time made a shocking impression on me. This was followed by then Strauss, Büchner, Moreau, Carl Voigt etc. At that time the inner conflict was complete. I saw no salvation. The
The situation became unbearable. I thought: give in to external pressure!
Catholicism became something I envied. Finally, I turned to the preacher Zeller in Oranienburg, whom I highly respect, my former teacher, with the request to help me somewhere to be employed as a missionary. Soon after, a spiritual master in my apartment. I could not help but to reveal my state of mind. He directed me to the Confictorial Counselor Mr. Wichern, but told me as I left, I would do better not to reveal my mental state to him. This was a torrential bath for my soul. I still went to Mr. Wichern, but I found no consolation, only rejection.

I want to be honest, fine. What I did in 1866 was pure Enthusiasm, but in 1870 I pushed myself forward so violently, so that some fortunate coincidence can save me from this unbearable situation I did learn to pray again during this time, but for a long time I did not hold back from this mood. After 1871 I decided to first of all, to the best of our ability, into the research of the present—to study the natural sciences not as a dilettante, but seriously I owe this study, which gave me everything fidely, even by men with high scientific reputation, under= support, many a beautiful hour. The borders

my knowledge were pushed further out, the essence of things, the “how” became clearer to me, the final “why” was more hidden,

as ever. The final reasons were not to be found, and I began to criticize the researchers who are very inclined to important and momentous discovery a full philosophical

nn

aor . o

system that could be overturned by the next discovery Just keep researching! You are concerned about science and humanity deserves it! But not everyone is called to do this,

The reason for his discovery is now also the doctrine of the ultimate reasons to discuss! I turned to philosophy, worked my way laboriously through all systems, all schools, and since I am on Every step I took was met with obstacles because of my ignorance the Greek language, I threw myself eagerly into the study of the same, not to control them, I was too old for that, but to

to enable me to gain a deeper understanding of philosophy.

How it is possible that highly respected scholars study
I find it absolutely incomprehensible that this language should be declared superfluous.
Although I learned little enough about it, I was struck by a new world. But what good was all the studying, what good was it, that I even tried to understand Hegel? |
| I recognized some philosophers as nonsense makers, fpecially our dear Herbart. Finally, fate

rr

– J –

Robert Gohr solved the problem. It was about time.
1882, when I tried for the last time to save him. We had put together a small private school supply that supported him.
I had taken care of appropriate clothing myself. This man can only be understood if one knows his inner struggles, which he and to derive it he feverishly searched for external Activity took hold. Such internally moved people, like Gohr, me.
and thousands of others who do not give their own external well-being the total=
ity of their mental powers, but only the absolutely necessary mufti
zen will surely become a prey of the sharp-sighted Jews.

fan

and learn to appreciate the value of what has been discovered. The All= common sense has greater benefits, the more it has the experience

– 108 –

Individuals, but also to the extent that they
the enjoyment of the results obtained is permitted.

* #

**

The only criterion is generality. Every thing has only as much value as it can be generalized. The absolute
The most general thing has the greatest value. From this, every form of appearance, e.g. the monarchy. In order to will is directed. (Louis XIV.) The Monarchy of the High: Zollern will for this reason overtake the monarchy of the future–

main fe.

* n *

The greatest thinkers must do it like Antaeus. The Mother Earth is humanity in general. They must return whenever they want to regain their strength.

a * N

There is a certain given which corresponds to all the principles originally contradicts. On this basis, the current previous development. This is the different equipment of the Humans through nature. The use of the best only through the most favored has produced the tremendous difference. Nowadays, those left behind are allowed to have the necessary digest living conditions, but everything else is taken by the better Equipped for themselves. As a regulative for all this, Christ set brotherly love.

He expects the stronger to be exempt from the social and personal advantages. The state in its previous Constitution could not compel; but Christ compels by reference – on future punishments. Philosophy has this belief of the future punishments, especially among the privileged, the atheists, i.e. opponents of God. But that these Philosophy has not been able to induce its followers to practice is a testimony against them and the entire science. Overthrow of egoism is Christ 9 The fit= Human will must be worth more than all reason.

> si

Sr

Modern philosophy is a reaction against the egoistic Dogmatism of the medieval hierarchy. But by doing so, inhibited its assertion, it has exceeded its goal= shot and is about to convince the moral powers of their need: to bring the child to practical and true tasks, to In the Middle Ages we see the moral powers fowe ft in their true necessity, but fhe ft are through the box-like closure of hierarchical knowledge= results have been corrupted.

* *

=

Aristotle only wrote about what he knew or at least believed.
highly probable; he remained silent about what he did not know as an intelligent person; therefore the Hegelians do not want to see him as.
actual philosophers, but only as empiricists.

* *

*

In earlier times it was understandable if one future citizens without knowledge of the law because the Laws arising from the rights associated with popular morality went; now that the law is detached from morality, it will.
almost a duty for every young citizen to become a future lawyer to develop.

Nor did we come up with the idea of looking at Schopenhauer not to be satisfied with the Parerga and Paralipomena, but to study completely and seriously, as fate again intervenes
You were informed that your little school circle was being dissolved

Bee *

– 110 –

“deep, great Darwin, with deep devotion I could edify myself in the sermon of a Christian clergyman who is faithful to his convictions and pray to my God, which I had tried for so long in vain!

Yes, everything and everyone flowed together in untroubled harmony.
My father, a small farmer, was mainly a beekeeper!
I spent most of my youth with these animals.
Part. I was able to watch their activities for days, and I believe hardly that much in the external course of her life was hidden from me ebbleiben! But I could not get to the bottom of her nature Everything is done according to their command! Everyone knows exactly their duty, the structure of the whole, the execution in detail develops according to a single, exact circumstances measured plan. They always make the right decision without fail. And but the organ that draws up this plan is missing. The Queen is it does not, it only lays eggs, otherwise it is passive. When swarming, the always appears very late, when the swarm settles

the often last, often not at all, because the tumbled down somewhere tired is and must first be sought out. Here is therefore a will, even an intellect exists without an organ. Thousands of people stand in the Service of a will that is not present in any of them, full-carry out purposeful work, the context of which does not require a single oversees and directs.

Instinct! Yes, what is that? But a stupid, absolutely nothing-meaningful word!

I had many more such observations later on.

They may seem insignificant, but for the spiritual life of the individual it they are not! From this youthful observation to my last thoughts, Everything now entered into intimate contact through Schopenhauer Harmony!

It took me five years to study Schopenhauer in his entirety to understand, and when I had understood it, I was able to last, decisive step, which made Schopenhauer the greatest Apologetes of Christianity. He was not far from away from taking this step himself. Schopenhauer shows us, that the will is eternal, omniscient, infallible, and fine Evidence is incontestable for all time. What prevents him with this eternal, omniscient, infallible will also self-consciousness, instead of assuming that it is erit in the human being to the consciousness of his own self? It is merely a view of the general, albeit undoubted, misery, which causes him not to take this step.

| A self-conscious will, a God, he hunts, can this world not done, because it is so bad that it is not possible would be if it were only a little worse in any place Who would deny that with his pessimism mus is right that misery and suffering are the lot of all mortals is! If God were to ask me about my transgressions, I would first ask him: Why did you make me like this, that I could not avoid them, why did you even created this misery? That this Schopenhauerian pessimism in the -

-KÄ-.- - eat i,

- Fit =

in fact alone offers the possibility to live in all parts of the world Living conditions reasonably happily, if not to be What would have become of me if I had Leibnitz's optimism when I see good things everywhere waiting, ravenously longing for happiness in life?

But I took the bad for granted and accepted it mostly without emotion, but the few good things, It was a very welcome addition!

And yet Schopenhauer with his pessimism, insofar as he is thereby prevented from realizing the final consequences of his divine thinking, wrong.

First of all, he is mistaken if he considers the mere consciousness of existence just like 0 sweeps while it is already a + ijt of high value. Also the satisfaction of all needs, so much treatment also some of them require, is a +.

He is mistaken if he believes that most living beings willingly would cease to exist if at the border of the same not the terrible guardian death with all its terrors.

He is mistaken if he believes that every suffering is a -. And all the misery of existence is also willingly granted to him, because There is really not much to discuss, he himself admits willingly admit that nothingness, that is, the unconditional limit of human thought, not the absolute, but only the relative nothingness. What lies beyond that is just for us unthinkable, but not excluded. Finally, he will with the divine (not in the biblical sense) the book of Job we must confess: I do not know, I I don't understand it, my mind can't think it up! Maybe but the opposite would be the wrong thing! Certainly it is difficult understand that often hundreds of thousands were sacrificed so that one who makes the, albeit futile, attempt to be happy to feel that thousands languish in unworthy slavery so that few spend their time in unsatisfactory luxury bring about that the entire Aryan tribe sinks to the level of slaves, so that a much lower tribe could triumph. Perhaps but it was nevertheless necessary in the development of the whole, and long after the end of things, man limps= spirit with knowledge still, and the individual will, or rather the will in the individual returns after the dissolution of his physical expression back to itself, freed from the previous bond of knowledge that prevented the overall overview.

And is Schopenhauer's statement that with the organ of intellect itself must cease, so absolutely unassailable? These are all aphoristic hints, the execution of which a number of years. I have long been with the idea of bringing these elaborated ideas to the public. That this has not happened yet, have prevented overwhelming powers. But it will happen moch. I hear mocking laughter all around. You, a pathetic, just schoolmasters who escaped bankruptcy, educated in the regulatory time, whose entire class of many does not even belong to the formed is counted, which you here and there some fragments of a= el sciences, you want Schopenhauer's thoughts continue excessive, ridiculous arrogance, schoolmasterly conceit! Why a Hartmann was necessary in a relationship, that is what another a schoolmaster! I answer very calmly: Yes,

I want!

The living faith, the unconditional conviction of Things that are incomprehensible to the mind are the greatest happiness of life, and infinitely enviable are all those who

m
—

They are immune to everything that the misery of this life.

But the pondering mind easily begins to doubt in the truth first of the individual forms of religion, then in the truths of religion in general, and this all the more so, the more the spirit seeks to ascend into the light of truth. No one should tell me that a spiritually advanced person tribe would not have been burdened by these anxious doubts! Difficult struggles are associated with this doubt. Some perishes because of it, physically or mentally, some seek their Salvation in scientific research that distracts him, that a new world. He then easily finds himself in the position to reason as the supreme judge in all things, even the incomprehensible ones, to do, he no longer believes anything, but without going to the inner to get satisfaction.

| These inner struggles usually arise in a life age in which the man is already responsible for his actions, even in ma- materially, is responsible. Since he usually then If you pay too little attention to external things, this is the Time in which he was captured by the modern Mephistopheles and will never be let go again.

Arthur Schopenhauer became my greatest apologist of Christianity. His all-overpowering spirit, the blows away all objections with a breath of his mouth, comes now to help our shaken faith by understanding forces us to accept the fundamental truths of Christianity as eternal and to accept changes.

In doing so, he forces the educated and scholarly to once again—to ensure that the hitherto mildly ridiculed, by the Semites in Europe, religion of the masses, which is greatly ridiculed because of its advantage, but contains the highest and most blessed eternal truths, which which, however, subordinate minds had not understood until then. It is the bridge that connects folk religion and highest science connects the spiritually advanced, who indeed externally practice religion revered because their noble spirit, striving for the highest, possible to conquer the sanctuary of her people in to pull the dust, but were internally alienated, it is possible to feel one with their brothers again. Even the greatest Researchers and doubters can pray fervently again. He understands.

by the way, that the brotherly love of Christ is expressed in Kant's sentence: "Nothing in the world is good except the good will alone," and the Schopenhauer's teaching that the individual will must feel one with the collective will, is completely identical. He understands that Christ is real and true God, because his will is completely one with the will in general. o

And science is also thereby in reality and Truth has become free. It is no longer bound to any research. nor obliged to use any result of the same in the interest to hold back the popular religion.

But, one will reply, Schopenhauer is a Enemy of the Church. If you spend a long time dealing with it—, you must know all his attacks on them? Of course, I know them. They are partly based on narrow-mindedness, which were opposed to his research, partly on the Realization that the deep religious truths in human Forms are forced and thereby concealed according to the sentence Rousseau?: "Everything is good as it comes from the hand of the Creator comes forth, but everything perishes under the hand of man."

Finally, his striving leads him to follow the will that he sees as omniscient and eternal, self-consciousness, knowledge to deny oneself and intelligence without a physical organ to deny. The former is a contradiction in itself, to which he is led by this unconditional pessimism was forced to accept the last claim becomes invalid when the first one falls.

But he is partly right about the forms. A form is necessary for every thing, and if ancient forms are not more modern, they are all the more marked by their age—flattered and any shaking of a mold can affect the contents—edigen. However, both sister churches have experienced times in which the Form was the essential thing, the content took a back seat; and such = deserve to be scorned by a man like Schopenhauer become.

Both churches are trying to make content the main focus again without violating the external form. I only remind you on the Catholic side to Archbishop Ketteler in Mainz and above all to the current Pope Leo XIII, on Protestant

Side to the much maligned A. Stöcker. That he the old sacred forms with living content again, This is his imperishable merit for all time.

Would the sister churches, both of which are noble, return to the original task, but finally stop thinking about the correctness of their forms and to interpret the given in this insicht willingly accept as a given! Three times I have everyone is set up to discuss all these things, which absolutely does not belong here, but I have it under:

I also looked for another place, because they wanted

remember what these discussions about the Treitel case

8

* n
"

—

— 114 —

u have to do, but can not find. At least one thing will be the Readers will see that from my point of view I am absolutely I am entitled to rely unconditionally on the Bible as a source of truth= ity, but at the same time ruthlessly removing from it the—to read what is really written in it, that I am further entitled to to refer to Darwin in one breath and at the same time worship to bow down before my God.

I can deal with the second accusation of egoism more briefly. A person who puts his will in the service of the collective will to ftray, should not actually have a personal Happiness got into such an ecstatic mood. The suspicion that the purest egoism, even if hidden, is the basic feature of my judge, cannot be rejected. But one wants to humanly direct.

For many years I was stressed out. I had no peace during the day and night. I was startled when the doorbell rang because I always suspected something terrible.

The sorrowful faces of my loved ones cut into my heart. Every Day could bring bad things, almost every day I was worried—how I can satisfy my own and yet maintain the outward appearance And that should now change in one fell swoop become! I should be free and independent, my loved ones—success, my studies, of all humanity can live? My situation is understandable. No, selfish was my zen not.

and I am accused of fighting Judaism and yet enjoyed benefits from individual Jews. I want I will not rob the individual of their merit for me. Even if I I am able to prove that everyone has purely egoistic motives, I does not want to do it. The further course and especially the conclusion: chapters will reveal the rest. The Aryan national character is therefore, despite all the slag, it stands so high because it represents the Christian and the highest philosophical thought identical with it, which found such beautiful points of contact for him from home, in himself—and inseparably united with himself. Brotherly love, the devotion of the individual to the whole is the basis

the same.

The spirit of progressive science is also moving in this direction. culture in general. Therefore, we Aryans are bearers of the same, not because we have been through all sorts of beautiful 1 of Railways, steamships 2c. the amenities of life increased slightly or not increased at all.

The Jew represents the principle of the purest and most merciful loosest egoism. He builds his happiness on destroyed existences has done so for many millennia and will do so, until external, unconditional pressure makes it impossible.

If he has achieved his goal, he is against the destroyed

i charitable, often seriously charitable, not just for show, like many

Opponents of the Jews claim that something human can be found even with them, since they also bear the noble human face.

– 15 –

; Thank God, I can finally face these theoretical withdraw from discussions and return to the facts, whose development the Lefer has long been waiting impatiently will have.

8 *

3

--

= lit =

I have expressed my joy over my final redemption above
It was large enough to take me to the largest stupidity of my life, which is the sum of all other stupidities. The next morning
By chance my school inspector came to my school and I told him extremely happy about my salvation, but without mentioning names.
Days later or the next day I received from the municipal school deputation to immediately provide proof
my debt settlement, otherwise unforgiving disciplinary proceedings would be requested. I replied immediately, briefly noted the efforts during the last year, fentered the confidential appeal of the committee and made

– 7 =

The hour of birth of this book was sounded. If nothing, then otherwise the last look, filled with deep compassion, of the Lord. Treitel condemned to eternal silence on the Jewish question.
My experience is the mother of the book, Mr.
Dr. Horwitz, the father of the same. We meet the obstetrician below. Let us hope that the book will parents honor.

The final redemption.

I had already had a look at the work of a writer in

Office of the Justice Councilor, what was against me in the works
The city's school deputation had filed a complaint against me with the King.
School Board of the Province of Brandenburg the Disciplinary procedure, whereby the confidential letter from the Committee, which is presented as an appeal for public charity was portrayed as particularly burdensome. I waited calmly. Finally I received a delivery note Letter from the Royal Provincial School Board. It brought the final, full redemption. The reader will be amazed how the possible if I tell him the content. It said: "We have learned that through your own fault you have fallen into serious debt—
We grant you for this, as well as for the pledging of salary receipts and the unacceptable Invoking public charity is a reprimand. We warn you not to get involved in new debt obligations,
Otherwise, harsher measures may be taken against you.

It is a proof of our special confidence that this has not already happened." That is roughly what the letter said.

I have probably never been more happy with a letter than this reference. It meant the following: For your old debts nothing will happen to you, if only the growth — Debt is now coming to an end. That was full and complete redemption.

My debts had never been so high that I could not have paid it off from my own income. What My situation had so far made it untenable, the un-usurious interest, but I had to pay this because I was in lived in constant fear of the city authorities. The constant Threats, the constant warnings not to make new
To allow complaints to come, because then the disciplinary proceedings initiated, the lack of any official assistance against the Usurers, had so intimidated me that I usurers even after seizure of my furniture and initiation of the salary deduction procedure necessarily approve every claim had to, in order to ensure that nothing new reached the authorities.
Now it was all over. I had nothing to do with old complaints
I had nothing to fear. I vigorously opposed all creditors, explained to them that I was contacting them about their capital claim and I will satisfy my needs from my own income, namely in the

— 118 —

Order that I consider appropriate. I pay interest no more. Anyone who is not satisfied with this should do what he could not let go. However, they were all extremely upset, especially since they had to assume that I would support them in the Treitel case.
had obviously lied. In front of Mr. Treitel's door there was still on the 3rd day there were beautiful performances. The second series I still had when leaving the Treitel apartment in the morning ordered, the third had also arrived that day. It But nothing could help now. Her threats made no longer made an impression, only reduced their repayment rates. As they noticed this, a quite tolerable relationship was established. Since On April 13, 1886, I was left alone, I won Time and peace, my circumstances from my own resources gradually to organize thoroughly.

In this blissful state, the happiest imaginable of everyone, because I was given the opportunity to fully own strength from the sad circumstances, but through years of work, I was faced with a single, otherwise

Pure officials were punished with the most severe punishment. This is how a royal ly, conservative, fatherly and serious authority. It is probably quite salutary, the behavior of the representatives of my nearest authority, such as | r 190 has shown in the course of my presentation, to deal with it— same.

They are small, in and of themselves insignificant processes that I have presented here. But how in the drop of water the Sun, these processes reflect the entire opposite current conditions of our Prussian fatherland with their two— soul theory.

On which side is justice, liberality, fathers= to find human benevolence, even in the face of severe punishment?

Here I was saved by a single punishment, there under under the guise of the greatest liberality (ie liberality against the bloodsuckers) were tortured to death with many poisoned needle pricks.

Now it was time to show whether I could help myself, whether I had a moral right to seek my ruin in Judaism and his even worse Mamelukes, or in my own to look for weakness of will.

It was therefore necessary to first take a clear look at the situation My furniture had been sold. It would have been a It would have been easy to save it. My wife would have only been interested vention was necessary. But we wanted to give everything to morally to protect oneself from any personal reproach. The greatest The German Civil Servants' Association had part of it sold.

my debt of 1300 Mk. gradually reduced to 400 Mk. in many individual installment payments up to 5 ME. But the smallness and irregularity of the payments seemed to the club. But it seemed unpleasant, because he had been in the course of the time requested the collection, which however regularly new costs arose.

sweeping"

– 119 –

Even before the final sale, I had the clock was repaid with a payment of 15 marks, but was of no use. Mr. Matzke, currently in charge of this eye-matters in the club, explained that the troubles I finally had enough of me. When I, * the car was already in front of the door, rushed once again to Mr. Matzke, I was not. A similar experience occurred to an acquaintance who had another last attempt. N

The furniture was sold for a pittance, the club satisfied, the costs covered. I was able to use my own credit not be recovered from the club, but had to be paid in the amount of fame a small loan. Then I was later charged with Non-payment of membership fees excluded from the club, shortly before a general meeting in which I intended to finally original, ideal purpose of the club. The board acted legally in all matters, but I had well reason to be concerned about the development of this child of mine, to whom I had sacrificed my existence, and that certainly would not have lived without me, to have my own thoughts. Essential offices in the fame are said to rest in Jewish hands. The remains of the furniture, As far as it was seizable, including curtains, others then let pick up.

Now that I had to think about a thorough regulation, The absence of all valuables turned out to be a great blessing. Now I could, free from worries, do whatever I wanted Determine everything.

It was therefore necessary to rebuild the house from scratch. I took furniture on loan, but not in an installment plan. After several other attempts, I turn to my friend Reihn, Langestraße 9, to whom I, as I shown above, was first obliged by the Gohrfche Bürgfschaft. He treated me honorably and later lent me new I only paid him a small sum of money for the furniture.

Rent, and larger sums that he received were used as installments
This was necessary so that for example, the furniture became my property too early by finally paying for it.
Then seizures would immediately has taken place.

I then set up a debt repayment plan, namely on the basis that I have received my entire salary, including rent-damage, to pay off the debts.

The family had to be supported by additional income.
These consist firstly of additional income from the school, secondly from the proceeds of my literary Work.

With the additional income from the school, it had the following
The school building, a barracks house, had no school servant's apartment, but only a very small, barely inhabited-

[u ri
i= -

- WEI - - . ee

- 120 -

bare room. It was therefore not possible to employ a school servant, therefore transferred the functions of the same to me. Although I received The income of a school servant is by no means a compensation supply, but at least I got a nice income from it.
The work was done by family members, the necessary errands were run by family members.
I took care of it myself, in the winter a worker was called in to help
But my literary work was well paid.
In paying my debts, I followed the principle of to satisfy small creditors as first as possible. It was Everything was excellent. In 4 years, until the end of 1889, $\frac{1}{2}$ of my Debts paid off. |

I put the repayments of a quarter here and am prepared to verify the accuracy of postal receipts and other documents
To prove to everyone.

Income: Expenses:
Salary. . ME 795,- Salary deduction. . Mk. 185,- Rent compensation " 150,- zen oa a ew g 25,-

"% ifolat . 8 20,- Mark 945,-Carpenter. " 20,- fishery. . " 4.55

Hermann & Co.. " 45,- apply additional income: SOW = am 7.50

* e Witzel. " 10,-

Cleaning.. ME 95 - Möller I 10 -

Cleaning of the farm Möller II 30.-

and sidewalk " 18,- School . 4 25.-

Entertainment Lamp Random j 11 30

in the office " 2.25 Sener n . N 97 -

Unterh. e. Lampe Niederschuh = © 20 - in the hallway " 2.25 Kagker nn

Heating DEE a 61.0 Ballien i I

Mk. 185, - Lehmann . . "15,- te Poel " 15,- Goth . e.. " 10,- eure u R a

Uncertain additional income: Furniture money 5 " | er

For 11 editorials in the course of Stadthagen. " 9

Quarterly. Mk. 280,- atom. . . . " 20,-

+ " 185,- orpzunn . . "10,-

T 75 945,- Ber e o. "Br 2

- b. chuhmacher .. 25,-

Summa Mk. 1410,- | Saul h nn " 200,- from " 1023.35 rent . " 150,-

Rest Mk. 386.65 Total Mk. 1023.35

These 386 Mk. 65 Pf. were enough for the household=

come from. We saw that our relationships with fast

- 121 -

steps towards recovery, new courage to live returned

We didn't live badly. We had

Weekdays our meat, on Sundays sometimes our

Roast, we and the children 1 could dress, with families= celebrate our friends, whose number has decreased to 3

was, decently entertained, could even, as I already said above, fayed, but only with the help of the editor-in-chief Mr.
Dedo Müller, who paid for articles for which he had not yet sold application, a six-week stay at the sea
In short, it was a pleasant life. Now that it is over I can give you some precise information about our previous life, first of all about my personal life. I have never Needs that went beyond the simplest nutrition and clothes and I don't know how I would behave in case of wealth should make expenses for me. I have Even as a bachelor, I did not enjoy being with my Friends to kill time in pubs and am e.g. in the last four years, except for the last few months in which I often met acquaintances who collected material for me in local had to visit, not even twice a year in a public Locally gone. Nothing demoralizes more easily than debt. Every Official, who is tormented by eternal worries of this kind, resorts to hungry for some distraction, for the current state of taner forgetfulness. Some drink excessively and eventually become habitual drinker, another seeks forbidden female company, a third plays.

This effect is almost a regular one, and then nothing is easier than later with the inevitable 'gufanmenbrud cause and effect. Almost all acts, crimes and moral defects of officials who from time to time Public anger is not the cause, but the We= effects of indebtedness.

I could not help but feel the longing desire, but also
To find momentary oblivion through material pleasure, of course not remain free. My good genius led my pipe into my Poor woman who took over everything that otherwise beautiful ladies, drink and games, but she was more harmless in her demands.
It was bad enough that a passion bound me
In previous years, tobacco was often lacking, and chestnuts= leaves, had to do their duty. Such tobacco grew on my schoolyard in abundance. With the addition of Y4 lbs of ribs= tobacco for 10 Pf., it could be produced by the pound. Infinitely
But it was bad that the family almost always had no means to Satisfaction of the most unavoidable needs was lacking. It came far from the barley we get from the brewery ft bought very cheaply for the chickens, finally made coffee= had to face, yes, in the end – turn away in horror, reader –
We sometimes made a
Have to prepare lunch. But starvation is bitter, money we did not have any money, nor any credit, the negotiable items

aa ang
g ze

were all gone. And all the money saved went into the coffers of the Jews, because the small German creditors were everyone was happy when they got their money back. However, they were, because they were worried about their money and immediately complained, therefore not pleasant creditors.

Why I am telling you, dear reader, these partly silly, partly horrific stories, so vividly before my eyes? Because 60 pCt. of all officials, starting with some ministers, the old However, some of their former colleagues paid less interest should have given, down to the switchman, furthermore at least 60pCt. of all small German manufacturers, merchants and workers, 90pCt. of all officers, 99pCt. of all craftsmen, exactly in the same

Living in such conditions, suffering just as much and understanding just as skillfully, to hide from the world as we understand it.

Please be honest and admit that against the The present-day servitude exceeds all previous ones, even under Napoleon I, only It was child's play. Who will end it? It is still up to the German people themselves to do this. Otherwise the Schidjal this will be done by the Russians or Social Democrats.

From April 13, 1886, however, I was subject to these conditions escaped. My circumstances gradually became quite approved; we could start saving for our children to cover, our whole way of life took on a different, more sedate, we thrived physically and mentally. The Larger creditors were deducted from their salaries satisfied, the rest I gradually finished myself, as in I have paid over 10,000 Marks in cash over the last 4 years. the remaining creditors Dann, Zimmermann pp. I thought I could deal with it by taking civil action. Now, where I can calmly deal with threats of reporting to the authorities I feel like a free man.

So of all the thousands, one was the escaped from greedy claws!

But the hatred that Judaism and its Mamelukes had thrown at me was not eliminated. Hatred of Jews is irreconcilable and extends beyond the grave.

On the other hand, despite all my self-control, impossible, before my eyes my fatherland into the abyss
to see the role without resisting it. |

As an individual, I would probably have been left alone could, but one was not allowed to do so for the sake of example.

Already it began to spread among the teaching staff here and there rain. Some teachers even appeared openly in front of the Halle Gate conservative, social-reformatory or anti-Semitic associations
A warning example of a well-known party members became necessary. But how could this be achieved?
A horse! a horse! a kingdom for a horse!

The otherwise almost infallible recipe of removing an unpopular official to get involved in usurious debts and then with the most peaceful and

– 123 –

most pitiful expression in the world stew in his own sauce to let it go had failed this time.

Another rogue's trick was therefore devised, me, it whatever the cost, to eliminate it, thereby morally tainting it to throw and thus render harmless. |

The knowingly false denunciations obviously had to Perjury and other crimes in its wake, but the German People are already convinced that Judaism is only to find willing henchmen, especially since there are is always able, and in the Berlin school system absolutely, to provide plenty to reward. If some readers in the following dar= positions come to the idea that in Berlin at all only the rubbish can come to the surface, so that is not my fault.

My official relationships.

When I was transferred to the 147th Community School, which was the school inspector Mr. Reinecke, I was in a relationship Baden which has probably never existed in any school in the world

evening. – |

It is well known that the north of Berlin is the most popular
Rent mainly a refuge for women who have been abandoned by their marriages, Widows and very impoverished workers. Since the children of these People sometimes find themselves overwhelmed, so degenerate, learn all kinds of evil, and the many hiding places offer also offers them a refuge for the night. What worries the school grows out of such children, requires

When the 147th community school was formed, all Neighbourhood schools send all their children of this type to this In my third class, among 51 students, there were 42 with No. III "unsatisfactory", were all 12 to 14 years old and fully aware of all vices. In the rest The conditions were no better in the other classes. In addition, the Institution with 10, then 13 classes only 3 teachers. The oldest of them was transferred from his previous school against his will The second, who had only been in Berlin for half a year, had already had to accept a four-time transfer. The third, 20 years old, just coming from the seminar, later Chile. Otherwise I only had female teachers, including also a Jewess, so that I was placed in the fourth boys' class "too coarse- I had to send a teacher to a boy, some of whom were twelve years old. My serious complaint about this was made by the school inspector Mr. Reinecke rudely rejected me. That I managed to raise this school I consider it a great achievement to spend time there. To rest The school only came after several years. Soon flying classes opened, then retracted, then came new flying classes, which again consist of the worst children passed.

- 24 -

Right next to my school is the 73rd community school under the direction of the headmaster Mr. Fietz. I am with this Lord never, neither in good nor in evil, in other than official relations. I was therefore all the more astonished that this gentleman, but hardly of his own accord, has a spiteful took a stand against me. I had a Number of chickens, which was very necessary for me in my situation at that time They could not be a nuisance to him, since between There is a high fence on our property. Nevertheless, He complained to the authorities about it and I was forced to to lock them up. Later the gardeners came to my aid, who declared that they would no longer sow grass, so I a ey could now run again. Much later, the ettor Fietz went on a trip with his class, the school-servant's wife had used this to do some laundry in the yard dry. But the rector had returned earlier than he-waiting, had torn the laundry to the floor and allegedly Then the woman came to me crying with the Please allow me to dry my laundry on my yard. She took the opportunity to tell me that she finally had to pour out her heart. The headmaster Mr. Fietz had repeatedly asked her husband to to poison my chickens. After this was refused, he killed the chickens himself by throwing stones over the fence sought, whereby he had once made a serious mistake. The rector write down everything and anything about myself, especially when I leave the school during class, which he always from one of my teachers, and then he writes about it Reports that her husband first gave to the school inspector Mr. Reinecke, then, when we got another school inspector, to Mr. Dr. Zwick should have brought it. Such a report must have would not have turned out well, because Mr. Fietz would have torn it through, thrown in the trash and wrote a new one. Her husband still has the torn one. I told the woman on all these messages have not given any answer, because I left these reports of Mr. Fietz were very indifferent, also I could not The truth of the same cannot be verified. The fact was, however, that I my schoolyard, which is accessed from the street with the doors locked is absolutely inaccessible, one evening found two chickens dead.

The next evening there was another chicken in the yard, The thigh was shattered. Children had the afternoon I did not enter the schoolyard. Of course, I had no reason to to accuse one person, least of all the neighbour school servant, because he enjoyed the animals and daily threw food scraps over the fence. Someone home— However, the relevant reports must have been received by the school inspectors, because I was repeatedly leaving the School to account, which none of these gentlemen ever However, I was repeatedly able to having to leave school early, I had but then always in writing from my immediate superior leave requested, also appointed a representative among the teachers. Nevertheless The reports must not have been without effect. Revision, which the school inspector Reinecke carried out for 10 minutes in three subjects in my class (think of the summaries= fetting of the class), he expressed his dissatisfaction, which I my 24-year teaching career neither before nor after— came, and came to my repeated abandonment of the school. A few weeks later, Mr. Stadt= School Councilor Profeffor Dr. Bertram in association with Mr. School inspector in my class and stayed there two and a half an hour. I had to repeat pretty much everything I had learned before= and the school inspector himself examined each child. When he left, he said literally the following: “That you understand it so excellently, as anyone, I know for a long time, but I had concerns about whether You would also do it so excellently, because you often get out of the school. But I am glad that I can I can express my full appreciation for your achievements.

– 125 –

Now make sure that your personal circumstances are in order come!"

I want to see the man who would dare, and then probably not without personal detriment, Mr. School Superintendent Dr. Bertram to make a report to which he is not called. So something had to be officially communicated about it that I had left school without a holiday, which was certainly in line with the Truth did not agree. The reader will see clearly what I needed several vacations. I had appointments on the Court. Later, of course, I preferred a ver—I would rather have had a default judgment than have asked for leave. But the fact that I knew how to make something out of my children could prove the fact that one of my students, who had a vacancy at the higher secondary school at Andreasplatz, for years is primus in his respective class, several others that I have preparatory institute, from there the most excellent testimonials thirty to forty others who are my apprentices at Großmerchants, e.g. Liffauer, Cords &c., and also master craftsmen, in printing works, finally also in non-commissioned officer schools have proven themselves to be excellent without exception. Many Children are probably not released from my school without me would have ensured their further advancement.

When Dr. Zwick took over the school, the s—relationship even less bearable. Mr. Rector Fietz, to whom I owe my Never with a single expression had he approached the incident too closely, any agreement with the head of the school commission, Mr. Randow, the two schools the new children I only had bad children, so my entire teaching staff was outraged. Mr. Randow was, however, dependent on Mr. Fietz, as he worked as a bookbinder—master for the advanced training school of Mr. Fietz the materials Finally, I managed to understand the injustice of enrolling to be established in a specific case in an unambiguous manner.

— 126 —

Mr. Randow had two very neatly dressed children Mr. Fiet At the time of admission, Mr Rector Pieg had left— It was found that the children were very frail physically and mentally. He sent the two children with a boy from the first grade simply returned to Mr. Randow, who canceled the assignment and assigned them to my school. Now I sent over this and some other cases a complaint to the school deputation Hands of the school inspector Dr. Zwick. The school inspector inspector then has as proof that he has received the complaint, probably talked to me and Rector Fietz about the case, but which occasion another, difficult to excuse Action of Rector Fietz against me, but from

I never received an answer from the authorities. If it weren't unbelievable, I would almost have to assume that the complaint has not found its proper way. So again without peace and without rights!

In everything, the effort was shown to me from all sides to bring the worst children here, I soon had reason to the belief that part of the money transferred to my school teacher was specially chosen for me.

In the school of the headmaster Fietz there was a teacher Mr. Berner. He had noticed the dissatisfaction of the school inspector, head gymnast and principal due to insufficient performance. When the rector rudely rebuked him, he denounced he presented it to the school inspector Mr. Reinecke and mixed things that didn't belong there. For years He had secretly noted many of the rector's remarks and shared these comments, which had been made in a confidant circle, with the school inspector. He told him that the headmaster had his teachers warned to be careful, because the new school inspector was called Reinecke, and what that means, everyone knows. Mr. Fietz caused the transfer of Mr. Berner, and to my greatest surprise It was brought to my school, which is located right next to the feen. At Mr. Fietz's school there was also 10 years of the teacher Michelchen. He is said to be a completely drawn teacher had been fine, but was by a spirit= disease and was taken to a mental institution on October 1, 1889. I was informed that this teacher was transferred to my school fe. I found this quite incomprehensible, because he was transferred to in the event of his entry, to receive new children who will disease, he was not allowed to go to my school where he was known to every child. Regarding the Lord Berner, I was immediately fupon his entry by the then Teacher, current Rector Brüning, warned most decisively. Most of the time I have to be careful of his kindness. As a keen reporter, he immediately brings every incident into the newspapers. The old teaching staff had avoided him most emphatically. When the constant newspaper news became too unpleasant were, some colleagues decided to teach him a lesson In Mr Berner's presence, one colleague would have a detailed story of a discovered gang of counterfeiters told, also giving house and name. The next day This news would have been in all the newspapers, but Mr. Berner caused great difficulties for the police, Some newspapers also refused to continue to publish to accept reporters' reports. Mr. Berner is a demonic nature, and he feared that he had not been sent to me for nothing. He changes his political views every day, depending on the liberal or conservative newspapers paid him better. As

– 127 –

This gentleman was at my school for some time, he visited me and told me that he was extremely happy to be at my school teach. He would have been a doomed man at the old school-fallen man, because as a result of anger he was repeatedly hit by Blur- Now he is being treated humanely and fairly and is recovering visibly. He will be eternally grateful to me for that. At my school everything is realistic, but with Mr. Fietz Some fraud. For example, the best drawings of the Boys and publicly recognized during the examinations as new Drawings exhibited, while the boys had long since be blessed.

That the teacher Mr. Klopftsch, before he came to my school, I have already been transferred four times in half a year, As a teacher I could not complain about him, but he seems to have a great hatred for me because of another matter I had my office because I was not in the School lived, furnished like a home, even put a sofa in it. Now, soon after the opening of the institution, Mr. Klopftsch had my knowledge with a young teacher, often even with two, agreed to meet in the afternoon, when there was no class, in my office so that he could give one or the other information there teaching in violin playing. When I heard about it, I held out For several reasons, it was necessary to close the office-room impossible. Mr. Klopftsch was very bitter, but I soon forgot this incident. The teacher Wehle, who was transferred to my school, was at the previous the schools for grossly exceeding his right to discipline got into serious difficulties, and finally he was I had to think involuntarily omened that a cluster of the worst children with such many teachers who were not entirely blameless, especially the attribution of the teacher Berner, no benevolent intention to Reason for official censure or denunciation= Citations from a teacher should be easy to find here, I decided after careful consideration to take the heart of the whole teaching staff through strictest justice unconditional well-being= wanting and being accommodating even in the smallest things gradually gaining and thereby creating enthusiasm for the reputation that would bring the school to great heights. This I also managed to do this for four years. I never gave up on a teacher fharsly opposed, also gave criticism in the most gentle form

se - 128 -

clothes, fulfills every personal wish, the requests for support several teachers warmly supported all complaints from parents m kindness, which was not an easy task, since, for example, about Mr. Wehle reported the worst things from his parents almost every week, finally even threatened with a general hangman. Some children had been pushed so hard that they sustained serious injuries—

 others were with cattle, scoundrels, depraved subject. Finally, I took over all the children, who had done something wrong, every day to punish. Through my willingness to accommodate in every respect and my unconditional justice in the promotion exams acquired
 I finally gained the trust of the entire college, settled disputes among them, and some Years of untroubled unity and the most zealous striving. The School grew visibly in its inner value and prepared me much joy. Serious difficulties arose solely through the
 Mr. Berner. During an audit, Mr. Schulz explained to me inspector that his class at least in natural science, in which he examined was the worst he had ever known.
 I would like to take over his natural science lessons. I gave this lesson himself. Soon after, Mr. Klopftsch explained, that he could not teach children to draw who had previously been
 Mr. Berner. Finally, the teacher complained Wehle that the children he gets from Mr. Berner are quite useless, especially in dictation and arithmetic. Mr.
 I satisfied Klopftsch by also telling Mr. Berner the drawing class, I pointed it out to Mr. Wehle:
 It is worth noting that the examination papers prepared under supervision of the Bernese class are fairly error-free. Of the Manipulations which Mr. Berner subsequently made to the work,
 I didn't know anything at the time. Mr. Wehle was really in a bad Lage, incidentally a keen teacher, and I felt sorry for him that he
 (sic) in his understandable excitement often leads to bad things With Mr. Berner, however, I no longer knew which Lessons I should assign to him, since Dr. Angerstein had previously had also already withdrawn the gym classes. Personally, Mr.
 Bernese but always accommodating, kind and grateful, and I tried to resolve all difficulties in a friendly manner. The test tests generally resulted in an increasingly rapid rise of the school, which was also confirmed by the school inspector, who was also seemed to have gained confidence, as he only very rarely attended school-sought, confirmed in writing.

This beautiful relationship was confirmed in March 1888 by a entirely shrill discord. At the death of His Majesty the Emperor Wilhelm I called the teachers together for a conference and fie, in their classes the children to make a voluntary donation of 5 Pfennig per child. The amount should be paid by 2 teachers to purchase a wreath that will be placed on the coffin of His Majesty should be laid down. To my utter astonishment,
 The teacher Mr. Wehle explained to me that he was taking part in the discussion

7 5 – ee ee

a – ä — wäl — i folder things absolutely cannot participate and urgently request, to be exempted from attending this conference. I asked him warmly, but under the given circumstances of such Please refrain. He repeated the same question, whereupon I refused. A large proportion of the remaining teachers expressed concern that the city school deputation could take this badly. (For me highly characteristic), one declared that he personally had a contribution, another abstained from voting. Only the two oldest teachers, Mr. Berner and Mr. Leisegang, concluded accepted my request, which was thus rejected. Forget= Imagine the situation at that time! Pain was visible on the face of every German, even the reddest Social Democrat A Berlin teaching staff, however, refused out of concern about inappropriate satisfactory results at the nearest authority, which I alone any external expression of participation. I I jumped up indignantly and cried, no longer in control of myself, by spitting out: "Ugh, I am ashamed to be the head of such a and when Mr. Wehle wanted to answer, I shouted: "Get out!" The latter expression soon after, and I had no hesitation in telling Mr. I will later express my regret about this to the college= Now I went by my own power into the individual classes, told the children that it was intentional, especially from the students to our dead emperor a last wreath whoever wanted to do so could bring 5 pfennigs. It was The next morning it was touching that almost all the children whose parents but, as the election results show, three quarters of the Social= Democrats, brought much larger sums, even up to a Mark, probably the entire fortune of the parents. Of course All this had to be rejected, since each child only had 5 Pfennig I was allowed to bring. On this occasion I spoke about the alleged fo revolutionary-minded people and about its leaders and leaders my own considerations. A larger amount of money came sum, for which the teacher Berner received a very nice wreath, which was then also used as a sign of love and adoration the students, unfortunately not also the teaching staff of the 147th community= school, was laid at the coffin of His Majesty. Here I think that several teaching staff lack evidence of piety had not missed. A single class, that of the teacher Heifeke, had not made any contribution, although I had the children per= personally asked me to do so. When I came into the class, me a child that Mr. Heifeke had forbidden them. Mr. Heiseke was standing there. I left in silence.

A

The next day I called him into the office and said um in the calmest way: "Mr. Heifeke, neither of us can stay together, report away from school at any a pretext, and then the matter may be settled!" Mr.
Heifeke said that I was mistaken in thinking that he had not told the children forbidden, unfortunately he had not understood the boy's statement properly. ftanten, because he had stood at the window. He did not belong to the

| 9

= 190: =

Hanoverians, who were mostly Welfs and here democrats
He hopes that we will continue to work together
Although his declaration bears the stamp of insecurity probability, because why else would his Children were not involved in the collection to which I belonged but even though I had asked for it myself, I took it as an exception sufficiently, because further discussions on this point were extremely embarrassing for me. The trusting relationship between my teaching staff and I were gone. Mr. Wehle er= clarified to me much later, when I brought this matter to the notice
If it had been, it would have been in the beginning struggle for mutual Existential questions were involved. I did not fully understand this. Even later the teachers had remembered a statement I had made, which I years ago at the breakfast table. It was once the speech of Friedrich Wilhelm IV. I said that the
the most useless Jewish-democratic intrigues brought into being Revolution has caused immense harm to the working people and to all the highly idealistic aspirations of the king for the benefit of those people classes that produce the real values, a dam
The king was thereby completely shattered and in the last years of his life even full of confusion-doubt succumbed to the toxin that accelerated his death
They clung to this statement of mine in the Fear that I will cause them trouble because of their behavior than if this thought had ever entered my soul
The case was not in and of itself, but as Symptom of such great importance. But just as the changed Relationship between me and my teaching staff, which naturally had to incur hatred, spread confidentially, were then immediately presented by other parties with useless speculations= tions were built, which, of course, were under Jewish management, ultimately led to a catastrophe.

The Development after March 11, 1888.

The good relationship between the 1 and me was of course over, cool politeness replaced the Only between the teacher Berner and I developed a more intimate friendship. Had he but almost alone had the courage to act without fear of serious official Follow his emperor after his resignation to pay a last honor

Since he was also far ahead of me in years,
I also let him in on some personal matters, especially in my intention to have a Immediate submission to His Majesty the Emperor. Also
I told him very openly that I hoped, in case of success, to Thomas to create a large anti-Semitic social newspaper build, also for them, in order to give them a good foundation, a separate house to purchase. Mr. Berner signed the petition himself first.

1 5

– 131 –

My trust in Mr. Berner grew even more when he in association with Baron von Ungar-Sternberg publicly against the election of the liberal pastor Scipio at the Dankeskirche protested, then a comprehensive complaint to the Consistory sent and in fact achieved the objection to the election
Of course, he had thereby incurred the fierce hatred of the Church Council of the Dankeskirche.

From that moment on, a strange change occurred with Mr. Berner. |

First, he suddenly found himself in possession of a house in the Selerftraße, which he received from the highly progressive council architect Mr.
Stargardt had bought it with a very small down payment. This man,

this landlord, he had previously hardly fvery much treated gently, knowing little about his character and spirit knowingly expressed his regret that he, who was appointed by Mr. Stargardt still deserves a lot, is forced to spend his good time with to kill him in a game of chess. Sometimes he had to to keep yourself happy, and also to let yourself win.

| When the liberal preacher Haupt was appointed as second preacher of the Thanksgiving Church, the first preacher, Mr Baumann, confidential material showing fould that Mr. Haupt deny the divinity of Christ, with the request, to raise a protest again. Mr. Berner shared this confidential communication publicly and said that he was absolutely not think about such things. He thought he would have the friends-ft of Baron v. Ungar Sternberg through the first protest to acquire, but he had him after the matter was settled no longer noticed. Now other friends had been found who could do more than the Baron. In addition, the Deutsche Tageblatt did not pay for a long article, and jo go He then moved to the other camp. This gave him the greatest advantages. He was in the greatest Worries came, because the whole back house was empty. The Church council of the Dankeskirche rented him for a decent price two floors to confirmation halls, although one can still had managed very well without them. The municipal

Premises were not terminated in any way by the city,

The community also did not have a penny of money available for this purpose, the synod had to be addressed.

The third floor was rented by a Jewish community for the synagogue goge. All this was striking, because the immediate The proximity of the gas station does not particularly recommend the rooms. the thought immediately occurred to me that a deal had been concluded here, for which my head should be considered the price to be paid. The proof was soon found.

Mr. Thomas first received the anonymous letter, which I have printed above. Mr. Thomas Although not a specific person, he immediately asked after the council mason Stargardt, whom I did not know at all, also warned me to be careful in front of a teacher Borner or Börner in

9*

– 132 –

To be careful. The purpose of the letter was obviously to inform Mr. Thomas to hold, for my intended newspaper, even less for me personally to do something. After all, this is succeeded. Later, the most outrageous anonymous denunciations at the Royal Public Prosecutor's Office against me, namely with the most diverse manuscripts, in which the most outrageous accusations were included, so special that I sell titles for money. The witness was a baptized Jew, now Mrs. Rentier Schulz in Schlegelftraße, to which I will return below. The public prosecutor then, without my knowledge, Investigations have been carried out, which, however, demonstrate the absurdity of the denunciation clearly to light.

Such denunciations, as I have only just become aware of, has been sent off, and finally the teacher Berner confessed that he had written them and for greater security—protection against discovery by his wife!

Nothing helped, the backers were undoubtedly pushing, and so Mr. Berner undertook the tremendous attempt to persuade the teaching staff to make a knowingly false denunciation, which, everyone had to hunt, countless perjuries in the wake. All this happened at a time when I was with all already again friendly, this and that at the Royal Provincial School Board provided support, others from bad things regarding exceeding the limits of punishment—right had been preserved.

The fact that an entire teaching staff with the exception of a single teacher, Mr. Lefegang, who since the refusal of his signature will probably have to run the gauntlet, to knowingly denounce me falsely is downright outrageous. |

If one also assumes that this teaching staff has been with the school for 5 years has been chosen for me with great care, then at least the great stupidity is incomprehensible and can only be explained if it is assumed that the reckless actions of the backers, where there is probably no shortage of promises and threats would have been lacking, depriving people of all reasonable consideration brought.

The basis of the denunciation was the one I
For many years, this has involved clothing poor children for Christmas.

I have, for as long as I can remember, been doing my job considered the suffering of my fellow human beings in my field of vision to mitigate or eliminate. My apartment is therefore of assistance. The room was never empty for those seeking. Teachers came, who seek my advice and help in examination matters in Amsterdam; they took, and no one came in vain; it
People of all classes, often completely unknown to me until then, came to me for assistance in obtaining a position, lucrative work, and most of the time they did not come in vain.
The number of people asking for support was often so large that I had to deprive my family of the necessities in order to give Meje some can influence.

However, I considered it my most important task to schoolchildren entrusted to them in winter against the bad influences to protect. I provided boots and warm clothing.

There are who knows how many charities in Berlin institutions, often founded by noble people, but by On the whole, there is little evidence of their influence.

For example, from my school, no more than 2 children are ever considered while there are never less than 100 really needy people were. -

In my various positions as a teacher, I have thereby the gratitude of countless depressed parents and by the way, when even unsolicited, deserves the recognition of my superiors.

When I opened the 119th Community School on October 1, 1881, Rector took over, I found in this respect a quite extraordinary willing and self-sacrificing college, as it is until my departure in 1885 as the model of a teacher-college proved.

At my suggestion, a treasurer was appointed among the teachers elected, the remaining work distributed among the ladies and gentlemen, There were concerts, then collections before Christmas. and we were able to welcome 100 - 120 people for Christmas, ie all needy children regardless of their worth clothe, also provided with other small gifts, which delight the children's hearts. When we then met a We had a bad experience when we joined clubs. Every club member wanted to suggest children for the gift giving, and the school There was little left over. It still had to be collected.

When I was transferred to the 147th community school in 1885 I also found the ladies to be very accommodating and But after the girls and with them the teachers taken away from school and only teachers at the school were made, it was over.

The new college was quite hostile, and From 1886 to 1889, not a single teacher was responsible for the procurement even one mark.

Not even the poorest children were given shelter in the individual Classes have been selected with some care, and some particularly poor children were allegedly beaten by the teacher because of their lack of diligence Mr. Klopftsch took away the boots he had given him, so that I had to intervene vigorously. A mother felt so hurt that she repeatedly insulted Mr. Klopftsch and had to be punished by the court at his request.

I couldn't even think about making my own contributions, and my requested, with the provided list to any Lord was refused with all sorts of excuses. "You do everything best, we agree with everything,

but you will probably renounce our activity, because we can be of little use!" said the teacher Mr. Heifeke.

So I was left to my own devices. Although unfortunately not always careful enough, I said to myself in this case but: "You must have some reliable person to control have, because so far every action you take has been observed and If the most harmless thing is made into a crime, someone could easily claim that you also see the clothing of the poor children to your advantage. Since your difficult external situation everyone is known, such a claim would easily find credence and the way the world is, it should be considered natural.

The inner satisfaction that you get from the happiness of others find, greater than the grief over your own misfortune, but . if you were to say that, you could at most be laughed at become."

The most suitable person was the respective school-head of the commission. He knew the children, the parents, was able to provide advice and assistance. In 1888, around that this is the case, was the hotel owner and house owner
Mr. Maaß, at Gartenplatz No. 6 and 7, head of the school= commission. I finished around the end of October or beginning of November the list, signed and stamped it, went to Mr. Maaß and asked him to also put his name and stamp on it to sit down, then I went to the donors who contributed their usual amounts.

I did not meet three gentlemen, but they made their contribution with the
To embezzle these mail items would be fraudulent intent. After completion of the collection
I went to Mr. Maaß and presented him with the list, which he considered to be the recognized the document signed by him, asked him to determine the amount, gave him the three postal coupons, then I got a receipt and then destroyed the first page in his presence of the appeal, on which the signatures were written along with the first Drawings. The second half, which only contains drawings
I kept back the items that were there.

The destruction of the appeal took place because I was possibly-otherwise in the next few days there will be new collections could have undertaken to take the second, in and of itself worthless
But I had to hold back half a sheet every year. Some Illustrators, especially those who were further away from me, only gave fool I could convince them that they had done this in previous years

would have done too. |

The old lifts were necessary for this. Some companies After I did not even have to wait for the boss if I had the previous submitted documents.

So I simply glued them together and put them in the new list and had it at hand. This made it possible for me to in 5-6 weeks, without much loss of time, the necessary funds Several companies also provided me with leftovers, which could still be used quite well.

—

s= lop, ==

Although the teaching staff did absolutely nothing, I thought Dod considers it appropriate to provide an accurate account of it every year, before Christmas regarding the funds received, make Christmas about the use of the same. Leading for me
The idea was that the joy of success would finally shake them out of their lethargy. Before I start the head of the school commission, Mr. Maaß, I arranged in the usual way a conference, presented the list to the college for inspection, one of the gentlemen, Mr. Wehle, counted the items
The list was available to all other gentlemen.
Mr. Leisegang took the minutes and it was unanimously decided:
"The list was checked and found to be correct." Mr. Leisegang but had asked me before the conference to make it as to make it short, because he had an appointment at the city court must go away. The conference, however, was delayed due to the completion other official matters, Mr. Lefegang removed therefore before the end of the same.

I gave the not quite finished protocol to Mr. Heifeke to the conclusion.

The next day, Mr. Heiseke sent through a boy the minutes book. To my utter astonishment, I saw that Mr. Leisegang's protocol was completely eliminated. In The new protocol prepared by Mr. Heifeke lacked the Paffus: the list has been checked and found to be correct. |

In and for me it was all insignificant, but for me—
the thought immediately occurred to me: Someone has plotted against you forged, whose author cannot yet be identified at the moment.

I had Mr. Heifeke come into the office immediately and confronted him about both facts.

He wanted the page removed from the minutes book, because two handwritings in one protocol would look bad, he my subsequent approval would certainly have been expected. But the passage: "the list was checked and found to be correct", he had omitted it because he was no longer sure of the wording I asked him to immediately go to any Teachers to confirm the unanimity of the decision once again to confirm and then enter the passage subsequently. He went with me immediately to Mr. Wehle, who admitted the fact, then without me. to Mr. Bühring and then added the passage—succumbing to the disease.

But my mistrust was now awakened to the highest degree, and There was still space on the edge next to the protocol, I wrote all Post still next to it.

How right I had judged soon became apparent. I received a summons to the Molkenmarkt to a criminal inspector, where I was informed that a Jewish banker Judge from Behrenstraße because of the Christmas presents denounced me, allegedly as a result of the usury trial Tietz-Zucker. I could only laugh about it, but the criminal The police took the case very seriously. I had no reason to

– 136 –

to keep something from her, without being asked, informed the artist, also the height of the drawings, was ready to give her the collected Money to show, also about the use after completion of the to give an account of the gift giving etc.

As I later learned, the police then went to many draftsmen, convinced himself of the correctness, I carried out other research and finally realized that: had acted absolutely selflessly and honestly. The case was settled. The name Judge did not come, apart from me only the police knew. Public Prosecutor's Office something about the denunciation. In a later In the minutes, Mr. Berner, the teacher, expressly referred to Richter's Denunciation pointed out. The connection will probably last forever. remain unexplained. | |

Until now, the teachers had kept themselves in the background, The accuracy was confirmed in the minutes, but they had the effect that soon turned out, even before, and when everything was useless, under the leadership of Mr. Berner, many certainly with a heavy heart. and under absolute duress, in action.

The distribution of the gifts to 92 children, the adjustment of the Boots and clothing, distribution of the remaining items, Stockings, knitting wool, warm scarves, warm undergarments, hats, Hats, gingerbread, toys for the young ones, siblings, etc. was, as usual, in my hands alone. After New Year, I with the receipted invoices to the head of the school commission Mr. Maaß, had them checked and discharged, then checked this expenses which he had incurred and cited for 12 girls; A few days later the teachers met for a conference. |

Before the conference began, I had the minutes book and all the coverings that had already been tested by Mr. Maaß on my Place at the conference table and was due to a need on I went to the farm for a moment. When I returned, most of the gentlemen were already in the office. When I returned I immediately missed two receipts, namely those of the shoemaker Jonas for 50 pairs of boots delivered and a receipt for 6 Mk. for a boy's overcoat. Although both Mr. Jonas and Even the supplier of the overcoat did not even think about the money to demand again and to give me new issued receipts, the incident was extremely unpleasant for me. I had already lost documents several times before, and Once, about a year earlier, I accused a teacher in front of assembled conference that he had such a document from my He then declared on his word of honor his innocence, and today I am firmly convinced that I really I have accused the wrong person. When I opened the After the minutes of the conference had been read out, a great storm. Mr. Berner explained that he had been authorized to inform me of the following: "Mr. Heifeke, Klopftsch and Thiede would have been in November, i.e. at a time when which I had just started with the collections, without my

= I =

Wife went into the office and there in a book. "Catechism of the Social Republic", the Christmas list was found and.

the total amounts added together. The amount would be far higher than the one I have given. In addition, several pads were missing (of which I have not yet said a word had), please ask for clarification.

I answered very calmly: "The two of them incomprehensibly

I can replace any missing receipts in ten minutes,

But the gentlemen who found the list undoubtedly have the
The amounts signed on the back of the old lists are included in the calculation." The latter was denied, and Mr. Heifeke even named a number of Names of artists he had remembered. The old phrase, daß

the devil, if he had set up a particularly subtle game.
I also put in the wrong card, which also turned out to be true here. Among all the names, Mr. Heifeke had chosen just those Names of donors from the old lists that I have in this Years due to lack of time had not visited, for example Gebr.
Delpey, Bing and several companies in Pank-Straße. I chased therefore: "The proof that you have the old lists with before fidh.

had, is proven, because on the new list these names were not available at all. Since it was only a few weeks ago, I am, to eliminate any mistrust, ready to speak to you immediately to go to the gentlemen concerned and introduce myself personally, otherwise the gentlemen would not be able to remember exactly at the end.
This proposal was rejected by all. After repeated requests
At my request, Mr. Heifeke finally declared willing to go to the Lords, but alone, but did not do so.
Nor was there any desire to obtain new receipts to see, nor to go to Mr. Maaß to see To provide clarity. After I have done everything on my part had, which would serve to provide unconditional clarification on all sides

I had to become convinced that this was not

not about enlightenment, but about a long-prepared com= plot. Certainly, Messrs. Thiede, Jahn, Schwarz, whom I have known for years as thoroughly honorable people had only given up under overwhelming duress. If

But if you give the devil your little finger, he will soon have the whole hand. Soon after, I received one of eight teachers under= signed letter in which I was asked to return within eight days to provide more detailed information, otherwise please contact the Authority. Of course, I had this letter completely unnoticed. During this time Mr. Heifeke began his double He appeared in my office and told me that he my friend, and that each of them is compelled to

Accusation previously submitted to the school inspector for review= to sign the document. School Inspector Dr. Zwick stated, that he would remember for all time anyone who did not sign

become.

I found this information very interesting, but nevertheless

I couldn't get involved in anything. Mr. Thiede and Mr.

*

= * ra

– 138 =

Schwarz, both certainly with good intentions, advised me to cycle

Mr. Thiede explained that he was not in a position to but did not mention the name of Dr. Zwick.

Mr Schwarz refused to answer my question as to whether he was under official supervision. After eight days, the Denunciation to the municipal school deputation, for the attention of Dr. Zwick, and this complaint did not share the fate my previous letter of complaint about Mr. Fietz to the municipal School deputation, for the attention of Dr. Zwick. In the denunciation of the eight teachers were now so unconditional and clearly demonstrable Untruths that certainly four of the gentlemen never would have signed if there was anything left on it may be changed. First I was accused of Minutes book the note, "the list has been checked and found to be correct–found", against the knowledge and will of the teaching staff itself–written, that is, to have committed a forgery.

Mr. Heifeke as secretary of the meeting made this note after consultation with has written to several other gentlemen and yet does not accept is that the gentlemen at their very numerous meetings this

If we had not considered this case sufficiently, it turns out that knowingly false denunciation almost an entire Berlin

Teaching staff, which according to Mr. Heifeke's statements under be–official pressure, as a gang of people who mean–committing acts which are punishable by law

According to their own conviction, this Fact cannot remain hidden if they are not all mine–

oaths were taken and the minutes book was also removed.

The latter had been lying in the office for five years for everyone's viewing–fight, but I now kept the office strictly locked, and as

This still did not seem to be sufficient, so I took it into my apartment. When it was later officially requested of me I sent it directly to the Royal Provincial School Board. I did not want to expose myself to an Arnim trial.

Secondly, the denunciation claims: "The Rector Ahlwardt has, on behalf of the teaching staff, drawn up the list signed, although the teaching staff had forbidden him to do so. This is an absolute untruth, in which there is not even a trace of There is never even a hint This kind of thing has been done, as well as in general apart from the tranrig Incident at the funeral of Kaiser Wilhelm never between a hurtful word was spoken to me and the individual teachers.

| If Mr Bühring, Thiede, Jahn, Schwarz to whom I still have a conscience, will swear in court, not for example, that the college forbade me from signing, but, that only a remote hint of this kind has been made, I will gladly be punished as slanderers and go to Plötzensee, to be among halfway honest people for at least some time. So that the gentlemen take the opportunity to sue me, I am addressing four of the signatories, Wehle, Berner, Klopftsch and Heifeke—knew liars and declare that they only came to their shameful deed from Fear of future evils or in hope of future rewards have given their signature. The other four I do not call them that for the time being, because otherwise they will also complain, and then there is no witness. The best thing about it all is that it had never occurred to me, even on behalf of the teacher= college. I simply wrote: "H. Ahlwardt, Grenzstr. No. 16, Rector of the Teachers' College of the 147th Community= School", as Mr. Maaß and many donors will still know. It is delightful how one can get around the uncomfortable fact= expressed that Mr. Heifeke had remembered names of people who 1888 were not used at all. It says in the Denunciation: "When checking the list, we missed several Names of donors, e.g. Gebr. Delpey." What a colossal fraud! At the conference before Christmas, no one had thought of publishing the list even to look at. Only Mr. Wehle, next to whom I sat down, was persuaded to add up the items. Only in the conference after Christmas, when I explained to the gentlemen that they had the old and the new list had been compiled, and Mr. Heifeke names of illustrators, these names gained importance. The Gentlemen have also sensed this very well, hence the large= nice lie. But there was a single remark in the denunciation, which had a glimmer of credibility to it. It said:

– 19 –

According to the minutes, Rector Ahlwardt announced after the Christmas present of 1886 that he still had 37.50 Mk. left he will invest it in the savings bank. About We lack proof of this money.

As a result of this denunciation, the school inspector appeared Dr. Zwick came to my office and provided information. I said that I would submit it in writing and sent the next morning a memorandum of over twenty pages Dr. Zwick. He then invited me to take the minutes fhis apartment. I went there, but asked to be to be released soon, as my wife is very seriously ill. The minutes were therefore kept brief.

To clarify the matter, I worked on a another memorandum of over 20 pages, which I also sent to Mr. Dr. Zwick presented it personally the next morning. I had taken a witness with me. I was allowed to= assume that Dr. Zwick would come after school, to hold a conference there in which the truth will be revealed should have been revealed. It did not happen. Dr. Zwick sent everything to the municipal school deputation; they also kept it not consider it necessary to conduct any investigation, but immediately sent the files for the disciplinary investigation to the Royal Provincial School Board. Compare with this behavior once the behavior of the city authorities towards progressive officials, e.g. in the below mentioned Richter and Bellardi mentioned cases. The former, who had two teachers in a year ago, nevertheless received the Permission to teach at the girls' school run by his wife school again. The latter, who made a knowingly false anonymous denunciation ciation against a subordinate to the authority and This was also admitted, still lives in one of the magnificent most active school buildings in Berlin and is also the head of a lucrative further education school. Of course, both highly progressive gentlemen. The Royal School College that the only right thing: it handed the whole matter over to the royal public prosecutor's office. The remaining matters were quickly dealt with. A very embarrassing, going into the smallest details However, the matter was investigated because of the 37.50 marks. The facts here were as follows: I had at Christmas 1886. 37.50 marks left, informed the teachers and asked several of the gentlemen, especially Mr. Wehle, used this money in This was rejected by all sides. The reason I could not tell the gentlemen about it, but I want to tell them now speak openly. With my constant financial difficulties,

– 140 –

I was tempted to take the foreign
To attack money in times of need is too great. The need of the A moment can do a lot, and I wanted to experience this test of strength not to put them on unnecessarily. Therefore, when the teachers ordered the storage refused, I explained that I then had my reasons for
To bring money to the savings bank. Significant benefit could However, this cannot be achieved because the few interest are offset by the payment of the book upon withdrawal of the money. But I was also allowed to have the money not pay because I have been repeatedly threatened with disclosure
It would then be because of this money to the worst extent ments, as the creditor immediately seized it
I therefore had it named after my children
The public prosecutor's office now wanted to establish ft, firstly, by whom I was threatened with the oath of disclosure was, secondly, that it happened precisely at the time in question, Thirdly, anyone who during the year or at Christmas receives this Money was given to anyone who had the boots or clothing in question= ftuckets delivered etc. I was able to document everything down to the last detail Pfennig, and that was the end of the matter.
But imagine what would have happened if one of the People had died or moved to an unknown location. I would have this money for those actions of my life on which I am fully conscious of being prouder of this than of anything else, a ferrible suspicion must hang on me. In this case
During the investigation I repeatedly saw the files lying on the table and was almost speechless with astonishment when I made the observation had to that the two extensive memoranda that I submitted to the school= inspector had handed over to Dr. Zwick, not in the files were. While in similar investigations every paper= ft of value, 2 thick, highly important pieces of evidence are missing here= pieces. Where might these two documents have gone? The

– 141 –

I received the news that there was nothing incriminating against me flater, while the school inspector Dr. wick was with me was in the office. I handed it to him immediately. I I would like to thank the gentlemen who denounce me so often and so willingly a new puzzle. I have not only for the clothing my students, but for the poor people of the entire neighborhood= fcience. This became known over the years 0 that I finally saw children and adults from all over the place with recommendations. The Rectors Schulz, Illig, the head of the poor relief commission Richter, the pharmacist Selberg successors, officials of the National Bank of Germany, the Dresden-Bank, factory owners in the area sent people in need to me, Officials of the National Bank, for example, once visited the wife of a sick cab driver with 5 or 6 children, and I have also had many lost families were brought back up, many children were blessed clothed, as the police could determine in an emergency, especially since finally some police officers were found who took me to particular need. Furthermore, last year I established for the most miserable of my students a holiday colony near Rathenow, for which I had chosen about 20 children this year. Where—Where did all this money come from? From my own resources, surely only to the smallest extent. I did not even have enough to give your own children something generous for Christmas and she had to get used to finding her own joy in the joy of others But the money had to come from somewhere Perhaps there is reason for new denunciations here, especially now that I'm going public.

After the last and most shameful denunciation, which had come from my teachers, that is, from people, to whom my heart was attached, to whom I approached with the greatest love which I under all circumstances, even to the authorities and has continued to do so so far.

gratefully acknowledged, but it was the last straw. I was exposed to all kinds of shameful things for many years, no crime except direct murder and manslaughter had been committed

I was not comfortable with always having to fein, I also wanted to be a hammer one day. At the school=

Inspector Dr. Zwick, I vigorously requested the transfer of the Teacher Berner. I did not believe that in the whole world there was a Authority that could contact us both after the incidents that took place My request was not granted.

I then submitted my application to the Royal Provincial School Board a complaint about which, without giving any reason, a retained salary allowance. Finally, I started to work on the to begin working on this long-planned book. It was this in October of Is. Of course, this could not remain hidden.

The boy Karl began to become frightened. Then for the final and decisive blow, which would either or my opponents, that is, not the miserable wire puppets, but whose backers must be destroyed.

– 12 –

As already reported above, on 1 October 1889 the mentally ill teacher Michelchen was sent to my school. I had He entered and noticed that he had just come from Daldorf.

Two days later,

The school inspector told me that Mr. Michelchen was not should be tolerated. I dismissed this unfortunate gentleman, by informing him in the most gentle way that he had a vacation was granted. But his class was now without a teacher, and I had to send a different teacher to the same school every day, who but also had to provide his own class. From this arose of course, great inconvenience. I immediately wrote for representation, it But no reply came. A second letter was also unsuccessful. The situation became desperate, especially as it dragged on for weeks, the teachers= The college was outraged because it blamed me for doing so- possibly suspected that I was taking part in his troubles Mr. Schwarz was particularly annoyed when I showed him the fourth class of Mr. Michelchen, as soon as a representation for his class.

Since he never knew where he was, he went complainingly- leading to the school inspector, and so did Mr. Klopftsch, from whom I had deprived two hours of overtime. Now Mr. Berner's wheat. I can still see him with Mr. Schwarz on walked up and down the courtyard and talked into it. His My own situation became a little scary. During the transfer= exam I had asked a teacher to check the written work to supervise. The failure of the same is for the transfer is known to be of the utmost importance. The oral examination I then took it upon myself later. After these very important Work completed under the supervision of the second teacher, the children were removed and put in the locker, he left. So- After completion, the children should go home. A An hour later I entered the class and found all the children with the pen in hand, while the test work lay before them. I naturally presented this absolutely monstrous fact the school inspector. It was my first report in eight years. The school inspector did not comment to me, but I have just now informed you that Mr. Berner, in the opinion of Mr. school inspector, the worst teacher he had ever met, active member of the daycare center run by Dr. Zwick A few days later, immediately after the start of the- rich, Rector Fietz asked me to visit him immediately. He informed me that he had unfortunately accidentally met a teacher who was Representative for Mr. Michelchen, who has been working for a long time on his school. He regrets this, but gives me his honor= word that he had overlooked the word Michelchen. Of course, I did not take his word of honour, but I had no evidence to the contrary. So my school was ruined! But how was that possible? I had written repeatedly that Dr. Zwick had to know the situation! Of course, I was immediately forced to inform the colleague gium to a short meeting in the office, to

- 143 -

to inform about the matter and the new circumstances After this had happened, and I had just asked to go to their classes, Mr. Teacher Berner stepped forward with the question why he was transferred from the 4th to the 5th grade. This question in and of itself was unjustified, after the events in the last exam downright frivolous, and I explained to him very calm that his completely inadequate performance in this regard Then he became as rude and insulting as hardly ever occurred in Prussian civil service

He said to me in front of the entire college: "Do you believe not that you are finished with us, my friends and I are collecting material to overthrow you!" The matter was devilishly well-laid out. I let myself be insulted by these fall, yes there was every reason to expel me from school jeben. I also had the school board prove that I no longer has sufficient authority.

If I did not tolerate them, what then? I answered the Lord Berner little, but challenged him at appropriate intervals three times to leave the office. He did not leave, but continued talking. If I had called a policeman, he would have been with all the official documents, among which there is also a ferbeftschrift against him, alone. I decided therefore briefly. I grabbed him and transported him as quickly as possible out the door, simply exercising my right of ownership, what every Prussian is entitled to, and also my official duty filling, because I had to compare the existing documents with the protect the person who was in the office without authorization. When I grabbed him wanted, he grabbed my coat cuffs with his hands, I flammed it aside and may also have put his face in Contact must have come. Mr. Berner did not go into his class, but left despite my repeated requests, first to keep his children busy, the schoolhouse. About a A quarter of an hour later, I expressed my concern to Mr. Schwarz that this incident was immediately brought back into the newspapers
Mr. Schwarz undertook to immediately introduce himself to Mr. Berner's apartment to get him to do any official step, but not to make it public. As When Mr. Schwarz arrived at Mr. Berner's apartment, he was had already been to the school inspector Dr. Zwick and had received instructions not to go to school anymore. I was highly astonishing, because the school inspector's apartment is in Moabit, and it would have taken at least an hour to do this Everything to be taken care of. Mr. Berner had, however, told Mr. Schwarz declared that he had just met the school inspector on the horse-drawn tram when he left Schulzendorf=
ftraÙe via MüllerftraÙe to his apartment Jer.
I found this thing hard to believe. Coincidence often plays a role a strange role, but here it was almost too strange.
Firstly, one is not used to Dr. Zwick secondly, he even leaves his apartment at such an early hour.

– 144 –

he had to go from his apartment in Moabit to a school
the far north, to have done business there and are already on their way to the city, thirdly Dr. Zwick, who is a non-smoker, will be in such unfavorable weather-tion, as we had at the end of October, not at the back of the platform form, especially since he has, as long as I have known him, opposed Draughts were very sensitive. After 8 o'clock the cars almost always empty and provide comfortable space inside. The windows-However, due to the foggy weather, the windows were difficult to see through from the outside.

If you add to that what I said below at Schulze case, especially the alleged statement of Mr.
Dr. Zwick to Mrs. Schulze: It is my most urgent wish, that Ahlwardt would be overthrown, and I would constantly
I want to keep my memory, but I don't want to go straight ahead, so
The following could not be considered completely impossible: A
My complaint about the missing salary supplement was submitted to School staff, an oral complaint about the teacher Berner
It was already appropriate to submit a written request to the school deputation possibly the school board was expected to meet the next day, as well as an immediate complaint about the Rector Fietz; also announced that I have started to write the present book
One appointment, one last decisive attempt to make it is understandable. The roles were exactly distributed, and School Inspector Dr. Zwick was waiting in a nearby Locally on the exit. It's all zen without other evidence than that which lies in the development itself.
The next morning, Dr. Zwick appeared at my school, to take a report with me. A boy appeared with a letter from Rector Fietz to Dr. Zwick. Mr.
Fietz had to announce his presence the day before my school. I insisted that the incident with Rector Fietz was definitely part of matter is duly recorded in the minutes. Dr. Zwick initially refused this, since Mr. Rector Fietz with fine explanation, that he had overlooked the name Michelchen, quite undoubtedly the
I have spoken the truth, and any doubt on my part must remove the word of honour of Mr. Fietz; he will stand for the truth the statement of Mr. Fietz at the ir i School Deputation ft safely. Almost at the same moment a lady entered the office and introduced herself as Miss Engelke, who was representative for Mr. Michelchen. I wanted to meet the lady to accompany her to her class, but Dr. Zwick tried to dissuade me by saying that I was carrying out official duties
I was no longer allowed to do anything. But I was already out the door and stood next to the lady, because I understood the importance of the moment Dr. Zwick followed, but remained at the office door while I rush with the young lady I walked to the class. Miss Engelke, I said, have 'You knew that you represented Mr. Michelchen at my school should? Certainly, hunted she, on my assignment found that I representative for Mr. Michelchen, but I was mistaken still sent to Mr. Michelchen's old school. I expressly drew the attention of Rector Fietz to this and said that I would go to the school inspector immediately. Mr. But Rector Fietz replied: "That is not necessary, just step Please contact me for a sick teacher, I will "After this explanation, I immediately went back to the office, Dr. Zwick met me on the hallway to get me. Poor Miss Engelke! She have agreed with this statement of yours, in which you, without suspect a shameful web of lies and deceit and fraud uncovered, created a difficult position!

But I also felt quite unhappy. Previous theft, then knowingly false denunciation for fraud, documents= forgery, embezzlement, lies and deception and fraud in my subordinates, whom I treated like my children,

Lies and deceit and treachery among my colleagues, especially the Rector Fietz, whom I had always treated with respect, although This was not easy for me, as the Rector Büftenbinder was the Kenn= drawing of his educational standpoint as a teacher at the 7. Community school, around 1876, in front of the assembled teaching staff said that Fietz and his wife had a physical disagreement about it= ity had come, whether Schiller or Goethe Minna von Barnhelm Of course, this man did not pass the rector's exam At a small colloquium, to which he had to submit When he was already rector, he failed twice. When a Pillar of progress in the north of Berlin, he has of course the best school, the best children and teachers, also runs a feverfely lucrative further education school, where also foreign language Many headmasters in the area, who of course, since they already have the highest salary, even the well-paid Those who give lessons at the training school are his subordinates. In addition, Rector Fietz also heads a well-paid Volks= library. Of course, only the city can achieve such great positions Berlin, and for zealous politicians these are never unattainable. Of course, sometimes services such as those cannot be denied that the services provided to them were insufficient. This lie, deception and fraud of my subordinates and Colleagues were now under the most benevolent protection of my superiors. And even with the municipal school deputation I was never convicted in any case, no matter how severe the charges Here I was always condemned in advance. And yet I have always received the greatest recognition for my performance of office found. My private and family life was also worst of all – say nothing unfavorable. I am never a member of the school deputation or even my closest Treated superiors in a manner other than polite and helpful.

In the office, Dr. Zwick completed the minutes and then called as witnesses one after the other Messrs Bühring, Klopftsch and 10

– 146 –

Schwarz into the office. I protested against all three as not impartial. I knew from Mr. Heifeke that Mr. Bühring was close friends with the school inspectors Dr. Zwick and Reinecke and has the intention of having sex with a close relative of the to enter into even more intimate relationships with Mr. Reinecke, and he had direct benefit from my removal, as long as he believed in my Mr Schwarz and Mr Klopftsch were had only been to Dr. Zwick a few days before to sue. My objection was rejected. Soon the school inspector Dr. Zwick informed me that I was suspended from office and I must abstain from any official act. The next Days ago, Mr Bühring explained to me on behalf of Dr Zwick, that he would take over the interim management of the school. I was left not even time to take my private things, some of which still in the office. The die was cast! Ent= neither did I have to find my downfall, nor my opponents had to fall.

I hope to God that I have not endured all this in vain
but that the overseers of this twelve-year martyrdom, which all my tribesmen who dare to
to have my own dissenting opinion, in a similar way pursue these vampires in human form, the immigrant Jews, their final inevitable fate by a good deal
Perhaps my book is the match which sets the powder keg on fire. The fate of their German Mamelukes and henchmen are less of an interest to me. Perhaps they do, plagued by their conscience, in a final reckoning with Judaism the best services.

At that time, in order to be free in the now beginning fighting, really wanted to retire, and expressed the same
a few days later to the Royal Provincial School Board in writing
Of course, I soon became sorry again, because after what I had learned that I was now free in all matters even as a rector in office.
my resolution. What I have to say to the Royal School Board had communicated, was shortly afterwards, in the most hateful way, de-titled together with a completely incorrect presentation of the Berner case and 1 rap on the long-finished Christmas presents, from which the ations had previously reported, in all Jewish newspapers, merk= worthy of note also in the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

I was surprised about the latter at the time, but now I am no longer. I read the same one for 24 years, was known there, had even repeatedly offered articles for the Sunday supplement, which were gladly accepted but then withdrawn by me, because they wanted to pay the line with only 5 pfennigs, while but the Staatsbürger Zeitung immediately gave three times as much. Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung I expected that they would correction from me. But she hid behind the Berliner Tageblatt. This promised a correction, brought it but not. The foreign newspaper is also said to have said bad things about me. fcribed, but I could apparently do this with exclusion

– 147 –

I could not find the paper that appeared in public. So I was For during one year in the Jewish newspapers four times the pilloryed, and among my like-minded people I was harmed most of all, because although they hate the Jews, they believe but their newspapers. Miraculously, the Jews= newspapers every time they attacked me, also always in Der-fame issue the news that the school superintendent Dr. Bertram I will soon resign from office. I consider this simultaneous division is not a coincidence. It should be a lure for people who hope to become his successor, to me now their At the same time, I saw from the newspaper reports but that the Jews even had their spies in the school staff The Rector, Mr. Fietz, also boasted later to other persons by informing them about the course of the investigation I knew exactly, and when I heard Mr. Heiseke's statement about the participation of Dr Zwick had been recorded, He soon arrived at the school and called Mr. Heiseke to a long conversation in the office. Of course, you can also have spoken of other things. About both gentlemen I will I would like to make a casual remark here. A long time ago, before a public election, Dr. Zwick said to me: Mr. Rector, I don't understand you. You are not selfish enough. Whoever whoever opposes the course of history will be crushed by its wheels! Do you want to remember this! |

But Mr. Heifeke showed himself in all his greatness. My old seventy-year-old mother-in-law, whom I was forced to I had to leave the cleaning of the school after my departure, treated Mr. Heifeke so brutally in front of all the children that even Mr. Bühring had to intervene. The latter, however, kept the 38 Mk., which are subject to cleaning, since April 1st 6 Mk. month= ly for themselves. | |

The disciplinary investigation that is now beginning developed fied highly interesting. Unfortunately, I am legally disabled, before completion to publish the same documents from the same. All= Investigations of this kind have so far been outsourced to municipal officials transferred, and in this way almost every Accused eliminated. Miraculously, these were always people my attitude. Most of them were through the introduction of the Examination was already so numb that she was unable to take everything with her—

I am not an extremely active person, but I am a old, gnarled, tough, Pomeranian nature, which does not easily
I brought, immediately sufficient material, and so the investigation was placed in the hands of a high royal authority, where I found strict judges, but certainly Justice. There is no need for more than one. One will be the Investigation must certainly reveal. The Royal Authority will become convinced that it was a very serious mistake
The fact is that they have the right to supervise schools, which is so high responsibilities, handed over in Berlin.
The city of Berlin elects the Royal School Inspectors. After 10*

— 148 —

We will know exactly the principles on which this happens later
These are then provided by the Royal Government confirmed as Royal Officials. Under these circumstances alone conditions can develop as I have described them and as which were so clearly expressed at the death of Kaiser Wilhelm.

The Klopftsch case.

In order to ruin me for sure, they had a devilry which was really admirable. To understand this Unfortunately, despite my reluctance, I have to personal circumstances of the teacher Klopftsch.

Mr. Klopftsch, teacher at my school since April 1st 1885, occasionally informed me that he had been with a man for 7 years.
wealthy girl in his hometown of Droffen
Shortly before the summer holidays in 1885, he asked for a necessary Vacation to the town of Polkwitz in Silesia. When he returned, he told me that he had given up his old engagement and with a very rich girl, a pharmacist's daughter from Polkwitz, engaged. The old bride was less rich and educated.

He also received over 1000 thalers from a relative
I congratulated him on his wealth, and on the day before the salaries were paid at the town hall, which I I asked him to give me his 390 marks on a few days. Soon I could only give him / the Repay the sum, which Neft receives later in several installments. On this

Mr. Klopftsch had now, at the end of 1889, reflected on the incident, when everything else did not turn against me. Therefore, Dr. Zwick was so focused on his testimony because incident should be patched up, and Mr. Klopftsch knew to give a very nasty portrayal. That Mr. Klopftsch this completely harmless and long-forgotten thing suddenly appeared examined, gave me only the full proof of the absolute malignancy of all machinations against me. At that time we had this The relationship was settled in a friendly manner without him even mentioning made the slightest remark, and later I was able to Services without which he could hardly survive in present circumstances On the wedding day he and his young wife had Woman had such a bad appearance in front of all the guests that the Those close to his wife were thinking of an immediate separation.

Since he is also completely aware of the financial situation deceived, a married life now developed, which for the duration was hardly bearable. Both spouses took refuge in each other. us, and we have used all our strength, a separation. Once he had received a letter from his mother-in-law where she took her daughter after consultation with the old, worthy pastor in Polkwitz, to immediately to leave and come home. I had to leave all my Use persuasion to get a divorce, which I considered the worst thing of all to be contraception. My wife.

– 149 –

now often visited the young couple, taught the woman in the Berlin cooking style, later fed her child, and With great difficulty we kept the young couple together.

We never thought about making cash payments of any kind, such as the attachment of a garland to to have his door replaced when the young woman moved in. Later he became ill and came up with the idea that his wife Association with their relatives with the medicine that comes from Polkwitz was sent to poison. He sent his father to me, which I then sent with a letter to his family doctor Mr. Dr. Reinsdorf. Later I repeatedly arranged for support and only then rejected a further request for support, when I learned that he had bought a very expensive velocipede At school I showed him every possible opposition– come, especially since he did his full duty here. Even later he has often made use of my good services, and We remained on friendly terms until he got caught in the nets of Mr. Berner. Here he got more and more entangled, until he finally became one of the most zealous party supporters. Whether Fear of disadvantages or hope of advantages guided him

It remains to be seen whether this is the case. Probably the last of the
Because he longed to be a really good drawing teacher
Drawing lessons at a further education school, which cost per hour three marks is paid. I was able to give him the same despite—
Only a few days before my After leaving school, Mr. Klopftsch came to me and promised important revelations to me if I remember the following incident remember: In his last illness he had lost his fortune left to his father in writing, so that it might not fall into the hands his wife. Now his father wants to remarry,
I have half thrown him and his wife out and will now will probably keep the money. He wants to sue for it soon, but requires a witness that the gift is only pro forma his safety from his wife, and so that she can support him in his eventual death has no further material interest, has taken place." I knew the circumstances, had f. Z. this representation from his I heard it from his mouth, but unfortunately not from his father. I could could not serve as a witness. A few days later, however, he was—once again the most willing tool of my opponents.

Later he swore that all these facts were untrue or disfigured. I fear, I fear, this oath will be very have dire consequences, because many facts are likely to be confirmed by number:
rich witnesses can prove it.

The Schulze case.

When on 28 May 1885 my son Benno, after 1½ years
sickbed, we lacked everything and everyone. Funeral=

Softener, the means to purchase mourning clothes for women and children, had to be obtained under all circumstances. I

— 150 —

I went to a Jewish agent in the royal city, who—within the framework that one can draw for agents at all must, was not the worst. It can be said that alone we can conclude that, although he has no needs, he is nevertheless in lived in anemic conditions. Therefore, and because his decent children have worked their way up to respected positions |
I will not mention any name. The Lord met me with his wife in front of his front door. I told him my concern
But he was at a loss for a long time because his financial men because of his clients not paying on time.

Finally his wife came up with a new idea. She said: We .

have a cousin who later got baptized in order to join in?
to marry a policeman. She is incredibly clever, and although Anemic from home, she helped her husband through all kinds of business, which you do not have to worry about, but a large fortune
He was therefore able to retire and now lives quite comfortably, although he is concerned about any not to worry about his wife's affairs. Promise
I can't do anything for you, but I will try to:
a loan. But I'll tell you right away,
She wants to serve very much! Her husband added: I will
If you describe your distress as warmly as possible, perhaps I can beat you.
In addition, since you are the principal, Mrs Schulze could also do so because they may possibly stimulate other speculations
Of course, depending on the situation, I was always available condition, especially since I am completely was constantly broken. I went with the couple to the Schlegelfstraße, where Mrs. Schulze lived as the house owner, and waited near the house for the result of the efforts
After some time the Lord appeared to me and told me, that Mrs Schulze granted the loan of 100 Marks under the following Conditions: 1. Bill of exchange for 150 Marks, payable on 1 July, i.e. after 5 weeks, 2. as security, surrender of my Rent receipt as of July 1st. I can pay the rent on my own Collect the receipt yourself and then the 150 marks on July 1st.
personally or through the agent. We both went to my apartment, made out bills of exchange and rent receipts,
We went to Mrs Schulze, who in the most charming Weife paid out the 100 Marks and explained that if the payment was made on time receipt of the money, also later willing to do favors show. I deeply regret my family's loss, but one must submit to God's will. She sent a Kranz in my apartment. Of course I compensated the agent for his efforts, as he honestly deserved.
On July 1st I collected the money and sent her the 150 marks by to the agent. Bill of exchange and rental receipt were returned, and the agent said that he had been offered a reward of 5 marks—
About 4 or 5 days after July 1st, I went back to Mrs. Schulze, this time without the agent.
The deal was done again in a similar way. This time!

— 151 —

it was 10 marks cheaper for me. I don't remember exactly,
I received 110 marks and wrote 150, or I received 100 marks and wrote 140.

Unfortunately, given the length of time and the turmoil that I have since experienced, my memory regarding the following not entirely faithful. Either I paid the bill on October 1st again and then renewed it, or the following business was made before October 1st. It is certain, and also by me to swear that the 140 or 150 marks which I still owe to Mrs Schulze owed were included in the new business. Ms. Schulze had been incredibly kind to me. had informed me that her daughter was a teacher at the higher Böhm's girls' school, teaching in the second grade and achieve extraordinary success. One of the lower classes of this My daughter attended school as a student. From a Friend of her daughter, who is a teacher at my school, fhe learn that I was not only at the time when I was ft time I turned to her, but generally in an unfavorable Encouraged by her accommodating nature, I asked them for a larger loan, the amount of which I no longer know exactly It was probably a little over 600 marks. Mrs. Schulze immediately agreed and explained that since I was in need, no longer wants to earn anything from me, but only from neighbors= love, and because she also loves my family, whom she now visits had paid off, had grown fond of, gave the loan. She I therefore only demand 6% per annum. In payment, however, she gave me a gold watch for the price of 185 marks, because she could but not to see that a city rector without a pocket watch Furthermore, the bill of exchange of 150 marks was paid I received more than 200 marks in cash. In addition, fhe fuch agreed that her daughter would help my daughter, who had something in French, giving private lessons, for which per One mark must be paid per hour. The entire amount I had to issue a bill of exchange, due on the next quarterly first, as well as a salary receipt. On that day I went I then went to Mrs Schulze, paid the agreed installment my collected salary, furthermore the interest, finally the Daughter gave private lessons and gave new changes and new receipt. I wanted to hand over the latter money directly to her daughter, but she explained that this was not necessary, because she would take the money anyway, as well as her daughter's salary, which she received until the last Pfennig must be handed over. She will invest it safely, and her daughter I feel quite comfortable with it. This went on for a long time. My However, repayments became smaller and smaller.

: In the meantime, a very pleasant relationship developed between us Relationship. We even exchanged letters. Mrs. Schulze with her daughter repeatedly visited my wife, especially in the afternoon in the schoolyard, and once when she about a country outing that I had taken with my teaching colleagues wanted to do it, Miss Schulze offered to join in, which I unfortunately had to decline, as my school did not have a single Lady was more. The more eager she found herself late in the evening

– 152 –

my schoolyard, where I quite regularly do my first class gathered together with the teacher

Güffow, who owned a very excellent astronomical telescope, to show the boys the wonders of heaven. This gentleman knew how to captivate Miss Schulze so much that he became engaged to her and then married. However, this marriage was later

After her daughter's engagement to Mr.

Güffow has again significantly increased Mrs Schulze's repayments demanded. I had bad experiences with my watch

It did not work, and the watchmaker Funk explained the same

It is considered to be quite worthless. The gold plate is so thin that it gives in to the slightest pressure, and it is also permeable and therefore never clean. An expert estimated her

Value at 25 marks. In the later civil proceedings I deposited the fupon the court, but the court refused. Some time

After the engagement, the above-mentioned agent appeared, who in the meantime reason to disapprove of Mrs Schulze

Yes and no, and said to myself: I have learned that one of your teachers engaged to Miss Schulze. It is your duty to to tell you more about the family. I have left in the dark because it is not good to know everything.

But now I tell you the following: "Mrs Schulze used to be a of the worst usurers who have already robbed many people happy. Several officers are said to have been shot. She often followed these gentlemen on maneuvers.

Once in a weak hour she showed me an incredible

Lots of diamond rings and gold watches. Diamonds were it was certainly several lire; then she went with me to the yard and opened a new coach house, which was decorated to the top with the most magnificent filled with linen, partly embroidered with count's crowns.

asked me to give her the best possible reward for all these splendours.

to bring the goods to a secret buyer who will ship them to Russia.

I brought her a Mr. Koslowsky, who also bought a lot. I was there and was very surprised about the Mysteriousness of the negotiations. The doors were locked.

Mr. Koslowsky committed himself to selling the items at very reasonable prices.

to sell the items abroad. The next day

I could certainly see that Mr. Koslowsky was a particularly valuable full piece in the Börfencafé, corner of Burg- and neue Friedrichstraße,

For my efforts I received from Mrs.

Schulze three marks. The whole affair seemed very strange to me.

thoughtfully, and I could not help but feel that here may not be all right. I went to the police, but they chased me away because not to search the home of a previously blameless person

My objection that people who had nothing without any major secret income, since the husband's salary and the

The woman's income from a smaller previous repurchase transaction

were not significant, impossible to rentier and Berliner could become homeowners was not taken into account." We were extremely excited, because with this family we had personal contact. Therefore, when a few days then, on the first of the quarter, Mrs. Schulze in my apartment appeared, we told her very frankly what had happened and They called on them to free themselves from the information by filing a lawsuit against to clean the agent, otherwise we will contact your personal There was a very violent uproar— Mrs. Schulze removed it, and after an hour appeared Mr. Schulze, whom I have now seen in action for the first time. He asked me to say completely different things fhould, as the agent had told me. I had to de= feparably reject. On request, I gave a written, and if I am not mistaken, also an affidavit in which everything contained what the agent had said. This is before the arbitrator. Before the hearing I received but another letter from Mr. Schulze, which began like this: If you to my will in the oath matter against, yes pp. and now followed veiled threats and promises. When the agent soon afterwards appeared to me, he took it to himself in order to to be used as evidence at the hearing. Much later, at the civil case, he handed over to me at my urgent request this Letter for the Court and the plaintiff's consideration, he did not want to give me the letter, but promised to carefully At the hearing with the arbitrator, the Agent has maintained all his claims and is The Schulze family did not sue. This meant that I naturally draw my own conclusions. The interaction between the Schulze's family and us were of course over. Mrs. Schulze demanded all her money, while I could only explain that I could not go beyond the installment payments. Now I gave away fie the bill of exchange to a Mr. Gumpert in Pankow, who against I was sued. During the hearing I naturally referred to the usury that had taken place, set the clock for the court to— fubject, which she rejected, as well as the letter which the The court declared that all of this was indifferent to the third owner, and I must be condemned I then raised the objection that Mr. Gumpert was not the owner, but only a person who was put forward. He claimed, that he had received the bill of exchange as a gift. He was to swear to this. But then he left and asked for a new appointment for oath taking. He did not appear at this new appointment and was therefore rejected.

Later, this Mr. Gumpert, according to the explanation of the woman Schulze, her private secretary, returned the bill to Mrs. Schulze ceded, and she then sued personally. At the hearing she swore, that she had not engaged in usury. The agent sitting next to her

I immediately suggested him as a witness and he was also willing

– 154 –

to testify, but the judge explained that in the exchange process witnesses would not be allowed. I then paid the bill to Mrs. Schulze in her apartment after I had agreed to fix: Her husband acknowledged in her Name and also promised in writing to give it to me at the lawyer's! to send the bill of exchange. They only wanted to make the deduction drop it if he is allowed to write in the receipt, that this was a personal favor. On the other hand, the The whole business was cancelled. As I left, Mrs. Schulze: "I was with the school principal Böhm some time ago invited, where the school inspector Dr. Zwick also introduced himself to me]. was. You have told me some lovely things! They are supposed to be even worse than Stöcker. Dr. Zwick said, that he would like to see you overthrown and the one who contributes to it He personally would only do not like to proceed!" One should consider that her daughter Lehrerin, her future son-in-law an extraordinarily capable teacher who was well entitled to expect a very rapid progress come to hope. Of course I wanted to do this immediately after the first | The agent's message will clarify, Mr Güffow, a quite honorable and harmless man, had to bear the same fays. But wonderful! From that day on, Mr. Güffow diligently avoided me. When I nevertheless started to talk about the future mother-in-law to speak to him, he explained that he did not want to know anything about it. He wanted the daughter, but not the Marry my mother. It was clear that he had been incited against me. So the destruction had to take its course. Later he was without giving any reason at the instigation of Dr. Zwick was suddenly transferred from school. Mr. Güffow was He explained that, although he was prompted by his future mother-in-law asked the school inspector for later I asked for a transfer because he still had a long way to go after his move into his mother-in-law's house before marriage wanted, but he had not thought of an immediate transfer. I was of course pleased about the transfer of this most excellent of my teachers, who had achieved astonishing results, was unpleasantly surprised, especially! he, even if he had lived in the house of his in-laws, would still have had a closer route to school than most | other teachers, and I had previously been assigned female teachers whose apartment was six times as far away. j ;

But what should I do? Later, some mysterious person, not Mr. Güffow, who every atrocity would have indignantly rejected a connection between

Mr. Berner and Mrs. Schulze, at the time when Mr. Berner made his turn. May I clarification of Mrs. Schulze believe, yes they would have | enjoyed the most benevolent protection of Dr. Zwick. In the meantime, the headmaster Böhm, or as he was called at the school, said Mr. Director Böhm, member of the municipal school deputation. Mr. Böhm is a simple elementary school teacher, § and yes, the teaching staff also had a representation in the same. Describing what is to come now is superfluous, especially since Readers can take the opportunity to read the first scene of Macbeth to read through once. In the following anonymous denunciations—functions at the public prosecutor's office, some of which admittedly from Mr. and Mrs. Berner, is next to Mr. Berner Mrs Schulze was also always called as a witness. The latter then also brewed a pretty little potion a la Macbeth, which she will, however, have to drink it herself in the end. Public prosecutors attach so little importance to the denunciations so laid that she did not even question me.

= 155 =

The Petereit case.

As insignificant as this case is in and of itself, it has but more painfully touched than anything else and gives so much right a picture of the atrocities committed by the Jewish Mamelukes under under the guidance of their worthy masters.

About four years ago, a young, handsome man to me, who introduced himself as Petereit. He told me that he from Lithuania, school knowledge only to a very limited extent 1 because he had not received any education in his youth, and in his twentieth year to the Guard Fusilier Regiment raised. Here he had to speak some German, also a little learned to read and write, then he became an assistant postman and had the pleasure of assisting a postal worker. He then gave up his office to marry a widow Merkel, who owned a greengrocer's shop in the Gerichtsstraße They sent him to the markets, but he was not 1 because he cannot count. In addition, the markets would soon close, he would take horse and cart sell. His wife's business does not support him, and so he had to look for a position. He had whole neighborhood that I care for all those in need. take, and so he asks me to help him to obtain any, if even the lowest position in life. I did This is self-evident, and I would never refuse it.

I walked with him through the city, went to the horse-drawn tram= Society, after the Omnibus Society, to various theaters, to friends in various ministries, but nowhere did find something. Finally I came to Mr. Rewicky, office manager in the railway directorate, who used to be my colleague in the German Civil servants' association. This gave us a recommendation to the head of the Northern Railway freight yard. He Petereit as a worker with a daily wage of two marks. He but told him that he could make progress if he was good and acquire enough knowledge to pass the exam. On the way home, Petereit told me that he had learned everything from school= I don't even have one, and that he dares to ask me to give it to him. to give some lessons. He could pay me at present

– 156 –

nothing for it, because they are now so poor that they can only could eat his fill, but in the future he would earn something. I followed him for three and a half years, although I was flow of free time, gave lessons without compensation, often up to eight hours per week and at the most irregular times, as his service brought with it. He first learned to read and writing, then the Latin alphabet, then we came to the beginnings in orthography. On the result of this three= After half a year of lessons, I am amazed myself. He now writes orthographically correct, masters fraction and decimal calculations, the civil calculation methods, the area= and body calculation, knows geography very well. Because of him I studied a dozen instruction books, and also brought him to the point where to write beautiful independent essays. He passed the Bremijerz, then the conductor exam with ease and was appointed Royal. He had hired a civil servant with a good salary. He had done this in a short Time reached what all other railway officials only after twelve= year of military service. Compensation I had never spoken of it before. Then he had on the railway, to enter the higher railway service in order to maybe one day to become a station master, and I just started to give him further scientific instruction than he suddenly it became known that the best places in the entire railway= service are those of the sleeping car conductors who annually Earn thousands in tips. But they have to Pass exams in French and English. I gave him also lessons in these two languages, and he made beautiful He was already able to set the time for the exam, especially since not too much is demanded. Compensation on my part was never been mentioned before. I thought he was far too poor for that. Then a strange incident occurred. His wife came one day and told me that her husband was with the wife of a innkeeper in Oranienburg and her fortune of 23,000 marks with her. After a few weeks she showed

I believe that he has reconciled with her and also has the ability which he had already given to the innkeeper's wife and returned to her, except for about 1200 marks. I should take her husband back.

I did not do this, but I did send him a Calculation, in which I was not very gentle. The number may Soon after, Mr. Petereit came to see me in my apartment, but was met by a family member at the door rejected. An attempt to speak to me at school failed also. Then one day he approached me on the street and asked with tearful eyes that I would forgive him, because his My wife has forgiven him too. Without me he would have been a lost person, his love and gratitude towards me beyond measure. I naturally demanded in the first place my money. But he said that I had just got his back-established marital peace not at this moment on the He had just given his wife 1200 marks appropriate and cannot at the moment come up with new demands:

IR

He appeared so contrite that I, moved by pity, and gave him the e part of the money even further ftunded. But he immediately gave twenty marks and one hundred marks in Community with his wife a little later. She had, by the way.

out of caution, brought her money to a friend. Before that, fie it to me for safekeeping, which I declined for well-known reasons—I continued to teach him until the day which the catastrophe occurred in the school. Shortly before, he of a French-German and an English-German lexicon. Since he wanted to take the books with him on the road, they had to be pocket-sized However, I knew little about these books and therefore referred him to the teacher Heifeke. But that was just in the days when the gentlemen were making their last attempt. He must now have come into contact with various gentlemen and had been exposed to wonderful influences. Mr. Heifeke had played a peculiar role so far. He was half on my side, half with the opponents. We were aware of the influence of the school inspector, he reported my comments to the opponents. He wanted to become a teacher at a secondary school without secondary school exams. A few days after the disaster, Mr. Petereit asked me in a polite letter to visit him. In this apartment he told me that a senior school official in

I was in his apartment and told him that I was was released from school and would definitely be dismissed. This I heard that Petereit was still getting money from me, and he will show him the way to achieve this. In my He advised me to give him his money. I laughed and I left in silence, but Petereit soon afterwards Royal School Board received several complaints and inquiries about addressed to me regarding his demand. The unheard of low= Petereit has hardly experienced the danger of such a complaint-fe see how he used the name of the Provincial School Board until then has hardly heard of it. The reader will remember that the Royal School Board had given me the urgent advice not to incur any new debts. At the same moment, which the high authority had to decide whether they were of the Berner case, initiate the disciplinary investigation against me wanted, which was more than doubtful, this complaint was utmost importance. It showed the authorities that I had not complied with orders and had robbed a poor official of fhed his money. Even if the untruth later the complaint, the investigation was once a and then more material was found. Whoever is the higher School officials may have been? There can be little doubt about this prevail.

I consider this roguery to be the greatest that has ever been perpetrated on me. I believe that Europe can be North to South without seeing a single person to find someone who, in the most selfless and devoted way,

a"
r

= i = = ma

- 158 -

fpofts such acts of love to a stranger as I have done to Petereit was also deeply impressed by this,
and what promises must be used to this action! Lessons in both languages are given he of course continued from that side, and also the most expensive

Books will be provided to him free of charge after his own written declaration
What tremendous opinion must this Peterreit have of my good heart, since he knows exactly that I shortly before, during actions of which I have the evidence in hands that brought him into very serious difficulties
In view of such unheard-of things as the seduction
But now everything stops because of Peter's most sacred relationships are no longer safe. I now fully understand ftändig that the wife of the politically also very unpopular Rector Vogler to the insane denunciation of her own husband, the wife of the teacher Lampe but in temporary madness
I know of cases where even the brother is against the brother was persecuted. Poor, depraved, German people, that in the name of humanity you are condemning this horrific corruption tolerate, instead of unanimously using your good house rules! One do not object that the first actors are mostly Germans
There have always been weak natures in every age and People, but only the
at least a clear concept. In and of themselves they would not be become villains. The puppets dancing on the stage are Germans, but the invisible leaders are Jews.

Other notification of the growth
the officials.

In the case of Bombe and in my own I could openly talk, because my friend Bombe is dead, and I have that on and for itself so human feeling, to present one's own suffering to the eye of my
To deprive fellow human beings as far as possible, in the interest of the whole overcome. Now that I want to talk about people who furthermore and for the most part still externally upright, I must impose great restraint.

So unwise, with their ever increasing indebtedness to also want to assert one's own political opinion, are yes, only a few. Inwardly they are all angry anti-Semitics, but externally they appear as something completely different. Therefore they have the persecutions which are aimed at a removal from office under not to endure under any circumstances. They will just only sucked dry, gagged on all sides, so that they do not shout and thereby attract general attention, and otherwise they are left alone in their gagged situation. The few, who claim their own political opinion, of course, share my destiny.

For this reason, the teacher Lampe was eliminated. He was a highly qualified teacher, had passed the secondary school exam

– 159 –

and prepared for the rector's exam. In a cheerful mood
He once had a somewhat made a ruthless anti-Semitic remark. Reckless action
A creditor was the first consequence, then he was eliminated in Lyingly, the wall maps were in his classroom.
'The students of the other classes fetched fish in case of need ze cards from here. With some of these girls he had a class of students joked harmlessly and one of them
Hand placed on the shoulder, with his thumb on the chest
After the girl returned to her class= returned, she told this laughingly to the neighbors, the class=
The teacher was disturbed by the chatter and investigated the content of the conversation. Later she spoke to a teacher about villig about this incident, and this, which, as the Berlin always goes like this, the higher views about ea Lampe knew, immediately denounced Mr. Lampe for moral offenses the rector, who immediately reported further, and on the other
Mr. Lampe was suspended from teaching for days. It is even
It is understandable that many people in such cases lose their calm completely loses his consideration. Lampe escaped to America, which seemed to be an admission of guilt. As soon as he was calm After having come to his senses, he returned, conscious of his complete innocence. The prosecutor's investigation that has now been initiated:
The investigation revealed his complete innocence. The investigation that has since been
The disciplinary investigation was carried out by Magistrate Schreiner, who Son of the city councilor Schreiner. Here is a new case that municipal officials exercise the rights of royal authorities. Even Lampe was understandably removed from his position. His wife, due to the previous long-term growth mentally completely shattered, was now systematically worked on so that it was temporarily completely became permanently insane. For this reason, Lampe nor make it possible to settle in any part of the country where one can see through the family relationships so easily, upright Now he is working after striking dock workers in New York, which he did not want to join, the key broken leg, worked as a farmhand for a farmer. Poor There!
[How dare you publicly express your feelings in Berlin?
to express your opinion!

A very special friend of mine, a city teacher, very extraordinarily talented musician, leading singing club in Berlin in the first place and, for example, people like the Field Marshal [Count von Moltke and Count von Hochberg to his [Honorary members, was in the 70s due to the disease his wife in the usual way into usurious debts. The same but were kept within moderate limits, since he was a very sought-after

He earned good money as a music teacher. However, in the middle of the [So he years the antifemific "truth", and this was spied When he was present at the anniversary of Prince Bismarck took part in the famous torchlight procession and sang the songs tours, he immediately received the most shameful threatening letters.

– 160 –

In one of the same, which I myself have read * and in which a Jew signed as Shig Silberstein or similar, was hunted: Ludwig Löwe, who now governs Berlin, will tell you that. ftrouble! They come from office and bread! That is how it is finally came. My friend's debts were paid for by his brother, who almost got into would have fallen into the hands of Zucker and Tietz. One last little Change brought about his downfall. Dieter, the teacher! Holzmann was also obliged, and for whose payment the money falready paid, was handed over to Mrs. Holzmann played. Now remember what I said above about the | The endeavour of the usurers to create artificial criminal cases, especially . to create. I had told my friends from informed of this intention, and the teacher concerned had He had also prepared himself for this. He had contacted the teacher Holzmann and asked him for a loan of, if I am not mistaken, 150 marks, or the right to oblige him to any extent, The latter permission was gladly given, but as my friend had to admit, with a smile on his face. Later Holzmann, although he was never obliged to pay= denounced the person concerned. completely different sinister forces are in action. To denounce the Nat Holzmann wants to learn from the above-mentioned teacher Krüger and fhis Rector Staerk. At the appointments, Holzmann admitted that he granted permission, but only as a joke. In the second hearing, the statement changed again, and in the final meeting, with the revocation of all earlier statements incriminating him. His Jewish friends Zucker and Tietz had persuaded the defendant to approach Mr. Fritz Friedmann as defense counsel. He was sentenced to three sentenced to a month's imprisonment, which His Majesty immediately in pardoned and converted it into a fine of 30 marks. ; Of course, the plaintiff prosecutor had to Because of this fine of 30 marks, the Disciplinary investigation initiated. City Councilor Zelle, who also investigation against Gohr, led the investigation. City Councilor Zelle is not a hard-hearted man at heart. According to Er= settlement of the Gohr case, he told me that that the matter had been horrible to him and that he had therefore tried have to immediately forget everything related to it.

He should also subsequently express his regret to the teacher concerned.

have spoken, but he had no other Teung So ift es fchon, fo it must come! But Mr. City Syndic Zelle will be his bread also taste sweet!

The defendant was released after 24 years of loyal service without Pension released. This genius was, in fact, indeed, many geniuses are keen to create practically inexperienced and childishly harmless
Man with wife and children without bread. |
What would have become of him if he had a woman like Gohr would have had! He was completely desperate, barely able to – 161 –

While he pursued his art according to the highest things, had also found full recognition, even from several American singing societies with the most honorable letters was considered and asked to pay very significant compensation to take over its leadership, he was hit by this blow, which made him, the completely innocent, completely, also with regard to all his other Plans, destroyed.

Honor of a woman who loves her husband in such a state fully supports him, spares him from all accusations and hunger and misery with him. He gradually straightened himself up again, and since he had never appeared in public, he was not such an irreconcilable hatred as Robert Gohr, had, he received a teaching permit, looked for a position at a Berlin private school, withdrew from all politics completely, read the "Lokalanzeiger" at most once, and ekes out his existence like this. When he heard about my plan to
To publish the book, he sent me a moving letter in which to which he implored me not to speak of his experiences, because he could then lose his bread again. Now I know the political opinion of his school principal, but that it is a
I know he is a man of honour. Therefore I do not share your fears.
Nevertheless, I grant his request to the extent that I will not disclose his name
But to leave the case out would be a betrayal of my fatherland.

To collect more material of this kind, I used
I asked my acquaintance in Plötzensee to find out the fate of the imprisoned officials. Unfortunately, I also lost the conviction that the publication of their highly interesting experiences make their further advancement in Berlin impossible
But if it is possible for me to find a Mr. Langheinicke, who has since been released, in Berlin, then I promise
I still have revelations that will icing on the cake of everything that has come before.

One of the highest officials said to me: "Dear friend, the Most of our inmates deserve pity first and foremost.

We cannot get the real hardened criminals here, who live as highly respected people in golden freedom!"

I have to make some special remarks to the police, specially devoted to the criminal police. To put them in chains is the greatest aspiration of the Jews.

Unfortunately, they and their specially trained Agents have succeeded in doing this excellently. It should be an interesting provide statistical material if it were established from the books, how many criminal officials are not in debt to Mr. Parifer. He deals with them in a more solid way, as he never does more than the usual 100%. In return, he naturally expects from them this tribesmen various favors. Had anyone from this something to do with the criminal police, so it was his favorite pressure: "I'll touch it!" Under his countless current and former agents I mention Mr. Klingfpor,

11

– 162 –

who was previously involved in a usury case in which he did not name the people behind the crime and was acquitted by the same court that later also heard the Tietz-Zucker case classically done. Furthermore, I call piece gold, the bomb the final coup de grace. When I published the bombshell articles-light, his interrogation could have provided bad material.
Unfortunately, he was expelled as a foreigner at that very moment and brought across the border, before that he had been left alone
Then he settled in Berlin for years stopped by unannounced and will probably still be here. Also his Father-in-law was an agent of Mr. Pariser, also a Mr.
Kadura, through whom Mr. Parišer once, shortly after the ver-publication of the bombshell articles, a delicious trap was laid.
But Mr. Kadura was so clumsy that the precious Evidence remained in my hands. Other agents were Messrs. Conrad Troffin, Zodek, von Graewenitz, Mackiolzeck, Rudolf Boldes. The latter, a former police officer, thought at the time when Detective Inspector Schwerin was in charge of the police President of Madai, as well as many high-ranking police officers for alleged crimes, in particular alleged bribery by denounced the Jews and Boldes, Aron Meyer and others as witnesses had indicated, considered it appropriate to leave the scene in good time to disappear. Then he became a usury agent for Parisians, Walter Ehrlich's houses (fehe Jew and craftsman). Now De-
He owns a thriving wine shop and is Duke of Anhalt
Purveyor to the Court, and many police officers make their way to Mr.
Parisians through his shop, where they also stick
He goes to the police administration offices almost every day in and out. I myself have been drinking wine for years when I was ill. from Mr. Boles and also often cigars. I was allowed but hope to learn a lot there. In this hope, I was not mistaken either. Of course, the customers of Mr. Boldes perfect anti-Semitism, and against the anti-Semitic out-ments that are made in his premises are the lectures at-tifemifc leader fvery harmless. | >

But publicly, at elections, at meetings against the Raise a protest against anti-Semitism, yes, farmer – that is quite something different. Bread tastes sweet, and in Berlin there is only Jewish Bread. I do not hate all these people, I do not despise them, but I envy them that their character allows them to act like this

If I had been able to, my little Benno, whose picture with the expressions of childlike trust looking down on me= fee, still alive. Through Mr. Boldes I also learned: early on something of the Kaduraš trap, as he also spotted my matter, put it into a usable form and- fuffifcienft place. I want to fay this to his honor but say: The goods he delivers are good, real and price-worthy worth it. Even easier game than with the at least grated Criminal investigators have been assigned to the police lieutenants. These, Most of the people who enter are extremely harmless, but are usually caught in the first weeks, which is of course much easier, since the gentlemen bring some debts with them from their military service. However, they usually do not have the resilience of the other officers about their terrible situation. Police Lieutenant Ebers shot himself in the Tiergarten, police lieutenant von Briesen escaped to America, police lieutenant Hintze disappeared without a trace. About half a dozen others who suddenly died– and a dozen others who are now in Berlin

– 163 –

I do not want to name anyone who is looking for bread elsewhere. A former Until recently, one could also become a police captain still today, as a servant at the corner of Jüden- and Stralauer- street. But let us close this chapter altogether.

The reader will now no longer find it so incomprehensible, when I say that the majority of all officials, ministers, Privy Councillors, Chief Presidents, Public Prosecutors, Court Counsellor and Judges, Lawyers down to the night watchman irretrievably in Jewish hands languish, mostly in the greatest secrecy. I will devote this book Yes, let more follow and do not rest until Germany fine house rules, and there will still be some Find opportunities to present new examples.

Perhaps some readers will overcome their shyness and share with me also some experiences with me.

a

How about it, Mr. Justice Minister a. D. von Friedberg? You
As a former Minister of Justice, I could certainly provide the material another six books, especially about the relationships some of your specialist colleagues. You too, Mr. von Madai, as a former Police President of Berlin, could you please give me some time in your spare time certainly create as much material as I can use to Jewish question to be solved. I would have loved to pe also provides information about the case of Bleichröder-Kroner, Friedländer, kannheimer, especially about how it was possible that two daughters of a commercial councillor Kahnheim, conceived in adultery, whose father defrauded the state of millions and was prison, could be called upon to participate in the victory-entry in 1871 the Kaiser Wilhelm on behalf of the city of Berlin, yes the whole German people. One of these daughters has flater even served as a model for the statue of Germania in Moabit. You yourself then met Kaiser Wilhelm at the unveiling ceremony days of the monument to the family, which was supported by the Comité was sensibly not invited.

i

164

8. Jew and small business owner.

The term "shopkeeper" in England refers to a small retailer.
you find a dealer with all kinds of goods who only sells directly to which sells to consumers, in contrast to the wholesaler who sells to.

does not deal directly with consumers. In ordinary life

T FE LI y}

in sober and drunken state and accordingly treat it properly for his own purposes. Many a Jew who has his has earned his first spurs, is in Berlin or elsewhere now

The Jew completely controls the clothing business. constantly. Here he is in his element. Any German competition. His only aim is to eradicate them. No Jew takes Rebellion, a competitor right next to a German business= to open a business. And how is the competition now! The Jew, either wealthy himself or with capable Tribal comrades in the background, sold notoriously long time without any benefit. How long the German, who now of course is nothing sold, can withstand this roughly, is out beforehand= been spied on. on the German business in this way starved, the Jew often acquires it through accomplices and.

– 165 –

Villa. Because recently the audience in the sales under Jewish company has found a hair, Yes, they are now looking for ruined German businessmen whose contract has not yet expired, to move their business premises to the Duration of their contract against payment of rent to the Jews In return, they also grant them the right to to continue running their company until the contract expires, paid a special small compensation. The audience is less suspicious here and is sheared twice. If possible, only German saleswomen are employed. To illustrate these sales, we would like to use the following example– At the Fischerbrücke No. 3 there was until the demolition of the house the cleaning business of Mrs. Böseroth. The woman was forced to sell their inventory. The Jew Guth, who had been involved in sales for a long time, learned about it and was willing to take over the entire inventory. During the inventory, the total value was determined according to According to Guth's own statement, the amount was well over 900 marks. Which circumstances put Mrs. Böseroth in a difficult position I do not know, but Mr. Guth negotiated the entire Stock of goods for 90 marks, say ninety marks. These were to Kaiser Wilhelmstraße No. 19, where they were with all the goods bought together under similar conditions for export– for sale. When my informant visited the store, He entered into a conversation with the Jew, whereby the latter stated that he only buys half–stolen goods. He showed him some kid gloves and said: “These gloves Shoes cost 14–18 marks per dozen in any real shop,

–ü rr 2222: –~ – —

– 166 –

I, on the other hand, pay a maximum of 3–4 marks, whereby I am still At my request, a young lady was later prompted to ask about the selling price of the gloves. As
The highest price per pair was 1.25 marks, only a few
The same person wanted to charge 75 cents for a couple of defective ones. He trades also with a profit of 400 pCt. How would a German Small business owner or master craftsman must pay for this
But we find such and similar sales in all City areas. On the way from Alexanderplatz through the Münz-, Weinmeister-, Rofenthaler, Brunnenstraße to Invaliden-
A few weeks ago, in November 1889, I counted no less than 27 sales, which now, in early December, have increased to over 40:
Will even half of the same A la Guth operated, several hundred German businessmen for their long-awaited Christmas income, and thereby to their downfall.
A speciality of the Jews is also the acquisition.
the markets in the small towns. The farmers and their servants and maids often sell the most worthless goods at high prices:
attached, especially since the market visitors are often already on the.
Market streets in the most suitable mood for the Jews
Against the Jewish flow of speech, the incessant shouting.
and noise can the German craftsman, who with his self-goods produced by the company to market.
Owners of the famous show booths with their cannibals,
giant women, athletes, torture and torture instruments, panoramas with their sensual advertisements and extra cabinets, to which only Men have access, find 90 percent Jews.

In recent times, Jewish youths, especially the
On Sundays, when the workers still have their weekly wages, in my neighborhood from house to house, from door to door.
They carry all kinds of fabrics and delicately indicate that.
they were not acquired in real terms and therefore sold very cheaply.
buy. Of course, in an emergency they would legitimize timize and can prove the real acquisition, but with jos
Some people are attracted to these sayings and are prone to quick-

– 167 –

Up. A year ago, flannel shirts were stolen by a Jewish Peddler offered the shirts under the statement that he must sell at any price, as he only recently came out of the crane had been released from home and now had to raise money for the trip, to get to his family in Hamburg. This maneuver
He still operates it now and may now have thousands of his sold flannel shirts.

To further ruin the small business owner and trade
The worker is carried by the second-hand dealers and second-hand dealers, who mostly come

Jews contribute a lot. Whoever sells to them is usually in ditterer Not. The prices paid here are the value of the object in no proportion.

I know of a very specific case where for an almost brand new winter coat, which had cost 54 marks, from Several second-hand dealers only offered 3 marks. In this
In this type of business, thieves also find their best customers.
The second-hand dealer brings the items acquired in this way into the dwelling a third, innocent person, and there is a mass supply available, then these stolen goods are transported by Jewish agents to Russia. The pawnshops and loan offices are almost all in Jewish hands. From these houses, at the same time, the forbidden lottery tickets were brought to the people. The most modern are currently the large Jewish installment deals. These among the small officials, craftsmen and workers cause the most limitless devastation. These businesses are shooting like mushrooms from the earth and sometimes have thirty or more Rooms filled with goods, e.g. the installment business of Cohn Gebrüder in the Chausseestraße with its branch stores in other parts of the city. Here you can find everything imaginable, from the Room furnishings down to the smallest item of clothing. Such Installment business floods with their agents not only the city of Berlin and its surroundings, but also the whole of Germany Reich. Some of them are world-wide businesses that are active in all European capital cities have their branches. They contribute greatly to the hatred against everything German, of which we so often see examples to preserve, to multiply.

The agents who, with their oratory skills, sold the goods to will receive a commission of 15 pCt. A regulator, which costs 17 marks to purchase, is 45 marks. Since only a small deposit is required, fare the little people who are completely taken aback by the agent's flow of speech.
been stunned, only too inclined to buy the goods that are for
They may be pleasant, but not absolutely necessary.
By purchasing, they lay the foundation for their later ruin, for how little most of them can do without, even with quite normal circumstances, we have in the chapter "Jew and Workers" see If young people enter into marriage not saved enough to buy beds and furniture,

– 168 –

for the marriage will be an unhappy one under all circumstances.
long-term transactions are to blame for the premature conclusion
many marriages that begin with debt and end in misery.

Come through births and deaths, illness and Unemployment difficult times in which the repayment is not possible—
can follow, the dealer is through a very sophisticated contract, but in the last few years only after—initiating legal action, entitled to take back the delivered goods without to give back the amount paid so far. When in 1871 in When the Commune uprising took place in Paris, it was mainly substantially such a large following because most Parisians got into debt during the siege and had to pay rent.
payment. The amounts retained for such a long time Changes of small businessmen should just be presented
The hope of eliminating these next worries is fading.
led the Parisians to revolt much more than their general Location.

This is exactly how it is in Germany. The millions of quite oppressive debts of the workers in the installment loans drive them to social democracy, which gives them the hope of a imminent change in the circumstances, from where the debts no longer need to be paid.

Collecting the already half-paid items that are in the
As a rule, they are treated very carefully, always cause misfortune.
empty apartment no longer offers the worker a comfortable home, and he drinks away his discontent in the distillation. Here he is soon a regular guest, and often he abandons his wife and child altogether.

What terrible misery these installment deals cause can be seen from an article in the Berlin Lokal—Anzeiger, which certainly no one accuses of anti-Semitic tendencies
We will reproduce excerpts from them here.

The so-called furniture rental contract.

At each of the 38 departments of the District Court I Berlin
Three days of meetings are held each week. In each session
On average, thirty cases are pending for trial and Among them there are always two or three processes whose subject a loan agreement is formed.

This means that approximately seven to ten percent of all pending
Processes called loan contract processes.

Since approximately 75,000 cases are brought in the ordinary course of proceedings are brought before the District Court 1 Berlin,
The annual figure for the cases brought to the attention of this Court is following loan contracts at least 19-096. 5250 (% om Nerd
| If we now proceed from the experience that under hundred loan contracts, a maximum of five causes for disputes

— m. —

give, one comes to the reasonable assumption that every year
In Berlin, about 200,000 loan contracts were concluded, which The figure is rather too low than too high, since those borrowers contract processes, the object of which is more than 300 marks, at the state Court I. and in the calculation here except What circumstances have now led to this kind of
of contracts such enormous distribution?

The answer is a chapter in the history of our social development. |

The loan contract is a child of modern times. Capital poverty and lack of credit on the one hand, increased business sense on the other feits are his parents!

We hereby submit a furniture rental contract, as it was against is currently common practice in almost all businesses of this type.

FI

S d.

It leases the business Cohn u. Co. to Mr. (Mrs.)

bene . the following items:

(follows the directory)

in the total value of . . . marks under the following conditions:

5.9,

Tenant who acknowledges that all items are new and in good condition, as well as the value stated above—meffen, are handed over, undertakes to keep them in good condition and for any damage that occurs during the rental period—
time to the same, including the transport costs and back alone. Is the fault of the tenant one or another piece of the rented items is lost, Tenant shall reimburse the full value of such as in the above directory is specified.

If the tenant is deprived of the rented property by execution—fts are seized, he undertakes to inform the landlord of this to report immediately and to all through an intervention process to reimburse the costs incurred. Failure to comply with this provision brings about the immediate termination of this contract in accordance with the S 3 after itself.

S 3.

Tenant has today a deposit (down payment) of Mark paid and obligated to pay for the rental use on the first of each Monthly (weekly) . . . Mark to be paid in advance. Tenant gives the landlord the right if the rent is not paid on time is paid, all rented items immediately without prior-

To withdraw the termination and legal action.

For this purpose, the tenant hereby expressly the authority to travel at any time of the day with as many of his

People, as he needs to transport the things, in the apartment of the tenant and to stay there for as long as

- 10 -

other than the taking over and loading of the rented property-

Tenant hereby expressly declares that this procedure of the landlord a violation of his house-

law or any other criminal act

In addition, the deposit paid will be forfeited and must.

Tenants who may have outstanding rent until the day of the return-

Pay immediately upon receipt of the items.

§ 4.

Tenant may not rent any property under penalty of fraud-

seize or sell without the written consent of the landlord,

this apartment; he has removed every apartment change must be notified to the landlord eight days in advance and the.

to obtain approval.

§ 5.

The duration of this loan contract is agreed for a long period until the rental payments actually made pursuant to Section 3 are

Addition of the deposit the amount specified in § 1 of

. . . Mark. If the rent payments are regular and are complete, the landlord undertakes to.

to transfer the rented items to the tenant as property

and the paid rent and the deposit as purchase price to accept.

§ 6

The monthly (weekly) installment payments of

.. Marks are collected by the landlord's messenger and find

Payments only against vouchers, which are signed by the tenant and bearing the company stamp, is valid.

| S 7.

Both parties expressly acknowledge that this contract in all points are concluded as intended and agreed and therefore the opponents have the same as a sign their full approval by their own signature.

Berlin, Del... .. kk.

Landlord: Cohn u. Co. Tenant: Müller.
Apartment ggg;

The temptation to pawn things in case of need, is always a very big one. After all, every person takes part in the fittest need, help wherever he can find it. One carries oneself with the hope of redeeming the items soon, but the MP-payments for them. However, this is often impossible, and then the business will report the the public prosecutor's office. Newspaper readers are repeatedly Mass convictions of this kind have been noticed. In Plötzensee= the sense of honour is often buried. – |

– 171 –

On major Jewish holidays, when most Jews

close their businesses, the baptized ones obviously cannot, the reader can form an opinion about how few German businesses are still in existence. Of these few, the most of them are heading for certain ruin. The German fatherland has let his German merchant sink to a low point. Will he be able to straighten up?

9. Jew and wholesale trade.

The actual wholesaler, the French marchand, is not concerned with the sale of goods to consumers. He buys them in bulk and sells them again to the Small merchant. In the Middle Ages such a merchant was an important man. His warehouses were unmissable, his trade stretched far into the distance. The Hanseatic League was essentially a union of merchants. They formed in the cities the so-called families or patricians, who were associated with the guilds because of the regiment in the city were often in dispute. In Hamburg and Bremen, these sexes have been preserved and do not tolerate Intruder. There alone can one still find a solid German empire-tum, to which one should not approach with secret anger, but with respect, yes, looks at it with pride. But where else can you find the old Germans?

honorable merchant? The changed ways of the.

World trade has depressed them, the Thirty Years' War has swept away, and what was left was destroyed by the Jews Where the defiant aa lived, the Rykes and how tte whatever it may be called, at Molkenmarkt and the surrounding area, a now Nathan, Jakoby, Schlefinger, Jakobfohn, Simon, wage 2

Who would not be seized by melancholy when they see the old houses there, almost every one of which has a historical significance and is now covered with Jewish company signs? The The majority of wholesale trade is currently in the hands of

Jews, for example the grain and wool trade, the trade in oilseeds, furs, leather, flax, hemp, spirits, cloth, manufactured goods all kinds, clothing materials, raw metals, coffee, butter, eggs, Flour, bacon, furniture and upholstery goods 2c.

So far these articles, which are often ignored by the people, can be dispensed with, have become stock exchange items, form They became a plaything for Jewish speculation, and the indispensable

FK vehi.

The people are being denied their most basic needs in a shameful manner.

expensive, while the producer is poorly paid.

The grain tariffs put a stop to Jewish speculation

==

bridle than throwing large masses of grain back and forth from

from one country to another was made very difficult, and a certain state stability came into the business. Therefore, the people are cheering against it. to incite them, as if the import of grain

- 12 -

imposed a tariff on the price formation of even remotely such flow than the speculative maneuvers of the grain Jews. The state should under no circumstances tolerate that the main food-means of the people becomes a plaything, therefore, all time affairs, the not based on real acceptance, simply prohibit it. Whoever not yet aware of the sudden rise in coffee prices in previous years. The households of even better-off people were This was only due to the speculative buying up of the Coffee stocks are to blame, which of course this time is bad news for the speculators bore fruit. But if the speculation had been successful, then coffee prices would have risen even more, and the people Millions have been taken away. The cattle trade and horses= trade has gradually come more and more into Jewish hands. all is the direct connection between producers and consumers cut up, and both are exploited. That among the Jewish wholesalers also some quite honorable people be=find, should not be denied. In the book: Illa von the Recknitz by Carl Jenzen gekerfeburg will be among all the good-for-nothing Jewish scoundrels, there was also an honorable Jew who large Jewish horse dealer Elkan (allegedly from Hamburg) The same has a newspaper editor who, in the fight against the government has allowed riots and is punished severely sentenced, to escape. The editor had protested against his written from my own views, prompted by a very beautiful Jewish singer. Elkan found this outrageous and saved the editor. The thought that the Jew must not let his champions down and therefore Mr. Jenzen did not come to accept them. But what we about the way Mr. Elkan purchases horses cannot possibly arouse our sympathy. Not many Germans will manage something like this. The House of Gerfon, the Wholesale and retail trade at the same time will certainly be considered as constantly viewed, and the highest persons cover their be= Here in Berlin the Russian newspaper has been published for many years=

ronin N. She bought a pair of genuine gold from this company—beetle shoes for the price of Mk. 13, the next day the—fame, since the lady had stepped in wet, unusable, since the Sole simply fell off. The lady sent it to the shoemaker—master St., who had to state that the shoes could not be repaired were because the sole was simply glued on and the purchased Gold beetle leather was nothing more than varnished canvas. Such Of course, no Berlin shoemaker is allowed to sell this product. The genuine gold beetle shoes cost 17 marks, the very fine Mr. Gerfon takes only 12 to 13 marks, and the fine, solvent audience. This and the previous A separate book will be devoted to this chapter.

What the German merchant can expect from the Jews, shows us an example from the reign of Frederick II. The Merchant Gotzkowsky, marchand patriot, as the king liked him who, among other things, also designed the porcelain

– 173 –

manufactory, which is still known today as the Royal Porcelain factory, had invested his entire person and his fortune, in order to protect the Berliners during the conquest of Berlin by the Russians, especially the Jewish merchant Ephraim, from terrible dangers. This Ephraim later left no stone unturned, to overthrow Gotzkowsky.

By minting counterfeit Polish and Prussian coins, the so-called Ephraimites, from whom the people hunted: Won Beautiful on the outside, terrible on the inside, Friedrich on the outside, Ephraim, he tried to remedy the king's terrible financial difficulties, and he succeeded in temporarily gaining the king's confidence—Through the most useless intrigues he brought the patriotic sacrifices, Gotzkowsky was deeply shaken and then slandered him to such an extent before the king that Frederick no help was given. Gotzkowsky perished. His porcelain factory became royal property.

Years ago, when the then owner of the cloth factory of Heffel am Grünen Weg, Mr. Ehrenfried Heffel, open to the national economic policy, he was supported by the Jews. Mair boycotted. Sales fell by almost one Million.

Where is political freedom?

But this remedy is certainly effective, and only the general Rebellion against Judaism can bring legal relief.

At present, almost the entire, by the way thoroughly anti-
The femiftically minded German merchant class was completely intimidated.
What else is going on in the Jewish wholesale trade may be explained by the following Example: Years ago, the Samter and Rosenfeld's leather wholesale business. Each partner deposited 30,000 marks. Later, a dispute arose between the same fear that even leads to public, physical discord (Perhaps the interested reader is already beginning to (Remember.) The scandal was so big that the police were called One boss threw his partner out of the
After the statutory deadline had passed, in to whom the thrown-out person was still liable for the business debts, The sole owner of the business failed. Some goods are still have crossed the fence. The previous partner, and the bankrupt partner joined him as a house servant. Then the other one failed, and now the roles were swapped again, the previous boss now became house
It would be difficult to determine how many tanners were this manipulation was a cover-up.
Now both gentlemen are again owners of the company, of course very rich, and their company is now fine. Fights now need not to be put in the spotlight anymore. Whether one of the gentlemen now I have not been able to determine whether he is already a commercial councillor.

— .; ——— him

— 174 —

10. Jew, nobility and officer.

Regarding the nobility, Germany is an exception position. When the migration of peoples ended after almost 200 years Battle had ended with the defeat of the Romans, dominated Ermanian peoples throughout Europe with the exception of the East. Everywhere

They were the minority, but as conquerors they had a large part of the land. In the emerging
In the feudal system, their leader was considered the actual owner, the great
He granted tracts of land to his subordinate leaders for hereditary use.
They divided their fiefdom further and handed over the individual pieces their subordinates as well. The former formed the high, the latter the lower nobility. The mass of the original inhabitants, | which had retained most of the land, gradually became part of the higher and lower nobility as well feudal relationship. Each feudal lord demanded from his fiefcarriers of certain services, primarily military service, then

gradually increasing taxes, finally the lower nobility demanded from the peasants also certain personal services. The

The victorious Germans were superior to the defeated peoples in terms of education and refined way of life, adopted from them many customs |

And customs, and from the language of the Germans, the former victoriously invading Romans and the indigenous population formed with time a completely new language. But a mixture of Peoples were prevented by strict laws. The German nobility flooded the indigenous population, although he shared the same language he spoke, opposite. Through the many wars of the 16th, 17th and 18th century, in which the entire nobility participated,

but he fell into debt and became subject to Jewish exploitation.

High stakes, here and there also an exaggerated lifestyle contributed greatly to the indebtedness of the nobility. As a result, the-same fine freedom, fine resilience, and was forced to peasants more and more oppressed. In France, whose nobility mainly as a result of the wars of Louis XIV and the lavish life at the court of Louis XV was the most indebted,

The oppression of the peasants increased to such an extent that finally in 1789 the Revolution broke out. Its terrible extent was given to the same not by the Paris uprisings, which under normal circumstances

would have been easy to suppress, but by the general

Uprising of the Gauls against the Germanic tribes. The Germanic

The princely house was swept away. Whoever fled from the totally and as a result the Germans who had been disgraced were not able to escape, was killed. It was a death struggle between two peoples where victory could not be in doubt. The actual Bloodsuckers, the Jews, whose pressure the people only indirectly, through the hands of the nobility, remained not only lost-favoured, but were the only winners. Until then, they had | only exploited the nobility, now the whole people joined them available. Here they have worked so thoroughly, that half of France is now in their hands. Anyone who

The Judaized France, German by A. Gardon, Berlin at Deubner. This Frenchman has the correct understanding of the time= history has achieved an infinite amount. This work will be the basis for later Historians understand the upcoming acts of world history learn. We will come back to this in more detail.

In Poland, the formation of the nobility took place at a time when we do not have any reasonably reliable information. But the Polish nobility was very different from the ordinary Poles. The first glance shows what the tribe is. In Germany alone the situation is different. The German nobility is the flesh of our flesh and blood of our blood. Outstanding ability=ity in war and peace have already given rise to the nobility in ancient times=which later expanded in many ways. The possession of a horse at the time of the emerging knighthood, nor later princely favor or wealth have, in addition to real advantages, created the newer nobility. The great privileges of the nobility in non-German countries have in the course of history also caused the German nobility to strive for greater rights, the feven though much good has been achieved, it is unsustainable and proved incompatible with the German character. Their elimination became necessary, and the Prussian rulers have Privileges were systematically restricted more and more until the Baron von Stein and the newer legislation remove any trace of a legal Eliminated favoritism, and rightly so. :

Nevertheless, the German nobility, by virtue of its character, his education, especially because of his selfless devotion to the State interests occupy a highly significant position, and this must remain with him under all circumstances. They are not Rights, but only duties, which thereby accrue to him in the state inkereffe imposed and also borne willingly. No country of World has a nobility that currently equates with the German nobility could be measured by selfless devotion to the fatherland. Mean= the possession of the same is, however, only very rarely to be found The Prussian nobility under Frederick II, Frederick William IV., Wilhelm J. himself with everything he owned for the father= land. Several families, e.g. the family Kleist, Schwerin, are in the Seven Years' War over 40 members fallen, and it was similar in the other wars. Many families have been completely eradicated by the wars. Should the Germans their nobility want to forget that? The Jewish press has been doing this for many years the most convulsive efforts between nobility and people to create an artificial contrast that does not exist anywhere. Should in reality someone who believes that the nobility is the enemy fuch could restore old privileges? Has it already Has anyone seen such a Junker as the Jewish newspapers describe him? daily to their readers? Certainly nobody, but everyone believes that the other has seen him! The old supremacy is perished from his own old age, was incidentally current power of the Jews in relation to the molehill to the Blocksberg.

The relationship between the soldier and his noble officer. That the military discipline in peace no friendship can stand, will be clear to every reasonable person= be understandable. But who has known an officer in war learned, who does not, as soon as higher interests do not prohibit it, every would have been ready at any moment to give his life for the least of his subordinates? Who would have used a German soldier who would have thought for even a moment about to put his officer's life in the trench?

Much has been said about the reasons for the decisive victories
Germany thought about the most warlike peoples in the world and they in the better leadership, discipline, higher education education of the individual man. Certainly these are all factors that contributed to the victory. But that is actually
The secret lies in the relationship of the officer to his soldiers, which is quite unique and cannot be imitated
How many attempts have the Jewish papers made,
to destroy this beautiful relationship too!

Who alone is it that has created in the people the absurd idea awakened, as if the nobility were striving for an increase of its rights, which the free German man cannot tolerate? Who nourishes the nobility's concern about revolutionary tendencies in the broad sections of the population?

Only Judaism with its almighty press.

= –

This alone finds its benefit and its joy in discord=
ftiffen and understands this masterfully.

Lost are the nobility, citizens, farmers, workers, officials,
Don't they finally know the common enemy and think about collective defense, the nobility will be destroyed the quickest
In this, since it has been relatively moderately free and independent of the most serious external worries could live, the German national virtues and national weaknesses developed in the purest way. The Jew has developed it with great skill understood how to use both the good and the bad sides, to acquire the property of the nobility and to raise a family to enslave others. Judaism does not yet seem to have reached the time to consider it to have come, but if it pleased him, Today three quarters of our noble families are leaving their property. With the unfortunate German trustfulness, with the tendency especially in the company of friends all selfishness to forget, finds the Jew, who is waiting for his time understands, quite easily the opportunity to make his first hooks Since agriculture, which the nobility had passion, which has been unproductive for many years, fo the Jew has found an even better field of work. The annoying gambling addiction and the senseless, but unfortunately widespread View that the higher status leads to a correspondingly higher wande oblige, have also incurred a lot of debt. Has the Jew a Once he has found a stopping point, he does not rest until he has reached the last Mark in his pocket. But there are many families who

=

=. 177 =

this relationship is unapproachable and their relationships in pattern maintained in a certain order. They are approached in a different way. It is the honorary duty of the nobility to elevate all its sons, as far as they are useful and are not indispensable for the management of the property, the officer rank, and this honorary duty can be fulfilled by the father country will not relieve him in the foreseeable future, since the wealthy Citizens of this class, which demands such heavy material sacrifices, without any corresponding material compensation being provided in prospect, not very often. The wealthy The German middle class is also in decline, and Jewish officers, the fatherland has, despite all enslavement ft yet want to entrust his children. The fatherland but is not in a position to fully grant his officers what they consider from their educational point of view and with regard to the restrictions that they impose on themselves for the sake of their professional honor must, necessarily use. Parents must therefore a certain subsidy. This could, however, be with effort, in most cases well procured, if only the young, inexperienced man who has just escaped the strict school discipline has run and is just beginning to experience greater freedom would not be exposed to other terrible dangers. Let us put ourselves in his position. His soul is still full of ideals. Friendship, devotion to his duties, but also to his comrades, fill it. In the circle of these he has fometime, perhaps, he might be tempted to spend more than he

He has thereby committed an injustice, and the natural punishment for enduring the hardest deprivations until the onset of his rule
We heartily wish him a moderate income. But this
At this point the Jew takes off. He pulls him, the completely Inexperienced, into his nets, and if he does not discover himself in time his relatives, the ruin takes its terrible Run. It is bad that the annoying gambling addiction is also quite often brings about conditions that open the door to the Jews.
How often has it been preached to the Germans over the course of two millennia
It has been discovered that playing for amounts that one cannot afford can, is a disgusting vice, and that playing for insignificant
Sums whose loss can at best be borne, just as much Enjoyment. Unfortunately, nothing helps. Not the game in and of itself it is not the hope of profit, but the dangerous of the car, which attracts with magic. So As long as the player does not fully realize that he is not Money and property, but the heart and soul of his people, he lets not from the high stakes, and often not even then. Some would be taught by experience, but to collect the
He has no time for experience. He falls for the Jews, Judt fiğ flater by his 1 still later by his relatives save, drags them all to ruin without benefiting themselves. How much former German officers were scattered throughout the world. Some have worked their way up, some are abroad Waiters, porters, clerks, and finally 12

– 178 –

found an acceptable bread. Most of them are, because their education which was only tailored to one class, perished.

I know a cab driver in Berlin who used to Officer was, as well as a servant, Albrecht von Rüdiger, who formerly also belonged to the officer class. The stricter the
The more superiors deal with debts, the better for the Jew.
However, in most cases a falling officer immediately moves Half a dozen comrades went with them to their doom. They have rock-solid trust in his honesty, surety bonds– fcribed. He is honest, of course, but what can he do if he has nothing left, is all honesty of any use?

How terribly deeply indebted the officer class is, I have the above-mentioned Mr. Siegbert Cohn, who in his time probably one of the most initiated and during his travels through the various garrison towns in order to understand the conditions and has gained a lot of experience in controlling agents.
He carried whole packages of officer's certificates of honor with him.

Exhibition of the same is strictly forbidden, and an officer who fhowever, he was persuaded to exhibit such a thing, is also fad about how an official who pledges receipts, false
Bill of exchange given or in the manner described above in a Cafe has let it catch. But now, what with time un-becomes applicable, the written word of honor is broken, fhe is lost forever. Such a certificate of honor from a former officer who can no longer be harmed by it,
I want to print here.

I hereby declare on my word of honour that I bill of exchange accepted by me for 1800 marks, written eighteen-hundred, due on time.

OTe a IS, . signed by Schlippenbach.

This bill of exchange originally had 300 marks with 25 percent deduction was made. Nock significant interest payment it had gradually increased to 1800 marks. Mr. Cohn explained very dryly: "Whether the boy gets 50 marks more or less are set, it doesn't matter!" Recently I have been told by informed the most knowledgeable person that this Mr. von Schlippenbach was one of our most capable General Staff officers.
On August 14, 1870, he received a ferious wound. He continued to fight. Late in the afternoon he was wounded for the second time. Nevertheless, he remained in the fighting= line. Only late in the evening did a third bullet strike him lifeless.
He was carried from the battlefield for dead, but recovered
Since then, he has been known throughout the General Staff as "the immortal". Yes, against the honest French bullets he was immortal, but not against the malice of the Jews, for whose possession and peace he had fought for. He is said to have London have found their end. Have parents or relatives everything is given up for rescue, then the lost one disappears

- 179 -

as quietly as possible. Just don't make a fuss, that is their Main concern, rather forego punishment of the crooks who child raised with effort and care, whom she so eagerly gave to her father= land, on which the father's eye often looked with pride rested, which the mother often caressed, ruined have. False shame is the best protective cloak of the Jews
-has always been the case. If all the victims had come forward openly, then much misfortune would have been prevented. Some of the indebted Officers finally try to save themselves through a rich marriage and are ultimately forced to marry a rich Jewish woman God forgive them! But if the nobility have sunk so low that such connections are the norm were to be, then of course the other estates would have to seek help. The nobility would then become an ally of the worst "Tormentor of the Fatherland. That this alliance between Jew and nobility is evidently growing, unfortunately, must be considered to be a fixed one. Recently married a German officer with the daughter of Mr. von Bleichröder, who Things are said to have not gone well. The Jewish banker Hainauer has married two daughters to German nobles. Major von Goldammer married a rich Jewish woman, who received a million as a dowry. For less, he explained Lord, he would not let himself be dragged to the stable.

Even nobles of Jewish descent no longer belong more about the rarities. Apart from the Baron von Cohn, Baron von Hirsch, von Goldschmidt, von Rothschild, von Bleichröder, von Oppenheim, von Mendelssohn, we also find carriers of Names of old noble families who are of Jewish descent. Who would believe this, for example, in the case of a branch of the Treskow family: A Jew Trefekow had a large army in the wars of liberation= deliveries and was of course in this business with ease= ity a rich man, while the troops in front are fighting for the fatherland splattered their blood. He was named von Treskow (not ck) and, what is most astonishing, also the Tresckow coat of arms.

Many officers hold out for many years despite their debts, but is often at an advanced age and as a colonel or general still forced to reach for the revolver. Gablenz, the winner von Oeversee and Trautenau, had long since reached the highest military climbed the step when he reached for his pistol. The colonel of the Zittau garrisoning regiment had two adult, uncared-for daughters, when he had to shoot himself because of his debts. With what feeling He may have taken the gun in his hand! Recently he= A Lieutenant von Sydow and a Lieutenant von Holtzendorf, from the 64th Regiment in Prenzlau, and in Metz Recently a number of officers were shot, who AdmtlidG were destroyed by a single Jew.

When old Wrangel saw that his only son was not more help was possible, he sent him the pistols himself, with which the= -who actually shot himself. A field marshal who won great honours in the last war and was also mentioned much later declared to his son that he himself was with His Majesty the must apply for dismissal, because an indebted officer could

12*

- 180 -

His Majesty cannot use it! The value of the army must be such guilt necessarily suffer, because an officer who always is worried, is constantly threatened and rushed, must finally Unfortunately, it is the most capable and talented who suffer from tension damage. Officers who perish in this way. The surplus of venom gave often pushes egoism, the interest in external well-being, The army administration would deserve thanks if it would collect material about it and make it public. How far we have come with the eternal cover-up is in front of my eyes. I am assured by the most competent source that. 0 % of all officers are in debt. That in other countries perhaps even worse than ours, as evidenced by usury-trial in Vienna against the Jew Ifidor Selinger. He has hundreds of pupils of the military educational institution perished judged or at least planted the seed of destruction in them, which they then later became officers. Unspeakable misery has been caused by created it, countless old noble and bourgeois families have sold her property to save her sons, but in vain- An indescribable movement went through the whole court-faal, as a witness, a venerable, grey-headed gentleman, on Selinger approached him and said with a moved voice and tearful eyes: "It is certain that the murderer of my son will find you!" The guilt sum of Lieutenant Franz Neugebauer, who also shot, had risen in a very short time from 300 to 3500 guilders-grow. A guilder was found in his possession. The He had sold all the fittings and gold braid to second-hand dealers or sold. The usurer received 6 years in prison, which he served at the humane Austrian prison laws, since he has the right to can make it quite pleasant. His relatives naturally continued this thriving business while he was in prison who is in charge of the matter.

11. The Jew and the princes and powerful men.

In general, the Jew in a strong monarchy the least effort, its ultimate goal, the complete control of the people He will therefore fight it under all circumstances, openly or secretly, depending on the situation. However, as long as this is not accessible, he will leave no stone unturned to Monarch in his power, be it through money, be it by exploiting his weaknesses.

As was the case in France from Louis the Pious onwards, under the great Frankish Empire of Charlemagne was in decline against Europe, until the last French king, Louis XVI. i.e. during a millennium, shows us Drumont in his above-mentioned work with great clarity.

In the enslaved princes the Jews at all times found “ against the anger of the shamelessly exploited people.

This is exactly what happened in Poland. King Casimir the Jews those rights which they had enjoyed over the centuries to separate this country from the ranks of the independent States. Kazimir was prompted to do this by his beautiful and extremely clever Jewish lover Esther.

How far the influence of the Jews reached in Poland, which in Middle Ages to all Jews expelled from France, Germany, etc.
a ze opened, is best proven by the following circumstance: When the voivodes could not agree on a king's election, Rabbi Schäul Wahl was elected with all the royal rights and left it to him to later choose a king after to appoint at one's own discretion.

France expelled its 800,000 Jews in the Middle Ages into several persecutions. They found shelter in Germany, especially on the Rhine, then also in Poland. When it the Jews were rid of, it continued to rise. Germany, where the Jews were more numerous, began to decline, and Poland, which was full=
The empire that had been Judaized gradually collapsed.
France increasingly welcomed Jews back, it
The second Napoleonic rule was ruled by Jews undermined, the present republic is completely in their hands.
The worst monsters of the first revolution, e.g. Marat, were Jews.

In Germany, the Jews already in the early Middle Ages caused great harm. The hatred against them was finally so great that it led to bloody persecution. The character
According to that time, they were soon transferred to the religious area with which they actually have nothing to do
The German emperors and princes became their saviours, among them Circumstances also their avengers. The princes of the Middle Ages were these are almost always in financial need. After all, the Reich
As the Jew here often and willingly and even helped out on solid terms, he secured the favor of the prince and in return was allowed to exploit the people as he pleased.
Emperor Sigismund, for example, was often in such distress that he had to
To maintain his court he had to settle in imperial cities, which All costs of maintenance were covered. But if the matter too long, then they urged departure and rarely said: “Goodbye!” Some cities, however, did not let the emperor not in. Some imperial princes did not fare much better.
It was very welcome to all of them to protect the Jews against high Money to sell letters of protection. Elector Joachim von Brandenburg could not end the misery caused by the Jews this subjects no longer tolerated and expelled them from country after 32 of them, convicted of serious crimes were publicly burned in Berlin. His legacy= 'Folger, however, was again forced to issue letters of protection to Jews to spend. The indebted situation of the princes is very disastrous= for the entire development of the fatherland. Albrecht of Brandenburg, Elector of Mainz, was finally so deeply involved in: Jewish hands that he had an affair with the indulgence dealer Tetzels= He sold indulgences for a flat rate, which he delivered to the Pope. He hoped that in the confidence on Tetzels skill, on a surplus that brought him out of the As is well known, this led to Dr. Martin Luther's appearance and the subsequent separation of the churches. Later, Albrecht of Brandenburg gained sympathy for Luther, but his desperate situation prevented him from making a firm decision come, which perhaps the later terrible religious wars impossible. When Luther therefore somewhat rudely The person who treated Albert's brother, Elector Joachim I of Brandenburg, so embittered by this that he remained an enemy for his entire life Luther remained, although he himself desired a Reformation.

Under King Frederick I of Prussia, who was in constant financial need, The Jews regained enormous influence, as the impoverishment of the people clearly demonstrated. But when Friedrich Wilhelm J., this: Hero under the Hohenzollerns, came to power, had to deal with ' An end to your glory. In addition to the usual gallows at 8

Berlin was also given a special iron gallows=

and every dishonest Jewish manipulation found its quick atonement. When the king noticed with his clear eyes, that the Jews were involved in the wool trade between producers and con= fuments and thus deprived the cloth makers of wool= He banned them from trading in wool altogether, and what an over- They knew very well what breaking this commandment meant. Prussia rose to power under such circumstances. Never in this... country such a general and solid prosperity existed, as under this monarch. The country could easily a relatively much stronger army than at present. The king, who had created countless schools, left behind the country roads were improved, deserts were transformed into flourishing areas and dried up swamps, still a treasure of many millions. His son Frederick the Great had the Jews

He was therefore unable to pay the tax.
make great demands on his people, wage brilliant wars,
rebuild burned down villages, the newly acquired,
but totally impoverished and degenerate province of West Prussia to He brought prosperity, revitalized the industry and yet at his death many Millions left behind. Under his successor, the good-natured, but weak Frederick William III, the Jews poured out. like swarms of locusts over the whole land. Soon they had Nobility, citizens and peasants in their hands, and the state
The year 1806 showed the fruits of their activity. The Officers, because they were deeply in debt, were unnerved. The high state officials, because of their debts, were susceptible to foreign influences, Army, because there were not enough funds, outdated and rusted, the end result is therefore self-evident. The re= revolution of Berlin in 1848 was purely her work. She

- - -

The revolutionaries from France and Poland had at their expense come, the profit was also for them alone. As Friedrich Wilhelm IV was treated by the Jew Jacobi, knows probably everyone. But not many will know that Kaiser Frederick III also fell as a victim of Judaism.
The verdict on this noble man still sways back and forth
Gustav Freitag, from whom one could expect clarification, has only skimmed the surface. I want a final Picture of Kaiser Friedrich. Never in the world has a Prince lived with a nobler heart and more benevolent intentions, than he. In the happiness of others he found his own happiness, and Like Titus, he considered every day a lost day,
He could not make anyone happy. The countless good, what he has done is hidden from the world. His income as
But the Crown Prince was not in agreement with his charitable spirit
Kaiser Wilhelm had learned from his ancestor Friedrich Wilhelm I inherited and maintained the thrifty, economical spirit did not think his family were overly rich. Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, the for his person, however, was more than needless, got into Follow these quiet acts of kindness to the noble and the humble very early in debt, fell into Jewish hands, and everything else is understandable then automatically. His bills of exchange, which are not less than 50 pCt.
were given, ran about among the worst usurers.
I bought one myself in 1882, for 3300 marks.
Of course, the debts grew so enormously that help was only fever possible. With his debts, Emperor Frederick had many fought as hard for years as all other mortals have to do it with theirs too. In order not to fever to grieve, he has kept them secret until his savings at that time would no longer have been sufficient to pay off all debts Finally, several Jewish banks, but probably in the hope of providing their tribesmen with

 To achieve advantages, all the bills of exchange were bought up and the Money then charged to the Crown Prince at moderate rates. But This interest payment also took up the largest part of the crown prince's income. Soon after the accession of the Emperor Friedrich's debts amount to almost 15 million marks
 Of course, Kaiser Friedrich had the last money owed thanks, and since he never forgot tokens of friendship, fhe will occasionally say a word to them about the antifemites= movement, but then shamelessly expressed it exploited and removed without him, in the existing situation could speak out against it publicly. How much the femitic activity
 But what disgusted him is clear from the Friday revelations
 After that, even in his healthy days, he carried himself very seriously= with the idea of not running for government at all. Such a
 A man of action can only make a decision if he fhe is in a serious conflict of conscience. His views attributed to the whole people contradicted his real views completely.

1 - = F - 1 - - - mar ™ i 8 I 22 j = = yes ae CA -
 - De Se aa ta - " r os rba
 * - - - K 2 - nr rn j * a * who Pic eae - 4 gi

zn u. 2 ai ae - ip ann ar dim nn TE ze Fa
 . a mer rn nu - - n
 m- à

- yes =

If we keep this in mind, the character
 Emperor Frederick's like an open book before us. The daily
 He was unable to satisfy the hundreds of requests that came in.
 This made him ill-tempered and irritable.
 Seeking the conviction that help is absolutely necessary here,
 He turned to rich people as advocates. Therefore, he was friendly to them. Because most of the rich people are Jews,
 He has more relationships with them than with Germans.
 Jews will almost always have provided sufficient help,
 He was grateful to them, even more grateful than for the settlement of his own affairs. But the eternal sorrow over the mis-relationship between his will and ability has finally its Body is destroyed. Cancer develops according to generally accepted popular legend always through hidden sorrow. That the Jews= later the man who represented Emperor Frederick in the interest of own wallet according to all the rules of the art cured to death has supported in an almost fanatical way, is only
 The whole Mackenzie affair is probably due to

This explanation will make clear its inner essence. Its Her Majesty the Empress Frederick knows the high status of the English-ficient science very precisely and was certainly very pleased when your suggested by German doctors Dr. Mackenzie as an authority
 That this man has really achieved great things in his field-
 There is no doubt that he has achieved this. He certainly has the disease of Emperor Frederick at first glance. But to understand the following To fully understand the tragedy, one must read something in his book between the lines. He is obviously trying to convey the belief that before his first visit to the then Crown-Prince in Berlin No one has spoken to him. This has not yet been reported to anyone noticed. Why does he do this? But business is also by telegraph or through third parties. The Jewish Creditors of the Crown Prince will receive timely notification of the appeal of the
 Dr. Mackenzie, and now with this fellow tribesman
 We have concluded the following: "In the interest of our Money urgently that the Crown Prince His Majesty Kaiser Wilhelm survive. An operation that is in any way dangerous is therefore to prevent under all circumstances. If you succeed in doing this, you will receive
 You so and so much 1000 pounds sterling." From this everything is now The following is understandable. Professor Dr. Virchow was awarded a false piece, and that the Crown Princess gave the man her had to put all her trust in the one who would heal her husband without dangerous surgery, is probably more than of course. Who in Europe would have done it differently? Everything else developed fic) now quite logically. The withdrawal of the crown princes from any medical control, the deprivation of the father-heart that longed for him so much, Everything will now be more than be understandable. The tremendous tragedy in the House of the High-Zollern, who despite his advanced age unexpectedly died early Kaiser Wilhelm, the terrible end of Kaiser Friedrich, everything had to occur and was brought about so that some Jewish

- 185 =

Banks got their millions back without any need. Mackenzie has fhis share has been brought to safety and is now to be sent to America travel to proclaim his heroic deeds. Already at the beginning fhis medical practice in Berlin he will be in the fhis Jewish Stam mesgenoffen not unknown mile have made the plan, in the final outcome, which he certainly knows, any sins= goats in the foreground. Kaiser Friedrich was a thoroughly German man, his boundless good nature, which has already been ruinous for several Hohenzollerns, was his only weakness. In the case of ruling princes, this usually occurs more to the immediate environment than to the entire people Good. The Jews have used this weakness to make this love ling of the people, the victor of Königgrätz, Wörth and Sedan, into shameful bonds, from which other Jews,
 to win his heart for the interests of her tribe,

poorly liberated. Kaiser Friedrich perished because of this, sacrificed by Jews, even in death a prophetic warning for the German people to save themselves at the last minute, in order not to share his fate. When his situation later became known confidentially was, a local merchant gave him his entire fortune interest-free on the condition that never a Be- reward. It was too late. The offer was not accepted. The fate of King Ludwig of Bavaria. This august monarch, to whom Germany gave its banks: fteuhung owes in large part to the fact that Richard Wagner and glowed with noble enthusiasm for beauty, suffered from another weakness. He wanted to live in his soul= to present the ideas in space. The costs exceeded but his income, and he fell into bad hands. The Jews This time they kept themselves in the background, but since the pushed people also wanted to earn money, so the King only led to ruin all the more quickly. Should I still Rudolf von Defterreich._ fpeak, this serious naturalist on the throne? He too has been exploited for years, thereby ftireft of his life and finally decided to commit suicide- thoughts came. |

Tir Kan"

har

0

The accidental cause of death was then found to be similar, as with Heinrich von Kleist. We see that Judaism in his endeavor to enslave princes and peoples, three of the noblest offspring of the European ruling houses, who in their different schools of thought see themselves as representatives of the good, the beautiful and represent truth, into financial shackles, which, However, against the will of Judaism, the miserable death of the same. It would be for the history of utmost importance when we discuss the matters mentioned above= Emperor Frederick's affairs could learn all the details. I do not want to fear that the image of this so highly exalted The unfortunate ruler would suffer as a result. On the contrary, the The more the German people learn about him, the more they will the image of his own being, not only as it is, but also how it will be, learn to love! Maybe then it will choose German Doctors who thoroughly cut out the cancer! The Mackenzie method would have exactly the same effect on the German fatherland

. wa
Jeta Mad

Be successful, like with Kaiser Friedrich!

Surrounded by observers and agents, the annual Persons, especially those who in later years will have high Positions are called upon at all times. At the right moment a helper offers himself in the most perfect form imaginable.
The high Lord moves under the situation of the moment, the Accepting help, if it is difficult to go back, eee it also happens that the attempt fails. In Potsdam
It is said publicly that a man serving in the military Every young gentleman drastically repelled the first attempter of this kind that in the future a second venture of this kind has no longer been undertaken.

The report was given to me in a somewhat humorous form.
with a hint of inner satisfaction.

I saw more in it. Fehrbellin is not the exit Sager of the first golden period of Prussian=Brandenburg= layer, but Breda.

Perhaps Sedan will not be the second German glory period
open, but Potsdam.

Landgrave, be tough! Landgrave, be tough!

We have suffered humanly since the day
When that stranger entered;

We did not avenge the first plague,

Sent down upon us with scorn;

We practiced according to the teachings of the gods

Us through many years of forgiveness,
But finally the weight of the yoke presses
And it wants to be shaken off.

You will not waver or turn aside
From the office you have boldly elevated,

The emotion will not creep up on you,
Who betrays your faithful people;

You are so gentle, O son of the gods,
Spring cannot be milder;
Be ~~as~~terrible today, a castle weather,
And Blige let your face spit!

Because anyway, I see,

The circle of the world swings

No rest from this murderous brood,

Until the robber's nest is completely destroyed,
And nothing but a black flag
From its desolate heap of rubble blows!

(Battle of Hermann)

– 187 –

12. The Jew in Justice, Medicine, Art and science.

a. The Jew in the Justice System.

The German people are thus in an unfortunate state that it has almost completely lost its own rights.

However, the ancient legal customs proved themselves with the following:
increasing culture as inadequate, also they were different German tribes in less important matters often different. Instead of adapting German law to the new circumstances
To redesign it accordingly, men were sent to the Italian Universities that brought Roman law there. This was around 11th century understandable, as the clergy also received their rights from Rome.
The Romans have always placed great value on jurisprudence and collected all legal rulings of a more significant nature.

Emperor Justinian in Constantinople has all these legal rulings collected, and these are known under the name Corpus juris still the basis of our law today. Roman law is clearly structured according to simple, logical principles and allows never let the judge down. But it does not correspond to the law= consciousness of the German people, hence morality and law often in contradiction. In all the different paragraphs with The people cannot understand their subtleties and subtleties.

find justice, it therefore requires a legal advisor to settle the simplest things. The legal advisor who is most familiar with all sorts of subtleties, Therefore, first of all, complete a process happily. What a pity in the people by the fact that legal awareness and law fit do not cover, is immeasurable. Roman law is essentially only city rights. A single city had gradually the dominion over the world and their right to the same imposed. For urban conditions, mainly for the Trade, it was excellent, but for rural conditions little useful. Its devastating effects were evident also in the complete downfall of the Roman smallholder fit in time enough, and here is mainly the downfall of the Roman state.

Among the learned legal experts, therefore, important people of modern times, such as Professor Gierke, advocated that we break with Roman law and a new German law based on our old German law. Right. So far, these men are in the minority number, but it is to be hoped that the majority of our current students Legal professionals will turn to German law. Roman law, however, for the greater part of the German people incomprehensible, is made just for the Jew. He knows through to slip through the finest majesties in which the clumsy German What was still missing in the law of subtleties, the The new legislation, which was entirely under Jewish influence has come about, added. What an unheard of state is that a German man is no longer able to To represent oneself in civil proceedings over 300 marks. This legal provision has left me personally absolutely without rights for a long time What is the situation further that the judge in the civil process does not seek the truth, nor does one of the parties any important fact that is clearly before our eyes, may do.

.

– 188 –

He simply has to decide according to what the parties and whose witnesses presented it to him. Then the German

Clement more and more withdrawn. Jewish judges appear numerous, and Jewish legal counsels are so prevalent that in Berlin make up about % of all lawyers (187).

few remaining German lawyers disappear

foonest, if they do not submit themselves to the mercy of Judaism

I urge the reader to be present in the court

once to the district or regional court in Jüdenstraße to walk quietly up and down the corridors and then enter a negotiating room. He will have the rock-solid Take with you the conviction that our law currently exists only to is to give the Jewish frauds the stamp of legality. To counter the current struggle between Roman and German law, which could be fatal to Judaism, to counter this with a fait accompli, the Reichs-government 10 years ago, a commission of learned legal experts, all of whom are subject to the Roman This has a new German civil law—worked at a time when the various different legal views least of all to legislative Innovations. This draft is supported by all Jewish Newspapers raised to the skies, while many insightful Germans call it disastrous! As a layman, I am able to determine the completely un-German nature of the What power would Judaism have over all tenants benefit if the principle of the draft: “Purchase breaks rent” – would be implemented. Fraudulent purchases that especially the tenants of shops would have to be ruined, then on the agenda. Likewise, marriage legislation is completely contradictory to the character of the German people.

If the “Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung” nevertheless occurs that this draft becomes law, because such a laborious 10 years of work should not be done in vain, then this is absolutely incomprehensible. Should the German people for centuries bind a bad law, so that a number of men who Hr their work was well paid, not worked for free have?

I will therefore refrain from general considerations and come to discuss a process that I myself have been

I went through to the end.

– 19 –

In Berlin there lived a postal secretary named Belling. He was from here to Breslau. There, at a cash register⁼ revision found a deficiency, and Mr. Belling made amends in many respects; At that moment he attempted suicide. It was not entirely successful, Mr. Belling was cured and then charged. During his interrogation he stated that he had been in Berlin at various I owed creditors 3000 marks. These were paid by Mr Zucker and Mr Tietz for amounts unknown to him He had approached these gentlemen in a Amount of 7000 Marks, which he will pay interest on and He was thus in such a terrible situation that he had taken money from the cash register in the Hope to be able to increase it again later. The state Attorney's office in Breslau reported to the Public Prosecutor's Office in Berlin, which seized Mr. Tietz's books and a number of persons who were named therein, to the As the reader is well known, I was also Mr. Tietz owed money, which had long since been paid I was also questioned, which made me even more uncomfortable was when I had not believed that I would ever be in contact with this gentleman A number of gentlemen, including the postal secretary Reiter, the teacher Zander, were also I was forced to testify, and Zucker and Tietz were charged. At the trial The district court judge Friedländer presided, the four assessors were apparently Germans. At the second hearing, but another gentleman took the place of the first assessor, whom I could only assume to be an Oriental from his appearance. The defense was led by Attorney Munkel.

From the beginning, the defence was based on the To make witnesses unreliable by adding other Debt relationships were proven in which the wrongdoing Sugar had pretty much everyone's prospect of Overall regulation is given and thereby everyone has their entire Debts and creditors. The first witness whose statement I heard (a number of previous statements I had not listened to) began with incriminating statements.

Then the President read him a note, which he a Mr. Halpert, whom we already know above

"I NN declare that I will not incur any further debts etc. The witness was completely biased and could not apparently not understand how this bill got here was, and his statements were now, contrary to his previous Statements to the investigating judge, for the accused quite When I wanted to start with my statements, the first assessor, whether I have not already, perhaps in the trial Klingfpor, who was also charged with usury before this court was accused and acquitted, would have stood as a witness here. I denied this, saying that I had only been there once in Augustin's trial at the regional court would have been heard as a witness.

– 190 –

Then this first assessor scolded me in such a harsh manner that I was actually embarrassed. Then I made my statement= fay about my first acquaintance with sugar, how I above. This was considered irrelevant rejected. Then I gave up my relationship with Mr. Zucker and Tietz in more detail, which, however, reveals much incriminating evidence= All possible questions from the lawyers were answered I did it according to the truth, but made the wonderful discovery= coverage that the defendants or their representatives are in any a wise knowledge of my lying on the school deputation The defendant Tietz had a large number of witnesses, through which he made me appear unbelievable He had bought a new pair of trousers from Mr. Möller appointed, although he did not otherwise work for him, to the Lord Boldies wine and cigars, also bought him other shops in prospect, although he had not known him before. In In both cases he tried to make something out of them To lure out unfavorable things about me, which they did, however, at the best will in the world. The witnesses Augustin and Freshmen gave their statements. Augustine explained that he In the year 1883 we saw a white, or rather a goose, several times Frischeisen explained that in the 4 years from 1881 to 1885 led a more than needy life. Fresh shit, our former landlord, was called as a witness for the prosecution. Unfortunately, I cannot speak here about Mr Kortum's statements, because I have handed it over to the public prosecutor's office for investigation. The testimony of the witness Halpert was all the more important. I stand not begin to explain that this is the most important part of the whole book. The witness Halpert swore: It is not true, that I got to know Rector Ahlwardt through Mr. Barifer or with him through the same in business relations An agent gave me a bill of exchange from the same brought, and I only met Mr. Ahlwardt much later, when the bills of exchange were not redeemed on time.

Secondly, it is not true that a change of rector Ahlwardt was handed over by a Mrs. Zabel.

Thirdly, it is not true that the List Club blames the Rector Ahlwardt paid me in whole or in part.

In vain I approached the President three or four times came up, held up a number of documents and declared: "Mr. President, the witness swears falsely that these documents prove the opposite!" I was forcefully told to calm down, the writing= pieces were not accepted.

This oath of Mr. Halpert, which is an obvious perjury is, as I have proved by irrefutable documents which I have in my possession, is of the most tremendous importance. Mr. Halpert was the sworn enemy of Mr. Zucker, because he himself had previously reported him for perjury, whereupon Halpert reported Mr. Zucker for lèse majesté and had also proved his hatred through his actions. Now, where a German testified against the baptized Jew Zucker, swore Halpert committed perjury in his favour, both the sugar and The aforementioned Mr. Parisian could also have proven this every day. Halpert had no advantage at all from his testimony. However, he must must have been absolutely convinced that these two Jews, one of whom was his mortal enemy, to accuse him of perjury would never be prosecuted to the detriment of a German.

– 191 –

I believe I have irrefutably proven the following:

1. "Where it is a German, the Jew swears without a doubt perjury.
2. "Where it is a German, the Jews through perjury, even if they were sworn enemies, and the one is also baptized by them. N
3. "The precepts of the Talmud and the Shulchan Aruch have are unconditionally valid for the Jew and are always followed.
4. Mr. Halpert, a thoroughly ritual Jew, can commit perjury swear with a clear conscience, because in fine Col=nidre

Prayer he has already made this oath in advance on the Day of Atonement declared invalid. Mrs. Arend was also in this trial and had testified what I have already said above had communicated.

Count Königsmarck was also temporarily detained taken, and he had testified that I had personally declared that a report from me to him was untrue. One will fee remember that the evening when sugar with almost ridiculous sums of two of the biggest and worst creditors had satisfied to write a letter of thanks to Count Königsmarck in which I informed him that the arrangement was so favorable conditions that I could hope we would

I didn't even use the money completely. Later I looked for Count Königsmarck, determined to tell him the full truth to say about the embezzlement of the money he transferred to me Money, of which I of course gave Mr. Zucker, who accompanied me, as he wanted to visit his uncle, did not say anything. But when I began to report, the Count was invited to the table called, so I had to leave out of decency and found later no longer have the opportunity to express my Report in which I have just reached the sent letter I also did not have the opportunity given, in the appointment after the reading of the Count Königsmarck's ftill now I will give my explanations in a very short statement.

Lawyers severely questioned all witnesses for the prosecution. grasped, delicately hinted that they themselves might be seeking a benefit, The increase from 3000 to 7000 Marks at Belling was seen as a Act of humanity, which ultimately does not exceed 10 percent interest, portrayed the defendants as humane people, who were exploited by their victims, and were also acquitted. Much later, the original of the document came to me. nises to Gefiche. It says: It could be possible, whether- although it is not proven that Rector Ahlwardt was

- 192 -

A portion of the funds borrowed for debt settlement will be used for excessive lifestyle! That is the strongest, what a court has achieved in the whole world. The opposite part was indeed proven, but because it could still be possible, therefore the witness is not credible, the defendants are acquitted= spoken, I myself made it almost impossible for all people. There is unlikely to be another usury case in Berlin. Incidentally, four of the five votes are also necessary for the ver-judgment, and I thought two members of the court were Jews. I have discussed this process here in such detail because my

According to the consensus, Halpert's statement for the entire Jewish question must become of the utmost importance.

In the Middle Ages, a Jew could not fight a German testify, and even in the last century a Jew's testimony of little value. If our ancestors had determinations based on religious intolerance or bitter experience experiences? To establish this would be a serious Task for an eager historian.

b. The Jew in Medicine, Science and Art.

The ideally designed German devotes himself to science and: Art for its own sake. All other considerations come The Jew, on the other hand, thinks of everything and everyone that he drives only on himself. Every genuine art, every genuine knowledge= ficiency are therefore lost as soon as Judaism in them is mass= They then serve only as a means to become famous quickly, i.e. rich. There are a few exceptions only confirm the rule. No one has recognized this more clearly and- spoken than Richard Wagner. In return, fine surroundings extensive scientific works in which he presents himself as a reformer mator of the entire German spirit, of the entire Jewish press, although his music is not But what is possible to keep these wonderful Creations in which the German spirit is expressed in its most ideal purity= embodies wholeness and frees us from the bonds of material individual existence, into the machinery of everyday life, if Judaism has penetrated the most into the Medicine. Jewish doctors already dominate the field everywhere. Which It is difficult to estimate the harm that has resulted from this. Medical science has proven itself to be a powerful tool for healing many internal Diseases have not yet found firm rules, but there are even highly educated physicians who believe in direct healing through external influences In some diseases, one cannot believe at all, but only limit, keep away all harmful side things. Here is right the field for the Jewish spirit of fraud Who remembers not from previous years of the daily appearing advertisers of Dr. Auerbach, who wanted to cure all stomach diseases and printed certificates of cured people en masse. What did he prescribe all patients? Hydrochloric acid, which can be obtained from a specific pharmacy was administered with a prescription for expensive money. What kind of doctors Who are the ones who advertise in the newspapers every day? Jews. The fame of Jewish doctors who were called to treat any high-ranking person are once attracted, sounds out again all Jewish newspapers and will probably give them a nice piece of money. .

*

– 193 –

Some time ago, a number of German doctors together to investigate why all the positions as Kafendocctors, etc., who bring a provide a secure basis, almost all of them fell into Jewish hands. However, the positions awarded by the city of Berlin are an investigation is not necessary. During the investigations, the most monstrous things, of which I can only two come back, since the whole matter is the authorities will employ. A barber Nerrlich is a member of the commission A Jewish doctor Dr. Freudenberg made a direct attempt at bribery to become a statutory health insurance doctor. A Mr. Dr. Levy, Frankfurterstrasse, applied for the position a specialist for women, although he is only a surgeon. He was hired. Why? Imagine a woman in a painful situation in which their lives are often affected by the smallest threatened by chance, treated by this man?! By the way the gentleman used bandages that the health insurance company had to pay for, in large quantities, i.e. he also cared for his private patients who then had to pay it to him.

A Dr. Joseph Landsberger in the Kommandonstraße was Health insurance doctor of the Josephshülfe health insurance company. Young women who Those who came to him with any kind of illness were made to completely to undress her, whereupon he made great demands on her. Once Of course, on such occasions he was accompanied by his husband— forced to leave the apartment in an extraordinary manner.

Where we have come with our Jewish doctors, The de Jonge case shows this in a truly horrifying way. This Lord, himself a Jew, is far-sighted enough to realize that the Katastrophe for his people must soon break out. He sought to save it by pointing out its faults and urged them to repent. The relatives of the same took him to an insane asylum where he was buried alive. This was made possible by the Jewish doctor Dr. Mendel, by issuing a certificate of dangerous mental illness, without even having seen Dr. de Jonge. The Jew Dr. Behr, who was also a district physician, then lured him through the most common fraud into the trap. By God! on this The Jews can attack any of their opponents at any moment neutralize and condemn to spiritual death. I must confess that I myself, who would not otherwise be considered a coward I cannot resist a secret horror.

How in medicine science becomes a business has sunk, calculated to bring man into the To take money out of people's pockets in the worst hours, it is in all other sciences as well, as soon as Judaism became widespread. What blessing can the exact natural sciences afford cities both the employment relationships and the enjoyment of life, as also present the highest philosophical research. But what will under the hands of the Jews? They use the results of the Research primarily to remove all the barriers in the people's soul to tear down those who still stand in the way of their rule. It comes. It does not occur to them to strive for the highest truth or to keep to the ground of what is given. Just think of the fantasies with which Professor Cohn last scientific congress in Berlin. Nobody dared to ridicule him, not even an anti-Semitic newspaper. Even at the congress itself, his Fantasies for which he has not even a shred of evidence could cite, did not find any serious contradiction. Even the History has come into their hands, and what the Jewish press still had some common sense left has, the Jewish professors at the universities are ruining nor completely. And now imagine a Jewish professor of philosophy, which requires the most objective thinking. A Jew and objectivity! Modern philosophy is also based on this. German literature is also almost entirely in Jewish hands. Which Food they serve to the people, we will discuss in the chapter Jude and press will discuss further. |

Every art is spoiled by them. While otherwise the Artists strived to convey the human being through their artwork to rise above the things of everyday life into the realm of ideals, while the Dutch knew how to transform even the most mundane To idealize things, it is modern art, that is, the art of the Jews. It is, to do only with sensory stimuli. Earning money is of course the only guiding thought. A German artist who opposed this would simply starve. What has become of the theaters among the Jews!? According to the ideas of our greatest poet, the theatre should, according to the Greek ideal, an educational institution. Yes, if we can still talk about education we can be, it can only be about the education of decent Girls act indecently. There is certainly enough money sometimes a Jewish Croesus for disciples of art. The Apartment, for example, which Mr. von Bleichröder junior gave to the dancer del Era in the Kanonierstraße, is likely to be the envy of many Princess. Whether this is done purely out of enthusiasm for art, may be left open. But enough of that! Should we condemn the Jews get rid of, the art with which they have blessed us, soon be gone.

13. Jew and Stock Exchange.

According to the judgment of intelligent merchants of various Times the stock exchange is a necessity, which is the central point for trade and traffic, stimulates and regulates business.

But what has become of it under the hands of the Jews? Even the Jew Lasker once said: The stock exchange is the Akademie of the violation of the law. Of course he wanted to give the stock exchange not to strike a blow, but only to gain trust in order to be able to help her more from behind. Minister Maybach called it a poisonous tree. Both names– festinations are by no means comprehensive.

Rather, the stock exchange is the great institution that is calculated to deprive all those Aryans of their possessions, which cannot be dealt with in any other way. It is the gate, through which the free man enters into Jewish slavery, it is the new Solomon's Temple sought by the Freemasons, in which all the peoples of the world gave their property to the Jewish priests as sacrifice. What the Berlin concert artist is on a smaller scale, are the princes of the stock exchange on a large scale. Everything that the German people despite all Jewish tricks, this Moloch seeks out:

How it is done in detail, I have learned from Mr.

Thomas, and he was one of the knowledgeable. With against– If a paper is allowed to rise with mutual consent, it is recommended to the audience, always hiding one behind the other, in order to be able to blame them later, everything in the greatest Unanimity. If the paper is in the public, there are thousands of means and ways to bring it down. The more it falls, the more restless the public becomes and finally sells at any price, so as not to lose everything. Is it too cheap again? If the price is in the hands of the knowledgeable, then the game has begun from the beginning. Variety comes into the same only through the stock market participants' efforts to consume each other, without prejudice to their other unity towards the public, yes, the wool has to be given up, over which the shearers then fight. In this dispute between the makers, sometimes a chunk falls to the public and whets the appetite. For the stock exchange, no secret is buried so deep that it could not be reached. It knows how to cloud the circles of the greatest statesmen, the most bourgeois documents. When so many railways were nationalized

There were two parties, one of which was directly involved in the source, the other at a somewhat more distant, incidentally the reader known place sought to determine what offer the state will do.

The minister in question is said to have, as an insider told me in a weak hour there is no other way to help knew that he had the fair copy signed by his own wife – or sister – had it made, but I know that he also This did not always help. The report sometimes had 13*

to pass an intermediate instance before it falls into the hands of His Majesty. A lead of only four to five days: but meant a profit of millions for the Jews.

The Pope no longer rules the world, nor the princes govern more the individual countries, but the Börje, that is Judaism is the true king. Everything bows before it. The Red International was also only used as a deterrent. called to life, and they are blown up when they have done their duty. has done.

Through the stock exchange, Israel has taken the last step towards world domination= done.

A word should be said here about the Reichsbank. The= The same grants credit to all who do not need it and refuses: him to all who need him. The rich man doubles with their help his working capital and is towards the poor all the stronger. At the moment, this may not be possible any other way, but we are aware of the new, moderate social aspirations. Why was the Reichsbank not nationalized so that this aspirations can later find a starting point? The Rejection of nationalization is a serious obstacle to any social reform. The Jewish parties made before and between the. Discussions about this most important law caused a tremendous uproar. about all sorts of unimportant things, e.g. about a non-once existing work book of the miners, and during the Because of all the noise, the exhaustion was completely. extremely important banking law was passed quite quietly under the Be-foundation that everything at the Reichsbank was in perfect order. Of course, it is in the most beautiful order, certainly excellently reigns, but that is really not what is at issue here.

The conservative proponents of nationalization refused not even their final reasons, and finally the Motion, even the motion to increase state profits, by the guilt of thirty Conservatives who voted about this law, which brings the moderate social aspirations into flux would have brought, were simply missing!

What might have been going on behind the scenes! I
To illustrate this, I want to tell a very small, insignificant story
Mr. von Kardorf is a man who, in a thoroughly regulated
He has his need for clothing for many years at the Mohr and Speier company, where he all-paid the bill annually. He stopped in Berlin once.
a lecture on the dual currency, which consists of well-known reasons is a thorn in the side of the Jews. As one business-holder read this lecture, he ordered a subordinate, immediately:
to Mr. von Kardorf a letter with the following content
We request you to write within the shortest possible time:
8 24 hours) to pay your bill, adverse-if etc.

Of course, Mr. von Kardorf did this immediately, as he was Little things were sublime, but the question arises: Have

- 197 -

maybe some of the thirty missing members received similar letters in which (fic) it is not about a clothing bill, which should only cause a small annoyance, but rather very serious things could have been involved?

The nationalization of the Reichsbank would be the first real step against Judaism, and thirty conservative MPs prevented this step. ;

Now there is still some noise about insignificant budget items arise that after a few years no one thinks about anymore, so that the newspaper reader can think of other things, and Israel is now being harvested by the Reichsbank. If the Reichsbank does not have as much money as Israel needs, then it such a thing out of paper and pays for the wealth created in this way not even taxes. If one of us were to keep his money alone want to do, the matter may turn out murky!

As almighty as Jewish capital is and individuals and dominates entire peoples, the ordinary man finds it little in the eyes. It is in the form of paper notes, keeps in the iron shrine and carries out his exploitative and fuckling activity in silence. The tormented and oppressed Workers focus more on the large factories, magnificent houses and throws his envy, and then his hatred, on their owners, whom he considers his enemies. He is completely mistaken. These people are usually much more dependent than he is. They are Papers tied up in the Jewish iron locker often only give the Name as owner, so that the owner of those notes has less

This was at the beginning of the first French Revolution. Revolution was clearly visible. The oppressive nobility was attacked, but the capitalist backers of the same, who are under pressure benefited, went free.

This is exactly how it was in the Commune uprising of 1871. The people raged against property, marriage, national greatness, historical memory—rations, clergy, but Rothschild remained unscathed. fits hundreds of millions, with fits 150 magnificent buildings has not caused anyone the slightest harm.

He had set himself the ridiculous sum of 100,000 francs. What was admittedly given to individual leaders in secret remains secret.

Therefore, in recent times, Jewish big capital has also not difficult to express the indignation of the working masses against throne and altar. In France it is so successful, it depends on whether this experiment is will be a constant success.

The monarch must pay for what Judaism is guilty of The clergyman, the preacher of Christian love, who often himself barely has to live, fol bear the hatred of the people to whom he never caused the least harm.

Of course, there is no trace of patriotism on the stock exchange. What does the Jewish capitalist care about the fatherland? The Jew chat no fatherland at all. His homeland is his people spread all over the world. The few German capitalists are not taken into consideration, and are, moreover, often carried out by the Jews influenced and corrupted. It cannot be done often or loudly enough. It should be remembered that in 1870, the Reichstag unanimously approved war loan of 120 million on the stock exchange 3, I write three million were subscribed.

While the people gladly sacrificed their property and blood for the honour of the Fatherland, almost violently pushed himself into the field, as I which I have presented above, the stock exchange plunged the price of the consolidated bond at 80.

Was it not almost treasonous when Berlin companies Russia was financially in the saddle at a time when it sought the destruction of Germany? It seems that Stock exchange even at a decisive point the shameful behavior, especially from 1870. The reward of all the labor ftriments, all blood sacrifices, she alone has reaped The Jewish 33 finds his pride in the stock exchange, as the German in Sedan.

The stock exchange barons are well-liked and are considered friends treated by the highest statesmen. May von Bleich-Röder called Prince Bismarck his friend. The newspaper report that Bleichröder has been involved in state secret affairs for many years. niffe had been initiated, which of course always turned into cash I don't think I implemented it, but it was embarrassing touched that Bleichröder is still a guest in the Bismarck house and may touch the prince's hands with his lips. Does the prince not know that this man is under the suspicion of a deliberate, selfish considerations induced perjury that his ag was shamefully expelled from the expelled from the officer class? Is he then in such contact safe from serious infection?

This is not what I and thousands of others meant, who supported the prince's policy and thereby suffered hardship and Shame, ridicule and deadly persecution that some were laid in a bloody grave.

14. The Jew and Politics.

"The world is governed by completely different people than those think that they do not look behind the scenes. Russian diplomacy, full of secrets that make the whole of Europe pale, – who organizes and leads them? – Jews!"

Thus said the most initiated of the initiates, the Lord of Israel, or as he was later called, Lord Beaconsfield, in. a weak hour. |

– 19 –

At the time these words were spoken, the Jude Gambetta, a puppet of the Parisian Roihfchild, the fate France. The Viennese Rothschild, who already owned Austria as a domain that he can paralyze at any moment, controls Austrian politics through secret threads. Lasker ruled in Germany. What do the Jews still need to achieve world domination?

And not even those are free from Jewish influences, who behaved as the greatest patriots.

Who has ever had greater influence in Russia than Katkow? He stoked the hatred of the Russians who blindly trusted him against Germany, and this hatred still exists among the nobility and Gering. After Katkow's death it turned out that who had received 30,000 rubles annually from the Jews. He should lead to war with Germany. Why? Because Jews all over Europe would like to earn a lot of money again, wanted to tighten the last stitch of the net.

Who has stopped the war of 1870, which brought together two such glorious peoples, who together could have made the world happy, into serious enemies
Who instigated the collapse of the state? the Jews.

Jewish agitators incited the people against Napoleon either directly or through paid creatures. He should thereby forced to direct the people's gaze outward.
As long as this, a truly great man in peace, holds the reins in his hands, he did not let himself be determined, but when he, feriously ill, could no longer hold on to them, the Jews their shameful game. The Jew Wolf telegraphed to all World that the French ambassador of Kaiser Wilhelm insulted fe and brought the already excited French People for all their reflection. Benedetti himself explains in his book:
Ma mission en Prusse that this was untrue. Now the confessor of the Empress, who at that moment was on the
had a great influence on her husband, who was suffering greatly from pain, baptized Jew Johann Maria Bauer, in action. He knew to influence them to such an extent that the horrific war becomes
In the times of the Kulturkampf, the Jewish press often spreads the view that Catholicism the war was started by the Empress's confessor in order to
to put an end to the hated Protestant Prussia.
Of course, the Protestants were provoked by this, and yet Catholicism was completely innocent of the war. A Jew had fimperatively disguised himself as a Catholic in order to exert his disastrous influence c right place and at the right time. The peoples fought each other to exhaustion, the Rothschilds in Paris, the Bleichröders in Berlin raked in the billions, collected the gifts of love for those freezing and starving in the field Soldiers and were therefore considered great patriots. Of course, the two Jewish leaders were intimate friends.

Let us hear what the most important Frenchman living today, through which France actually returned to the top of the

— eS K ũ nn — — =

» 4

—

— 200 —

Civilization and unfortunately push us into the background

feems, Mr. Eduard Drumont, literally says:

"At the last moment, however, various things seemed to come together
Here Napoleon III, a humane sovereign, a Man of good heart, whose strong will and sharp eyes
unfortunately currently weakened by a serious physical illness, nevertheless, the urging of the peasant kneeling before that priest Empress resisted, despite her cry: This war is Listen to me! There King William, whose conscience is against a fight, which perhaps, as soon as the decisive word was spoken, claimed hundreds of thousands of human lives. In addition the queen, begging her husband to keep the peace.

King William did what Napoleon certainly would not have done;
the candidacy of the Prince of Hohenzollern for the throne Spain was abandoned.

When the German Jews saw that their situation was bad,
they tried with lying news, with the Tartar=
ftreich, as Rothschild put it. The Jewish newspaper agent Wolf claimed that our ambassador had been grossly insulted, and the French Jewish press missed not to spread this further.

"They have," it was said, the respect for our ambassador out of sight, France has been slapped in the face," they shouted the same Republicans who today are responsible for all diplomatic Punching and kicking and still saying "thank you very much".

But everything that has happened so far is only a prelude to the wonderful things that we can experience from here on in this latest history of France, which leads to a history of Judaism in France is declining." |

Drumont continues to win convincingly and supported by According to the documents, the Jews Gambetta, Cremieux, Simon and coforts the second part of the war solely from Jewish financial interests. The costs of this war, which calculated at 2% billion, these gentlemen have no Account can be filed, allegedly because the entire file material was burned in a railway carriage. Before the opening of this second part, the Jewish War, Bismarck had given the mayor from Nancy that he had 2 billion and a strip on Rhine with Strasbourg.

Mr. Drumont, history will occupy a large place in your because hopefully it will be put on a better path through you—
The world will still call your name for a long time, when all the greatness of the day is long forgotten. I must with a harsh accusation! How can a man like You, talk about "German Jews"? You know very well which Effect this has in France. There are people living in Germany, also Jews born in Germany, but never German Jews, just as there is no such thing as a French Jew.

Let us take a look at the design of the German conditions after the war. In every political party the

f

– 201 –

Jews in, and everyone tries to corrupt them.
For 10 years the Jews ruled under Lasker's leadership in Germany=country alone. While the people are presented with all kinds of nonsense=power, finally the red rag of the Kulturkampf held up was to keep it busy, the new Law on joint-stock companies, the founding fraud
which made the German people six billion poorer.
When Germany was on the brink of the abyss, the German Politics into new, national paths, sought the real acquisition to bring back honor and to protect, ie Judaism to push back a little. This was of course taken very badly, and that disgusting struggle began against the government, which continues to this day. The Jews operate with great skill.
They have created a party for the worker, another for the dissatisfied middle class, a third for the better-off people gerbafen, ie the social-democratic, liberal and national=liberal party. They are led by invisible Jews, receive their spiritual nourishment through it and form a Zwick=mill, so that now one, now the other comes to the foreground
The Jewish papers with their pathos of citizen=pride and manliness, freedom, equality and tolerance, something clean on silver bowls from the national liberals, with a little more strength from the liberals and finally with very strong spices in earthenware bowls from the social democratic Presented in leaflets, all find their enthusiastic followers, who are honestly stand up for their convictions. i

We therefore have to distinguish between each of these parties:

1. the secret supreme leaders, of course Jews, 2. the 1 eg Führer, Jews and Jewish servants, some of whom even are themselves convinced of the correctness of their views, 3. the Nerds who seek their direct or indirect advantage in the party
4. the mass of convinced followers, many of whom sacrifice everything for the party, kill yourself for it if necessary would let. l

Nobody knows all this better than the government itself.
But what should she do? Germany has a total of five Antifemites were sent to the Reichstag, and that is no

majority. It is up to the German people to government to give men with whose help they could end the shameful The government will certainly missing. |

All revolutions of modern times are brought about by Jews in Work was set, often at the moment when reforms were more radical The first French Revolution, when the constitutionalism that the people alone demanded, in Gni-development, such as the revolution that Charles X., such as that of 1848, which Louis Philippe swept away. The foolish, artificial The enthusiastic people carried out what their Jewish leaders had told them. whispered, Judaism reaped. The French Revolution of September 4, 1870, the Commune uprising of 1871 were Jewish Factory. (S. Drumont, Part II, also: Les Juifs rois de Pepoque-von Touffeneil.) The revolution on March 18, 1848 in Berlin, in the moment when the king gave the people the requested Constitution was only of Jewish origin. More than. Judaism never strives for the social revolution because it. fee that here and there with the social reform, where it is easy the Jews, is getting serious. How might it be with the last revolution in Brazil? The authors are Benjamin Constant and Fonseca, both of Jewish origin. ©. Drumont, p. 432. Daniel Manin was, as all re-revolutionary and agitator, of Jewish origin. His father belonged, as can be seen in the 36th volume of the Archives israélites, a Israelite family Fonseca and settled towards the end of the last century.

This fact is also confirmed in a study conducted in Venice in 1872 under the title: La vita ei tempi di Danieli Manin confirmed.

The undermining of the European monarchies is merely Jewish work

*

15. The Jew and the Social Question.

The Social Democratic Party represents the interests of the Workers. That Kaiser Wilhelm I in grateful memory of the Devotion of the entire German people in the national wars. universal direct and secret suffrage and thereby has enabled the working class to have a number of representatives in to send him to the Reichstag is not enough to thank him. Unfortunately fare their representatives, misled by Jewish agitators and in Dependence on secret Jewish financiers, in a very bad

These wrong paths were deliberately taken by Jews.
and can still cause much harm in the world. In The Social Democrats are great critics. But what they say about the boundless injustice that the one who creates the values slowly starve to death, while the rich good-for-nothing with all kinds of pleasures, is not a social democratic Discovery, because long before Marr, Carlyle had discovered this fact of World has made it clear that the population must strive to achieve this
To change the relationship is certain. The representatives of the Social Democrats have now established the principle that in the present social order, help is not possible at all.
The egoism of the possessing classes will always be a prevent any real improvement in the situation of the working class.
Even if individual fluctuations occur, keep in mind,
the so-called iron wage law of the Jew Levy (Ricardo):
permanently valid. It is therefore necessary to to strive to overthrow the throne and the altar, the whole

– 203 –

to destroy the current social order and to

to rebuild something completely new from the rubble; the social= Democracy does not strive for revolution, but rather it is revolution.

This marks the end of the social democratic programme.

What the new socialist state will look like, we have no clear ideas. One imagines it as a only large productive cooperative. The state should give everyone his Allocate work and satisfy his needs. Let us also take that such a state would be under streams of blood would come, it would not bring happiness to humanity, but general servitude and an unnatural, therefore on the Duration unbearable war. The whole socialist

Intuition is based on a misunderstanding of the innermost essence of Humanity. The highest driving force of strenuous creativity is in the majority of people, selfishness. Only rarely does a person takes the position that he has his individual interests constantly lagging behind those of the whole. In the battle Thousands of people sacrifice their lives for their country, but they want

do not forget that there are other things at play here, and that something else is to live in the moment of highest enthusiasm and something else, during his whole life his labor in the service of an incalculable totality to provide positions that do not particularly reward special efforts The tireless pursuit of perfection should necessarily suffer, or in other words, humanity would be significantly held back in their cultural development.

That personal freedom is replaced by general servitude It should only be mentioned in passing that this would have to happen.

Individual exceptions would only confirm the rule.

I will admit that the German character after eradication of the purely egoistic, Jewish principle more than any other people character seems more suitable for smaller, manageable communities, whose well-being is his well-being, whose woe is his woe, to be constantly strive to achieve the full development of one's strength,

but never in favor of a large, incomprehensible totality.

the cuckoo egg laid in the nest of the Social Democrats by the Jews,

the pursuit of the abolition of the monarchy and self-rule furgy of the state, makes the implementation of their ideas complete unthinkable. Even now, when they are under the pressure of serious Laws exist, they can hardly maintain unity;

Now here, now there, a proven leader is accused of opinion= differences. Once they had the power in their hands, they would fight each other and their followers in this general bloodshed. We have the even seen with horror in the first French Revolution, and During the Commune uprising, no one was beheaded because the Enemy was immediately at the gates, but no leader was safe from the other for even a moment, and as one their last war minister, Rofel, resigned from his post, he did so with the characteristic words: "I request a cell in – 204 –

here

IE Mazas." Thus, in social democracy, the possible and the impossible– ni possible, true and false, wonderfully mixed. The mass
0 of its followers can hardly distinguish between the two and believe it
1 glad that one cannot be achieved without the other. Love ip to king and fatherland, to religion and virtue dwells "yo 17 of them deep in their hearts, which no one has done better over the years a could observe than I. But if they at every opportunity ji is accused of depriving the monarch of the
W. hands were tied, and he gave the productive classes the best 4 will cannot help, this finally bears its fruit, y although not to the extent that the leaders think.
The mistrust sown by Judaism among the workers is the greatest 3 Mischief that has been caused by the Jews. It directs the unto–
5 peaceful people from their actual goals against old, earth–
Ef holy institutions, which alone could bring him salvation.
to maintain the – on these wrong paths, is not a financial sacrifice too big.

With our politically not so untrained anymore
It is quite incomprehensible to me that the workers
. lend her ear, instead of searching with manly determination for attainable 1 goals to strive for.

j It must be difficult for them to resist the big industrialists and

To place their trust in the merchant Singer, whose partner Master asks: Let the girls go on the streets,
but create cheap coats.

The lawyer Stadthagen is a close relative of the
Mr. Stadthagen, to whom I had to pay 100 percent.

It would be very interesting to find out in what way– relationship between Mr. Auerbach and the doctor Dr. Auerbach, who
In his time he cured all stomach patients, also by letter, with hydrochloric acid.

But I think the time for the revival of our workers is closer than many people assume.

As the movement of the last few years has shown, that German women are also beginning to embrace the Semitic element to see through, Judaism has also begun to influence women. Who doesn't think of Lina Morgenstern and her unforgettable activity. I had the opportunity to meet her children years in school ahead of me. As a caring house-mother did not prove herself in this. Recently, a Jewish agitator, Miss Selma Chaim, who posed as a worker to take the Berlin workers' movement into their hands— She wants to free the woman from her dependence on the man liberate !! Even they seem, at least officially, to have this species of homo sapiens. She is 16 years old old, but according to Jewish newspaper reports, it is enjoying great success.

1
m

16. Judaism in the Berlin Community= administration.

The Berlin municipal administration is entirely in favor of Jews hands. Their large incomes therefore form a single large agitation fund for Jewish interests. It is possible for Jews have become this way by integrating themselves into all liberal: – District associations pushed in and took control of the organization.

As far as Judaism is able, it only allows such German Men can enter the city council if they are either dependent on him, or at least completely devoted to him. Such Men then find themselves in subordinate tasks under the Jewish much more useful than Jews themselves, as well as Germans in general, who sacrifice the noble part of their self on the altar of egoism sacrificed, in meanness of attitude even surpassed the Jews By controlling the city council But Judaism has tremendous political power in Berlin All teachers and city officials are influenced by him. dependent, their tribesmen also control most of them financially, and if an official or teacher is self-employed sentiment, its elimination is by common and planned cooperation is not difficult. Even with persons of Intimate relationships are maintained with higher authorities, and Occasionally one of them also finds a rich benefice in the City administration. In the current city ordinance, the Rule of the Jews in Berlin without coercive means of the highest Place no longer to break, because the first and second voters—department, which appoints two-thirds of all city councillors is quite poor in Germans. From the third In addition to the officials and teachers, there are also countless Craftsmen and businessmen through their business connections with the city and the Jews completely at odds. It would be bad for them if they did not want to show their Do your duty, that is, choose freely.

It cannot be denied that the city administration has some good facilities for schools, poor relief, good plaster, good bridges, public squares, shady parks and cleanliness—has done a lot for the city's prosperity. This is a special achievement but not, because after Berlin became the capital of the Reich in 1871 and as a result flourished with the speed that was unprecedented in Europe has not been seen before, the revenues of the City into gigantism. This money had to somehow bring about a application, and since we found good examples everywhere, it was easy to do good. How many millions of elementary It is difficult to determine how much money was made from purchases and sales fay. It has always been striking to me that the items to be purchased Land previously often fell into the hands of city councillors or whose relatives were advised and then with tremendous benefit were sold to the city. I am reminded of Osdorf,

— , . 7¹/₈d: — — — — — i tm abe —

. ee A ig ba ae ee"

— 206 —

municipal cattle yard, the market hall in Dorotheenstraße, Marga—rethenfschule, the houses which are part of the breakthrough of Zimmerfstraße.

had to be purchased etc. If I look at all these Purchases, and all the richly paid beautiful

Millions of people think that the following image will not leave my memory.

In my old apartment I met a Droß whose horse had fallen (he had his own cab and two Horses). He soon became ill himself and was finally 12 Marks in arrears in taxes. A locker was sealed, which had cost 78 marks when purchased. The same came for public sale and brought 21 marks. After deducting the After paying the tax and all costs, only a few pennies remained.
It would be good if the funds raised in this way be, enrichment of individuals could not take place. A local doctor told me the following: relatives of his had offered the city a piece of land for sale, without success.
One day a gentleman came to them and explained:
"If the city is to buy the property, the offer must be written by me in your name. Then you know the relevant office. How much should I spend?
serve? The price can at least be increased a little!" The People responded to this and negotiations were now really taking place opened. A few weeks ago, an acquaintance of mine was sitting in the council keller. At a neighboring table sat several well-known Berliners Citizens, including a school commission chairman from the north of Berlin together with a magistrate treasury official The latter complained bitterly that the Jewish banker and City Councilor Mammoth from a municipal treasury the significant money supplies and deposit bills of exchange. The eternal ab= bill is causing him tremendous difficulties. If this is the case in the
That were true, then the limit of the possible would not only be fuffices, but even exceeded. This matter requires urgently an investigation. I will of course but this company issued the municipal bonds over and Jakob Landau was elected, Gebr. Schickler announced the Relationship. Now very nice conditions must have developed.

17. The Jew and the higher education system. |

. For the higher education system, the Israelites show a very lively interest. Wherever they have the gimeni, there happens for the same thing a great deal. The reason is obvious. The Jew knows that the Jewish goal can only be achieved if the Jews chkenkutscher know,

– 207 –

also in education ahead of the German people. In all higher schools, whether boys' or girls' schools, the Jewish Children and baptized or rebaptized Jewish teachers the ruling Element. Statistical material is difficult to obtain, since the Jewish press is very careful not to publish Notes to bring. Berlin has about 11000 Jewish and 11000 Catholic school-age children. I reserve the right to withdraw several, however, Catholic and Jewish are added here as opposites for the example was too convenient, and also appropriate, because the Catholic children, with few exceptions, were Of the 11,000 Catholic children of Germany, 9000, of the 11000 Jewish people, about 2000 are looking for the community-schools. In the middle classes of the municipal higher girls' schools are almost half, but in the upper three-quarters of the children Jewish, since the German girls due to lack of means attend school less often until the end. In the higher The situation is only slightly better in boys' schools. How harmful the influence of Jewish girls on German girls is—I have shown above that this is the case. The consequences of this partial influence on our female sex already noticeable in every nook and cranny. Because the Jews are all have sufficient funds in hand, send them with the Certificate of maturity from grammar schools and secondary schools from sons who had gone to the universities, which were made possible by the Jewish students' hand-taking of their German character have already changed significantly. They mainly focus on medicine and law, but they are also present in the other Even in theology, baptized Christians are penetrating Jews. I only remind you of the disaster that was caused by a baptized Jews in the English community, furthermore to the commis voyageur of the Berlin clergy, Dr. Paulus Caffel, whose fame echoes in all Jewish newspapers. Everywhere the Germans are displaced by them, because they find still now means and ways to move into positions after which the German candidate longs for in vain. So gradually the leadership of the nation entirely into their hands. The German youths, who, upon completion of their studies, usually also have their have run out of money, are left without a job. Many of them can be seen by visiting the workers' colony in the north from Berlin. Unfortunately, the Germans, who otherwise find resistant enough to withstand external blows of fate, } very quickly perish if they lose the ideals that dwell in their hearts have to give up.

Of the rest, many form the hopeful increase for social democracy; a few years ago I met a Theologian Belling, who, through unjustified rejection very bitter, had become a Social Democrat and probably will one day become a capable leader. His grandfather was a highly respected superintendent in my homeland. I suspect that the above-mentioned postal secretary Belling is his brother or

Uncle ift. What influence the fate of the same, who through the

But the destructive effect of Jewish influence is everywhere Hand in hand. Those German students and K Those who can still hold on finally go to the post office, tax and railways, where now also the arrival ft is already becoming difficult. In recent times it has been reported omitted to publicly warn parents not to expose their sons to the scholars= The golden soil of the craft is in praised in all keys. So it must come! I am sure the last one who left a capable German master craftsman behind a German scholar, but is it right that Judaism's path to unconditional rule is becoming more and more But that happens when Judaism destroys the spiritual Jurists are increasingly taking over. I am currently reading in the orddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung that in this semester for the first time in many years a decline in the number of students at the local university. The satisfaction into our schools to corrupt our children from the ground up, how it takes possession of the judges' and lawyers' offices in order to to tear our sense of justice from our hearts, as our German doctors, senior civil servants, university professors gradually repressed, we must become anxious and worried we look into the future and anxiously ask fate: Do you want you the Germans, who are among all the royal peoples in the East and West, North and South, into the bondage of the lowest and most repulsive tribe, without attempting to seriously fight against it?!

I just noticed in the anti-Semitic catechism of Thomas grer some tables, which I simply print here.

| Note that those Jews whose parents were baptized unfortunately among Protestants, Catholics and dissidents with= are counted. The number of Jews is therefore higher than the table In addition, it is already three years old, and since then the number of Jews has increased significantly. In addition, the Jews still have a higher school for boys and girls all to yourself. |

1. Gymnasium in Berlin.

STotal= |

|

- i number of | =

Yiame of Unftalt. =i es Protestants, Catholics Jews Dissidents

| Dorjchule |

1. Askanifisches Gymnasium | 818 666 | 25 120 2

= French 8 p» | 593 321 | 20 252 | -

3. Wilhelms = 1011 709 38 262 | 2

4. Friedrichs 746 472 14 258 2

5. Joachimthal'fches, 534 506 11 4 3

6. Cologne = 680 543 14 220 3

7. Sophie | 67 419 21 231 | 1

8. Royal City = | 684 447 9 226 2

9. Friedr. Werderfches 663 404 22 233 4

10. Louisenstadt. 739 594 17 125 | 3

11. Friedr. Wilhelm, 1321 | 1171 40 110 -

12. Louisen i 622 554 33 33 2

13. Leibnitz p 543 439 21 83 -

14. Humboldt. 711 621 29 55 6

15. Gray Monastery "559 | 444g | 105 2

16. Municipal. Srogornafinm | 527 488 18 | 19 2

Summa | 11418 | 8693 | 340 | 2346 | 34

2. First class secondary schools and secondary gymnasiums in Bertin.

| |

total

| number of |

Name of the institution. | a Protestant. Catholics Jews dee

| 11

| -LE. - " SPEARS ' Lake

1. Royal Secondary School 660 580 18 62 | -

2. Falk=Realgymnasium 830 682 23 124 1

3. Friedrichs=Realgymnasium 575 495 23 56 | 1

4. Dorotheenstadt Realgym. 769 620 39 106 4

5. Louisenstadt. 753 590 | 26 134 3

6. Louisenstadt. Whether. Realsch. 692 642 10 38 2

7. Sophien=Realgymnasium 666 541 12 112 1

8th Municipal Higher School 273 240 4 29 -

8. Andreas=Realgymnafium 781 703 14 61 ae | 3

10. Königftädt. j 770 | 597 | 12 | 161 8
 Total: 67 6769 5690 | 181 69 | 5690 | 181 | 883 883 15 15
 3. Technical schools in Berlin.
 Total= | | 7
 Name of the Unftalt. number of | Protestants. “| Jews' same student | eer Werdersche Ge- 518 435 23 54 6
 advertising school |
 Commercial School 257 188 7 67 2
 Summa: 775 618 30 121 | 8

=

per eat a ee ee ee er ee in
 * 'i

ri nn ee

:
 3 – -û a DL f
 To mip D 2 ne u, van po E

– to sa aE al tae asA a ag heal Sl – –

– 210 –

4. State and municipal secondary schools for girls in Berlin.

Captured: | a |
 Name of the institution. a aba Protestant. Ren Jews: wen Pupils
 | ———
 1. Victoria=School | 850 568 4 251 2
 2. Louisen=School | 831 572 18 21 | –
 3. Elifabeth School 557 445 2 110 | –
 4. Sophieeen=Saule 833 484 T 337 5
 5. Margarethen=School 534 303 5 226 u
 6. Charlotten=School 4 912 588 23 300 1
 Summa: 4517 | 2985 59 1465 8

The population of Berlin is around 1,400,000 souls (1887), of which non-Jews (Protestants, Catholics and Dissidents) Jews: 67,000. The total number of students and Pupils of the educational institutions listed in Tables I–IV be= carries 23,481. Of these, according to the population percentage, attributable to non-Jews: 22,357; to Jews 1124. but actually only 18,666 non-Jews; 4815 Jews Students. The Jews therefore provide the higher educational institutions in Ratio 4 to 5 times more students than the German native Population.

5. The enormous disproportion becomes even more obvious, if you make the following calculation from the above figures:

Pupils

bezw | peeler
student. Gymnaf= Realgym= ray of the egg
the in aften nafiajten | 9 = ee no TR
Table 1–4 cf. cf. 9 . en
designated. Table 1 | Table 2 Petal. | jchulen Higher public Table 3 cf.
— Senda,

Table 4

For every 1000 entries

residents of Berlin around 17
For every 1000 not

Jewish residents of Berlin around 14 around 7
For every 1000 Ber=

Liner Jews around 72 around 35

around 8

around 5 | around $\frac{1}{2}$ around 3

around 4 around Y, | around 2

around 13] around 2 around 22

The Jewish children who enter the school find themselves at the higher
Re-educate their tribesmen as teachers.

In 1886, 5721 young people studied in Vienna, of whom 3173
Aryan, 2085 femift tribe, whereby the baptized Jews are still counted among the Aryans. At the technical college in In Vienna the ratio was 591 to 303. At the gymnasiums and other higher schools in Vienna, the average ratio is of Jewish children $33\frac{1}{2}$ to 50 %, whereas Jews only make up
"joo of the population of Austria.

– 211 –

At the University of Berlin were:

Professors:

a. Medicine 29 Germans, including German Jews 13 Jews

b. Jura l 12 " H 77 77 3 17

C. Rhilofovbie 75 7 ft fr ft 13 fr

Private lecturers:

A. Medicine 27 75 FI ny rr 35 fF

b. Jura 4 . 5 ij 3 y

C. Philosophy 44 ir n " H 11 7

Total 191 Germans, including German Jews 78 Jews

The names of Jewish baptized and unbaptized professors

The lecturers are as follows:

a. Medicine: Bernhard, Falk, Henoch, Hirsch, Hirschberg, Jacobson, G. Levin, Liebreich, Liman, C. Mendel, Herm. Munk, Sanator, Wolf, Ad. Baginsky, B. Baginsky, Behrendt, Bergson, Brieger, Eulenburg, Fränkel, C Friedländer, Gud, Güterbock, Gutmann, Guttstadt, O. Israel, G. Kempner,
A. Koffel, L. Krifeller, Landau, O. Laffer. Louis Levin, L. Levinsky. M. Litten, Mayer, Munk, Perl, 5. Reimannn, Remack, Rieß, Salomon, Sander, Schiffer, Schüler, Veit, Max Wolff, W. Zülzer. i

b. Jura: Dernburg, L. Goldschmidt, Ernst Rubo, Dr. Bernfeld, Gradewitz, Ryk.

c. Philosophy: Aschersohn, Harry Breslau, Ludwig Geiger, | Hirschfeld, Kronecker, Lazarussohn, Moritz Lazarus, C. Liebermann, P. Magnus, Oldenburg, A. Pinner, H. Steinthal, Werder, H. Aron, Boas, Deffau, Sigm. Gabriel, J. Jaftrow, Kaufmann, Loewenfeld, A. Loffen, RM Meyer, Rodenberg, Simmel, F. Afcherfson.

d. Technical University: M. Hamburger, Julius Leffing, L. Liebermann, Adler, Dobbert, Herzfeld, Hirschfeld, Jacobsthal, S. Kalischer, Lehfeld, Moritz Meyer, Weyl.

e. Art Academy: Meyerheim, Michael.

f. Agriculture Institute: Nathan Zuntz.

18. Jew and elementary school teacher.

This chapter is explained in detail in a brochure

be treated, but some things about it must also be said here.

The elementary school as such has such a essential personal meaning, because not often lost

14 *

* . e - ae Se - - - nr

8 212 -

fome, at least in Berlin, a Jewish child in the same. About-

2 Jewish children attend the schools I run in the East and.

North of the city. This personal interest= is also unfortunately the case with all other parties, except perhaps by the Social Democrats, not available, since the children of all better, i.e. wealthier classes, with minor exceptions of the Stay away from school. For this reason, the Care of all parties for the elementary school within moderate

Limits. The tendency to push the elementary school teacher beyond the bare necessities to satisfy beyond, is nowhere to be found, least of all in Berlin, the stronghold of Judaism. Some further attention.

Regina Baginsky, Miss Rofenthal II, Miss Jacoby I, Miss Jaftrow I, Miss Simon II, Miss Kohn, Miss Wolff IV, Miss Oppenheim, Miss.
Löwenherz, Miss Cohn J, Miss Kirfein, Miss Rofenthal IV, Miss
Frenzel, Miss Fränkel, Miss Jaftrow II, Miss Jakoby II, Miss Jakoby III, Miss Reiß, Miss Meyer IT Miss Jakoby IV, Miss Kupfer, Miss Lilienthal, Miss Jakoby V, Miss Heilbron, Miss Heilbron, Miss Kaifer II, Miss.
EBler, Miss Wolff V, Miss Singer, Miss Rofenthal V, Miss Lydia

Dear Eva Meyer, Miss Hirsch! This should

chen teachers, only at some distinctive

The names mentioned above show how far the Judaization of the community school have taken the exam, are without bread, the most bitter need

When a few months ago a craftsman

a number of them in the sheer urge to get married, overlooked that the educational difference was a happy
Before it was at least doubtful whether the majority of—
He acted under the pressure of terrible need. Position cannot be obtained because the Jewish women take the positions,
They do not understand factory work, they cannot work as servants because they did not have the time to learn what was necessary.
A nice story ran through the Berlin newspapers recently by a teacher who hired herself out as a nanny and who

N a, bi
— hah A

“I had to wear the Spreewald costume, but I was happy to give it a life preferred to shame, and the daughters of the merchants Lewy Salomonfohn pp taught at large Prussian elementary schools! And which Running around, what visits did a German girl need, who eventually obtained a position. The visits to Ludwig Loewe had become famous in his time. The less interest, Apart from this point, Judaism in elementary school has a the greater the need for primary school teachers. They are 1 parts emerged from rural conditions. Is a boy in the country is particularly gifted, then he must Becoming a teacher. This is why the teaching profession is so contains many highly gifted and talented people. In this
In terms of points, he is certainly superior to any other class.

In teacher training, however, at least in earlier years,

Serious mistakes have been made. The unfortunate view that the Teachers should only be given a strictly defined education because he with his meager income he feels even more dissatisfied would, the more he had, have not borne good fruit. The piety which prevails in many seminaries instead of real cultivated with simple piety has brought no blessing. It has, albeit rarely, produced hypocrites, but in every are ready at any moment to change their beliefs accordingly. Much worse was the effect on the vast majority of the efficiency and honest natures. In these cases, the tendency against religion in general and thus also the tendency towards their wearers, they went in their religious and political litifcal view very far to the left, and indeed often in the most well-meaning way. Here the Jewish press has a very It was easy for the entire German people to It has long escaped us that the leaders of the liberal parties under the Under the cloak of liberal aspirations, only the interests of the trade, ie Judaism, how should the teacher It was easy to avoid the failure legitimate efforts of the teaching profession to improve its situation to the government and the conservative parties. This is not entirely without reason, but the liberal Parties where they were in power, for the elementary school teachers little done. Something thorough for the elementary school is only happened twice, under Frederick William I and Frederick Wilhelm III at the time of his greatest enthusiasm for Pestalozzi.

Through their it is nevertheless the liberal Parties have been most successful in keeping teachers firmly in their lane to hold on, and as a result mainly the middle classes are long Time to liberalism, that is, here to Jewish capitalism, remained faithful. .

Of course, especially in Berlin there were many teachers who Truth has long since been seen through, very clear anti-Semitic tendencies betrayed, while often adhering to very liberal views. To eradicate this dangerous plague root and branch, To promote the followers of Judaism, the very next

. — T dr HERE in — na ET

Duty of Judaism and its mercenaries, and of zeal and: Ruthlessness was not lacking. My own-Life history has proven this sufficiently.

Here are just a few examples that multiply in infinity The Rector Bellardi in Steinmetzstrasse is a zealous Progressive man. At his school there were two teachers, Herkt and: Wegner, a close friend, the latter lived as a chamberlain with

j The latter was about to be appointed as rector and One day, at the same time, at the school deputation,
the same anonymous denunciation to the school inspector and the principal=

Mr. Wegner received the denunciation, which was sent to the Rector himself, and he recognized in the same.
the disguised handwriting of his own rector Bellardi. He sued him for knowingly false denunciation and slander= appointment with the arbitrator. Bellardi has committed his crime here.
confessed and apologized, I have the official document Gah seen. What became of this absolutely monstrous.

Matter? :

Mr. Bellardi still has the most beautiful school in Berlin, also runs a municipal further education school. Liberality against Liberality. Mr. Wegner, however, became rector and has Bellardi was a teacher in a much worse investigation, which I will discuss in my detailed paper about the Berlin elementary schools.

A highly liberal school superintendent judge was years ago
of two teachers at the same time for impregnation to the authorities sued. His teaching license was revoked, then:
approved again. He taught at the school run by his wife.
girls' school.

A rector named Zitzky showed very worrying anti-Semitic tendencies.
and was awarded a public prize by the city councillor Gericke.
Street. Later he was given a better school.
Head of one of the largest urban further education schools. He was eager progressive. See the request to Zander in my life story. | |

The teacher Müller represented, without being permanently employed, the Rector Folz, who was appointed school inspector in Mogilno in Poznań, then he was simply rehired as a teacher because he allegedly made an anti-Semitic statement much earlier
foll, which he denies. | |

It is similar with the current principal Völker and a teacher
Hoffmann, who failed the political exam. Op.
Dr. Hermes specifically asked him the question: "Do you still believe to the fairy tale of Christ", I cannot determine in this case.
Conservative, Christian=social or even anti-Semitic views are:
in Berlin, more severely than crimes are punished. Some more examples
I gave this kind of explanation in the article Jew and Official.

A

In contrast, consider the following case of liberality of Authorities. A teacher Schmooch was at the Royal Cathedral-singer; as such he belonged to a small association that He frequently made art trips. In such cases he reported to the School always as sick. The appreciative newspaper reports were of course known to the respective rectors, and since he foft, if he was present in the school, this was not treated as the main issue, the rectors themselves complained comprehensible about him. But nothing else happened to him, he was only transferred from one school to another; this was a horror of all the rectors in the South-East continued for years. When an acquaintance asked him how it was possible that he had not been chased away for a long time he replied laughing: "I have an important member of the School deputation (he mentioned the name) once in interesting Situation hit, nobody will hurt me!" In my later In this detailed work I will give some more examples of this kind. dozen. The conditions in the teaching staff have because it was also completely designed according to the wishes of Judaism and do it more and more every day. One does not want to judge too harshly. The Most teachers have a large family, and their Idealism was still too great, especially in youth, to de in their marriage purely external considerations in the foreground. Here there is a threat of constant persecution, in which yes, although politics is never mentioned, there are attractions all kinds of compensation, overtime, hours at training schools, Support, positions at higher schools, honorary positions, the we are at least indirectly profitable, finally the position as rector, etc. Many teachers do not need such a great sacrifice of the intellect because they have truly liberal views at heart which, however, always seems to be associated with some anti-Semitism. quickt fare. But those who, against their conviction, once made this sacrifice have brought, then the most zealous partisans and angry denunciations of colleagues and superiors. Where is Berlin remained free? The situation was in the darkest Middle Ages and the time of the most oppressive Napoleonic rule There was still real freedom. At that time, at least such Informers are still punished with public contempt. If the Teachers free, then the Jewish progressive election campaign be over quickly enough. That the elementary school itself under such No proof is required that the Berlin Elementary school could be unattainable in the world. present only the following: Like the entire population Germany's magnetic force draws it to the state capital Anyone who feels attracted to the school, including the teaching staff. Anyone who has any to be accepted in Berlin, apply here for An telung.. From all over Germany, the school deputation the leading forces. The increasing number of

The city's income enables it to finance all external hålmiffe of the school to make it brilliant. What could it be The reason is that even though the children from outside the school are enrolled here,

—: — . — a NETTE —

|

— 216 —

although often in some subjects, but in general are better than the local students? the reader will decide for himself
fay. In addition, the inherently bad
Children with seeing eyes are directly raised to be scoundrels.

|

1

are always the worst children, inclined to misdeeds, is even understandable. This is why all those students who always Kept under strict supervision and in the hands of the same teacher would have to remain, in a few years six or more times into new Schools are sent. Rectors who, by virtue of their political Point Unbelievable, especially when they know that the rector, whoever has these children will hardly ever be found to be right.

The institution which I received on April 1, 1885, was in this relationship is incomparable. That I from these children
I was still able to do a few things, got used to it,
I am not to be underestimated as an educator. The eight school= inspectors are elected by the municipal school deputation. If one thinks of how the rectors in the Hermes exam
I have to show my identity, so it would be very interesting if you could about the discussions that took place before the election with to do our best for the good and to keep away from machinations of all kinds—try to hold on.

Judaism. That I have through this publication in the first Line must attract the dislike of this man, is for me the only painful. But who can go against his fate!

directly appointed Royal Officials. The Berlin Circumstances such as I have described imperatively demand this, and hopefully the teaching staff will respond to their royal supervision=
The resulting
Costs of about 40,000 marks are not significant.
Teachers desire only one thing, and this absolutely: justice.
The elementary school is restored to its original purpose
if it becomes a direct state school. The school is not an institute, which can be left to the political parties as a toy.

– 217 –

The Royal Government also emphasizes this on all occasions=
ities, but the practical consequences of this view are not drawn.

19. Jew and the Press.

“Until we put the newspapers of the whole world into the hands to deceive and stun the peoples, remains our rule is a figment of our imagination!” This word of his time Moses Montefiore, a Jew living in England, who was tribesmen like a patriarch, and whose appearance sayings have legal force among all Jews in the world, gives us the key to the pursuit of the same, the entire press of the world gradually into their hands, and the Aryans show themselves

also more than willing to support them in this endeavor.
Nine tenths of all newspapers in Europe are either directly in their hands, or dependent on them, because they gave the money have or the same but hg a

The press is the first large hands, that says it all.

Anyone who dares to oppose Judaism will be gen Pressmaute pursued, 9
no honorable person can pass by him without shuddering.
u The French press is completely Jewish, since the Jews bought up almost all the papers; no less than 1746 Newspapers are in their hands there. In Italy, 692 newspapers were edited by Jews. The ones published in Vienna Newspapers are published with the exception of two major and three smaller ones are all run by Jews. In Berlin, the Jews the following papers:

1. Berliner Tageblatt, editor Ruben Mofes (Rudolf

2
3
4
5
6

2
2

on
L 2nd
3.
A.
5th
6

G

power, the press is in Jewish

egt, pelted with dirt, until Moffe), editor Arthur Levyfohn.

Berliner Zeitung, publisher Löb Ullfstein, editor Franz Wißberger.

Berliner Börfencourier, publisher Ruben Davidfohn, editor=
Markus Horwitz,

National-Zeitung, publisher Salomon, editor Kölner.

Volks-Zeitung, editor Heimann Holtheim.

Das Volksblatt, owner Paul Singer.

Jews are dependent:

1 newspaper.

public newspaper.

Vofifche Zeitung.

Deutsches Tageblatt.

ä,,ä.—% 2 —. — no 8

rj ĩ(— —ö-P22: — — “ — , nnee an — Sum — — ® a 1 * * rn

ojt.

Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

– 218 –

Only the following papers are anti-Semitic

1. Neue Preußische (Kreuz-)Zeitung).

2nd Citizen Newspaper.

3rd Reichsbote.

4. The people.

The excellent, groundbreaking cultural warrior of Glagau appears too rarely.

The following anti-Semitic papers still appear in the country:

Antifemific Correspondence (Leipzig).

Leipziger Tageblatt.

Westphalian Reform (Dortmund).

Reichsgeld monopoly (Caffel).

Die Abwehr, monthly newspaper (Hamburg).

Reichsherold (Marburg).

German Watch (Dresden).

Unadulterated German Words (Vienna).

The Kyffhäuser (Salzburg). .

Messenger from the Waldviertel (Horn, Lower Austria).

Austrian People's Friend (Vienna).

Austrian Reformer (Vienna).

Leipziger Zeitung (Leipzig).

Westfälischer Merkur (Münster).

Dresdener Nachrichten (Dresden).

Märkisches Tageblatt (Witten).

Badische Landpost (Karlsruhe).

Hallesches Tageblatt (Halle).

Norddeutsche Preffe (Neu ftin).

Pomeranian Reichspost (Stettin).

Bromberger Tageblatt (Bromberg).

Bavarian Fatherland (Munich).

Triersche Landeszeitung (Trier).

Thorner Preffe (Thorn).

Kölnische Volkszeitung (Cologne).

Bonner Reichszeitung (Bonn).

Fatherland (Vienna). |

Neuigkeits-Wellblatt (Vienna).

Neue Westf. Volkszeitung (Bielefeld).

Grenzboten (Leipzig).

This is the list of all newspapers in Germany which still dare to speak out against the Jews. But what does that mean say against the thousands of newspapers in Germany, which in Jewish hands. And how cleverly the Jew knows how to

to make the presentation pleasant for the reader! Especially the women, who have a decisive say in the choice of newspaper are attracted by the many spicy news, felflichlich mostly invented. Even the confusing Novels that are designed to awaken the sensuality are popular.

– 219 –

Of course, the men are treated with all kinds of ingen, who are only in the second line, through everything possible ringing of the ears so that she is a mindless tool will be used.

In between falls one drop of poison after another, as the love for throne and age is destroyed and gradually turns into a direction of time that is pleasing to the Jew.

At no time is the people so politically incapable of judgment ewefen, as now. Blue haze has replaced the calm consideration.

If Jewish interests are at stake, the entire zudenpfe on the square and raises such a tremendous noise. one believes one hears the opinion of the entire people. Ror this so-called people's voice, which is supposed to be the voice of God, Even the greatest men retreat. Through the press Judaism has the fatherland on a leash, and the warning= Most of the few independent newspapers go unheard.

Just think of the Gräfe trial, the fight against of the German physicians Kailer Friedrichs in favor of the English swindler, to the engagement affair of the Battenberger and 7 w.

Even judges, juries, and parliaments, who have to decide on matters that are of interest to the Jewish are of importance are protected by all kinds of legal Sophistications that are presented as popular opinion, in their judgment is clouded and they often come to opposing decisions.

It was mainly the press that, through its fraudulent liable recommendations of unreal start-ups in the founder= time has deprived the German people of six billion, which now safe and sound in Jewish cupboards – The savings of the little Citizens, no matter how safely they were kept, the Jewish press knew but to lure out and fill their pockets and the pockets of the Jewish founders to fill it with it.

We have just experienced a second founding period.
There will not be much fuss. The newspapers are harmless= and finally play the injured innocence. The readers hold hold on to them.

How much morality is damaged by them is unimaginable
Just look at how young girls
Ads section. There are numerous Jewish Physicians for the healing of sexual diseases, male weakness, Syphilis, urinary ailments, midwives who provide their assistance and accommodation announce secret births, furthermore there are marriage announcements, as well as advertisements for making interesting acquaintances, etc.

One ad was so interesting to me that I at least partial reprints. e

"A full and voluptuous breast is the most beautiful adornment of the.
Women; whoever does not have one, should coat it with Dr. Pyvres Venus = Tincture, also to be used on the calves– use." | |

|

1 nade apart
renal

ee a te A

– 411

– 220 –

On both sides of the above advertisement were the pictures two women, one of whom is a weak woman, the other an overweight woman moderately strong breast. Under these pictures were the words to read: "Before use" "After use." Similar

Advertisements can be read daily in the Jewish newspapers.

As long as the Jewish press is not paralyzed, it is difficult
It can be hoped that the German people will emerge from their stupor Anyone who assumes a public teaching post must state authorities his scientific and moral standing—have demonstrated their ability. A newspaper writer is a teacher of People. Why is he not also the moral and scientific qualification required? Why is it not also subject to a disciplinary law?

You can see here, as everywhere, that the state authorities have lost their energy towards Judaism, and what that means,
can be learned from every successful revolution.

20. Jew and Morality.

The married life of the Jews is generally impure—
However, every Jewish marriage is considered from the outset as a business, but then the Jew in an exemplary manner. As much as the Jew is inclined to sexual Although he tends towards ex-girlfriends, he has too much respect for Jewish women to
To expose shame, to satisfy his lusts serve the German girls. The existing natural aversion of the same against him he knows how to eliminate to the extent that his social Superiority grows. What can the most virtuous German Girl who is socially dependent on the Jew, against the constant seductive arts of the sophisticated voluptuary!
A few years ago, newspapers reported on the names
a sad story that is in some respects typical. A

The girl was employed in a millinery shop and saw herself
— courted by her Jewish boss, who rejected became.

One day the director pocketed some leftovers and asked the girl to make some of them into doll clothes for her siblings because the boss didn't say anything about it.

The poor girl fell into the trap. The next day
The boss took her to the office and told her that she had to Director had stolen from him and now the public prosecutor's office
There is only one way out, only have to consider this. The girl remained steadfast, and the Jew really handed them over to the court and condemned

Your, the defendant's, statements were of no value in court;

ES eee

– 921 –

My Jewish boss and his clean Jewish director were witnesses.

The demoralization of the German people is growing at a rapid pace relationship with social corruption.

When a primary school teacher looks at the pupil sitting in front of him blooming group of girls and realizes that these harmless children were raised with so much effort and work to serve partly the Jewish lust, then His heart will probably be seized by deep sorrow. Whoever
If you do not want to believe the statements, but are interested in researching the
If you mean truth honestly, we call on you to do so within the time of eleven until two o'clock in the morning to visit a Viennese café, such as the Café National, Friedrich- and Jägerstraße corner. Whoever
Whoever gives injustice shall have won. |

I will first read here some sayings from Talmud 2c.
which, as I demonstrated in the Tietz=Zucker trial,
concerning the oath, where its observance is most denied,
observed under the most difficult circumstances imaginable, then I bring an essay from the Kulturkämpfer von Glagau (Berlin).

Moses fagi: You shall not covet your neighbor's wife, and: Whoever commits adultery with his neighbour's wife is guilty of death. The only crime punishable for a Jew is adultery to the neighbor, that is, the Jew's wife, the wife of the non-Jew is excluded.

(Tr. Sanh. f. 52, 2.)

Rabbi Bechai, Levi ben Gerfon and others teach that the Marriage of the non-Jew is not valid in the eyes of the Israelites and that the Jew does not commit adultery if he has a non-defile a Jewish woman.

The Talmud 11115 (Tr. Joma f. 18, 2) that some of his first wise men, Rabbi Rab and Nachmann, when they entered a foreign city, had publicly proclaimed whether there was a woman on wanted to be her wife for a few days. Also explained in the Talmud Rabbi Elias said that despite the Day of Atonement, he wanted to send many young people women, since sin is outside the door of the heart, the inner part of the soul from the wickedness of people remain untouched.

, (Tr. Soma f. 19, 2.)

Ron Rabbi Eliefer is told that no prostitute on the world that he did not need.

I will now give the floor to Glagau.
One has certainly already said a lot and correct things about the delicate and yet so important question of prostitution, but still

Few have spoken about the circumstances which this vice to a certain extent create and systematically nourish. Dr. Fr. W. Müller says in his social=medical study on prostitution.

(1868, page 5): "To speak of what causes many of these=

i
E.
4

ae ee" Pag I a en –

mer

– 222 –

Unfortunate beings were driven onto their path, how little they can be held responsible, how much guilt against it partly the whole society, partly individual rejected subites
You don't even think about it when you meet the same person – and yet because the really vicious, and should one just then fight against it
"–Many people are unaware that in Berlin, where the

a hiding place, but a formal training school

This vice is. With a little experience and knowledge of the Conditions of the Berlin clothing business, which in relation to has a wide reputation for his achievements, I will agree when I say: for the morals of a young girl

There is probably no greater ruin than a position in the clothing production.

Who does not know the clothing manufacturers by their reputation?

of Berlin, that kind of chosen prostitutes to whom the Stamp of their profession through the f wart, striking clothing

– They flutter around on the main streets at any situation and time of night; dozens of times making the same journey,
Up and down sidewalks, with a hopping gait that with all Refinement of toiletries elevated forms of the body showing and offering and to anyone who helps them for their intentions seems suitable, throwing a frivolous smile. Will she not every stranger for prostitutes, and is he allowed to hide behind these

“What do the servants of a commercial house suspect?

before being entered into the list of filthy prostitutes.
Isn't it already reprehensible if a daughters of joy in his rooms; is it not deeply misunderstood?
horrible when a boss criticizes the immoral lifestyle of his employees overlooked? But how much more mean and vile is it, when the boss actually leads his shop girls to fornication and in a sense acts as a matchmaker himself?! But that is in

This is the case in many Berlin confectionery shops.

The immorality, the corruption among the employees

female sex, mainly in the Jewish houses of the

How much blame does the clothing industry bear for the demorealised conditions of the poorer classes of the population of Berlin!

L *

– | im sen bel ole mA el

i C

Neither father nor mother asks what means the Daughter, the state, paid for the expensive costumes. They whitewash To others these expenses with the position in the “large, fine clothing store”; probably concealing the fact that places only 20 Thaler monthly salary, of which the Parents deduct 10–12 thalers for accommodation and food. are happy that their daughter is “so well placed”, and even if she still think honorable, if the girl is already so mischievous, because it carefully conceals the actual source of its income. 50, secret prostitution is gaining ground day by day and undermines morality and shame. One is amazed at the number fo young girls, often barely 16 years old, who in the evening, after the shops have closed, in the busiest places, such as Unter den Linden, Friedrich–, Leipzigerftraße and Passage, hunting addressing a gentleman to whom she had invited him for a supper, a theatre: ticket or for cash.

In Paris, which rightly enjoys a very bad reputation, where public prostitution is greater than in any other city the world, where this vice knows almost no limits and fhowever, more open and bolder than in any other place, In comparison, there are not so many of these very young creatures, who are secretly devoted to prostitution. There may well be the freedom of morals and the numerous concubinages there The main reason for this phenomenon is because we know that after Abolition of brothels led to prostitution gaining in expansion Previously it was open, now it remains hidden, and this is far worse! Especially in the Berlin clothing store – there are at least 250 companies that employ over 1000 shop girls hold – the most shameful intrigues and dirtiest stories. It is already a part of Shamelessness that a young girl dares to Body now in this, now in that piece of clothing the lascivious To expose oneself to the gaze of the spectators, now here, now there, from the To be touched by a man's hand, which happens far more often than it is necessary to use this or that unnatural means need to lift and beautify the shapes of the body. This display would have a deterrent effect on a young seem like a decent lady, and I believe that with a good constructed artificial figure could also achieve the purpose.

The interest of the principal, however, requires that the goods be shown in the most favorable light possible, and he demands that his Shop girls appear in the most elegant and modern costumes, in order to use the living model as a sample card for his business. He does not even think about giving them to these Expenses to be paid accordingly. The usual salary of the Ladies is 50 to 75 marks per month. In silk and Walk with velvet and live honorably!

One might object that the principal is not entitled to duty to take care of the livelihood of his people, which he chooses at his own discretion or rather according to the existing law—

– 224 –

demands that far exceed their salary. He forces formally the young girl, in some other way the offers and gladly pays double if the young lady does not fly to sell her honor to him. Quite openly, she offered such a thing in a large Berlin clothing store the Jewish owner of a decent young lady, who was also engaged, if she In the evening I wanted to allow a private visit to her apartment.

i

are the strangers who want to shop and have fun at the same time, or find old acquaintances who can offer them younger colleagues. "Berlin no longer has brothels, but it has "Confectionery shops!" I heard a gentleman from out of town say very

Must say in the environment of corrupt colleagues, the use every free minute to play frivolous jokes, dirty To tell anecdotes and dirty experiences, not the unschooled girls are dragged into the pool of insatiability?

For about fourteen days, the Business hired the young girl, who in a decent and tasteful black dress, when the principal she noticed in front of the entire staff that she could be even more advantageous dress to give his coats a better appearance. Although she had not yet received a salary and was without means, she replied to the boss that she would order a new dress. However, just a few days later, the Jew shouted at her in such a harsh

Indicate that she is still wearing the same dress, that he does not could use if she did not come better dressed tomorrow, yes that the girl left the shop deeply offended to go to a previous month, without paying for the agreed fortnightly A written reminder from her remained unanswered, and when she tried to contact the boss personally speak, he threatened to have her thrown out if she omptoir again. Because they were too poor and un= had gone to trial, she was satisfied.

In another clothing store, the Jewish owners of the company did not, in unnoticed moments fto throw amorous and ambiguous glances at his ladies and to indecent way of getting close to them. It is even said that

– 225 –

that he had forced a young girl in his office to engage in lewd wanted to induce actions after he had informed the personnel present Had sent away under a pretext. Another lady is there because he was making preparations to to harass. This Don Juan is an older, married man, and is not ashamed to portray such scenes in his own great business. – The head of another house of the same Branch, of course again a Jew, answered a young lady, who presented herself for a vacant position, upon her remark, that 15 thalers monthly salary is probably too little, with meaningful smile: "I give my ladies for that too free at 6 o'clock!" – She replied that he had a decent girl in front of him and left the bar. |

People despise the usurer who exploits the need and poverty of his exploits fellow human beings; but certainly even more contempt is due the man who leads his people on the path of dishonor, prostitution in order to obtain cheap labor. Are there not already enough of these poor daughters of joy who often hunger drives them to offer their bodies for sale? The imagination 'a young girl is rich, the sensual drive is strong, the But flesh is weak, and so she soon succumbs to temptation, of sophisticated seduction. The pleasure, the intoxication of pleasure in which perhaps two or three years passed fare, is quickly over, the spirit ftub, without will, does not look into the future, but mechanically pays tribute to nature. The fallen girl does not pull herself together, holds the one= path for the destiny of fate, considers it as a business, a job that will soon be no worse than any other If you ask these lost creatures here in Berlin what they used to be, one only too often receives the answer:

Ready-made clothing. The cases where a young girl has a strong characterters and is so steadfast in facing the constantly approaching
To resist temptations, the lascivious proposals of the principal, of the staff and the gentlemen dealing with the business persistently rejects are rare, and I believe that few act as a young lady who had a very unpleasant experience in the Jewish clothing house of NN. Barely twelve
She was employed there for weeks when she was hospitalized due to a minor illness stayed at home and announced her absence through a postcard
How surprised was the young girl, who, in her Parents lived in very poor conditions when one day one owner of the company, an older, married man, owns sought to, as he pretended, inquire after her well-being.
Delighted by the great care of her boss and in great anticipation opportunity not to receive him better, she thanked him for the honor he showed her. When the mother, however, for a
As she left the room, the young lady saw her fo serious principal suddenly became very excited; he explained to her that he had grown very fond of her, regretted leaving her in such
to see bad conditions, and after he had a cheeky

, le

ee E

Bau PN

13

– 226 –

After attempting to grab her around the waist with a gesture of his hand, he offered her with flying words and loving glances, she gladly to want to support. Outraged, the girl avoided her frivolous:
attacks and told him that they were in favor of such a offered support. After the Jude left the room, she shared the incident with her mother and an acquaintance of the same did not fail to inform the boss and confront him about his actions.
At the same time he informed him that the young lady was his business will no longer be entered. What a disgrace to the poverty of a young girl in order to satisfy her-
To win lust. The ladies' wardrobe business is not the only one that accommodates prostitutes; unfortunately, they already find too closely linked to society not to be disguised any other business, be it as saleswomen, mondists, workers 2. But in every other business and the fallen girl still hides her vice out of shame.

before the decent comrades, for fear of jeopardizing their position and to lose employment, only in the clothing industry does the
As a rule, do not be anxious and reserved, but instead
Here, instead of shame, she often reaps triumphs, and instead of disappointment,
At an early age she will receive salary increases and handsome gifts
Not even the appearance of rebellion is preserved:
Not even ten steps away from the shop you can see the "young ladies" can be addressed by any gentleman who is not needs more time and words to confuse them than any Whore. Truly, it is shameful that such mushrooms are on the.

soil of commercial business should be allowed to flourish; one should

Eradicate the weeds instead of planting and growing them!

I have raised this question in the hope that it find interest and consideration in wider circles, and that the picture I designed of the Berlin clothing stores
"May this serve as a warning to parents and young girls."

The following passage in this essay is very interesting: The Head of another company in the same industry, of course again a Jew, answered a young lady who was applying for a vacant Place, upon her remark that 15 Thaler salary monthly but probably not enough, with a meaningful smile: "For that I also give my ladies the day off at 6 o'clock!" She replied him that he had a decent girl in front of him and left the Local! Glagau's article was written years ago, but I met this lady 14 days ago. I can tell you, Mr Glagau can tell you more about it. The answer was received in business of BL, was then without a job for a long time and finally found Accommodation in one of the largest shops in the house=
Vogteiplatz

There she has two illegitimate children with the Jewish boss which are now being maintained by the girl's brothers, who are also employed in Jewish businesses. Because It is feared that the latter will give up their positions if their full names are mentioned

- 27 -

lose, I will not give the names for the time being. Privately, I am ready to do so. So a girl who is publicly praised as virtuous finally falls victim to Jewish lust, and how!

The boss already has grown-up children. If you add to that the fact that that terrible disease which our people owes solely to the Jews, is still very widespread among them today, so one will

Can measure the corruption that Jewish morality has caused in the German people.

| Hally, my only one! said the weaponsmith Teuthold, as his daughter had been raped, whom he immediately killed, although she was innocent. The rape of a girl was

Germans the worst crime, only blood could atone. Hallys ~

Desecration gives the signal in the Battle of Hermann by Kleist to the uprising of all German tribes.

Hally, my only one! Even today, many fathers still like sigh, but the German people are no longer getting up. They smile well, one is joking when one speaks of Lewin or Landsberger tells that he is again an honest girl of shame handed down, or deprived a young girl of her honor. Such poor creatures do not find any help, unless that a girl herself would find the courage to face such a rude but cowardly to personally apologize to the slanderer for the insult done to her. punish. Lilly Lehmann proved to Mr. Davidsohn with the whip, that there are sometimes girls who give up their honour against Jews know how to defend.

Many German men are now able to to have to accept whatever the Jew may still offer them left over.

Heaven and hell! Hello, my only one! Read the Hermanns Battle of Kleist. What men our ancestors were. Would they be proud of us despite our culture?

That Jewish manufacturers and wholesalers see it as their own understandably if the young people they employ Girls reveal their bodies in order to even get a to get to the place that satisfies their most basic needs, prove the statements of the same, which have become known several times ft. By bending the courts, for example, the statement of Mr. Rofenthal to a master who complained that at the low prices he was leaving the coat seamstresses starving wages. Mr. Rofenthal said: Let the Girls go on the streets, but get cheap coats! Mr. Rofenthal was the companion of Paul Singer, the Jewish leader the Social Democrats. .

As long as a girl is with the Jew to satisfy his sensual pleasure, she will receive it from him and even reward it with gifts showered with it, but if he is tired of it, then she has which consideration can no longer be expected.

I came across a brochure with the title:
A dark spot in the life of the Privy Councillor of Commerce von Bleichröder in Berlin. In it the author tells,

15*

– 228 –

Mayor a. DW Lafer, that Mr. von Bleichröder a vermarried girlfriend, Mrs. Croner, whom he had breaking off their relationship, I handed over a document in to which he committed himself to certain services. Monthly fshould be 90 marks, on every high holiday an additional 75 marks received. Their children should be taken care of. This document fshall later, under circumstances which are described in detail, the
But I must not believe if I consider the circumstances of my Fatherland does not want to see it as absolutely lost, stolen
Mr. von Bleichröder later took the following oath sworn:

"I pp. swear to God Almighty and Omniscient, the fact is not true that I am a Document of 1 that I have given the plaintiff for secret= attitude of her alleged relationship to me before my Wife for life in monthly installments of 30 Thaler and on each of the four main Jewish holidays 25 Thaler and to pay a severance payment for their children promised, so help me God.

However, various people had seen this appearance,
and Mr. von Bleichröder was charged with perjury.
After the investigation was initiated, Mrs Croner, whom fie had received 48,000 marks, then another 70,000 marks, a signed a certificate in which she declared,

"that she had made a mistake with the document."

Mrs Croner made this statement to her lawyer Modler in Berlin in the presence of the Plenipotentiary of the pou von Bleichröder, former mayor Weber and the eftaurateurs Collin, with Mrs. Croner being addressed by Mr. von Bleichröder was paid 70,000 marks, of which 21,000

Mark to the restaurateur Collin for alleged court expenses-costs were immediately passed on. Mrs. Croner then walked immediately to England, where she is still located. This was in 1884. Before that, when the document was stolen and there were no witnesses, Mrs. Croner by the criminal ommiffarius Count of Schwerin here, Zion-kirchplatz 1, was sent to Copenhagen against her will, from where she has returned. She is now but later left voluntarily. Even His Excellency the Justice Minister von Friedberg is to receive this woman personally and have spoken for the better. Later, the counts von Schwerin and former mayor Lafer made the attempt have, Mr. von Bleichröder with the publication of these facts to threaten, possibly in order to gain personal benefit to provide, which I would find reprehensible.

From the resulting correspondence I highlight following letter. |

– 229 –

former mayor Lafer 3rd
Müller=Straße 14.

Certainly in accordance with your intentions, I have received from your today's letters and our entire correspondence to Mr. Privy Councillor von Bleichröder was informed.

The same is the view – in which I completely agree with him agree – that the brochure did not exactly appeal to him amenities should be prepared, but that you are also ready would be a ransom from the impending inconveniences to bring about rej. to mediate.

Mr. von Bleichröder has had enough of insults and Slander, and since in the Bro= you announced fshould it only be about such a thing, he avoids the threat and agrees to pay a reasonable price under on the condition that the brochure is handed over to me and you undertake and the obligation of your full teach the ruler not to let Mr. von Bleichröder in any future To attack the Croner case more or to mate rials for such an attack to others.

I am authorized to accept your demands, to negotiate the price with you and to set the price to make and pay out.

Yours sincerely

signed Weber.

Later, the former mayors Lafer and Graf von Schwerin made great mistakes, because they were charged with extortion.

The indictment begins with the following words.

"The Commercial Counsellor von Bleichröder had in a
A Mrs Croner brought a lawsuit against him against a sworn oath and was investigated for the same found guilty of perjury. The investigation against him is and is on the part of Bleichröder to his process=
opponent was paid a severance payment."

At the hearing it was also acknowledged that if Mr. von Schwerin claims that the falsehood of the statement made by Mr.
von Bleichröder's oath was confirmed by the investigation proven, this is irrelevant for the present case,

I readily admit that this was the case, and if the
If both gentlemen had committed illegal acts, they had to be punished. fi

But the Bleichröder perjury case is dominated by mysterious darkness. Because in this process the highest state officials have been named, v. Friedberg, v. Madai, therefore ijt e the highest task of the state to bring light into this darkness wrestle.

"gsi

a,

– 230 –

people, such as Mr. von Schwerin, must give sworn statements 7 Mi, even if they are at the end of the world ollten.

Through a worthless note from Mrs. Groner, after payment of 70,000 Marks, this burning case cannot yet be finished. |

All the thousands of poor people who in their need have broken the law and are now receiving their well-deserved punishment in prison, it is the state's duty to pay the prisoner to do everything possible to clarify this matter.

What might have happened if Mr. Hofprediger Stöcker or Dr. Böckel had been told something similar?! But what would have happened if the absolute king Friedrich Wilhelm J. had heard of this case?! Certainly would determine the fate of the high state official in Königsberg, whom I mentioned above, threatened various people. Of course= At that time, the will of the king was still the only law.

The brochure: "A dark point in the life of the Lord of Bleichröder" is available in bookstores, so it is not confiscated. |

The downright outrageous claim that Mr. von Madai on behalf of Mr. von Bleichröder at Mrs. Croner's house= fearch only according to the conscious appearance, ie a official theft that later the Minister of Justice influenced the main witness, and that the investigation was stopped because of Mein= oath struck down on the completely worthless piece of paper of Croner fe, requires investigation.

If the allegations are untrue, the harshest punishment shall apply these authors of the most horrific slander that has ever been committed in the state of the Hohenzollerns. If they are true, then only thorough punishment of all those involved, the otherwise irretrievably decayed the Fatherland. With silence or reference Punishing the perpetrators for extortion is of no help.

Wouldn't everyone assume that the Justice in the interest of the Jews degraded to a common whore and the highest state officials, ministers, police chiefs, state lawyer, have sunk to become pimps of this whore?

--

21. The Jew as Patriot and Soldier!

It is simply ridiculous to talk of Jewish patriotism in to speak in a casual sense. The Jew loves only himself and his own People. Otherwise he will engage in batriotism as soon as it is profitable. In all wars, the Jewish inhabitants of a country

Offered to the invading enemy as spies, and for good Money also does good services. Woe to the country that Patriotism of its Jewish citizens in times of need
At the beginning of the campaign in 1870, the Jewish Millionaires closed their stock exchanges. The small German capitalists subscribed to the first loan. After the first victories, however, Fe kindly at your side. Should there be any wars in the future be different, and the state should not find it very difficult fhammer that he left the small capitalists defenseless to Judaism
Not long before the war of 1806, a Jude Davidsohn received the concession for a newspaper and published faid to lead it in a patriotic spirit. After the Defeat of Jena, he fled to Napoleon I and fell Queen Louise with the most shameful insults. Soldier need to become few because of their body. and these Few people know, even at the decisive moment,
How many Jews may have fallen in the last campaign
jein® As often as one hears of punishable attempts to persuade young people to evade their military service are mainly Jews.
To my knowledge, not a single one of the 69 defendants in Frankfurt was German. This is much worse in Austria and most of all worst in Russia. The nihilists in Russia are namely Jews, as well as the financiers of the Social Democracy in Germany. What the Jew living in France can do as a patriot Drumont has shown us what this means. The Jews are inciting over there to war, it is done out of business interests, and because the peoples then do not have time to reflect on how they have to get rid of their pests. What a patriotic
The meaning that Judaism has, among other things, when the Prussian reserve lieutenant von Bleichröder after the Nobiling assassination attempt in front of the Kaiser's palace Wilhelm arrived, with two public women on his arm, publicly rude. He was – from the officer class But enough of that. A separate book is needed about this be written.

22. The Jew in Austria, Poland, France, Russia, England 2c.

I had a lot of material about this chapter
But since the book is much more extensive anyway, than was intended, and since I recently became aware is that Eduard Drumont deals with this chapter in detail,
I do not want to go into this in this book. i

If you would like to read more about it now, please refer ach to the following writings:

1. Judaism and Germanism in the Oftmark, by Georg by Schönerer, Publisher of the Reichsherold, Marburg in Hesse.

2. The Shadow of Civilization or Judaism in Bohemia. Publisher of the Reichsherold, Marburg in Hesse.

3. The Galician human trafficking in court. Vienna. Selbst-publisher of the Deutsches Volksblatt.

4. Esther, the Semitic Immorality, by Radenhausen. Leipzig. at Thiele. |

5. Drumont, The Judaized France. Berlin, Deubner.

6. Illa von der Recknitz, by Captain Carl Jentzen, Merfeburg..
T. Istreich, a jewel in Jewish form.

and many other writings, all of which, like the ones above, ritfche in Leipzig can be requested and obtained, as well as in:
Berlin at Georg Höpfner, Markgrafenstraße.

The vast amount of material collected can be to my regret, cannot be used because the intended scope of the Book has already been far exceeded, but some particularly important

show you the privilege provided by registered Jews to take copies of them and send them in. We cannot believe that we have given them such a thing, and if it would have happened the same way. fuch it would have to be considered as stolen and pro

“We command that the poor and lowly Jews:
in the small towns, especially in those in the middle of the country:
lie where such Jews are completely unnecessary and even harmful;

nd, at every opportunity and whenever possible, away from it be created.” – “What is due to their trade, they keep.
(about bringing whole peoples to Breslau and...
They want to make Jerusalem out of it, that cannot be.”
– And the Jewish regulations of 1750 state: “The highest permitted interest rate of 12 pCt. Rural goods ... will be given to the Jews.

Buying and owning is not permitted anywhere. No Jew is allowed to live in a flat country." Frederick II

"Why tolerate these people who are also harmful, who do not work, but only live by fraud?"
Joseph II, Emperor of Austria.

*
Pr

*

"Legislation must intervene wherever the general Prosperity is being questioned. The government cannot Indifference as a despicable nation (the Jews)
two departments (Alsace and Lorraine) of France
The Jews must be treated as a special people, not as a religious sect. It is too humiliating for the French people, into the power of the lowest of all the rest Peoples. Already entire villages of their possessions robbed. The Jews are the robber barons of the modern age, -- Flocks of ravens. They should be treated under state law, not civil law. It would be dangerous to put the keys of France into the
The hands of such people who do not feel love for their country fall to Perhaps it will be appropriate to determine by law that no more than 50,000 Jews may live on the Rhine; the
The rest would have to be sent to the interior of France. One could also prohibit them from trading, since they are making it profitable through their usury dishonor. The Jews already in Moses' time practiced usury driven and oppressed other peoples, while the Christians only.
are exceptionally usurers and in such a case despised With philosophical teachings the Jews will cannot do otherwise, there are simple laws, exceptional laws of The Jews must be prohibited from acting, because they are mis= need to do with it, like a gold worker's craft when he makes counterfeit gold. I note again: what.
The Jews commit evil deeds, is not the burden of individuals, but the whole fundamental character of this people."
| Napoleon J.

= *
*

The Jew is not a German, but a deceiver; not.

a Welshman, but a counterfeiter; not a citizen, but a.
Shrike.
Luther.

ia

—

"Ee el ai

— 234 —

Seventhly, that the young, strong Jew and Jewess in the hand give flail, axe, cart, spade, distaff, spindle and let them earn their bread by the sweat of their nose, like Adams children. Your Luther.

12 Fa
2 seconds
=

In addition, the princes and authorities snore and have the mouth open, the Jews let out of their open purse and —Taking, stealing and robbing whatever they want, that is: they let exploit themselves and their subjects through the Jews' usury and to suck and make money with their own money.
Luther.

"I do not recommend killing the Jews, but rather reducing them to a to punish them in a manner appropriate to their wickedness. What is more just, than to take away from them what they have fraudulently

through what they secretly buy from the thieves, by acquiring the most precious things for the lowest price provide knowledge."

Peter de Clüigny (1146).

sk

To the fear and disgust which one finds in Egypt always harbored against them (the Jews), the Efel also joined and a deep, repulsive contempt. – – –

| How could such a neglected race of people become a free
N an enlightened mind, a hero or a statesman go?

. | Schiller.

For the Jews, everything human is abhorrent; they hated ftill all peoples on earth, but were also from all other always hated. i

Voltaire: (In his work on the morals and spirit of nations).

"i

Baptism may wash away original sin, but not Making Jews Prussians.

A. Reichensperger a
(on March 6, 1856 in the Prussian House of Representatives).
the *

3:

– 235 –

The social question is mostly the Jewish question.
Ai Otto Glagau.

The Jew is the plastic demon of the decay of humanity.
Richard Wagner.

* | *

Human rights have consequences, although they give us the same
But I see no reason to give them civil rights.
Rittel than that: to cut off all their heads in one night and to draw up others in which not even a single Jewish

To protect us from them, I see again any other means than to conquer their promised land and to send everyone there.

Fichte (Judgments on the French Revolution). 1815.

Up to the highest ranks, among men,
every thought of ecclesiastical intolerance or national pride nutes would reject with disgust, today it sounds like in one mouth: The Jews are our misfortune! |

Heinr. v. Treitschke.

The customs of the Jews are senseless and dirty. "Under They remain faithful and help each other, but Strangers hate and persecute them." A woman extremely inclined to lust Race. – Everything that is sacred to us is despised by them; while everything that seems wicked to us is permitted to them. – They are the lowest of all peoples (deterrima gens).

Tacitus.

45 ii

The customs of this most wicked people have already become so strong, that they have spread in all countries; the victors have the defeated gave their laws.

| Seneca (after Augustine).

se z *

The Jews who live scattered throughout the world and but feel that they stick together, find cunning, misanthropic and dangerous Creatures that must be treated like poisonous snakes, namely, as soon as she sneaks up, step on her head; for
If you let them raise their heads for just a moment, then she will surely bite, and her bite is sure to kill.

Abd al Qadir al Gilani: al Fath arrabbani Walfaid arrahmäni, Mag. 37 (545 AD).

* $

a:

– 236 –

To expect honesty and a sense of justice from a Jew means fo much as: to seek the virginity of an old whore.

(Manawi: al Maulid, Sig 72) (821 AD).

It is incomprehensible to me why these murderous Beasts (the Jews) had not been eradicated long ago. Would one should not immediately kill wild animals that eat people, even if they were human-like? And are the Jews anything other than cannibals.

Mirza hassan Chan (Chiam hig Bil 3) (1689 AD).

=e as

* *

E

7

* *

>=

It is unfair, in the name of abstract justice, to unconditional equal treatment of uninvited foreign guests without to demand a reasonable return from a people; still un= It is cheaper to demand of a people that it should Consciousness of these guests to be something higher and better than respect it itself, in the name of religious tolerance and should be tolerated; but the most unfair and disloyal thing is the seesaw game with the alternating emphasis of the one-other exclusive claims of full membership of the nationality of the host people and the providential sublimity about the same. Eduard v. Hartmann.

ok nz

“While all other religions believe in metaphysical interpretation of life to the people in image and parable fearch, the Jewish religion is completely immanent and provides nothing but a mere war cry when fighting other peoples.” –

“Incidentally, the impression that the study of the Septuagint (Greek translation of the Old Testament) left with me has a heartfelt love and deep veneration of the great King abuchodonaffar, even if he was a bit too lenient with a people who believed in a god who gave them the lands of their Neighbours, in whose possession it then became through Robbery and murder, and then built a temple for the god. May every people who hold a god who neighboring countries into "promised countries", in good time find his Nebuchadnezzar and his Antiochus Epiphanes, And no further trouble should be made with him!" Schopenhauer (Parerga 1, p. 136). Even in the ancient world, Judaism was an effective ferment of cosmopolitanism and national decomposition."

Prof. Theod. Mommsen.

** =

24. The path to self-liberation.

We must not deceive ourselves that liberation Germany from the Jewish yoke is infinitely difficult. The sophistication The German is not up to the task of the Jew. The National=Ver= Germany is largely in Jewish hands. control the stock exchange, trade, the entire financial system, justice, Medicine, science and art. In almost all major urban Communities have seized power. And that The entire budget of such a city then becomes a single major means of corruption in the hands of the Jews. The whole Administration then becomes an inextricable rat-king, as my life story proves sufficiently. The The entire Jewish power is concentrated in the press. This creates artificial contradictions everywhere and confuses the people in all its strata. Whole classes of people are in contrast to their nationality, denationalized. The Jewish press thus causes a decomposition process which in its course necessarily must bring about the end of the fatherland. The Jews are making good business, once in the establishment of the German Empire, once at his end. At the funeral feast, the They are the liquidators of the morally and materially peoples who were destroyed by them. Even in free America This is already apparent. Bellamy explains in his "Nationalist", that America in its current predatory economy is doomed It is a demon that has been driving the Jews to this activity, which ultimately has to consume it. How Should we counteract this unholy Jewish power? they were about to seize state power and then the entire state income into a single corruption means, as has already happened in France. The Orientals probably lack any gift for state-building, even more but the preservation of states entirely. They know only arrogance and cruelty or cowardly whining. Founding states and states= Only the Aryans are still alive, and in recent times only the Germanic tribes. In the book "Rembrandt as Educator", the publication I regard as an event of the very first a, the author chases: The German is called to be an aristocrat Democrat America. To avoid misunderstandings, I believe that every farmer here, and I believe with full justification, as an aristocrat. Through the Jews the Germanic people= tum in danger, completely decomposed, its historical The heirs would then undoubtedly be the Flavian peoples fe, because the Romanesque are, despite all the veneer of culture in decline. It is sad that Germany is so is completely blind to the danger threatening from the East. I am not thinking about the danger of weapons at this moment, but of the danger of a nobler culture that will one day take us back= push and overcome. Do not forget: Under all Rubble and dirt, under the corruption of the nobility and the high

* !

As a parishioner, the Rufe has authority over all matters concerning his neighbor To have a say in the world, one must stand up for everyone, and everyone must stand for him, even the jurisdiction is in his hands. Russia actually consists of countless small republics, where one does not know the all-round offer, but where everyone decides for yourself. All of these | powerful ruler who also controls all state affairs

great idea often by the arbitrariness of the nobility and the officials obscured, but it is not dead. Russia is, by its very nature, without a cannon shot being fired. However, I hope that the corruption of the higher civil service, the Jews and brandy delay rebirth for so long until we ourselves have achieved our liberation and thereby have enabled us to fulfil our world mission, because We should not forget this: Our old German community order, which was completely destroyed by the Romans, council to dominate Europe than.

profession and led towards its certain demise with the Slavic one a lot in common. When a few days ago the news went around the world that Russia was devoid of its Jews drops of socialist oil. Court Preacher Stöcker wants the social reorganization on the basis of Christian brotherly love was also a popular speaker to such a high degree that today

A completely different spirit would prevail in Germany if not for the Prince Bismarck, who opposed capitalism, i.e. Judaism, from political reasons had turned to his protection, temporarily his
The fatherland must not be separated from him Great things can still be expected. In the Jewish question he has so far been more critical and is only with his last proposals in two cases concerning school and the legal profession, fharsh
For this reason, he seems to many younger Antifemites do not appear to be extensive enough. Party organ of the Christian=social party is the "people".

The German-Social Party has its anti-Semitic program already prepared, since they take into account the considerations of a court= preacher does not need to take. Their program is also a Drops of socialist oil added. However, this is the so-called Bochum Program, not yet fully implemented= worked, and I believe that in this respect there is still much remains to do. The party is based on Christian-monarchy.
The anti-Semitism was in the first place, and although it does not advocate radical remedies, it is likely

after executing their program, the track for a healthy let progress be free. Their representative in the Reichstag is the MP Liebermann von Sonnenberg, former officer the German army, who gave his rich gifts, his significant knowledge and his great energy in the service of anti-Semitism
No failure, no persecution, no hardship has could make him waver even for a moment. The
The German nobility has placed in him an outstanding warrior. Main= fubstantively literary for the party it active Fritzsche in Leipzig, König in Witten, Radenhausen in Hamburg, then above all Things also the old master of anti-Semitism, O. Glagau in Berlin, whose writings, especially the Book of the Founders, further "German Crafts and Historical Bourgeoisie", finally the periodically appearing culture warriors in every anti-Semitic library

they must take first place. Central point of the party in Berlin forms the so-called Wednesday Society. Party organs are the German-social papers.

The German People's Party has its headquarters in Hesse. Its head is Dr. phil. Otto Böckel in Marburg. It is this is a young, energetic man with great knowledge and great gift of oratorical ability, who despite the greatest adversities a large part of Hesse-Land has been permanently taken away from Judaism.

+

Help provided. On the other, partly highly deserving Pioneer cannot be discussed here. It was inevitable that many people would like to. It was stated that these three anti-Semitic parties would like to unify into a single one. This would be possible,

The leaders in particular have the sacred duty to be aware of every case to reach a peaceful and friendly understanding, to keep everything personal in the

to be eaten. In particular, this seems to me to be necessary regarding the distribution of constituencies to be conquered. remember that every anti-Semite would have to defeat them

– 241 –

the common, sacred cause, the future of the fatherland and also the numerous martyrs who died for their conviction was driven to death and destruction. |

An international understanding must also, despite all Difficulties, and men like Drumont, Schönerer etc. will probably offer their hand. There can be no doubt: Like the social question in general, for the Jewish question must also be fought out on German soil Germany can fulfil this obligation through its central position because of not withdraw, but with the solution of the same it also spreads happiness and blessings all over the world. I would like to make the following suggestions:

1. Elimination of Jews from all official positions, both the state and the municipality, especially from the judiciary and the legal profession.

2. Repeal of Jewish emancipation.

3. Position of the Jews under alien police, which every Time to look into the Jewish business books and in case of unreality, immediate expulsion Egg can.

4. Military freedom for Jews, but sufficient Foreign tax and military tax.

Nationalization of the stock exchange and the Reichsbank.

Prohibition of futures trading on the stock exchange.

Prohibition for Jews to write or publish newspapers which are aimed at non-Jewish circles.

8. Prohibition of foreigners from acquiring real estate (which law also exists throughout America).

9. Abolition of freedom of trade.

10. Prohibition of the naturalization of baptized Jews.

11. Restoration of the religious oath.

Perhaps the legislation of the future will make it possible for the greatest humanity if the Jews in a well-situated, settled in non-European countries and placed there in the situation would be forced to work honestly and fairly on their fields nourish them, providing them with all the necessities
The surplus of their assets, which exceeds the hundred= thousands of their victims, whose bones are found in all parts of the world bleach, can no longer be returned, is likely to be in the Hand of the state the solution of the social question and thus significantly facilitate the cultural progress of humanity.

As soon as the Jewish question is solved, as soon as in particular the Jews have disappeared from the press, the path to a
We will then
no longer throw dirt at each other, but rather every opinion for their real value. At present this is impossible, because the Social Democratic Party, through its backers, the Jews, incited, no longer discussed, but already in the latent Civil wars with the other classes of the people. That we No insightful person can deny that we are at the beginning of a world change.

--

– 242 –

We must leave the age of unrestricted production out into the goal-conscious, but without abolishing the individual Freedom. We must get to the point where every creative person also receives the result of his hard work for himself, and the state has to help him. It will be unavoidable that the main branches of production are organized cooperatively, and that also came to the aid of the craftsmen through state means. What the state or the municipality can do with good will. We can see that this is possible in Rome these days. the butchers, the commune takes over the slaughtering and carry out the sale alone and let this be done by soldiers carry out.

– Partly very justified criticism. Before we move on to the third stage omen, the Jewish power must first be broken, because the Jews are like the robber barons of the Middle Ages in their castles and elaborated essays in various journals, such as Kyffhäuser, published in the Bayreuther Blätter etc. and which forms the bridge that connects us with the great English and American nic social reformers. His last publication on Natural law and historical law are likely to have a groundbreaking effect. Furthermore I mention the late Archbishop Ketteler, Kaplan Hitze, v.Schorlemer= = Mft, von Güne. I described it as an event of the first order ft already mentioned above the publication of the book "Rembrandt as Educator". Every sentence of this book falls like a ray of light into dark Serbältnifie and could be used as a chapter heading for a new book ienen.

| I quote the following sentences from the book to show what the reader has to expect from the whole book: Prussia adopted the principle at the beginning of this century, the defeats suffered by strengthening the scientific power of the people. Germany is to be at the end of the year= hundredth adopt the principle of winning victories through to justify strengthening the artistic power of the people.

* *

Art must give back the naivety that we have gained through knowledge= lost their fhaft. |

– 243 –

We learn from this book that the social question is subtle—away, as the Social Democrats assume, is purely a question of stomach, but that it is about many other, higher interests even is about. The social question is not at all related to than that they were done by a man and in a short period of time could be solved, but it must be tackled immediately and with all seriousness, because standing still means ruin. “Germany,” said Treitschke in one of his recent lectures, “is like a car driving down the valley on a sharp edge. must remain constantly in motion, otherwise he will inevitably fall into the abyss.” Since the prerequisite for successful Inan= implementation of social reform is the solution to the Jewish question, I consider this to be overripe, and the purpose of my book is to to urgently point out that they should be addressed immediately.

You may, German man, all productive peoples of the Give the world your love, your respect and your friendship, for every productive people climbs, often without knowing it, on the ladder of culture, but the parasitic culture—destroying Jewish people, who everywhere see moral decay and decomposition of the ftant conditions, because it only in the. Rot can harvest, you must fight with full consciousness and harmlessly to make ftr. |

The harm done so far, which is particularly evident in the Destruction of our national institutions and national welfare= We must boldly face the situation. We must actively We will start to repair the old damage and at the same time to take a big step forward on the path of culture.

Above all, we must break free from the sentimental cost mopolitism. Only as a clearly defined nationality we can bring the whole world the blessings it expects from us. can wait.

All peoples of the world only meant something to the culture in general, when they formed a closed nationality.

Our greatest poets have therefore also expressed love of country as our holiest and highest duty, which a noble

Man cannot escape even with the best will in the world. As the saying goes

Goethe's Iphigenie:
Many a year keeps me hidden here
A higher will to which I surrender;

But I am always a stranger as in the first,
For alas, the sea separates me from my beloved,
And on the shore I stand for long days,
Seeking the land of the Greeks with the soul;
And against my sighs the wave brings
Only dull sounds roared across to me.
Woe to him who is far from parents and siblings
He leads a lonely life! He is consumed by grief
The next happiness before his lips.

— — ee

2

— 244 —

His thoughts are always swarming downwards
To his father's halls, where the sun
First opened the sky before him, where
Co-borns playing harder and harder

Bind each other with gentle bonds.

and how moving are Allinghausen's words in Schiller's Tell:

| Blinded, seduced by vain splendor,
Despise your birth country! Shame on you
The ancient pious custom of your fathers!
With hot tears you will one day
Longing for home to the fatherly mountains,
And the melody of this herd,
Which you spurn in proud disgust,
With her heart's longing she will seize you,
When it resonates with you on foreign soil.
O, mighty is the drive of the fatherland:
The strange, false world is not for you;
and then in another place:
Strengthen the innate bonds, |
Ans. Fatherland, dear ones, join us,
Hold this fast with all your heart.
Here are the strong roots of your strength;
There in the strange world you stand alone,
A shaky reed that every storm breaks.

German people, never has the world given you a more faithful image your very own self, never will this be in all Future possible, as Goethe in his Faust. His last Words were: |

"And so spends, surrounded by danger, |
Here childhood, man and old age fine hard years.
I would like to see such a crowd,

Standing on free ground with free people.

At the moment I may say:

Stay a while, you are so beautiful.

It can be the trace of my earthly days

Not perish in aeons. – |

In anticipation of such great happiness

Now I enjoy the highest moment."

German brothers! This joy for the fatherland, this love Judaism has tried to steal your fatherland, where it could dare to do this! Don't curse the Jews, does not defend them, but studies them. Studies Heine, Börne, etc.

Especially that part of the nation which in the sweat of its brow which creates values without being able to enjoy them, which Jewish Mammonism has recently become the most dangerous
It is systematically educated to conscious hostility to the fatherland been. E |

– 245 –

As far as my observations show, the poison not yet penetrated to the innermost core of the people's soul. But Judaism is eliminated, the dross will fall away by itself.

But also the love for the national institutions, in-especially to the monarchy, is still little shaken. The feeling of Piety towards our ruling house, under which our superiors have lived happily and contentedly for centuries, is everywhere much more alive than the already triumphant Jewry
But it is not the feeling alone that binds us inextricably our ruling house, but the deepest, most consistent thinking shows us that the social hereditary monarchy alone is our historical
The monarchy is the only solid

Pole in the flight of appearances. Modern parliamentarism gives us, in the best case, a snapshot of the momentary mood. Where a parliamentary regime prevails, the nation is carried away by such momentary impressions to things, which can later cause the greatest damage. This is the great lesson of the conflict period from 1861 to 1866. The mood of the moment led the fatherland infallibly towards ruin. The Monarchy ordered a halt to this being carried forward by the mood of the moment, it formed a real roche de bronze, and saved Prussia against its will from itself. This Contrast often emerges in crises, as was the case at the time, fo now inwards. – Even with the current internal crisis >= Germany saved from the worst by the social monarchy become.

Let us hear what Dr. Schläger says in his article: "The fight between the natural law and historical schools" about this Punkt says:

"These people still insist on the government and the people as two eternally fighting opposites and as the main The aim is to weaken government power and increase the authority= niffe of the people's representation on their banner. Bismarck pointed This view, which was certainly unjustified in Prussia, was once expressed in the Reich days with sharp words, declaring that he, the Reich= Chancellor, belongs to the people just as much as the members of the Reich= day, and that he was not willing to enter into an artificial opposition to be confronted with the people. Unfortunately, the deep Do not understand the meaning of this explanation, do not want to understand it.

In the last sentences we have one of the most instructive examples from the victorious struggle of historical law, which with deeper State content indispensable measures (reorganization of the Prussian army) against the House of Representatives under the Motto "Not a single man and not a penny for this ministry" by Grabow, Virchow and the Progressive Party brought into play dems= cratic or natural law. Formally, a ver= violation of the letter of the Constitution, insofar as Bismarck himself in the autumn of 1866 a subsequent approval of his proceedings by the Chamber. The essence of the matter fent, the right of the Crown, as representative of the historical

= =

– 246 –

Law, the implementation of the historical determination of the Prussian The indemnity demand of Bismarck was not sufficient to force the unaffected." – However, necessity requires that the social hereditary monarchy is a free one. If it were ruled by a certain popular class, the demands of this class alone would Find satisfaction. Since in Europe capitalism, that is, the. Judaism, many governments dominate, yes finds capitalism.

only essential promotion of his interests, while the rest
The masses have to be content with fine words. The necessities
The existence of a solid pole is also always recognized in all republics Senates have been founded everywhere, but nowhere have shown themselves to be resilient enough. Real, serious republics in which the people as a whole participate in the government
By the way, there were few in the world who would have taken part.
Either those ruled by birth, or those by wealth from= drawn few numerous classes of people, and the actually productive
The population was more oppressed by them than anywhere else.
The struggle between the patricians and plebeians in Rome was nothing as a struggle between the birth and money aristocracy.
When Athens became a real democracy, it soon fell victim to The social monarchy of the Hohenzollerns is in the world history something completely new and has its justification in four decades hundreds by emerging from a half-desert, from Sand floes without value, created a flourishing state, and the old dying Europe a new center and new ideas given.

Unfortunately, the vast majority of the nation does not have the this patriotic parts still have far too little understanding. Even in This understanding is still not very well awakened in schools, as
3. B. all business books talk a lot about the wars and heroic deeds to tell the story of all the monarchs of the High= Zollernhaus, even under Frederick the Great in the second or third line, but little of the creative social activity of all princes, which constitute their very essence. Our fatherland will only be a social monarchy in the future for the benefit of the

Humanity must march at the head of the nations, otherwise it will return
fade into insignificance and misery. |

My conviction is that the Hohenzollerns in their

| Significance for the world erit at the beginning of their careers,

Everything so far was only the introduction.

It is now up to you, German people, to do what is yours to contribute to the achievement of the great goal. With parliamentarism, which will and must remain with you, is the destiny of your Destiny is placed in your hands. Now wear on your part contributes to the fact that the large masses of people in Germany are again can feel comfortable and happy, and that everyone in the same find a real home.

Really big social reforms are necessary, not only must a few scraps are thrown to the productive masses.

– 247 –

Germany is so rich in noble, self-sacrificing men and great talents.

So far, however, they have been opposed by Judaism to a other, but if Germany believes in the rapid elimination these predatory parasites, men of all races will come together again.

When the first French Republic was in full bloom,

Small bouquets are often made in her honor.

A Catholic priest and a young girl, or a nun and a so-called suspect. One tied them together with their feet and threw them into the water. The convulsive movements of the drowning people had to positions which until now the monarchy and the clergy in their ceremonial processions. Such a small bouquet I would also like to present to my readers by presenting four per= fonen in relation to each other, which are probably are furthest removed from all people in Germany. These are the deceased Pastor Knack, the Social Democratic MP Fritz Kunert, the city school inspector Dr. Bertram, a Catholic nurse nurse, Sister Bertha.

Pastor Knack famously declared that the Bible was his only guideline in all things, and he also believes in the research of I would not believe in science if it contradicted the Bible. It is known that he was therefore condemned by the entire Jewish press, who sought to attack Christianity in him with the maddest scorn was showered with cloud-shifter hats and cloud-shifter schnapps still exists today. To observe this man in his quiet activity I had the opportunity to observe him repeatedly. He has spoken of his

Only a small fraction is used for themselves. Most belonged to the poor. When a needy man came to him and he had searched the entire apartment in vain for a gift,

He noticed his wife's knitting with a half-finished stocking and a ball of wool in his eyes. He gave this as the only valuable thing he could find.

The Social Democratic MP Fritz Kunert was formerly Teacher in Berlin, but only had a salary of 1560 marks. As Rector Bombe had passed away so terribly, Naturally, almost all special colleges withdrew from the family.

Since Bombe had received his entire salary the day before his death to pay off debts, the family came to the utmost distress. Besides the Commercial Counsellor Pintfsch, it was only and only Fritz Kunert, who intervened here. Neither family relationships, nor special friendship, but only the great Need, which is known to repel people, chained him to the Family. His salary, which was certainly not high, He kept half for himself, the other half went to the six minors Bombe's children.

The following was sent to me by the school councillor Professor Dr. Bertram: known: When teachers got into too much trouble, and the authorities— financial support could not provide essential help, so

— 248 —

He appointed such teachers and personally handed them a

Sum of sixty to one hundred marks as interest-free and in be-
I consider it to be highly probable that in many cases it has not been can be paid. In order to avoid any thanks, he indicated that he had obtained this money elsewhere
I know from other sources that in the event of a lawsuit
I would also prove that these quiet benefits almost exceed the are extended beyond the limits of ability.

I met the Catholic nurse Sister Bertha in a totally impoverished Lochfchefskey family, in which the woman To make matters worse, she became seriously ill after having recovered from the confinement. When I entered, she was busy changing the diapers wash, while her delicate hands and her whole being—femenft indicated earlier living conditions, which hardly. her current occupation. This sister has in the family does the most unpleasant work imaginable, and some Days later I saw her with a dog cart in which she

if needs are created for the family, which they certainly only somewhere had to ask for permission to stop in front of the family home. How do you like this bouquet, dear reader, an Orthodox

Clergyman, a social democrat of the most radical direction, a progressive fenior school inspector and a Catholic nun, who probably the most extreme ultramontaniam? It is the sum of ftitudinal position is by no means a mere whim of mine, rather they make you think very seriously. These four people, so fomuch different as people can be, are in the main but the same. They put their whole mind at the service of charity, and to alleviate the suffering of their fellow human beings is their life's work. Such people of genuine German, Christian conviction, against which one of them will, however, defend himself most vehemently, But we have them in our homeland in large numbers. Should among all these people who are concerned about the well-being of their fellow human beings

Sacrificing everything, not a real and serious understanding possible fine, and should not be in the a real social reorganization for the entire German people—founded? Until now this was impossible because the Jewish press everyone against each other and caused mistrust. Keep this their influence, it will never be different. Therefore, German People, pull yourself together, first and foremost, eliminate your sworn enemy, whom you have taken into custody in a misguided sense of humanity. Then proceed resolutely to bring happiness to all your children that is possible on this imperfect earth. Under the Under the protection of a powerful social hereditary monarchy, this will be possible as soon as you get into the situation, look after each other. Elimination of Jewish press piracy openly and honestly—to award.

Every party has its good points, in each one we find people who
The whole sacrifices itself with everything it has Such people can also be found among the Social Democrats to find, there is also ideal striving there. That Judaism.

– 249 –

the distracted them from this and pointed them to goals that are eternally are unattainable, is regrettable, but not unchangeable. u

Men of all parties, who are not driven by selfishness, fought, revengeful or these base qualities.
in you, agree to first overcome the bad Jewish parasite, this bacillus of putrefaction, and then compete in a passionless manner with all spiritual forces in the pursuit of serious improvement of our conditions
Let everyone be aware that there is no side can leave without serious casualties.

| Conclusion.

| If you, German man, give your be full attention and your own observations
p related to it, the following sentence will become become an unshakable conviction: |
8 "The continued coexistence of the Germanic peoples on equal terms
5 fchian and Jewish population is an impossibility. Both nationalities
The majority of their relatives are not able to 5 Characteristics that have existed for thousands of years
SE have faithfully preserved, in a few decades or centuries
The attempt to abolish all barriers to freedom a unification or mixing of both peoples, which

The Germanization of Slavic peoples has borne wonderful fruits has completely failed. The Semites have their

5 Equality was only used to financially support the Germanic people z to enslave, to corrupt morally and politically, in order to
= to make the ruling nation. Those Semites who E the left by changing religion anferbeit the German people==
f: closed, had the most damaging effect. Since the Germanic r bearer of the highest cultural ideas, they have not only 4 the law, but also towards God and humanity the sacred duty to counteract the anti-cultural, parasitic

to put an end to the Jewish nation."

German people! Fate obviously has great things in store for you

Tie ee oped

Pet" Fe

+

street

ee Hr Er 1 Ei

—

1 fulfillment of your historical mission.

Germans, read the Battle of Hermann by Kleist, read it with Understanding of the present, and let yourself be inspired by it=

N is up to no good, as the developments of the last few years show. The great = moment to fulfill your actual task, ijt come, ver-

I do not see it. What I am primarily striving for is the elimination

8 ves Judaism, ift only the absolutely necessary precondition for the

— 250 —

for your duty, which no truly German man can en. I close with a Goethean word from Faust,

Part II:

What does not belong to you,

You must avoid

Whatever disturbs your inner self,

You must not suffer,

If it penetrates violently,

We must be efficient;

Lead in.

Turn to Clarity

Flames loving you!

Those who condemn themselves,

Heal the truth;

That they are from evil

Happy to redeem oneself,

To be in the Allverrein
To be blessed.

Seay,
i aan u

This is a reproduction of a library book that was digitized by Google as part of an ongoing effort to preserve the information in books and make it universally accessible.

Google books

<https://books.google.com>

Google

About this book

This is a digital copy of a book that was kept on library shelves for generations before it was carefully scanned as part of a project to make the world's books available online.

The book has outlived the copyright and can now be made available to the public. A book in which was never subject to copyright or whose copyright term has expired. Whether a book is vary from country to country. Publicly accessible books are our gateway to the past and re and scientific potential that is often difficult to discover.

Traces of use, notes and other marginal notes contained in the original volume can also be A reminder of the long journey the book has taken from the publisher to a library and then

usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize publicly available materials and make Public domain books belong to the public and we are only their custodians. Nevertheless, this Work is costly. In order to continue to provide this resource, we have taken steps to prevent commercial parties. This includes technical restrictions on automated queries.

We ask you to adhere to the following guidelines:

+ Use of the files for non-commercial purposes We have designed Google Book Search for end Use files only for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ No automated queries Do not send automated queries of any kind to the Google system. If about machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to te useful, please contact us. We encourage the use of publicly available material for these p may help.

+ Retaining Google brand elements The Google "watermark" that you will find in every file this project and helps users find more material through Google Book Search. Please do not

+ Stay within the legality Regardless of your intended use, you must be aware of your resp to ensure that your use is legal. Do not assume that a book that we believe is legal for u is publicly accessible, is also publicly accessible to users in other countries. Whether a varies from country to country. We cannot advise whether a particular use of a particular Do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means that it is available in world. Copyright infringement can have serious consequences.

About Google Book Search

Google's goal is to organize the world's information and make it universally usable and ac Book Search helps readers discover the world's books and supports authors and publishers You can search the entire book text on the Internet at|'<http://books.google.com>.

am. 1097

Digitized by Google

he 4 2 7

i Banknote fraud and the paper scam. s

vP
r E
*
Sr

*

rte

D

4

G

2

9

$

1st

8

E

BI

5

5

he

$

*

=

5

egg

3

f

a4 wu. S

a á = 4 * v

4

N

`

Pr -

f

>

re

BR

ae * 7

2 = oN who 10

ai f

i – whe E er
rg N pia ra REN:

> eh =
4 years
a =

J 5 we wy 2

The fight

against bie

exploitation of the audience.

– – one

Digitized by Google

The fight
exploitation of the audience
| through the
Banknote fraud and the paper plague.

F. Perrot.

No ftock, wa AGS 'A

| Ernst Kuhn's Verlag.
1872.

Digitized by Google

Contents.

—

Page

1. Twelve Theses on the Banking Question 1
2. The banking crisis of the permanent committee of German trade= day, reduced to the question: What is a banknote? . . 5
3. Money, its nature and its economic properties 23 10
4. The German trading day and the banking question . . A
5. The function of the banknote from AM e
6. Agriculture and the banking question 43
7. From No. 96 of the "Deutsche landw. nn . . . 486
8. On the Banl question. e ee Al
9. Modest request
10. The railway and railway question and the Gontureen Sie som ap 200
11. Banking question and socialism;
12. The banking question. An investigation for everyone 8 g 62
13. Motion on the banking question, submitted to the Economic Congress in Lübeck, on August 29, 1871 77

An investigation into the banking question. A letter to Mr. x Perrot i in Rostock 79
Two members of the German Reichstag about the Fr Ant= word on the previous epistle . 82

. Banknotes=Feiude. Second Epiftel to Mr. F. Perrot in Rostock 89

Banknotes=Friends. Reply to the previous letter 92

Austria's Staatsbankeroeae t 97

Abolition of all paper money. 101

. Defterserieh8 Staatswirtschaft wa 14108

Luck and salvation of states through paper ie ee a SE

. Final Epiftel to Mr. Perrot in Rofito ce 115

Banking Question, Socialism and Liberalism. 1121

Attachment.

"On banking. Memorandum of the permanent ee of German trading day 129

Motives for the draft of the law on the issue of bans

notes from March 27, 1870 142

Pro memoria of the Directors of the Braunschweig Bank, concerning common fame banknote issue of the private banks 153

Official communication of the German trading day concerning the banking question 159

The Bank Question by GD Augspurg, Member of the Reichstag 222

The Confolidation of German Government Paper Money by Dr. G. Hirth 276

The works listed in the content were published in the following published in the specified time sequence:

p= OD NND MOND HM

--
bo m

April 22, 1870. "National=Zeitung." No. 186.

July 7, 1870. "Deutsche Industrie=Zeitung." No. 27.

May 1870. G. Hirth's "Annals of the North. Federal."

July 12, 1871. "National=Zeitung." No. 320.

July 20, 1871: "Deutsches Handelsblatt." No. 29.

July 20, 1871. "Deutsche Landwirtschaftliche Zeitung." No. 90.

August 12, 1871. "German Agricultural Newspaper." No. 96.

August 17, 1871. "German Agricultural Newspaper." No. 98.

August 22, 1871. "German Agricultural Newspaper." No. 100.

September 2, 1871. "German Agricultural Newspaper." No. 105.

October 17, 1871. "Deutsche Landwirtschaftliche Zeitung." No. 124.

October issue 1871. "German Monthly."

(In several versions this essay first appeared in September 1871 in the "Hamb. Börfenhalle," in the Vienna-based "Fortfchnis," in the "Deutsche In=duftrie=Zeitung" in Chemnitz, in the "Ungar. Lloyd" in Pejt rc. and has also received a translation into Hungarian.)

August 29, 1871.

September 17, 1871. "Progress." No. 38.

September 24, 1871. "Progress." No. 39.

October 22, 1871. "Progress." No. 43.

October 29, 1871. "Progress." No. 44.

November 1871.

November 1871.

November 1871. "Progress."

November 14, 1871.

December 1871.

October 1871. German state newspaper.

March 1869.

March 27, 1870.

March 1870. .

May 11, 1871. "Deutsches Handelsblatt." No. 19.

1871. G. Hirtb's "Annals of the German Empire." Issues 7 and 8.

1871. G. Hirtb's "Annals of the German Empire." Issues 7 and 8.

Votwotl.

The banking question is a world cultural question and at the same time forms a essential part of today's social question. It is a
A question of interest in the broadest sense of the word. It is not only interesting, indeed extremely interesting, for every thinking person, but its consequences also extend to a much greater extent than is commonly believed, until the wallet of every individuals, even the poorest.

What is called the banking question is basically nothing more than the question of whether we will continue, as unfortunately so far, to German central bankers an annual national gift of 7-10 Million Thaler without even the there is at least some reason to do so.

The so-called banking question is a very extraordinary privilege and that is the privilege= system of making money in the form of banknotes.

It is almost unbelievable, and yet true, that by then
It was possible to make the nature of this privilege at least clear to the eye
the great masses and even our educated people almost completely cover. |

In and of itself, it is clear to any impartial person that only the State should have the right to make money. That the bank-note is nothing more than paper money, would hardly ever People would have thought of denying it if the central bankers did not all its far-reaching influence especially in the daily press to have summoned up such a mass of sophistry about the simple matter to spread that it is indeed after-

Vill

going to make an effort if one fic) through the art-heaped Brimborium of sophistry, to the clear core of the matter wanted to work through. – In particular, one repeatedly to push the ridiculous claim that the banknote is a bill of exchange, while every merchant knows that the bill of exchange interest costs, whereas the banknote earns interest.

Anyone who spends 3 million thalers worth of banknotes, and for a Million cash, while 2 million interest-bearing securities or Bills of exchange, deposited simply enriches himself at general costs about the proceeds of the 2 million thalers, for which no cash is deposited: – no sophistry can help over this.

We now have such banknotes not backed by cash in Germany over 106*) million thalers and it is calculated that the central bankers derive from this privilege an annual national-donation of 7-10 million thalers.

That a regular grant of privileges of this amount, in the form of a noticeable increase in the price of all needs and an impairment of all wages and salaries, i.e. in sum as an indirect tax on the entire population, appear very clear to any impartial person; and that, moreover, Privileges of such kind and extent the worst consequences and dangers are involved, is undeniable,
but apparently not sufficiently taken into account.

It is obvious that such an enormous privilege not only to protect the privileged by all means and is sought to obtain, but it also provides the privilege self, the privileged have ample means to fight the battle in which they face the interests of the entire public, already with superior force. This enormous struggle of interests is of even greater importance as the holders of the note privilege-

giums also have owners or co-interested parties of other principals vilegien fare: – these are tax privileges and very especially the shareholding privileges under which

*) We have 4.7 in Germany, 3.5 in England and 1.3 in France
Thaler paper per head of the population according to the Federal Chancellery Sta= tifik. ö i

IX

the latter in turn the Eisenbahn-Actiengesellschafts-Monopolies stand out particularly. – It is essential that international bankocracy, which is in possession of this enormous privileges and by means of the joint-stock company system, even our higher social classes to a large extent to participate referent to this colossal economy of exploitation.

We have already stated elsewhere that we the context indicated here, the actual and real cause of those phenomena which the civilized world today than the so-called “social question” and concern
– The socialists claim exploitation of labor by big capital, but they seek, and so does Carl Marx and Laffale, the cause of this exploitation at the very wrong place and therefore propose completely wrong, utopian means to remedy the situation. The opponents of the socialist theorists usually find it easy enough to demonstrate the wrong paths on which pondering minds of the socialists are moving. But now on this side, another false conclusion was drawn. One dedu=
It is what the socialists consider to be theoretical proof of the exploitation of labour by big capital is proven ly wrong, ergo everything goes with natural and right things and it is nonsense to talk about the exploitation of labour by the wanting to talk about pension capital.

But such exploitation of labour still takes place,
and not only the so-called wage labor, but all Work in general by big capital really and demonstrably
The evils resulting from this system of exploitation are actually piling up to enormous levels. However, so far we have the following:
Causes were not seen correctly and as a result neither side suggested the right remedies, and the opponents of the socialists have in some cases gone so far as to deny the evil itself and to dispute it, because they search for the causes of it in vain lights.

The evil is now undoubtedly there, and in fact colossal extent that grows daily. The cause of the evil is none other than the senseless privileges of the big capital

tals, by means of which it is possible to achieve real exploitation

X

of work, and indeed of all work on the largest scale, up to up to the Prussian Privy Council, even to the Minister fytte to put it into action matically.

We estimate the direct yield of the combined unnatural
Notes, and Tax: and Stock Company Privileges in Germany alone to 50 to 60 million thalers annually. This amount is not only the work, in the form of wages and salary: rc.
reduction and in the form of increasing the cost of living needs impaired, but it arises from all work, it arises from the State, it grows far beyond the modern cultural development greater indirect damage, indeed a real impending danger, last teres, especially through the stock market fraud, the disastrous effects effects are emerging in an increasingly frightening manner, and already in itself a social question of the greatest importance form.

If you take away the privileges, not everything is but by far the most necessary and important thing has been done to our social development back into its natural paths to direct. One will then easily find that it is a folly to try to shake the inheritance law, which is a divinely established natural
"Right is and which we cannot create through any artificial order of things
The inheritance law does not accumulate unnatural wealth, but the foolish privileges of rent capital.
There is a saying in popular parlance: "Wealth remains not in the third generation." After the abolition of privileges
It will then no longer occur to anyone to an equal division of all property and especially of the land-
'property; the work becomes capable of its natural to see the demands of life fulfilled by themselves and to social question will essentially no longer exist at all, or but more and more cease to exist.

The principle should hold true here again,
that first of all one must correctly see the cause of an evil, if you want to find the right means of healing. You will We may perhaps be given the credit for doing this first in full beginning of the serious question. In the end, it would remain nor on those elements of an unnatural movement of capital

4 XI

and disturbance of the natural development, which the today's national debt system and the relationship between productive to the unproductive expenditures in the state budgets. Here too, a part of the social question still needs to be solved, as we tried to show this in our "contemporary questions".

First of all, we have two questions about that complex of social phenomena described above, with two Questions that most need to be resolved at this time are this is the railway and banking question.

We have a number of works on the railway question dedicated, some of which have been published in bookstores, Parts are currently under the press. The The present book is concerned with banking issues. The Act iengefell- We hope to address the wider issue of social issues in to be dealt with in detail in a special work.

A phenomenon of the most serious kind is the influence which the most favored privilege holders in an unbelievable extension to the public press, especially the daily papers are already able to practice. This influence actually goes ft far that the vast majority of even the more significant fo- so-called "liberal" and "independent" newspapers certainly more the interests of the privilege holders, rather than those of the misera contribu- ens plebs feel called to perceive. One would feel would be quite mistaken if one believed that in our great day- browse an unbiased assessment of the banking issue, an honest Efforts to educate their readership about the core of the issue, a vigorous fight against the socially harmful privilege of note-writing legium and a strong protection of the great overall interests to find. |

On the contrary, one usually encounters a certain shyness to touch on these questions of privilege. The most extensive reader circles, which derive their knowledge about current affairs almost exclusively from the da press, these questions are literally ignored and where When it becomes necessary to address these issues, it is done with fundamental circumvention and artificial concealment of interests ¥) "Current Issues – Contributions to the Solution of State and Economic Questions of the present" by F. Perrot. Rostock 1871.

XII

The central point, which is the only obstacle to a reasonable and just regulation of the question. Yes, our so-called liberal The "rale" major press even advocates the preservation of the Privileges, without regard to the overall national interest and the Demands of equal justice. – Unfortunately, the

Things are already so bad that the daily press is in the most alarming state start directly and indirectly dependent on the privileged circles
– The privileged circles have also, in the right
Recognition of the power of the press, for a skillful, systematic Representation of their interests in the same has been carefully taken care of.

In the editorial of its No. 64 of 4 March c.
For example, the "Köln. Ztg." the bank question. Even now it would have remained silent if the reason was not necessary from outside The "Köln. Ztg." does not ignore the fact that only the monopoly=clique interest and fine power, the simple,
natural and obvious solution to the banking question:
"We would like to believe," she says, "that the finding a limited maximum sum of the unfulfilled
Notes, according to the type of provision of the Peels Act, are sufficient
In any case, the latter solution would be more gentle be for existing interests which are to be reckoned with and which also includes a full-
have a valid claim."

The "Kölnische Ztg," therefore, wishes the privilege of the following areas:
The prosperity of individuals without work at the expense of all is limited, but not to be seen eliminated. She obviously wants the restriction only so that no hasty abuse of the privilege
The hen that lays the golden eggs is killed.
"existing interests," which the "Köln. Ztg." so gently wishes to protect, are of course not those of the misera contribuens plebs. The "liberal" paper does not even mention them.
In financial matters, it seems, not only the comfort level is important,"
but also "liberalism".

And what about the "fully valid claim" to "possible compensation"?
nition" of those "existing interests" "with which is to be expected," the "Köln. Ztg." does not state in which the "full validity" of this statement exists, we remember

XIII

However, a correspondence which the same "Kölnische Ztg." published in its Blatte dated January 4, 1870, which perhaps about the to provide some explanation of the "full validity" of those claims is suitable. – We have that correspondence of the "Köln. Zeitg."
It is as follows:

From the Grand Duchy of Hesse, December 31st. The yesterday's session of the Second Chamber, in which the Government granted extension of the conceffion of the Bank for South=
Germany was discussed, was a very excited one, and that
The government attaches great importance to the resolution
The Chamber's position in this matter was demonstrated by the fact that both the Minister President Mr. v. Dalwigk and the Finance Minister fter v. Schenk and the Gest. Staatsrat v. Bechtold in the meeting appeared, while it is otherwise the rule that the government, if as here, on applications from members of the Chamber will remain unrepresented. Yesterday, the mistrust was evident, which was held in the meeting that the expansion

the concession of the Bank for Southern Germany with counter-services which are not for the country but for individuals people would have benefited, had been achieved, by special importance. People remembered the previous occurrences niffe. When the Bank for Southern Germany was founded,
There is a difference between the information on the price realised the 2000 shares taken over by the government and the course at the time of the sale of the same of about 7= 11,000 Fl.
which had caused discussions, and even if one point after the explanations given were not pursued further,
There remained another difference, which was the third Share issue of the affiliated Bank for Trade and Industry in 1857, was still unexplained. At that time, the Board of Directors of this bank from the shareholders in the General Assembly of January 20, 1857, five million
nen Gulden shares of the Direction al pari available
"in order to fulfill the Grand Ducal order.
liabilities assumed by the government
On February 28, 1857, the
The bank's management announced that "approximately" 1½ million

XIV

and with the achieved premium profit the against the large:
ducal government's liabilities"
and confirmed this in the General Assembly of 4 May 1857, because there are definitely 6000 shares, equal to 1½ million guilders (no longer approximately) than were used for this purpose.
calculated at that time according to the price of these shares in the Period from 20 January to 28 February 1857, that the same had to have suffered a profit of 357,000 Fl.
while the Ministry of the Treasury only 250,000
Fl. At the 17th Diet, where here-was to be submitted on account, Mr. v. Dalwigk sought To avoid the matter at the beginning by
In a letter dated 20 February 1863 he wrote to the speaker in the Finance Committee this was a "purely internal" matter presence of the bank, but later he admitted that the communications of the members of the Finance Committee in a committee meeting that, however, apart from 250,000
Fl. another 100,000 Fl., but not into the state treasury, paid; he even mentioned how these members-who assures the name of the recipient, who is discussion, and in the meeting of 10 November-

In 1863, the State Councillor v. Bechtold divided a some reluctance to comply with the official protocol:
The most important document admitting that 350,000 Fl. had actually been paid; he assured but repeatedly, only 250,000 Fl. of it went to the state kaffe flowed and declared literally: "I am against that not able to continue paying by the bank—
ten 100,000 Fl. to provide information; only the insurance—
I can give you an explanation that a stipulation on this between the Ministry and the Bank did not take place—found." (p. 39 of the 61st Protocol) The defense of the
The government limited itself to the fact that no more, i.e.
not another 758,000 Fl. had been given; the satisfied but so little that the Second Chamber with all votes at that time the request to initiate an investigation to clarify of the aforementioned contradiction. The first chamber avoided

XV

a decision on this and also the Landtag=Abge remained silent
The mistrust of the current Chamber has therefore a every tangible reason, which is more or less concealed in the yesterday's debate, while Mr. v. Dalwigk had the courage had to claim that back then, in 1863, that incident had been has already been sufficiently explained. However, he provoked the Contradiction of the then speaker in the Finance Committee, KJ Hoffmann, and the other committee member Bolhard. With the=

Against this background, the decisions of yesterday's meeting are easy-ter understandable. What is remarkable, however, is that The Chamber expressed its hope for the North German Confederation and the establishment of the law to be passed there, that in this case just the ultramontane party, like the democratic expected help from there, and that this would happen, whether—
The bank's headquarters are probably located in southern Hesse, where
At present, the laws of the North German Confederation are not yet by publication in the Federal Law Gazette
There are just conditions that can only be cured expected from the larger state, in the small
They partly escape attention, partly the Forces of those who exploit them are stronger than those of the remedy-seekers. In such situations, the right-substantial knowledge also the reluctant, and so celebrated because the North German Confederation yesterday did not-wrestling triumph of universal recognition in the heffich Second Chamber.

So much for the "Kölnische Ztg." of January 4, 1870.

These are the interests that the "Köln. Ztg." represents today.

That they "may also be taken into account have a fully valid claim," seems from the division, however. The German public, however, want to judge how this excellent "liberal" big press interests. |

The "Köln. Ztg." recently, on the occasion of the infamous trial Janvier de la Motte uttered high words of moral indignation. If our "liberalism" does not rise higher than to the "solvent morality" of the "Köln. Ztg." yes it will be fine We should not be at fault if we avoid similar quagmire as fit made a trial of Janvier de la Motte possible. Because it was above all the demoralization that followed the monetary privilege. legien=economy, which has brought France so down.

XVI

If we do not recognize this in time, we take the same path: quod deus bene avertat. Strong beginnings funfortunately, have already been done.

We have tried to give this murky stream a dam. This book provides evidence= nissen of it, as far as the banking question is concerned. We have also included the polemic without further comment= which Dr. Al. Meyer, perhaps not only from his own initiative, in his "Deut. Handelsbl." against us Since Dr. Alexander Meyer, Secretary of the German. trading day and is also a member of the Bank Commission of the fame, which consists of some 20 bank directors, so is the. Article by Dr. Meyer is perhaps particularly suitable to challenge the prevailing to characterize the party's direction on this issue.

In the appendix we have partly the statements of the German trading day and its banking commission, as well as the central bank= Interested parties, partly also the remarkable work of the Reichstag member Mr. GD Augspurg about the Bant= question along with an analysis of the well-known brochure by Mr. v. Unruh on the same question and a proposal by G. Hirth to Confolidiration of German paper money. – We hope to achieve such a most complete judgment material on the question to have to wear.

Rostock, on the birthday of Prince Bismarck in 1872.

F. Perrot.

Twelve Theses on the Banking Question.

| Article 4 of the Constitution of the North German Confederation the legal regulation of the banking sector is the responsibility of the federal government retain, and the Federation is preparing to move closer to its task in this regard to step.

The importance of banking for the overall economic development winding does not require explanation. On the other hand, it must be It can be stated that a scientifically sound, generally accepted Theory of banking does not exist yet, rather the views in this matter are so disparate and abruptly opposed to each other as as possible.

While on the one hand the legal obligation emanating from the federal government Regulation of the Vankwefen is likely to be influenced by the deep will have the most significant impact on Germany's economic future, On the other hand, one must ask oneself with concern whether it will succeed will, in a short period of time, from an almost inextricable chaos of views the only healing economic truth to distill.

In order to stimulate discussion on the subject, the Committee of the German Trade Day in February 1870 some theses printed, which was drawn up by Dr. A. Meyer. At the same time, but the Committee of the Trading Day – that it had the intended Theses in no way appropriate.

It is now permitted to give the theses of the 9th Dr. Meyer Antitheses which the results of detailed study of the object included.

1) It is the exclusive responsibility of the State to provide traffic not only to create the metal but also the paper means of circulation because the state as such can do this best.

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 1

2

2) The “banknote” is a makeshift means of exchange. As the latter the paper circulation medium was already urgently needed, the State has not yet fulfilled its task, – instead of remedying the need itself, he transferred his authority and credit to private individuals: – in In some cases he exercised his authority and obligation out, but unfortunately in such a way that he abused it completely mindlessly. The same Incidentally, private banks also abused the transferred authority, mostly where they could.

3) Any “banknote” which is not backed by cash, i.e.

Coin is covered, increases the circulating means of circulation by the Amount to which it is denominated. The effect of this increase in The means of circulation is exactly that of public taxation. The definition nization of the "banknote" as a debt is incorrect. The issue Every "note" not backed by cash constitutes a public Tax in the amount to which it is stated, because any increase in the Circulating funds are balanced in a corresponding reduction change in the average purchasing power of money, in other words, in a corresponding increase in average prices. – Such Taxation is the natural right of the state and must remain so. State may not, without detriment to the whole of this kingdom, in favor of private individuals.

4) Every bank note not backed by cash therefore increases the bank's operating fund by the amount in which it is denominated and is nothing more and nothing less than something created by the bank, not previously existing "money." And when Mr. Max Wirth in his "Handbook of the banking sector" recently concluded: "There is no fundamental Difference between banknotes and government paper money", this The sentence can be put even more succinctly: "Between not by cash-deposit-backed "notes" and "government paper money" exist There is no fundamental difference in terms of traffic."

5) From the above it follows exactly what tax amount the Note issuance brings the banks and it is a tax which almost without collection costs. We also have the Explanation of the fact, which has not yet been sufficiently appreciated, that the The activity of all capable financiers is with such a preference for green ization of central banks where the state does not share this preference sets certain limits. – It is clear that the note emission The higher the tax revenue resulting for the bank, the greater the amount of notes not covered by cash, hence the Tendency of all central banks – as many notes as possible – in miglidft low cash coverage. – The "brittle" behavior of the pre-Bisch administrative practice in granting concessions for beggars banks is probably based on an unclear feeling of this fact and can only be praised.

3

6) Granting the authority to issue notes to private individuals According to what has been discussed so far, it is a state-sanctioned oriented institution, which allows an unmotivated accumulation of capital in certain The central banks act on a non-natural and therefore unjustifiable accumulation of capital in private hands by increasing the tax revenue contained in the note issue for the most part has almost the character of a public donation: – Performance and counter-performance are not at all motivated ible relationship.

7) The issue of banknotes cannot be considered as a banking transaction at all. – The paper medium of circulation, which the trade experiences¹ folarily needs it, must and may only be given to it be created by the state. To this end, the state simply creates "Paper money". This paper money constitutes, just as the "bank" notes" is a tax, not a debt. The process is simply this. The citizens of the state agree to distribute their circulating funds around to increase the amount of paper money required for circulation; The state income is currently increased by the amount of created paper; however, the purchasing power of money gradually decreases accordingly and thus acts as a general tax.

8) Experience teaches, as Max Wirth in his new handbook of the banking system concludes that "the regular redemption of banknotes at the Caffé with government paper money by accepting it in lieu of payment will be amply replaced in the state coffers."

9) A "state bank" is therefore in no way Experience shows that carefully and sensibly managed states banks have done a relatively good job by, on the one hand, ft created a uniform means of circulation in their notes, and on the other hand, due to their good management in and of themselves relatively advantaged But it remains no less true that these state banks Mixing state and private business in an equally impermissible manner as the private note banks. – It is not the state's business to bank to do business. State banks also find fundamentally inadmissible.

10) The current confusion regarding the banking issue is caused for the most part by the fact that the creation of the 1 *

4

the means of circulation required for the transaction with the banking transactions mixed, while both are in themselves quite heterogeneous things. As soon as If you separate the two, clarity comes into the confusing matter.

11) Not only the concessional system, but also the normative system conditions are superfluous with this solution, because it is not subject to any Doubt that the banking business exempted from the issue of banknotes to be completely released iff, – The question of the joint-stock companies has to find its solution in a larger context.

12) The quintessence of the above thesis would therefore be the following: on the banking issue:

a) The state creates the mechanical convenience of the Paper circulation media necessary for traffic by issuing of government paper money.

bh) All banknote issuance ceases.

Ä c) No more state bank.

dq Complete liberalisation of banking operations.

The Baulenquôte

of the permanent committee of the German trading day, reduced to the question: What is a banknote?

The permanent committee of the German trading day has by means of questionnaire a bank inquiry at the German banking and trading centers. The report on the results of this inquiry is available in prints in advance.

The result can be summed up in a single sentence:

No one has even the slightest doubt about that the banknote itself is the correct form of the paper cir= means of fecofm; – only Roftock (Dr. Witte) wants the bank=

note was eliminated altogether and replaced by simple government paper money. requires knowledge. 3 91%

It should be noted that the questionnaire itself does not contain any question which could lead to the conclusion that the author of the same in any way to the possible economic legitimacy of the state= paper money instead of banknotes.

Anyone who sees the banknote as the right, scientifically motivated and practically the most useful paper medium, comes into the Position to answer the following questions to yourself and others:

1. Why can and should the banking business be like any other,

be completely released?

2. What is better and more correct: a state bank, only private banks, or both at the same time?

3. Since nobody can even think of completely eliminating paper banks to release: – what about the concessions or norms? to maintain optimal conditions?

4. Concessions are considered a great evil, and now wants to introduce “normative conditions” instead, but for the fixation of the normative conditions is also not a safe principle, as for the concession conditions and the Control is equally difficult in both cases and – where the feen in the case of a deception of the control – immediately ineffective.

These questions and the related secondary questions lead to a completely inextricable labyrinth. The proof of the correctness=
The validity of this claim is most emphatically demonstrated by the initial mentioned report on the result of the ban fenquet.

The survey gives us a variety of views and opinions, which – it cannot be a burden on me to ignore the fact ftatire – which, I say, is not more confused and contradictory can be.

This is so far the last consequence of the assumption that the bank= note is the economically correct paper medium for communication.

If I now contradict all the respondents of the questionnaire – except for Rostock – the banknote completely abolished and replaced only by government paper money, then I am with the inadequacy of such an isolated radical contradiction conscious. But since I do not express my opinion lightly, but only on the basis of most laborious studies and strenuous intellectual work, since I even now, after careful examination of the historical facts and of the now available results of the survey, my opinion does not change, but rather only strengthen and confirm it, it occurs to me the extremely difficult, perhaps very thankless task of almost alone against a generally accepted, moreover by powerful private interests supported view. It gives me little consolation here, that I have received my opinion from the most notable of our economists approved, but knows that they are open to action in this sense currently consider impossible.

From the motivation of the questionnaire used for the survey
– as stated in the "Memorandum of the Permanent Committee of the German Trading Day: On Banking" is contained –
It turns out that the questionnaire, as well as its respondent and how most of our banking theorists, start from the view that the bank= note, as the memorandum expresses itself cautiously enough, a "Certificate, a certificate of commitment of the issuing institution or individual"

The bank theorists and now Max Wirth in his latest Handbook of Banking draws the conclusion even more precisely; Wirth gives the quintessence of his handbook: "There is no fundamental Difference between banknotes and government paper money. Both find promissory notes."

However, this definite must be considered inapplicable in general.

– M. Wirth defines this “guilt” more precisely as “Forced loan”. But it should also be added that it is not the Creditors note holders, but the entire public of the actual creditor, and that this poor creditor also has to pay interest on the money he lends him.

The definition of the banknote as a “promissory note” must but, despite all opposing views, for absolutely wrongly hold and explain: the banknote is by its nature and by its effect not only a promissory note of the issuer—fts, but a taxation of the state's inhabitants by the issuer by the amount of the note which would have been issued without cash collateral is issued.

My reasons are as follows:

A “debt” necessarily presupposes the idea of a repayment or Repayment of the debt. When creating banknotes, however, There is no question of debt repayment at all.

And where does the “debtor” get the money when the note is issued?

The alleged “guilt” simply arises from the fact that the grade= issuer his own money and thus the total amount of circulating money increased by the amount of notes issued without cash backing. As a result, the purchasing power of the circulating money supply is gradually reduced accordingly. However, since this reduction is limited to a large reservoir, it is hardly noticeable in detail when the Emiffion does not exceed certain limits. |

The bank increases its money by the amount not in cash covered notes and no longer withdraws this amount without usual ways from the pockets of the entire public, without even the remotest idea of ever repaying this “debt”.

The so-called “redeemability” of the grades has to do with this “school conditions” to create nothing. That would be a curious “debt” which, despite constant “redemption”, always stays at the same level. – If you look at the notes= If one wanted to interpret the emission as a contraction of a debt, one would have to yes, but above all, remember that the amount of money by which the Bank is enriched by the notes issued without cash backing, not from the pocket of the note holders, but from the pocket of the entire Publicum is referred to, that the entire public is the actual “debtor”, while the loss in the event of bankruptcy fich concentrates on the note holders.

However, since in the usual way there is no repayment of that contract, which the central bank issues by issuing notes without cash coverage – (id) of course only means the partial amount of the issued notes, which is not covered by cash) – from the pocket of the public cumsum refers, in no way the speech is ift and the speech can be fine,

fo every note issued without cash backing only as a public tax in favour of the note issuers tenten,
quod erat demonstrandum.

Taxation, however, is a natural right of the state, the over= transfer to private individuals is not only theoretically inadmissible, but with the large is linked to the most serious evils in practice.

The most serious disadvantage of note issuance by private individuals is this, that this in fact leads to an unnatural, economically even unmotivated accumulation of capital in privileged hands which is already being considered by the agricultural sector as a unfair capital withdrawal and credit price increases are perceived and is fought and in its time to even more worrying consequences should lead. 1

To issue notes not backed by cash simply means to make money for one's own pocket at the expense of the whole; This is exclusively the responsibility of the state. A transfer of this power is completely and actually equivalent to a one-sided, un= just and economically pernicious monopoly privilege of the mobile big capitals.

The elimination of banknotes by issuing government bonds= Money is of course only advantageous in states in which the economy= ual education has progressed so far that the paper money press is absolutely never again abused to satisfy momentary state needs can and may be, and this condition should be the first constitutional Basic law of the German government paper money to be created.

Incidentally, this is also the only radical solution to all those fundamental questions, the answers to which are the content the questionnaire on the latest bank quète also tried in vain, or nor did I try, as is the case with all answers to these questions, the case must be; the questions are unanswerable because the question itself= position is based on false principles and because the respondents the same false principle does not come out.

But the whole extremely important matter is solved simply, clearly and logical, once you have realized that the banknote is not a

"Guilt", but a Stener confitituired. The simple solution of all The previously unsolved questions are then the following:

1. No more banknotes.
2. Only government paper money besides metal money.
3. State banks are as superfluous as they are harmful.
4. Banking business – NB. without note issue – is to release completely.

The transition from the present state to the realization these sentences would, of course, be the subject of particular careful scrutiny.
weighing. |

®

The money,
his nature and fine economic .

A contribution to solve the banking, coin and currency issues.

I.

The legislation of the German Empire is currently being replaced by the task of regulating Germany's monetary system. This regulation will probably give the German monetary system its due for a long time to come.
design and the significance of this redesign will perhaps be best illustrated by the difficulties involved in assessing the relevant circumstances. – In the most important questions of

The economy has not yet made it to the indisputable, scientific clarification and with the profound incisions influence which the monetary system exerts on all economic relationships, ift a reorganization of the German monetary system, which is not inevitable ftobfhfe scientific basis, necessarily with oa all= greatest economic concerns.

The following investigations are based on the intention to Contribution to the acquisition of this indispensable scientific basis in to provide information on state and economic monetary issues.

It has become an article of faith in modern economics and every Chamber of Commerce Secretary considers himself entitled to make the big statement to calmly say: "Money is a commodity like any other."

With all due respect, gentlemen! – let us just do this one more time=

Let us examine it more closely. We are dealing with the core of the matter to do: once we know for sure what money is, then we can we can safely conclude everything else from this.

That money is, among other things, a commodity, is of course
There can be no doubt about this. However, two things seem to us to be of the greatest importance, namely: ö | Ä

Firstly, money is not merely a commodity, but also has other properties and functions and Secondly, money is indeed a commodity, but not a commodity like

11

any other, but one with very special qualities Commodity, which they rather distinguish from any other commodity and distinguish.

It is again the old story that the convenient generalization by means of stamped technical sentences is usually evil: every popular= Every economic case must be judged in its own right.

The greatest part of the work would be done in our case if we possess a logical=critical history of money. We begin fomfortably they do not, and so we must not waste the effort let us investigate a little for ourselves what the money was initially and how it then, over a long period of time, fuccefsively became what it is now. It will become clear that what we are doing today “Money” is not yet a fully developed concept, but rather presumably will also be subject to further change,
before it reaches its full economic clarification.

At the very beginning of transport, there was no money:
exchanged the objects in kind against each other: that was the stage of “barter traffic”.

Everything that is exchanged has a “value” although Value is twofold: namely, once in the estimation of that which who owns the exchange object, then secondly in the estimation
The one who takes the exchange object. The “exchange value”
Therefore, there is regularly a compromise between the value of a thing estimate of both exchanging parties.

As exchange increases in volume and frequency, it soon there will be usual grounds for the compromise of value estimates and customary agreements which lead to this compromise for a to formalize an ever-increasing number of cases in such a way that the “value” of the more frequently exchanged objects, expressed in the quantum, or the

The number of objects to be exchanged for this purpose is determined by mutual agreement.

A "value" in itself, as a basic economic concept, exists so not at all. No thing has an absolute value:
Rather, it always has in itself only the relative value which it each one includes in his own estimation.

A measure for this value only arises as soon as an object is compared with another is exchanged by compromising the subjective Value estimates that consider the two objects to be exchanged to be of equal value
– If such a compromise is repeated regarding the same Objects in exchange sufficiently often, the result of the com=
promisfes just to the usus and in this way a usual

12

"Market value" of the more common in exchange transactions objects.

If the development of traffic continues, the general exchange begins to focus on the mediation of people who make a special "business" out of this mediation make, the need gradually emerges to increase the "traffic" werthe" according to a common, widely known and adopted to measure the scale.

As such a common measure of value one naturally chooses the most common and viable object of exchange. You win the advantage, instead of measuring every market value against all other must now all work together on a single or at least several few to be able to measure comparatively.

This process of traffic life, which is still in historical
Time to follow, but unfortunately so far one that is not known to the wider public accessible, sufficient historical representation is lacking, we the emergence of "money". – Originally and firstly, the Money is nothing other than a particularly widespread and frequent exchange object, which usually becomes the common measure of value for exchange traffic has become.

One will naturally find that at the beginning of the traffic development development does not everywhere have the same object of exchange for the common value mefer, since not everywhere the same exchange object was the most common and may have been the most circulating. For example, we find The mainly agricultural peoples usually have livestock as most important and most frequent object of exchange, first as a common measure of value
It is extremely interesting how the Latin term for "Money", pecunia, fubstantively and ftylistic derived from pecus (cattle)
It is known, for example, that originally at the beginning of historical times in Italy, one cow was considered equal to an average of 10 sheep, so that the latter formed, so to speak, the small change. Among different peoples it was, and is still, the custom to express the value of exchange objects in number of cattle heads and breeding animals.

In other parts of the world with other natural conditions of existence and activities of their inhabitants, other objects of exchange have emerged as value measurement more suitable recommended, such as in Russia for a long time furs, among some populations of Africa certain shells etc. |

Once traffic has become accustomed to certain particularly frequent and to use suitable exchange objects as a common measure of value, Experience has shown that this has led to the custom of selling these exchange objects nor in any other way to facilitate traffic. Very This is instructively shown by the use that the furs have in Russia for transport purposes in historical times. People got used to Even before the Tartar immigration, they had already decided that The relative value attributed to furs is transformed into an absolute value, and a usual commercial agreement was formed= come to the conclusion that any other object of exchange was taken for furs and gave. Whoever had furs knew that he could exchange them return any other exchange object. That was quite comfortable compared to before: one was now able to fill surplus Natural values themselves, this "capital" in the more convenient form of furs, to store and transport. The furs were representatives all other exchange values: these exchange values are gradually after more abundant in traffic, because with the progressive development More and more labor product surpasses and finally establishes itself for the Mediation of the exchange of these products: the "market".

13

On the "market" you can exchange furs for any other object of exchange received: the furs thus became "market instructions": d. i.e. they are already a kind of "money", and one can now rely on the The way in which furs mediate the exchange of value, the Press: apply "buy" and "sell". The furs are now "Money", all other objects of exchange are: "goods". – From exchange= traffic, the "commercial business" develops.

The Tartars take away Russian war chests during their invasion, whose "currency" consisted of furs. Even in Peter the Great At that time, furs served as "money".

The development of transport continued in the meantime. The Surplus labor became ever richer, market traffic ever larger and More detailed: the furs were soon no longer sufficient as "money". Inter= It is important, as here, in addition to the emerging metal money, to try to make the use of furs in the function as money more convenient formalize: – in fact, in Russia, they have actually begun to only the snouts of the furs, instead of the whole furs themselves, as valid To set market instructions in cours: – the ratio of the snouts to the real furs offers in fact already an analogy of the ratio of paper money to metal money.

The same role of transport mediation and facilitation which in Russia for a long time took over the furs, have in the larger part the cultural countries of the ancient world various metals, especially the Precious metals with even greater and more lasting effectiveness.

14

It was in Italy that people first learned how to mine and process copper. The comparative valuation and exchange mediation by means of the Livestock could of course only be found at the lowest level of nomadic and agricultural development. A somewhat higher level of development= ftufe grabbed the nearest copper and regularly shaped, Quantities of this metal, marked with a weight stamp, were soon for comparative value estimation and as market instructions, ie used as money. Certain weights of copper – the pondo aeris – formed until late times, the main basis of the never clearly developed Roman “coinage”.

The most common use as “money” is for precious metals, Gold and silver were found. Nature had given the Orient gold, Greeks made silver most easily accessible: and so we see in the Orient, so to speak, the gold currency, in Greece the silver= currency. – Here, too, it is first regularly shaped, with weight quantities provided with a stamp, which the transition to form a real “coin system”. With the progressive expansion formation of traffic, these weight quantities are becoming more and more ufuell: – the development of retail trade requires the division into increasingly smaller weight units: – the consistent labelling these smaller weight quantities and a common guarantee for the Equality of content and weight improvement soon result in the convenience of transport as an unavoidable need: – Cities and States undertake the execution of both tasks for their respective circles of commerce, as the bodies most naturally suited to this purpose: – and fuch the “coins” appear in circulation, initially with one-sided, later with double-sided “embossing”. – The Romans arrived very late – namely only since the Tarentine War with the Greek Colonies and their silver currency – to the minting and use of silver coins, and since then had virtually a “double currency” in copper and silver. – Gold coins were The Romans also coined it much later: – the However, gold was almost always traded in larger quantities used only according to weight.

| II.

All that is needed is an unbiased assessment of the outlined historical process to come to the conclusion that money not only is it not a commodity "like any other", but that it is from the character of a commodity, which it exclusively possessed at the beginning, more and more removed, without, however, completely losing this character to have stripped off.

15

The original character of a commodity is first of all that of a comparative value measurer, and then that of a market instruction. – The more the characteristics of the current market knowledge of money develops, the more the quality gradually as a commodity, but without, as mentioned, completely losing disappear.

In the process of "buying" and "selling" the money is completely stripped of its value as a commodity for personal use and further nothing more than a title of ownership, which is created by the need of traffic and the resulting customary agreement
Characteristic of a generally accepted instruction on the market has sufficed.

So is money, especially the most common precious metal metal money, from a commodity to a with the "credit" of a market= instruction-laden repugnant of all goods. This
The substitution of all market values by money is so familiar to us today
It has become clear that we are constantly in danger of misunderstanding the concepts of "capital" as being identical with each other.

It is now easy to see what support is being given to traffic and in particular the trade that mediates the exchange of value from this generally adopted representation of all market values by money
This representation has only in fact made the exchange of value possible substantial sense is mobilized and both – trade and money – are progressing in their inseparable development, keeping pace with one another= and on: – the history of the currency and the coin system offers in particular lich in terms of the gradual training and refinement of the similar conventional value measurement the most interesting explanations and evidence of the inseparable connection of all cultural development with the progress of the monetary system. – One has to take this connection has not yet received the attention it deserves: – how
For example, the relation of the Roman financial the Roman wholesale and retail trade to the Roman coinage appreciated in terms of cultural history?

A reading based on correct cultural-historical perspectives

A complete history of the monetary system is a great need for time: – if we they possessed would be a very tangible economic requirement remedied: – we would then see the ways for the further development much more clearly development of our monetary system before us. – Of course,

16

This story cannot be undertaken successfully until the right Aspects for this are clear: – may we succeed in making a contribution to provide information on this finding.

III.

It is now necessary to examine the relations in more detail. which result from the given relationships between “money” and “goods” have been developed.

Instead of the more primitive forms of money – such as cattle hides, furs, Mussels etc. – is, with advancing culture, everywhere the precious metal money: – only peoples at the lowest levels of culture can make do even with more imperfect means of payment. I– Precious metal money has achieved a universality, which on the one hand results from its natural properties as a commodity and on the other hand an essential needs of the entire traffic.

It is quite obvious that the more trade develops, the more spreads, develops and branches, the more the need for the greatest possible equalization of comparative value measurement, and at the same time also after an exchange–mediating market instruction of as must strive for universal validity. The natural properties of the noble metals made them particularly suitable for both needs of the trade and traffic. It is for our further discussion. It is important to return to this point in more detail.

First of all, precious metals, as exchange value, are almost without exception valued all over the world, and were already so in such early Time that they are probably to be regarded as the first universal exchange goods.

Secondly, the distribution of precious metals in nature is a relatively limited, so that relatively small quantities of it relatively large exchange value: – universal “demand” for limited “supply.”

Thirdly, one can therefore obtain great value in the form of precious metals relatively easy to preserve and transport in small volumes portieren. 3

Fourthly, one can easily find different and specific weights and Form quantities of what is important for the comparative measurement of value appears to be of utmost importance.

Fifthly, the precious metals are not exposed to spoilage and can be stored easily and safely for an unlimited period of time.

All these properties together have resulted in the noble metals from a universal commodity, at the same time a universal measure of value and a universal market instruction and thus finally to a universal Representatives of all values that compete in trade.

To 17

At first, what we now call "money" was merely an object of exchange, a commodity, but ultimately from this commodity, a replacement, a representative of all goods, of all coursing in trade Values and this representation is composed of the two Characteristics of comparative value measurement and credit as a market instruction.

If one looks at the course of this historical development and If one looks at the current nature of money without prejudice, There can be little doubt that among the characteristics which we today subsumed under the term "money", the character of a "commodity" still present, but over time more and more has receded, so that for us the property of money, as a Consumer goods form only the distant background, so to speak, of which contains the essential characteristics for transport mediation— killings of money to an increasing extent.

IV. |

The property of money requires special consideration as a measure of value.

The value of a traffic object, expressed in money, is called we have its "price." We have shown how the comparative value measurement of all traffic objects developed from the fact that people got used to all objects to a few, finally almost exclusively to the noble metals, to measure. By customary determination of a sequence of stages of certain Weight and form quantities of the precious metals in the various smaller and larger traffic circles, one arrived at usual value scales, which fower with advancing traffic gradually finer and more detailed The relative development of these value scales can be seen in the different peoples and at different times an exact measure— ftabe for the relative development of traffic: – it requires just a glance at the development of these scales among the Greeks and Romans to recognize that a finely structured retail trade in such Scala could not exist. – The imperfection of ancient finance—the system is faced with imperfection, uncertainty and over-number of value scales, which also change too frequently, in close connection mixture.

We can determine the "price" of an object, in particular of a commodity
Now define it more precisely by specifying how many units of the

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 2

18

value scale, the value of the object, respectively a measurement and weight scale unity of the commodity.

This "price" is based solely on the ratio of "Ange-supply and demand between the precious metals on the one hand and the other exchange values circulating in the market gradually emerge
The price therefore forms a simple relation between the amount of money circulating in circulation and the Quantities of goods, respectively trade objects.

Let us therefore assume, as is actually the case, the number
the units of measurement in circulation as relatively constant
, the price of a commodity will rise or fall depending on within the sales circle of this product, the offer, compared to the current demand, going down or up, rising or falling – et vice versa.

The quantity of units of value circulating in trade is determined
By the way, under normal circumstances, the amount of the available money in general, if not exactly, then at least approaching.

As long as there was only metal money, the amount of circulating Money is bound to very natural limits, which allow frequent and sudden large fluctuations in the total circulation are excluded. The pro-production of precious metals has, however, changed greatly over timeungen. In particular, the discovery of America has a lower considerable quantity of them into circulation, so that the coinage precious metal money increased to a greater extent than the supply of Values in general: – the consequence of this was that in the relation between Money and transport objects as a whole are facing a major change in level-went: – the money lost purchasing power, ie the price of objecte went up on average.

Thus prices are subject to a double kind of change.
Firstly, they change gradually and averagely over long periods of time, such as the relationship between the circulating money mass and the
The amount of circulating market values as a whole changes: – then There are also more frequent partial price fluctuations, which depend on momentary conjunctures, the price relationships in the large but not significantly altered

We therefore have the important fact that the noble metal-reduced value measurement on the large average does not cause a sudden Fluctuations in the relationship of the value measure to the measured values: – it is not difficult to find the cause of this phenomenon

19

in the fact that every inflow to the reservoir of the precious metal money gradually rises above the universal level of the entire traffic world: – there are just such enormous inflows, as since the discovery of America and the gold fields in California and Australia, necessary to maintain this extensive level of standard in the course of to change noticeably over the course of decades.

It is obvious that with precious metal money, as with the world oceans, the Size of the reservoir the comparative stability of the level, ie in our case the measurement of value reduced to precious metal money.

V.

From the course of our previous investigations, it should now be illuminate how metal money is far more a matter of habitual Agreement-based credit institution, called a commodity Whoever exchanges money for goods, the money is not a commodity for one's own use, but only a generally honored Title of ownership, which is accompanied by the “credit”, that it can be used at any time Markets can be exchanged for goods. – “Buy” and “Sell” are already “credit operations”, only enabled by the market= order credit, which the money is created by customary agreement – The advantage of this credit operation lies simply in the invaluable opportunity for traffic to connect all traffic objects in the convenient form of money acquisition, conservation and translocation to be able to ciren.

But even this convenience is not enough to meet all needs the progressive development of transport. Production and sales reach a stage where even the mediation of metal credit still makes great and ever greater inconveniences become noticeable. Naturally, traffic is looking for ways to avoid these inconveniences to remedy the situation.

The difficulties of making payments using cash at a greater distance lead first to the thought which “Change” is based on: – instead of first A to B and then B to C pays, B “draws” a “bill of exchange” on A, which C pays in place of the

Cash payment by giving the "bill of exchange" the credit that A will "honor" him on the due date. – C changes the debtor and A the creditor: – hence the "bill of exchange". – the advantage This operation is based on the fact that two payments are made to one be reduced, and this advantage is usually increased by meaning that A and C live in the same place, but B in a

on

20

lives in more distant places, so that at the same time a payment on larger distance is transformed into one at a smaller distance. Soon, however, a further moment will be added, which The simpler nature of the exchange is somewhat complicated. From the exhibition to Of course, a larger or larger period of time elapses before the bill of exchange matures. shorter period. During this time, the bill of exchange represents a

"Accept" A acknowledged claim of C against A, linked to the Promise of the 4th to make payment within a certain period of time. It has Now a commercial agreement has been formed, that every buyer man such a promise of payment, called a bill of exchange, in the period from Issue date until maturity in place of real money in payment takes and gives, but at the same time as "indoffant" the co-guarantee for it assumes that the bill of exchange will be converted into ordinary money at the due date The bill of exchange is implemented by this commercial agreement= come to a special kind of "money" which can be quite rightly called "commercial money." – The bill of exchange is money from limited circulation period and limited circulation area, which only at the end of his career in ordinary, i.e. at will transformed into money that can be divided and used in ordinary transactions. If someone wants to make this conversion before the expiry date, he has to pay "discount". The bill of exchange is therefore already a kind of Paper money, whose credit is given to the special ones discussed is tied.

But the change still involved a great inconvenience: – the sum to which it refers can only be paid in full and undivided as money At the same time, traffic has the need for a market= instruction, which allows to sell large values even more conveniently and easily, than in the form of metal money to translocate and conserve. A paper market order, of an even more convenient form than the bill of exchange, would have to meet this need: – the "banknote" is created.

The original term "banknote" has quite logically developed from change: – it is inherent in its origin=

ly a bill of exchange "payable on sight". If one takes the initial idea the banknote correctly developed, it is an instruction à vista on in metal money deposited in the bank's vaults: – it constitutes a ver= obligation of the bank to provide the presenter of the note at any time, upon request to exchange the nominal amount for metal money. – This solubility exchange function in trade as a more convenient surrogate for the bank's following= properly deposited in the same amount of imaginary metal money, enjoy completely the credit of the same within the credit area of the bank and subsequently also in the ordinary course of business of this credit offer divisible into ordinary coin, without "discount."

21

These "notes" therefore represent a type of money which Main characteristics of a generally known standard of value and a generally honored market instruction already in almost the same high Degrees united in itself, like the metal money itself. – The credit of this However, the idea of issuing banknotes is initially based on the idea that the bank nominal amount of the same deposited in metal. – The market The credit of metal money is therefore comparatively absolute, that of the banknote only to a limited extent. – Incidentally, these initial Credit conditions and thus also the nature of paper circulations= medium in the further course of traffic development.

VI.

If we have just shown the idea on which the Circus calculative credit of the "banknotes" originally built up, we must Here we can also immediately demonstrate how the commercial origins of the bank= note, which was by no means entirely consistent with that idea.

By making a business out of it, the private company to supply public transport with the paper means of circulation which it needed, it naturally also had to have a "business" advantage for itself It is of crucial importance to be aware of this "commercial advantage" in the issue of banknotes exactly to see clearly.

If someone can only issue as much nominal amount in notes wanted when he puts back in metal money as "cover": fo it is clear that there is no commercial advantage for the issuer would: no one has ever been so stupid as to do such a thing to do.

The initial practice of the financiers was simply that they issued more nominal amount in notes than they had in cover ung in metal money. They soon relied on the business experience that the need for traffic is usually little ft / of the issued notes in constant circulation, and that the for the usual need of converting their notes into "Baar"

with $\frac{1}{2}$ "cover" in metal money was more than sufficient in circulation.

It is now necessary to clarify exactly which actual consequences sequences are linked to this business conduct.

If someone issues notes and only part of their nominal value

22

amount, let us take $\frac{1}{2}$, for example, in cover, namely in metal money, deposited, two things are clear:

Firstly, he increases his operating capital by twice the "cover" amount of metal money deposited and secondly, it increases the amount of circulating fluid also by double.

For the fact that the "banker" gives the creditor the paper money delivers, the latter of which is absolutely necessary, he enjoys as remuneration the every positive advantage to increase one's business capital by as much as this note issue in nominal amount exceeds the deposited "cash cover" applies – always assuming that, as was originally the case, the "cover" only consists of metal money. – In this case increase in the business capital, under the foregoing assumption, the banker's business advantage. – It is with a single
"It is clear at first glance that this advantage is quite extraordinary and that It is all the more significant, the lower the cash coverage in relation to the Furthermore, it is clear that with the same ratio of Cash coverage and note issue the advantage grows with the total amount of the emission.

The possibility for a banker to finance his working capital through Issuance tion of uncovered notes to increase the nominal amount of the latter, is of course based on the willingness of the public to listen to the notes in to reward traffic according to their face value and to use them as money.
The willingness of the public to do this is based on several Reasons: – firstly, the mechanical need for transport Paper money: – then on the idea of the "redeemability" of this paper money, if you need metal money, or the note somewhere the credit is denied: – and thirdly also on the greater or lesser Un-knowledge of the general public about the exact conditions of existence of such Banknotes. – If you add to this a certain more personal Trust in the banking company, so you have the main elements, which make up the so-called "credit" of the banknotes.

Even the latest banking wisdom of a part of our economyical school seems to have hardly progressed beyond this the banknote granted by the public "credit", the banknote itself, as to define a "promissory note". However, it seems to us that whether this means only one word, and a completely incorrect one at that, the place of another: – we have the essence of the banknote tried to develop analytically so far: we continue on this path: the synthesis ultimately occurs by itself.

23

By issuing "notes", the banker, however, assumes – according to the concepts most prevalent in the public – the ~~Ver~~ obligation to exchange these notes for metal money at any time upon request change: – according to this obligation, the banker must therefore Be able, if necessary, to pay the entire amount of notes issued into metal money! The banker, on the other hand, expects that this "necessary case" will not occur and, as explained, issues this business advantage, more notes than he has in cash ready. |

The "debt" contracted by this additional emission is now but of such a peculiar nature that this designation is in fact no longer is sufficient and another name would certainly characterize its nature more accurately. firen: we want to try to find this other term.

To do this, we must now remember the essential second point, that in the issue of notes only partially covered by cash, the Amount of circulating funds in circulation by the amount of notes not covered by cash reserves. The amount The circulation of the circulating means in traffic thus increases through this "financial operation" – what a word! – by the same amount, which increases the bank's working capital.

This increase in public funds is now, however, by no means indifferent to traffic: according to our previous discussions Rather, it must be clear that the increase in means of payment is synonymous with a, admittedly only gradual and often barely measurable reduction in the purchasing power of money. But before this Reduction in the purchasing power of money or – what is the same thing – the increase in average prices occurs, with not too significant tender paper issue, the newly created means of circulation for a while long, the purchasing power corresponding to the previous state. This is usually as long as the sentence remains completely valid for private banknotes:

by issuing notes only partially covered by cash, the The bank's operating fund will be increased by the full amount of the non-cash covered notes increased.

Now that the purchasing power of the public medium of circulation is gradually decreases accordingly, so the emission only partially constitutes cash covered "note" not only represents a "debt" to the public, but also also has the effect of a public "be control" in favor of the issuing bank.

We must now assess whether, firstly, the effect of this taxation with the service which the bank provides by issuing notes

24

fion to traffic, and secondly, whether such taxation of the general public for the benefit of individuals in general and in principle seems casual. – Nor can one even say that the public fuffifcife voluntarily felfeft, because the traffic is in a kind of predicament if he does not receive the paper money from where it should actually come from only, namely from the state.

VII.

Naturally, another point follows here:
investigation.

One has fallen into the practice of paper banks that "Cover" of the note imprint partly in Baar, partly in "Werth: papers". Some banks have in this way full amount of their banknote issue, others have covered part of their Notes covered by cash and securities, and another part of their Notes are completely uncovered.

It is necessary to examine the effect of coverage by value-papers, both in relation to the bank and in relation to the public.

As regards the effect of paper cover on the bank, it is essentially determined by the fact that the deposited securities are interest-bearing. The economic result is simply this: the Bank buys interest-bearing paper that has passed into its possession pier then turns them into money again by selling them for the same purpose t contract issues notes, while at the same time the purchased papers are Coverage remains in the possession of the bank. The "operation" is therefore simply This means that the bank is entitled to the amount of the banknote issue, which the paper deposit serves as "cover", is enriched: the bank The capital questionis has two parts, namely once in the form of "Paper cover" and then in the form of notes: the Bank benefits twice from this, namely in the form of interest from the papers deposited as cover and then in the form of business profit, which is made with the notes circulating as money is realized.

The effect on the public is again that of a increase in the circulating value tokens by the amount of the paper covered notes, which would result in a public tax of the same amount in favor of the bank.

7

25

VIII.

The effect of the previous practice of allowing private banks to issue notes which are only partially covered by "cash", designed such actually so that the amount of circulating tokens of value increased by the amount of notes not covered by cash and that, in addition, a significant quantity of paper tokens of value in circulation circulated, for which there is no cover at all – neither in paper still in Baar. A difference between covered and Unsecured notes do not prevail in trade.

It is clear from what has been discussed so far that taxation of the public in favour of the bank is all the more significant, the lower the cash cover represents the issue amount of the notes. Should this But if it is not yet clear to anyone, then the preference which clever financiers have been using to this day Founding of the note banks. Particularly instructive in this Relationship is the American financial history. In the years 1810 Until 1840, in America, with almost complete banking freedom, and liability of shareholders limited to the amount of their shares a multitude of banks were founded, whose founders were just waiting until the taxation of the public by the sometimes not at all, or mostly only very slightly covered notes in the form of a price increase who claimed the shares in order to then sell their shares at a profit and thus the initially collectable amount of this taxation into the pocket to fteden: when this had happened, only then did the success of the actual æbusinessesæ to be conducted by the bank, and proved fe averagely of the kind that from 1810 to 1840 no less than 3000 banks failed. The real business of these banks has actually only in one of the founders in the public mostly intentionally and knowingly committed theft by revealing the same fultimately taxed for their private benefit, without even only to strive to honestly provide the counter-performances promised. present. |

That, for example, the Prussian administration fih to this day behaved very "brittle" – as they say – with regard to Con= granting of cessions for note banks is undoubtedly based on an unclear, instinctive feelings of the true state of affairs. As a result of this praiseworthy conduct of the Prussian administration were those financial ciers, who would like to reap a great advantage, through Emif= fion of the largest possible banknote amounts with the lowest possible cash cover, –

Those financiers, I must say, were on the borders of Prussia, diverse in the so-called "robber states" – nomen et omen! – to establish, since these "robber states" with the granting of the concession less were difficult, like Prussia. For example, when a clever Cologne financier Central bank with extremely low cash coverage, and thus particularly large Wanting to establish a business for profit, he went to Darmstadt and had the concession to that paper bank institute, which of all German Banks have the lowest cash coverage and thus the highest taxation of the public in favour of the bank: but in vain was a such valuable concession was not granted and the meeting of the Darmstadt Second Chamber of 20 December 1869 only gives an idea of where the five Millions of guilders of shares were added, which the General Assembly of the bank shareholders of 20 January 1857 to the Board of Directors of Bank, "in order to use them for the fulfilment of the obligations assumed towards the Grand Ducal Government–capabilities." – The haste with which recently in Reuß wanted to establish a paper bank, immediately before entering of the provisional banking law for the North German Confederation, raises its own Light on this connection, which will hopefully contribute to to bring the insight into these things on the right track.

| It will now be more doubtful why the note banks always and everywhere with such special emphasis for the legitimacy of the note issue and why the financiers of all countries since the existence of paper banks, the latter always such pronounced preference. This is nothing more and nothing less than the legitimacy of the great capital, to provide the traffic with paper circulation medium and to charge the Publicum a tax to see which is good as well as fine expenses face each other.

| The emission of "bank notes" only partially covered by metal money notes", is thus – sans phrase – a public donation to the Issuers in the amount of notes not covered by cash equal add *).

Only the actually limitless confusion of all so far about money and banking views prevailing, and the undeniably great interest The central banks' involvement in this confusion make it understandable that a *) Paper cover by bills of exchange changes little in this respect, because the bills of exchange are paid by the bank with notes, and the discount gives the profit of this gift capital.

Fact of such eminent importance that it has not yet been able to could come into effect.

Modern economics has all the occasionally emerging Claims of an absorbing superiority of "capital" pure want to dispute. These claims are in their generality of all= However, this is also unfounded. The authority to issue only partially However, cash-backed notes are in fact an institution create, which the large capital simply by donation from the public purse in the most liberal, comfortable and profitable way and indeed on a completely unmotivated accumulation of capital in individual preferred hands. – Here lies one of the Reasons for the complaints of the agricultural community that the Ca= hospital is disproportionately withdrawing from it.

| IX. |

It must be clear, after what has been said so far, that for the important substantial role that "money" plays in trade no longer has its own ft as a commodity, but that credit is the main thing, which over time has become increasingly inextricably linked to money, that credit, by virtue of which the money of everyone as a representative= tant of capital and recognized as an instruction on the market and is honored.

The function of money as a comparative measure of value cannot yet be completely separated from its character as a commodity, Nevertheless, the price unit can already be considered as a certain abstract measure of value, for example the English "pound stere" ling" – so that the purchasing power of the ideal unit of value would only depend on the ratio of the circulating traffic= end value symbols belong to the set of value objects circulating in exchange.

The functions of money are therefore primarily determined by its market=
This credit of the money is now the property of money as a mere commodity, has grown
but has also already developed into a highly independent entity, which only or in some cases is still dependent on that which is inherent in metal money.
character of a commodity.

If we are able – and this is a prerequisite – has already become a fact on a large scale – a market to create a directive which we merely submit to you by convention necessary credit, and this market instruction can be used as a result of the credit conventionally assigned to it, the function of money on

it's simple – paper money.

Such “paper money”, which has no value of its own, first, but functions solely as a result of the credit assigned to it, is incomparably more perfect than metal money, and the latter liable property of a commodity is at the present standpoint of traffic actually only disruptive to the tasks which it has to fulfill.

However, due to the physical handling of money in the The precious metals are used as material from which a part of the tokens of value, will probably never be replaced, so one will find improvement and its effect on the must seek to reduce the achievable minimum.

X.

Pure convention money without its own commodity value is therefore the ideal for traffic: but as far as human judgment reaches, this ideal cannot be fully realized – by the way, common= fame fate of all ideals! – because the physical nature of traffic finally a means of circulation of the physical properties of the precious metals metals can be completely eliminated.

The “banknotes” we have spoken of so far are only a Intermediate link in the development from commodity money to convention money= money. The banknotes were originally only used as remnants for Commodity money deposited in bank cellars, i.e. precious metal money, thought: in the In practice, however, they have predominantly become convention money.

One should say, just as it is the undisputed task of the state, to provide the traffic with the metal circulation medium, just as It must also be his task to provide the traffic with the now to provide money for conventions that have become indispensable. In practice this has turned out somewhat differently.

Just as metal money only gradually evolved from a private issue means of income of the merchants to a state-stamped and guaranteed substantial means of circulation, so paper money is also first as a private means of information for merchants, initially in the form of bills of exchange then appeared in the form of the banknote. The need for paper Convention money was available before the state and society clear idea of how best to meet this need peaceful. The banknote was a necessary Transition point in the development towards paper money.

have also made a significant contribution to improving traffic for the to predispose to the massive acceptance of paper money.

The banking business in and of itself has to deal with completely different Things to do with the task of providing the necessary circulation to traffic furance. Banking is only possible with the Distribution and use of the circulating agent in certain larger scale, but not naturally and appropriately with the Creation of this means of circulation itself. The history of the Noren-banks is also, to a large extent, a history of evil, which with such a mixture of state tasks and private business are inevitably linked and which only in individual cases are temporally and conditionally less expressed.

Now it is to be noted that even very early on the view It became apparent that the state was the only means of circulation in paper fcrófe: unfortunately, this was linked to the same error which the private banknotes only as remnants of cash deposited in the idea was accepted, and people mostly came to the conclusion that the state can only issue paper circulation media through a "bank": Thus, the large state banks were created, but most of them did not even pure state institutes, but middle ground between state and private institutions. The regulations issued for these so-called state banks legal provisions are usually such that they are directed at private capital to participate in the business advantage and the profit from the paper issue resulting taxation of citizens, which is also part of the to participate in the profits generated by the business.

With regard to private note banks, the error prevailed that a state task – the paper issue – and a state regalia – public taxation – to private individuals; this was the case with these State banks make the great mistake of not fulfilling the state's task without the involvement of a purely private business to be able to solve; that one believed the creation of paper circulation= by means of fet absolutely tied to the operation of a barn business. So was once again a state and private task in a regrettable way mixed with each other. That such state banks, as has recently been can be managed quite well, there is no doubt that but does not remove the inner contradiction of their nature.

Soon, however, the right idea came to mind that "Paper money" from the state simply without the mediation of a bank= could be given. – Unfortunately, it then happened almost without exception that such paper was only made to meet the immense need of poor To satisfy the needs of the state economy. Experience had shown that fuch government paper money quite well alongside the metal money al pari circu= and believed that making money had no limits more. – It took a long, incredibly long time until recently the general knowledge established that the paper money production have their limits.

30

These limits of money production had probably been reached with metal money. prudent and wise nature itself: – with paper money this limit was only drawn by the reasonable insight of the heads of state Unfortunately, only today are we beginning to think about these borders to provide clarity.

When the state issues paper money, it increases the Sum of the circulating tokens. This results in a change in the relation between the sum of the value units and the exchange values in circulation, such that the same amount of exchange value, more money comes, as before. The Settlement then takes place in such a way that the money is loses purchasing power, or, in other words, prices rise.

So every issue of government paper money is simply a government tax, except that the effect of this taxation, at lower The introduction of paper money has only taken place very gradually, almost imperceptibly.

If the issuance of paper money is simply limited which arises from the general need of trade for paper money emerge, – a relationship which is not, on the whole, fluctuating, now statistically determined in a certain relation to the metal money supply indirect – so is the change in the relationship between money and exchange value circulation is not directly measurable, ie it changes the prices not noticeably: just as a drop affects the level of a large basin changes, but this does not measurably change after whitening. j

If one takes into account that the money reservoir of the individual State is not a closed entity, but that under ordinary conditions also from state to state a balance of money circulation to a certain extent, it is clear on the one hand that taxation by issuing paper money not even exclusively to the traffic of the issuing state, but also, depending on the circumstances, more or less encroach on the adjacent territories, namely, if the issued paper circulates in the latter: – on the other hand It is precisely this circumstance that allows individual states to

31

could issue relatively high amounts in paper without having to their territory serious disturbances in the price relationships to see it occur; because the higher the level to which the monetary increase distributed, the lower the associated level disturbance. – Moreover, since all civilised states have more or less paper means of circulation, this mutual taxation also takes place a certain compensation takes place.

Another circumstance helps with this compensation.

As soon as a state issues its paper – be it called paper “Notes” or “paper money” – so much so that the gradual disappearance leveling can no longer keep pace with the increase, so the changed relation between the quantity of value symbols and of circulating values as a price change, and it closes. First of all, foreign countries are faced with the excessive issue of paper. The Ni= level change now only occurs within the issuing state valid, or rather only to a lesser extent transfers to the surrounding areas. |

Since at the same time the metal money abroad is universally accepted purchasing power, the price increase is initially transferred only on the paper money issued in excess, while the traffic be= ftrft is to establish the usual value ratios for metal money. So first the exchange rate difference between paper and metal money.

Furthermore, since foreign countries persistently reject the deferred paper, since the price increase in the over-emitting state, albeit in to a lesser extent, to the metal money, since the payment in money the payment liabilities, namely the interest on government debt abroad lande mostly in metal to preventive find, which results in a strengthened metal-outflow of metal to foreign countries, while at the same time in the interior the metal is largely held back out of mistrust. – From all These causes usually result in over-emission of paper, which is more or lesser disappearance of the metal from the circulation of the State. – Those with the madness of such excessive paper= The problems associated with the creation of transport are too well known to to have to go into it further.

XI. i

We now have the three main types of procurement of paper. The following are the means of circulation for the following purposes: – private banknotes, government banknotes and government paper money.

32 |

Now experience has shown that private individuals can be granted the power of making money, i.e. the issuance of notes not backed by cash, cannot overflow without restriction, because the temptation of an immeasurable

“Taxation of the public is too great to avoid any abuse and to open the gate. – So they came up with legal restrictions

But since the central banks are now doing state business – issuing notes

– and private business – namely the actual banking business – at the same time

operated, it was possible to regulate both at the same time
This has been done in two ways: firstly, by the state was granted the concession to operate a central bank or by making general “normative determinations” regulations” for the central bank operations, the observance of which is therefore State would have to monitor: – but the one is as bad as the other.
State banks, unless appropriated by the state itself in emergency situations needs, have already rendered comparatively better services, since their was subject to legal regulation, and this regulation in the middle European states finally took place with caution. State banks have over private banks the undeniable advantage that they return at least a uniform, everywhere regarding his credit offer a uniformly valued means of circulation, a circumstance that is all the more
The larger the territory in question, the less weight it has. – The notes
Such state banks function entirely as a multiple government paper money and their “redeemability” is for the internal Traffic is merely an illusion. – On the other hand, the state banks are liable for the la evil, as well as the private note banks state and private to mix business, the benefit of public taxation in un motivated way to those involved in these so-called state banks to allow private individuals to benefit, as well as state and private business to regulate evenly and through the outstanding participation the state's involvement in private banking operations is a natural, healthy development to prevent the development of banking business at all: the state must not, and least of all to the extent and with the privileges as this by the current state banks – competition for private business do: – that is not his task and is definitely evil.
The so-called “forced exchange rate” for paper money or banknotes
According to what has been said so far, it is self-evident that this is an absurdity and fhowever, it has proven itself to be such in reality. If paper money is only used in measured quantity, there is no need for the compulsory course, as the Experience teaches, – if over-emission occurs, then force helps course against devaluation, as experience also undoubtedly proves.

33

That the notes of the so-called state banks are actually in function like government paper money, has already been emphasized. Max Wirth in the 3rd volume of his National Economy, which is also “Handbook of Banking” serves: draws from his investigations under
A. the conclusion, “There is no fundamental difference between banknotes and government paper money. – The banknotes

Without compulsory coupon, government paper money in practice is as far as the regular redemption of the first at the cash stage in government paper money by accepting in lieu of payment to the state treasury (taxes, postage telegraph tax, customs duties and other fees) will be amply reimbursed."

Let us now present the results of our investigations concerning the Banking question, they should probably have a clear answer as simple solution to the problem, which we summarize in the following sentences.

1. The need for paper circulation medium – Con:

The state has to create the necessary funds for the intervention, namely through a-multiple issue of government paper money. Since this paper money issue but is equivalent to a state tax, then in assessing its Of course, in constitutional states, the people's representation to compete. Decisive for the amount of government bond issuance, only the mechanical need for convenience in traffic, never the changing need of the state for money. The need of the However, the traffic in paper money is, on average, also constant, such as the need for metal money. The smaller Fluctuations in demand for both means of payment have, of course, the traffic itself has to be balanced.

2. The issuance of so-called banknotes is absolutely to suppress.

3. State banks are both superfluous and harmful.

The concession of the Preußische Bank must therefore be terminated. i

4. The banking business – nota bene without note issue, which is not banking business at all – is completely liberalized.

The question of joint-stock companies, which of course also plays a role here, must be find their solution in a larger context.

The current confusion of views on the banking issue is based primarily on the habitual view, which banking transactions and notes= emission as identical, while they find two fundamentally different things.*)

*) Between this work and the following lies the French War, in which I commanded an artillery ammunition column. DV

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 3

The German trading day and the banking question).

It has now been just a year since I was in the "National: Zeitung" and in the "Hamburg. Börse" my "Antitheses to the theses of Mr. Dr. A. Meyer pto. Bankfrage) published.

Since then, world history has experienced a great
We are a united, powerful and respected nation. But the magnitude of our economic tasks is with it only grew, and no sooner has peace been concluded than even the most serious economic issues with increased force to us.

In my 12 theses mentioned above I had suggested want the public discussion to begin about the economic I would like to clarify the financial truth in banking matters because I cannot dismiss the conviction that only this economic Truth provide the foundation for a healthy German banking law can be found in G. Hirth's "Annals of the North German Confederation" (previous year p. 299) I tried at the same time to write in a more detailed work: "Money: Its Essence and Its Functionnen") – the economic truth in * scientifically unacceptable to make it clear in a contestable manner.

That was in June last year. I also published around this time in No. 27 of the "Deutsche Industrie-Zeitung" a Work of the same tendency: – "The banking squeeze of the permanent outshot of the German trading day, reduced to the question:
What is a banknote? ")

My explanation was concentrated on the following sentences:

Every note not backed by cash constitutes a tax, and not to issue notes backed by cash simply means to issue at the expense of the make money for their own pockets; this may only be done the state. Any transfer of this authority to private individuals is completely and *) From the "National-Zeitung" of 12 July 1871.

*) Reported on p. 1 ff

) The previous work.

+) p. 5.

35

actually synonymous with a one-sided, unjust and economically destructive monopoly privilege of mobile big capital.
I may well assume that the explanation will be so profound= ficient sentences in the above-mentioned outstanding passages did not go unnoticed.
remained. Nevertheless, I have not heard that in the entire German fch press even a single word of discussion, or even just mention nation of the same would have been loud: – certainly a very remarkable fact.
Now returning from the campaign, I find in No. 19

of the "Deutsche Handelsblatt" of 11 May c. under "Official Communications of the German Trade Day" a memorandum "Concerning the banking question",) which also appeared in separate print form, and on the negotiations of the Bank Commission of the German Trading day report. The work was written by General Secretary of the German Trade Forum, Dr. Alexander Meyer. The 26-member commission consisted mainly of Bank directors, among whom I only mention Mr. von Dechend, President of the Prussian State Bank. The meetings of the Commission However, they took place from 23 to 25 May last year. What is remarkable and striking about the negotiations of the Commission is the fact that it fundamentally The memorandum says: "From a practical point of view—points, it can only be a matter of creating such facilities make decisions that will satisfy you in the near future. practical men limit their view, and it would be just as doctrinaire, to want to set out principles which are for eternal times when it was considered a purely theoretical endeavor should be understood to emphasize principles that are in the knowledge—entity well founded, but at the moment due to the circumstances the introduction into life." | Very nice! – Mfo: "it would be doctrinaire (for the banking question) basic to want to set out sentences that are supposed to be valid for all eternity"?! Should the gentlemen have perhaps overlooked the fact that the economic truth, as all truth in general is eternal? This convulsive rejection of economic truth and the fundamental silence of the same by the bank directors assembled as a bank commission makes a very They declare it to be "doctrinaire" when the German nation in the confused banking matter for a compass who will lead them safely to the goal of healthy and prosperous banking conditions

*) Is given in the appendix. |

3*

36

Only the "compass" leads on the high seas, and In the banking question, we unfortunately have the solid land of science long since lost sight of . We are drifting helplessly on an ocean the most contradictory and confused views and opinions. So, get a compass! – And where else do you want to find it than in the eternal truth? oo

Incidentally, this has fundamentally rejected all fundamental discussions were not particularly comfortable for all members of the Bank Commission. The same No. 19 of the "Deutsches Handelsblatt", which reports the actions of the Commission, also brings a separate vote by Mr. Heinrich Kämmerer in Hamburg, which was later written ly submitted and contains, among other things, the following passage: "It may well

It can be assumed that most members of the May in Berlin Commission of the German Trade Day, which had been assembled, the Ban-legislation, without a feeling of satisfaction gone find. The decisions taken seem in their entirety to have met the wishes of none of the existing parties. This The unsatisfactory result may be attributed to the fact that had failed to first conduct a comprehensive discussion of the theory of the banking system before discussing the reform the current banking situation ... To what extent the The results obtained from such theoretical investigations are directly practical implementation, or to what extent in consideration temporary concessions must be made to existing conditions, is certainly a very important point to consider, but it must be second line and the discussion about it until after the determination of the Basic principles are suspended. Only on the basis of an understanding Agreement on the principles of banking and on the objectives to be pursued goals, a healthy banking law can be brought about"

Mr. Heinrich Kämmerer has without question hit the nail on the head Head hit; moreover, he considers himself "obliged to respond to views" which in the previous negotiations of the Commission partly ignored, partly kept quiet, while they were notoriously the first national-economic writers, as well as in numerous practical warmly represented in the circles involved in the table."

"From a practical point of view, this can only be the case"
– says the memorandum of the Bank Commission – "to establish such institutions meet, which will satisfy for the near future." – "That is, surely or should read: "Institutions which the bank directors and bank shareholders." – At least, such a sense from all the negotiations and decisions of the Bank Commission to emerge.

37

The quintessence of all the decisions taken is the following:
The right to issue banknotes should continue to be available to private banks. These central banks are to set "normative conditions".
And the most essential of these normative conditions is, according to the The Commission concluded as follows: A part that still needs to be clarified of the notes issued should be paid in cash, the rest through discounts with at least two signatures, which do not last longer than three months, "Looks quite plausible at first glance. You need but just consider that the discounts are without a doubt against issuing notes, at least for the most part, can be acquired. If so, as will be proposed later, for example, the bonds issued by the bank Notes at $\frac{1}{2}$ in cash and at 2%, covered in discounts, the latter against notes to be issued have been exchanged, the bank's assets are still a multiplied by the amount of notes covered by discounts, and the interest on this easily acquired amount consists precisely in the Discounts themselves. For example, under such premises 3 million Thaler notes are issued, the bank is simply enriched by 2 million thalers.

That such a process is immoral and leads to immoral consequences, proves the entire banking history and proves drastically enough the present. God save us from Parisian and Viennese stock exchange conditions preserve it, but – the danger of such conditions is before our Thoren. Our future banking laws will determine whether the Danger enters our gates. The propositions of the n would open the door to this danger.

| This danger is indeed no small one. It means demoralization of our entire monetary system, uneconomical and unnatural appropriate monopoly=privilege of big capital, acute escalation a previously latent social question from above and legislated regulated exploitation of the entire people by a few Mata=dore of the golden calf.

In fact, this danger is already halfway between the walls and that for years. Only the tenacious honesty and conscientiousness of the old Prussian civil service, for which I otherwise did not have any swarms, has with almost instinctive "brittleness" the .

2 . See for example the small brochure: "Economic Conditions in. Austria", Leipzig 1871.

38

the note economy in Prussia and so far only in the state=bank in Berlin still has a relatively modest source of "notes" cultus" was admitted, which nevertheless already had a very nice school of venerated this cult at the Berlin Stock Exchange and this Stock exchange for the best for further progress on the slippery path of legally permitted theft en gros.

So again: – a bank which has 3 million thalers bank=notes issued, $\frac{1}{2}$ of which in cash, $\frac{3}{5}$ in discount or interest-bearing=the papers, has simply increased its fupon public expense by 2 million Thaler enriched. And our gentlemen national economists want us make people believe that such enrichment simply constitutes a debt relationship – a note is simply a debt document?! I have already hunted that there can be no talk of "guilt" where there is no return payment is thought of, – that this would be a wonderful "debt", which is constantly "redeemed" and yet always at the same level remains; – that even more wonderful would be a "guilt" which debtor earns interest instead of paying it to the creditor etc. An assumption which leads to nonsense at every consequence

can't possibly be right. |

And yet our obvious national economy pays homage to today of this view! – If it were not true, then one would consider it impossible. However, the more important of our people more economically recognize the truth, but it has already come to this, that it almost does not seem “opportune” to become an open defender of the to raise the same, since they are the almost all-powerful matadors of big capital feelftressingly has against itself.

No, gentlemen! – the note not backed by cash is not a “debt”, but a “tax” which the note issuer pays in favour of their own pockets, imposed on the entire public, and almost without collection costs out of his pocket. Performance and consideration are in no way motivatable. All such fteering must be absolutely necessary for the future, at least in our country – controlled will be if we do not sail with full sails into a real social want to drive into danger.

There is no natural conflict between capital and labour, but the legislation has created such a situation through monopolistic Preferential treatment of large capital: – because the right to tax by means of note issuance is nothing other than a monopolistic advantage justification. But if unbacked paper money is a tax, well then, only the state may levy such a tax, and to collect this tax no bank is needed: – also: 1) No more banknotes, 2) only government Paper money under control of legislation, 3) no more state bank, 4) full banking freedom, with reservation of the question of “joint stock companies”.

39

The transition from the present state to that which above requirements, would of course require a certain period of time require, and should of course least of all with the sudden Abolition of the truly excellent and exemplary led Prussian State Bank. – How about the idea that so far only alleged note debt into a real, gradually repayable To convert the debt of the note issuers to the state: – About this occasionally more.

Rostock, end of June.

F. Perrot.

The Function of the Banknote”).

Mr. F. Perrot in Rostock has about a year ago a number of of theses on the banking question and now comes with a

It is becoming public knowledge that in the entire German Press not a single word of discussion, nor even mention
He calls this fact a very strange and makes it clear that a conspiracy by bank directors=
ators and bank shareholders, aimed at the "eternal truth", which Providence reveals through the mouth of Mr. Perrot, dead=
The fact that his theses were not mentioned only because of this because they are not worth mentioning, Mr. Perrot does not come to mind, because he "may say that he alone in the German fche Prefe the full economic and scientific clarification of the difficult problem."

When a researcher of outstanding reputation, such as Macculloch, Wolowski or Macleod would boast, but science= clarification of the banking issue, we would such a statement, with all due respect for the other merits of the man, as an outbreak of megalomania.
In Mr. Perrot's case, we believe in the presence of this disease, to which the law of sufficient reason also applies finds, but lead his striking statement to an equally naive as comprehensive ignorance of banking literature and the banking system back. =

The essence of Mr. Perrot's teaching is that every stock not covered by a note constitutes a tax, and that the right to issue notes not backed by cash, a public donation to the note issuers should be treated equally.

This doctrine is neither correct nor new. Simple and obvious
It is indeed, but this is precisely what would have raised doubts in Mr Perrot about the

*) From No. 29 of the "Deut. Handelsbl." the article is by the editor written by the same Dr. A. Mayer, Secretary of the German Trade Day.

; Perrot.

41

Correctness as well as novelty should awaken; he should have been the poet= word may remind you:

If nature could be unraveled with so few grasps,

Would she have waited for you to track her down?

Insoluble government paper money and redeemable banknotes are often confused with each other. The issue of paper money can be as a taxation of the public; it is not an economic ical act, but an act of public power. The issue of Banknotes, on the other hand, have a legitimate economic origin, which can be made clear in just a few words.

In large-scale traffic, transactions on credit, against bills of exchange, tend to Every turnover becomes a source of new turnover. Buyer is not the one who wants to consume the goods himself, but who wants to sell them on to others. Trader, wants to sell. Between the producer of a commodity and There are many hands in the middle of their consumer and every transition from one hand to the other is a turnover for which there is a turnover= means of need. On the other hand, the producer who sells his goods has gained space for new production. For this he needs the raw materials materials, the auxiliary materials, which in turn can only be produced through a series of for which the sales funds are necessary can be procured.

The first turnover we are talking about has new turnover to its Consequence. For every turnover, a means of turnover is required. The first turnover Sales have created a means of sales, the bill of exchange, and since the following Sales generate a need for means of payment, it is entirely within the Order that the created bill of exchange serves as a further means of sales.

However, a bill of exchange as a means of exchange has certain disadvantages. It requires requires a thorough examination of authenticity, which is not possible for everyone; he exposes anyone who commits it to the risk of recourse tft for redemption bound to forms and deadlines.

Therefore, the remitter of the bill of exchange prefers not to into the daily circulation. He deposits it with a Bank, which withdraws it from circulation until the expiry date and at its Place another means of circulation into circulation. The banknote is the representative of the bill of exchange. It is issued by the bank= note a turnover created by the trade in the most legitimate way= means replaced by another; for the large number of taxpayers it is absolutely irrelevant whether the bill of exchange circulates in nature or fefe the banknote. For the hands that mediate the turnover, the Banknote is more convenient, easily recognizable, not subject to recourse by the issuer obligatory and can be redeemed at any time. The audience wins

42

This is especially true when the notes are substituted for the change, because the public identification of banknotes announce the danger if turnover= resources are created in excess, while the amount of created Bills of exchange would be hidden from public knowledge. In the case of banknotes There is a certain guarantee that the sum of the sales funds rises or falls with the turnover itself: in the case of government paper money, this guarantee continues.

If Mr. Perrot considers the issue of banknotes as a burden the taxpayer, he must make the same accusation to the taxpayers

They are a means of turnover, like banknotes, and are used for payments instead of cash like this. This consequence has in fact a writer, in whose paths Mr. Perrot moves. We my Mr. Held, the editor of the Staatsbürgerzeitung and creator a social theory. And close to the same, which all changes, all wants to suppress credit securities with the exception of state-affiliated nations, We must also give Mr. Perrot his place among the people's economic writers. AM

Agriculture and the Bank Question").

Now the bomb has finally exploded!

Perhaps some readers will remember that last year, before the Wars, I commented here that agriculture a particularly outstanding interest in the solution of the banking question.

In No. 80 of this paper I expressed my astonishment about the fact that my post in the National-Zeitung, in the Hamburg Stock Exchange, in the German Industry-Newspaper, in the G. Hirth's Annals of the North German Bund of the 2c. published, very different from the current views Statements regarding the banking issue in the entire German press found neither mention nor response.

Recently I also pointed out in the National-Zeitung No. 320 on this complete ignorance of my point of view and my work , emphasizing the contrast in which I find myself to the No. 19 of the Deutsches Handelsblatt published the Bank's resolutions Commission of the German Trading Day.

This finally worked. In No. 29 of the report by the General Secretary Chairman of the German Trade Day, Dr. Alexander Meyer given German Handelsblatt (20 July) appeared a book Article signed by AM: "The function of the banknote."

I hope that this article will interest you the discussion aimed at from the beginning of the matter of my will bring the view represented into flow, and that in particular the circles of landowners and farmers the immense Meaning, which is particularly relevant for a solution to the banking question, lively and sustained will be grasped.

That Mr AM's article is spiced with personalities, can only be beneficial to the cause insofar as it

*) From the "Deut. Landwirtschaftl. Ztg."

*) The article is published on page 35 et seq. DV

44

for some it gives a piquant interest, which they may to look into the question more closely. – I think it would I would be reluctant to follow Mr AM in this area, but I the readers of this paper, who read the interesting article in No. 29 of the Deutsches Handelsblatt should not read it themselves, that according to Mr. AM the press did not accept my statements only because noticed because they are “not worth mentioning.” – The best thing is but nevertheless, if one takes the article in question by Mr. AM reads carefully: – it is really worth reading and interesting.

The very special interest of landowners and farmers Fortunately, the only thing that matters is an increased potency of the interest which is of interest to the entire state economy and culture development is linked to the just and correct solution of the banking question. Here I would like to briefly discuss the following again:

In No. 320 of the National-Zeitung I wrote:

My explanation is concentrated on the following sentences:

“Every note not backed by cash constitutes a “Tax, not a debt, and not covered by cash
“To issue notes simply means to issue at the expense of the whole “making money for one’s own pocket; this must only be “only the state. Any transfer of this authority to private individuals “vate is completely and actually synonymous with a single “sideways, unjust and economically destructive monopoly
“Pole priority of the mobile large capital.”

This claim is based on the following simple calculation:

For example, a bank has one million thalers in cash.

If, for example, this bank issues 3 million Thaler notes spends, it does not give them away, but uses them as your own money to achieve the highest possible user return. These 3 million Thaler notes therefore serve the bank the same purpose as a 00 u. of 3 million thalers – that seems very clear. =

But the current banking legislation requires that for a part amount of these notes, we say, for example, $\frac{1}{2}$ – that is, in our case, one million – will be deposited in cash in the bank's vaults. Cash Money in the bank's vaults does not bear interest: – instead of this Million in Baar joins a million of the 5 oe which use bar is used.

Furthermore, the current banking regulations stipulate that a further part, sometimes even the entire amount of the remaining 2 million notes, monetary paper, will be deposited by the bank.

45

Since the bank's notes are taken as money, the bank can simply exchange their remaining 2 million notes for interest-bearing Exchange paper or discount bills of exchange.

The result of the calculation is, as it seems to me, quite incontestable this:

The bank, which had one million thalers in cash and was 3 million Thaler notes, after this "operation" the Benefit of three million thalers: – namely one million, which they, in place of their own deposited cash assets, from this bear in the form of notes, and two million, for which the exchanges interest-bearing papers or bills of exchange bearing a discount. 1

The bank is therefore completely simply became two million thalers richer.

All my arithmetic and logic do not enable me to Example to discover an error.

How it is possible that the previous banking literature and banking law= ing a calculation problem that seems so simple and clear, no calculation What this meant is something others can find out.

Whoever can prove my calculation example wrong, will my claims regarding the banking issue: – but whoever has the rich= activity of this very small and, as it seems to me, clear addition task is entitled to, he will also have to agree with me that a such enrichment schemes patented by the state for large capital machine, a legally regulated exploitation of the state's inhabitants by individual private individuals, an uneconomical and unfair displacement and Accumulation of capital and a threatening with strong steps equivalent to focal danger.

The fact that the banks are taking what they get from the national wealth through the "Note business" money transferred to others as a gift pumping out money so that they can do business with it, can certainly not be considered as an equivalent for this wonderful gift. I, at least, consider it very wrong that the nation should of their assets to banks under state law so that they can Lending or other use of this donation all kinds of business which may certainly have some benefits, the safest The result, however, is the comfortable, economically unjustifiable Enrichment of the bank owners by means of this very money seems to be.

How could it be justified that the state should give private Money is transferred as a gift so that they can use this money according to their discretion for business, which at least represents one's own part in mind, which is nevertheless an enrichment of the total assets, an enrichment that in itself is not proportionate to the possible benefit to the whole community that may arise from the commercial use of the donation.

46

This is my view on the banking issue.

The special relationship of agriculture to this issue lies on the hand.

| Between agriculture and mobile big capital, there has in recent times a certain contradictory tension developed. In the nature of the Such tension is just as unfounded between things as between Capital and labor. This tension between mobile capital and Real estate is only due to incorrect legislation, namely Among other things, the legislation provides mobile capital with a monopolistic privilege, as in the previous banking is embodied.

This current state of banking, as it has developed according to the Developed, works with the suction power of a sponge to withdraw all capital from agriculture and landed property. and to turn to those convenient monopolized ways of enriching oneself which through the note business, partly directly and partly indirectly, quickly have grown to worrying dimensions.

Here lies a main root of that evil which, unfamiliar Economist K. Braun recently described it as "paper plague".

And if the very interests of agriculture and land possession requires us to fight this "paper plague" with all our strength if the correct solution to the banking question in the German Reichstag all our life and creative spheres are touched most intimately, This solution for agriculture and land ownership is a question of life.

Rostock, July 26th. F. Perrot.

— — —ÜÜÜ—

Ans No. 96 of the "Deutsche Landwirtschaftliche Zeitung"

No. 90 of this newspaper contains an article on the banking issue, signed by F. Perrot.

"What is right for one must be fair for another."

A landowner has a productive area worth e.g. 100,000 thalers. He wants to request the concession from the state, on the basis of this secure productive value 300,000 thalers of paper money to spend.

Surely this request will be refused.

47

But why?

Isn't land safer than silver bars? The silver bullion has only relative value and is unproductive as a metal. But land is the original source of all products (values).

"No monopoly to private or joint-stock companies, neither in Bant, railways or other general welfare matters."

We have been feeling these "taxes" for a long time and know how to estimate, bank fortresses alone are difficult to storm, but not – impregnable. – ö

The esteemed author of the above-mentioned article is right understood by a landowner.

On the construction question").

"What is right for one person should be fair for another." says in No. 96 of the "D. Ldw. Ztg." "a landowner" who refers to my article in No. 90.

If you allow someone who has 1 million to have 3 million lions in paper money (banknotes) ""), so one must fairly – not only to the landowner, who owes 100,000 thalers. has, allow to issue 300,000 of them in paper – but one must allow anyone who has 1 thaler, even a silver groſschen, 3 of them in paper – "emit", and leave it fine whether Someone takes this paper money.

Our economy always talks about "concurrence" and today does not want state railways, because the "competition" in all things, so also in the railway sector, better care than the state. Without "Con= curreuz" no salvation and where there is competition, everything else is fellow. Why then – gentlemen economists – do you shy away shy away from the "banking business" as you understand it, that is, with the Right to issue banknotes, also only to the "free economic movement, – to leave it to the competition?

Why does the "banknote emission" not also follow the "Con=currency"? – Why does not everyone follow
To make everyone else "competitive" in the banknote production
– Do you doubt that the "competition" can do this?

*) Reply to the previous article from the "Deut. Landw. Ztg."

) "There is no fundamental difference between banknotes and government notes. paper money". (Handbook of Banking by Max Wirth, Cologne 1870, page 580.)

48

fchäft"? will regulate splendidly? This excellent Soncurrenz, which is indeed for Everything, everything cares?

Why, for heaven's sake, if you help me with my irons=

railway reform efforts, with their "competition" between the legs come to defend the private railway system – why Do you not want this same excellent competition to be the only one?
ruler and decision-maker in the banknote issue?
l Would you like to try it, what a fun con=currency business will arise from this? – You will see, we will Have money like hay; – Everyone will have his "credit" according to the exploit the "free economic movement" – every porte= money will turn into a banking business, – the "credit"?
will take a quite extraordinary upswing, – a quite wonderful
A viable business era will dawn and – above all – presiding and regulating deity the "Concurrence" hovers!
– Do not fear the irrationality and lack of education of the people who "Con=currency" will take care of everything.

Yes, in the railway sector, the economy wants "competition". But only big capital can build railways if the state does not does what is his office, and thus not only his obligations, but also a part of his rights and powers to Pri= vate – thus a real monopoly of mobile big capital fcróficating, which will very soon have the wisdom to compete with the Coalition.

However, when it comes to banknotes, it is no longer enough to rely on to invoke the "competition", because really everyone could invoke competition
Here, any "competition" that is below a certain level must million thalers, should be excluded by law, so that

Here the mobile big capital has secured a monopoly.

Some Dii minorum gentium of our economy have this Truths are already denounced as "socialist", while their disregard tuation creates a real socialism on our necks, a real conflict between capital and labor, between land ownership and artificially created mobile capital. |

Yes, the gentleman "Landbefitzer" in No. 96 of this newspaper has me) rightly understood: "No monopoly for private or joint-stock companiesfactors, neither in banking, railway, nor other general my=well=things."

Rostock, in August. F. Perrot.

49

Confessed request,

(From No. 100 of the Deutsche Landwirtschaftl. Ztg.)

So all railways should become state railways?

No private individual, no stock company shall have the "monopoly", from paper "to make money", neither in banks, railways=
nor other public welfare things! – Do these also include mills, Breweries, sugar= and other factories?

If now on the already owned or managed by him=
However, the state does not have enough cars to transport people or goods and to transport them without loss of time, as last= res the bad reputation says, or if such a state railway administration
despite legal obligation to do so, any compensation for damage of the freight forwarded on it and is completely refused and is characterized by knows how to get rid of forced reversals, – what is to be done against it? make; how can this be remedied? Of course we have similar or similar
The same thing also happens on private railways. One learns from the other. And it will not better if no strict disciplinarian handles the rod. We but neither the one nor the other have. The state iron knows=
Does bahner perhaps have a better means than competition?

And in the banknotes= and stocks question, competition also follows be made as difficult as possible, just so that big capital, which can dispose of millions, can practice usury with 300 pCt., so that small capital, the middle class, is increasingly oppressed and excluded and the intelligent worker is reduced to a machine, a slave= Or should we understand that the state is monopolies himself, like the Pasha of Egypt? – So that would that be Eldorado?

Is not the best remedy against monopolies the best possible release, release of the same, hence free competition?

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 4

The railway and banking question and the "competition."

Answer to a "Modest Request"

(cfr, sp No. 100 of the German Agricultural Journal)

The questioner (—0—) follows a tact with which I also had to fight from another side, namely the tactic, from to draw inadmissible conclusions from correct sentences.

It has, as I have often emphasized, become fashionable to believe and to ask that the "sound currency, ie the free economic movement", alone able to manage all economic affairs to arrange things as best as possible. — If I now turn to the "Confe= quenzenmachen" I would ask Mr. — 0 —, for example: "Would you like They do not mean the government and administration in general in competitive operation? — For example, Germany better at 36, or as before 360, or as before at approx. 2000 independent governments than with a single one? These governments made and still make themselves partly "competition among each other. — Why do people want to use force to stop this competition? and surrender to a single government in Germany? Where, my dear Sir —0—, you will one day find it right when this only government does not want to agree with you?"

Seriously speaking, against the competition I have on and not the least for itself, on the contrary, I am convinced, that it has a beneficial effect in all those things which are better the private industry, rather than the state. I am but also very positively the conviction that there are things which the state can better, more correctly and to the greater benefit of the Citizens are more concerned than the private industry and that in these things, the competition does not work as well as the modern economics believes this and believe want to do.

You yourself, dear Mr —o—, are firmly and firmly convinced, that it would be nonsense to defend the fatherland, that is, the military affairs, to leave it to the competition, and yet there has been a time where literally different "entrepreneurs" are involved in this "business"

forties" "made competition". – Very likely, sir
–o–, find them also the conviction that power and telegraphy best be in the hands of the state, and I suspect ftrou that you would protest if, for example, the post office, as it once was, back into the hands of the "competition"
Recently, for example, in England, it has been used to great advantage.
found, conversely, telegraphy, which until then had been considered a "business" driven to now remove itself from the competition and into the hands of the state, and one feels good about it.

You yourself, dear Mr –o–, are convinced that like me, that there are things that the state definitely makes better, than the "competition", and that it would be to the detriment of all,
if one wanted to leave these things to the competition.

Now, my dear Sir –o–, I am so far that I
I can turn the tables by asking you the question you ftended, now addressed to you: – "since there are undoubtedly certain common good which you cannot afford to the competition
If you want to leave it to others, you should also include breweries,
Sugar= and other factories?"

You see, sir –o–, he who digs a pit for others falls yourself in.

Regarding the railways, the views have in fact now wavered as to whether they are among the things that the state needs concerned, or to those which are better left to the competition.

If I now stand up for the former view today
This is because I am from a very careful, certain= thorough and comprehensive study of the facts has led to the conviction that the "competition" in the railway sector is by no means those beneficial consequences which our economists
And if you wanted to reply to me that the
The view of an individual cannot be taken into account here, so allow
I would like to draw your attention to the fact that this view, which I
I am now trying to bring to bear in Germany, in England, Belgium and America, the oldest railway countries, already had general and has gained public recognition. Please ask, what English merchants think of railway competition, and how people in Belgium think about the competition between railways.
can find some explanation in the second issue of the Deutsche Monthly Journal for Trade, Shipping and Transport, which is just being issued.

Experience has shown that in the railway sector, as in the telegraphy, according to the nature of things, the coalition soon If the competition takes the place of the competition, then you have private railways with Competition: – what then? ;

I will explain this to you immediately with an example. There are 3 various cable companies between Europe and America. Think Now, my lord –o–, that these 3 societies fight among each other Competing and pushing each other down on prices? They said, "Cuckoo." They must have been pure fools. No, they formed a coalition to form a single company, increased the prices of the telegraphmes and – now, dear audience, pay and think about where "Concurrenz" cannot lead to everything.

It is similar with the railways. If you, dear Mr. –o–, if you wanted to look into the history of the railways, You will find that in France, for example, the railway companies are already so have been reluctant to form a coalition to the extent that "competition" is completely eliminated, is closed, and if the state does not, in a certain sense, protect the public protected against this consequence of the "free economic movement", the French public would now be subjected to the most ruthless exploitation by the railway companies were exposed.

What now, my dear Sir –o–, you will ask, if the German railway companies have only just become as smart as they have already begun, and are forming a coalition in their own interests, that they no longer compete with each other, but Only exploit the public together? – That this will come very soon is in the nature of the railway industry, as experience tells us, not only in France, but also in England and America.

And if we do not soon act energetically on state railways we will soon be able to cope with the powerful coalition of large railway complexes that provide us with the necessary transition and would like to make it even more difficult than it currently is.

You see, sir –o–, that it is always good to judgment to provide some expert knowledge, and I hope that we now are in the clear when it comes to railways.

I now come to the banking business.

You seem to have understood me correctly so far that I, the Banknotes-Issuing, i.e. making money, not for a banking transaction, but rather a matter of state.

Making money is not a business, but a state privilege.

The real banking business, on the other hand, I count among those in which

which the state has no right to interfere, and which it is best of free economic movement, i.e. competition over= You are therefore expressing yourself incorrectly when you say: "And in the banknote or share question, competition be made as difficult as possible." –

If you, dear Mr –o–, are making banknotes with to banking business and certainly not to competition less than I want to concede, you must necessarily Question which I posed to our economists in No. 98*) can be answered in the affirmative, r that banking and banknote making are both un– to be released conditionally and not regulated by any other law find, than through competition itself.

If you agree with your conscience and your insight can give this advice, well, try to apply it Either equal rights for all or only the state Right. I for my part can only plead again:

No more banknotes.

The state alone makes paper money.

No more state bank.

The banking business is completely free from competition give.

5. The transitional measures are fair and necessary Taking into account existing circumstances and to a to distribute over a correspondingly long period of time.

I will come back to the matter of the stock companies in a especially back in the Deutsche Monatschrift.

Rostock, August 22, 1871.

e uo be

F. Perrot.

*) Reported on p. 47 "On the banking question." P.

) Incidentally, Max Wirth writes in his "Handb. des Bankings" p. 582: "With complete freedom of note issuance, a monopoly of the rich created, to which interest-free capital is then advanced by the poor; for those without means cannot issue papers." – The difference between the current state and that of general freedom of music therefore only consists in that currently a legal monopoly of the rich exists, while Freedom of music, the legal monopoly falls into an apparently only factual one would change.

Banfrage and Socialism.

("Deut. Landwirthsch. Ztg. v. 30. Sept. 1870.7)

L

God loves Dant – may we ask – it also begins in the Bant-request to become day!

What leads us to this exclamation are two important opinions= statements on the question, which finally reflects the seriousness of the situation take into account.

Two outstanding members of the Reichstag have their views on the banking issue, namely Mr. GD Augspurg in the German Handelsblatt N. 33–37 and Mr. HV von Unrest in a small brochure: "The banking question before the Commission of the German Trade Day."

Both works approach the core of the matter in a way which gives hope that German insight and honesty will find a solution to the same will succeed, as unfortunately no other state has done so has been achieved.

We cannot say that the attitude of the daily press in The whole has been edified in this matter. It cannot be said that the task of entertaining the audience to the best of his ability and without bias= to enlighten the world has been sufficiently fulfilled – and time is burning here on the nails.

Be that as it may, we finally have two members here, and Although two important members of the German Reichstag were before us, who openly admit:

that issuing banknotes not backed by cash is just as much than making money for one's own pocket, taxing the public, respectively exploit – and that the flood of paper is now finally be defended with force.

I think it is not an exaggeration to say that the monetary interest attached to the issue of banknotes is manifold= has consciously and deliberately striven and still strives to solve the question to counteract confusing and comprehensive, effective enlightenment, and that here perhaps the greatest difficulty of a natural and found solution must be sought.

We turn first to Mr Augspurg. In No. 36 of the Deutsches Handelsblatt concludes from similar statements, as we gave it in the 1870 volume of the Hirth's Annals"):

"that the state by issuing paper money, the note banks by

"Issuance of their payment promises by means of the annual,

"the interest derived therefrom represents an unjustifiable, significant

"Provide profit by increasing the exchange value of the circulating

"Metal money, i.e. the legal national currency in relation

"the amount of their paper money to the total amount of circulating reduce the "liquid" capital and thereby the large part of the "population living on fixed incomes, significant damage

"bring, but secondarily the entire population of the state

"by undermining the stability of the legal standard of value."

"On the other hand, there are no advantages in any direction for the "total population of the state through the issue of banknotes.

"With government paper money, taxpayers benefit from the savings

"Interest on the circulating amount is to be credited; but nevertheless, according to

"on the other hand, their damage is much more considerable."

Here (with your permission) it seems to us that there is a difference between right and wrong mixed up with each other in the conclusion.

N When two people do the same thing, it does not always happen the same thing. If the state makes paper money, it is not the same as if private individuals make paper money for one's own pocket.

To this day, the view is held – and we agree with it – that traffic, for its mechanical convenience, requires a certain Quantity of paper market instructions difficult to do without Run itself against above the gold standard.

We do not consider it to be connected with any notable evil,

if the state meets this mechanical need of traffic through Issue of a fixed sum of government paper money.

With such a moderate issue of government paper money, no further demonstrable disadvantage. M. Wirth says about this in his "Handb.
d. Bankw." (p. 581): "As long as ... government paper money is not up to a fraction below the amount required to accomplish the
The amount required for sales cannot be increased by increase in commodity prices, nor of reduction

p. 10 ff

56 of the paper value, hence neither of money nor silver premium the speech."

Banknotes, on the other hand, have the disadvantage under all circumstances, that they enrich private individuals in an unjustifiable manner, namely about the interest on the sum which is not covered in cash.

Mr Augspurg comments on this in the following way: "Every
"The paper bank also carries out banking transactions of various kinds, and "if it is through the manner in which it has fulfilled its payment promises
"Moten"), is permitted to sell its business capital almost "double, ie to the business operations an almost once again as large
"To use assets that it itself possesses as property, it follows
"from the fact that if they use this freedom as far as possible for their own
"Advantages exploited, thereby very peculiar, from the rule
"divergent economic conditions will be must."

– – "This is not a healthy business from the outset– ficient relationship and it can also be difficult to maintain healthy
"And further says Mr Augspurg of the banknotes, (Deut. Handelsbl., p. 357) "that the only effective–
The primary purpose of their use is the exploitation of the public – and if this is taken away from her, the use of no purpose anymore."

However, you can hardly come out with the language in a more rounded way, it unless in the sentence that also in Germany "earlier or flater the roots of ruin, of economic instability– fundheit, which from the beginning in the creation of the bank– notes lie, spread their growth, their ramifications expand and entangle ever more tightly until they envelop everything and finally drag them into the abyss."

II.

After, as we have reported, Mr. Augspurg has set up the Unum= most concerned about the perishability and inadmissibility of all not in Baar uttered in covered notes, he concludes his deductions the question:

"Why do we keep the use of the bank everywhere= grades? Why not simply prohibit the use of issue of all and any banknotes?" –

and Mr. Augspurg immediately gives the answer himself with the following words:

57

"It is difficult to find any other answer to this question find than

"that one is once accustomed to the evil and that it would seem harsh, a number of bank shareholders who also once again to the exploitation of the entire population– sufficiency through the issuance of banknotes, this privilege to suddenly take away."

And in fact, it is hard to understand that "note banks may continue today, instead of even for em– to pay interest on the capital seized, to pay the same– on the part of the population on the debt documents delivered to them– cumente or promise of payment.

What is surprising is the good nature of this population."

We completely agree with Mr Augspurg on all points – except for one, namely his absolute rejection of the state= paper money.

We do not want to and cannot make an absolute judgment as to whether the trade could completely dispense with the paper medium of circulation, as some claim; however, we are of the opinion that small traffic, even more than the larger one, to its mechanical convenience of paper money, however, is needed, and we see, based on the Experience, not the slightest evil in the fact that the state, by issuing simple government paper money this mechanical need for convenience in traffic, a need which may be somewhat reduced by the gold standard, will certainly not be eliminated.

The absolute condemnation of all government paper money by Mr. Augsburg, however, seems to have another meaning to us.

The final conclusion to which Mr Augspurg comes is radical enough, as follows:

"Therefore, the final decision can only ever be that the use of any and all paper money is reprehensible and must be abolished, not only of the state, but also of the private paper money, banknotes;"

However, we confess quite sincerely that with this radicalism we do not fully agree, for the following reasons.

Mr. Augsburg proves the inadmissibility and harmfulness of Banknotes in detail, but takes government paper money as something self-evident under all circumstances reprehensible. – We have the opposite – it already pointed out that moderately issued government bonds money, no one has yet felt or proven any disadvantage and that such a disadvantage does not exist as long as the mechanical comfort the need for traffic to be the only criterion for the issue this government paper money.

58

But then Mr Augspurg repeatedly points to taxation of the uncovered notes.

If we now manage to create the only moderately existing state paper money – assuming its reprehensibility under all circumstances – such one would soon experience that traffic for the convenience of the paper medium of circulation needs, and it would then remain, of course, once the state paper money fo absolutely rejects, nothing left but banknotes and, as Mr Augspurg said, with a tax on their unsecured issuing Amount.

This taxation of banknotes is for the transitional period during its gradual and until its complete abolition, however, to be recommended means of information, but as a permanent institution, would nothing more than the continued existence of the note nonsense in more or less mild form.

The maintenance of a moderate amount of government paper money, resp. gradual transformation of a part of the notes into such and simple, albeit gradual abolition of all other banknotes, would lead us to the path of experience can lead to finding out how much paper we withdraw from circulation at all without compromising his comfort=ibility suffers as a result.

If, on the other hand, we consider the relatively innocent state If we abolished paper money first, as Mr. Augspurg wants, we would last taxed banknotes remain as the only means of information, if we do not immediately reinstate the government paper money that has just been abolished wanted to lead.

If we allow private individuals to issue money, thereby enriching themselves and increasing the general purchasing power of money. press – this is under all circumstances a socialism of all= worst kind.

If, on the other hand, the state issues paper money for convenience of traffic, he also enriches himself and takes the amount of this enrichment also comes from the pockets of all states= citizen; but in doing so he does nothing other than what he does with every tax and this type of taxation is not associated with any demonstrable evil=

59

ftate linked, as long as the mechanical need for comfort of the Traffic remains its only measure and motive. While banknotes are are reprehensible under all circumstances, government paper money offers under all Circumstances the only means to prevent traffic without social injustice to supply that paper medium of circulation which he, at least now still, and perhaps always, really needs.

III.

We now turn to the deserving Sun of Mr. v. Unruh:

“The Ban question before the Commission of the German trading day". |

Mr. v. Unruh first deals with the decisions and negotiations this Commission of the German Trading Day, as set out in No. 19 of the German Handelsblatt. He provides evidence that for these decisions and negotiations with the majority of the Commis= fession members – consisting of some 20 bank directors – the paper bank party interest may have been the leading motive. The presentation is in clear, lively and appealing dialectical Form kept and ironized the negotiations of the Bank Commission repeated in an apt manner. |

Mr. v. Unruh then also deals with the banking question from the general my point of view and begins with the certainly very correct Sentences: "If one wants to make a safe judgement about the bank- To get to the question of notes, one must first of all consider the nature of the Money and its surrogates, as well as their effects in world traffic as clear as possible." From this same view We published in May 1870 in the Hirth's "Annalen of the German Empire" an investigation on: "Money, its essence and its economic functions" as a "contribution to solve the banking, coin and currency question."")

Mr. v. Unruh also comes to very similar results to those we fhe developed in the above work. His research results are likely mainly in the following, also printed in bold in the brochure Summary:

"To issue notes that are not backed by cash means to issue the unfree= willing credit of the public, everyone, take or, as it is also expressed, the audience

*) Reported on p. 10 et seq.

60

tax partly in favour of the Bant itself, partly in favour of those who want to exploit bank credit as much as possible."

That is clear enough. – However clear it is, fure, it almost astonished us that in the assessments the brochure, which we read in major newspapers have, this main point is not even touched upon anywhere. There should be no doubt that the assessors also in the That was not about telling the German public about to clarify this point and precisely this point, which is the pivotal point of the question, in the importance it deserves= seem to let.

At the risk of exposing ourselves to a new eruption of the Bortei-Egois mus, as in No. 29 of the "Deutsches Handelsblatt") in an article: "The Function of the Banknote" is thrown against us, We want to put this main point of the banking question back into the right Try to shed light on it.

A "taxation of the public in favour of the banks", as now reported by two well-known members of the Reichstag in the issue not found in cash backed notes, and which one of these Reichstag members as an "exploitation of the public" by the central banks and their associates have repeatedly expressly stated that

Such "taxation" and "exploitation of the public" by the Central banks, however, are nothing more than literally a form of interest on banknotes annually to our wealthiest citizens—state subsidy paid to citizens.

The note not backed by cash is nothing more and nothing less than regular state support, which the dear Volk fine (probably very needy) music bankers and associates, a state support, which the interested parties are unconcerned about the public welfare, to preserve by all means and also for to secure the future. But as long as we believe in our Bankers and comrades pay state subsidies, we may We should not be surprised if our working Classes claim a ditto! 1

Do we not have here a socialism of the most dangerous kind and at the same time a beginning of the most flourishing communism?

The central banks and their shareholders distribute annually among themselves

*) Reported on p. 40 et seq.

61

(hence "dividend") a round sum of millions of thalers, which in a way that is unfortunately no longer unusual from the pockets of everyone—man and the grand liberalism of our daily press knows absolutely nothing about it!

With what conscience can we justify the fact that we have Thousand thalers for our teachers, while we give our bankers Allow fellow citizens to take care of the interest of more than 100 million non-cash banknotes annually at the expense of the to enrich the whole?

With what conscience do we nibble and fiddle with the most useful and necessary government expenditure, while we give the money to our most pour millions into the pockets of wealthy citizens every year?

Shouldn't it finally be time for our daily press, the by their wealthiest fellow citizens "exploited population" (GD Augspurg, member of the Reichstag,) the cataract?

Those defenders of the banknote party who have called for If you intend to reply, please address your reply to the Reichstag members GD Augspurg or HV von Unruh, by at the same time conclude with words from the first of the two gentlemen:

"The mass of the population is in a strange States of economic immaturity. It manages with paper which documents their loan as if it were money, is happy fure about the convenience associated with such a means of circulation like a child playing with a razor, writing about its smoothness learned works on the advantages of credit economics, on monetary economics ftschaft, where one becomes rich simply through one's credit, without working, and praises her happiness in the newspapers when she comes with a new piece of paper= bank has been blessed. She knows nothing about the fact that she is away= while the individual privileged ones represent enormous sums= lends (wonderful loan), without a single thaler of interest to preserve them by exploiting them."

Yes, yes, Mr. Augspurg is also right in the end when he says:
"The good nature of this population." |

The ban question.
An investigation for everyone.

The banking question has a very special and great interest for Everyone and it is important that this interest is understood May we succeed in writing the following lines in such a way that the interest of the entire people in the correct solution of the Banking question to the people themselves to become aware and indeed to the right knowledge comes. |

All views today agree that a so-called Banking question only exists insofar as the issue of banknotes as part of banking transactions. – If one separates the issue of banknotes from the banking business, then a banking question does not exist more and nobody has any objection to the banking business, without such note issue, to be left to itself, like any other business.

But as soon as you incorporate banknote issuance into the banking business= a number of "banking questions" arise, the solution of which has not yet been No one has succeeded and probably no one ever will. – This in itself should lead to the assumption that Bank= issuing banknotes is not a banking business at all, and that the solution to the "Bank question" is simply to be found in the fact that one stops the bank= note issuance should be viewed and treated as a banking transaction.

Mr. Prince-Smith speaks about this in the "Program for the Association of German Free Traders" in the following Wefe from: | De es a

The free traders "agree that the business of credit mediation, the actual banking activity, a free trade must be fine; The maintenance of a central bank, without restricting competing Institutions, is not excluded. – However, opinions are divided in

Regarding paper money, the issue of which, although usually by banks, completely different from those for the actual banking business. Some want to stop the manufacture of paper. Allow the means of payment to increase and decrease with the fluctuations of the demand for discounts. Others claim that the need for sales means is determined by completely different circumstances than the desire after loans: and that the issue of paper money, instead of bills of exchange, effect with speculative fevers and credit crises, firmly continuous must be careful if one is to always be safe from paper money confusion, as they show in the most frightening form in neighboring countries. – While Some also believe that everyone should be free to use his credit by issuing notes, others consider it fairer if the Profit from a surrogate for the revenue which the total ity, also benefits all taxpayers through paper money issue for state accounts, instead of individual capitalists taking advantage of those profit. – So the question remains open about this." It is already from this question it emerges that Mr Prince-Smith also the bank note issue for a banking transaction does not hold.

63

The first question that needs to be addressed when discussing the banking sector is the one about which the banknote.

The safest way to investigate a material question is The end is always the mathematical one: – we try to apply it to the banking question, based on the simplest possible N relationships.

For example, a bank has one million thalers in cash.

They issue banknotes of three million thalers.

She deposited her cash assets (1 million) as interest-free security.

It exchanges two million of its notes for interest-bearing paper or bills of exchange, which they also deposit as security, and use the third million notes for profitable business elsewhere.

What is the arithmetically provable effect this "financial operation?" |

The answer cannot be difficult; it is simple:

1. The non-interest bearing cash assets deposited by the bank in the

A contribution of one million brings no return.

2. The further deposited two million securities or bills of exchange bring the bank interest or discount.

3. The third million used in business brings its business personal benefit. |

The effect of this "financial operation" is therefore the fact
matter that the bank as a result of the same received interest of three million Thalers, while without them only the enjoyment of one million thalers.

The bank is therefore deprived of the interest of two million thalers

64 enriched by the fact that this sum in banknotes, without deposit

an equal amount in cash.

This fact provides a simple explanation for why banks with music edition fo fvery sought-after objects of the founding fraud find that big capital is so keen on their establishment= and that the privilege of issuing music is so tenaciously and eagerly defended by held and defended by the central bank holders. l

At the same time, in this situation we can only see a monopolistic
Privilege of big capital, which is accompanied by the most serious focial dangers and already the most worrying social effects.

People have tried to justify this situation by saying the banknotes, called "bills of exchange" and from this term the wanted to derive proof that the enrichment of the central bank by the Interest on the two million thalers not secured in cash in our example simply a "business" profit.

In contrast, we first declare that we are not aware of such "Change," nor want to know anything about such "business" and that we these so-called "bills of exchange" and this so-called "transaction" will take a closer look at it.

II.

If it is an undeniable fact that the issue
The issuing bank is entitled to interest on notes not covered by cash an equal sum of money, the question remains as to discuss the effect of banknote issuance on traffic in space= common practice.

| Max Wirth in his fine and valuable "Handbook of Bank-essence," which is probably the newest and most comprehensive factual material puts together, the banknote issue looks like this (p. 98):

"By issuing banknotes, the Zettel Bank has a fit-
"active capital, which grants it real interest enjoyment;"
"and § 581 "Since banks issuing banknotes have a ca"pital in the amount of the surplus of the paper circulation
"over the available cash involuntarily and unintentionally-
"received interest from the public, so the "State, as representative and tacit agent-
"the right of the public to withdraw from the paper banks
" to demand an equivalent."

One can see that Max Wirth has at least brought his doubts into the wirth=

65 effective right of the banks to appropriate the advantage which is linked to the issue of notes not backed by cash, and he sees this advantage as if it arose from a capital which the banks as a non-interest-bearing compulsory loan from the pockets of the entire audience.

In order to see clearly here, we must, as I said, determine the effect, which is exerted on traffic through the issue of notes.

If we go back to our initial numerical example, the bank, which issued three million Thaler notes and one million in cash and two million in securities, respectively deposited,

the sum of the media acting as money by two million increased.

There were, in fact, before the issue of the money

- a. one million in cash assets of the bank.
- b. those two million securities or bills of exchange, the bank -
exchanged for their grades. |

After the note issue, three million in notes will be added, which function as money in trade, while at the same time cash= the bank's monetary assets of one million are withdrawn from circulation, that the medium circulating in trade as money has increased by two million Thaler is increasingly found. Whether the securities mentioned above under b), ref. bill of exchange in the cash of the bank or in any other form is irrelevant for traffic.

"The money edition is thus," as O. Michaelis in his excellent work "Notes and Deposits" says - true creation of money, it forms an increase in the spheres of the circle of economies within which the notes circulate,
The cash reserves available, and it will not be used instead of the

on the one hand, the cash register on the other hand Coffee was withdrawn." ("Quarterly Journal for Economics 1865, III. Vol. p. 89.)

Issuing notes not backed by cash simply means make money in your own pocket. Now, if you want to exchange such notes and describe their issue as a "business"; – as already mentioned, these alleged "changes" are in the eyes of every impartial only "riding changes" and indeed privileged "riding changes" and such "Business" involves social injustice and danger.

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 5

66
III.

It has now also been claimed that the use of banknotes
The increase in circulatory agents has a beneficial effect on the traffic, it increases sales and increases production, it "fertilizes"
the traffic by means of the "credit."

That this is not true, that this common saying is merely invented for the benefit of note issuing banks, is now finally has nevertheless become fairly generally accepted. If the un=
If a note issued in a covered form "fertilizes" the trade, then one is also obliged to accept the consequence which Faucher presented to us in his work "Currency and Prices" (Quarterly Journal of Economics, 1868, Vol.
III. and IV.), namely the consequence that the false Thaler, as long as he is not recognized as a folder, do exactly the same and that one must actually punish the person who has the false thaler discovered and reported as such, but not the person who makes it and spends. "Doesn't it actually mean giving yourself and others the Make life difficult if you only wait for such pleasant guests the fingers sees?" – asks Mr. Faucher in a very serious sense.

The effect of uncovered notes on circulation is simply this.
The circulating funds are increased by the amount of the uncovered issued Notes are increased, thereby increasing the purchasing power of money accordingly, but initially not evenly, reduced, that is, in other words, it is caused a corresponding increase in prices, which only became apparent gradually distributed more evenly. The increase in circulating funds has So, if you want to use the expression like a tax on the property of the state's residents.

Imposing such a tax can only be a matter for the state.
Transfer of such authority to individual private individuals, by means of granting the Monopoly=Privilege to issue notes not backed by cash, is harmful, dangerous and unjust.

How the figures for this taxation in 1869 are in our country equal to France and England and how this status was 1859, shows, among others, the "Köln. Ztg." in an excellent Work which she brought immediately before the war: ("The Order ization of the North German banking system," reprinted in the "Arbeitg."

No. 684 and 685, 1870.) This work contains the following overview and Explanation regarding the circulating notes not backed by cash= quantities: 6

67

| End of 1852 in Thalern

encircling | Kaffa= Uncovered
notes. existing set of notes
Preußische Bank 21000000

3 1847922
Prussian note banks 3000000 2896321 103679
1852: 3; 1869:12 .
Other northern banks

1852:5; 1869:14 ..

All northern German banks

9120600

1

5603851 | 3516749

1852:9; 1869:27 .. 33120600 31348094 1772506
French Bank 169227733 160417744 8809989
English Bank 150529700 | 137317684 | 13212016
English central banks. 59000000 – –
Scottish Central Bank 23154250 – –
Irish Banks 31161629 – | –

All note banks = |

Great Britain.. 263845579 – | –

end of 1869 in Thalern

Circulating Kaffa~~≈~~ | uncovered
grades. passed. 5

Preußische Bank. 152250180
Prussian note banks
1852:3; 18 69:12
Other North German banks
1852: 5; 1869: 14. 36105000
All northern German banks 216053180
1852: 9; 1869:27 .
French Bank u 372948746

75401000 | 76849180

13430000 22675000

103437000 112616180

27698000 | 14606000 13092000
|

332566846 | 40381900
|

English Bank 152659667 127977470 24682197
English central banks. 44060000 | 110760000 66700000
Scottish central banks. 29119886 17241693 11878193
Irish central banks 40647773. 15369346 25278427
All note banks |
Great Britain | 266487326 271348509 4861183

"We see 11 that in the short Baliani bon 1852–1869
the amount of uncovered notes in northern Germany increased by 110 million Thaler, while at the English bank it only increased by 11 (in all of England it has decreased), in France by 31 million ftrose, taking into account that the latter countries are not state~~≈~~

5 *

68

paper money, of which, however, in northern Germany a sum (40 million), which corresponds to the entire unbacked banknote quantity of France

We are therefore on a dangerous, sloping path, to stop even the friends the uncovered notes would appear to be guessed. The slopes—The sufficiency of this path becomes all the clearer when we consider the last five years within which the years 1866, 1867 and 1868 are marked by the war and its consequences, through a poor harvest for the recovery of trade and industry as well as of general prosperity and cheap as possible. At the end of 1864, the total amount of the current notes 166 million Thaler with 53 pCt. metal backing, end 1869 216 million with barely 48 percent coverage. The main culprits in of this increase: the Prussian bank with 113 million and 55 pCt. against 152 million and 49 pt. coverage; the in 1866 opened Saxon Bank in Dresden with 6 million and 50 pCt. at the end of 1866 against 14 million and 43 pCt. at the end of 1869; the Meiningen with 22/5; mill. and 44 pCt. against 5 million and 33 pCt.; the Brunswickers with 2,281,000 against 3,779,000, the Hanoverian with 1,492,000 against 2,571,000 thalers. The Frankfurt bank has also greatly increased its note issuance, from 25 million guilders to 29 million; at the same time, however, the percentage= The metal cover rose from 55 pCt. to 63 pCt., so that the The sum of uncovered notes remained the same. In a few Banks found, mainly through competition from neighboring banks, a reduction in the circulation of banknotes; the strongest at the Leipzig, from 7 million to 3,484,000 thalers. At the same time, one of the main tasks of the banks to attract idle capital, entirely and neglected: the already small sum of the deposits of all North German note banks decreased from 37 million thalers at the end of 1864 to 31 million at the end of 1869. The English note banks, with the exception the Bank of England, have over 500 million thalers, the Scottish over 400 million, all banks in England, Scotland and Ireland over 2000 million deposits. Nor did it succeed in achieving this apparent increase of money to push down the interest rate; the same Eto ae pig elgg) si glg IREL " mI Pi 8

3 S 2 3 3
22 8 Eeli n
1867 |23/, 25% 4 2 124 3¼ 4 7
1868 | 21/16 | 21/2 1162 ½ | 23, 7
1869 | 31/g 2 ½ vr 123, 3 131, 8 6%

69

If one now compares the northern German banking centres, the dis= account at the highest, where there is the most paper money, in the kingdom Saxony, because it amounted to 4 PCt. in Leipzig from 1 January to 14 September. from 14 September to 5 October 5 pCt., from 5 October to 31 December 5 ½ pCt. or an average of 40 pCt.; even today it is ½ pt. higher than in Berlin."

'IV.

After all this, there seems to us no longer any doubt that the monopoly privilege of individuals to issue notes not covered by cash[≠] admit, recognized as a highly questionable aberration of the legislation which already has the most dangerous socialist consequences over us.

But it would be even more dangerous to use the existing privilege to make a general freedom by allowing everyone to To issue such notes at will, ie to make paper money. How the unit of metal money, so is the unit of paper money of of the utmost importance for traffic. It would be foolish to invest in metal to strive for monetary unity and to have as much paper money as possible to pay homage to diversity.

Everyone, with few exceptions, is of the opinion today that the return, for purely mechanical reasons, of a paper medium money, i.e. paper money. This need is, however, and can only be a large average just as uniform as the Metal money. It has nothing whatsoever to do with momentary Crises and speculations. O. Michaelis shows this most strikingly in his multi-faceted work "Notes and Deposits", where he also the pretension of the Prussian Bank to the Prussian wool trade with sudden[≠] to lend a helping hand with financial paper, is rejected with well-deserved ridicule.

It cannot be considered the task of any bank or of any person by developing bills of exchange (scilicet banknotes) in trade crises to intervene or any emerging need for payment[≠] means or even to "fertilize the traffic", as the wonderful bare phrase is. O. Michaelis can take credit for this in his work "Notes and Deposits" with irrefutable to have determined sharpness. |

This one view is enough to teach us what it means, as some economists advise us, that manufacturing of banknotes, like a normal business, to release to everyone, from[≠]

70 considering that this release is actually preferable would obviously only benefit big business.

It has also been suggested that the production of notes should be free[≠] admit, but – certain "police" measures deemed necessary: to subject them to restrictions, and these "police" restrictions by so-called "normative conditions".

but a measure harmful to the community would only mean a public deception add, because a "police restriction" of banking business upon a police control of the same, and such a thing is and remains under all circumstances merely an illusion.

V.

To be completely clear about the nature of banknotes, it is not necessary still to investigate what happens when a central bank liquidates, respectively.
the privilege of grades ends. The remark must be inserted here, that according to previous legislative practice, the privilege of notes is partly for a specific period of time, partly with notice, partly for an unlimited period of time used to be borrowed.

For the sake of greater clarity, we assume for the liquidation the same figures as at the beginning of this study and assume that the liquidation is regularly carried out according to the note theory.

The bank therefore has, with one million in cash cover and two Million paper deposits, three million notes in circulation.
two million notes were given to create the paper backing for it advertise; the third million was partly loaned at interest,
In part, useful realities have been acquired for this. One can Money can only do two things, namely lend it or use it buy for it. –

In the event of liquidation, the bank can now first determine the value paper or bill of exchange deposit in the amount of 2 million in metal money and an amount equal to the bills of exchange given for it, redeem. For the third million notes the situation is as follows.
Insofar as realities have been acquired for a part of them,
They were also converted into metal money and notes in the corresponding Amounts can be redeemed for it. The notes lent as money are either still in the hands of the first recipient, then he has either has no right to replacement of the same in metal, or he can This metal can only be claimed as a loan.
the borrowed notes, however, have already passed into the second hand, and have rendered the service of money to the first recipient, then

71

The latter is undoubtedly obliged to pay the bank the corresponding amount in money, or in their own notes.

After all this, it is clear that the bank in this transaction own original cash assets of one million remain, and that she also retains the interest on those two million, for which he increased his capital by issuing banknotes. – Incidentally, he
The profit which the bank arising from the notes lost during the settlement.

The privilege of not issuing cash-backed notes is therefore, as already mentioned, equivalent to the entry into the interest benefit an equal sum for the duration of the privilege, which is in the In most cases, indefinitely, unless the bank is forced to liquidate for other reasons.

Such banknotes not backed by cash are therefore nothing more, like privileged riding changes, that is, worse than the worst riding change. .

VL

If, according to the investigations so far, the issue is not in Cash-backed notes by private individuals, even if they are completely free-would give a highly dangerous legalization of arbitrary, A change of title in lieu of money means: if such expenditure unsecured notes of a taxation of the whole in favour of the Note issuers: if such taxation of the total ity in favour of individuals no longer appears to be permissible: – but if, on the other hand, for reasons of mechanical convenience, the Traffic requires a paper means of circulation: – thus the Question of how and in what way this paper circulation= means will be created.

The fact that notes backed entirely in cash are not issued by private individuals It is obvious that this would be more of a disadvantage than an advantage for the Emit= tenten would be linked to it:

The simplest, most obvious and most natural thing seems to be against, if the state, as it provides for the metal money, also for the paper money careless. N

The banknotes are nothing more than revocable manufactured and circulating money. "The one" – says the "Kölnische Zeitg." in her already mentioned remarkable work – "the fine demand receives payment in banknotes, considers the same as settled; who buys goods for cash, i.e. against immediate receipt of the equivalent value in money, thus the condition of cash is considered: payment is fulfilled." – As long as the revocation does not occur, The banknotes function as money, and the fact that they are not "legal" means of payment, it deprives it of this property by= out not.

12

Max Wirth in his "Handb. des Bankw." draws as one of his Main conclusions (p. 580) are as follows: There is no princidifference between banknotes and government paper money The banknotes without compulsory exchange rate are the state Paper money in practice is the same insofar as the regular Redemption of the former at the cash desk, with government paper money by accepting it in lieu of payment to the state treasury is replaced."

There is therefore not the slightest reason to ignore the obvious and not to follow the natural path, which consists in the State to the traffic, like the metal money, so also the paper money, whose the traffic requires for reasons of mechanical convenience, alone and exclusively delivers.

The work of the "Köln. Ztg." "We must," she says, "the uncovered notes, because they push the metal money out of the country, because they in moments of crises which exacerbate the latter, because in the face of such disadvantages the The savings brought about by them did not benefit the whole country, but only the issuing banks, and because the country finally demands can that what circulates as money can also be used by everyone and by all Cases are taken without hesitation, and can only find a very moderate amount of paper money justified, - which, despite its indissolubility, is harmless is because the state and the citizens are constantly have to make payment."

After all this, we believe as a fundamental truth in the so-called Bank question first to have established the sentence:

"No more banknotes, only government paper money."

Since the bank question only finds banknote questions, fo would be hereby the fundamental solution of the so-called banking question in general The issue of government paper money also required absolutely no state bank and the complete release of the notes= There is no obstacle to the implementation of a banking transaction exempt from issuing se

It might be worth remembering here the fears which to be linked to the possible misuse of paper money issuance

13 ,

Max Wirth asks about this in the "Handb. d. Bankw." (p. 53): Because of the misuse of paper money, whose losses, the use of paper money in general To want to reject it is just as wrong as to Use of sharp instruments wanted to renounce duck because to cut oneself with it, or of wine, because one can get drunk." - To top it all off, the Affigents and Green= backs that the lack of a state bank does not guarantee against abuse use of paper money. Deep guarantee can only be achieved in the continued advanced public education.

Whatever solution one tries to give to the banking question, abuse—
State paper money is always and under all circumstances possible: — Banknotes not backed by cash, on the other hand, are in and of themselves and under under all circumstances an abuse.

However, since every institution is subject to possible abuse possible abuse cannot be an argument against government bonds= money.

Our fundamental conclusions can therefore be summarized as follows sentences:

1. No more banknotes.
2. No more state bank.
3. The state alone makes paper money.
4. Complete banking freedom.

VII.

From the fundamental demands developed above arises
Next, the question is how to move from the current situation to the correctly and economically recognized that the transition could be brought about.

It hardly needs to be said that every such transition with with the greatest possible protection of existing conditions. First it would be impossible and inappropriate from the outset to increase the quantity of the circulating circulating funds suddenly and significantly; and It would be just as wrong for other reasons if one which the Prussian State Bank wanted to eliminate suddenly and all at once.

There is no other remedy than to, after a print, which Faucher uses in "Currency and Prices", on the same way you came in, you leave the dead end has come.

But one has reached a dead end by leaving the bank= notes fucceffively increased, which with regard to the unbacked banknotes equal=

14 was significant with the transfer of public capital to the banks for their own use. It is therefore no more than right and fair if the whole, ie the state, the capital belonging to it succeftive withdrawing the notes gradually, i.e. in annual installments, and replace it with its own paper money, be it for the same amount, fupon a smaller amount annually. For the whole of Baar There would be no need to issue paper money without covered notes, as the cash deposit would enter free circulation.

The main increase in banknote circulation in Germany falls into the period since 1859, i.e. into a period of about 12 years. The amount of notes, the gradual return of which to the state The amount in question is already over 200 million thalers, of which over 100 millions are not covered in cash. The losses from the withdrawal of banknotes The resulting reduction in bank capital would therefore be approximately 100 million Thaler, while instead of the other half of the note the Baar= cover of the banks would also occur. So it is only the uncovered Half of the note, the collection of which requires longer dates.

If one were to look at the confiscation of the approximately 100 million thalers un= If we assume a period of about 10 years for the covered notes, to collect about 11 million Thaler notes every year and to exchange them for state= paper money, which seems completely harmless. At the same time, a reduction in the circulation of paper money that appears appropriate It should be gradually brought about that government paper money should be issued annually the same but for a lower nominal amount as the issued the collected notes.

For the notes backed by cash, no government paper money would be issued= In relation to the confiscation of these covered in cash Notes even released the cash cover.

This transformation would take place within a period of 10 years, certainly not without difficulties, but certainly to the permanent for the benefit of our entire cultural development.

As regards the interest on notes not covered by cash, which the banks enjoyed during the period of note issuing privilege, it is not advisable to establish a retroactive law; while the However, during the transition period, taxation of the uncovered banknote amounts appear indicated.

In the way proposed here – and it is probably the only possible, since only one way out of a dead end – would at the same time increase the amount of paper money in circulation reduced to less than half, as on the one hand for the Baar covered banknote amounts paper would not be reissued, on the other hand the replacement of banknotes by government paper money not in the same nominal value= height is recommended, so that in this way an annual gradual reduction in paper circulation.

The difficulties and concerns of such a settlement are not misunderstood, but find it by no means as big as it appears on the first appear before their eyes. And it stands opposite them on the other side the certainty that continuing on the previous path will infallibly would lead to socialist catastrophes, which would be much more serious. The difficulties that fih had at the time of the still oppose possible reversal.

Such a serious reversal as we propose should also be preferable to those means of information which aim to limit the evil only somewhat, to ensure that it then does not continue to spread, but otherwise let it continue to exist. These are the proposals that are now emerging from important quarters, and largely result in similar measures as in England seized by the Peels Act.

This means turning around in the dead end, but only a short Walk the distance to the exit and then stop again. This would of course be done in the interest of the public as a whole, but only in the interest of the big capital interested in the issue of notes party. l

On what kind of conditions, namely economic and social conditions The existing monetary and banking legislation is leading to this, as shown by, among other latest developments in the city administration of New York, as shown by the Stock exchange conditions in Paris, Vienna and Berlin. Here, in the Indeed a social question, and it has become more pressing than our daily press seems to consistently assume.

The so-called ban question is, without further ado, an essential Component of the social question, insofar as it is simply It is a question of whether the unreasonableness of the legislation has led to the Capital-transferred privilege of making money for one's own pocket, with its destructive, demoralizing, highly dangerous effects kungs continue to exist, whether it may be in a somewhat milder and continue to exist in a more limited way than before, or whether it will be abolished entirely lifted – and should be eliminated.

There is no question that legislation which would capital a monopoly of making money for its own pocket, simply thereby creating an artificial dichotomy between capital and labor

16

which is already asserted on a broad basis and can no longer be denied by any artificial phrase. The always= more capital, which is spreading in an “unnatural way”= power is therefore not a meaningless socialist phrase, but a fact= matter to which we must all pay attention.

If we do not, like the ostrich, bury our heads in the sand want to not see the danger, – if we are honest and sincere to face things as they are and call them by their proper name want to call it – then we must admit that a social question and danger really exists and indeed exists by virtue of the errors of our laws= dition and the modalities of state administration which it creates, by virtue of that debt economy from above, which most European States have already brought them to the brink of bankruptcy and which its degrading effect on the entire public life until in every business and every family – and then by virtue of that monopolistic enrichment methods, which they use in the bank and stocks= legislation in favour of big capital and which more and work more to replace the worship of the golden calf any other religion in this world.

Progress along this path would inevitably lead to socialist catastrophes. It is still possible to turn around and return to healthier May these lines help to make this happen. In any case, we considered it a duty to use them as Mene Tekel to write here for the German nation.

Perhaps German honesty and insight will succeed in first To implement a reform of banking legislation, which has so far been the influence of those interested in the privilege of notes and the Un= knowledge of public opinion regarding the essence of the matter fails ift. :

application for the bank question presented at the “Economic Congress” in Lübeck on August 29, 1871.

Considering that the Economic Congress

1) the law of “free economic movement” as a supreme ft economic law proclaimed,

2) the operation of private businesses by the state is always for considered pernicious and declared, the Economic Congress

a) the regulation of private business by the state – (Normative or concessionary conditions for banking business),

b) the conduct of banking transactions by the State – (so-called state banks)

under no circumstances recommend it, nor even discuss it.

Rather, the Economic Congress can only declare for unconditional banking freedom.

Considering, however, that a so-called "banking question" is thereby ftant is that the creation of circulations functioning as "money" means as a "business" and in particular as a banking business been treated,

Considering that a banking question only exists if one Creation of so-called banknotes is considered a "business", considering, however, that there can be no reason to manufacture the notes cation, if it is a "business", by "normative conditions" or con to restrict and regulate the conditions of cessation by the state,

Considering that if the manufacture of banknotes is a business, such as every other thing, logic demands, on this business too, as on every others to apply the law of "free economic movement", and from the "competition" only the remedy of all possible resulting concerns to be expected,

Considering all this, the so-called Bant question should be reduce the question,

N

18

if the Danfnote edition is a "business" and as such,
to really release completely,

or does not do any "business", and therefore does not have anything to do with banking bus not to be related in any way.

The present resolution proposal assumes the latter eventuality as the correct one and attaches the following implementation measures to it:

1. No further edition of music will take place.
2. The amount of banknotes issued to date has been paid by the banks in annual Partial installments, the amount of which is determined by law, are to be gradually collec
3. In the amount of the annual notes to be collected by the banks amounts, the state issues paper money annually in the same, or according to The legislation also provides for a smaller amount.
4. For the amount of banknotes covered by cash, no paper money was issued at all.

5. The benefits previously enjoyed for notes not covered by cash and – possibly according to the approval of the legislature – also the the interest still to be enjoyed from the uncovered notes during the transition period, remain with the banks as a public gift.

6. The operation of all banks shall be completely freed as soon as they no longer = have more.

The Prussian Bank is in the process of processing inserted
F. Perrot.

An investigation into the banking question.")

(No. 38. d. "Fortfschritt" x. 1871.) – 17. Sept. 1871.
A letter to Mr. F. Perrot in Rostock.

Understandably, the new order of things in Prussia and Germany to try to eliminate the old arrangement in the Bantwefen, and the banknote a general uniform, a greater weight and a to gain universal usability. Austria, whose money market suffers from some ailments, listens attentively to the debate and is excited about the results of the investigations. It is not just Theory in word and writing, but the practice in trade and change that is to be completed.

Also your investigation into the banking question, in these papers laid down, therefore found attentive readers, although they immediately turned to the first sentences as a somewhat localized one, for Prussia or for North-Germany alone is appropriate. Only in the further course will the Question also ventilated in the interest of Central Europe and incidentally, how it Unfortunately, in northern Germany it is a bad custom to dismiss Austria as if this economic complex of 12,000 square miles with some 30 Millions of residents have no history in the banking and banknote issue, no experience, no example, no Seles, fine authorization, fine Present and no future.

For this reason I take up the pen for this epistle, not about your views on banking and its reform, not for example, to approve or disapprove of your theoretical statements illuminate, but only to provide some information about Austria's banking system in the present moment for orientation. Perhaps You can see, dear Sir, that the banking question of Austria not thrown into the same pot as r in Prussia and Germany can be.

*) From a friend of our paper, whose social position and scientific reputation, however, entitles him to have a decisive say fpeak, this essay is addressed to us, which we hereby submit to the attention of our Readers recommend. The editors of "Fortfchr."

80

I do not believe that Max Wirth, on the Handbook of Bank= because you appeal to many like-minded people with the statement that the issue of notes by a bank of notes constitutes a "fictitious capital" created, because these notes are only the representatives of the effective capital invested by the borrowers of the notes. Even less the attitude However, your statement may be of interest to those who have expressed that the issue of r with metal covered notes is a tax on citizens, or "a non-interest-bearing compulsory loan" from the bank to the public.

"The note not backed by cash is at the same time a debt, a tax, a gift and a robbery," – that is the summary Your consideration, which, if correct, would put the banknote before the barriers of the criminal court. According to our insignificant The concept is the banknote, which has the equivalent value in letters of credit or value effects, neither a debt nor a tax, neither a A gift or a robbery. A note issued in such a way is nothing but the generally accepted means of circulation in exchange for a limited value object. The interest for the withdrawal of such notes is a reward for the effort and risk of the bank, but not a tax or a robbery.

In the further course of your letter, the music edition will be referred to as the Exercise of a state power, namely the monetary power. The However, transferring this right to private individuals would be a monopoly legitimization of large capital, leads to unnatural accumulation of mobile capital, sweep capital into conflict with labor, lead to depraved stock exchange conditions, to paper plague, demoralize the public Live and work now in the hands of all subversive movements.

"The evidence for this is provided by the American, French and the Viennese money, stock exchange and securities markets!"

This accusation alone is the cause of this epistle, and you will forgive a Viennese and Austrian, dear Sir, if he replies that the Vienna money, stock and Moral conditions are unlikely to be known in detail.

The conditions in Vienna are neither worse nor better than the States of Baden, Frankfurt, Amsterdam, Hamburg, London and others Emporia, which you ignore in your denunciation. Please take the bankruptcy register of the business world in your area and compare it to Austria Quality and quantity, and you will judge a little more fairly.

How little Austria and fine conditions in Germany were known Your letter shows again that it is a means for Prussia and

Germany, in order to get out of the banknote misery, the issue of State paper money, the precautions against abuse are still so heavily armored.

However, there is complete agreement in the serious Austrian circles that the banking business should be completely surrendered; about the authority

Opinions still differ on the edition of the music, only agreeing on this,

not to allow the monopoly of the National Bank to continue.

But what about Prussia and now Germany with a terrible privilege burdening k. pr. Bank? Has one heard the cry of distress who was at the Bank Commission of the German Trading Day against the k. pr. Bank was raised? Is the protest against the establishment of a Reichsbank already lost? Will the vote for the necessity the existence of private note banks (as it is, for example, from the bank management Braunschweig) simply ignored? Do you want to ignore the Prussian private banks are just as oppressed and enslaved as the old Prussian ones?

This should be taken into account before the very complicated, abnormal conditions of Austria, whose economy has been in a state of crisis for more than years can not find peace, as a guard. Austria has a series of unfortunate wars and unfortunate state leadership men entered into the debt book, Prussia has victories and victorious Head of State; Austria only has banknotes with compulsory exchange rate,

Prussia hardly ever came close to a discount on its notes; – such losses equal conditions do not require us to compare completely dissimilar situations. The banking question, as well as the question of banknote issuance, has vastly differing premises, conditions and necessities against the same question in Prussia and Germany, which I opportunity only hints.

*) The author remained anonymous. ` `
 | | Perrot.

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 6

.

Two members of the German Reichstag on the construction question.
By F. Perrot.

(No. 38 of "JFortschritt", dated September 24, 1871.)
(Reply to the letter addressed to me in No. 38 of the newspaper)

It is certainly understandable that one should first of all focus on the impending regulation of the banking system in the German Empire with great excitement I agree with you, dear Mr. Opponent, that fully agree that Austria's situation regarding the banking issue is a special Assessment is required because it is consistent with the general financial situation Austria is closely linked.

It is far from my intention, especially to the Austrian conditions to make targeted proposals on the banking issue. How sad, however, also the light in which I see the Austrian economic and Financial circumstances, I have always believed that in every situation of public life the clear recognition of the economic Truth is the first condition of procedure in public affairs must be. |

It will probably be of interest at this point if I Views which you expressed in your letter to me about the actual core the banking question, some statements which have recently been made two outstanding members of the German Reichstag in this question through the press. – In response to your accusation the ignorance of Austrian conditions I then come to the conclusion back. – I also ask myself, before I go on to the mentioned work of our two members of the Reichstag, I would like to make a few preliminary remarks.

"In our humble opinion," you say, "the Banknotes which have the equivalent value in credit notes or securities has neither a debt nor a tax, neither a gift nor a Robbery. A note issued in such a way is nothing but the generally valid means of circulation in exchange for a limited object of value."

This latter proposition must be fully and completely admitted, but, that the bank, through this exchange of its notes for interest-bearing assets, papers to benefit from interest on a capital which it would have without the You will certainly agree with me that I would not have had the opportunity to publish must

"The interest for the withdrawal of the notes" – ask yourself further – "if a reward for the effort and risk of the bank, but not a tax or a robbery."

Here I must now allow myself the most obedient counter-representation, that when I withdraw "such notes", ie whose "equivalent value is Bank has in credit letters or securities" hardly any trace an "effort" or a "risk" on the part of the bank in I am able to. The "effort" with the notes, like doing business with money to do, and the "risk" associated with this is probably on the part of the public, which has the notes in its hands and in exchange against the imagined value effects.

The notes we are talking about here, that is, the notes whose "countervalue the bank holds in letters of credit or securities has" – the "effort" of the bank consists mainly only in coupon cutting and their "risk" mainly in the selection the papers, as well as the fire safety of the safe.

The bank's "effort and risk" should therefore not in a motivatable relationship to the interest benefit which they find only by issuing notes not backed by cash and the effect of the increase in the The public is the main source of circulating funds.

I would like to add here that it is not the Writer of these lines, but also M. Wirth (Handb. d. Bankw. p. 581) makes the claim that "banks that issue notes, a capital in the amount of the surplus of the paper circulation over the available cash involuntarily and without interest from the public kept stretched."

Here I would like to take the liberty of making some quotations from the most recent to join the works of two well-known German Reichstag members. Both works will, I am certain, be of the greatest interest there too excite.

It is Mr. GD Augspurg and Mr. von Unruh who I have just heard about the banking question, the one in the "Deutscher Handelsblatt" (No. 33– 37) and this in a special brochure:

"The banking question before the Commission of the German Trade day."

In Mr. Augspurg you first meet – and Mr. Augspurg enjoys great prestige in the question – to give everything to an absolute opponent paper money, both "state and private paper money." His ultima ratio is:

"that the use of any and all paper money is reprehensible and must be abolished, not only of the state, but also of the private paper money, banknotes."

The profit that banks make by issuing non-cash covered notes, illustrated by Mr. Augspurg and others by the following quotation:

There are banks which are legally entitled to withdraw any amount (without any restrictions) of banknotes, without The question is, what is the actual capital available, which to ensure their redemption in all cases; there are others whose Capital to be paid in is 200,000 thalers, and which is legally are entitled to issue notes for 1 million thalers, ie with other In other words, from the actual capital at 4% 8000 thalers of legitimate to draw interest and furthermore from the resulting Promise of payment subject to compliance with bank coverage economically illegitimate interest of 26,000 thalers, i.e. from 200,000 Thalers 34,000 Thalers or 17% annually!

This is how a member of the board of directors who is considered an authority in banking n German Reichstag, in your eyes, my dear opponent, apparently very legitimate "business!" It is especially the view that "the note banks through the expenditure of their gaflungsverfpveden by means of the annual interest derived from it, an unjustified-manufacturing significant profit by increasing the exchange value of the circulating metal money, i.e. the legal national currency in proportion to the amount of their paper money to the total of the circulating (liquid) capital and thereby reduce the large Part of the population, which lives on fixed income, to significant harm, but secondarily the entire population of the state harm by undermining the effectiveness of the legal standard of value."

"On the other hand, there are no advantages in any direction for the total population of the state through the issue of banknotes."

This is certainly said very succinctly and unambiguously and it eo ipso justifies the question of which Mr. Augsburg presents:

"Why do we continue to use banknotes everywhere? why not just ban the issuance of all and every bank= grades."

Mr. Augsburg himself gives the answer very drastically as follows:

It is difficult to find an answer to this question other than

"that one is once accustomed to the evil, and that it seems hard a number of bank shareholders, who also once Exploitation of the entire population through the issuance of banknotes, suddenly take away this privilege."

Yes, yes, that would be hard for the poor shareholders. And the population which is also "exploited" – ?

"The amount of the population," says Mr Augspurg, member of the German Reichstag, "is in a strange state of affairs of infantile immaturity. It manages with the pieces of paper, whereby their loan is documented as if it were money, is happy about the comfort associated with such a means of circulation as a child, which plays with the razor, about its smoothness, writes learned Works on the advantages of the credit economy, on the money-economy, where one only has to rely on one's credit, without work, get rich, and praise her happiness in the newspapers, when she has been blessed with a new paper bank. She knows nothing about the fact that they continually favor the individual – lends enormous sums of money without paying a single thaler of interest to get something for exploiting them."

. – "I certainly admire the – good nature of this population."

So Mr. GD Augspurg in his fine excellent work: "The Banking Question" in the "Deutsches Handelsblatt" (No. 33 – 37).

No less interesting is the brochure issued these days of Mr. v. Unruh, also a well-known outstanding member of the German Reichstag. With his well-known brilliant presentation skills and in Mr. v. Unruh deals with this in a sharply logical manner in his brochure

"The banking question
"before the Commission of the German Trade Day."

You may find – dear Mr. Counterspeaker – in this brochure convince that one does not ignore the cry of distress which Bank Commission of the German Trading Day against the k. priv. Bank became." –

No, this cry of distress from the unfortunate 22 bank directors will cannot be ignored. We have repeatedly and emphatically against every privileged bank and against state banks explained at all.

Mr. von Unruh sheds light on this "cry of distress" that comes from 22 bank directors and 4 non-bank directors

86 of the German trading day with the incisive sharpness of fine known Dialectics, the subtle irony of this criticism is of downright devastating Effect. I can only ask you, dear Mr. Opponent, to Illumination which Mr. von Unruh gave to the more thought-provoking "cry of distress" which is given to 22 bank directors in his brochure.

German people, hear it, the "cry of distress" of your band-directors!

By the way, Mr. von Unruh thinks very similarly about the banknotes
like the writer of these lines: |
sg tidt bare backed notes issue," says Mr. von Unruh Page 22 of his brochure, "means: the involuntary credit of the Publicum, everyone, who, as it is expressed, tax the public partly in favour of the bank itself, partly in favour of those who credit as much as possible." 8

You see, dear opponent, that my views but be shared by a notable side and now probably not no longer want to be pushed aside so easily. They mean, that "the summary of my observation, if it were correct, would be the banknote
before the bar of the criminal court." – Hm! – Near views that furround fur views are, however, also very noteworthy= valuable side. For example, Mr. von Unruh asks on page 31 his brochure:

"Does it not come close to counterfeiting when paper
Bank notes circulate, which may be redeemed for Baar are no longer able to do so?"

Our well-known economist Mr. J. Faucher brings the banknotes also once with counterfeiting and the penal code in close connection namely in his intellectual work: "Currency and Prices" in the "Quarterly Journal for Economics" (1868). He says there namely, if the issue of notes not backed by cash exceeds all the pleasant effects which the central banks and their friends tell about it, then one must not blame the counterfeiters, but those punish those who discover and report counterfeit money. Because as long as the counterfeit money as such is not discovered, it functions just as if it were without banknotes issued with cash backing.

*) The writer of this article has also responded to the "cry of distress" in the "National

No. 320 (supplementary sheet) is devoted to an illumination.

87

The whole deduction of Mr Augspurg leaves another
There is hardly any other conclusion than that the banknote is essentially punishable because it characterizes it as an "exploitation" (ipsissimum verbum) of the population. Insofar as such "exploitation" is knowingly practiced and is defended against better knowledge for financial interests, I would like fom even find it highly criminal.")

Mr. von Unruh comes to similar conclusions like the writer of these lines. On page 35 of his brochure he says:

"We strive for limitation and gradual elimination—of all notes not covered with metal, possible entry—restriction of all paper money in general and release of the deposit and checking banks. We want this
Do not lose sight of the goal, nor do I get too far away move, but don't rush it either."

We fully agree with this and the positive suggestions, which we have made in this direction, encompass precisely this goal in Eye. It only seemed to us and still seems to us that the "elimination all notes not covered in metal" with the elimination of all banknotes is synonymous, since of course no bank will undertake to produce notes covered entirely in cash,
which only brings costs but no benefits.

But is it true that traffic has become mechanical convenience of a certain amount of paper circulation needs, there will probably be nothing left but to pay state funds for this amount.
to hold paper money.

What Austria suffers from the misuse of government paper money
We know very well that he suffered. But since every thing is subject to abuse is exposed, the misuse of an institution in and for Nothing against it. – If the matter were not so serious, we would almost like to recall that dictum: "Even roast rabbit, in enjoyed to excess – –"

What, by the way, is the "vote for the necessity of existence of private note banks" – namely, of these private note banks themselves – is concerned, then this must be done according to the tours of Mr Augspurg and Mr von Unruh, which I join
If I may allow it, it hardly needs a separate assessment.

*) "A theft on a large scale is being carried out in Europe today, in addition to Robber barons and theocratic exploitation of formerly noble professions were

– and it leads to honor instead of to prison.” – Dr. Schäffle, former Austrian Minister of Trade

88

It is the great advantage of fundamental clarification of a matter that one no longer has to deal with each individual objection separately refute.

By the way, if you – dear Sir – after the intentionally abundantly shared citations from the two works indicated now want to read what some well-known newspapers have said about them have, and consider what they have not said about them, You must admit that the art of silence is at least The defenders of the note banks practiced skill and tactics I have a very detailed report on the von Unruh Work read in a major daily newspaper, which the actual core of the matter and what Mr. von Unruh considers to be the core of the same holds and presents it as such, only with a very vague, for anyone who has not read the brochure himself, touches on meaningless saying and instead there is a direct apology for the paper banks.

We are certainly with Mr. von Unruh and our important Economists for full liberalization of banking business, but – Bank= We do not consider the manufacture of banknotes to be a banking business.

Freedom of banking and freedom of banknote manufacture– We therefore consider cation to be two fundamentally different things. – The main evil of the banknote, the undue enrichment of individuals, would remain the same even if this “industry” were completely freed up. lessens the attachment, because not everyone can and will issue notes. We Here too we agree with M. Wirth when he says (Handb. d. Bankw. p. 582): |

“With complete freedom of note emission, a A monopoly of the rich was created, which then had an interest-free capital is advanced by the poor; because inequality agents cannot issue any slips of paper.”

This epistle has become longer than I had originally imagined I would therefore like to ask you to answer your objection to the Leave ignorance of Austrian conditions for another epistle.

Rostock, September 20, 1871.

| Banknotes = enemies. |
(No. 43 of the Progress of October 22, 1871.)
Second Epistle to Mr. Perrot in Rostock.

I have the announced reply because of knowledge of the Austrian Market: and monetary conditions, but to this day it is not and so, dear Sir, I will for the time being focus on some Return to the theories and views presented in No. 38.

They refer to the statements of two outstanding Members of the German Reichstag in Berlin, a calling that was very finds little resonance in a country that is affected by the financial votes of the most outstanding members of Parliament have been and are being severely damaged.
| If Mr. Augspurg rejects all paper money and the Profit from the issue of such notes for an economically illegitimate Interest, he is on the dogmatic standpoint of Galileo's opponent: E pure si muove. According to such a basic view one naturally comes to the trivial conclusion that the banknotes only because "it would seem hard to give a number of shareholders to take this privilege."

The writer of these lines does not belong to those bank shareholders and has no private interest in the paper institutes at all; but from the Experience in the transport and business life of some parts of the world and several He has concluded from the empires, countries, cities and districts that paper money, banknotes, one of the most beneficial inventions of civilized mankind ity, and all the disadvantages and damages associated with it, a thousandfold be replaced by its advantages. The banknote has the wholesale partially freed from the burden of commodity exchange, because gold and silver are goods and a heavy burden. The banknote is the steam horse in the Comparison to the pack animal or rowing boat of past centuries.

Mr. Augspurg is, it seems, still in the fairy tales, which the children of the money economy are amused and frightened by the Exploitation of the entire population – prefigured by notes.

No less interesting in fact is the recently published Brochure by Mr. von Unruh on the banking issue, but also not less – the one-sidedness of the assessment.

~

90

Mr. von Unruh ranks among the police officers in the banking sector and censors; he cannot imagine a bank without state control, and just a little control without a beard. A shudder He is concerned that notes are only covered by a third of cash, and in As a consequence, the note not backed by cash is called "counterfeiting", and as I predicted: the banknote was brought before the criminal court!

But since the economic monstrosity of removing banknotes from the traffic in Europe, America, India and Australia by means of criminal law to distribute, had little prospect of practical feasibility, despite Recommendation of Mr. Augspurg, Unruh, Faucher, Wirth and others request, dear Sir, that government paper money be issued.

This final motion addresses all that is directed against the banknote was put forward. Mr. von Unruh comes to the same conclusion (p. 31): "It is the responsibility of the state to provide the necessary full-value means of circulation and to use surrogates for metal only to the smallest possible extent and under full security of the public (also censorship and police!) to allow or to produce it yourself."

The view which is not full of cash covered note a "paper note without collateral (p. 22, Unruh), an involuntary credit of the audience, an exploitation of the population (Augspurg), a counterfeiting factory (Faucher), a theft into the big picture" (Schaeffle), – these gentlemen want government money. – Cheers!

May Prussia, which has only now become a great state, be spared, To have government paper money in circulation in days of crisis; may the above-mentioned economists and their comrades present, what tragedy the Prussian money market would have offered, if the Red Hoses had reached the Rhine, and government paper money would have been in circulation.

Austria knows its suffering from government paper money and counterfeiting the banknote to sing.

In this country, people are arguing against government paper money and for Banknote; people advocate for banking freedom and soon also for freedom the issue of banknotes under normative provisions which hopefully the bare covering as a long-overcome standpoint leave aside.

This is of course not your view and your tendency, dear Sir, but she has comrades, even in your midst. I quote Mr. Leopold Lasker, who in his latest brochure (Berlin, 1871, at Springer: Banking Freedom or Not?) the inappropriateness of all previous

91

The banks' paternalism is proven and he complains bitterly: "only with the complete freedom of the banks has not yet been attempted," while the theoretical views put forward against banking freedom are untenable and the experiences gained from practice for the same speak" (p. 43). "One must give up the idea that the Freedom from paper is required in the interest of the banks" (p. 59). "The release the issue of banknotes mainly follows the non-banking public interest to benefit" (p. 60).

So in Germany, in Prussia, within your Reichsrat,
Dear Sir, the old prejudice about banks and banknotes already its well-founded refutation, and one is not in a good mood, the charitable banknote to be brought before the bar of the criminal court.
The banknote enemies must already look for other weapons to defeat maintaining modern traffic conditions.

Vienna, mid-October 1871.

| AN

Bantuots = friends.

(No. 44 of "Fortfschritt" of October 29, 1871.)

Response to the article on page 348 of this newspaper: "Banknotes=Enemies".)

Partly due to illness, partly due to other more urgent work it was not possible for me, as I wanted, to respond to your Monetary relations with regard to the issue of banknotes in more detail
– I make no secret of the fact that I am your Austrian monetary situation appears in a desperately bleak light.

In my eyes, the most important thing in this dim light is your
the national debt situation there, the connection with the Paper mischief is unfortunately a very narrow one, and its influence on the overall state relations, as well as all individual economies, than a perishable one can be.

If one reads the recently published sixth edition of "Hand: book of comparative statistics" by G. Fr. Kolb the figures the Austrian public debt economy; if one looks at the year year after year, the deficit has been accumulating to hair-raising dimensions;
if one were to assume that this avalanche of national debt has already reached over 3 mil

Harden Gulden has grown and at a fine interest rate of around

third of the total state income; if you the connection between this accursed national debt economy and the Paper fraud is more closely examined when one agrees with Kolb's view is that the national debt is at the same time "the debt of every single inhabitant of a country, debts of every family, debts which every basic= piece, every business (with the exception of certain bankers= and stock exchanges= fws), burden every fortune," and if one finally considers the disruptive, decomposing, like a creeping poison, acting influence, which which practises state mismanagement in all directions: so it should be
There is no doubt that, on the one hand, the public debt situation

dominate the rest of the economic life in Austria and that on the other hand, in such a situation, all suggestions for the removal of the paper fraud is useless if one does not have a finance minister in Austria of the type of the great Baron von Stein, and if the

93

it does not have the authority to act with almost dictatorial power the economic conditions of the entire Austrian region to regenerate countries centralistically.

In other words: I see the Austrian financial situation as an almost hopeless one and believe that to the previous Austrian state bankruptcies will be joined by further ones, so situation, until – well, I leave it to you to finish the sentence.

So much for now about the “financial situation” there.

But if I am not mistaken, you are probably mainly concerned with the defense of the banknote in general, and I come back to the core of our disagreement.

They cite in your favor Mr. “Leopold Lasker”. Mr. Leopold Lasker is not initially the well-known Reichstag member this family name. The representative is called Eduard Lasker. The Bremen-based Handelsblatt, for example, recently had at the top of its newspaper mistakenly identified the Reichstag member as the author of the brochure “Bank freedom or not” and this error, as far as I know, not yet reffirt. – To my knowledge, it is the first time that Mr. “Leo pold Lasker” is mentioned as a writer. It is probably from Interested if, for example, you wanted to earn the Public with a more detailed information about the proposed new to lend a helping hand to the author.

A key statement by Mr. “Leopold Lasker” quoted by you gives me the opportunity to immediately address one of the main points of our Mr. “Leopold L.” said: “One must challenge the view give up, as if the freedom from paperwork was required in the interest of the banks.”

Whether it is “required” in the interest of the banks, we will leave it aside and just keep coming back to the one point, what advantages the issue of non-cash-backed securities Notes for the banks really have.

I come here via my multiple mentioned simple The calculation does not ignore the fact that a bank, for example,

Issues three million notes and only one of them Million in Baar to cover the interest benefit of almost two million ones is enriched.

I would be grateful if you could take this point into consideration wanted to discuss clearly. It seems to me as if the defenders the banknote never adequately addresses this point. – It is likely 5 whether “freedom from paper is in the interest of the banks is required.”

94

They call “paper money, banknotes, one of which he: most prosperous inventions of civilized humanity,” say then: “The banknote has relieved the wholesale trade of the burden of exchange of goods, because gold and silver are goods and a heavy burden.”

I miss in the second of these treasures the “paper money” which They are mentioned in the first sentence together with the banknote. The paper money, and indeed the government paper money, is probably just like the banknote, with the property of “relieving the grand hauler of the burden of What you can expect from the banknote What we praise as brilliant should of course also apply to paper money in general.

It seems to me that you are overlooking the fact that in the paper economy not only paper is replaced by metal, but also the amount of circulating media functioning as money generally increases by the amount of unbacked paper money issued, or the notes not covered by cash, the interest on which is paid into the bank's cash flow.

I completely agree with you that the only The main purpose of all paper money is that it is for some Transport transactions the more inconvenient, heavier money by a much more easily transportable medium, but government paper money does exactly the same as banknotes. But the fact that this is precisely the “wholesale” as you think, is most useful, and that in this substitution a more comfortable medium for a more uncomfortable creative moment lie – this has, to my knowledge, never been explained anywhere. It This would be a new discovery.

That the “liberation of wholesale trade from the burden of export of goods exchange”, as you put it, in this sense above all is due to the change, namely the real, actual change, should not be in doubt for you either.

Also, all those who have a creative influence on the banknote power, have so far seen this creative power only in the fact that a bank, the more notes it produces without cash backing, the more “Credit”. The “blessing” of such an institution unnaturally exaggerated credit economy is likely to . also in Austria is becoming increasingly clear.

It is certainly a most wonderful idea that certain people
Privilege to make paper money to help others
To give "credit" and to get interest paid for it. There it would be However, it is much easier if everyone pays the amount of the "credit",

95

which he needs, he makes fine paper money himself – that would be absolute "freedom of banknotes."

But why do you still want to have "normative provisions",
I really don't see it. Why, given the enormous advantage you have for Banknote freedom, nor "normative provisions"? – Why since the regulation of this business is not just about "competition"
– that "competition" of which it is said that it all conduct business in the best possible way?

Why on earth should we also have normative provisions, which always only hinders the free movement of the "competition"
can oppose? – Normative determinations from which no human to say what should be in it and what should not?

Why do you, who call all "police" and "censorship" in Bank= its fo particularly detest (as I do, by the way), for which Banknote production nevertheless "Police" and "Ceufur" by means of the "Nor= mative determinations"?

It makes a strange impression on me when I think about
I think that the only defender of the "normative determinations", occasionally the banking discussion at the "Economic Congress", the following:
conditions repeatedly expressly as "mere police orders" ftreatment" of the banking industry, "for the protection of the public" feared and characterized.

"Police" restriction of the banking industry by any which "normative determinations" sweep away quite naturally and automatically also speaking of "police surveillance and control of the bank–
– As far as I know the banking business, I think any kind of control of the same by state organs for equally harmful rather than illusory.

To conclude, I would like to introduce you to Mr. August Eggers in Bremen cite, who is probably familiar to you through his work on the coin= reform is known. Mr. Eggers is, just like Mr. Augspurg, Groß= merchant. He expresses himself in the recently published second issue of his "Economic Treatises" on the "non-metal-backed banknote"
as follows:

"Adam Smith puts in his Wealth of Nations, Book II, Chapter II;

The following example is given: the circulating and sufficient for traffic
The total amount of metal money in a country is one million pounds sterling. Some Later, some banks and bankers give a million pounds
banknotes, backed by 200,000 pounds sterling of metal money
The circulation of the country remains unchanged and the circulating

96

Million pound banknotes have the same purchasing power as those previously in circulation 800,000 pounds of metal money will be free and can go abroad as interest-free, benefit the country= bringing capital".

"Such a procedure is piracy." The 800,000 Pounds have an oversaturating effect on the foreign market and devalue the metal money." ; b

"It is not the country in general that through this first practiced on others and then on itself to relapsing piracy enriched, but it is initially the bankers who make a profit without working."

"The banknote is not an international means of payment.
To balance the balance sheets, metal money is needed."

"The non-metal-backed banknote is an illegitimate use of credit, which is the basis that the metal:
"Money granted to all other forms of credit is counterfeit."

"The economic power, the social, the State must suffer from privileges which a certain
Class without work a profit of (in Germany annually)
8-10 million thalers. A serious abuse can only have a paralyzing and corrupting effect. Give privileges provide themselves with the means to maintain their possession.
There are already signs that the cancer is spreading takes hold."

And I believe that we can also "sing a song" about this in Austria, not only from the misuse of government paper money, as You write.

Not only the abolition of banknotes, but also the possible reduction of all paper money in general must be the constant pursuit of all healthy state economy. Austria can, however, issue notes and paper money in an honest way, except by having surpluses in the state budget, while for decades there has been a deficit has accumulated on deficit.

Rostock, October 24, 1871.

N F. Per red.

Austria's national bankruptcy.

3. Epistle to Mr. Perrot in Rostock.

I would have to possess the spirit of Goethe, who would bring Mephisto to all
I wanted to answer all the points you have made in Your reply should be touching, clear and convincing.
can only be individual in such a polemic of a u
to be more precise.

Please allow me, dear Sir, to end this third epistle only with the views on Austria's financial situation, to which I have so greedy. She finds it very clear, very honest, very unreserved, very decisively. This facilitates the trial and the jury's verdict.

You write without concealment that "you understand the Austrian monetary situation in a desperately dim light;" "They explain the national debt= circumstances as pernicious in their influence" and arrive at the Results, "that the Austrian financial situation is almost hopeless," with the belief that "the previous state bankruptcies were further ones will join, yes, until --"

These breaks are your property, not mine, hey anyway
these quotes about the past, present and future state= bankrupt Austria belongs to you. Probably find this serious and weighty statements the result of careful studies However, you, dear Sir, have not said anything about it.
knows very well here in the country how one in Prussia behind a pole Weißbier or behind a glass of Grüneberger about Austria around= away, and before the last drop of those noble drinks has been sipped is, it is certain that Austria is bankrupt in politics and finance. But Such pub conversations certainly do not contain any scientific explanations and no noteworthy evidence and will certainly, dear Sir, by you as by every serious statesman and economist as empty phrases. That is why you refer to Kolb's Statistics in which Austria's national debt economy is demonstrated.

But that is the only thing you have as evidence for your decla= ration of the inevitable national bankruptcy of Austria.

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the audience.

ome aw ae

Only – without any input from you, without further investigation, without any consideration of the circumstances, without considering historical events or economic events, – nothing, absolutely nothing after Their own studies and experiences, but only the dictum of Statistics as a messianic prophecy of the coming bankruptcy!

The reply would not be difficult. One could rely on the wealth Austria, which can easily do not only the interest of the to pay off the national debt, but in a reasonably short period of time the capital of the 3 billion to be amortized; it only requires a regulation of the basic tax, management of the forest property, execution of the Communications etc. – and the hair-raising dimensions of the deficit would have made way for the richest surplus. Of course, peace is Europe's economic stability is firmly in sight, and it is unlikely that Napoleon the south of Austria and a Bismarck the north of this brother state with war. A brief look at the booklet of statistics into the economic life of Austria for two years¹⁰ would demonstrate to you and your fellow judges what colossal The upswing Austria has achieved in all material areas, No one could have dreamed after such unfortunate wars and battles, least of all the North German party men. Suggest a little the results of the sugar and beer taxes, look at the Yield of tobacco gradient, let the swelling be controlled capable objects in realities and factories, – – and the Heroes behind the bar of wheat beer or the glass of Grüneberger are perhaps be moved to postpone the bankruptcy of Austria until to a later time. Always assuming that the imperial Prussians, who have become kings, do not carry their breech-loaders to Bohemia because Austria was not prepared for war either at Solferino or at Königgrätz prepared, and is – not prepared for the next one either.

However, passons! As little as one washes a Moor white, little is the prevailing prejudice about Austria, of which especially Northern Germany is infected.

So bankruptcy remains! Everything that is said against it, ift whitewashing, optimism, careless glossing over of the true fts, self-deception or deliberate fraud, patriotic fraud, Ignorance of one's own country, – in short, the announced bankruptcy is the sole, appropriate, well-founded truth.

You and your like-minded people can only not demand.

What would follow from this? But only the duty of the publicist, of the citizen and statesman to warn everyone so that the

 the coming national bankruptcy of Austria would not harm or disadvantage it.
 Please proclaim throughout Germany that Austria will soon will go bankrupt again; let the night watchmen sound: keep You before fire and light and Austrian papers; trumpet it in all neighboring kingdoms that Austria cannot be given credit overnight and by all tribunes, in all economic areas, on all stock exchanges, in all journals it should be announced: Austria is bankrupt.

The fact that Austrian publicity does not follow these emanations,
 You can read, dear Sir, from the weekly magazine published in the Kaiserstadt
 Vienna appears and your letter with the expression of hopeless
 Austrian financial situation and the distant state bankruptcy without a doubt prints. |

What do you think, dear Sir, is the consequence of such announcements?
 the Austrian bankruptcy? Do you still have demand in the North, West and South of Germany, whether these declamations about the Austria's financial situation has induced any capitalist to Austrian securities? Why not find out how many millions not in the last decade, but since the brother= wars, since the victories in France, from Berlin, Breslau, Cologne, Frank= furt and other places to Vienna to protect themselves against Have papers sent? Perhaps it is of interest to you if I am telling you something that you will certainly not find in Kolb's statistics,
 But there are guarantors who confirm this, namely that for a year now a a few hundred million and since the last few months about 60 million Gulden nominal value in Austrian securities to Germany Capital investments are deducted. All these owners and purchasers of Austrian Reich papers are blind, and see the sword of Damocles of the so versatile, also announced by you with such reliability

bankrupt not. State pension, priority bonds, lottery tickets, shares, hypo= counter letters, – all these bankrupt papers are being sold by the foolish and deluded German capital, and form a Austrian export item. Woe, woe, three times woe!! |

 Do you not remember, dear Sir, the saying: "Gray
 If all theory! !?" It seems that the practical world does not To agree with the judgments of some party men and leaders; one is in Germany is not the enemy of one's own money, and nobody wants to be on the receiving end of a bankruptcy. Capital is also very sensitive, suspicious, eagle-eyed, cautious, and the "earlier Austrian state bankruptcies" as you put it are a warning sign with giant letters! And yet this Capital – – into the arbor, as Nestroy declaims. I worry, your Call, however well-intentioned, will not improve this capital teach despite Kolb's statistics etc.

So if the next Austrian state bankruptcy, which you Given the hopeless financial situation, Prussian and German capital is lost, then you, dear Sir, are not
You have warned honestly and honestly, and have courageously
Your opinion published.

May heaven reform sinners, so that they do not remain with the other Austria's bankruptcy brought them to their own hands and their skin carry markets.

Vienna, November 1871. AN

Abolition of all paper money.
4. Epistle to Mr. Perrot in Rostock.

Actually, any further discussion is superfluous. You, dear
Sir, have declared Austria bankrupt because of its monetary economy;
I have your reasoning about past, present and future
did not contradict the Austrian state and economy, and we jointly warned the whole world not to give credit to Austrian papers ren! This is probably the end result of all polemics, the end point of every debate. According to such a premise, it is indeed a luxury to say a word about money= paper or paper money, banknotes or government notes, banknotes coverage or confusion of notes etc. For Austria at least any further discussion about the monetary economy the practical significance is lacking; Austria is bankrupt, and there it is
It is completely irrelevant to these millions of economic people whether banknotes may and should be issued, or whether only precious metal should circulate?

The position which you, dear opponent, have sharply expressed "Abolition of all paper money," has for Austria, which I to represent allow me to only a theoretical or rather at the announced bankruptcy has no value at all. I fight de lana caprina.
And then it is a little called, as it were, climbing the teaching lectern to have to answer questions asked, although in a Newspaper articles can only proceed aphoristically.

But these epistles have taken on a greater extent, than was intended from the outset, and they have the interest of a So, despite the bankruptcy, the polemic receive a sequel.

First of all, I request, dear Sir, to put aside the denunciation as if the representatives of the banks and banknotes were only in the egoistic interests. Mr. von Unruh is also one of these Informer to the most respectable companies in Germany. Writer of this epistle is such a denunciation without any Reason and support, as the friendly editorial team may attest.

One of your first questions concerns the point that the banks

—

102

by issuing more notes than their cash reserves in order to speaking interest. — You want to make this point have clearly discussed.

The attempt is daring. Are the upper floors of a House built in the air because only the first floor is on the ground? If a merchant whose fortune consists of 1000 thalers does not have the Eligibility to take 10,000 Thaler credit?

The complete error lies in the fact that so many people have the delusion a bank can issue any amount of notes. No A regularly managed bank can issue a note at will or at will give; you ask for their grades when you fit N and when you fie use fann.

A second misconception is that the bank does not take any risk in issue of their notes. If there is even a spark of truth in this If one had, one should never and nowhere speak of a threat to the banknote speak.

The interest that a bank receives for issuing the securities it desires grades is a reward for their work and for their Guarantee. Only the most complete ignorance of the effectiveness and management a note bank can be tempted to say that the note output giving is a tax or expropriation, and all these tirades arouse only smiles in the merchant world.

Below is the huge difference between a banknote and a The state note is usually used for a performance was issued and remains in circulation for an indefinite period lation; the banknote is only issued against deposit of an equivalent value given, and returns to the place of issue within an indefinite period of time.

The banknotes issued by the Austrian National Bank — with Exception of the 80 million advanced to the state for the privilege onen — can be confiscated within a maximum of 3 months; the bfterr. State notes await only a future measure to get out of the Circulation to be able to get out.

However, you and your like-minded people do not want any grades, no paper money at all or the greatest possible limitation of this replacement of metal coin.

Has perhaps the experience of world traffic led to this view?

It has been recorded in the chronicles for thousands of years that the metal coin has not held back any crisis. The states have to counterfeit coins took refuge, the commercial world had to resort to bankruptcy courts Apply for protection; Everything before a banknote or paper money existed, or when the paper production was in childhood. One can probably say that the system of pure metal money circulation is everywhere a fiasco although the discovery of new silver mines and gold laundries came to the rescue, because otherwise it would have been due to the lack of material for the increased traffic. The fiasco of this System is not isolated in one economic area, but comes at different times, in different places and under different When the greatest dangers over a state, or a catastrophe that threatens world trade with capital and withdraws credit, then the fiasco of metal money is an open knowledgeable, and one grabs with trembling hands for the saving paper money! Let us not look far back. Italy carried out its revolution – with paper money; France remained solvent for the 5 billion – through paper money; – the United States of North America because the enormous costs of the civil war are being paid for with paper money; – Russia heals his wounds of the Crimean War, the Polish uprising and the peasants' emancipation – through paper money; Turkey is trying all kinds of reforms – through paper money. Austria could not avoid the unfortunate wars and experimental governments can only be overcome by paper money; – and England, rich England, always repeals the provisions of the Peel's acts when, in the days of a crisis, they issue notes hinder.

103

The enthusiasts for the circulation of metal money cultivate the history of money transactions a little; in any case, the need of today's traffic a terra incognita.

Since I have all police and censorship, including in the area of business of the paper banks, you ask: why Normative provisions?

What do you say now, dear Sir, to the following normative provision, which I, as legislator, impose on every bank issuing banknotes would be:

The bank is obliged to exchange any presented note for metal at any time= coin. Failure to comply with this obligation will result in the Bank immediately blocked, bankruptcy proceedings initiated etc. 2c.

One could add to this normative determination that the g

Directors, administrative boards, governors, etc. are personally liable, or other strict measures following the example of that famous MP neten of the Berlin Landtag: freedom of the press with the gallows next to it, so unlimited banknote issue with the gallows next to it for the bank and for the bank shareholders if they do not exchange the presented notes for metal.

104

Such a normative determination probably makes every police and censorship superfluous, and in any case it is a more rational measure than the complete ftänft or third=metal coverage, financial braids that are far behind hang down and are indeed reminiscent of Chinese monetary economy.

Leave it to the customer and the discretion of each individual, whether he requests, accepts, keeps or exchanges such notes, just as how it is left up to each individual whether he will estimate a bill of exchange, make a p takes, continues to girdle, etc. No one will make a fool of themselves, e.g. with Austrian banknotes or government notes in Germany or to want to make purchases elsewhere, – and Prussian cash orders, although every expert takes them at face value, they are not a general Means of exchange for goods in Austria. This can be safely left to the traffic world, which is between note and note just as between note and coin to decide. Just make sure that the public is as open as possible. ity in the business statements of the banks and for the most inconsiderate observation Observance of the above-mentioned or a similar normative provision. | Any other restriction on the issue of music is a restriction of social intercourse and an arbitrary limitation of credit, which the public is willing to grant to a bank; therefore, all Privileges of the note banks – not just a taxation of money= and credit transactions, but a disadvantage for the economic community of the State concerned under the pretext of securing the value of the Note. This pretext leads to control and to the police, just as harmful as illusory, as you rightly point out.

The metal-backed note, if its issue is already regulated by a equivalent value, appears as a waste of credit, as a forced fallow of the most fertile field, as dead capital. I refer They went to the National Bank's vault, where 140 million in silver and gold have been buried for 20 years! I refer you to the Prussia's war treasure, which has consumed interests for 50 years!

But what is the use of all this? Mr. Eggers in Bremen refers to Adam Smith and declares the non-metal-backed note to be an illegitimate exploitation of credit; – and with this infallibility dogma believes all the savings of modern money transactions into the pit of hell and to be able to refer to fraud. So: abolition of the banknotes and the possible reduction of all paper money, preach You, dear sir.

“I congratulate you on such a monetary economy. I dare only ask I, Austria, to exclude it from its bankruptcy, its ruin and – to leave fine notes! In recent days the

105

Call for an increase in banknotes, and the management of the National Bank had to, despite all resistance, issue millions and millions of notes. You will admit, dear Sir, that this is in stark contradiction with Their views and tendencies, and no indication of a tendency for the abolition of paper money. Accordingly, here in the country, where people use notes to build houses, factories, railways, etc., the Be= striving to abolish all paper money will not win any converts.

All such theories are here based on the need for life, for the Existence, for acquisition and earnings – shelved.

Vienna, November 1871. AN

Austria's state economy.

Third Epistle to Mr. AN in Vienna (ef. No. 45. d. Forfchr.)

By F. Perrot. |

Not without a certain amount of pleasure I have) in the entrance of your third Epistle read the excellent phrase with which you “the spirit of Goethe, which lets Mephisto answer all the student’s questions,” in introduce the discussion on the banking issue. I have always said, that the party of banknote friends has very skilled defenders, and their interest with much skill, and apparently not without goodwill. planned tactics in the press.

The discussions which we have had contradictorily about the banking question have practiced, the readership of these papers should also be aware fufficient material for independent judgment about the important matter, and I am happy to follow you on the Area of the Austrian state economy, over which no less maintain useful conversations and urgently needed clarifications mediated, as in the banking question. – I live in the pleasant Foresight that here too the “spirit of Goethe” will not fail us, to appear at the end of our discussion.

Through your discussions on the state economic situation
Austria sounds a slight doubt as to whether I am I would have devoted myself to more serious study. I can reassure you about this and On the contrary, I assure you that the chapter of the state economy and the mismanagement of the national debt has always been one of the most important seemed to be, but I have looked into it in more detail.
You may find evidence of this in my recently published
"Current Issues, Contributions to the Solution of Political and Economic Problems—scientific issues of the present."

As far as I know, you are very much mistaken,
If you believe that "in Prussia behind a bar of wheat beer or a glass of Grüneberger" about the economic situation opportunities of Austria, from the Austrian "state bankruptcy"
What our honorable citizens say on the beer bench

107

jug-givers, has so far dealt largely with the questions of the highest Politics and diplomacy. The good people have so far on average not even interest and understanding for their own economic affairs, let alone for others. They let the skin with the greatest comfort through all kinds of financial arts over their ears, and if it gets too bad, they will Socialists and campaign theoretically and practically against "Capital".

You are doing us far too much credit if you believe that "behind the
A pint of wheat beer or a glass of Grüneberger would be of Austrian national bankruptcy. This is already ensured by the excellent daily press, that all possible things are brought closer to the citizen and that he is better informed about all sorts of things than about his own and his neighbors' economic affairs.

The deepest political and diplomatic secrets are Citizens on the beer bench are more likely to realize than the truth that a eternally indebted state economy is one of the main roots of that stände, which culminate in the exploitation of all by a few, and which ultimately only gives us, on one side, the absolute An= worship of the golden calf and on the other side the petroleum left over.

Our excellent daily press with its tremendous influence ensures that the citizen's mind is like a Chinese Wall so that he would see nothing but high politics, even higher Diplomacy, and also war and murder stories, railway strokes of luck, town gossip and theater reviews. – For sufficient state= Debt concerns both the absolute governments and the liberal People's representatives, and finally we are even told that a state the more brilliantly situated it is, and that its inhabitants are all the better

'and the more debt the state has, the happier it will be!' And it will be with states as well as with families and individuals; the more debt – the better? – –

You are not satisfied, my dear opponent, that I the three billion national debt so dry and without any I have provided explanations. They state most definitely that it would be easy for Austria to pay off this enormous debt in a relatively short deadline".

Well then, my dear Mr. AN, if it is as easy as They say, then all those who could and did not do it have brought the curse upon their heads that they will bring endless misfortune from Austria did not avert it, although they could.

108

We know very well how the Austrian debts arose Among other things, the sixth edition of G. Kolb's Statistik a special chapter about it, II. Abtheilung, p. 21: "On history of guilt". You probably want to indicate that a fatal Poor politics and unfortunate wars are the main culprits for the continued debt-making, and you are certainly right about that. But it must not be forgotten that the achievements made during the war Debts not reduced in peace, but by a fatal State economy has only ever increased. Without your patriotism To avoid offending you, I will quote the example of Frederick II of Prussia, which had a significant national debt during the Seven Years' War when Austria contracted, but at his death not only did it terminate but had also accumulated a considerable state treasury. How to incur peace debts, however, is shown by Frederick II's successor and the constitutional-liberal era in Prussia, although fortunately not to the same extent as in Austria. – Gervinus reports in the "History of the Nineteenth Century," that the possibilities of the Congress of Vienna to compensate the Imperial State for 30 million cost, although the deeply indebted state cannot even afford the mutilated invalids could be adequately cared for.

Incidentally, the Prussian national debt has also increased since 1848 constant and not insignificantly increased. Our state budget under differs in this respect from the Austrian only in terms of intensity, not in essence. On both sides, the unproductive debts generating expenditures constant predominantly, only in our country not yet in the same degree as in Austria, where we are not yet forced, as Austria suffers, about a third of our national income is spent on paying school fees denz nfen to use.

I wanted to see our politicians "behind a pint of wheat beer or a

Schoppen Grüneberger" would only be so far that they would not be able to appreciate this national debt economy in its entirety
I wish we were at the point where our jug pourers could the beer bank had any idea that they themselves had the interest of must pay national debt, and because of this national debt also the provincial, communal and private economy in the most unhealthy and destructive way, becoming more and more of a debtor
I wish our honest citizens would first get an idea that this useless national debt is ftity actually and mainly rests that "paper plague", which 109

more and more on the overgrowing enrichment Less on softening
All leads there!

Should you consider it advantageous if a country like . Oefterreid) (according to Kolb) for 1870 about 148 million guilders for schools interest, and about 100 million guilders for military expenditure, that is In total, almost half of his income was spent on debt interest and have to pay military expenses?

Why, if Austria is in such a brilliant position as you state, are the railways not built from available state funds?
means, instead of relying on stock fraud with bond debts,
and during the "foundation" the bankers had already given the money to pour millions of bottles down their throats? – Who tells the jug-pourers on the beer bench that railways, which only rely on debts and Dividends (plus royalties) are built on approximately half of their operating profit revenue, which would otherwise be spent on tariff reductions and be passed on to all Good things would have to come, instead of continuing to pay interest on debts and Have to use dividends?

Why does Austria spend 100 million on military costs, if, as you say, neither at Solferino nor at Königgrätz there is a was prepared for war, nor is it prepared for such a war now?
can it lead if the peoples of Europe, even in the midst of peace through ever-increasing war expenditures, persistently leading towards ruin?
This question applies to all civilised countries in the world.

We would be happy if Austria could, as easily as you claim, from its sad financial situation, but unfortunately we have to very doubtful about it.

The "execution of communications" would be quite good and with time also very useful, if not, as we have already said, were built solely on debt and dividends, with the Money is always squandered by the millions and by big capitalists through the known privileged fraud methods for the common good alienated and channeled into the pockets of the privileged.

"Management of the forest property" is also easier said as done. It has been reported in recent years that the Austrian Forest property is even very heavily "managed". The exact figures it are not at hand, however. Moreover, the richer Part of this forest property in Hungary. In case of a deficit but, which officially amounted to 3½ million in 1871, according to reliable estimates VAT bill, however, amounts to approximately 40 million, this "be-economy" cannot go so far.

110

"Regulation of property taxes," that may well bring in something. However, it should not be overlooked that the relatively low development of communications in Austria, mainly the Land ownership is disadvantaged and on a large scale long deeply in debt. The disastrous consequences of the Bu note- and stock fraud primarily affect agriculture. What has Spain and Italy and earlier in France, for example, Sale of the highly valued church property and the property of dead hands helped? – Today Spain is reducing the payment of its debt interest, as Austria has already done, by means of alleged "taxation," and Italy will also take the same step on a larger scale. And yet Spain and Italy are no less rich than Austria. What you say in your last letter is already being heard in Austria longer said, by those who have national debt, bank and stock fwindle is considered or spent for charitable purposes, but the Debt constant and the interest payment was repeatedly reduced, and it is It is very likely that what happened before will happen again. We would be happy if our epistle could contribute something to could contribute to making things better, and that also here in Prussia and Germany surpluses in place of debts, and economy on Surplus would replace the economy on loan. And if you Austrians= richly lucky, because his papers are still from the "export article" coveted by German capital), I estimate Happy is the state whose export items do not include "papers" and wish from the bottom of my heart that our neighbouring and brotherly country May Austria succeed in becoming such a country (without paper exports). Rostock, November 1871.

*) Note: The "Tribüne" is now warning against Austrian papers. in Austria so much is now being prepared for the emission for Germany that a course pressure on the older Austrian effects must become inevitable. Everything speculates there on Germany and on the favorable conditions of our State of Holland, whose markets used to be the largest outlet for Austrian Papers, Austria is gradually being abandoned. In Holland itself, the national debt is amortized and the resulting liquid capital is no longer as usual in Austrian, but rather in French papers with preference French values are all low, and faith in France's financial recovery is almost unshakable in the neighboring countries.

therefore expects a future significant increase in the French Papers, and even if one should perhaps miscalculate in this, for the time being but the effect is that these papers are preferred to the Austrian ones.
Thus, Germany remains the main market for Austrian emissions and the German capitalist has, if he does not get out of the way of Austrian things all shocks that the Danube Empire may experience in political or financial rifen threaten to fear for his part. – (I take the above from the “deut. Land. Ztg.”. – Perrot.)

Happiness and salvation of states through paper.
Fourth Epistle to Mr. AN in Vienna.
By F. Perrot.

I had written my third letter before I read your fourth
We must therefore see how we deal with the once quoted “Spirit of Goethe” to find its way for the time being.

My cousin, Hofrath Thiersch, who died in Munich, said famous saying: “This century is a paper year– hundred.” – How true was he? – Our railways are building
we – with paper; we run our state economy – with paper!
We provide the “wealth of nations” (according to Adam Smith) – with Paper; we raise trade, commerce and industry – with paper; we wage wars and make revolutions – with paper (and some petroleum);
we “try all kinds of reforms” – through paper; we heal the wounds
the worst national debt economy, the worst wars, the most shocking state upheavals, the most fatal trade crises – with Paper, – everything, everything – with paper; O happy century – with paper!

And all this paper, which enriches us as if with steam power and makes you happy – all this paper is just made of rags manufactured!

O, great Goethe, you have written so much paper, and had no idea that you and the world and little Weimar could have made you much happier if you had made this paper Print notes – namely bank notes, great Goethe. If you
If you appeared in this world again today, you would certainly either
We become rich today by Paper great Goethe, and also happy, through paper, o Goethe. Only Poor and stupid devils still make the thankless effort to to write something on this paper. Whoever knows “how it is done,” has notes printed from this paper, namely bank notes, great Goethe, and makes yourself and others happy. And what is best, o Goethe, every person will now be given the right to

to make others happy – with paper. I will then also to this happiness business; I will spend a million thalers on shares and will then issue as much paper as possible. You must know, O great Goethe, that with this paper but nothing if you don't have a lot of cash, unless it is that one can pull off a quite famous stock market scam; and even the dizziness can now be dealt with much better and more vigorously the more you already have. But I will watch, o great Goethe, that I am inventing a really big stock fraud; then I get for my fine invention a number of “founding shares” and if the are quite high, I sell them. Afterwards the scam goes bankrupt, o Goethe, and I have the money in my pocket and when it is all gone, I start I am once again faced with a new illusion. You see, great Goethe, that is it. much better than with much effort, as you have done, all kinds of beautiful things to write on the paper. – The bankers are able and laugh at you for making such an effort. I am I have never really been a fan of writing a lot myself – rather the opposite – but I was only of the opinion until now that could do all sorts of good with it, as you undoubtedly also believed, o Goethe. But now I see that the paper can be interpreted differently much better, as soon as my friend's new freedom of notes AN in Vienna perfect is, I will found a central bank, o Goethe, and earn money without working, just by cheating and living entirely from other people's debts and become rich like steam, and let the paper will work for me: – I will do the cuckoo and slog longer with work!

Forgive me, dear friend and opponent, for this somewhat longer Apostrophe to the spirit of a great dead man, – you fight as you fay, de lana caprina, for the banknotes. Every pure and sincere Enthusiasm is always a pleasant phenomenon for me. I myself am nothing less than a “scholar” in the things about which we entertained and it is perhaps just a taste idiosyncrasy of me, with my limited subject's understanding, to fathom want to know what figures and facts our state and people economy. An old saying goes: “Money rules the world” and the Government and economic issues reduce fih to a certain extent All my thoughts are on money matters. So once I was plagued by curiosity about know what the state does with our money, and no less interesting I wanted to know what the paper banks were doing with our money. I took the trouble to gain knowledge of the relevant facts and

To provide figures, yes, what others say about these facts and figures thought and said, and then searched for myself so far through these to think through matters that seemed important to me until I believed to have got to the heart of the matter – to speak with Goethe. That is all my learning.

Now I ask you to give me some replies to your fourth letter to allow.

That the person who only has $\frac{1}{2}$ of the 3 million notes issued in Baar, the interest of three million, instead of one
As I see it, you have not denied that he enjoys a million.

I know that a bank cannot issue as many notes as it wants quite well, but that does not change the above fact, although the ratio of one-third coverage is considered to be quite regular.

As for the bank's risk in issuing its notes,
We have already discussed this point, but it can't hurt to shed light on it again. .

You only need to make it clear how the notes under the public.

The bank issues the notes to the public instead of money.

But you can only do two things with the money from a business point of view: – you can either lend it, or you can buy something with it.

If we now take our three million notes with $\frac{1}{2}$ Baar= remain covered, so the bank can only issue its notes in cash lend it, or buy something with it. – And it will, if 2 Millions of notes are also supposed to be covered by “paper backing”, just buy interest-bearing paper for 2 million of their notes. – Which The bank has a risk with regard to these notes if the so-called “Paper cover” is not just a vain sophistry? Are the papers good and If the bank's safe is secure, I look in vain for a risk of the bank for these 2 million thalers. – The risk is only on the side of the public, which has the relevant notes in his hands and does business with it. – The “business,” the “risk” and the work of the bank consists only of these 2 million notes and cutting coupons.

As for the third million notes, 1 1 the same yes
The bank's own assets are always deposited as cover and the
The risk that the bank is running for this third million is Behavior of the bank management in normal times no more than that of any other businessman. , ha.

Perrot, On the fight against the exploitation of the public. 8

It remains therefore still correct and incontestable that the issue of notes not covered by cash is simply equivalent to the fabrication of an equal amount of money for one's own pocket, and that this benefit does not entail any corresponding benefit, no corresponding risk contradicts.

On the other hand, the bank's other business practices
A double risk arises. If the bank does bad business with the money borrowed from it and with its own money, it can settle liabilities which are beyond her strength, and then she runs the one side of the risk, namely the risk of every businessman who relies more on Borg as a coffee-based economy or must be based on it – the risk, to go bankrupt. This bank's risk then has its second side for the note holders. – They run a double risk. They make firstly, dealing with notes rather than with money – first risk! – Secondly, the notes can become completely worthless paper if it is the bank cover is not in more than wonderful order – second risk. Ä

The bank has therefore – as already mentioned – a different risk than that of each businessman for the amount of their own cash assets. The interest on notes not backed by cash is their pure given away.

This deduction seems to me to be so sure that it applies to the simplest laws of Mathematics, logic and economics, that I actually consider to be incontestable.

As far as the “normative provisions” are concerned, I am against all and any normative provisions for banking transactions. What is the state the banking business? The banking business is a business like any other: The state has no right to interfere. And why should the “public” cial business card” of the banks? One would have to go with the whole fame rights force every and every businessman to have a “public Business ID”, because you can get it from any business person just like a bank can suffer losses. Has the state such as the right or duty to protect the public from harm in the business it does, or why should the state have a duty have to do this more in banking transactions than in any other shops? |

No, I have always been in favour of banking freedom, and for complete and full banking freedom. – Is the issue of banknotes a simple banking business, well then, why a gallows next to this business – Every normative condition could only have the effect of

*

State for the bank's business and in particular for the notes with-responsible. Because what use is a "public business ID card", if it is not checked by state or police authorities and that such control of banking transactions always and under is, under all circumstances, an absurdity, that is clear to you, my dear Sir, probably completely known.

Finally, I find between you and me a most strange Agreement of views. They are against cash coverage in general, Actually, me too. I don't want the metal to be wasted in traffic.
I would therefore like government paper money without a metal backing.

But the difference between you and me is here again in that you want banknotes without metal backing, I, on the other hand, like thought of government paper money without backing. In my proposal comes the advantage flowing from the creation of paper money, namely the transfer of values from the possession of the community to the State, like any other tax, also of the whole in other forms again. In your proposal, however, the proceeds of this Tax, as I have repeatedly demonstrated and as actually 1693 flar ift, into the pockets of the "charitable bankers."

I therefore allow myself the method of uncovered banknotes perishable, whereas that of unbacked government paper money is correct to keep. |

So far, however, I am of the opinion that the mechanical convenience of transport requires a certain amount of paper money, while Mr. Augspurg wanted to get rid of all paper money wanted, however, as I now understand from my correspondence with him, like me, is inclined to leave this point open until experience this has been sufficiently established.

And so I "preach" again and again:

"Abolition of banknotes as a possible reduction all paper money."

Rostock, November 14, 1871.

8

Final epistle to Mr. Perrot in Rostock.

The controversy that has arisen between us must lead to a conclusion, it should not become an eternal theological disputation

fi h spin out, without any prospect of one convincing the other Even in economics there are beliefs, traditions,
Prejudices, fairy tales, fear of ghosts, witch trials, etc., from which it is very difficult to break free, and often Decades and centuries, even millennia, before the simple Rule of goods traffic allows their rights to be done. The so-called Usury plays a role in the Bible and in the history of all times, and large circles of statesmen and scholars can still today cannot be freed from the spell of usury in money or grain.
The fact that money is a commodity is still not fully understood.
credit in all civilized states has a greater economic Motor and value represents as all gold and silver and precious stones the world, is still condemned as a fantasy. That a Credit paper, a strip of paper, a signature the proceeds of mines as a medium of exchange is still a cause for deep concern and serious charges

Years and years will pass, and libraries will fill up before the theory meets the practical requirements and requirements lagging behind, and our mutual letters accelerate the recognition certainly not by a second. Let us therefore briefly summarize what follows from this polemic.

You stick to it, dear Girt; that Austria was bankrupt and is, and will go bankrupt. The perpetual national deficit and Kolb's ftatiftic gospel points your judgment in this direction.

Strange! The same Austrian newspaper that published this enunciation without any comment, namely the "Fortžschritt" No. 47 of November 19, 1871, prints page 378 the following words: "The economic
The situation of the Empire (Austria) is far more favourable than one would expect believe in the confusion of our internal politics" – Furthermore: "In
As a result, the deficit should be reduced to a minimum." –

117

Then the yielding of the currency agio is pointed out, "explainably, because the amount of circulating paper money for legitimate needs hardly suffices," ipsissima verba of the editorial office. "The prosperity of the
The rural population is uplifted." The mining works cannot do so much than the consumption demands." "The factories are in full operation= ity, and in most small businesses operations are brisk."
"Unemployed workers are unlikely to be found." "Increase of import and export." "The railways are not in a position to to transport goods quickly."

All this arises next door to your letters, dear Sir, in which They condemned Austria's bankruptcy with full conviction, based on Kolb's statistics, and forecast with unbending certainty. – Now
There is nothing left to add. This is grey theory next to green practice.

But we have also honestly and conscientiously Prussian and German country warned that no credit should be granted to Austria; but It seems that nothing has worked. The pure ringing capital over the black and yellow posts, and buys useless papers. I implore you and your like-minded people, to do everything possible to protect the reckless capital from the threatening To protect yourself from losses in these transactions; perhaps you have a Free edition of Kolb's Statistics in one million copies fhappy, and distribute it for instruction and warning to the deluded Buyers of Austrian papers. Use the stands and also the Pulpits, – – and give friendly information after year and day, whether the interest-earning capitalist is not over all this nonsense makes you funny.

You make the very rare admission in your country that people do not even understand their own economic affairs; and you must not take offense if I, from many years of experience and various studies, came to the conclusion that Austria's economic affairs are in your country, "in Reich," a rather terra incognita; that your press about Oefster Reich's finances are only according to political color, not according to the Ead-situation judges, – and that I hardly have a scribe, fay not I am able to quote one – sad but true – who large economic complex in its development and in its existence a proper assessment was given.

Only this explains why, after the invasion of the great Fritz in Silesia, after the Napoleonic Wars, after Metternich's fch closure system, after the Italian War and after the federal and brotherly friendly meetings 1866 this Austria all Economists were surprised by a new upswing, and that today despite the bankruptcy everywhere again this Austrian credit fufficed. One even allies oneself with this bankrupt Austria, and Berlin gives the signal in association with Austrian financiers of all kinds Economical – to found!

118

But let us leave this subject. Let us turn to paper. I make you, dear Sir, the following concession. Austria Money is just paper. We build our houses out of paper, we build railways – from paper; we build factories – from Paper; we set up steam engines – from paper; we produce Cloth, glass, linen, leather, wood, iron, etc. – made of paper. Since more than 20 years is our only tool for all production, for all freight traffic, for all trade – paper.

Should we not move into the houses? or the railway carriages and steamboats? or the cloth, linen and leather goods not invest? or the sugar and fuel, the bread and meat enjoy – because they were made using paper? Should this fact that overturns all theories and predictions, fightful, tangible, fcalable, enjoyable, not rather inviting about paper as money, as a means of exchange to maintain new surveys and to make new studies? fshould it not be apparent that the times of circulation of cash alone has long since disappeared, and that in addition to Steam and electricity no longer allow the circulation of metal coins can suffice? Should the disciples of science still have no idea that the face of the sovereign is on a round metal= piece has no more credit and value than the signature of a bank on a narrow strip of paper?

If one reads the writings and articles currently being written about banks and notes are brought to light in Germany, one arrives However, most of them agree that empty slogans are still are used and find approval, and by the way the denunciation, as all opposition would be merely self-interest, handled con amore. The banknotes are fraudulent institutions, the banknotes are robberies.

But new banks are being founded every day, and everywhere grades are requested, and all restrictive institutes are excluded from the business= crowded audience. b

You yourself, dear Sir, it seems to me, have already received the full Bar covering of the notes was thrown overboard as an absurdity; the thirds= cover is considered a stuffed wolves; – and you find – – arrived at unbacked government paper money! Cheers.

119

Allow me a short quote. You know that the Magyars initiated an inquiry into the banking question, in which fseveral inconsistencies= tes stuff came to my ears. One of the political spokesmen in Pest has just published an article that was published in Schönberger's Pester Börfenbe= The report was published in German. It states: "We are following the findings experiences and the banking history of Austria the most determined enemies an amalgamation of the banking system with any operation of the state finances."

Let us hold a survey in Austria, and if one thousandth of the voting population for the introduction of government paper money voted, – then dictate to me whatever penalty you like.

You are in contradiction with yourself, dear Sir, just like the most of your fellow thinkers about the banknotes by giving full and want complete banking freedom – and alongside that government paper money, and even plus unbacked government paper money! You feel very well that the Lord=

ft of metal money is not to be preserved, but now you want the State to mint paper. They themselves declare the banking business as a business like any other in which the state does not interfere has, but you make the state a general banker ex officio with unbacked paper money! R

In my humble opinion, the existence of such unbacked government paper money at the first commercial crisis to the general Bankruptcy. – Hopefully Prussia and Germany will remain spared this experiment, and it is superfluous to say a word about it lose. |

“Abolition of banknotes” – ift your slogan, to which I not confess, in the interest of the entire economic life and work of our days. On the contrary. The banknotes begin only their work and activity, after the state police, in previous judicious provision, manner of their issue and use patronized, stunted and left to fallow by the metal covering. The order and the cheque are only a surrogate of the Banknotes, like the Giro Account, are a substitute for them.

That is a huge difference between your view and mine= ung from the banknote and government paper money, – from metal covering, bank-like cover and non-cover, – of risk and business, of normative determination for a bank and police, of interest profit and public taxation etc.

120

These are fundamental differences which are not found in some epistles to conclude: Only as much or as little as you like, Sir, admit that in this discussion about banknotes – the practical business world of Europe, America, Asia and Australia not on your side; – only in the less or least cultivated In the virtuous states, in areas with uncertain legal status, metal money circulates. When Government paper money, and on top of that unbacked, is issued – – is easy – You will hardly agree with your statement: “Abolition of banknotes and the possible reduction of all paper money” – Proselytes do. Certainly not in Austria. But of course – we are following the Bankruptcy. May Mercury be with us.

Vienna, December 1871. AN

Banl question, socialism and liberalism.
By F. Perrot.

The socialists claim a conflict between capital and work and rely on facts from which they derive a proliferate, leading to an omnipotence of big capital. Big capital, Socialists believe that the tendency is to suppress all less powerful Citizens, and especially the poorest of them, the workers' classes to exploit. Big capital enriches itself without work and deprive the worker of the reward for his effort.

Modern economics flatly denies such a dichotomy between capital and labor and disputes the interpretation of the facts, which, in the eyes of the Socialists, demonstrate such a dichotomy.

So where is the truth?

All the arguments of our economists are not able to demonstrate away the so-called social question and if not to seek it in a "conflict between capital and labor" is, where should one find the root of the despite all this and all that existing? What else could be done? And that it is necessary, with every day necessary becomes more difficult to get to the root cause of the evil, if the entire modern culture is not to be in real danger, This is now becoming increasingly clear even to those who are more indifferent.

Let us first say it out loud: – yes, there is a conflict between capital and labor and this conflict has already become a huge gaping chasm.

Any denial of this fact by the modern economics is just doctrinaire phrase-mongering, which stamped "economics" "natural" slogans instead of independent, penetrating investigation. But – the undeniable conflict between Capital and labor of our time is not natural, it is a artificially created, and indeed through incredibly uneconomical-created modern state institutions.

122

We have a number of state institutions which systematically work towards the mobile big capital in unnaturally to prefer, in uneconomical to cumulate in a way that is dangerous to the state and to give him a position and tendency in the state, which socialism, as a kind of self-defense, is completely self-retardantly causes.

The
thoughtless imitation of the teachings of Adam Smith, which has become fashionable, with whose great truths modern economics has so far accepted its major errors without criticism.

And modern liberalism, which claims to be to be well informed about economic matters and to have the thread of "On:
clarification" of the masses of our people, – this sublime

Liberalism comes into a very peculiar light when one adapt his behavior to the latest economic phenomena and problems opposite more clearly into view.

If we are to name the state institutions from which we believe that they create an artificial dichotomy that does not actually exist.
create a gap between capital and labor, they are as follows.

First, the national debt. – In absolutely governed states, and these national debts are always a large, rightly seriously criticized Uebel. In the constitutional states there is a regular state institution! I am making this a special reproach because he was so concerned with his budget= right white.

Then comes the rotten tax system, which Big capital is certainly favored and the various state residents= classes are burdened very unequally to the point of blatant injustice and ruinous consequences for the state. – If the national debt and its causes
If not, this tax system would have been changed long ago. |

It will soon be held in its facility – as already the old Hansemann said – as well as in its lasting consequences immoral and demoralizing stock companies. – That this chalice has not been averted from us, the liberalizing phraseology of modern economics on the conscience. The earlier Conceffionswesen unquestionably linked misfortunes, were in effect

123

fufficiency a thousand times that currently legalized by "normative conditions"
and authorized freedom of fraud, whose enormous partial influence, if one consults the experience of other countries will, by no means a temporary one, but in the essence of the shares= society itself is founded, permanent and ever-increasing.
The joint-stock companies are legalized institutions for the public by a few.

And then – last but not least – we have a state institution of the type in question in the existing central banks.

We have devoted repeated discussions to the central banks. We had shown how recently two outstanding national = liberal Reichstag members, Messrs. v. Unruh and Augspurg, in notable works on that conception of the banking question, which we have been representing in the press for some time and in the public I try to convey consciousness.

Today we find reasons that are not often or emphatically enough to bring the matter to be dealt with again on the agenda. Mr. Aug. Eggers, merchant in Bremen, further circles through his Efforts on the coin issue are known, comes in the second volume of his "Economic Treatises" in a special work also on "the non-metal-covered ur and remarked about the same, among other things, the following:

"Adam Smith states in his Wealth of Nations Book II. Cap. VI. gives the following example: The circulating and for the sufficient amount of metal money in a country for circulation is one million pounds sterling. Some time later various banks and bankers one million pound notes to cover which they issued 200,000 pounds sterling of metal money The circulation of the land remains unchanged and the million pound banknotes in circulation have the same purchase-power, like the million pounds of metal money previously in circulation. 800,000 Pf. Sterl. metal money will be released and can be abroad as interest-free capital that benefits the country." This is how the great Adam Smith looks after the wealth of nations!

And that has been considered "economics" until now!

Does this recipe of the great Adam Smith not have desperate ancestors? possibility with that other famous one, according to which gold can be found on chemical ways by treating centaury with oxygen'

124

the oxygen combines with the cabbage to form sauerkraut and – "the thousand guilders will be free" (and can go abroad as interest-free capital that benefits the country?)

Mr. Aug. Eggers, the Bremen merchant, is outraged by the "National Economy" of Adam Smith and breaks down his quoted Suggestion in the exclamation: .

"Such a procedure is piracy!"

Shouldn't the great Adam Smith have thought fine that the nearest neighbor of the so comfortably "enriched" country If you want to have the cleverness to do it exactly the same way, and focus on the to "enrich" in exactly the same way? The result is then simple, that both countries, in addition to the original metal money, had one million paper money; and whether they will pay each other for the "freed" 800,000 pounds sterling will be extremely questionable, is even to negate positively.

The amount of money available in each of the two countries has therefore doubled and thus receives a long-term reduced purchasing power "It is also not the country," continues Mr Eggers, which I practiced this first on others and then on myself declining piracy enriched, but it first found the bankers who make a profit without working"

The recipe to enrich the nations by making colorful paper= prints and grants a few lucky people the privilege of using these papers chen as your own "money" – this famous recipe comes from as one can see, really by the famous Adam Smith and if up to today the alpha and omega of "liberal" economics.

For the central bank holders and their associates, however, this recipe is comfortable and effective, like hardly any "Dukatenmännchen", or a "Little donkey stretch yourself" can be fine. But that through the privileged colorful pieces of paper, called banknotes, the "wealth of nations" promoted – how is it possible that such a current belief could be?!

And with such excellent state institutions, such as these notes= banks, one now goes and searches diligently, laboriously and fundamentally about the causes of the socialist dangers that modern society faces threaten society!

What is most remarkable and downright astonishing is that e the behavior of the daily press.

125

It is saturated with the wisdom of all economic Teaching and vindicates the profession, in everything that the welfare of the German Empire, to teach our people, to preserve to guide one's interests.

And so one should at least give such a far-reaching,
This question, which affects all material existence so deeply, is addressed by the
The daily press has long discussed this issue with sustained and tireless zeal.

That highly educated liberal big press, which fih a fo er:
If one takes a previously held ethical standpoint, such a question should now has also long been the subject of the most comprehensive educational efforts and would have to accept views such as those now expressed by two of their most outstanding party members, Mr. v. Augspurg and v. Unruh darge= either fight them with all their might or admit that they in the most inexplicable way to the exercise of their publicistic duty was lacking in this matter.

The entire "liberal" party has an extraordinary under= to make up for the sin of abandonment if it does not want the socialist must grow relentlessly over her own head and over all of us.

One looks in vain for reasons which the previous behavior of this sublime liberalism and its major press in the banking and stock company question seem suitable to explain.

Or should Bishop von Ketteler in his famous Mainz speech is right when he says that: "today's liberalism closely linked to the financial powers who pay him well."

Unfortunately, Bishop Ketteler seems to be very right when he says: "The absolute rule of monetary gain is little= ft, liberalism has never fought against it." – And if this "liberalism= mus" does not pull himself together to behave completely differently and to realize that economic questions can never be considered without their natural context with the ethical ones, this sentence of the Bishop von Ketteler remains true: "The true son of the liberal-mus and its legacy is socialism."

Certainly, if "liberalism" is to defend itself or only tolerance of dangerous privileges of big capital degraded which, as Mr Augspurg says, merely "exploitation of the public kums", then socialism is only a consequence of this
"Liberalism" and will soon also be a fine heir.

We conclude with the following warning from Mr. Eggers, in which he speaks bluntly about the banknote privilege:

126

"The economic force, society, the state
must suffer from privileges which a certain
Class without work a profit of (in Germany annually)
8 – 10 million thalers. A serious abuse

can only have a paralyzing and corrupting effect. Privileges provide the means to protect themselves in their possession There are already signs that the cancer is spreading.

Rostock, October 25, 1871.

Attachment.

Heber the banking system.

Memorandum of the Permanent Committee of the German trading day.

March 1869.

Article 4 of the Constitution of the North German Confederation provides the legal regulation of the banking sector is the competence of the federal authorities been transferred.

| In order to answer the question in what way this
In order to implement the provisions of the Federal Constitution, it is necessary first of all to become clear about the way in which the state to intervene in the banking sector. Banking business has been left to the capital compared to roughly the same functions as the commodity business has for the individual Commodities. The capital is accumulated, then distributed by place and Time is distributed. On the whole, banking is as free as any part of the trade. Everyone is free to exchange to discount, to lombard goods, to accept deposits, to place orders to take over dommiFFionary responsibility in financial matters. Only the following three specific points in respect of which state intervention in the free activity of traffic.

1. In banking more than in any other business

The need is felt to invest larger capitals for the benefit of The most popular form in which larger

Capitals are thrown together for a specific purpose, the Form of joint-stock company. With the exception of a few territories, in Germany the establishment of a stock company to a state Conceffion. Experience shows that at least in some States and especially the largest among them, Prussia, concessions for banking companies with major difficulties were, and as far as note banks are concerned, are still issued today than for other purposes. A legal regulation of the banking sector will therefore have to answer the question:

Under what conditions do actions=enterprises for
For the purposes of operating the banking business

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the audience.

130

This question must be ruled out from the outset. The legislative
A draft law has already been submitted to the Federal Powers, which will regulate the Act:
Enterprises are exempted from the necessity of a concession. In
In connection with this legislation, the banking sector will also be be freed from the constraints now upon him, and it will be The entry into force of the law provides full banking freedom with the exception of the freedom from paperwork to be discussed must be established.

2. The state can use private capital for the benefit of
When the state does this, it is committing no interference with the freedom of the bank, rather he makes himself in his Property as a property subject, as a treasury only use of the freedom it grants to every citizen.
Freedom of economic activity is only indirectly affected by this that the competition of the state through factual natural conditions
niffe always has a very powerful influence on individual companies
Almost the state alone is actually able to create a widely ramified
To create a bank with numerous branches.
It is also mentioned that the state is able to to grant privileges to the bank operated or benefited by him, which are not available to private companies, in particular to Stamp exemption for the securities issued by it and that postage free.

The second question, which is relevant for the legislative treatment of the Bank=
The essence that comes into consideration is therefore the following:

Should the state be allowed to establish a activity to compete with private industry, –
In particular, the bank he established should establish branches and should they be granted special privileges?

3. The Institute of Banknotes. Banknotes have a dual character: firstly They can be understood as documents, certificates of commitment of the issuing institution or individual. But if they have no other had properties other than those of a document, the issuance of the same just as little can be tied to legal restrictions as the issue of bills of exchange or promissory notes. The banknotes have but a second peculiarity, they represent the place of cash, and in such a way that in the popular consciousness the difference between Banknotes and government paper money have almost completely disappeared. Under the
The effects of this dual status of banknotes have been felt in almost all countries
The practice has developed that without special state approval or at least not allowed without observing certain legal restrictions is to issue banknotes. Where a state bank exists, it also the right to issue notes everywhere.

~

The legislative question, which is to be posed as the third, is hence:

Should there be, in addition to the State Bank, where such a bank exists, the possibility Is there any possibility that private banknotes will be issued? and if the answer is yes:

Under what conditions and restrictions should this be permitted should it always require a special state permit for the individual case? Or should the authorization be be permitted, who submits to the regulations which the State has established this once and for all?

The state has the right not only to regulate the emission of banknotes, but it can also, where it issues them, subject to certain conditions, namely the condition that the Issuers are granted certain general powers and authorizations which are otherwise available to every citizen. In this sense The acceptance of interest-bearing deposits is particularly permitted for note banks been restricted in many ways; however, other restrictions could also be think, for example, that note banks waive the right would have to issue long bills of exchange through reverse discounting, or capital investm to make effects.

We therefore have to deal with two questions below: with the question of centralization of the banking system and with the question of, Banking freedom. The answers to both questions are by no means Hand. It is quite conceivable that in a country with a expanded Central Bank nevertheless has a very extensive freedom of paper, and on the other hand, it is just as conceivable that in a country without Central bank, also with decentralized banking, banking freedom, i.e. the freedom to issue notes is a very stunted one; that either the issue of banknotes is completely prohibited, or at least concessions and very difficult conditions are faced.

The question of whether it is advisable to live in a country with a high to establish a state-recognized central bank for economic transactions, has brought an extraordinarily rich and exhaustive literature into the It is impossible to summarize all the reasons for and against Form here; the unbiased observer will see this as The result is that neither in centralisation nor in decentralisation lifation the only and exclusive salvation can be found. The

Unbiased judges will admit that even the system which he believes he must reject from the standpoint of theory, with prudent Handling can prove itself, and that the question of whether centralization, whether decentralization, not in a once and for all valid way can be distinguished, that rather on the special circumstances, on place and time, considerable consideration must be given.

In the German economic area the situation has developed as follows: that in the largest and most important part, namely in Prussia, a central bank exists and that its activities within the has received great recognition from the entire business community. Not only the industry and the large trade in goods see in the Prussian Main bank is a secure support, rather even among the private bankers The verdict was widespread, that the Prussian Main Bank had creates far more benefit than they get from possible competition and a large part of the bankers would be in the extinction the activity of the Prussian Main Bank a decisive disadvantage The advantages which are praised by the Prussian Main Bank, are essentially the following: It creates that part of the circulation= means of transport in paper form required, in a form available to the audiences; their scores enjoy a greater circulation area and better trust than the others in Germany circulating means of payment. The wide ramifications of its branches allow with little effort and little cost, money, payments and collections to mediate at very remote points. The Prussian main gains an overview of the situation of the money market at all individual points of the state, is therefore preferably able to provide the appropriate The amount of the respective discount rate must be determined; in times of a very local increased need for money, it is able to influence the other financial powers based there to support significantly. In times of a general assertive However, it can satisfy the need for money by increasing the discount of a To prevent a crisis, or at least to mitigate it significantly. A purely Theoretical consideration will lead to the conclusion that in the course of the time and with sufficiently strengthened private banking activity all these Advantages can be achieved even without a central bank. However, the question arises whether the present moment is the appropriate to bring about such a transition. This question must be decided be denied. The private banking activity is in the greater part Germany is extremely poorly developed; not even close to the In some cases, such as in England, there are pure deposit banks. The establishment of private banks with note issuance has been

Prussian legislation and administrative practice always find it very brittle. It is due to this circumstance that in Prussia the development of the banking system has lagged behind. The more lavishly issued – Admittedly, in some small states the banking system has developed; concessions for note banks have been granted there very readily, but these development cannot be described as healthy. It does not rest on the necessary basis for a lively developed traffic, rather the most of those note banks were built with the obvious intention to derive the greater part of their business profit from those notes – emissions that they emit into a foreign economic area. In their quest to expand their note issuance as much as possible, many of those banks closed their deposit transactions in a damaging way which was neglected. The consequences of the political disunity in Germany have, as in many branches of economic activity, also in banking business; it is now necessary to deal with the consequences of that in order to eliminate Germany into a unified economic area also in terms of banking. It does not seem opportune, especially in a time when we are about to bring about a profound change in the principle at such moments – on which the banking business has been conducted so far; it will rather be the task to gain new experiences about banking after the political obstacles have been removed, which have so far stood in the way of any development of this business. Two opposing errors, the restriction of private banking by the state in Prussia and the promotion of the paper bank system of the state in many smaller states have caused damage to our economic conditions. The task now is to eliminate these errors under the rule of a uniform and purposeful, moderately more liberal banking policy to examine the consequences of the state banking, as it has existed so far in Prussia, on an enlarged territory, on that of the North German Confederation. These motives recommend the following thesis:

1. Given the current economic conditions in Germany is one with state recognition an equipped Central Bank is now indispensable, since in consequence of the mistakes of the previous banking policy that depository banking neither in Prussia nor in the smaller German states are strongly developed.

| As already emphasized, from now on the Prussian state will not however, the North German Confederation should rather form a unified economic factorate for banking activities. This necessarily follows

Necessity that the privilege of the Prussian main bank (and) be given process may no longer be renewed, but that this institute is replaced must be replaced by a solution based on essentially the same principles Main bank of the North German Confederation. It will have the task of To establish branches in all economically outstanding places of the North German Confederation, while the establishment of branches outside which must be denied to her for the same reasons for which the Prussian House of Representatives in 1865 the establishment of branches outside Prussia. This main bank will issue federal banknotes which in private traffic also do not have a compulsory course as the notes of the Prussian Main Bank had.

In contrast, the federal government will undertake to participate in all federal cash registers to accept the notes of their bank in lieu of payment. The state The treasury of the individual states will have no reason to reject the acceptance to refuse such notes in lieu of payment. Your obligation to accept to be legally established, there is a reason for doing so at least as long as a large part of the federal funds find their way out of the public coffers first in the cafes of the individual states and only by way of of the matricular contributions for the federal government. The reasons against a Compulsory courses towards the private public have been discussed so often, that a recapitulation of the same can be omitted at this point. The following thesis is therefore recommended:

2. Since an extension of the privilege of the Prussians—fchische Hauptbank after its extinction as a result of the Article 4 of the Constitution of the North German Confederation and—ftattigt, so from 1 January 1872 a main bank of the North German Confederation, in Essentially with the same tasks and the same location—organization, as the Prussian Main Bank had previously had.
The same shall in particular be empowered to
to establish branches in areas of the North German Confederation, and their notes are to be found in all the caffes of North Germany—

Federal Government will be accepted as payment.
The Prussian Main Bank has the stamp exemption for its An= directives, as well as in the postage exemption – privileges that have not yet been fully are eliminated, – for their letters and money transfers the possibility possess the ability to transport money from place to place without any expense
This privilege has the activity of private bankers obviously very disadvantaged, and it is desirable for the future of to take the same distance. Any change of location of a certain

135

The transfer of money is solely in the interest of its recipient, and fpeaks therefore to the principles of justice, the costs of this manifesto pulation alone. The following thesis is therefore recommended:

3. On the other hand, it is not desirable to give the main bank of the North German Confederation the privileges of stamps—freedom and postage freedom, like the Prussian main—bank has owned or possesses it. The the possibility brought about by such privileges, money to transport free of charge, makes it difficult for private banking activity the possibility of competition.

For the Preußische Hauptbank, as for the predominantly large Number of German note banks, the principle that they are for one-third of the notes issued by it are covered by cash It seemed to have become a dogma among governments to be that such a type of covering is on the one hand indispensable, on the other hand= fidely, however, it is also sufficient. This prejudice must be confstate that not even once was a serious attempt made It has been attempted to prove theoretically that such a type of coverage fshould be recommended. Nor has practice provided any indications as to which to recommend this coverage standard. Rather, fstrict proof must be provided that in the event of a strong demand on the bank's cash reserves this principle will inevitably fail Suppose that the cash holdings of the Prussian Bank 10 million thalers, but their banknote issue was 120 million thalers and that you now only have a ten-thaler note for Gin- solution would be presented, the bank would have the alternative of either to violate the statutory provision of one-third coverage, by redeeming the note or entering into a state of insolvency, by postponing redemption until it is exchanged for notes 34 thalers in silver. It also offers the third coverage does not provide the slightest protection against excessive emissions, since it is in the power of a bank to issue any amount for notes to acquire silver, provided that it is willing to pay any price; Rather, security against excessive note issuance is only to be found in the fact that the amount of uncovered notes is contingent. Covered notes are harmless in any amount, they are nothing but an easily transportable instruction on a bank vault In addition to these covered notes, there is also a a certain amount of uncovered notes to be determined according to the circumstances completely safe. Traffic in every economically developed

136

Country always has a certain amount of paper currency. Experience has shown that at any time a note emission of about 60 million thalers in Prussia before 1866 fully employed This sum of 60 million thalers will be Expansion of the area in which the main bank has to operate in order to a corresponding sum, i.e. to about 80 million thalers, and an uncovered note issue of this amount is therefore quite harmless; even the strongest rush on the cash treasure the legally regulated relationship can never be shaken, because exactly by the same amount by which the cash treasure is reduced, At the same time, the note issue is reduced, and the statutory provision . tft is practically always feasible, as soon as the amount of uncovered notes is not too high, even with the complete exhaustion of the Baar= fave of the Bank would not have more notes in circulation than the Traffic cannot do without. Such a quota system will but prevented the danger that in times of crisis the paper issuance is increased to the immeasurable extent. In times of traffic congestion the proliferation of paper means of payment brings an apparent relief which, however, actually only exposes the hidden, creeping evil. The increase in paper issuance makes the settlement postponed such transactions which must be completed if the crisis should be shared. In the excessive issue of uncovered Notes, namely those issued by a state-recognized bank, There is a self-deception of the business public about the extent of the means at its disposal, and it will thus Danger of devaluation of the grades, which the forced course on the foot. The result of these considerations we summarize in the following thesis:

4. The principle of third coverage for the issue of notes has never had a sufficient theoretical justification found, nor is it proven by experience. Much more would the same demonstrably be the case at the moment of strong demand for the bank's cash reserves.

A security against excessive note issuance the Central Bank can only be found in that the sum of uncovered banknote issuance continues to be limited.

As already pointed out, neither the principle of the Central bank, nor in that of decentralization which once and for all theoretically Correct ones can be recognized. The possibility is not excluded that after a not too large number of years the general opinion of the business public with just such energy against the continued existence of a state bank, as is undeniable at the present moment advocates the preservation of a fold. The state is therefore not wise to rely on a long series of years to tie their hands, rather the privilege is only for a short If, after the expiry of this period, public opinion should not have changed, nothing stands in the way of the privilege for to extend a new deadline, and by shortening this Privilege does not cause damage; however, if under the Influence of newly collected experiences and deeper theoretical Discussions then turned public opinion against the extension this privilege, the state is given free rein to The following thesis is based on these considerations:

137 5

5. In the great change that has taken place in the views on the freedom of banking is taking place and is expected to be will happen in the near future, if desired—

worth limiting the privilege of the Central Bank to only one short period of time (about 12 years).

One of the most serious evils that has hampered the development of banking in Germany is the great, one may say excessive Emission of government paper money. That such paper means of payment are not advisable, is subject to the current standpoint of public opinion is no longer in doubt. In the expression There is an internal contradiction in "paper money". Money is only made of precious metals. Metal can be produced, only documents can be produced from paper. paper money that can be redeemed at any time and is not subject to a fixed exchange rate is essentially nothing more than a banknote whose issuer the state. The state treasury, however, is for the operation of banking transactions not appointed; where the State considers it appropriate to appoint the Bank. To conduct business, he has set up his own institute in the form of a Whereas government paper money is even If a compulsory course is imposed or its redemption is refused, one finds oneself left on the downward slope to a devalued currency. The strong Issuance of government paper money in today's Germany is partly a consequence of our state disunity, in which the small states to the principle of fiscality, but partly also a consequence of our silver currency, which facilitates the making of larger payments in precious metal to a tedious, risky and time-consuming doing business. Both evils are coming to an end.

133

There can be no doubt that in the not too distant future Time Germany will have the gold or at least the dual currency and then such payments that are today made by state Paper money can easily be converted into gold, so that but the fiscality of the individual states will no longer have the power to confuse the circulation of means of payment in Germany, this is guaranteed by the North German Federal Constitution. It is advisable to use the gradual withdrawal of state paper money to such an extent go so that it is completed at the same moment when the Privilege of the newly founded Bundesbank expires. Hereby green The following thesis emerges:

6. The period within which this privilege is valid, if to use it following the introduction of the Gold currency, all from the states of the North—to collect paper money issued by the German Confederation.

The issuance of so-called government paper money is suitable to distinguish the difference between money and value—papers and a healthy development of the banking sector insurmountable difficulties in the to put away.

That a constitutional state will hold acquired rights sacred requires a more detailed explanation is not required. The concessions and privileges to Note banks, which have once been issued, must therefore be maintained become, however exorbitant some of them may be, especially in relation to the period for which they appear (up to 90 years).

but it is the responsibility of the state to ensure that every bank the obligations she has assumed with equally painful conscience responsibility, how their rights are respected and maintained.

A note bank has, above all, the obligation to check every note presented to it immediately redeemable for cash. It may not be limited by the amount of sum presented, nor by the mechanical difficulty of determining the same at a larger demand to pay out immediately, let yourself be held back, their To fulfill obligations on time. Failure to fulfill a presented Note is actually the state of insolvency, and this must be the immediate opening of the bankruptcy, the immediate placement of the bank under judicial administration. There are common and strict provisions on this ions into life. This is the basis for the following thesis:

7. Granted banking privileges and concessions can be found: to respect knowledgeably, but a strict procedure against such banks which have not fulfilled their obligations, in particular also in relation to the redemption of presented notes not fulfill, to prescribe.

139

There can be no doubt that some of the smaller German states licensed note banks to operate in in a way that is not consistent with sound business management The difficulty of managing such a bank The reason for the audience to control the There was no possibility to sell the notes it issued that were surplus to circulation to present it promptly. This is the basis for the phenomenon that a A large part of these notes in areas that are far from the bank's headquarters are far away, circulate with Damno. The North German Main Bank will have to make it their task to ensure that in each of the places where a Private Note Bank, to establish a branch in order to use the same to enable the presentation of the notes. That a private bank forbids that their notes be accepted at the main bank and so makes it difficult or impossible to present their grades, is an irregular moderate state of affairs that must be countered. In German Notes issued by the country may only be sold in Germany at full Values or not circulating at all. The Bank of the North German Confederation must therefore adhere to the principle of all Pri issued in Germany VAT receipts as payment, as long as they are held by the issuing Place can be redeemed for the full amount, while non-return payment of the amount the legal consequences of bankruptcy and thus the closure of the operation of this bank. This idea is expressed in the following thesis:

8. The main bank's task will be to reduce

a regular exchange of notes the business—
to put the other note banks to the test.

We are now faced with the question of whether, in addition to the main bank and in addition to the previously licensed note banks, newly established banks should be given permission to issue notes. This question seems must be answered in the affirmative for two reasons. Firstly, in Germany there is an almost universally prevailing idea that an extensive banking operations can only be profitable if the bank has the authority niß the issue of paper. Whether this idea is right or wrong fit must therefore be respected to a certain degree because their violation will hinder the development of the banking system Secondly, the federal government wants and should retain the right reserved, at a later date, from the principle of centralized, to that of decentralized banking activity. The transition from one system to the other would be completely instantaneous, if the public did not have the opportunity to attend the Circu= lation of private notes. As soon as security prevails, that non-redemption of presented notes will lead to immediate closure of the Bank will lead to the circulation of private notes with significant There are no risks associated with this. The frequently emphasized difficulty that the Circulating a large number of different pieces of paper confusion in the To bring it into circulation could thereby prevent all private notes in one and the same printing house, on the same paper, be produced with the same pressure and in the same format, so that the issuing bank only has to indicate the place, company and signature= The authority to issue slips of paper must of course not be restricted= loose. So far, the principle applies in almost all German states that this power can only be acquired through a concession. It is to raise the question of whether this principle should be maintained or whether, instead of concessions, certain normative conditions should be established by law ments should be set in such a way that, while maintaining the same the emission of notes is generally permitted. We believe for the the latter path and we have to express ourselves. The same principles, according to which govern administrative practice in granting concessions, can be cast into the form of legal provisions. It However, the abolition of the concession obligation would make it possible omitted to examine the prudence and solidity of the founders and to examine the factual question whether the establishment of a Bank has a need. However, these two deficiencies are The solidity of the entrepreneurs can only be examined at the moment of concession granting, while the solidity of the ongoing business operations is subject to ongoing Control. The question of whether there is an actual need for the Establishment of a new bank is usually carried out with answer with complete certainty whether the foundation of the Bank's required registered capital is subscribed and therefore in circulation is available for the designated purpose. A normative condition, which stipulated that a paper bank could not be put into operation until the subscribed share capital is fully paid would therefore fully suffice for the purpose. Against the obligation to grant concessions in relation to banking operations, the same circumstances apply as against the obligation to grant concessions in other branches of the economy. Activity has been discussed many times and recently on the occasion when The question was whether it was necessary to establish Actien-Gefell:

140

141

liability of a concession requires fol. A more detailed discussion of the wish= valuable content of these normative conditions would only then be expedient fshould be if an agreement is reached on the principles developed so far= One principle seems to be in the foreground must be made, namely that the coupon of the private notes is a not too small. Payment by paper means should only be occur if the one using precious metal presents too great difficulties. Considering that after the introduction of the gold standard, cash in appointments of about 10 thalers, it is recommended to set the smallest denomination of banknotes at 25 thalers. In Regarding the total amount of private notes to be issued, some Pages a quota of the unsecured banknote circulation, also the Pri= vatbanken, has been suggested. Such a measure would but have the consequence that when this total is reached, new Private note banks cannot be established at all. It would This would result in a deep breach in the principle of banking freedom. A satisfactory solution could perhaps be found in the way that the total amount of banknotes in circulation of each bank, both covered and unsecured, on an aliquot part of their share capital, about 1/3, contingent; it is assumed that only such banks are Issuance of notes at all permitted, which are marked with a folently fully subscribed stock capital step before the audience, work for about a year without issuing music and during this time by regularly publishing their status after a pre-determined form that they exclude their founding capital in genuine banking transactions, i.e. in exchange and Lombard transactions, work and have not suffered any loss. On Based on all these considerations, the final thesis recommended is following: | 9. The establishment of new notes: Banten does not tft to Con= ceffions, but only to the pause of normative conditions.

These normative conditions include, among other things, the nimum of the coupon and to determine that the note issue an aliquot part of the stock-

Capitals does not exceed.

— —^e —

142

Motives for the draft law on the issue of banknotes

of March 27, 1870.

According to Article 4. No. 4. of the Constitution of the North German Confederation Federal legislation is subject to the general provisions on the banking sector.

The issuance of these general provisions may be extended to the current year cannot be expected. It would be necessary to establish the fame primarily the regulation of the authority to issue notes in be considered. For the determinations to be made in this regard

The need for payment in banknotes is tenform is of crucial importance. Now, as is well known, the finally valid silver currency because of the relation to the value

The large weight of this coin metal created a large demand for

Means of payment in paper money[≠] or banknote form, which is not in would be present if a legal sufficiency of gold coins. It follows from this that the designated

The question of need will therefore be different, depending on the taken regulation of the coinage the sole silver currency

retained, or to introduce gold coins as legal tender[≠] means. Just as the designated

The question of need also concerns the extremely important legal determination of the lowest permissible banknote apoint with the current coin system in inseparable connection.

According to this, a federal legal determination of the general Provisions on banking before the regulation of the coin system can only be justified if one of the latter was a very distant prospect.

This is not the case. Rather, the Burdesrath believed the preparations for a monetary order no longer last longer[≠]

to be allowed to postpone and therefore initially decided, for the purpose of the investig ment of the conditions which govern the organization of the coinage in

The question of launching an inquiry may arise. The execution of this

A decision is expected to be made in the course of this year. A specific

The date for the legal regulation of the coinage can be determined

However, it is not yet clear, only the order of the coinage is but with such certainty for a not-so-distant future in sight to assume that it would be unjustified to now introduce the general

To issue regulations on banking and thereby at the same time to 143

the inevitable revision of the coinage issue
provisions to create new difficulties.

The course of the matter is thus so far predetermined that the regulation of the coin question, and thus also the banking question, at the earliest can be expected in the course of the year 1871.

The factual difficulties which persist even after the completion of the coin issue is contrary to the federal legal regulation of the banking system, are unmistakable. They lie partly in the matter itself, partly in the structure which the banking system in the area of the North German Confederation has gradually been preserved over the last two decades.

Federal law regulating the authority to issue banknotes is thereby
It is extremely difficult that this power is granted to the existing banks on Partly very long periods of time are irrevocably granted. The difficulty a uniform order based on uniform principles grows with the extent of the con= acquired over a longer period of time.
cessions at the time of the establishment of the general provisions on the banking sector. There are indications that the
The spirit of speculation has increased more than it has since 1857.
sen, to begin to turn to the establishment of banknote-issuing banks, and It thus raises the danger that the already significant difficulties abilities until such time as a federal legal regulation of the banking system will increase considerably.

In view of the fact that there is still some time to go before this regulation
Time will pass, the federal legislature is therefore faced with the urgent
The task of taking precautions to prevent the feared increase the difficulties caused by the creation of new and expansion of existing Grade privileges are prevented. In other words, the task is which, by legal provision, the existing powers in the federal territory= niffe for the issue of banknotes until the general federal legal provisions on banking at their current to limit the stock.

This draft law seeks to achieve this main purpose by ensure that, until the adoption of those general provisions, he Acquisition of the authority to issue banknotes by newly appointed and the extension of this authority for existing banks in addition to the approval of the state government depends on a federal law
At the same time, he wants to give the future federal banking legislation the Smooth the way by extending existing note privileges upon its statutory expiry or upon its termination only subject to termination with one year's notice.

The entirely interim character of the law finds its concise expression in the provision of § 6, according to which the law was only valid until July 1, 1872.

On the currently existing powers to issue banknotes the following could be determined.

The Prussian Bank is authorized to issue notes according to its needs traffic; however, it must be in accordance with the provisions of the banking regulations of 5 October 1846 (Prussian Law Collection p. 435) and the Law of 7 May 1856 (Collection of Laws p. 342) except for the other transactions necessary cash funds and securities of the circulating. At least one third of the amount in question is replaced by cash or Silver bars, otherwise by discounted bills of exchange, in place of which to the amount of $\frac{1}{2}$ million government securities and Lombard claims can be covered.

In fact, the bank's management has so far insisted that the cash treasure in their hands represents a significantly larger part of their banknote circulation.

Of the notes, 10 million Thaler may be issued in Apoints of 10 Thlrn. are issued. Furthermore, the minimum Apoints 20 thalers.

The banknote privilege of the Prussian Bank offers the legislature The Federal Government therefore had no difficulties because on 1 January 1871 can be terminated, so that it can be ensured that the order of the Banking system through federal law a revision of the banking regulations occurs.

The nine private note banks in the old provinces of Prussia are authorized to issue notes of one million thalers each. The concession the same is usually only granted for 10 years and in addition in its Duration of the unchanged continuation of the banking regulations of 7 October 1846, so that their statutes are simultaneously with the banking regulations can be subject to revision.

In the newly acquired provinces of Prussia there are three principalities: VAT bank in Frankfurt, Hanover and Homburg, which led to a Notes=Issue of respectively 30 million guilders, 4 million Thalers and 1 million guilders, a total of 21,714,285 Thalers are authorized. The banknote privilege runs at the Frankfurt Bank until 1879, at the Hannoversche and the Homburgische until 1906.

There are five banknote-issuing banks in the Kingdom of Saxony: the Leipzig Bank, the Saxon Bank in Dresden, the Bautzen Bank, the Chemnitzer Stadtbank and the Leipziger Caffen=Verein.

The authority of the Leipzig Bank to issue banknotes is not limited to a specific amount, but if by statute addendum of December 5, 1863, stipulates that the circulating Banknotes and bank notes and which, without prior notice, any time or after a notice period of less than three months cash deposits up to a total amount of 6 million thalers for half, but the amount exceeding 6 million thalers at two Thirds by coined or uncoined silver, the rest by Bills of exchange and discounted orders must be covered. The notes are in Thaler currency and are in Apoints of 10 Thalers and above The bank's privilege lasts until 1879, but is reserved for the granting of concessions granted to the Bank Privileges and legal exemptions according to the occasion of time and circumstances to increase, decrease or completely abolish.

145

The issuing of banknotes is also the authority of the Saxon Bank. Dresden is not limited in the total amount of notes to be issued, However, the value of the banknotes in circulation, as well as which may be terminated at any time without prior notice or before the expiry of three months repayable deposits always one third in cash or silver bars; one sixth can be represented by Lombard= claims, the rest must be paid by money or bank bills of exchange, which have a maximum of three months to run, be covered. The notes= Apoints are denominated in 10–500 thalers. The bank's privilege runs until 1910, but the bank is in the process of extending its privilege to Obligation to withdraw from July 18, 1890, as the date by which their older privilege ceases, any federal to subject the banking issue to legal regulation without prejudice.

The Landftändifche Bank of Bautzen has the authority to issue one million Thaler notes to be issued.

The Chemnitzer Stadtbank is authorized to convert credit notes into Apoints to 1 Thaler, up to a total amount of 300,000 Thalers Their privilege runs until March 1874.

The Leipzig Cassette Society is entitled until 1892 to publish music in Total amounts of 1,000,000 thalers to be issued, but only in Apoints of 100 thalers and more.

In Mecklenburg–Schwerin, the Bank of Rostock owns the authority to issue $1\frac{1}{4}$ million thaler banknotes. About the There is no information about the duration of the privilege.

In the Grand Duchy of Saxony, the Weimar Bank has the authority power to issue banknotes in a, their paid-in share capital

(5 million thalers) equal total amount; their privilege runs until 1953
Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 10

146

4

In Oldenburg, the Oldenburgische Landesbank is authorized to issue 2 million thalers of state paper money in denominations of 10 and 5 thalers with the corresponding redemption obligation. Since the bank Paper money used to increase their operating funds, the same the character of banknotes guaranteed by the state. The founding contract runs until 1878.

In Braunschweig, the Braunschweigische Bank has the authority to issue banknotes in denominations of 10 thalers and above, in the total amount of 4,500,000 thalers. For cash redemption it always for 3Y million thalers of circulating notes the fourth part, above In addition, the third part of the surplus amount in circulation in the bank be advisable. In addition to these cash funds initially intended for redemption The entire amount of notes in circulation must always be in easy realizable currencies, i.e. those which can be settled within three months at the latest can be collected, or be available in cash at the bank. The privilege lasts until 1952.

In Saxe-Meiningen, the Mitteldeutsche Creditbank has Meiningen the authority to pay up to the full amount of the paid-in shares capitals banknotes in denominations of at least ten thalers, one third of which is paid in cash or gold or silver bars must be covered. The permissible amount of banknotes in circulation is now 5 million thalers. The privilege runs until 1956.

In Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the private bank of Gotha owns the Authority to issue banknotes in unlimited quantities; however the total amount of notes in circulation must not exceed the amount of discounted and purchased bills of exchange and must be up to the amount of the paid-in capital (1,400,000 thalers) to one third, above half covered by cash or gold or silver bars. The notes are denominated in Thaler currency, but the bank may also issue notes issued in other German national currencies. The mini- The maximum amount of the Apoints is 10 Thaler and it may not exceed half of the amount of the notes in circulation to this amount. The The bank's privilege runs until 1946.

In Anhalt, the Anhalt-Deffauische Landesbank has the authority to issue 1 million Thaler banknotes, of which $\frac{1}{2}$ million in banknotes of 1, 2 and 5 thalers, $\frac{1}{2}$ million in notes of 10 thalers. The The duration of the privilege is not determined.

In Schwarzburg-Sondershausen, the Thuringian Bank the authority to issue banknotes in a currency designated by it Share capital paid the same amount, of which $\frac{1}{4}$ was paid in cash, the 147

The rest must be covered by bills of exchange and easily realizable effects.
Minimum of Notenapoints: 20 Thaler. The capital is currently 2 million thalers and can only be granted with the approval of the state government
The duration of the privilege is not limited.

In Reuß j. L. the Geraer Bank has a unlimited authority to issue banknotes; however, the amount of the one third of the banknotes issued from the paid-in share capital, for all banknotes to be issued in addition to this shall be half the amount of the same be represented by cash funds. The notes may be 1, 5, 10, 50 and 100 thalers. The bank's privilege lasts until 1953.

In Schaumburg-Lippe, the Niedersächsische Bank has Bückeburg has an unlimited authority to issue of banknotes, with the proviso that for one third of the circulating Notes cash coverage available, the rest by good not more than three Monthly bills of exchange or good securities with a stock exchange price
The notes may be denominated in Thaler, Mark Banco, Louis d'or, South German, Austrian and Dutch currencies. The
The bank's privilege lasts until 1956.

There are two banknote issuing banks in Lübeck:

the Lübeck private bank with the authority to pay up to twice Amount of their deposited capital notes in Thaler currency in Apoints of not less than 10 thalers. A quarter of the circulating Notes must be backed by cash. The paid-in capital is 1 million.
Mark Courant, the permissible note issue is 800,000 Thaler; the Privilege runs until 1890;

the Lübeck Commerzbank with the authority to issue 800,000 thalers in banknotes denominated in thaler currency in Apoints of not less than 10 thalers, of which one third is cash cover
The privilege runs until 1906.

Finally, in Bremen, the Bremer Bank has the authority to Issue of banknotes up to the amount of the paid-in share capital and of the reserve fund, with $\frac{1}{4}$ cash coverage. The share capital amounts to 5 million thalers of gold and can only be increased with the approval of the Senate
The reserve fund will be made up of 31 December 1869 to 132,411 thalers of gold, the amount of the permissible note issue i.e. 5,132,410 thalers of gold. The notes are denominated in gold;
An issue of silver notes is permitted with the approval of the Senate. The minimum amount of the points is 5 thalers; only 10 Percent of the permissible banknote circulation may circulate in minimal Apoints.

The duration of the privilege is unlimited.

10*

148

Of the non-Prussian banks listed here, five are in not limited to the scope of their music edition, the remaining thirteen have the authority to e in the amount of 30,295,000 thalers.

Throughout the Federal Republic, the authority to issue notes is fix banks unlimited, from 25 further banks to a total of 61,000,000 thalers were allocated.

All 31 banks in the federal territory (apart from individual small institutes, whose banknote circulation also approximates could not be determined) had, according to the monthly reports of 21 January
d. J. in total u

212,508,400 thalers
notes in circulation of it,

the Prussian Bank 142,222,000 thalers.
the remaining banks . 70,286,400 " totaling 212,508,400 thalers.

In contrast, the stocks of cash and precious metals amounted to:
at the Prussian Bank . 78,333,000 thalers.
or 557% of banknotes in circulation,
at the other banks . 32,807,800 "
or 46.37% of banknotes in circulation,
at all bank bed teas . 111,140,800 "
or 52.99%, of banknotes in circulation.
The notes in circulation that are not backed by metal were: .
at the Prussian construction site . . 63,889,000 thalers.

at the other banks to 37,478,600 "
in total up to 101,367,600 thalers.

Per capita, the number of banknotes in circulation was in total a little more than 7 thalers and in uncovered banknotes 3.38 thalers.

To the total amount of circulation of artificially created payment instruments means is to be determined, the amount of unsecured notes in circulation the amount of government paper money in circulation must be added. The latter, according to the recent determination (p. 117, to 42,652,742 thalers or, after deduction of the above banknotes attributed Oldenburg paper money, to 40,652,742 thalers. Except the circulated 500,000 thalers of private paper money of the Leipzig=Dresden Railway company. The contributions total 142%, million thalers, per capita of the population 4.75 thalers.

149

To evaluate this result, the following information contribute.

At the Bank of France, according to the weekly report of February 17 of this year the banknote circulation on . ff . . . 1,418,520,400 Fred.

the Baarvorrath au. . 1,225,965,873 "
the unsecured banknote circulation therefore amounts to 192,554,527 Frchs.

or, the franc at 8.1 Sgr. calculated at 51,989,722 thalers.

Since there is no paper money in circulation in France, the total circulation of artificially created means of payment 1337 thalers on the head of the population.

For Great Britain, the banknote circulation of the English bank not covered by cash reserves and of banks in England and Wales") Scotland and Ireland on

15,412,300 pounds sterling

or . 102,748,667 thalers, also for the head of the district population at 3.53 thalers.

Compared with the conditions of money circulation in countries that undisturbed currency relations, the circulation of paper, by means of payment not covered by cash in the North German Confederation also reached a significant extent that the interim suspension in the Granting of new or extended grade privileges depending on the need cannot be subject to any concerns. At the same time, the relatively large volume of paper circulation, which is among the existing banking relationships have been reached, the urgent need evidently, the increase in the difficulties which the federal laws situation with a rational order of banking in the existing banking privileges.

The 88. 1. and 2. of the draft find their n

§. 1.

From the day this law comes into effect, the authority to issue banknotes only by a bank authorized, at the request of the parties Federal law enacted by the state government.

) For the private and joint-stock banks in England and Wales Information on their cash holdings is not available, so their entire banknote circulation calculated at 5,120,458 pounds sterling as uncovered.

150
e

Bapiergeid> Guifions of the States of the North German Confederation.
(Drawn by the Federal Chancellor's Office in August 1869.)

to settle, because this paper money of the Oldenburg

Landesbank to strengthen its operating funds via and therefore to be treated as equal to banknotes, it remains

| There are

No. Federal States issued

Thlr.

1. Prussia, in cash orders of 5 thalers each.

| 10,400,000 thalers, likewise 1 thaler, 7,850,000

| Thlr. a % 18,250,000 Thlr.

also in loan certificates, which withdrawn from the beginning of 1871

N jum baa are already redeemed

| find ... 2,228,000 Thlr. 20,478,000

2. Saxony te 12,000,000

3. Heffen.. . . 4,300,000 Fl. or 2,457,142

4. Mecklenburg= Schwerin T –

5. Saxony= Weimar, to Caffen=Instructions for 5 thlr.

| 240,000 en
 6. Mecklenburg-Strelitz, to Rentel-Caffenfchemnen 500,000
 7. Oldenburg, in rates of 10 thalers. 1,400,000 thalers.
 in the same way a 5 Thlr.. 600,000 Thlr.
 8. Braunschweig, in cash notes of the guaranteed 2,000,000 the state's heart. Loan institution in en 600,000
 Saxony-Meiningen . 600,000
 10 Sachsen= Altenburg, on cash vouchers of 10 Thlr.
 339,300 thalers and the like at 1 thaler 146 1 e 485.00
 11. Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. ; 600,000
 12. Anhalt, in cash notes of 1 thaler each, 950,000
 2 Schwarzburg= =Rudolfstadt A 200,000 one ee now 150,000
 Waldeck. 210,000
 16 Reuß c 130,000
 17. Reuss j. L. E ew ot oe a 320,000
 18. Schaumburg= type PEPE 372,000
 19. Lippe. : -
 20. Lübeck. -
 21. Bremen -
 22. Hamburg. 8 3 -
 Summa. | 42,652,742
 Of this, the paper money issue in the Grand Duchy takes place.
 oe with 2,000,000

also in government paper money issues the amount of 40, 652,742

151

§. 2.

If before the day of entry into force of this law the authority for the issue of banknotes with the restriction acquired, that the total amount of notes to be issued is a fixed or limited by the ratio to another sum sum may not exceed, the lifting of this restriction increase or increase of the amount on the day of the proclamation of this
 The total amount of notes to be issued permitted by law is only by a decree issued at the request of the supervised nl federal law.

§ 3.

If the duration of the period prior to the day of the entry into force of this Act acquired authority to issue banknotes to a specific time, it can only be extended beyond the expiration of this time by a federal decree issued at the request of the state government concerned law, unless the holder of the power to Note issue is legally obliged to prevent the withdrawal of this

Authority at the end of each calendar year after prior one-year notice of termination. 1

The F. 3., which provides for an extension of the grade privileges over beyond its end date only under the condition that the same can be terminated with a one-year period, will have practical significance only for some of the Prussian private banks in the old provinces, since the final term line of the other temporary banking privileges usually so far= It is clear that at the time of the adoption of the general provisions through the banking system will not expire.

April 8th

If the duration of a contract concluded before the day of the effective date of this The power to issue banknotes acquired under the Act by a communication from the State or a public authority to a termination bound to a specific date for a specific period be limited, such termination shall take effect at the earliest permissible Dates, by virtue of the present law, unless the

"Holders of the authority to issue banknotes are legally bound undertakes to terminate the contract with one year's notice for the expiry each calendar year.

The 8th of April actually hits the Prussian Bank, the only one whose privilege is subject to termination.

According to § 16 of the Banking Ordinance of 5 October 1846 and § 2 of the The law of 7 May 1856 is the state's

152

Prussian Bank until 31 December of this year the right to December 31, 1871 the repayment of the capital of the bank share= owner or the amendment of the banking regulations without the consent of the feeling of the most involved bank shareholders. has not made use of this right up to the date in question, fo the state can only exercise this power again after 10 years Since the future issuance of general federal laws provisions on banking, a corresponding Revision of the banking regulations must go hand in hand, so the $. 4. of the draft provision that a change will be made in the course of this year the aforementioned provisions of the banking regulations and the law of 7 May 1856, that the state according to the same only every ten years, the repayment of the capital of the Vankant shareholder or the amendment of the banking regulations without the consent to order the meeting of the most involved bank shareholders, henceforth at the end of each calendar year with one year's notice can be exercised.

Ä | 8. 5. |

The banknotes are considered to be government paper money, its issue to a banking institution to strengthen its operations medium is transmitted.

The 8th of May justifies this by considering that government paper money under the conditions specified in this paragraph, the banknotes guaranteed by the state are essentially identical.

During the third discussion of the draft law in the Reichstag (27th session of 24 March 1870) the above paragraphs a single modification in that as Alinea 2 to F. 1. the following Amendment by MP v. Sybel was adopted:

If a bank, up to the date of entry into force of this law actually make no use of their authority to issue notes has done so, it can only do so in the future if it has authorization by a federal law.

The reason why the law was given retroactive effect, was merely the intention to bring into being a princely the new banking institution in Greiz, which had already been conceived by the Reussian gov to prevent. ; : |

4

155

Memorandum of the Directors of the Braunschweig Bank concerning joint banknote issue by private banks.

The regulation provided for in the Constitution of the North German Confederation of the banking sector has become a burning issue, which clearly calls for a speedy solution.

However, there still seem to be differences of opinion about what should happen to diverge widely; but it is already clear that that public opinion is generally inclined to favour the Prussian, or a central bank to be formed from this North German Confederation against the banknote-issuing private banks party and to influence legislation in this sense.

Existing concessions will have to be formally respected; in= There is a danger that the legislation of the North German Confederation in favour of a central institute, provisions which are for the Private banks will actually be adversely affected.

In order to counteract this danger, it is necessary that the pending question initially interested banks from their previous passivity step out, through appropriate joint steps, the chaos of desires

fhments and proposals and a solution that is in line with the interests of the banks themselves a solution that really serves both the economy and public transport help lead.

Among the reasons which the public is against diversity our banknote system is distrust in the solvency of the Banks are probably no longer countable. While previously there were existed, its groundlessness through a series of years is rich in political and financial crises, fully presented. Not even a of the German Zettelbanken has emerged from these tests with disgrace
There are two very well-founded complaints about this:

The district in which the majority of the (especially non-Prussian fch) private banknotes circulate at par value, is so narrow that these notes in reality have their purpose of facilitating monetary transactions easier, can only fulfill very imperfectly; – and
The notes are sorted by place of issue, size of sections and

Issue date so different that only the experienced cashier, but not the ordinary businessman can know all of them so well that to be on the safe side against counterfeits and amortized notes.

The elimination of these two evils is the last resort
Everything that happens in the field of banking legislation should be addressed and What the banks themselves offer must also be addressed if 154

if a useful, real independence is further
want to secure. |

It is a matter of private banks issuing their notes accept each other in payment at full nominal value and redeem them at a common central point, and give them a uniform external form.

Following the example of the one in Scotland and Switzerland, existing clearing system, it has been suggested many times that banks should Redeem or exchange notes at a central office in Berlin
Only this system can be used in this way for our Germans circumstances are not considered suitable. The Scottish banks find on an area of about 1460, the Swiss on a fuch of about 700 [miles with fairly similar industries of the population, and it is therefore obvious that their notes generally circulate fairly evenly throughout the country and go to the central office for exchange. The banks of the North:

German Confederation, on the other hand, is spread over an area of approx. 7500 miles with a population which in the individual areas cultivated the most diverse branches of industry and therefore one, even only in relation to the emission level, approximately uniform circulation of the different grades in the federal territory. The exchange of A central office is therefore always one with considerable, regularly recurring costs, more or less artificial and therefore do not fulfill their actual purpose. The banks would despite all conventions, the notes of others, especially those far away Banks in many cases do not accept payment at par because it takes a long time= It will take years of practice before you get used to it, for example in Königsberg Weimar, or in Pofen Meiningen banknotes as change= moderate payment, so that the banks do not reissue such notes. spend, but could only send them to Berlin for exchange The experiences made with the redemption of notes in Leipzig are likely to speak equally against such a system.

It has also been proposed that the banks should agree on a common fame scheme of the notes, so that they in their external appearance appearance and only in the text of the promise of payment contain the distinguishing deviation. But this would also be only a half measure, which apparently facilitates traffic, in Truth but would cause a deception of the public. The Notes then appeared to be unified without actually being so,

155

The distinction that still exists would be due to the external matching form only makes it infinitely more difficult.

The Association of Banks for the Purpose of Issuing and Depositing- solution of their notes must, if it is to fulfil its purpose, a complete one, that is, one which meets the public Traffic really from the colorful sample card of "diverse" notes which sometimes only a few miles from their place of origin are no longer fully valid, and the notes of the private- banks to a number that is equally popular and suitable everywhere- medium, such as the notes of the Prussian Bank. However, this is only possible if the private banks place of their private notes under joint and several liability a joint note which can be redeemed at a common central point.

At first glance, the difficulties that arise in such a arrangement, raise concerns; upon closer examination, prove they are relatively easy to overcome, they are in any case not significant enough to be considered against the obvious advantages come and prevent a great progress if he once desired.

The concerns will be based on two points in particular:

- 1) mutual liability, and
- 2) the relocation of metal stocks from the basements of the individual banks into a common reservoir.

As regards the first point, it has already been noted above
It has been found that none of the existing German note banks even in the most difficult times cause for concern regarding the safety of their issued notes. The debts represented by issued notes
The banks are absolutely privileged and can also be between German and joint and several liability banks mutually expressly recognize each other as such be recognized. If, by the way, a third part is to be provided as cash cover is continuously in joint custody, then for the remaining two-thirds of the basic capital and the central special cover to be controlled under all circumstances as sufficient
A bank that has not fulfilled its obligation not even once with the strictest punctuality had come, one should exclude from this moment on, equip the headquarters with extensive executive powers.

The transfer of cash reserves to the Central
There is nothing to worry about in this position if one considers that the 156

Storage in specially designed rooms, under any conceivable control to be exercised by the banks themselves and under federal commissariat co-closure would have to happen.

What is the purpose of the cash reserves of private banks? Firstly, reassurance of the note holders; a bank under public control
Central Silver Treasury will do this to an even greater extent.
Then, to enable such payments to which the relevant
Notes are not suitable, namely at state coffers and public administrations beyond the country's borders; the note of the united banks will make cumbersome silver money completely unnecessary for such purposes.
Finally, to supply the small real need for metal money for wages and the like; this need alone will continue to exist,
But on the whole, the supply of metal money is sufficient for him, which regular business automatically brings into the bank's cash registers.

The consolidation of the now dispersed Silver reserves not only bring a significant simplification of the currently complicated and much more expensive circulation process, it also brings with it other very significant advantages. In addition to the metal treasures of the Prussian Bank a valuable barometer of money market; it prevents banks from making laudable Accumulate money minted far beyond actual needs and thereby create an increased demand, which the money market still very alarmed; finally, it also prevents individual banks from Times by particularly strong demand for the realization of their notes in her calm disposition and strong effectiveness. The measures taken in this regard in 1866 The experiences made are still too fresh in memory to may require an explanation of what calm in stormy times the bank managements as well as the public in the awareness must find that one stands for all and all for one. Through By pooling metal stocks in this way, banks are able to great advantage of the Prussian Bank, which, precisely through its spread throughout the whole state is able to money movement, and not from the random circumstances to be dependent on a place or a province, but on the current situation.

For the implementation of this idea we refer to the attached organizational draft, which we submit to your detailed review highly recommend.

157

This plan is based on the principle of self-help and self-determination administration; it resolves the question from the outset under what conditions new note banks should be conceived, because there will be no new institute of this kind, which does not join the association wants, or whose censorship does not exist. He is the sympathy of the public certainly, because instead of these different notes there is a full= valid, generally known paper money is offered, a paper money, which, by virtue of the much higher sum of the liable stock= capital, a far more impressive security than even the notes the Prussian Bank. Finally, according to our firm conviction, both for economic and political reasons, the warmest Support from the Federal Presidency and the Reichstag was assured.

We have no doubt that, with the encouragement of these, our most important matters affecting your lively interest Our positive and detailed proposals are, although carefully considered, consideration, may not immediately find universal approval, but at least have the merit of the concrete treatment of the question Please be so kind as to tell us your views on to share the entire program; we intend to do so collecting material as a basis for events to be held as soon as possible to prepare an oral hearing on the matter.

Braunschweig, March 1870.

Aug. Urbich, Alex. Benndorf, Directors of the Braunschweig Bank, organizational proposal.

8.1. The private share banks of the North German Confederation unite to issue common banknotes and note redemption.

§. 2. For this purpose, they establish under joint administration under the protection and control of the North German Confederation a Cen= tralbureau in Berlin.

§. 3. The Central Bureau consists

a) a Board of Directors, which the participating banks according to a voting ratio dependent on the share capital choose;

b) from salaried officials appointed by the Administrative Council defeated and appointed in the same way. In addition

158

Each participating bank has the right to charge a to appoint special control officers for the Bureau;
e) from the Federal Commissioners appointed by the Federal Council.

§. 4. The Central Bureau issues notes whose total amount shall be Total amounts of currently conceived notes of the individual banks is the same, whereas these banks refrain from issuing their own banknotes.

§. 5. Each bank shall be granted a privilege corresponding to its privilege, or, where unlimited issuance is permitted, contractually determined quantity
Federal notes were made available in return for the withdrawal of their private notes.

8. 6. The new notes can only be paid at the central office at any time.
Cash. Redemption at individual bank cash desks is only possible on a case-by-case basis.
handing over the respective cash reserves there, or after prior registration.

§. 7. To cover these federal notes, each bank has one third the amount withdrawn by it in cash to the Central Office
For the remaining two thirds, she must have in her portfolio the usual cover by bills of exchange or corresponding securities.

§. 8. Whether and where, in view of local conditions, a part of the common cash treasury in the general interest outside the Central Office is to be kept, the decision-making remains subject to special Applications reserved.

8. 9. The Central Bureau or the Administrative Council shall have the to regularly revise the banknote coverage of certain portfolios of banks and under certain circumstances also to censure and submit to the General Assembly of the to provide a detailed report to those involved.

8. 10. The Central Bureau reports weekly to the parties involved banks about the state of cash reserves and banknote circulation As soon as the cash reserves under his administration are less than a third of the notes actually delivered to the banks, demands He required each bank to make a margin payment corresponding to the amount of notes it had

§. 11. A bank which does not respond to the request immediately will be excluded from the club without further ado. Regarding their outstanding obligations towards the club, the Central Bureau right and duty of immediate execution, for what purpose the assistance of the relevant organs of the North German Confederation in advance secure is. |

§. 12. On the unconditional or of changes to the statutes etc. The conditional admission of each individual bank into the association is decided by the General Assembly of the parties concerned in such a way that, if not at least 3/4 of all eligible votes are in favour of admission this is rejected.

Official notices of the German trading day.

—

Regarding the banking issue.

According to Article 4 of the Constitution of the North German Confederation, the Banking is one of the subjects which will be subject to legislation in the future and administration of the Federation. The execution of the In any case, more far-reaching legal provisions will be necessary. Whatever view of banking one may hold, There is complete agreement that the present current situation cannot be maintained. It is inadmissible, that in a single economic area different legislation on The banking sector is dominated by the fact that in relation to the concession of new banks, as well as on the issue of circulating funds in one province different rules apply than in the other. Nor can any There is doubt that the actual conditions are unsatisfactory It must be felt as a disgrace that in a country fe banks are formed, which are founded with the intention of continuing their activities to extend over another area.

The remaining committee of the German Trade Day believed the duty to not idly observe the actions of governments, but to endeavour to support them. He could care less arrive to initiate theoretical discussions, because it would be a Volumes of rich work include the pro and con of unity and Freedom of the banks. The remaining Rather, the Committee had to recognize its main task as To collect material from which the government can form a judgment on could form how one could discuss in the bosom of the German trading community the banking question. It was important to him to understand the individual trading to encourage bodies to speak out about their wishes, and where a clear and definite view on the redesign of the bank has not yet formed, to work towards ensuring that the Chambers of Commerce or equivalent bodies approach the issue more closely.

160

For this purpose, in November 1869, the permanent committee sent questionnaires to all its members, which have the purpose had, on the one hand, the statistical material on the current activity and existence of the banks, on the other hand, statements about to determine the direction in which banking legislation should be developed in the future. to move forward.

Unfortunately, the responses received have not yet led to this goal. On the one hand, many chambers of commerce have not provided any answers not arrived, on the other hand, the answers received exhaust the The meaning of the questions is not clear and is partly based on a misunderstanding understanding of the questions posed. The remaining committee has from the beginning his activity also aimed at convening a commission, consisting of some of its members and other expert Men who were tasked with further processing the incoming material process and the expression of public opinion about the bank= This commission met in Berlin in the days from 23-25 May 1870, they met and discussed. Even In a three-day period, the entire vast area of The banking question cannot be discussed in detail. It is impossible to of men whose professional activities took them to different areas Germany, to gather for as long as it would be necessary to thoroughly discuss all relevant issues. It was equally impracticable to hold the deliberations after parliamentary Custom to prepare through detailed reports, because the speaker could it could not be foreseen what questions would be of interest the assembly would prefer to use. And in In fact, it was unavoidable that a relatively A large part of the consultation time was taken up by the discussion about which questions are more important than the others. that time and attention should be given to them, The remaining committee has therefore decided to use the material which was presented in fragments during the deliberations, in systematic form, a number of resolutions are to be adopted. These resolutions renew the individual trading body's occupations with the request to make a specific statement about to what extent they agree with these resolutions and in what direction they may move away from them. At the time when the permanent committee began its work on this issue, it seemed as if whether the settlement of all the questions is of great urgency. The privilege of the Prussian bank was approaching its expiration, and it appeared as a first step towards establishing new conditions, that this privilege is not expressly or implicitly granted in a completely. It seemed at that time that a settlement of the whole question before the end of 1870 be because, in the event of a termination of the intended privilege, if it did not take place, the latter was tacitly considered to be extended to a further two years. In the meantime, the law of 27 March 1870 brought about a change in the situation in two directions. On the one hand, this makes it possible to extend the privilege of the Prussian Bank at any time with one year's notice. It thus prevents the danger of having to wait a long time. Under unchanging conditions are created, and it is the soil won for new creations, no matter in which direction always intended. On the other hand, the law also has the preference to temporarily prevent the establishment of new note banks and thereby aggravating the already mentioned problem to prevent the formation of banks whose activities are not in the territories of the empire in which it is to be founded, but the banks intend to extend their effectiveness to a territory that is foreign to them. If, therefore, for the deliberation of the trading day, one of the following free space has been gained over time, the already mentioned circumstances indicated above preclude the possibility of settling the whole question in its entirety by means of oral commission decisions. Resolutions can be attempted, rather the trading day must be on the ways, through a preparatory material his individual members' members to give specific and exhaustive answers to the question. The following gentlemen took part in the meeting of the Bank Commission taken: |

161

- 1) Bamberger, Dr. jur. in Mainz.
- 2) Becker, Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce in Leipzig and Director of the Leipzig Bank.
- 3) Benndorf, Director of the Braunschweig Bank.
- 4) Conrad, banker in Berlin.
- 5) von Dechend, President of the Main Bank Directorate in Berlin.

6) Delbrück, banker in Berlin, chairman of the committee of the German trading day. |

7) Friedlander, banker in Breslau.

8) Fromberg, Director of the Silesian Bank Association in Breslau.

9) Hinsberg, Director of the Barmer Bankverein in Barmen.

10) Treasurer, merchant in Hamburg. |

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 11

162

11) Ladenburg, banker in Mannheim.

12) Mendelssohn, Commercial Councillor and Banker in Berlin.

13) Meyer, Dr. jur. in Wroclaw.

14) Mosle, merchant in Bremen.

15) Müller, merchant in Stuttgart.

16) Samter, banker in Königsberg.

17) Schöttler, Director of the Bank in Danzig.

18) Seiffert, Director of the Bank in Weimar.

19) Spiegelner, bank director in Lübeck.

20) Steiner, bank director in Stuttgart.

21) Stengel, merchant in Staßfurt.

22) Stephan, commercial councillor and banker in Königsberg.

23) Warsaw, Privy Councillor and Banker in Berlin.

24) Wesenfeld, manufacturer in Barmen.

25) Dr. Witte, Senator in Rostock. 4

26) Zuckfschwerdt, merchant in Magdeburg.

The first resolution the Commission reached is there:

The Prussian bank is to be preserved and converted into a bank of the North German Confederation or the Customs Union under Determination of a concession for about 12 years be reorganized.,

The Commission took a stand on the basis of the given facts, by first designing the banking system for the North German Only for the North German Confederation was there a competent legislative power and administrative authority. It is the Hope is not excluded that it will succeed, be it on the way of the contracts on a case-by-case basis, whether through an extension of the Com= authority of the Customs Union, the decision which for the North German Confederation to the entire German territory. It would have to Therefore, it should be taken into account that the decisions are taken in a sense which will also win over the South German trading community for the same The next goal of the agitation could only be the unified Design of the banking system for the North German Confederation.

»The Commission further believed that it was not a question of To create institutions that are destined to last forever. From a practical point of view, it can only be a matter of to make arrangements that will be satisfactory for the near future. practical men must limit their view, and it would be just as doctrinaire, to want to establish principles that are valid for all eternity should be understood as a purely theoretical endeavor, To emphasize principles that are well founded in science, but are obviously prevented from being introduced into life by circumstances. The considerations are doubly important when it comes to loan of a monopoly, a privilege, and therefore because even those members who, out of theoretical conviction, Establishment of a unified with the exclusive rights of the notes= Central Bank, which is responsible for issuing the loan, considers it good, and does not c raised that the concession of the North German Confederation was too green= loaned to the bank for a limited period become.

163

The decision to preserve the Prussian bank is in conflict with the existing end states.

The focus of banking in Prussia was, it was stated, , since then in the hands of the Prussian main bank. The private banks play a comparatively insignificant role compared to it. one could imagine the private banks disappearing without the actual banking system would be significantly modified as a result – but not the Prussian Main bank. If this does not exist with the means of exchange, which through its note issue, the entire economic machinery, trade and production would come to a standstill immediately and permanently a significantly different appearance. Their continued existence appears therefore required from the outset by the actual circumstances.

But it is not only the actual circumstances that determine their require continued existence. Experience and science agree that that developed economic conditions require the existence of a large central bank with an extensive network of branch banks. Individual banks can never replace a large central bank, because only this can provide the necessary guarantee for a secure money circulation. The question of whether such a central bank, as the Prussian one now is, Bank is, can be produced in another way, gives way to the fact, that it exists and has solid ground in the economic conditions not the question of whether they continue to exist, but only how they should continue to exist, can be ventilated.

Small banks would never be able to do the same in large i 8 s can, like a bank, which commands powerful financial resources; the latter fe also necessary to serve as a regulator and to prevent Crises to overcome the difficulty arising from the inadequacy the amount of banknotes in circulation.

11%

164

Of the members of all Prussian Chambers of Commerce, the charitable effectiveness of the Prussian bank in the most lively way There would be no commercial corporation in Prussia with a The majority must be convinced to consider this institute as a future institution. Also from the non-Prussian areas of the North German Confederation, the Prussian bank has found the most lively recognition, and it is known that from many non-Prussian places the desire It has become clear that the Prussian bank is increasing its effectiveness through the Establishment of branches may also extend there. In the answers The South German Chambers of Commerce, on the other hand, repeatedly find an objection opposed the expansion of the Prussian bank to a wider area However, this resistance does not allow us to conclude that the countries of southern Germany with the banks currently existing there Rather, there are, especially from Baden, but also from Württemberg unambiguous symptoms that one is longs for an improvement of the existing conditions, and the long-standing Negotiations of the Baden Chambers on the banking issue have confirmed. The contradiction that partly arose in southern Germany against an extension of the Prussian bank, probably finds its large part of his explanation is that one can distinguish oneself from the essence This bank does not give a correct impression everywhere, in particular The view is widely held that the Prussian bank with the Prussian State organism is in a closer connection than is actually the case the case, and that an extension of the effectiveness of this institute could lead to bureaucratizing the traffic. If in this

In this respect, more accurate ideas would be widespread if, in particular,
It is pointed out that the Prussian bank is active through its branches only in those places where it is located in the middle of the trade is prompted by wishes and ideas to do so,
It may be assumed that the resistance that the institute encountered in South
Germany will be limited to narrower circles.

The beneficial effects which the Prussian bank had on trade and traffic, were from many sides in the most lively emphasized, not disputed by any side. It was shown that in no other countries in the world, even the middle-class merchant and manufacturer easier to discount his bills of exchange without difficulty. It was
It has also been shown that the expansion of a network of branches increases traffic from place to place in a rare way, and it was even willingly acknowledged by principled supporters of banking freedom that no other central bank neither in Austria, nor in France or England

165

have given such a great boost to the needs of small traffic than the Prussian bank. It was essentially this side of the institute envisaged the effectiveness of the bank towards the public, and the assembly was unanimous in its opinion that this aspect of the effectiveness must be preserved in the future. On the other hand, it was seen as a question which is only of secondary importance and which can very well be considered a openly treated, which the internal organization the bank, whether its management is exclusively or predominantly be purely commercial, or whether, as before, the state will manage the the bank. The wish was only expressed in passing.
that the state's involvement ceases. One member presented the Alternative, the bank should either be a completely state institution or completely private institute. As for the current situation, the same in its basic features was assumed to be known, whereas it put the following information about details, which are considered to be little known. The Prussian bank will mainly managed by merchants, most of the board members offices have emerged from commercial professional circles and have their qualification through a longer service either in a bank or in an export business; they must undergo an examination which mainly concerns commercial objects
After she had spent a long time in the have been formed in different offices and their skills in the practice, they will be employed as board officials, so that all offices only have commercially trained managers
The Main Bank Directorate, the governing authority, is also if mostly composed of merchants, namely the best Forces that are gradually being brought in from the provinces.
The President and two members of the Board of Directors are regularly educated men and are mostly made up of the officials of the Han-Ministry, in which she had previously proved herself to be a capable administrative officials must have proven themselves. It is therefore the science-element that permeates the entire state administration, also here

This composition has proven itself to be extremely effective.
A large part of the private banks have appointed their board members to the civil servants from the Prussian main bank. However, the attempt has been made whether by recruiting more educated men better results can be achieved. However, the conviction has
It has been made clear that this is not the case; rather, some of those Attempts have been unsuccessful. It can therefore be assumed as proven

166 that the commercial element must predominate if the bank should be managed bureaucratically. The director is usually No one is employed who has not at least four or five other institutions as capable of managing a banking business.

the employment is on a trial basis and only when the qualification completely proven, definitively. The Central Institute, the Main Bank Directorate, has the management of the entire business in such a way that it is managed by all ficies that occur in the province, and indeed not only from the total amount, but from each bill of exchange, from every single transaction that is done, down to the smallest details, and it is now the task to examine whether these transactions are to be presented to the meet the material conditions and requirements. If a Discounted bills of exchange that have an unsound nature, which usually easily seen, this will be strongly disapproved of and immediate correctur. In addition, there is a provision which is reflected in the high
It has proven itself to be of great interest to the officials in the Closing deals are linked by a royalty fund, an institution tung, which, as far as we know, does not exist anywhere else. It is the Bank directors in the province were granted a certain royalty; the same will not be paid out, but accumulated until the future
The official's departure. This bonus is liable for all losses that caused by the business of the official concerned, namely
It is essential that an appeal against an order which limits the royalties withdraws, is only possible to the head of the bank. The latter can not to decide whether the reason for a decision collection of royalties is founded in every detail, because it
This is a commercial arbitration. In fact, the
The decision of the Main Directorate is generally to be regarded as final.
The decision is always made with regard to the quality lification of the official, but it has already happened that a Officials were charged with a sum of 20,000 thalers and fine whole royalties which he has received over a long series of years:
had collected, was claimed, and not for a more serious oversight, because for this his fuft is liable, but because he did not proceed with the caution that one would expect from a senior officials can expect. This institution ensures, on the one hand, the Officials who are relatively not so highly paid, against the need their families even after their retirement from the service or in case of her death and on the other hand it secures the bank against unsound Business. The main bank directorate takes a position as

167

This will not happen again. It is the members of the same forbidden to own bank shares, just as they have no share in profits and losses, they find without any personal interest. This will ensure that the administration takes higher perspectives and also takes into account the general interests. It is claimed that that those banking companies whose members receive a royalty on the profit or own a large amount of bank capital, never keep the general interests in mind as comprehensively as possible and also The experience, made in other countries are presented as such, which cannot lead to the head of a bank a to form a college guided by its own pecuniary interests This is also an advantage of the Prussian institution found that the leadership should be given to a college and not to an individual Apparently, a similar situation exists in France, where at the head of the bank there is a governor and two sous-governors new ones stand; however, the positions of the same do not actually differ much more than sinecures. There are discussions about whether Commissions of merchants who are still active as such, in which management of the Prussian bank will be more involved than before, However, the trade community has spoken out against it. All trade Chambers that have been asked about it have considered it highly detrimental means that a merchant is put in a position to outperform his competitor to look into the pockets. The merchants are always very willing to to accept the positions of bank agents, although such positions ments are by no means profitable. However, the Directorate has avoided appointing merchants as his agents. The main bank The directorium is supported by a central committee, which consists mainly of bankers and merchants, and from this central committee three persons appointed to attend all meetings of the Main Bank Board Participate and become aware of all the bank's business. They, however, adhere to the principle of not getting into actual credit grants, but only check whether the discounted bills of exchange are good or not and whether the bank is not aware of any dubious ways get.

One side raised the question whether it could not be from the commercial element of the administration is not exclusively from the Berlin merchant community, but also representatives of the major trading and maritime centres. replied that such an approach would be very difficult in practical terms.

fentities. It is a matter of bringing in the Central = Expulsion essentially about setting the discount and for this purpose the The body should always be called together quickly if the circumstances give cause for this. If representatives from Hamburg, Königsberg and other distant places must be consulted, so The decision will cause great excitement throughout the country. The same should be avoided and if one therefore also has representatives from other places, one must move there from the most important business. Although this was replied It was decided that it was at least possible to have foreign representatives at such To involve the company in matters of less urgency, but refrained from pursuing this question further. Against the Concerns were raised from various quarters about the resolution adopted.

One of the negative voices does not want the Prussian bank as such and unconditional, but only its extension to a federal She motivated this vote as follows: "The abundance of Duties and achievements for which they were raised in Prussia ift, it cannot be replaced immediately elsewhere; but just as certainly no reason to criticize the system on which it is based with fine Weaknesses and dangers to wider circles. This is in principle the same system which has just failed so miserably in France A bank built on this model will, no matter how whether state or private institution, always its mainstay in the state Protection and thereby in one of the most worrying consequences inclusive dependence on the state.

Our banking system, since it certainly cannot have the task of to serve the state directly, at least not through the issuance of notes must not be reformed on such a basis. The focus is much= to invest more in the activities of private banks, whose existence depends on purely economic basis and whose credit is not based on the credit and benevolence of the state, but primarily on their own funds is based. |

Such a basis is far more solid and can even be used in critical times provide much greater reassurance. The private banks have Admittedly, some of them paid a lot of money for their apprenticeship, but with regard to Commitments in repeated crises consistently as completely solid proven. They have also done their duty on the whole

That the services of the private banks are not as impressive as the the Prussian Bank, that individuals are not unjustly entitled to too much The fact that he is accused of anxiety is a natural consequence of the various

The private banks are by far the largest limited in terms of their performance by their statutes and also dependent on circumstances that give them reason to Circumstances to observe restraint. It makes a difference whether one is in unlimited amount of notes can be issued, which the state can use in all Cases and thereby helps to keep them in circulation, or whether these Notes are limited in terms of their sum and also in the most noble parts of the federal territory are outlawed. The private banks are given only a somewhat more favourable position, which does not imply any special state protection, nor significant expansion of individual powers but only those permitted by law in their natural development recognition of their right to life contained in the development is meant; – the private banks will also perform completely satisfactorily. The Prussian bank, especially in its present form, To expand an institution of the Reich means actually to create a monopoly, – means all effective, beneficial competition more and more under= Therefore, the Prussian bank should only be considered as such for the time being The advantages that can be gained through their control of the entire federal territory, are to be achieved by establishing a individual banks based real central bank in far more perfect Such a central bank, in its relationship to the individual banks essentially to the Issue Department of the Bank of England accordingly thought, uniting the different note=emissions in themselves, only dealing with the relevant banks, frees up the traffic immediately from the multitude of multiple notes that bother him, – immediately and generally really equal currency, – promotes the now inadequate and difficult balancing between excess money on the one hand and Lack of the other place mediates the rightly appointed Banks themselves, – transfers the great power now limited to Prussia Efficiency in banking immediately to all areas, without the to impose obligations on federal states without affecting private rights. – and is finally the only means to counteract the cult of music to draw healthy barriers. While the banks now have a very high devote most of their attention to collecting as many notes as possible in circulation in order to be as efficient as possible, they are not only no longer have any interest in this with such an institution, but also through the natural desire to escape from guardianship to emancipate from control, to be led by themselves to more and more with real capital (deposits) instead of capital surrogates (notes). The Prussian bank, which was expanded to become a Reichsanft does not cause this, but only sweeps other fogar significantly weaker established tokens of value to replace those currently in circulation.”

170

It was further said that such a revolt was unnecessary, it was It goes without saying that the Prussian bank will continue to exist, and that it will will have a wider sphere of influence. This does not exclude in itself that they should be given a somewhat privileged position

Even if one proclaims the principles of banking freedom, the Prussian bank will continue to exist and develop its effectiveness. Its Services would be sought and it would therefore be completely unnecessary to offer her a to give them a privileged position. The basic hunting grounds should be places under which banks and note banks in North Germany Federations may form and exist, and on the basis of these sentences The Prussian bank would continue to operate without any A third party has suggested that stresses that the view which believes in the continued existence of the Prussian Bank takes a primary interest, proceeding from the view that the previous system of music edition always remains in the foreground The bank would essentially have the task of collecting idle capital and to use them for productive purposes. The latter This is partly done by issuing notes. In the economically advanced countries, England, America, Switzerland, however, this system has been overcome and the main importance of the bank is in that it maintains deposits and current accounts. This also requires German country because excessive issuance of paper money is dangerous. The Prussian bank must continue to exist, but without any privileges, because a high position granted to her and the preconceived opinion of the public for them will enable them to continue their business, without restricting the use of banknotes. Berlin is not the only center of major traffic, and especially for the bank and exchange business was on a larger scale than in other Countries have important places. It is important to ensure that a central bank centralize the whole business. The proclamation of the principles of the Bank-freedom would be sufficient to give the Prussian bank the position which satisfies her in the interest of the common good. It is for current deliberations are about creating new conditions for Germany and one should not try to prevent trade to prescribe the paths he should take.

The following reply was made to these statements. It was completely impossible to regulate the relationship of the Prussian bank in a new Banking laws to be passed over with silence. From the provision of the Federal Constitution, which makes banking a federal matter, It follows with constitutional necessity that in the future no individual state will have the right to interfere in banking matters. It would never be acceptable for the Prussian state to maintain a bank after the banking system became a federal matter, silence i.e. about the Prussian bank, its existence for the future made impossible. If one wanted to control the Prussian bank in its essential If we keep the basic principles in mind, we will recognize the necessity of such a Institute for Transport, there is no other legal option for this Possibility other than to say that this bank should in future an institution of the North German Confederation. However, it must be in the all territories of the Federation have the rights which they have against currently possesses in Prussia. Above all, it must be stated that their notes are accepted in all public treasuries as payment must be accepted. Hand in hand with this must go their right to establish branches in all areas of the North German Confederation. The question was also raised as to whether this expansion was a increase their capital, and there was agreement that with their current capital they are not in a position to develop an activity throughout the entire territory of the Federation. It was also emphasized that if their capital were to increase, their The relationship with the state needs to be re-regulated and in particular the question of It must be discussed whether the state can continue its previous profit share. Meanwhile, decisions on this issue were not made, because a final determination on this can only be made by agreement niffe with the Prussian Ministry of Finance, which in this respect acquired rights. By finally agreed to use the term "Central Bank," which led to this misunderstanding nife reason, as if the activity of private institutes a barrier imposed, the resolution was passed with 20 votes against 3. Voting for it were:

171

Bamberger, Conrad, v. Dechend, Delbrück, Friedländer, Fromberg, Hinsberg, Ladenburg, Meyer, Mosle, Müller, Mendelssohn, Samter,

Schottler, Seiffert, Spiegelner, Steiner, Stengel, and Warsaw,

Wesenfeld, Witte, Zuckschwerdt, and against: Becker, Benndorf, Kämmerer.

The second resolution was worded as follows:
An unconditional freedom to establish note banks should not exist.
This resolution was adopted unanimously. The theoretical status=

172

point according to which the issue of banknotes is a matter of common Right and to the same extent as the issuance of Bills of exchange, checks, etc. are open to everyone, found in the meeting for practical reasons, not a single follower. The reasons for this Resolution have not been specifically discussed, as tacitly from the most advanced supporters of banking freedom the concession It is clear that such a far-reaching measure is currently not practically not feasible. The obvious reason for such a The conclusion can be found in the fact that an unrestricted freedom for the issue of banknotes for everyone not otherwise appropriately introduced can be done hand in hand with a new legal regulation of the whole question of the extent to which bearer securities can be issued by anyone The settlement of this question will in any case take some time take more time than until the final settlement of the banking system.

Third:

The right to issue banknotes is not necessarily to be limited to a single Bundesbank.

This sentence provoked by far the most lively discussion. The Minority believed for theoretical and practical reasons the principle the note unit and brought a directed This motion should merely establish the principle that the note unity is the goal to strive for and that new central banks would not be conceived, at least not in the future; On the other hand, this measure completely ignored the discussion of the legal ask what will happen after the legal sanctioning of this principle with the already existing central banks. It was of the opinion that that the solution of this legal question is left to a later stage of the discussion to be reserved.

The reasons for the principle of note unity were first taken from theoretical considerations about the principle of banknotes at all. One speaker explained that the regulation of the banknote circulation is part of the conditions of the general welfare and can be For this reason, it should not be left to competition. The circulation of Notes are equal to the circulation of paper money and demand the highest Statement of trust and security; therefore, this could be valuable Instrument, which with a thousand threads of the common good together dependencies, may not be entrusted to anyone other than a person supervised by the state institutes. Here you will find the greatest power, which is the best foundation for the cause and the greatest guarantee of intelligence.

173

It is not otherwise a principle to regard state wisdom as the highest in of the private industry, but where the whole is to be represented fe, a large state with its extensive machinery offers the most Guarantee that the money question and its effects are correctly calculated The advantage of banknotes is that they provide a certain amount of capital to create, in whose interest one can participate. This advantage is but the disadvantages and losses which in times of crisis arise and which can easily outweigh those advantages. Here ftate control is required. The note is a representative realizable bills of exchange and since the number of good bills of exchange is limited, The number of banknotes should also be limited accordingly. However, an appropriate restriction can only be brought about by in the hands of a single institute the power to issue notes, concentrated. The resolution adopted ad 2 has already shown that No one is of the opinion that the authority to issue notes to be given free, the majority will therefore opt for a system of decide on the restriction, whether by way of concession, by means of normative conditions. However, all restrictions which one could set up, only frighten the good and arouse in him Hesitation in submitting to the restrictions; but the bad one, who only seeks his individual advantage by issuing notes wants to pursue, allows himself to be restricted by the state-imposed restrictions in his Thun. It was further argued that the coin= unity in Germany is currently a goal of national aspiration and that one would contradict oneself if one wanted to create the possibility of producing a large number of new tokens. From another point of view, the concentration of law, To issue notes and recommend them to an institute. It is the task the Central Bank, the shocks in the money market early and clearly to serve as a warner and helper. This task it will not remain in the position to issue notes, concurrere, with a large number of private banks, which are love can form.

These considerations were further supported by the consideration about the behavior of the private banks so far. The big bank has Task of creating a reserve for the country for bad times. So far The Prussian bank now found itself in the need to to provide for the small banks, the circulation of banknotes has has so far relied less on its cash reserves than on the cash reserves of the Prussian bank. The latter had calculated its reserves in such a way that it critical times for the private banks, too, In 1866, the need arose to use their metal as a preferred white paper for the private banks and on some days I have up to one million daily for the other institutes. The same have presented notes and received money in return, in order to then make their payments Each bank only needs to pay its bills of exchange as soon as they are due, not to prolong and thus provide the means to improve the grades of the Prussian bank. This situation has been tolerable so far. The Prussian bank was in a position to support the private banks, which It will not, however, be able to do so be able, if it is left to free will in the future, to establish new note banks. The Prussian bank had a real Needs of trade and traffic are met; on the other hand, the Establishment of many note banks solely for operations of the premium Furthermore, features of the effectiveness of individual Private banks are cited, which demonstrate the questionable nature of such institutions When one of these banks had a big loss years ago and worked with a deficit of 6 - 700,000 thalers, free her Status remained at the same level, the status of another Bank was fundamentally wrong a number of years ago; a third and fourth bank must prove that their status has value about half of which did not exist. Such a procedure a central bank, like the Prussian one, could never decide because they are under the control of public opinion in a much wider Measures than the private banks. By issuing many different

174

The public will suffer extensive losses and inconvenience, it is not in the hands of the individual businessman, banknotes that would be offered to him in lieu of payment
A member of the minority stated that he had a ftill he has a very large customer base in which he generates many millions in sales.
Despite this favourable position, he was not in a position to fight against the to criticize the means of payment offered to him, he is in the need= ity, both the coupons offered to him and the foreign bank= to accept notes in payment, otherwise he will be denied his customers as his smaller competitors. The public is therefore not able to defend itself against poorly funded banknotes, and the State has the duty to protect itself against the issuance of such securities
It is a prejudice that the banknote press could create cheap money. Hamburg has no central bank and since
For a number of years, money was cheapest there; Holland

175

only has covered notes*), and Holland also has a number of
For years, money was very cheap. For a long time, money was America is the most expensive, and it is precisely in America that the banknote economy
The restriction of the right to issue notes to a single bank, the competition in the banking sector not enough, because in addition to the main bank, a large number of Depository banks and have the most beneficial effect on trade and Only in the withdrawal of the right to issue notes, the private banks would find the right incentive to increase the money and deposit to maintain fit traffic in a way that is desirable in the general interest.

Finally, the history of the minority view was used to justify
The same theory teaches that almost everywhere the system of a majority of central banks to the system of the bank= unity. In England, complete banking freedom had previously reigned, this has led to such terrible suffering and enormous aberrations among the banks, that Peel saw himself compelled to adopt the principle to establish that new central banks may no longer be created and that the already existing ones on a certain quantity of the circulating medium were limited. This principle was followed in England and nobody is thinking about founding new note banks. In
In France, up to 1848, there existed a considerable number of pro= vinzial central banks. There too it was shown that in the case of serious crises were unsustainable and had to stop their payments. In Bel= There were two central banks in the world until 1848. They also were unable to increase their effectiveness due to their questionable business dealings and redeem their notes. It was therefore decided by the state because of a single paper bank. In Holland there has always been only one Central Bank. What bad effects the principle of Freedom of music in America is so well known that no word about it to lose. |

In response to these reasons, the majority put forward the following:

| As essential as the existence of a large central bank is a large central bank, if it is no less a central bank,

Concerns of several independent banks an economic requirement.

Just as it would be wrong to leave a country without a large central bank,

It would be wrong to classify banking activities, even if they are based on creation of means of exchange, i.e. the issue of banknotes, exclusively

*) The fact was stated as follows, without finding any immediate contradiction.

Their inaccuracy is evident from the overviews of the Dutch Bank.

a

176

to an institute. The existence of a central bank entails economic dangers that cannot possibly be ignored and underestimated

The economy should not be expected to a bank is instructed to fine, it rightly demands, through the possibility ability to establish several banks, the full guarantee of an undisturbed to have a monopoly in circulation. Monopolies have been abolished everywhere, the monopoly

Polzwang could not be maintained in an area that was entirely especially demands freedom of movement in the area of monetary affairs.

All guarantees that are essential for banks issuing notes femen, demand – but not that the entire economy be bank dependent. *

Experience has also shown in Germany that the smaller

Banks outside Prussia have become of great economic importance

They must limit themselves to a smaller sphere of influence, but are more efficient within the same than the Central Bank, which more on large relationships and financial operations on a grand scale be pointed out. .

Banknotes should not be considered a form of paper money.

Rather, they are a form of credit, a business form, and must therefore be free like any other form of business.

have not the necessity of freedom, but the necessity of Limitation to prove. Accept the proposition that the banknote is a Representative of the good exchange, it follows that instead of all Good exchange rates may be issued. The ideal balance for the existence of the circulating medium might be that instead of a

every bank bill of exchange deposited with the bank to the corresponding amount of notes would be issued, but no note without such a

This goal in its perfection is achieved by no state institution can be achieved; however, this goal will be brought closer come if the right to issue notes is released than if one monopolize it. Sooner or later, freedom of issue of bearer securities of all kinds can be expected with certainty and one could not establish the principle that a single type of bearer securities, the banknotes, should remain excluded from this freedom. The Concurrency is of no small importance in all branches of business life. Value, one should not restrict it when it comes to the emission of notes. It cannot be denied that many of the existing private notes banks have held proceedings that cannot be defended. This is, however, largely due to the faulty Prussian banking legislation. The existing laws in Prussia

177

Restrictions have led to central banks forming in places where they had no favorable soil, while they perhaps with greater success and in a better way within the Prussian. Not all private banks are accused of that they were brought into being solely by the pursuit of agiotage. It is acknowledged by all sides by the Frankfurt Bank that its management is exemplary and that it is reflected in its circles satisfy the needs of the public just as the Prussian Bank in theirs. In all southern German states, in many the urge to establish central banks is strong and irresistible. The period in which banks were only considered the idea that the idea of agiotage has now been overcome and it is not to be assumed that such a thing would happen again.

If a speaker mentions the actions of individual private banks (namely before the introduction of the German Commercial Code) incorrectly drawn up, should be noted that such formal errors are basically do not belong here. Because in no case are what is important here comes, the values determined for note coverage are too high and thereby causing deception among the public, which accepted the notes in payment. The shareholders have probably not yet losses that could have been precisely determined and which were of interest to them alone had, in any case, very well known. In general, however, losses which individual banks have suffered at times, do not entitle stable banks and poorly funded notes. Not a single German note bank had ever been "unsound" – unless 'business losses that no trader, including the Prussian Bank not, remain spared, describe as a sign of unsoundness. The notes of no private bank are weaker, but on the contrary all significantly better founded than those of the Prussian bank. And Especially the smallest and wildest Bantens are free in this respect. usually the strongest because the nature of their business operations exposes them to choice of their investments is not tied to moral obligations towards a fixed Everything that constitutes the so-called "robbery". The accusation that "state banks" are now being made is based on traditional judge. ö N

Furthermore, the public, like the Banguiers, has had much learned. During the time of the so-called bank fraud in 1865 Almost nothing was understood about deposit transactions. Since that Over time, the public has learned to deposit fine money in the banks.

nir, and the banks would have made it their concern to support the development Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 12

178

The deposit traffic should be given special attention. System of banknote freedom, there is no need to fear that the banknote business would give undue importance. It should be taken into account, that one can look forward to the introduction of the gold standard. Hand in Hand with this will go the regulation that no paper payment= funds in a smaller amount than about 20-25 thalers Such larger appointments would, however, have a negative impact on the safety of traffic is far from the danger that is still often circulating notes of 1 to 5 thalers. One must also consider the existing Consider the legal relationships that arise. Because of the conceffioned private note banks are not able to create a completely free path and to limit the issuing of banknotes in Germany to one bank. the existing private note banks, some of the less solid Conceffions for a very long time, while the conceffions of the Prussian private banks, which can largely be described as solid fshall be fuffifciently terminable. The proclamation of the principle of grades= unity will therefore have the undesirable result that of the existing private note banks, a part of the better ones are forced to to dissolve, while some of the less solid ones continue to exist unhindered It is not the task of the Prussian bank to help the smaller banks to provide support. Would the Prussian bank presented their own notes, this was merely the inevitable consequence from the fact that they issued these notes; from the obligation to issue their notes to redeem, it could not do so any more than any other banking institution In addition, the Prussian bank had There is absolutely no obligation towards smaller note banks. they do not get used to considering themselves as small children, which in times of need and crisis at the state, at the Central Bank seek protection and help.

The relationship is in fact quite different. The Private note banks all know that the big institute offers them nothing less as a loving mother and helper in times of need. The Prussian For example, the bank did not discount any bill of exchange over 14 days, which Indorsement of a private bank; and if they have their overdraft facility fications the sum of circulating private banknotes with in bring, it is only done in the same sense in which it also brings other general conditions, e.g. the state of exchange rates, trade balance sheet, harvest results and the like. The private banks find it most convenient and affordable to have their own, in each individual In case of vanishingly small metal demand from the large reservoir in which the largest amount of the natural cycle of cash. Due to the general usability of its notes, the Prussian bank absorbs the surplus in circulation, i.e. also the metal money put into circulation by the private banks; what is more natural than for the private banks to repeat it! The fact that the Prussian bank supplies this metal in exchange for its notes can One certainly cannot, with even a semblance of justification, be considered a support given to private banks. This relationship Incidentally, this could be achieved by combining the notes, whereby a note that can be used everywhere, just like the Prussian one created, as well as by introducing the gold standard, whereby a more lively metal money circulation especially in the case will be if the foreign gold coins are imported into our country without can undergo a significant change.

179

The historical examples given were ignored On the other hand, the crises that affected England and America also found a different interpretation than that the system of Freedom of notes has created a great danger. So in relation to England has shown that it was not the private banks that first major shocks, but rather the main banks are most and most frequently affected by these shocks. Of America, one may say that the many crises which have come over the country, had their causes least in the banknote circulation, that there are far more other causes that have a stronger effect on the excitement From one side, the smallness of the of the share capital of American banks mainly the debt that many of them were walking on unsound paths. In Concerning France, it was pointed out that in 1848 the Central Bank, like the provincial banks, were unable to redeem their notes. If one looks at the experiences of the banking system of other countries berufe, one should not ignore Scotland and Switzerland In Switzerland there is fairly free competition and A number of central banks have been formed and banking freedom has led to the The results showed that the circulation of banknotes decreased from year to year and has become less necessary. It can therefore be assumed that if the formation of a larger number of central banks in Germany would be satisfied, the public would accept paper means of payment would be more selective than before, and that it would be up to the individual would be free to reject such papers that do not suit him.

This should not be taken to mean that the conditions in Scotland

12*

and Switzerland can easily be transferred to Germany. The freedom to write notes is, however, made easier by the smaller Circle to which the circulation is limited and in which a knowledge of individual personalities prevails to a greater extent than with us. In any case, these examples prove that the system of note unity is not the only thing that can lead to prosperous credit relationships. Attention should also be drawn to the payment settings that many states, in Austria, France, England in the monopolized Bank. Against this latter argument, the minority replies that the payment suspensions at the local banks were only symptoms of the distressed situation of the state, and that for example in Austria, if it had not had its banks, other means would have been found to harm the state. A member of the minority also pointed out that the bank of the North German Confederation, the maintenance of which the Assembly yes, it is agreed that in the future more capital will be needed than before. It cannot be assumed that anyone will find the necessary necessary capital if the bank faces competition from foreign institutions, which could form anew at will. The minority further considered it questionable that two or more Banks work. It is possible that a person in need of credit can apply to any of these Banks obtain credit and one creditor from the other nothing. Examples of this kind have recently been found on a larger scale occurred in a Prussian city. The majority of the countered that this argument proves too much. Be it the same about generally valid, it also speaks against the competition of the deposit banks, because even with these it can happen that in one city two banks grant credit to one and the same person without being know. |

The grade unit desired by the minority has, if one I don't want to associate it with the concept of a monopoly, but something for itself. In the sense of creating a monopoly for the Prussian bank, but they are not even in principle established as a goal to be pursued, because it would be a mistake from the outset to set an unattainable goal. It might be possible to prevent the emergence of new note banks, but the existing ones must be taken into account in any case. If you put them on the "extinction budget", then you will hit a mark rule, which only takes effect after two to three generations; if one wants their rights, then sacrifices must be made, which are beyond all proportion to the conceivable benefit; if one wants to use them through nuisance to their business practice to renounce, then violate one violates existing private rights in an undignified manner, which certainly no one Intention is. Accessible and desired by public transport, be single= ly the external unity: unification of the music edition, whereby the banks without sacrifice for anyone sufficient for the be harmed, what they should give up, and at the same time among the very best, namely the mutual control. In this sense The principle of note unity is acceptable, but at the same time the freedom to establish new note banks is completely harmless – and both compatible. Finally, the above-mentioned resolution was adopted.

voted for: R

Becker, Benndorf, Fromberg, Hinsberg, Kämmerer, Ladenburg,

Meyer, Mosle, Müller, Samter, Schottler, Seiffert, Spiegel

Stephan, Steiner, Zuckschwerdt,

On the other hand, those who voted for the grade unit were:

Bamberger, Conrad, v. Dechend, Delbrück, Friedländer, Mendels-

john, Stengel, Warfauer, Wesenfeld Witte. ")

*) Two reports have subsequently been made on the attitude of the banks in 1870.

Members submitted comments with widely differing tendencies.

One side notes: "The Bank of France, which for years was impressed with their colofal Baarvo rrath, seven days after the first defeat of the French arms stopped their cash payments. It was barely 100

Percent coverage for their total obligations (end of July 2285 million cash, Bills of exchange and Lombard against 2287 million notes and deposits) too weak in the moment when the state was not even really in a position but only to come into the case had the prospect of making its own demands on to replace the usual protection. The Prussian bank was not stronger. At the same time, it also had around 233 million obligations only 238 million, i.e. 102 percent of available funds.

fhe has not understood how to withdraw from services that are detrimental to its economic task were foreign; that here the result was different is a happy

Circumstance which was obviously caused by entirely different factors than the bank admini

The documents of the North German private note banks, on the other hand, show for the end of July 1870 against 118 million obligations 171 million, i.e. 145

Percent cover funds. During the actual war panic they have a experienced a decrease in their total banknote circulation by about 4 million, equal to= increased their cash reserves by about 8 million and yet their services in bills of exchange, Lombard and loans increased by about 4½ million, i.e. not reduced, as is often claimed. With fewer resources, they have legitimate demands of their customers are satisfied just as it happened in Prussia

Nowhere in the area of a private bank is a solvent house in embarrassment advised, nowhere have the loan banks been significantly used

Fourth:

For the establishment of central banks, there should not be a require special concession.

But if the principle of concession is adopted, is the concession by means of legislation to that by administrative means.

If one assumes that in addition to the Central Bank there should be other banks which have the right to issue banknotes have, the authorization to do so is granted to them either by way of Normative conditions or on that of the special concession:

If one decides for the system of concessions, then in in each individual case by the supreme authority of the state, both the It is more important to examine the needs than the trustworthiness of the entrepreneurs. This examination can in turn be submitted either to the highest administrative authority, which in the North German Confederation would be the Federal Council, or the legislative factors, in the North German Confederation the Reichstag in be referred to the Federal Council. If one decides fih, on the other hand, for the system of normative conditions or regulative, fuch, through legislation, the conditions , among which institutes can be formed that control the emission of It is then up to the discretion of each Leave it to individuals to make use of this facility or not, and the state has at most the task of controlling it to exercise whether in the establishment of such banks and in their business implementation of the principles laid down in the normative conditions and – most characteristically – they first stopped their activity in Bremen, Lübeck, Chemnitz, Leipzig, i.e. especially in the most outstanding, outside the sphere of the Prussian Bank in the federal territory.” From On the other hand, the following observation is made: “In July, lin Prussia) the notes of the various small German banks were partly completely un= profitable, partly only with a discount of 3 to 5 percent, whereas the notes of the Prussian bank did not lose any of their value. Distrust of the notes of small banks only disappeared after the success of the armies. Even in the defeated, financially shattered, thousand-strong In wounded France, the system of note unity has proven relatively successful, since one can only assume a temporary, hardly noticeable discount of the notes the French bank, whereas the French bank, which was not affected by the chaos of war, Switzerland with its freedom to issue notes fell into desolate conditions, and a similar would probably have been the case even now in France to an even greater extent if Here, as before 1848, a number of note banks next to the Bank of France existed, the majority of whom, as is well known, published their scores in 1848= redemptions had to be suspended.

The two systems of concession and normative conditions could not be combined with each other, as for example, when discussing the Commercial Code with regard to the stock companies were discussed; rather, one must distinguish between the two and choose the one. f

For the system of normative conditions it was argued that only the economic design can decide when, where, in what The extent to which central banks have to form. If anywhere here state tutelage and decision on the question of need, also if it is submitted to the legislative powers, it is inadmissible. The only task of legislation could be to establish once and for all the norms to determine under which central banks may form, but not to deal with the individual cases of their institution.

In contrast, it was argued that the system of co-ordination that it is hoped that in this way the number of note banks on a to the smallest possible extent. This hope increases when The power to grant concessions should not be placed in the hands of the administrative authority but in those of the legislature. In In Belgium and Holland, for example, the legislative power is equal if the power to establish private central banks is the legislature never thought of making use of this power For this reason, the system of Con= cession of those who were previously principalitarian for the system of grade unit. But also those who had declared the formation of private note banks, but nevertheless believed that that a decision by the highest state authority is required to to create such an institution. The person who wants to create a central bank wants to establish, claims the credit of the nation, and it is It is therefore entirely justified that the highest representation of the nation with its voice be heard on whether they want to approve this credit. Against the provision that for the creation of a bank every a federal law should be required, it was argued that the legislative power is not in a position to resolve the issue of need in a individual case to examine that it is essential to maintain political points of view, and that one could questionably influence politics in the area of material interests, if one were to wanted to make the establishment of a central bank dependent on a law. It was objected that it often happens in England, Questions about the establishment of speculative purpose institutes of to submit the matter to Parliament for a decision, but the Majority of the Assembly initially against the principle of the concessions and just in case this principle should nevertheless become popular, that the concession should not be granted by way of administration, but on the basis of legislation.

The ratio of votes was as follows: a

Von Dechend, Mendelssohn,
Meyer, Schottler, Wesenfeld.

Against: Bamberger, Becker, Benndorf, Conrad, Delbrück, Friedl countries, Fromberg, Hinsberg, Treasurer, Ladenburg, Mosle, Müller, Samter, Seiffert, Spiegeler, Spiegeler, Steiner, Stephan, Stengel, Warsaw, Witte, Zuckschwerdt.

Possibly voted in favour of the concession being granted by the administrative authorities:

Bamberger, Conrad, v. Dechend, Friedländer, Menos obn, Mener, Steiner, Stengel, Warsaw.

For the concession to possibly be granted by way of Legislation passed, agreed:

Becker, Benndorf, Delbrück, Fromberg, Hinsberg, Kämmerer, Ladenburg, Mosle, Samter, Schottler, Seiffert, Spiegeler, Wefen field, Zuckschwerdt.

The following abstained from voting on this question:

Müller, Stephan, Witte.
Fifth:

The establishment of issuing banks is to be carried out under compliance with the following normative conditions stand.

This sentence was adopted by 13 votes to 13. After which includes both the system of note unity and the system of con cessionation was rejected on a case-by-case basis, it basically resulted as a necessity to move to the system of normative conditions Meanwhile, different elements united to form a negative vote, so that with regard to this point, as mentioned, only A tie was reached, namely the vote
ratio as follows: |

The following voted for the system of normative conditions: Becker, Benndorf, Fromberg, Hinsberg, Kämmerer, Ladenburg, Mosle, Müller, Samter, Seifert, Spiegeler, Steiner, Stephan.

The following voted against this system: |
Bamberger, Conrad, v. Dechend, Delbrück, Friedländer, Meyer, Mendelssohn, Schottler, Stengel, Warsaw, Wesenfeld, Witte, Zuckschwerdt.

Regarding the individual normative conditions, the following was also mentioned:

In general, it must be said that a conflict asserted between those who applied the normative conditions to wanted to impose the most difficult conditions possible, and those who adhered to a milder interpretation. On the part of the representatives of the principle The banking unit was given the statement that, by using its fundamental view remained in the minority, they considered it their duty, to ensure that the new forms of paper that are to be created= banks remained as harmless as possible and that they did not shy away from establishing the normative conditions in such a way that the formation new issuing banks actually becomes impossible.

On the other hand, the reply was that freedom to

The justification of central banks is taken seriously and the normative conditions in such a way that it actually creates a system of bank freedom

This conflict of aspirations is undoubtedly due to

The following decisions have been of great influence, since each of the Normative condition aggravating provision thereby be adopted could that one voice from the number of supporters of the normative conditions with which the opponent associated them. It was mm-more with regard to the normative conditions, the following and without roll-call vote decided:

a. In the case of private note banks, the participants should be foli-liable and the number of at least fix.

One side had proposed that Privat=

note banks have the form of share certificates. It was

Above all, it was argued that the form of establishment of banks the stock company has the greatest popularity in Germany, and that namely all existing note banks, unless they are here and there established by corporations such as communes, estates, etc., are constituted as joint-stock companies. In addition, the form of the Stock company is the only way to have a certain limited capital for a specific purpose. This view, however, was not popular with the majority. Initially, individual

Votes are in favour of establishing limited partnerships on shares of does not necessarily exclude the right to issue notes. This form fe a safe and reliable one. From another side, however, one saw a great danger in general, joint-stock companies or shares

186

founded commandit companies the right to issue notes:

Neither in England nor in Scotland have I a freedom existed, and especially in the last-mentioned country consider solidarity as an indispensable complement to the bank= freedom. One should not remove all the barriers that have been drawn in other countries the view that solidarity in England and Scotland had degenerated into a mere form, and that if an illimited society a crisis comes, only domestic servants and The idea that people who are put forward turn out to be the owners is a completely erroneous. A member of the meeting mentioned that he himself participated in the bankruptcy of an illimited company and that as a result of the joint liability he will receive his money with interest from the founders of the company. In view of the fact that that in Scotland a bank issuing notes must have at least six personal Participants must have, a similar provision was requested here. This The motion met with lively opposition, which was based on the following arguments:

The form of a general partnership with at least 6 partners habern is a completely new, never-before-seen in Germany – and almost identical with the prohibition of the establishment of note banks. The Business of limited issue of notes without any and all somehow speculative operation is a comparatively unluccrative that no one can buy with all his wealth and all his male credit in it. Under this condition not a single central bank will be created, and whoever wants to allow it at all, it must also be done through the capital society customary in Germany tion in the form of a stock corporation or, at most, a limited partnership. In England, limited liability was not yet known when the banks were founded with joint and several liability of the partners. Example is therefore not decisive for us. And the good experience, which was made especially in Scotland with the local system has, it should be countered that the form customary in our country is also quite has proven itself well. We are replacing the, by no means the peak of full= benefits of solidarity through a number of other Precautions: Limitation of permitted transactions, business regulations, Control etc. One could argue about which of the two is the advantage= is the more numerous, but both combined amount to a prohibition.

Joint and several liability contradicts the principle of joint-stock companies, whose essence consists in the fact that individuals with a part of their assets for common purposes, in contrast to the commercial companies in which the participants with their entire assets for a specific purpose. If one wants to support the Actiengefellichaften withhold the right to issue notes in order to prevent such transactions from the trading cfcies, it would be logical to give each individual to grant the right to issue notes. There is not the slightest Reason, a certain number of people, so as proposed, 6 Persons, in community, to grant a right, and such to each individual to deny individual ones, especially since such a determination is purely illusory would be, because even just one person who wants to issue notes will always Find 5 straw men. The right to issue notes instead of stock companies

187

harvests in trading companies goes in principle further than it is likely to be in the interests of the applicants and in fact – If the personal responsibility that comes with which is linked to joint liability, is missing in the joint-stock companies, and this deficiency prevents stock companies from granting the right to issue notes, emission, it must be pointed out that it is here against legal precautions, and this already through the latest legislation on the free formation of joint-stock companies has happened on a large scale. – Solidarity should be individual cases have proved to be more favourable for the creditors than after substantial or even just worth mentioning barrier against misuse of the grades issue it will not be able to be viewed. This restriction as far as whether it can be produced at all is only determined by the unconditional redemption obligation of the grades must be found. |

Nevertheless, the normative condition communicated above was adopted by 13 votes to 12.

A member then attempted to confirm that in the spirit of this resolution a limited partnership would be entitled to shares, to issue notes if it has six personally liable partners. However, others have contradicted this consequence.

b. A central bank shall have an initial capital of at least one million thalers and the amount of the notes issued, the fully paid shares – Capital not exceed. N

In relation to the amount of the initial capital Two different views prevailed. One side claimed the authority to establish central banks must be linked to a certain Minimum amount, while on the other hand you can have a minimum amount is completely unnecessary and the setting of a Marimal amount was considered necessary. From the representatives of the former The view was raised that a certain guarantee was provided if

188

A large amount of capital was used to establish the bank. the requirement of a large capital would lead to reckless and fraudulent tive enterprises are excluded, since it is in the interest of the The task of the draftsman was to insist on sound management. from this side it is desirable to increase this minimum amount to the sum of three million. From the other side It was argued, however, that this would create a increase in private banknotes, which is impossible to handle and makes it is absolutely impossible for the Central Institute to dominate the private banks. The setting of a maximum amount reduces the risk of premiums, which is always present when new banks are founded. Small banks may, at the place where they are founded, at most,

province, and in such a limited circle they could to have a beneficial effect. At present, however, there is the misfortune of would be that no bank would limit itself to its own circle, but rather aim to bring their music to distant regions
 The representatives of the other view objected to this in turn replied that in industrial areas, for example in the Rhine Province and Westphalia just as well as in Frankfurt, Bremen, Saxony and Baden independent institutes work in the most prosperous way could, if the legislation only gave them the necessary scope
 The proposal to increase the capital of the note banks to one million or half a million, makes it possible to carry out such
 To establish institutes is downright illusory. It is necessary that one when setting normative provisions, one should not focus on to prevent any and all abuse from the outset, because this
 The result is that the legislation will not affect either large or small banks could ever achieve. The vote was to set a Maximum of one million thalers or less for the founding= capital was rejected by 16 votes to 10. It was also rejected the setting of a minimum of three million thalers, whereby 5
 Voices for the minority view were found, and finally the above
 The result reported was that the note issue was set at the level of The reason given for limiting the start-up capital was that the latter as a rule, the standard for the extension of the natural effect= circle of the bank.

c. The smallest section shall not be less than ten thalers, after the introduction of the gold standard not less than five-twenty thalers.

This resolution was adopted in accordance with the Scriptures

189

ical opinions of a very large number of Chambers of Commerce and was as a reason for payments in smaller amounts fmuch could be mediated by cash. Rejected was an additional request, according to which the amount of the smallest appointments notes to be issued shall not exceed one tenth of the registered capital fshould be. " :

d. Banknotes do not have any privilege in the competition
 have. | |

This proposal was accepted without further discussion as a matter of course adopted unanimously.

e. A part of the selected-
 The notes given should be in cash, the rest through Discounts with at least two signatures that are not run for more than three months, be covered.

The question of third coverage will be discussed further below.

The principle was established here that, as far as the covering of notes is not done by cash, this is done exclusively in bank= moderate changes may exist. In doing so, recourse was made to the already developed view that the note is the representative of good banking Bill of exchange. The criteria of bankability, insofar as they apply in Regulatory measures that can be identified at all were in the presence two signatures and limiting the circulation time to a maximum of 3 months. One side claimed that in Bremen a six-month target is generally usual, and that the festival setting a three-month deadline for bank bills of exchange would significantly hinder this. However, this objection was refuted by that the banking institutions in Bremen are in no way is prohibited from discounting bills of exchange that have a term of more than three months that, however, if these bills of exchange are to serve as note cover, these Deadline must be met. Regarding the requirement of two Signatures highlighted that in fact even the Prussian bank occasionally issued bills of exchange with only one signature that this does not comply with the existing regulations and any such operation at the risk of the royalty funds of that official successes, whoever undertakes the same.

As for Lombards, one speaker said that it was not understandable why Lombard transactions are not given the same ability ability to serve as note cover, as bills of exchange. On equally short expiry times and on good, easily realizable values ft limits, they offer at least the same security as a good bill of exchange;

1%

Yes, they even have the advantage that they can, regardless of the moment= the debtor's ability to pay can be realized at any time; and the underlying business relationship is an economically just as legitimate as that from which the bill of exchange arises. The possibility that Lombardizations would lead to agiotage instead of the legitimate Trade is supported, and the same applies to bills of exchange. And the most obvious way to carry out Lombard transactions in the form of bills of exchange dress, show how weak the basis of the adopted principle is. – It is completely sufficient to have:

“good, easily realizable collateral with appropriate short

"expiration times"

As a sub-determination, the length of the expiry period be specified and further stipulated that bills of exchange must have two signatures and which collateral objects are generally used to cover banknotes= should be cash.

This is the corresponding provision in almost every bank statute, and it remains to be proven that they are too liberal. Meanwhile,

Lombards are not recognized as sufficient cover, without prejudice to the bank's obvious right to conduct Lombard transactions.

f. Note banks may only hold real estate for their own Acquire business supplies, no mortgage funds, securities and acquire goods for their own account, neither land-securities and mortgages, nor their shares or those of other Private note banks lend money, do not issue blank credits
no bills of exchange with less than two signatures discount, do not rediscount domestic bills of exchange,
still have more than a month to run.

The meeting was guided by the desire to business operations of the note banks to exclude all such operations, which entail a greater risk or the solidity of the business= operation.

One member spoke out against these provisions as being too far-reaching,
with the following motivation:

"If a bank which does not have more than the amount of its effective Capital issues notes, certain values for the full circulation sum has to be kept in stock, so the security and redemption ity of the notes is guaranteed; their entire capital is available as reserve behind it and is only considered in the second row; it needs therefore not always as mobile as the one for redeeming notes directly determined active fund. One could safely, if not the whole, but a considerable part of that capital for free distribution obedience, if only all speculative transactions are absolutely

191

The need to protect private banks in their fraud-based to prevent efforts directed by poorly founded grades, has not yet been proven! Why should the loan of note bank shares (so shares after all!) is prohibited, and on the other hand the Creditbank shares be permitted? Why should the acquisition of a mortgage, e.g. to provide greater security for discounted bills of exchange, as is often the case= comes, and on the other hand, the discounting of the same bills of exchange without such s be allowed? Why do we want to prohibit banks, undoubtedly= to grant blank credits to secure houses and thereby such Houses are forced, in certain cases, to "ride" bills of exchange, whose Value perhaps lies only in the same signature? It is not fail to recognize that excessive lending of own shares and those other banks, as this may affect the stock market game favoured, – that excessive exposure to mortgage=Security= ties, as this may result in a significant portion of the funds is laid down, – that finally an excessive granting of Blank credits, thereby provoking excessive credit usage is, – that all such excess the solid and mobile position

the bank. But such operations can be completely cannot be avoided; and if you prohibit them, you do not cause anything further than formal circumventions, which occur everywhere where such regulations exist. – It is sufficient to set a reasonable limit to fix, perhaps in such a way that in addition to the banknote cover, at least half of the capital

must be available in cash, bills of exchange or Lombard, and each

Speculation transactions for one's own account are prohibited.

The security remains much greater than the for the notes of the Prussian bank!

Despite these efforts, the above restrictions, with adopted by a large majority, since a bank which fuffed above ftricts, just to the note emission ver= have to forego

Only the last-mentioned one led to a more lively discussion. mood regarding rediscounting. A motion was submitted according to which a note bank cannot rediscount domestic bills of exchange which has to run for more than ten days. Meanwhile, this proposal was rejected as going too far. The general principle It was determined that a paper bank could not trade with its Giro and that any rediscounting is a reprehensible act, which in the The intention was to exploit the Giro in this way. It was It is emphasized that some private note banks have the practice of using their. Giro verfehne bills of exchange on the stock exchange and through the sale to obtain a business advantage even at a higher discount On the other hand, it was described as completely harmless if a piece of paper= bank now and again in a single case by the location of its business is forced to make cash by continuing a long exchange To obtain cash. Undoubtedly, it is impossible to obtain by legal to ensure that rediscounting is not a business moderately, but only on special occasions, Several voices speak out against a legal restriction. In order to prevent unsound trading with the Giro, it will be sufficient to stipulate that rediscounts may only be made to the order of the Central Bank or that they are not carried out under the official discount rate. It is questionable to prohibit a bank from issuing its bills of exchange was to be realized: it could thereby possibly be rendered incapable to redeem their notes. The term domestic bill of exchange an insufficiently determined one. It would be assumed that such a According to the wording of the regulation, it may even be forbidden to accept aunts to deliver the bill of exchange before maturity, less the discount.

192

The majority, however, found in the determination, as mentioned above, has been divided, a good means to prevent rediscounting in critical or reprehensible extent.

g. Note banks may only accept interest-bearing deposits accept at least two months' notice.

If short dispositions are accepted, they stand there—fequal to the notes in terms of coverage requirement.

It was argued that the cofequence of this mood to also those institutions that accept deposits, without issuing notes, to impose a similar restriction.

Many banks have introduced the practice of paying out deposits on sight, and this facility has proven to be safe in various crises proven.

This motion was also accepted in view of the fact that in this way the security of the business operations can be determined

A further proposal was that deposits should not be may be assumed in excess of the amount of the share capital. The=

However, it was rejected because it was assumed that the care of the Deposit business is an outstanding task for the bank.

193

h. The bank must, in order to avoid bankruptcy, Immediately redeem notes for metal.

This request was considered self-evident and without any further justification adopted unanimously. Further proposals were not that note banks were set up at every location in the North German Confederation, where Notes issued by other banks within 24 hours of

must be redeemed upon presentation, or possibly that each bank redemption office in Berlin. However, these applications were rejected, as well as a mediation request that at least a redemption obligation to one of the three locations: Frankfurt, Leipzig or Berlin. It

It was described by one side as insufficient that the banknotes

can only be redeemed where they are issued. – If the cash

stock of a single bank is not sufficient to participate in all redemption= to have the funds ready, they must turn to the Central Bank and let the money come. The proposal is feasible. From other

On the other hand, the feasibility was disputed because the notes were a means of circulation that should only serve a specific circle.

It is sufficient if they are redeemed where they are issued,

since every bank has an interest in having as many redemption points as necessary for their business operations.

i. A provision to the effect the bank is obliged to also accept such forgeries of its

to redeem notes which, when applying ordinary charges—

attention as such cannot be recognized, was eliminated by moving on to the agenda. The Assembly did not refuse to consider such a provision as appropriate
However, he believed that this was not included in the normative provisions
It was argued in particular that the criterion according to which the replacement area is to be measured, is too vague. A technical Examination, as required here, would involve different people
behave differently. |
k. The status shall be published every month take place.

That a regular publication of the status is essential,
was taken for granted by all sides and in many
The Chambers of Commerce's opinion has expressly emphasized this. From several sides
The wish was expressed that a weekly publication of the status, as is the case with the Prussian, English and French Banks were brought here. However, it was replied that these large banks to publish their status more frequently

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 13

194

e

free, because they form the barometer from which the commercial
The public learns in what proportion the circulation of banknotes to cash money. This is completely impossible for small banks. The same sometimes have a lot of cash lying around, while at a other time a large amount of notes would come back. From such a fact
The public cannot draw a conclusion about these matters, and the monthly

Publication is completely sufficient. |

l. The branches may not operate any business than the central offices.

A further proposal that private banks should not have branches was rejected because the banks were at least given the opportunity possibility «to provide assistance by establishing branches, where their help can be used. Rejected were the proposals to add the following normative provisions:

m. Each central bank has to the North German Federal Reserve:
kaffe the third part of the net profit, which is 5 pCt.
of the share capital.

It was assumed that such a provision would also be included in the normative provisions.

n. No private bank may be established at the headquarters of the Central Bank. establish a bank.

This provision was requested by analogy with the English lical conditions. It was, however, argued that the German Conditions of a substantially different nature exist, and that central banks on the site the central office could be kept under much better control than those in remote small towns.

A subsequently submitted motion of the content, still the following to add normative condition:

o. If the third part of the share capital is balance sheet as lost, the bank is obliged to liquidate,
was no longer discussed.

After the conclusion of the deliberations on the normative conditions, nor the question whether these normative conditions are only for the should be valid for private note banks or also for the Central Bank.
A decision in this regard was not taken because in the meantime several Members of the Commission who are prevented from attending by other business and were not informed of the upcoming consultation, Meanwhile, a member made the following statement to
It was stated in the minutes that it was not his intention to give the Prussian bank

195

to grant any other privileges than those for which they make a contribution. In order that their notes are accepted in the state treasuries would have to give something to the state, and this privilege is to leave her with it. Any other privilege would be unjust= finished explain.

Incidentally, it should be noted here that in the course of the discussion also included the privileges of postage and stamp exemption, which the Prussian bank has enjoyed so far, has been mentioned several times find, and that a vote on it has not taken place, However, many sides expressed the view that it was self-evident to consider that such privileges cannot be renewed. It
One side claimed that the postage exemption, which the Prussian bank enjoys, benefits the public, because mediate the same money transfers from one place to another, where the fent funds are used, can be done free of charge. It was however, from other sides, namely from those who are involved in the Prussian fche Bank will take a special interest, a special emphasis on the Maintenance of these privileges is not laid down.

Sixthly;

There is a need for a standard for determining on the ratio of cash reserves to banknotes circulation.

The following gentlemen voted for this sentence:

Bamberger, Becker, Benndorf, Conrad, v. Dechend, Friedländer, Fromberg, Hinsberg, Kämmerer, Ladenburg, Mendelssohn, Meyer, Moste, Stephan, Samter, Seiffert, Spiegeler, Stengel, Warfschauer, Wesenfeld, Witte, Zuckschwerdt.

Voted against: N

Delbrück, Müller, Schottler, Steiner.

The following considerations are linked to this sentence: One can from the view that the banks and in particular the Central Bank bank special provisions on the amount of cover which it m stock, are not to be made, as is the case, for example, in France is the case; or one can assume that to prescribe a certain ratio of the covering funds, and in this either build on the current situation in Prussia, according to which the third coverage is to be prescribed, or switch to a such an institution as exists in England, according to which the sum of notes to be issued uncovered on a certain, arithmetic basis holds nife fixed amount is contingent or finally, one can maintain that the entire amount of the banknotes is covered by metal By accepting the above sentence, the two Extremes were excluded. One member had argued that it is theoretically justifiable that the issuance of uncovered notes not at all, he had meanwhile decided to not wanting to give practical consequences to this theoretical view, by acknowledging that such a regulation would affect the law on banknotes fhed instead of benefit only bring harm and therefore no one wants would be driven. Likewise, those members in the Minority, which generally has a certain ratio of the covering funds did not want to dictate, but left everything to the discretion of the bank administration. After accepting this sentence The question therefore only arose whether one wanted to hold on to the systems of third coverage, or switch to the system of cou= tincture.

| 13*

196

Seventh:

It was then decided by 22 votes to 4, that a system of quotation should not be introduced.

A speaker tried to prove in a detailed lecture that the prosperity of the country a determination cannot be dispensed with, according to which the amount of uncovered notes to a certain extent even more closely

He stated that he would have to hold on the view that in relation to means of payment the general principle has no validity that traffic that of which it is not The banknotes, which are given the security, are issued to to be accepted as payment by any state treasury, are different there, as another paper means of payment, such as a bill of exchange. In which the state prescribes that the note of the central bank to the state cash in exchange, he artificially creates an opportunity to accommodate such a note, and therefore prevent the note, when it is no longer needed by traffic, it is discarded. If the system of absolute freedom of construction were implemented, such precautionary measures should prove superfluous, it would be considered then the greatest possible caution of the public in the use and acceptance of banknotes; until then, however, and especially among the current circumstances, the banknote is a preferred means of payment medium, which one should not allow to multiply at will. A Banknote, which is given a high degree of faith by the state, for certain an instruction to the market, a permit to create new To create products before consumption fills a gap in the boron council. He therefore considers it an irrefutable, volte-economic law that an excessive issuance of banknotes leads to first drive the metal money out of the country and then an artificial, causes unjustified price increases which must lead to crises; He therefore considers it an imperative requirement of the public good, that the state should take precautions in this regard.

197

This view found lively support from various quarters. Contradiction. It was stated that the system of the Peels Act was in Eng country itself was severely criticized, and only a few voices were raised for the maintenance of the same. It was in the year 1865 in the Prussian House of Representatives by MP Michaelis a motion for Quotas for banknotes have been introduced. The same would if it had been adopted, the most unspeakable abuses would have resulted At that time, Mr Michaelis had the quota figure to 60 million. If this proposal had been approved at that time, Since then, crises have occurred five different times There is an incredible traffic jam as soon as you see that the Prussian bank is approaching a state in which it would no longer do business. In 1857, the Prussian Bank has approached the limit of one-third coverage and has reached the decided to strictly comply with the law. As a result, which aggravated the crisis to the extreme. If at that time they right to complain about the restrictive regulations of third coverage to ignore, there would have been no talk of a crisis. On the other hand, it was added that each quota number had the stamp of arbitrariness. How can one prove that 60 or 100 million the correct amount that may remain uncovered.

The possibility of unlimited traffic through notes without full metal coverage, however, must be given, because an absolute limit for the need cannot be determined. On the other hand, however, we must also take into account the increasingly questionable limit must be drawn to the cult of notes that is taking place. If, as before, every real or supposed need for money through unconditional increase in banknote issuance, then we are drifting ever faster towards the paper currency, whose and England now every great state enjoys. The Peel Bank Act have, in addition to their shortcomings, also attractive advantages and the system can also be applied to us, if we only use it as a rule add what happens in England only exceptionally, namely the Provision that exceeding the quota figure under the

198

The bonus of a discount raise is fine. In the case of a fold Production and speculation are determined at the moment: warns where the circulation approaches that limit and the extensive, Nevertheless, sustainable aid cannot be ruled out.

Such a provision would have been made by the Prussian bank, for example, in June of last year forced to increase the discount rate, the stock exchanges were closed in warned and relieved, while now within 4 days from 4 to 8 pCt. had to be jumped, which caused the war panic at the moment have become extraordinarily severe.

Voted in favour of setting a quota: Treasurer, Meyer, Schottler.

Eighth. After, as mentioned, the system of quota had been rejected, the assembly decided by 22 against 4 Voices, that to cover the notes at least the third part the circulating sum in cash. should be.

It was recognized by all sides that the third coverage as a principle has its major shortcomings; proof that the bank in terms of their music issue could not be embarrassed if they third of the issued sum in cash, in no way. All fundamental objections, which are usually asserted against the third coverage, as acknowledged with good reason; in particular, it was not denied that the bank had Presentation of a larger amount of notes in the alternative could be redeemed either by redeeming the cash on less than one third of the circulating banknote quantity, or to suspend their obligation by non-fulfillment. Nevertheless, an important argument for maintaining the one-third coverage made so that the audience gets used to it. It is self-evident that a bank which is obliged to at least the third To keep part of their notes in cash, never to give it to these limits, it will rather have a much larger Always keep the amount. The public will not understand if We can now simply abandon this principle and focus on the French maxim. As for the incident mentioned above, who has caused problems at the Prussian Bank, which are to be taken into account only the provision that one third of the Note issue is to be kept in stock in cash, it must be noted It can be said that the crisis of 1857 occurred shortly after the

199

Capital of the Prussian Bank has been increased significantly, and that for this reason, at that time, not entirely normal conditions prevailed

The above resolution was passed with the following 22 votes against the following 4 votes:

For: Bamberger, Becker, Benndorf, Conrad, von Dechend, Friedländer, Fromberg, Kämmerer, Ladenburg, Mendelssohn, Meyer, Mosle, Samter, Schottler, Seiffert, Spiegeler, Stengel, Stephan Warsaw, Wesenfeld, Witte, Zuckschwerdt.
Against: Delbrück, Hinsberg, Müller, Steiner.

Ninth. A member of the Assembly had in the course of It has been repeatedly emphasized in the debate that, in his opinion, there is no need for a one-third coverage requirement, but rather the Right to issue notes is merely to be related to the The bank's share capital. If one believes in the Principles that it is necessary to establish a paper bank of a mini= If the amount of 3 million is required, the banks can be Freedom to issue notes and accept deposits up to the Three times their share capital, without having to worry that a reckless or excessive circulation of notes would be promoted, if it is established by law that all notes issued in the Northern Union are other German central bank cash registers. Special attention was given to pointed out that the Prussian private banks could thus become a prosperous development that was offered to them in his time by the

A

Normative determinations have been atrophied. As self-evident

It was argued that the banks, in order to meet their redemption obligation, can, would hold a corresponding cash balance, even without legally to be obliged to do so. It was also pointed out that the should not only facilitate the issuing of notes, but also In several cases, the same is limited, that in critical times the position of the central banks was a more favourable one, so that restrictions such as those in 1857 had to be applied by the Prussian bank, just to There is no longer any need to fear that the one-third coverage requirement will be met.

Since this principle has been repeatedly and vigorously defended was, it was finally put up for discussion. It was Others have emphatically emphasized that science has irrefutably demonstrated that between the amount of the note issue and the amount of the share capital there is no internal connection. The share capital merely has the significance of a guarantee capital, and the provision of such guarantee funds does not give rise to any Authorization to increase the circulation of paper currency.

200

The following 16 people voted in favour of this view:
Voices:

Bamberger, Becker, v. Dechend, Delbrück, Friedländer, Fromberg, Kämmerer, Ladenburg, Mendelssohn, Samter, Schottler, Spiegeler, Steiner, Müller, Stephan;

against the two following: Hinsberg and Zuckfschwerdt,

while the rest abstained from voting.

Vote by Mr. Heiurich Kämmerer in Hamburg.

It can be assumed that most members of the the German Trade Commission, which met in Berlin in May day, concerning banking legislation, without a feeling of satisfaction The decisions taken are in their nature: to meet the wishes of none of the existing parties This unsatisfactory result can be attributed to the fact fine that one had omitted to first have a comprehensive discussion about the theory of banking before moving on to advice on reforming the current banking situation. It was the Assembly does not have the task of defining the current form of the Prussian to transfer banking facilities to the rest of Germany, but It had to first examine what kind of banking legislation was required after the current standpoints of science and experience as contemporary and should be recognized as normal. To what extent the theoretical investigation results for immediate practical can be implemented, or to what extent in consideration of existing Conditions temporary concessions must be made, if certainly a

A very important point to consider, but it must be secondary and the discussion about it until the basic principles have been established cipien. Only on the basis of an agreement on the principles of banking and the goals to be pursued a sound banking law must be brought about, and the negotiations should therefore first be directed at this object.

The submitter is not able to present new moments, However, it is obliged to point out views which are held by the previous negotiations of our commission partly ignored, partly 'were kept silent, while they were notoriously supported by many of the first national ecc

201

miscellaneous writers, as well as in numerous practical circles warmly represented.

First of all, it is our wish to eliminate the widely held idea that any state bank or privileged credit bank, including the Prussian bank, as a kind of almighty providence over money= market can be viewed as floating and dominating it.

The enormous upswing of the internal and international Dictatorship no longer allows for business exchange. State banks and privileged banks are not able to foresee the effects and to paralyze the one running next to them and con=
The money market is no longer a Central Institute, it is still so powerful to control; through arbitrary Interventions, such as maintaining a low discount and increasing the issue of notes, however, temporary effects can be achieved but they are dangerous because the motives are so rules have no secure basis, and because the natural course of the money market is thereby inhibited. On the contrary, it is the task such privileged central banks, in the approach of difficult times and crises to give priority to their own security and thereby maintain the trust of the public, which through growth of the cash fund, but not by increasing the banknote issue= delivery is achieved.

The Prussian bank has also repeatedly measures have been taken to facilitate the redemption of
To prevent notes as far as possible and thus to keep the cash fund in unusual
The proof of this is that the course of the Prussian banknotes in Hamburg repeatedly 1 to 1½ pCt. under the
The price of silver thalers fell; nevertheless, very strong posts were Prussian banknotes from Central Germany were sent to Hamburg to to obtain silver thalers at a considerable loss. Those measures the Prussian Bank can, under the current system, which are considered appropriate and correct, but they correspond not the next and most important task of a paper bank, namely: the unconditional redemption of the notes at any time. The question is whether measures above kind will remain effective and possible after the Prussian Bank all over Germany including Frankfurt am Main and Hamburg and thus the remaining independent land markets will have laid.

These have so far, in times when the exchange rate has withdrawal of precious metals abroad, the Prussian

202

Bank served as a protective conductor. Whether the current note system of the Prussian Bank would be sustainable if in the future all international It is doubtful whether claims for precious metals will be made directly to them The first condition for a good currency is the unshakable confidence that they are suitable for international traffic suitable. As long as the acquisition of coins or precious metal against banknotes can be made difficult, is on a boom in international exchange business is not to be expected, and that Efforts to mediate London in transatlantic exchange transactions making it more and more dispensable will remain unsuccessful.

The danger that in all critical times, and in such, where the exchange rate allows a withdrawal of precious metals abroad cause unusually large cash payments on submitted notes deprives central banks of the ability to access their other Operations to use increased resources and an appeal to a Position as a helper in need cannot therefore be considered legitimate Banks without issuing notes and which are not responsible for covering the latter have to worry, are in a much more favorable position in difficult times and because they are closer to the public than privileged central banks, act more in detail than the latter, which leads to the elimination of local Panic has often proved to be extremely beneficial. Trade and Financial crises are unavoidable as long as the trend continues lasts to conduct business on a scale that is consistent with the forces the entrepreneur is not in an appropriate relationship. The experience has shown that even the largest and most powerful states or privileged Banks have not been able to prevent repeated crises and that rather, the existence of such institutes has an indirectly detrimental effect, by encouraging the emergence of free banks in the main trading centres and other modes of transport. A majority of banks with freer movement promotes the first important task of banking in general, namely the accumulation of currently idle capital Italy and the lucrative use of the same. The system of the Giro and depository banks are indisputably the modern way of doing things; the same has happened England, the United States of North America and Hamburg brilliantly proven and has completely underlined the importance of the banks issuing notes

Their general distribution also in Germany will most favorable influence on the money market; if all companies, Businessmen and private individuals who have significant cash turnover and therefore have more or less large cash in their own Keep cash in stock, deposit it in a bank instead, a colossal capital is placed in the hands of the German banks, and it will be achieved that a main cause of the occurring money= clamps is eliminated, namely the retention of the circulating medium, which, through the provision of individuals for later-occurring losses, obligations has been brought about so far.

203

The common feature between note banks and deposit banks is the task of collecting capital and making it usable; the The difference between the two is that the paper banks use the unnatural choose the alternative way to raise their capital by issuing notes, which Replacement of the circulating cash circulation funds, to strengthen want, while the deposit banks by accumulating temporarily unused Capital and simpler and faster operation of money turnover achieve significant savings in the need for circulating funds. The The advantage of the depository bank system is that it serves the purpose of banks, namely to accumulate capital and increase the turnover to facilitate, in a more rational manner and to a greater extent can achieve than the paper banks, and further in that in the the former system, paper money can be avoided entirely or 2 at least only needs to be delivered in a form which each concerns about it, namely in the form completely cash-based notes, if there is any need for them at all To further explain this topic, the permitted here Space is not enough, but the ones presented are not new, but Motives that have long been widely recognized are likely to be of further and be subjected to more thorough examination than in the previous agreements actions of our commission have been passed on to them.

This demand seems all the more justified as the ftitution of the Prussian Bank in its present form, only with increased Capital, as a central bank for all of Germany and with federal privileges was requested by mistake. The praises which were expressed in our commission the Prussian Bank, the sender supports from the whole conviction, as far as it relates to the reliability, reality and prudence the management and the management, but he does not hold their system for a contemporary, nor even the creation of a private central bank to serve the economic interests of Germany fpeaking. Proof does not need to be provided that the Preußische Bank does not adhere to the system of deposit and giro banks, but its main task is the issuance of banknotes and the Discount and Lombard business. It should be remembered that the Com-mission has been declared by the most competent side that the Prussian Bank usually only accept larger deposits from the state government and only insignificant ones from private individuals, as the bank does not attach any importance to promote the increase of the latter. This confirms that the Prussian Bank with its current system is not on the same stance as a strong party as the contemporary one, and is therefore probably The desire is justified that the fundamental side of the banking question of a be subjected to further discussion. However, there are other motives for the same wish.

There currently exist in the non-Prussian part of the German Federal Republic, and in particular at the main trading centres, good banking directions and independent changing places, which are based on a long-established Prosperity. They show no need for a significant Change in their institutions and in particular no demand for a German privileged central bank. The necessary consequence of the Establishment of such a would mean the concentration of the entire German Bank and exchange business at the Bundesbank domicile. If as a result of the political unity that has been established and the expected common currency in an unforced way through the natural course the conditions the entire banking and exchange business fih in Berlin centers and the non-Prussian important places, such as Frankfurt a. M. should lose their previous position, this would be a providence, which the changing circumstances of time have imposed, and which thereby Those affected would have to accept this. But in the non-Prussian Federal places through state aid or privileges that are granted to a preferred Central Institute, such a total transformation of the banking system are carried out by legislation, the suffering places a justified right to object to this After the political unity of Germany was achieved through glorious Events have been firmly established, the possible objection cannot be made that in the interest of political unity efforts the greatest possible Unification and centralization in every other area is necessary, without taking into account the economic side of such transformations. A pursuit of banking freedom can neither be considered politically dangerous nor be suspected of particularism. We want the same measure and weight, same coin, same banking legislation, but no privileges, no State intervention in the free development of economic conditions, Such a scenario would be the establishment of a state bank or a private central bank for all of Germany. The fact that our Homeland of the diversity of places where science, art, industry and trade have reached a special bloom, a large part of fine

It is undeniable that the city owes its existence to culture and prosperity.

previous political discord in some respects the explanation for the decentralization peculiar to Germany in the areas of the advertising and intellectual activity, but one should consider the blossoming child not throw it out with the unclean bath. It would be foolishness to to forcibly snatch a great treasure from the nation because in dark times has grown tall. |

It cannot be denied that in some circles in Germany a consistent recognition of the views expressed here about Bank= beings as a result of a long-standing habit of using Banknotes and paper money have not yet been introduced. Using this means of payment, one has become accustomed to proving one's existence and unchanged continuation is an unavoidable need. In addition, However, the view is widely held that by issuing paper money and banknotes a great economic gain for the respective State is achieved by obtaining interest-free capital almost free of charge. However, the proponents of this view find very numerous, but so thoroughly contradicted by the most competent economists suggests that the question on this matter can be considered as decided.

No one claims that government paper money or banknotes issue a capital is created, and therefore requires a point fine discussion.

Money in coins is not capital in any other sense, as any other object that has a value of exchange, it is no more or less capital than any commodity and any alienable or useful possession. It is not only cash that brings in interest, but also any other capital, rent, lease, labor wages, writer's fees form the interest on capital, which in dwellings, lands, labor, mental capacity. The Coined money is used to mediate the turnover and serves to= equal as a general measure of value. The level of demand for circulating money depends on the economic stage of the country concerned, the Need increases with the growth of general prosperity and the Progress of production. Since cash and the resources required for its production The metals required for production are nothing more than exchangeable goods, then with increasing demand the purchase of the relevant money or metal from neighbouring countries or the manufacture of the same by the Mining is a self-conducting sequence and takes place in the same In a similar way to the acquisition of all other necessary for the country's use Goods. Trade guarantees the satisfaction of a real need.

206

need, since the latter is expressed precisely by the fact that the prices reach the level required to make import profitable An increase in the need for money is reflected in the increase in the interest rate and the rising value against other values, e.g. goods, funds and bills of exchange to foreign places, whereby the latter fall in price and thus become suitable means of exchange to a profitable export to other countries against payment in precious metal. The money supply regulates itself, provided that the natural development and not through intervention is regulated by a higher authority. Such a case of disruption is the Existence of government paper money and privileged banknotes, which are for are unusable for international traffic and whose circulation not always a given by the circumstances, but often on Resolutions of the state or the bank boards, which are not always ignorant and unable to meet the real needs of their own country and its relations with foreign countries. Money is therefore a very important and delicate factor in both large and small Traffic, yes, you can hunt, apart from the ethical side of man's life, the most important. It is now in all areas of the people's economic life and state institutions the endeavour prevailing, to achieve the highest solidity and expediency, and ,although without fear of the resulting higher costs. From the stand= From the economic point of view, there is nothing to prevent a large capital for the purpose of producing the best known medium of circulation, while enormously larger capitals for other means of transport, such as railways, port buildings and steamships. The coursing money no coupons attached, but through the services that allow the current Owner performs, "Daffelbe works productively like other tools of the Traffic. Admittedly, it is now only a question of finance, namely the following:

If it is possible without danger to carry out a significant part of the coursing the coins made of precious metal by state and privileged banks= notes, it is then so large that it exceeds the profit which from the saving of al, in unbroken Maake surpasses?

In deciding this question we should not stop at the well= orderly financial situation of our fatherland, because the future is hidden from us and all love for the fatherland cannot conceal the humble Feeling that the future fate of the same is in the hands of the

207

Providence. The majority of the great nations in Europe and America is suffering greatly under the pressure of devalued paper money, whether it consists of banknotes or government paper money. Should not the disastrous experiences of so many states a condemnation= judgment on the system of paper means of payment pronounced before us Although the views expressed here on the economic importance of paper circulation may be generally recognized, fever, the objection will often be raised that banknotes for are essential for traffic. However, it would be inadmissible to immediately enact a law which will prohibit the issue and circulation of

Banknotes were completely banned, but it is undoubtedly possible to Banknotes, or at least those that are not fully funded, through a uniform Banking legislation with territorial provisions and the resulting to make gradual modification of the method of payment unnecessary. After the general establishment of giro banks in large-scale traffic a payment system is brought about, as in London, New York and Hamburg, and in Berlin by the Cassenverein started, banknotes for square traffic are no longer be necessary. For the monetary turnover with the domestic market, the emerging private banks in such a way that payments to other German places by bank transfer or à vista instructions (bank Post-Bills). If this route is made possible by a premium of + or 4 pCt. must be charged, but the postage is waived, which caused the banknote mailing. The existing acceptance The ability of travellers to carry large sums of banknotes can by the circular credit letters so widespread in England, which were issued by the Banks are administered against full deposit and at the same time the output= country, be completely replaced. Small traffic requires the Banknotes are not; in non-Prussian northern Germany, the habit there is still little noticeable, but often a decisive difference inclination. People prefer to carry silver and gold pieces with them as often dirty and torn pieces of paper, and one encounters a reserved, half-ashamed feeling when one is rewarded for services rendered or purchased items pay the price in paper. So little justified such peculiarities of the people may appear, they speak but against the necessity of paper money in small instalments. In England there are no notes of the English Bank under 5 pounds sterling, in France not less than 50 francs, until recently not less than 100 Francs. Except in Germany, small paper money circulates almost exclusively in bankrupt states. After the expected introduction of the GoD-currency, any reason for retaining small banknotes be eliminated.

208

Should the complete abandonment of banknotes nevertheless be deemed unavoidable, be kept manageable, the new banking legislation would To allow the issue of banknotes backed entirely by cash. However, no privilege is granted, but to all banks which are subject to the law the German commercial legislation, which are granted the authority, to issue such notes under the strictest control. Mainly to legally oblige the banks making use of it to establish a separate Account and a separate cash box for the banknote business and at the appropriate court a general mortgage deed for all stocks this box, which is always equal to the full amount of banknotes in circulation= come, in favour of the holders of notes of their issue. Of course, the banks will only be able to secure the expense and some profit to such an institution This coverage can be achieved by a small premium, which the borrowers pay. Since notes of this type are mainly used for payment= mediation at neighboring places, they are one small premium, because either postage or bank transport costs. Such an arrangement would provide the great advantage. It should be ensured that there are never more banknotes in circulation than the current needs, and that this does not interfere with the natural course of the money market. There can be no doubt that if the form and text agree, the fully founded notes of a Bank from any other bank operating on the same legal basis fts, be accepted as a good payment, and even if it were perhaps possible to impose such a duty by law. Proposals of this kind do not in any way prejudice the continued existence of the Prussian bank, but it would probably lose its privileges and of the previous right of free music issue through active seizure the deposit and giro system, combined with other transactions, would experience a great upswing; also higher dividends would be a result of the. However, the bank needs then a significant increase in capital. The acquisition It will be easy, since investments in bank shares of a solid nature are very. The large oversubscription that was seen last spring at the Subfcscription to one in Berlin and two in Hamburg built new Banks provides evidence of this. There can be no doubt= that an issue of new shares even in the amount of 100 million Thalers would find the most willing takers. The advantages which the solid foundation of the institute and the extensive branching of the ftant branches offer, as well as the then possible participation in the large business, guarantee the Prussian bank the most favorable results also in the future.

209

To facilitate the transition phase, the law could a deadline, such as five years, should be set, by which Expiry of all German banks now authorized to issue banknotes must have redeemed their current notes in annual installments. Should During this period the long-standing habit of paper money not be overcome, the proposed project of the fully funded Notes open for use.

Against the possible objection that the state for political reasons a continuation of publicly recognized paper money, because in the event of a catastrophe in the hands of Providence and complete exhaustion of funds, in issuing notes with Forced course is the only remedy against which, although perishable, Such an objection must be answered by saying that if such a If the intervention of a bank is not necessary, but the the State concerned can set the assignat press into operation itself.

In the event that neither the dispensability of banknotes nor the System of fully founded recognition should, if one considers Bant-want to have notes, to general banking freedom,

as the only correct system that remains.

Opponents of banking freedom fear a flood of Notes and a confusion due to the diversity of them. The Examples from Switzerland and Scotland show, however, that the prevailing system of central bank freedom under strict legislation has had consequences of the kind feared, and there is probably nothing why the effect of similar institutions in Germany is a
This system has the advantage that the height of the amount of banknotes in circulation is precisely based on the actual need regulated and not standardized according to the views of a central institute;
The annoyance caused by differences in grades has also increased in recent years.
mentioned countries, because the strict legislation, and in particular
The prescribed regular publication of the bank status is effected a degree of trust and unification which will ensure the circulation of different grades in all parts of the country. According to the general Implementation of banking freedom would increase the real value of the banknote circulatio lation will become clearer and by no means an increase in circulation, rather, a restriction of the same is to be expected. This Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 14

210

The view is based on the abolition of the privilege for individual institutes, who are tempted by it to abandon their purpose and their profit mainly in the accommodation of their grades. This procedure will be determined after the freedom of construction has come into effect by the resulting inhibits, and no more notes will be able to be issued, than the money market can bear. An excellent explanation of this counter=
We have the 1867 in Paris and in Leipzig in German Language published works of the brilliant writer JE Horn "the banking freedom."

A reference to this epoch-making and so far without successful
The work of one of the first economists of our time, which has remained a refutation
Time should be given to further discussion of the subject at this point be preferable.

At the conclusion of this explanation, it may be appropriate to obtained results in the following short sentences:

No state bank, no privileged banks.

Gradual withdrawal of circulating banknotes and state=
paper money.

General banking freedom for all under the Su over No foccupations of the comrades.

Permission to issue banknotes with full TRE

under legally established control.

Vote of Mr. Hinsberg in Barmen.

In accordance with the decision of the Bank Commission, I accept:
occasion to discuss some of the questions submitted to our consultation, in particular the question of banknote cover will be dealt with below.

It was on the last day of the Commission's meeting that Time is too short to discuss this subject in detail can, this circumstance is likely to affect the result of the vote.
be attributed to.

My statement made in January 1870 at the request of the Handelstag view was the following:

"The principle of cash coverage in the ratio of one third of the issued notes does not appear to be secure enough for the notes=

211

Holder. Instead of def it should be stipulated that, if the amount of notes and deposits on immediate termination the two or exceeds three times the paid-in responsible capital, this additional amount must always be available in cash."

It seems to me as if individual members of the Commission (in agreement with the speakers, in the compilation of the various reports qualified my proposal as the "most lax") the view that this principle was an excessive and frivolous Note issue would require banks to pay three times the amount of notes issued without holding a corresponding cash reserve, and would then be embarrassed in the event of a crisis. |

Such an assessment of the sentence, however, becomes clear upon closer examination Consideration as not valid; however, the emission law individual banks are expanded, while others are restricted; Banks, however, would not only keep the amounts in cash in order to which the issue of banknotes would exceed three times the share capital, but keep a further cash reserve, just as the Bank of England has done since 1844, and just as the banks working with one-third coverage always keep more than this third of cash in stock. This extra cash= reserve would represent the bank's power of action in critical times, which could be used to support trade and industry, while the legally required cash balance (equivalent to the amount of notes and deposits, which exceeds three times the share capital= ftetgt) would usually suffice to redeem the backflowing to effect grades.

While the interest of trade would be served by the
If banks could provide energetic assistance in crises, the public would Moreover, have the reassuring certainty – without studying 30
Bank statutes, – that all note-issuing institutions must have a guarantee capital in a certain ratio to the maximum of the issued,
not in metal covered notes.

It has not been disputed by anyone that the current Provisions granting individual institutions unlimited note issuance rightly assure, have their downsides.

If, for example, the Bückeburger Bank has a cash reserve of 10 million thalers, 30 million notes were issued, so that 20 million without metallic cover, while the bank would have 30 million Giroobligo (a guaranteed capital of 2 million, of which Vg million paid in cash, opposite,) fo even the representative of the view that "science has irrefutably demonstrated

| 14 *

212

that between the amount of the share capital and the note issue a internal connection does not exist," must admit that this relationship could lead to serious consequences; the note is not only the question of whether it is immediately bare, but whether it is is fully redeemed; in the latter respect, the relationship of the registered capital to the banknote quantity is of essential importance.

It seems to me that the science of the present question has not yet been decided so definitively and unanimously admitted that several German economists have opted for the thirds:
coverage, the proponents of this principle are in Abroad very rarely; in England in particular, where practical experience have been collected for a long time, the third coverage is just as unpopular as in France.

The Peels Act represents England's view on the matter, fuch as it existed 25 years ago; however, it has the cherished Expectations not met; the restrictive provisions on Banknote issuance has in several cases aggravated the crises, and the repeated suspensions of the Acts prove that when the law was drafted, too much emphasis was placed on to limit the amount of notes without considering that the increase in English trade in just 10 years an increase in circulations= resources and that the lack of these resources in crises must make itself particularly noticeable.

The history of the Peels Act proves irrefutably that the Con= tingentirung, ie the limitation of the number of notes in a traffic area, to be reduced to a certain amount over a longer period of time.

This obvious error in the Peels Act is, however, remedied by the recommended principle is avoided; when applying it, only and left to the market alone to absorb the quantities of notes whose he needs to emit superfluous notes against it; if there is a need for increased Means of transport, either new banks will be established or existing be increased; with rigorous provisions on immediate redemption obligation of banks in as many places in the Reich as possible if the fear before being inundated with notes unfounded.

The view that was prevalent in the 1950s that business a central bank is a very lucrative one, one can issue notes of the West German Banks without a redemption point in the Eastern stamps issue and at the The idea that interest would be earned through slow returns has been proven false. The history of German banks over the last 15 years has fuffificantly proved that a note only circulates where it is in close proximity3 can be redeemed.

213

In contrast, my proposal is closely linked to the Peel3 Act in that he takes the uncovered notes into account when determining the note issue The most correct judgment about the feasibility and practical We gain value from the proposal when we apply it think in different moments and cases.

First of all, there is no need to prove that the English crises of 1857 and 1866 would not have been so dangerous if the Bank issuance of unsecured notes in multiple amounts of the original capital would have been permitted, instead of the legally limited amount, which comes close to the amount of the registered capital. The suspension of the Peels= Acte is nothing other than the granting of this right for a certain moment.

The attached table provides information on the behaviour of the North German note banks in the months of June and July of this year and their performance according to the existing standards, compared with the performance if my suggestions are accepted.

All North German banks, as far as they have monthly statements publish, with the exception of the Prussian Bank, had

end of June towards the end of July

Notes in Circulation Million 743 " 70.5

with a deposit balance of 32 " 47.5

the case inventory was . 39.3 " 47.3

the change in stock. . 76.3 " 78

the total amount of issued

Notes and deposits therefore amounted to 106.3 " 118,

According to my principle, the maximum limit of the total grades emission, including short-term deposits 225.09 million in June and 232.79 million in July. The German industry would therefore have without coming close to this limit, significant assistance can be provided can, while with the existing third coverage many of the banks had to restrict traffic.

In general, the table shows that a large part of the German Central banks from the partially unrestricted issuance rights to which they are entitled right has made a very modest use of it; only in individual A significant circulation has developed in more important places. It can be concluded from this that in the future the Be= authority to extend the issue of notes only by such institutions would be used, which would be involved in important trade and

214

Industrial sites, as is the case, for example, with the larger number the Prussian private banks.

The following should be noted about the individual institutes:

The Prussian private banks have in the month of July ac continuously reduced their portfolio holdings, thus limiting their escompte, while, working according to my proposal, each of them would have about 1 million for the Escompte traffic more could have been prepared.

The Frankfurt Bank, whose entire banknote quantity (and not in In the sense of my proposal, the uncovered amount) to the three= times the share capital, has also served well in this crisis and significantly increased the turnover, although their strength were not strong enough to handle the enormous traffic of the square suddenly alone to cope with when a major Escompte house fits operations limited.

The amount of banknotes issued during the crisis did not exceed the limit, which was permissible according to my proposal. The establishment of a branch the Reichsbank in Frankfurt, as well as an increase in bank capital

the Frankfurt Bank, or rather the resulting Emission of further notes would be useful to the place, without affecting the soundness of the bank's operations.

According to my proposal, the Bremer Bank would stop issuing banknotes by about 9 million; the space would be less felt the lack of circulatory agents in the case, and No one would be bothered by a reduction in the solidity of the place feared.

The same can be said of the Leipzig Bank. The Saxon Bank, whose note issue is unlimited, would, before the crisis, in my opinion proposal, have had to restrict their operations while
At the end of July it was below the limits required by my proposal.

The Prussian Bank, whose operations in 1856 and 1857 were within the limits of my proposal, it would, however, be exceeded, as the table shows; this situation would, however,
could have been remedied without difficulty by increasing capital.

I leave out of consideration the institutes whose sphere of influence is a mixers and whose emissions are of no significant importance.

If we now summarize the above, we recognize that my
The proposal cannot be called a "lag" as it restricts the issuance of several institutes, while giving others more freedom the emission would allow and in a third category with the corresponds quite well to the existing circumstances.

215

On the other hand, my proposal offers a significant advantage for all Banks, which stands out particularly in critical times and which I attribute to the
I particularly recommend the attention of the Commission.

With third coverage, it is not only conceivable, but, in particular,
at smaller banks, it is very easy that the cash reserves are transferred to a Amount that no longer represents $\frac{1}{2}$ of the notes issued. This Possibility imposes on the head of the central bank the duty in critical times to keep the cash reserves intact, if possible to strengthen it. The resulting restrictive measures Trade and industry all the harder, especially in critical times need a coolant support, as was provided in July 1870 by the Prussian Bank was paid in full, while in 1857 the third coverage could not be provided. However, no measure can an institute, on the other hand, can ensure that one at a given moment
Cash treasure is brought below $\frac{1}{2}$ of circulation by the backflow of notes.

When assessing critical times, two cases must be distinguished:
either the trust in the notes remains intact and it is only to ensure that the larger circulation funds required by the circumstances to obtain, or all circumstances are called into question and it is urgent the mistrust in the existing conditions to convert the notes into cash Both options can be implemented under the thirds law. coverage will result in no other option than violating the The law remains; trade and industry are then, however, applied restrictions without any purpose. In my Proposal, every bank, like the English, will always ensure that it . a sphere of influence and those who approach them in critical times maintain a reserve of notes adequate to cover legitimate claims; if this falls below a certain amount, the regulation is carried out by Escompte=increase The Bank may, however, even in cases where its notes are issued Mistrust flowed back, proceed calmly with the redemption and immediately= the previous discount operations in accordance with the receipts from the portfolio; it remains under all circumstances within their legal competence and has only one thing in mind to ensure that it does not reject any note presented; the cash reserves can be a minimum without restricting the bank's operations will need.

To get a clear picture of the boundaries, we set the numbers concerning the quantity of notes, cash, etc., concerning the Prussian bank, here; The note reserve in the last line indicates the moment according to my principle available amount in notes and cash.

216

ee eee men call en ne nm nam pe nnnmneenean nn nn eg

1 l 1 | i

Dec 31 July 31st Oct 31st Dec 31 July 7th Aug 6th

The Prussian Bank had 1856 | 1857 1857 1857 | 1870 | 1870

Banknotes in circulation . 71,388 | 69,005 | 70,298 | 85,146; 164, 693 | 202,488

Short-term deposits estimated at 6,000 6,000. 6,000 6,000 3,000 10,000

Baar 54,715 34,124 33,229 56,349 87,146 92,577

with a registered capital of 11,823,16,835,16,835,21,90,21,900

cip that three times the amount of

equity capital in uncovered |

Notes can be issued. 11,796 9,624 7,436 15,08 | --

Amount of notes which at pre= ftändiger Principle would not have

can be emitted | -- | --

Notes=Reserve according to the principle

– – | 14,847 | 54,211

During the crisis of 1857 the bank had to impose very strong restrictions had to enter in order to receive the cash treasure, she would, according to my Proposal to increase the banknote reserve, instead of 113/, million in December 1856 and 9½ million in July 1857, respectively, kept to at least 20 million and thus the crisis without strong have overcome restrictions. |

The referral was made in 1857 by increasing the capital of the bank to raise 3 to 4 million; by the same means, the same coulant support which the bank gave to the industry in the summer of 1870 made possible.

The bank would have 40 million capital and a cash balance from 89 million in the middle of 1870 to 210 million notes The bank's position would be in the event of strong The return flow of the notes would have been less precarious if they had my Principe worked.

The return flow of 35 million for cash redemption could look at them calmly and without rushing to raise money abroad; The same case of the presentation of 35 million banknotes brought them in the third coverage to the limit of what is permitted and conditional Restrictions of the strongest kind.

The fact that the notes did not flow back in 1870 is due to the successes our weapons, not thanks to the existing law on note coverage. However, I am convinced that we owe this law the restrictions of 1857; I cannot agree with the view that the dispositions the management of the bank, or even the increase of the bank capital, the would have required restrictions.

I believe I have proved above that the Principally would not facilitate the emission of notes, except where such serve the common interest and in the most solid manner would have been feasible; that the principle of restrictions for several Institutes which, where desirable, are supported by the increase in share capital; that when applying of the principle that banks could do the same and more for trade and industry, as was the case in the crisis that has just ended; that in other moments the principle secures the position of the banks more and offers the public more guarantees against unnecessary restrictions, such as the principle of third coverage.

217

A necessary condition for the application of the same is, however, the Obligation of banks to redeem their notes in as many places as possible. Experiences of the last few months are too fresh in everyone's memory for the it seemed necessary to waste some words on this point. The German trade demands and can demand that the evil of the wild notes will be put to an end.

I emphasize this point most strongly: The redeemability of the Grades in many places are the most essential condition of admissibility a majority of banks; without this corrective, the increase by banks, however, can lead to serious consequences, so that I for me personally I would vote for the unity of the central bank if the Redeemability should not be established by law in many places.

However, it is necessary to discuss the question of whether the legislative Factors of the German Empire are entitled to formerly be owned by individual states granted concessions! The question, however, should be on the The banking sector can hardly be decided any differently than in the area of of railway construction, where the privileges previously granted to individual companies in the interest of the whole it was simply annulled.

For banks, it is all the more safe that, overall, interests recognized as necessary to be implemented through legislation, than those banks that are not able to continue under the new regulations would want to issue notes, free to act as credit banks in the future to operate. 1

Should my above remarks reflect the view of the majority for themselves, the decision of the Commission would be that the amount of notes issued does not exceed the fully paid share capital= should rise, would fall by itself; however, it would – even if my proposal should not win the majority – recommend that this limit only for the notes not covered with cash.

Should the provision remain in effect as it is now edited, is thus the successful further development of the German banking system every

218

The same would also be made more difficult by the decision the joint and several liability of at least 7 members, provided that the same execution takes place.

The form of the Joint Stock=, which is completely uncommon in Germany banks would need a longer time before she would be naturalized. The Experiences at the central banks reveal a necessity:

increased liability of the bank shareholders is not at all recognizable.
Decisions of the Bank Commission, taking into account my above motivated amendments could be summarized in the following law:

Art. 1. "For the issue of notes, each share and Actien=Commandit=Gefellfschaft entitled to conduct business in Essentially on the escompte of bills of exchange, the granting of Lombard loans, as well as the acceptance of deposits ift and on whose share capital at least 3 million thalers paid in cash.

Art. 2. The scope of the central banks includes in particular fpecifically excluded is the purchase of real estate at other than Bureau=purposes, the acquisition of goods, shares, bonds= ations, mortgages and other securities for own account, the acquisition and lending of their own shares, the granting of credits in conto current, the escompte of bills of exchange with less than two signatures, the re-discounting of bills of exchange which last longer than 1 month.

Art. 3. Banks of issue may only issue notes of 10 thalers or amounts divisible by 10; they must pay all amounts,
by which the total amount of notes and short deposits exceeds three times the paid-in share capital, at any time in cash; the amount of the Notes issued must be in bills of exchange with at least two signatures, which do not run for more than 3 months, available fine.

Short deposits are those non-judicial deposits understand, which can be withdrawn within one month.

Art. 4. Every central bank is obliged to make available, on request, the presented notes can be redeemed immediately for cash, and also To ensure that their grades are accepted by all other central banks within the German Reich upon request redeemed within 2 x 24 hours after presentation
Each central bank is obliged to issue the notes of every other

Bank in the German Empire, as soon as the approval
Funds are made available.

219

Art. 5. In the case of any of the provisions of Art. 3 and 4 is not complied with, the Chancellor of the German Reich Liquidation of the bank concerned at the commercial court or the competent courts for commercial matters of the district in which

in which the relevant central bank has its head office, and the courts are required to examine the application, and if they consider it justified, to initiate liquidation and appoint liquidators.

The relevant notes are from the proposal of the Reich Chancellor. bank to inform the Commercial Court and to submit a written Justification for granting a period of 14 days.

Art. 6. Each central bank shall pay to the cash office of the German Reich a third of the net income, which is 5 pCt. of the shares capitals exceeds.

Art. 7. All conflicting legal and statutory provisions provisions are repealed by this law."

I have attempted to edit this law in order to give the public which will have to judge the question, to provide a clue on the manner in which the unity of legislation is to be sought without hurting those involved too much.

I do not deny that it is not the task of the Bank Commission is to make laws; on the other hand, the Reichstag is allowed to make a law in the form of We would be happy to receive this expert opinion from the German trading day.

The bill mentions a special status for the Prussian Bank or the Reichsbank is not mentioned; a special provision is necessary to maintain the institute, which has been so beneficial for Prussia and which has the vocation to spread its effectiveness throughout In my opinion, there is no point in expanding it to Germany.

The shareholders of the Prussian Bank will be happy to double the amount of their previous participation in the Prussian bank in shares of the Reichsbank, provided that the management the Prussian bank. The confrontation with the Prussian State will pay out the capital and reserve shares. exist, and the facilities, stocks &c. in the rest on the Reichsbank can be transferred.

This then has the task of determining the monetary unit in Germany to practically initiate, by also in the area of 24½ Guldenfußes Thaler and Gulden bills discounted and Thaler notes

220

issues, fold when redeeming and issuing in the ratio of 7 á 4 settling against guilders. |

It would be) after a short period of effectiveness of the relevant
The banking organization in Germany is described as follows:

| The Reichsbank with 40 4 50 million capital would be in all Countries of the Empire represented in the more important places; in addition to it had the Bavarian mortgages in the individual territories= and Exchange Bank, the Badische Bank, the Sächsische Bank, the Bremer Bank, the Braunschweig Bank etc. The Prussian Private banks with larger capital would have a position similar to
of the aforementioned institutions and the Frankfurt Bank and thereby give the Prussian provinces the same advantages grow, which the other countries of the empire will enjoy.
In this way, the larger and local needs throughout the entire territory of the German Empire to a large extent serves fine; the notes of all banks would be in all places where – Notes are issued at all, be realizable.

Through this facility, which has actually existed for a long time between the Prussian main bank and Prussian provincial banks, whose Feasibility to a greater extent also in America and Scotland has been proven, the banknote amounts would soon become apparent, which by the banks domiciled in individual small states in their natural circulation area; undoubtedly some of these banks find that they are better off if they rely on the renounce the right to issue notes and to conduct exclusively credit banking business.

On the admission of notes into the coffers of the Reich or the
The relevant tax authorities should decide, for example, on the condition that only certain amounts of notes could be kept in the state coffers.

The audience will have no trouble and losses with notes, which are not to be attached at par; it is determined from the composition
The publications of the banks show how strong the overall Note reserve, i.e. the action power of the banks, is and its operations measured accordingly, as is the rule in England.

The German Empire will receive a share in the net profit of the notes= banks find a significant income; after the Preußische Bank the feasibility of this provision has been proven for years and the Badische Bank has recently included it in its statute, probably no reason to let this taxation object go in order to
to seek compensation elsewhere; the proceeds of this tax would be per 1869 approximately 1 million thalers.

ae ne usBunzzv@ uagiag a IIF Inv 1 do H13z1UH Hang vaza 1876 139 ur 3 2363212990240 422% ugo aisaisnyszoucys Ulang 219 anu uvm uuaa "uaunaaz Buas pvasqy Ip Py uhr allnplsoasc pig uod fang ow 2G yu Byg uyagnjaBjno uagjodag Ayppeura pv 29q quy gung ua) ygnrag, 12 V/

42q

09'312 0L'L0T 00'09T 01'751 -aBagun | 06'183 Joz'er org loe'9Tt| 0'86 0876 | 0'68 0768. (0
9.811 08.901 L L888 90.88 88.19 1 9.88 6.28 | 6.8. l 8.9 8.7.9.8 . K. | He. uuazuvc Gs umu
05.0 080 18'1 18'1 28'° so feo | s'0 | to | ro | To 1.0 870 | 30 | #0 1 T0 [eses ss.. oe k
o'p 0:7 84'823 89.88 09.6 916 İLE | ee | 8s | ee |TT TIE | Lk | LT 8.8 0ye ae ee ee between
08'3 08.8 0111 0I T1 09'8 ocg | vr. | pT | ot 8/1 | 90 |90 Ivo so | BT 0% » uoßufan42
09.91 01 ¹ 03'917 09 '91 "aSagun os | LE | 2'e | a6 | aor] 32 97 | 0F | On | OT | T0E]. ee
09.5 02 09'9 07°9 o'I 02 [IT 8/1 (6 os | 90 Ivo IT | LIT IOT | 0L Fe re 03
Location 081 08€ 08' 01 ot 5% 7 | ot |L 80 | So | zo | like 6% | OT ù en pate
ya a 9955 u 05 = co | $0 A vr |ot |80 |60 |60 | 03 " ss tt ttt Banguaqg
9 pi I a == hoe s 10% | 6T 10% - - S . '
place r, 05' NS 01 ot [eo ro0 | OT | LT 5% Ivo | SUN |70 3'0 oT . sade a ed = 1
o'r o't 0F'T 0FT 08'0 oko La izo | Sun 1 S0 | 80 3' % | So | So | SUN | S0 I se >e > > > wa
01'1 0L'T 09' 08' 08'° oo |80 lot | Br | Or | 80 5 ' 20 ico 7% 8/0 »wfFasumod pen
03'S 06'F on' TT 0801 'Ibagun os |23 9s 9' |Le eg 8.1 Ivo 9% | 8h | PF fe et Bla
05.1 place 0g'€ op's 01 ot | OT 6' %0 | 0F | 0F 8% 7% | 30 | T0 | OT | OT Fe ee B3309 1
08, 0% 98'71 9% LI 99' %9 ws | u'r ise ez | ee jor jot | ct %% lea | 93 I !: ! v aouu
08.5 0.9 06% 06° "aBagun 0FT TI | or | oe |L | 20 |L0 TT | or | kek IB ent 009
oL' 09.1 o'g or'e o'I ot Iso Iso 0 | 0' Ivo Ivo | 20 190 | OT | 0L Joe's 3320
08.5 03'S 18'717 TL'PT a bsqun toe | ss e | st izz Iso Ivo Iso o0 og | BB I DRA
09.95 0'083 8 88.09 SULT 12'9 6 6/1 | Ser | 2'6 | Col 05 ago | 3g | GGT 8.9 11777 J anjunc
06.1 tn) F's 08's o'I OT |TT 8t 160 | OT 7% iS0 ES0 TE | OT | OT Fe ee l NRG
09, 09'3 09'q 0F' 0'¹ ot [so | F0 | 24% | 6% | 90% | LT 9T 60 | OT r Bkuo
955 oe ove oe on or c'o ue L'Z LZ 0 5'° S'I C'I 01 oT . eo. . . — ò> o . * uga
) : 9'9 ' 0 : L'0 0 | 6T 6T 9% 90 | 0F | at | 0F 0 [+ "
09.01 09.8 02'61 09'81 89'9 09% I 38 | Eg | Sor L6 | 8s [8T |29 8/9 8/8 98 . 2
o 0.7 08'TL 02511 0978 os's 9 8 8/6 9/8 f E 0 9' % %0 8% | tr | eo Sapun
0FT 0g's 0S'FI 06'S 01 0'⁵⁴ 5'1 |a 0z 171 | 11 ' 4 t ' Senne: } f} G
| 911 6'8 | READ] F , $0 |80 " wpazoaqualjny UYL us yung ung us jung ung jung ung wn ing ung ung yng aun jvpundvous non XE)
nope d qun | eee uamo 15885 'uagajavg jpeg VDD | uaroziqerg 127055
1193046 ies pppu sausen j
G]VZIAVD = UNI 920 #913915 T
nope teen ec gog eee 739 UIG j sog Walang qun ue cpu 231408 N 30g upon 1000 1 p 0 s h Bud . : -
Soapy pA goq 'apurik wag 430 vai varlllog,
WIM UITV YG 2194.0 IG

OLST and also 91%

The Baul Question. ")
from
GD Augspurg,

Member of the Reichstag.

I.

Similar to the coin question, the banking question is also approaching the time: points where it should be decided. Both are Interests that affect the well-being or suffering of each individual. If Nevertheless, and despite the thoroughness which is a trait of the German fic character applies to these questions among the vast majority
the population an unbelievable ignorance and indifference finds, this phenomenon is only partly explained by the fact that the former political disunity of Germany for the individual state the satisfactory solution of such problems is extremely difficult, if not impossible, so that it was considered a futile effort to to deal with them at all. At the same time, however, German country, as far as experience in banking is concerned, nor is there anything to ask in the Childhood because it has not yet occurred, such crises to go through, as in the countries with a widespread banking system until now as an inevitable consequence of the same
But this circumstance would have been a further incentive for the masses, the history and nature of such experiences ungs as they have made other peoples.

Such important interests of the common good are without question in the establishment of our schools too much above the learned studies neglected. A clear presentation of the main teachings of economics fciety should be included in the teaching subjects of at least the upper

*) With the permission of the author, reprinted here from the G.
Hirth's "Annals of 3c."; the article was first published in the "deut. Handelsbl.

Per red.

223

Classes of the gymnasiums. It is by no means outside the comprehension of young people and is of great importance, since only few of them later dealt with economics as a science have the opportunity to engage and therefore, if practical life is not immediately points out, remain completely ignorant of it.

Much has been written about both questions, some good and Right, but even more wrong, and unfortunately those who described as wrong, slogans issued, which the crowd and to which it clings with the tenacity with which in the rule of those who allow themselves to think about an object want to avoid preconceived opinions, despite the fact that they have interpreted them in an incorrect sense.

Such buzzwords are the "universal monetary unification" and "bank freedom."

Just as the desire to immediately achieve a general monetary unification of the To see peoples come into being, prevented thousands from crossing the special needs of the much closer German Coin reform, the word "bank freedom" is also for many of the Concept of a good to be strived for, like the freedom of peoples, the Free trade, free press and other forms of freedom, blindly clinging to it without considering that there are many things concerning which individual freedom must be restricted if the The interests of the community should not be seriously damaged.

If one understands "bank freedom" as the right of the individual or a company, to establish banks or banking businesses for Purposes of conducting money and exchange transactions, discounting of bills of exchange, the allocation of funds to mortgages or pledges, the acceptance of deposits etc., in a word the mediation of credit for a larger or smaller part of the population, so it would be legally as well as economically wrong to allow such branches of business like any other legitimate branches of the economy to put the least difficulties in the way of social life Complete freedom of movement is one of the main advantages everywhere. conditions of material well-being of the individual as well as the whole population.

However, the concept of "bank freedom" is completely different from this. if one understands by this the right to issue paper money, i.e. bank= notes (promises to pay certain amounts of metal money) as a legally recognized means of exchange and payment bet and make a profit.

The Right to Manufacture Coined Money (Coin Law) either by their own officials or by mint leaseholders under the supervision of the
In all civilized nations, the state governments have always been
The right, however, to use a surrogate for money, which

The production of paper money is now left to the great Share the note banks. In the past, great abuse was committed with the Coinage rackets, the governments sought through official counterfeiting to exploit their subjects. But when it was seen that both the subjects than as foreign countries soon discovered the inferiority of the coins, that as a result of this the value of the poorer coins on their real metal value fell, as the prices of all other economic goods increased accordingly, and that not only did complete traffic confusion arise in the country, but the Governments themselves fared the worst, since they only once when minting the metals, whereas countless times
As a result, they suffered losses because the taxes were now constantly were paid in the devalued money with which they could meet their needs could not satisfy in the previous extent, – so this Abuse of self-righteousness must stop, and now the state everywhere ensures that the coining of metal money with strict observance of the law handled.

A distinction is made between metal and paper money. Only the former is real money, is an object of real value, of real legal validity. The term “paper money” is not correct, since the piece of paper has no real exchange value. Instead These are called “money promises”, although these money promises, as long as they in good credit, completely replacing money in transactions and be used as such whether with benefit for the population, we will continue to see.

However, the term “paper money” is generally used in everyday language.
mine, and it would be futile to strive for its abolition
One must confine oneself to directing them to their proper value.

X As is well known, there are two types of paper money, government paper money, Treasury or cash certificates”), in which the state guarantees the payment of certain

*) The expressions “Schatzfein”, “Caffenfein” are completely incorrect, their meaning conduction could be compared to that of lucus a non lucendo, since the
The state's coffers would be completely empty everywhere if fih to redeem a larger amount of the issued payment promise acts, rather in such a case only by law a real capital

225

sums of money to the presenter, and private paper money, banknotes or bank note in which the same promise is made by a bank.

After having long been convinced of the reprehensibleness of the procedure to make a profit from the manufacture of metal money, Nevertheless, this purpose is still pursued everywhere when issuing the paper=

money, to pursue the promise of payment by opting for this promise to pay the same rent or interest

But everyone who knows Latin knows about lucus. understands that darkness reigns within him. On the other hand, the people do not know that the large mass of banknotes is empty everywhere in the state coffers, that in crises, such as an unfortunate war, inevitable loss for The Finance Minister therefore rightly called the United States government paper money in a statement to Congress in 1869 "a dishonoring and despicable circulation means". The people are deceived by this and only realise this when they are too late. The Prussian cash notes were issued after the catastrophe of 1806, the value of the coins was considerably reduced, and many people lost their property. At the end of June 1809 the exchange rate was still at 36 pCt. of the nominal value, at the end of January 1812 to 83 $\frac{1}{2}$ pCt., end of December 1812 to 44 $\frac{1}{2}$ pCt., end of June 1813 to 26 $\frac{1}{2}$ pCt., on 8 July 1813 to 24 $\frac{1}{2}$ pCt., at the end of December 1813 to 49 $\frac{1}{2}$ pCt., in January 1815 to 88 pCt., January 1816 again to 99 pCt. The recent war against France turned out unfortunate for us, so that by the 50 million Thaler of German state money, which are still in circulation and whose redemption is not even now possible, despite the war reparations. It seems that the people could easily have suffered a loss of 30 to 40 million. Although government paper money differs in many respects from private paper money, that the former is under all circumstances considered to be completely defensible and reprehensible, both are nevertheless very similar in their general effects on the economic conditions of the peoples. Both increase the means of exchange in an artificial way and thereby cause a partial devaluation of the precious metal; both are said to have done to her advantage and both have always caused her only infinite harm. The necessary consequence of a war of doubtful success is the decline in the exchange value of the state notes. If it increases even after the end of wars back to its previous position, – those who have their paper money had to spend, which it could not keep in anticipation of better times – then, had to bear the heavy loss of devaluation and these are always the poorer classes, widows and orphans. The profit then hits rich speculators who acquire this devalued paper at a ridiculous price and preserve it until its value is restored. The responsibility for such plundering of the poorer class of people, however, the State, the legislators, through whose negligence or ignorance such maintaining this "dishonorable and despicable" means of circulation was, despite the fact that the means were available to redeem the paper money and for always to get rid of the world. Mr Augspurg goes here, as I believe, too far.

i Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 15

as if one had actually used the metal money for this purpose lent, but keeps the latter and adds it again to collect rent or interest from it.

So you win when you issue paper money or banknotes, by presenting these payment promises or debt documents to the state population and receive money or other capital in return but the loan thus received is for an indefinite period, i.e. for many years interest-free and used for management. However, in the debt documents, he promises to withdraw the money at any time. long to repay, but keeps it in his possession continuously, because repayment is not required.

This loan from the population to the state government (state paper money) or to the note banks (banknotes) but still finds under substantially different conditions. A certain number of banks or banking companies is first of all The sum will be paid as their own capital, for which they will soon be paid by the country's population wants to claim the loan. It then economically with double capital, the own and the one received as a loan, makes good money for itself, since it does not pay interest on the loan. fees and offers the country's population for their loan as further Security represents one's own basic or registered capital.

The situation is different with government paper money (which is also is still often issued with compulsory course) and another category of banks, of whose founding Northern Germany still has examples The state issuing paper money has no sufficient capital to repay the loan, as well as little, as he has designated a special capital as security for it He uses the loan received and leaves the repayment to the Future. A bank in this second category only has a ratio moderately low capital, which serves as security for the received It can be used to finance the loan. It can be borrowed from the population against their debt documents, tries to do their best to economy and in normal times, since it pays no interest, also do good business.

Both types of banks hold around the experience in general: to satisfy a small part of their payment promises at normal times, which is presented for repayment, a sum of money in the As a rule, the third part of the loan taken out in Case porräthig. The state also solves the problems according to newer institutions. rings for the payment of preferential amounts of fine debt documents in public lichen cafen. But both the state and the banks give as soon as possible, the redeemed promissory notes are issued again, i.e. they let furselves to borrow money from the population again. A actual repayment of the borrowed capital with the effect of a fuch does not take place anywhere at all. The redemption and re= The issue of the promissory notes is merely pro forma and does not appear to have any

227

to have any other real purpose than to present the actual= to conceal the real situation.

The population is under these circumstances in a strange state of economic immaturity. It is deals with the paper slips that document their loan, as if they were money, is happy about the with such a means of circulation associated convenience like a child who is playing with a razor fplays, writes about its smoothness learned works about the advantages of Credit economy, where one earns money only through one's credit, without working, become rich, and praises her luck in the newspapers when she has a new paper bank has been blessed. She knows nothing about the fact that she continually lends enormous sums to the individual privileged, without to receive a thaler of interest for exploiting them. knows just as little that the note banks in hundreds of cases have proven to be highly perishable machines; which metal, ie consume real capital and deliver paper as product that Their general tendency is to prefer the countries in which they are need to lead from one economic crisis to another.

According to the difference described above, one can existing banking systems into two main divisions, those with secured capital, which therefore receive a double interest, on the one hand from the use of the larger part of their capital itself, on the other hand from the application of their payment promises, and those without secured capital, which initially pay the interest from their credit, ie from their issued payment instruments fpeak, since their capital, as far as it exists, and in Er= lack of the same, the third part of the amount of their payment= promise, ie the money paid to them by the population Amount of money will be required, the so-called bank Covered with one third of cash reserves*).

.) Mac Culloch says quite naively: Those who issue such notes, coin as it were theic credit“. However, they have coins from their promises and will rich. The rest of the population, however, has to work and suffer for this wealth.

15 *

228

Those peoples who were most seriously affected by the calamities of the Ban- crises, which, according to the usual expression, Experience “have become wise,” (although their wisdom in this respect even now leaves much to be desired) the English and Americans, now adhere without exception to the first category of banking systems.

We have three different systems there, the old Scottish system until Sir Robert Peel's banking reform in 1844–45, the English (Peel's), according to which the Bank of England is administered, and the North American.

The Scottish system provided complete banking freedom and unlimited note issue, but also unlimited, joint and several liability of the shareholders (Actionaire) with their entire assets for the Security of the notes issued and all other liabilities of the Bank. The shareholders thus deducted the interest on the one hand from their effective capital, depending on whether it is invested in one way or another was, on the other hand, from the banknotes put into circulation Promise of payment. Only a certain amount that you have to pay of the presented notes in the cash did not bring in any interest. Security was good because solidarity and responsibility The head of the bank acted with great caution.

In the English system, the liability of the Shareholders on the amount of their shares (limited responsibility). Initially (in 1844) it was determined that the bank, whose actual Basic capital in a claim of 11 million liters to the British State and another approximately 3 million government bonds of the consolidated Schnld was entitled to bank for the same amount notes. She therefore received double interest on this amount, On the one hand, the state paid her interest on her claim, on the other hand, the public accepted a promise of payment of 14 million liters and, as if it were cash, also interest or discount from it The demand on the state provided security for correct Redemption of the payment promises. The others by Sir Robert Peel The provisions introduced were that

a) the entire institution of the bank into two completely separate parts should disintegrate, with separate capital, special accounting, special officials and separate locality, namely on the one hand the department for the music edition, a second for all other banking transactions;

b) that the bank should be legally empowered to also issue a larger Amount of payment promises or banknotes to be issued as those 14 million francs guaranteed by the claim against the state,

229

But that they should not make any profit from it, since the jes imposes on her the obligation to pay for every pound sterling from given notes beyond those 14 million Lft. the same amount to keep precious metals in stock in caffe;

c) Sir Robert Peel's purpose was to give the whole Notes to concentrate the country's transactions in the Bank of England. But since this was impossible for the time being because a whole number of Private banks in previous years had the privilege for the issue of notes for a shorter or longer period of time and was not willing to give it up, it was decided that little by little, as those privileges came to an end, which exclusive issue of banknotes falls to the Bank of England should, and in this regard it was determined that the further Bank of England banknote issue to two-thirds of the total amount that the then in England notes circulating in the country from other banks, according to Measure how they gradually reach the end of their eloquence According to Mac Culloch (Dictionary of commerce and commercial navigation. S. III.) were in 1846 in England and Wales there are still 199 Private and Joint Stock Banks authorized to issue notes for a total amount of 5,011,097 ft. admit. From the reformed several times after the major banking crises We can start here with the establishment of these other banks—see.

The North American system in its present form seeks the Purpose of ensuring the redemption of bank notes, in the following manner achieve: It does not require concentration, but grants banking freedom for all companies that want to set up paper banks, also demands only limited liability of the shareholders for the amount of their shares The law grants the authorization to issue notes only after which places the participants in the hands of a specially appointed state authority a sufficient amount of capital preferably in good state papers as collateral. For million of this deposited Capitales, calculated at the current rate, the bank in question may issue notes issue, but is at the same time obliged to redeem the presented Notes always one third of the issued amount in cash to be ready. The North American Bantans are also permitted to fides of the own capital deposited as collateral in government securities to receive the interest which the states concerned pay on their pay the contracted bonds, and furthermore on the other hand from / of the issued note volume, the interest which the current transaction paid, The last third brings nothing because it is available in cash in coffee must be.

230

A fourth system, which I would like to call “the German one”, although only a small minority of German banks in Application, to my knowledge, is most perfectly found in of the Bremer Bank. In its statutes of 1856, it §. 74:

“The amount of notes to be issued shall not Time the amount of the paid-in share capital including of the reserve fund, and must always be at least one

Amount in cash equivalent to one third of the banknotes in circulation or bars for redeeming the same available in the bank be kept." |

Another very important provision is contained in § 16:

"Should the company's assets increase by one-fourth of the Share capital, the Board of Directors shall be obliged to To initiate a decision by the General Assembly as to whether the Business should be sorted. If the assets are reduced to the half of the share capital, the dissolution of the company must ftschaft." |

II.

All the above-mentioned banking systems provide shareholders with a double interest profit. They receive their interest on the one hand from the actually existing capital, on the other hand from the issued payment promise, of which only that part of the cash capital, as no interest carrying, which must be kept ready in the case in order to occurring notes. At the same time, however, they strive to holders of their payment promises as complete security as possible for the correct redemption of the same, by allowing the banks is prohibited by law, any promise of payment (a note) in circulation, which is not covered by actually existing, already originally covered by capital belonging to the property In the North American system, this capital must be Authority, at Bremer Bank it must be submitted to the bank administration be fully paid up. At the Bank of England there is Hands of the bank administration in the form of existing government bonds. The Scottish system (which, however, was for a limited sphere of influence has proven itself in practice the longest and perhaps the best)

231

does not require collateral in government securities; but it does require security in solidarity responsibility and almost exclusively in land ownership wealthy men. A shareholder can only with the approval of the bank to other wealthy people; otherwise In the event of the bank's collapse, he can still be held liable If a shareholder with a large private fortune Bankruptcy, it is contractually agreed in advance with the approval of the law= stipulated that he shall refrain from any and all further exercise of the rights of a share the bank must waive and that the further disposal of his Participation can only take place with the consent of the directors.

Completely deviating from all principles of these systems are the teachings of the newer French and German folk-economic school (cf. B. Rentzsch, Dictionary of Popular Science economics. Leipzig 1866. Article: "Banks and banking; banking note; Zettelbanken" by A. Wagner). She claims:

1. There should be no special law or concession for establishment of a bank (including the banknote issuing banks), so all and every monopoly and Privileges will be abolished (ie everyone should may strive to obtain interest from the entire population to obtain a free loan, while taking advantage of the ignorance of the A lot of people use it in such questions);

2. The principle of limited liability of the partners is sufficient for all types of banks. Basically, the unlimited Liability is preferable, but it is not advisable to do so now to introduce;

3. Full observance of the principle of publicity in Banking matters replace everything else. monthly, weekly asset statements according to statutory requirements written forms, concealments, distortions be punished most severely by law. Annual exact Accounting and responsibility of the officers are mutually agreed by itself; ;

4. The state should not take any interest in the bank's capital or the expansion of their music edition, and finally by a be= fatis ratio between this and the cash stock of the Cafe, in short, there should be an unconditional and unlimited Notes may be issued.

5. Should definitely prescribe a material, the backing of the banknotes= of the law, the bank's regulations are recommended.

232

moderate coverage, namely with one third of cash reserves, ie also, if the bank only / Daar and / of the total= amount of their issued notes or payment promises in bills of exchange or other securities, nothing will be further requested from her, she is empowered to an unlimited Issuing payment promises. Can the bank provide the necessary credit so that the public can read their notes in payment, it requires the money for other purposes management has no capital of its own. It "coins its Credit" and draws its profit from the circulated promises of payment by the person responsible for these fpeak money received from the public the third part as "bank coverage" for the redemption of existing notes in Caffee retains the remaining two thirds, but is free to sell available to earn interest. As long as they have good If everything goes well, but their losses exceed the achieved profits, so every additional thaler goes to the public lost, not to their shareholders, insofar as they do not have their own Capital, which the public had secured against loss

If the bank has to stop its payments,
the notes are worthless and there is general ruin.

The basic ideas from which the above view is based are apparently the theoretically correct ones,

on the one hand, that the banks' own interests lead their managers correct economic principles in the operation of the
to follow business rules, e.g. never about reopening:
are unable to issue notes, otherwise they run the risk
to perish in the process;

on the other hand, that the public the dimensions of the population, complete publicity of the banking relationships themselves is better than the state will be able to protect itself from fraudulent business preserve.

With regard to banks specialising in the operation of general restrict banking transactions, one can follow these principles of trade= freedom. As far as the paper banks are concerned, the whole relationship is changed by the fact that the bank's liability in the edition of music not to the individual, but to the mass towards the population, and that on average 99 hundredths of this population in guarding their interests in in this case must be considered as minors and therefore 233

require the care of the state, if not the former reason that the bank owners' own interests in directing the business to a economically found, up to the utmost con= sequences are to be regarded as correct.

| However, the claim that the interests of the bank owners and the audience regarding the security of the notes, ie regarding the correct fulfillment the payment promises are identical because they represent a proper economy= cial management of the business is not sufficient, because Firstly, it is obvious that not all conductors of extended businesses, their strengths and the success of their operations calculate; otherwise there would not be so many failed enterprises, so many ruined speculators give;
on the other hand, the temptation is very great to go beyond the
to go beyond the necessary measure, since without question the immediate consequence an excessive issue of notes which is to the means of transport of Bank, the profit by merely issuing payment fpeak to increase, so in the lucky case without cost large to achieve success; ö

Thirdly, there is the claim that every note issue is followed by a ask for the grades, so a corresponding need of the Traffic, therefore there can be talk of overspending, There can be no question of a flood of banknotes (f. Rentzfch, Dictionary of Economics (p. 92) an absolutely erroneous; for in all countries of the world there are people who are inclined to obtain the missing capital through daring ventures ments, and the board of directors of a bank grants during an apparently promising business period some fuch speculators, whether out of recklessness or lack of knowledge= niß, more credit than they earn, e.g. through discounting their bills of exchange against bank notes, there is by no means a need of traffic, but merely an unjustified speculation= search for individual individuals; Fourthly, the relationship is extremely unequal in that the bank owners have the possibility to demand a proportional to achieve considerable profit with a moderately small investment; for the The population as a whole, however, in the fortunate case only no loss occurs; while in the unfortunate case the bank= However, the owner will lose their stake and the immediate Head of the bank may be in confit with the criminal justice system flik, but on the other hand a large number

234

People lose their possessions without ever even had the opportunity to benefit from the bank's banknote issues to derive any benefit.

The unspeakable misery that unrestricted banking freedom has brought England and North America have repeatedly brought upon the population, proves better than all reasoning that such beautiful theories, even if they are presented ex cathedra, they are built on sand.

The observation of the principle of publicity, the publication of the balance sheets, etc., on which the theory places such great emphasis, by no means of great value in relation to the security of the business. It can protect against the most serious abuses, (7) but not every debt document, every existing bill of exchange listed individually and assessed according to its real value. If it is a deliberate deception on the part of the bank, it is by no means difficult to cite. |

The founders of the bank need this theory their little or to have handed over no capital at all, they even need real to possess wealth; they have only understood how to secure themselves in a large= to provide credit to the public, who are partly inexperienced in business matters, that one takes their promises of payment and gives money in return, then its purpose is achieved first. That such a thing is possible, despite the compliance with the condition that monthly or weekly asset transfers= Hundreds of cases prove that statements are to be published English and American banks, where, when they became insolvent, vent explained, hardly any significant assets were found.

The placement of the notes in the population is thereby facilitated that the interest of the bank to issue as many notes as possible to spend, met with the interest of all those who are inclined to go beyond their actual powers in speculation. to place their notes, the bank is less strict in the selection people who demand advances in notes, as a capitalist who would lend his cash metal money, and those, who have easily received advances in this way, again for storing the notes.

As long as times are good, as long as the bank has good business everything goes as desired. But if war, bad harvests, excessive speculation, financial crises in other countries or as a result any other reason, distrust in place of the If the public rushes to the stage,

235

Metal for fine notes required, followed by the Bant ft already Ge- have suffered business losses, then suddenly everything can collapse.

But if the above liberal principles are to be applied, fol the state from all direct determination of the capital, the banknote issue etc. are kept away, then at least the principle of unlimited joint and several liability of all Shareholders are held liable for their entire assets the names of these shareholders must always be made public and they must be prohibited from using their shares in any other than with the consent of the bank into other hands Furthermore, the statutes of the bank must be agreed that no thaler of payment promises (No ten) about the actually paid-in capital of the shareholders and that if, through unfortunate A quarter of this capital was lost in business. fshould, fimmediately, a general meeting be convened to decide whether the business to continue or whether they should be liquidated.

Only in this way would the mass of the population, which is to be regarded as immature, population at least against the direct damage caused by the insolvency of the To protect banks. The indirectly derived from the existence of the notes and Nevertheless, the resulting disadvantages remain, as we will see.

The full liability of the shareholders should only be secondly, it should be calculated to actually be available in the event of insolvency the bank (which theoretically would be impossible in and of itself) should, because the liquidation of the business would have to occur as soon as one of its a fairly considerable part of the capital would be lost) – to cover the passiva. The next and economically much A more important purpose would be that in the case of unlimited liability all shareholders have a significantly increased interest, to organize the Board of Directors and to entrust the management of the Bank with such hands, so that no deviation from sound principles in the management of the business. The condition that in the case of loss of the fourth part of the capital a general assembly of the Shareholder must be called upon to decide whether the transactions should continue at all, would grant them protection.

; III.

That, generally speaking, the judgment of the crowd not sufficient to protect them against loss due to insolvency of the note banks, requires no proof. A characteristic feature of this type of mischief

è

236

ity is the striking ignorance and indifference with which Such questions, in the solution of which even the poorest more or is less involved, generally excluded from the total population= half of the business world, the ease with which they all the misery, all the ruin ignored or forgotten, which has been have come upon humanity through paper money and banknotes. The first banknotes were issued in North America, in the present state Massachusetts, issued around 1690, in 1694 the Bank of England founded, where until then individual bankers, formerly goldsmiths, had run the business in a limited way. Already in 1713 the banknotes all precious metals were expelled from Massachusetts; the other provinces of the former British colonies in North America had followed the example The building notes were issued in ever greater quantities and as a result devalued more and more, the prices of all goods rose, fraud= shops and building rot increased in a frightening manner, until 1763 by an act of parliament the issuance of banknotes in North America was banned. Ten years later, it was necessary to amend the law Then came the War of Independence with a colossal expansion issuing of paper money, whereby in 6 to 7 years the same in the manner was devalued so that 1 dollar of metal money was worth 1000 dollars of paper In England, by the end of the century, almost all of the Bank of England the right to issue banknotes and was involved in bound by some legal restrictions, which largely affect the effect had the opportunity to avert devastating crises. In France, the first Zettelbank was founded in 1716 by the well-known Scotsman Law, whose

Fraudulent projects had been rejected in his homeland, and already in 1721 stopped its payments with a debt of 2½ billion Livres. The enterprise had caused such terrible misfortune in the country caused that it was not until 1776 that one dared to open a paper bank, the Paris Discontocafe, which after several times with their capitals had fallen into disarray, was taken over by the Republic in 1792 was by breaking its payment promises with the notorious Assignats paid. These eventually fell to zero and thereby once again put an end to the paper fraud after they ruined hundreds of thousands of people. – In Denmark, The first bank was founded in 1736. It made payments as early as 1745 a law prohibited the redemption of the paper with metal money, and the country was flooded with papers until in 1773 the State took over the banks and finally in 1813 all existing three note banks collapsed. The Swedish Reichs-Wechsel bank sold all metal before the middle of the last century money out of the country. It was not until 1829 that such money was again available in Sweden

237

In England, the financial crises, mostly the result of the use of note banks to generate profit, in regular Intermediate periods: 1792 to 1793, 1814 – 1816, 1825 – 1826, 1837 – 1838, 1847, 1857, 1866. Mac Culloch says: In 1793, 1814 – 1816 and 1825 – 1826 a very large proportion of the provincial banks stopped payments and produced by them fall an extent of bankruptcy and ruin, that has seldom been equalled in any other country. – – Such disasters were on the eve of again happening in 1837 – 1838 u. w.

In North America, the Bank of North America was founded in 1780 (later called Bank of the United States) the privilege of issuing notes Edition was issued; in 1811 it was taken away from her, in 1816 it was reissued after a number of private banks had been established. The Bank of the United States had then, in three years, transformed the country into the degree flooded with notes and therefore far beyond their capital In addition, they made advances and loans, so that in 1819 they were even on the brink of ruin and, in order not to declare bankruptcy, was forced was to suddenly cancel all loans granted with great liberality until then. to collect with merciless severity She saved herself by doing so, but their debtors were bankrupt. General ruin spread across the country, a number of the most respected trading houses, on whose credit Until then nobody had doubted, collapsed, enormous masses of goods were auctioned for less than half their previous price; in all major cities of the country, many thousands of workers were put out of work and fell into hunger and misery. In 1828, there were 544 banks in the United States, which issued an average of 60 pCt. more notes than their capital, while the Bank of the United States in 1832 closed its payment promises (notes) extended to 85 percent beyond their capital In 1837, the Bank of the United States suspended their payments and at the same time all other banks in the country had to be forced to take the same step, and from then until 1841 there followed a period of general bankruptcy, misery and misery. Further financial crises have taken place in the United States in 1847 and 1857.

The financial crises caused by paper money in Austria of 1810 and 1848 with their endless misfortune should be in everyone's memory. Even in a poorer and speculative frenzy
In less accessible countries, in Spain, banknotes have lost their role played; in 1829 the Bank of San Carlos collapsed and deprived thousands of people of their property.

238

IV.

If Germany had been largely spared such experiences find, one fact because fine traffic life in the political fragmentation was not sufficiently trained to make room for great development development of such fraudulent transactions, on the other hand also
It must be recognized that in general the management of the existing German banks have been cautious and appropriate, it can be seen but by no means much good from the facilities of the most German note banks say.

5 If we ignore for the moment the question of whether in particular the existence of note banks, which have the purpose of issuing notes from and thereby make a profit, with the welfare of the entire state population, and only consider the questions how the existing banks should be set up in order to the population all possible guarantees for the correct implementation dissolution of the notes even in catastrophes such as unfortunate wars, poor harvests, general trade crises, and further

whether one – if note banks, which come from the banknote issue to do a profitable business, generally as a means of existence be viewed as legitimate – as has been the case everywhere private concession of banks or rather centralization of the German should work towards the establishment of a paper bank, as was done in England by the introduction of Peel's banking policy has happened, – future can not be denied that in the German institutions in a
In this respect, as in the other, there are major deficiencies.

What the security of redemption even among the most unfortunate
As far as public relations are concerned, a large number of the existing Banks and their institutions deviate far from the principles of the above four systems listed above. There are banks which are legally

ly entitled to pay any amount (without any restrictions) to issuing banknotes without asking which one is the real existing own capital, which in all cases to redeem have secured; there are others whose paid-in capital is 200,000 thalers. and which are legally entitled to 1 million thalers To issue notes, that is, in other words, from the real capital to collect 8,000 thalers in legitimate interest at 4 percent and further

239

In addition, there are promises of payment based on compliance the bank cover, an economically illegitimate interest of 26,000 thalers, i.e. from 200 thousand thalers 34,000 thalers or 17 pCt. annually! Although in general the The management of the banks has been good, it does not follow that that it will remain so for all time. The last few years= tenth business crises that have occurred prove that even in Germany country can, under certain circumstances, lead into the wrong economic paths, that we, like other peoples, are not immune to excessive Speculation and fraudulent business. If we have so far been affected by the political circumstances partly the space for a great economic scientific development was lacking, but now fortunately the barriers which hindered its course. But the more Germany politically united and thus enabled to compete with other great nations to compete in economic upswing, the greater also the probability that the same risks will be faced. like the others, and consequently it cannot possibly be approved if our legislation wants to disregard the cliffs on which other nations have often failed to the ruin of hundreds of thousands

Furthermore, without centralization of the issue of money, those dangers with a great development of business life significantly larger fine, hardly needs any proof. It is a well-known fact that. a situation in which a country is without significant metal circulation, where only paper is circulating, little is saved from economic ruin So if a note circulation is to exist at all, the total circulation of the means of exchange will consist partly of cash Money must consist partly of banknotes. But then it is on It is obvious that only one central point, from which the entire money issue is taken care of, can be in a position to find the right ratio between both types of exchange media, that, long the right to issue banknotes was in the hands of a large number of individuals banks, each of which is a competitor of all the others, since it is It is to their advantage to keep as large a quantity of their bank notes as possible to get it out to the people, it will be almost impossible to sell beware that there is a constant danger of too much paper in circulation and thereby drive metal money abroad.

The more the issuing of notes is centralized in a country,
the healthier the economic conditions will be in this respect.

240

V.

I now come to the fundamental question of whether there is any
It is in the interest of the state that banknotes are issued with the aim of achieving of a direct profit, and whether, if at all,
banknotes circulate, leaving the issue to private industry or should come from the state itself.

In England, the country where the note banks have always been the largest role played, where as a result of their institutions, in fat regelmä:
sufficient periods of about 10 years, the entire business life has been shaken by profound financial crises, and almost every time Hundreds of thousands of people have fallen into poverty, always, just as in the United States, its rival in such experiences, avoided raising such a question of principle and to investigate. Hence it is that in the writings of the well-known National-Economists, Adam Smith, Ricardo, Mac Culloch, J. Stuart Mill., as in the speeches of Sir Robert Peel, despite many sharp sensible explanations and practical remarks never has been thoroughly examined from the right perspective.
accept all without distinction,

because the use of precious metals as a means of exchange and payment two problems are connected, namely the constant wear and tear and the loss of coins, which, for example, Mac Culloch minted at $\frac{1}{4}$ pCt.
annually (although he elsewhere cites it as proof of the great Uncertainty of such calculations, speaks of $1\frac{1}{2}$ pCt. Dictionary
p. 67 and p. 1054) and the still considerable difficulty in gold= speed of shipment as a result of weight and volume;

because these inconveniences in the use of banknotes are largely be avoided, and at the same time cost very little, finally because those who can effect by virtue of their credit, that their promises of payment are accepted as real money and pay them the same interest as if they were real money, – thereby increasing their own income and at the same time contributing to contribute to improving the prosperity of the entire population– multiply (2), :

Therefore, the banknote system in general must be in its current form it should be continued; it is only a matter of solving the problem to resolve the legal restrictions on this type of industry:
must be killed in order to prevent the periodically repeated to avoid financial crises, "to realize the "beau ideal" of a paper

241

currency without the wide-spread mischief and ruin produced by the often repeated bankruptcies of the country banks."

But that does not mean that the questions are asked in the correct form.

Rather, they should simply read as follows:

- 1) Can individual stock companies claim a right to
to issue banknotes in the usual way, which are considered serve as a means of circulation for the entire population?
- 2) In the absence of such a right, can the State
continued emission in the previous manner without endangering itself cause significant damage?
- 3) Is there another form of note issue that would be more advantageous would be recommended for the state, and what would this form be?

If the questions are posed in this way, their answers would

in my opinion should take place in the following way:

1. The previous establishment of the note banks and their note issue basically boils down to the fact that the relevant Stock companies from the country's population a significant Capital is loaned interest-free for an indefinite period. A natural right to such loans cannot exist
However, the majority of the note banks have

State governments receive concessions and privileges. Whether and when they can be withdrawn, is a further Question whose answer does not belong here.

2. To answer the second question, a detailed Discussion, which we must therefore deal with first.

The advantages associated with the use of banknotes for the total population of a state:

a) in the greatest ease of sending the paper compared with precious metal,

b) in order to avoid the loss which the use of
of metal money for the state.

The disadvantages, however, are:

on the one hand in devaluation of the means of exchange and payment, which the increase in precious metal production which is necessarily brought about by paper money;

on the other hand, in the increased fluctuations in the value of the country=

currency and changes in the discount rate, as well as the constantly recurring the financial crises, which are an inevitable consequence of the previous use of white of paper money (banknotes) with very extensive traffic must be fine.

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 16

242

As for the first two points, they appear to be clearly before everyone's eyes.

It is undoubtedly much easier and less expensive to have a significant sum in banknotes rather than in gold, to silence of silver, but upon closer inspection one must admit that the inherent advantage of banknotes does not exclude
It is more likely that it could be considered decisive for the question, because:

Firstly, it is suitable for everyday small traffic as well as for travel customs, – as soon as a country has the gold standard, – grasps just as easily and less dangerously the required

Carrying money in gold pieces rather than in paper, one forgets:
It is easier to print a banknote, it is easier to get a wallet with banknotes than the respective sum in gold, also Counting the gold is not important here, especially if
On the other hand, the larger one against accidental impact brings;

Secondly, as far as small money transfers are concerned, one needs

also because the banknotes are not, since the establishment of the Ver= transport by postal order.

All banknotes up to 100 thalers appear also completely unnecessary where one has a sufficient gold circulation:
tion;

thirdly, for large traffic it is so good to use of bills of exchange, instructions and settlement institutions (Clearing houses) that the lack of Bant-grades would hardly be affected, especially if one were to Considering, on the one hand, that banknotes are usually only serve for internal national traffic, and on the other hand that here the danger of destruction and loss is greater is like gold.

With regard to the loss associated with the wear and tear of the gold and Silver coins, and which with extensive use of the Banknotes, is largely avoided, it cannot be denied that it really exists. But it may include the fires and shipwrecked amounts annually to 1s or 1/4 pCt. (Umpfenbach: Economics. Teaching p. 129; Keller, Internat. Coin-agreement p. 40; Mac Culloch, Dictionary of Comm. p. 67) or even It is fine to set it a little higher, but this is in no way possible: sufficient importance to be taken into account here.

The same applies to the reasons given by English writers

243

on the one hand, that in the event of destruction or disappearance of Bantam always only the owner but not the entire population on the other hand, that if the shareholders of the banks Earn money by issuing banknotes, thereby simultaneously supporting the entire national-assets increase. If the profit they make from the pockets of the rest of the population and at the same time the use of banknotes for the entire population other significant disadvantages with fih leads, so one will see such an enlargement of the national may hardly want to take it seriously, so that he just as little how the former reason is of any importance.

If we hereby all and fecially the advantages of the bank-notation, one may, apart from the downside the same question whether the world is less well off, whether trade and traffic would be less prosperous if there were no banknotes at all, if one considers it, like state paper money, as something reprehensible, harmful to the whole, similar to the public hazard games on abuses that have always been abolished by law and relegated to the junk room The part of the traffic, where the notes perhaps would really be lacking, is that of small country towns (where there is no bankers) with larger places for sending sums between 100 and 500 or 1000 thalers. Without significant disadvantages, however This need would be met by gold. It is more Habit as a real need, which for many people the banknotes as a useful means of transport.

If there were no serious disadvantages associated with the Private paper money or bank notes, they could be say on the one hand, that they are not directly responsible for the whole of any significant benefit that the traffic of them is not needs, but also fulfill all its tasks without their help could, but that

On the other hand, for the shareholders of the banks, however, a The most important means of enrichment is to allow them to in addition to the interest they receive from their existing capital, also their promises of payment on this capital to rent for use and thus one and the same capital to use on two sides or to rent with a double interest or an even greater double capital gain, while half of their profit operating capital was advanced interest-free by the country's population;

16 *

—

244

that also, if possible, thereby facilitate traffic in an economically sound way to revitalize and ultimately to sell the entire national wealth-size rn, the use of banknotes like any other Jn-industry is to be approved.

But let us now consider the difficulties associated with the musical output. Disadvantages, it will become apparent that these conditions are not to fulfill that a mediated revitalization of the transport is not based on economically sound foundations and that the final result is by no means a favorable one for the entire population of the state.

According to the above, the first significant disadvantage is the Devaluation of the means of exchange and payment, i.e. both metal and paper money, which are their simultaneous continuous proliferation, on the one hand through precious metal production, on the other hand through Paper money issuance is effected.

Money is known to have a threefold character as a measure of value Exchange and means of payment. In all three functions, however, the state activity, the greatest possible immutability of its exchange value is a main be necessary, insofar as they are generally possible under human circumstances
 The fact that precious metals are more valuable than other Valuable objects showed themselves capable of maintaining a high level of value stability, was already in ancient times one of the reasons which gave them the destiny to be used primarily as money. On the one hand, its production value determined by the difficult extraction work a significant one and from one year to the next a fairly constant one= more moderate; on the other hand, their exchange value was thereby protected against fluct ensured that they do not, like grain, get contaminated by use.
 were consumed, that what was once extracted remained, that fits quantity gradually increased, and the annual addition an ever smaller quantity in relation to what is already present nen, so from his side less and less deffen exchange value and thereby cause actual fluctuations, while on the other hand the continuously advancing Increase in the supply of precious metals, with which the need of People despite the growing population with increasing Trade, increasing craftsmanship and greater luxury could hold, – caused a decrease in demand and this, since at the same time through better promotion methods and by facilitating the 245

Transport, production costs also steadily decreased, a slow cause a progressive decline in the exchange value of precious metals had to.

As is well known, there is metal and paper money.
 However, I have already mentioned that only the minted precious metal with fully rightly bears the name "money", that it has its paper Substitutes can only be used in a limited way, precisely because money is Measure of value, above all, of exchange that is as little variable as possible worth, and this is conditioned by the fact that the same is the production value of the extraction a considerable amount of human Work represents. An arbitrary without prior considerable–
 A rope sword made with great craftsmanship can be of fine ftande flich because of the ease of his further arbitrariness– human creation.

Just as the monetary economy, compared with the former natural= economy, a progress in economic development,
 According to the theory of modern national economists, this should be done with the credit economy as a perfection of the monetary economy. Against However, there are very serious objections to this claim, and it would only be correct insofar as one can understand Creditwirth– ficiency the simplification and facilitation of the monetary economy, but not at all, if one considers their ever-expanding experience through credit papers, through promises of money.

The defect of the natural economy is that it lacks an old There is no generally valid measure of value, means of exchange or payment. Such a can only be found in metal money and the credit economy has nothing, with which it could replace it. All of its so-called "money surrogates" are nothing more than promises of precious metal, and if no real existing metal as cover behind them, they are nothing but all appearance and deception, "moonshine," as they say in English. Not only the measure of value and legal means of payment, but also the In order not to bring about economically unhealthy conditions, lead to a real one, only through strenuous human work= valuable object, it must be existing precious metal, not mere never-fulfilled promise of such a fine. Permissible can only those credit papers appear which fulfill the two conditions, that on the one hand the promise contained in them is not deceptive that the payment promised therein is to be made in full and could take place at the specified time, otherwise that through their use does not seem to require a corresponding amount of human labour, but is actually saved, thus made usable for other purposes, and that this saving can only be achieved through them.

246

Both conditions are neither met by state money nor of the banknotes. Immediate payment is required in both paid. But if you wanted to simultaneously receive the entire sum of the present the same paper for payment, it would appear that the required cash is not available so that the promise cannot be strictly fulfilled; furthermore, no real saving of human It has already been shown above that work is effected by this paper money.

From what has been said it follows that paper money is a special kind of the credit papers used in trade. If one looks at recent economic textbooks make the claim that all credit instruments in circulation, such as signed orders and notes, registered or bearer deposit certificates, cheques, banknotes, redeemable government paper money, due coupons, stamps, etc. not fundamentally different from each other, but only formally and gradual in relation to their ability to replace money in circulation (Rentzsch, Handwörterb. der Volkswirtschaftsl. Art. "Credit" p. 200, I believe that I may actually describe this as a mistake.

The fundamental difference is that during change, instructions, checks, coupons, etc. refer to capital which must be present and paid out in money, while come sooner or later to payment and thus individually from the show= places, while they are only, so to speak, means of transport fare, in order to easily transfer a part of the existing capital from a

 To create the measure of the necessary in the traffic work significantly, – the paper money and banknotes
 on the contrary, only to appear to have relied on what is available, to exchange available capital (if available at all, it is in any case intended for use other than their redemption), in no way calculated to be, in a given time, together and separately to be paid, and therefore not equal to those as a means of transport of capital, but rather as a means of production must be, definitely, new, previously non-existent but also to bring only fictitious capital into circulation and through this Juggling, where the human labour required for the traffic is only is reduced to a very small extent or not at all, economically to create unhealthy conditions which worsen to the extent must, such as the creation of this merely imaginary capital, with which the Traffic is then economically expanded at will until a state=

247

bankrupt or a paper bank crisis breaks out like a thunderstorm,
 to purify the economic air from the unhealthy elements and the metal money back into its disputed by the paper to exercise rights.

If we understand capital as a given asset, which ches can be used for further production and it is in |

1. Capital of direct possession, namely:

usable land

- . natural products of any kind |
- . Tools and machines solid capital

“by working with such outstanding works brought

e. semi-liquid capital, credit securities, which cover the transfer of solid capital into liquid form, such as bills of exchange, Instructions, coupons, etc. w.

f. liquid capital, cash or coined metal (all but also paper money, as long as it exists);

2. Capital of indirect ownership i.e.

Claims against solvent debtors (also at the fee

Capitale)

and thereby define liquid capital as the form of ownership
 thums, in which it is easily integrated into all the necessary for traffic parts is to be divided, is accepted in payment by everyone, and therefore flows everywhere where an economic gap arises, as can be seen

The fundamental difference between credit securities is clear. Real Means of exchange facilitation are those which facilitate the transition from solid form of capital into the liquid form, and which therefore with Rightly be described as semi-liquid. They make a necessary a convenient means of trade, while the credit papers, which already want to represent liquid capital, for the traffic completely are dispensable.

The banknote as well as the Ehag or Cash note of the state However, he promises to pay the amount of money specified thereon to the showpiece. Both, however, are by no means in their entirety in sent to the world to demand, like a bill of exchange, the payment of this promised to bring about the real exchange of existing capital rather than against existing capital, but on the contrary, to make their issuer a payment in real money to give him real capital in exchange for the mo o0 &

248

to procure him the capital he had earned. In Rentzsch (Handwörterb.
Art. Banknotes p. 92) states: "The profound princely under= feste between paper money and all credit circulating media, hence also the banknote, lies in the two moments of the U nolös= exchange rate of paper money for other money and the compulsory exchange rate."
In terms of its impact on the economic situation, this Difference between paper money and banknote, but more a matter of cash than to be a real one; because even if the individual banknote is just as as today some paper money is redeemed upon presentation,
– they will once in the ordinary course of things become the majority not presented for redemption and are not intended for such.
Their purpose is to continually create a not really existing, but to maintain merely imaginary capital in circulation. Therefore every banknote redeemed, every cash note presented for payment as soon as as possible. Will one day, if threatened= the threat of war or any other catastrophe, all issued Banknotes and cash notes presented for payment, so the monetary crisis
There is not enough metal to redeem them.

From what has been said it follows that only metal money is suitable as
To serve as a measure of value, exchange and means of payment, because it alone provides a in the human work necessary for its promotion Production value and because the resulting stability fine exchange value is an absolute requirement for the exercise of those functions
It also follows that all types of credit securities can only be issued in fuffificantly able to pursue an economically correct purpose, as they calculated on the basis of money transactions, the exchange of an existing Capitalobjects against another existing one and to facilitate, to reduce the work to be used, that but they leave the right path as soon as they receive the determination In addition to the metal money containing real capital, to create permanent paper money, which does not require existing capital contains, is therefore worthless in and of itself and instead of its own value fhe constantly strives to make a fictitious capital available to the management, which efforts always earlier or later end in national bankruptcies and financial crises. The following follows from the fact that, because value stability is such an important requirement of Money is, any institution which also ensures the stability of its value the metal money is also affected, for economic reasons must appear reprehensible, as long as no other even greater economic

249

Advantages; equal to the great saving of labor when using the bills of exchange, instructions, etc., are associated with it.

The account of the existing coined money on the one hand and the additionally partly available in cash, partly for the purposes of in= The precious metal related to industry and luxury cannot be separated, so little in relation to their stock, as to their exchange value, because Both continually flow into each other, because often all jewelry and other golden and silver utensils melted down and coined, just as on the other side embossed metal again to other processing is used.

The exchange value of precious metals must in general and on the duration of the average production costs of the larger Part, which until the middle of this century consisted of from the mines of medium productivity. This Natural law that exchange value is determined by production value However, in and of itself, it is subject to a considerable modification due to the general hazardous character the mining industry in the metal-rich regions of the earth— balls, whereby in hundreds of cases mines, which temporarily lost bring, yet for a number of years in anticipation of better results— continued to be worked slowly, as long as other rich shafts To provide the owners with the means to do so. In addition, in the present If we add the fact that since the discovery of the Californian and Australian gold reserves a number of thousands of people has thrown itself into mining, and thereby, if the results for Many may not be satisfactory, so far enormous quantities of precious metal have been mined and are still being mined. |

The consequence of these circumstances and the ongoing productive— ity of many rich mines has been that the previous equilibrium between the production value measured according to the extraction work and the prevailing exchange value of precious metals perhaps for many years tenth has been disturbed and that the current exchange value of precious metals less by their production costs rather than by their Use value i.e. through the law of demand and offer is determined.

The result of this design of precious metal production is in the increasing devaluation of precious metals from year to year and of the money minted from them, as well as of all goods and services intended for this money
ten values of capital, salaries, wages, fees, daily wages

250

the workers, who are already subject to all material living conditions has exerted the most striking influence and in still incalculable extent threatens to exert further strain.

Money has no special value as such if one disregarding the fact that its legal circulation value in most countries is set in such a way that the minting costs are included, – otherwise but its exchange value depends on that of the precious metals. We have above all capital is divided into solid, semi-liquid and liquid. A Such a distinction is not a natural one, in a particular sense:
nature of the property, but refers only to the
The precious metals form after their extraction
a part of the existing fixed capital, but if they are minted Coins, they become liquid capital, as described there in more detail net has been. .

The use of money as a measure of value is known to occur in the way that the value of each exchange object is determined according to a larger or smaller amount of this liquid capital.
But as far as his own exchange value is concerned, it cannot be measure on itself, since measurement takes place through comparison and one a thing cannot be compared with itself. The changes of the
The exchange value of metal money can therefore only be determined by the common Rise or fall in the value of all other exchange items– recognize objects.

In this term, one can say that the exchange value of the money and behind him in the second row that of the existing precious stones= metals to the total exchange value of all other exchangeable economic goods, keeps it in balance. If
If you imagine that there is only metal money, and that suddenly in all Parts of the inhabited earth the quantity of existing money and Precious metals, i.e. the entire means of exchange, reduced by half would cause the other half to disappear irretrievably, fure that in such a case the remainder of the service of the previous total stock. For each purchase or sale purchase you could only get half of the money previously spent use, and the necessary consequence would be that the prices of all economic goods by 50 percent, so that the exchange value of money would increase by the same amount, since for 50 thalers one could buy the same would have to buy and sell what previously cost a hundred thalers would be.

The law of nature, which here is expressed directly in mathematical form occurs, however, where it is a question of an increase in the number of baptisms means, apparently could not work so necessarily, since it with the existence and increasing proliferation of means of exchange. It would depend on the will of the owners whether they would pay the price of their property; and yet the same natural law of Demand and supply are also not necessarily consistent here: any real increase in the means of exchange, like any other types of valuables will result in a corresponding devaluation of the same, if not simultaneously increased demand for it arises.

251

The characteristic of such devaluation is that they have their beginning in the personal view of the respective owner takes, and then communicates it to that of all other people"). Every exchange must involve two or more people. If the owner of a valuable object has a personal need for it of satisfied, he will wish to exchange the superfluous for other goods to exchange or to rent to others for use. Is the same object is also available in abundance among others, the demand is low, both for exchange and for rental while use, in the opposite case there will be strong Demand. The lower the demand, the more inclined the Being an owner, giving away what is superfluous to him cheaply.

If the means of exchange have changed, the liquid capital has changed in certain increased in considerable quantity, the owners will first of all The needs of every work are amply satisfied by exchange, they are buy more than usual, and then the gel, for which they have no use in exchange, make available to others on a rental basis. Is but also others have plenty of money, so There will be little demand for it, and the goods and other items will be keep exchanged goods higher in price and there is a lot of surplus money offered for rent, even a lower usage— want to pay rent for it.

*) The same phenomenon occurs, for example, when paper money is devalued in particular. As long as the same in the view of the owner is the same value with the circulating metal, i.e. as long as he is convinced that To be able to convert paper money into an equal amount of metal money at any time, There is no question of devaluation. Only through his efforts to get the paper= money, if necessary even with a loss, as a result of his Distrust of its security, the devaluation begins and spreads from one owner to another.

252

The exchange value of money and its usage rent pursue so the same path: high exchange value (low commodity prices) and high Rent (interest, discount) * conditional on the other hand, and vice versa: conversely, low exchange value (high commodity prices) and low utility rent. But since today's division is so far developed the use which the whole of society makes of money can be of far greater importance than that of the individual owner, insofar as he can use it for the exchange of goods, the general use value also determines the exchange value of money. Therefore, when there is a lack of liquid capital, the rent increases first As a result, the exchange value of the same increases (the prices of goods fall, In case of abundance, the rent falls first and as a result the exchange value (the prices of goods rise). Exchange value and use value rents are therefore not of equal rank, although they are depend on each other. The rental fee is paid by the Exchange values of money are calculated, but this value depends on what rent can be deducted from the money. If in the course of Over time, the precious metal and with it the money through continuous accumulation has been devalued, this happened in those rows= result that initially large stocks were created, followed by small rent; as a result of the low rent, the exchange rate is falling value. The exchange value of money therefore changes in the does not return as easily, is not as sensitive to external influences as the Rent. If it rises or falls, this is always the consequence that the rental rent preceded it in this respect.

The constant fluctuations in the rent and the Exchange rates of money initially take place in narrower business circles, are most noticeable there, although they vary according to their strength even at longer distances and finally with sustained strong movement= spread throughout the world. After the mass of the liquid capital that exists in the world at all, average exchange value, which determines purchasing power, follows this

*) As is well known, in the business world the rent of money less as actual interest but rather in the form of deduction interest (Disconto) by deducting from already prepared, current debt documents elements (accepted bills of exchange) and then subtracted from the nominal value of the fame is deducted. Therefore, in business life one does not speak of prevailing interest rates, but from the level of the discount. High discount and low commodity prices, – low discount and high commodity prices are interdependent mutually and from one one immediately draws conclusions about the others without hesitation

253

apply it everywhere in the world in the same way, just because this capital is fluid if it did not encounter any obstacles. The latter is, however, the case. On the one hand, in some areas of the world lack legal certainty, and such areas are fleeing the Capital; on the other hand, liquid capital appears in the form of minted Coins, but so far there are no world coins, not even a individual international coins, and since the circulation value of the coins Mostly the minting costs are also not recognized abroad are usually used only for their own country. cash flows from one country to another, the shortage in foreign countries and as a result the higher valuation of the Precious metals are so important that the transport costs and the those of the re-coining are more than offset. As a further Finally, the obstacle to the free movement of capital is the Use of banknotes, which today. day in almost every Land a part of the national currency 1 which can be used in rejects foreign countries.

There are also smaller business circles, in one and the same country frequent fluctuations, first in the rental price, then as a result also in the exchange value of money (in the There are times when liquid capital is plentiful where it can easily be used against solid or semi-liquid Capital can be exchanged (low discount, high prices of goods); There are others where there is a lot of use for cash, but there is a lack of it. ran becomes noticeable, others again, where enough liquid capital is available where the owners are suspicious, concerned about his safety and keep it hidden, do not bring it to the market (in both cases there is high discount and low prices for goods).

From what has been said it follows that the exchange value of precious metals and of the money minted from them, the currency and the legal tender forming metal money, because it simultaneously represents the general measure of value and medium of exchange, in inevitable interaction with the size their stock and their resulting use as a solid and as liquid capital; because any increase in this liquid, Capital used as a medium of exchange brings a fall in the metal Value causes an increase in the exchange value of all other goods and vice versa. If it could be ensured that from now on all newly acquired Metal only for industrial and luxury purposes, no longer for Increase of the means of exchange would be used and in future one would If the coinage of precious metals were to cease, this effect would cease.

254

But that is simply impossible. Any increase in the production of metal causes a larger distribution of the gains on the one hand to the fixed (Ge \neq consumption and production capital), on the other hand, to liquid capital.

The amount of the total fixed capital which the object of traffic, requires a certain size of this traffic, which required liquid capital. The total amount of all exchange transactions also stands with the amount of available liquid capital, as exchange \neq means, in equilibrium. The more means of exchange are available for, the greater the part of it is used for each exchange, the less exchange value is attributed to each of its parts. Now but a larger amount of means of exchange becomes available on the one hand through their material increase through the production of precious metal, on the other hand by simplifying their use, which makes it possible, with the same amount of precious metal either in a given Time to complete a larger amount of exchange transactions or even the \neq the same amount of precious metal as a medium of exchange for several simultaneous exchange transactions at once, i.e. its exchange power and the resulting to double the following effect.

It follows that all credit securities which serve to secure the to simplify the return, the need for materially available exchange means to reduce the same effect on the exchange value of the same must exercise such a material increase in the means of exchange, namely that they reduce their exchange value.

Consequently, the exchange value of money is reduced, the stability this exchange value, the ability of money, as an unchanging To serve the value measure, affects:

on the one hand through the continued production of precious metals, insofar as it exceeds their consumption through wear and tear, on the other hand, through the use of any kind of credit paper.

The question now is to what extent this constant devaluation of money a necessary, unavoidable evil,

As far as the precious metal itself is concerned, there are two aspects We would expect a reaction against further devaluation, but unfortunately not at a near future time, namely on the one hand by decreasing of production, on the other hand by increasing use, i.e. the need, the demand.

A decrease in production will occur sooner or later. must occur if the value of the precious metal has fallen so low that the majority of mines are no longer profitable But first all known on the surface of the

The gold deposits lying on the earth have been completely exploited, and it is any calculation of when such a reaction might occur, – probably only after a speech decades later, perhaps even later.

A significant increase in the consumption of precious metals, especially of gold would, on the other hand, be in prospect if it were produced by full implementation of the German monetary reform to achieve international Coin treaties between the most important trading nations, as a result which would require a special type of international gold coin. There would soon be a great need for show such coins, and this would at least initially allow further devaluation of gold has been remedied. In the meantime, however, there is still Thousands of experienced businessmen who consider such an idea for mere Chimera, and what is even worse, the majority of Governments seem to lack a real understanding of the consequences of a to close the gap in such great economic progress.

With regard to the precious metal itself, the near future there is hardly any hope of help.

However, it remains to be examined whether the devaluation of the precious metal, which is characterized by very extensive use of credit papers could be eliminated by restricting the latter, ie whether by more restricted use of credit papers a real economic disadvantage would arise, possibly whether it would be so considerable that it would that of the progressive devaluation of precious metals.

As regards the latter, it hardly needs to be stated that, if the previously very slow devaluation of precious metals through the enormously increased production in the last 20 years in just has been noticeably strengthened and accelerated, and as a result whose prices of all necessities of life are determined by a few through special exceptions caused by these things are in a continuous increase, this must give cause for serious concern. All the millions of People who are not directly involved in production or trade (in which case they are averagely and in terms of money for their business expressed a correspondingly higher profit,) all Day labourers, all salaried civil servants, all those on a fixed salary or on traditional fees dependent classes of society, all servants Those whose income consists of a certain pension will thereby in a precarious situation and are forced to meet their needs more and to restrict more, to chase away old pleasures of life, because their income, which was previously sufficient to cover such expenses, is now too small for this and they are even more concerned about the future

In the same way, the financial administration of the State any firm footing, from the people's representatives of constitutional states Higher tax rates must be demanded almost every year, albeit with the same economy as before. Even the comparative statistics loses the secure basis of its calculations, because it is not possible for her to prove exactly by what percentage the exchange value of the legal metal currency to all other economic has decreased every year compared to previous values.

No one will deny that this depreciation of the There is a great, very serious evil in the use of money, which can only It is becoming more and more worrying that it is in constant progress and regarding its duration and finite extent, eludes any calculation, that every really useful means has been sought to combat it should be.

In order to determine whether a more restricted use of the credit securities a disadvantage or advantage would arise, it is necessary to determine the nature and to examine the results of their previous use in more detail.

According to the above classification, they are divided into semi-liquid capital, namely bills of exchange, instructions, written promises of payment, deposit slips, etc. and .

liquid capital or paper money, which claims to have the same to perform services like coined metal.

Regarding the former, there can hardly be any doubt that it is impossible to do without them. They convey every kind of traffic, insofar as it involves a direct transfer of fixed capital into liquid, ie an immediate cash payment, with difficulties over: If it is tied, they save an incalculable amount of human Work, allow credit to be legitimately asserted, The modern expansion of traffic was made possible by the special stage of the transition from capital in solid form to into the semi-liquid state, and are again only used there where traffic really needs them, where a well-founded economic relationship exists.

They are therefore just as much a need for traffic as the coined money and provide the most useful services in the production new capital, insofar as it takes place with the help of traffic.

Although it is a fact that without their use the Metal money (with unforeseeably lower traffic) a higher would have preserved its value, but the one they have for the entire

The benefits derived by humanity are so overwhelming that any restriction of their Use would be a calamity, which is out of the question.

Let us now consider (since the reprehensibility of all government paper money even without discussion) *) – the banknotes, it turns out in
With regard to their general usefulness or harmfulness, ie for the
. of a State, the following: ;

a) since they appear as liquid capital, their first effect will be on traffic be exactly the same as that of an increase of the circulating metal money;

b) the liquid capital would be able to generate new capital to produce, so it could be assumed that this form of liquid capital – (does she really want to use existing capital represented or merely an illusion) – would be able to do the same.
But this is not the case. The production of capital takes place through human labor in conjunction with already existing solid Capitale Statt; it is only supported by the semi-liquid and the liquid capital. Regarding the effect of this undertaking support, however, it is irrelevant whether the liquid capital is in greater or a smaller amount is present, if it is only sufficient in order to be properly distributed; because the smaller its quantity is, the greater is its power, – in other words,

if only half of the existing metal money existed, such one would be able to conduct the same business as with its current quantity, because then its exchange value would be twice as high. You can use banknotes to build fields buy, build factories, pay workers, who also again for banknotes food, clothing and housing– Consequently, in such a case the banknotes
contributed to the increase in the rent paid (state rent)
increase in capital beyond the usual interest rate).
But if these banknotes did not exist, so much less liquid capital in the country, – would in this Case of the purchase of fields, the construction of factories, the Payment of the workers should have been stopped?
Did the resulting creation of new capital not even take place?
Not at all! The issue of banknotes absolutely existing capital in its ability to produce new values

*) Seems to go too far for me. | Perrot.

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 17

was enlarged, however"), but in the same proportion fine exchange value, its purchasing power weakened. The same people with the same workforce, the same entrepreneurial spirit and the same Equipped with the initially existing fixed capital, the same have achieved success. The cash at their disposal Metal money would have been a smaller sum, but one would have Can supply it with it, because its exchange value is not the issue of banknotes would have been reduced. |

It follows that the state, by issuing paper money, the note banks by issuing their payment promises felf through the annual interest drawn from it a unjustified substantial profit by the exchange value of the circulating metal money, i.e. the legal national currency in proportion to the amount their paper money to the total amount of circulating (liquid) capital and thereby reduce the large part the population, which lives on fixed income, significant damage, but secondarily the entire harm the population of the state by undermining the stability of the undermining the legal standard of value. |

On the other hand, there are no advantages for the whole population of the state through the issue of banknotes. In the state= paper money, taxpayers get the interest saved on the circulating amount; but nevertheless, on the other hand, their damage is much more considerable.

Would it be possible to issue all paper money, all banknotes with a To eliminate this problem from the world, it would first of all stop the progressive a strong barrier must be put in place to counteract the ongoing devaluation of money, the exchange value of the same would rise again, the increase of the Prices of all necessities would again be a reversal but also any only partially executed confiscation of the circulating amounts of paper money and banknotes would be beneficial for work for the common good.

The large precious metal production, which has been increasing since the middle of this ye not increased, the amount of circulating liquid capital

) Not the full amount, since the issue of banknotes is always The result is a devaluation of the national currency and an increase in the value of goods price to drive a part of the circulating precious metal abroad, {o that the remaining circulating funds consist of banknotes and a part of the previous cash, but together make up a larger sum than the previous sole precious metal.

hundred the devaluation of money, the increase of all prices caused and thereby disturbing and confusing all material living conditions According to approximate calculations, the amount of money to Werth in gold 4000 million 3 total 5600 million.

in silver 1600 million thalers Prussian thalers

If we now consider that according to the newer statistical information on the paper money in circulation in Europe and North America

1,625 million thalers in government paper money in banknotes 1825 million thalers together 3450 million
, it is easy to calculate to what extent an abolition
all paper money which is so damaging to the stability of the value of money effects of the large precious metal production would be canceled out.

The second significant disadvantage of using banknotes is according to the above

in the increased fluctuations of the ee the national currency and the discount account, as well as the ftet3 recurring financial crises, which are an inevitable Consequences must be that as soon as this use is a general and is becoming more and more extensive.
This is of course not to say that all Trade crises were to be written on the account of the note banks. As the Businessman through excessive speculation, through too much Trust in the honesty of others, through wars and other catastrophes.
can be ruined, the history of trade also shows general Business crises occur, which at different times affect entire cities, entire countries and sometimes spread across several countries at the same time
The reason for this was over-speculation in commodity transactions, another time in government securities, in railway shares, in banking and bill-taking. But no kind of business disasters have been generally disastrous and have continued regularly in relatively short intervals, especially in narrow country and the United States, as the financial crises of the Note banks, as mentioned above, and especially this regularity with which they almost without exception from ten to ten years, should be proof to the unbiased observer, that the reason for this is not an accidental one, but a necessary, inner one 17*

260

which is caused by the further development of unhealthy economic Conditions, despite all precautionary measures, sooner or later leads to disastrous results.

As is well known, a paper bank is not only used for the same purpose established to issue and redeem banknotes. Even the bank of England makes no exception, although by law prescribed, a completely separate budget for the issue of notes division. Each bank makes at the same time Banking transactions of the most varied kinds, and if it is possible for her to and the manner in which it may exploit its payment promises, to almost double their business capital, i.e. to add a to use almost as much wealth as they themselves as property, it follows that if they exercise this freedom as much as possible ity to their own advantage, thereby creating very peculiar, creating social conditions that deviate from the rule must.

The most obvious way in which the bank exploits its payment promises is consists in the fact that it discounts bills of exchange (i.e. from reliable people accepted for payment terms of 3, 4, 6 and more months= ftended payment promise by giving the previous owner the amount of which is paid out immediately after deduction of the deduction interest), ac against interest payments on goods, government bonds and other value objects or opens credit directly for persons known to be solvent and everywhere their notes, ie their own payment promises, as if they were cash, in payment. So it actually only takes place a mutual exchange of payment promises takes place. The loan A borrower who requires liquid capital shall provide a temporary Bill of exchange to the disposal of the bank or he promises himself in a ft for his part accepted bills of exchange the loan received then and then The bank should, according to the rules of ordinary business- fuence of the business as a loan in cash metal money. Instead of defen but it gives the person in need of money its own promises of payment, which according to their wording, should be redeemed immediately on request, by but she knows that in normal times she can only exceptionally be presented for redemption, so that even if you are maturity of the received bill of exchange whose amount is paid out, their bank notes or promises of payment given for this purpose are by no means to solve, but can calmlly continue with the Acceptor to conduct other business with the amount of money paid on the bill of exchange.

The recipient of the banknotes can, however, exchange them for cash

Use money, since everyone takes it as such, possibly paid him interest for it, the public in general, the entire population basically makes, by allowing the bank note or promise of admission to circulation (as if cash), the bank an advance of capital on an unsecured basis at right time, because the bank has at the expiry of the deposit handed over to it. The exchange of this amount of money will be paid out and can continue to use it economically; it is also entitled to interest until the expiry of the bill of exchange has been compensated, so it is in exactly the same situation as if she was immediately paid cash instead of the bill of exchange; while on the other side every part of the public, in their hands their promise of payment, accepts it as cash, possibly interest paid on it. Suppose the banknotes thus put into circulation run for 5 years without being presented for payment, the bank has not yet spent a single thaler of real capital, it has only payment promise. In the meantime, she has settled with the amount of the initially delivered bill of exchange for 5 years and at least at the usual national interest rate of 20 pCt. All however, the payment promises issued by the bank are calculated on the basis possibly never to be redeemed, as a floating debt of the bank to circulate among the population of the country, while with the making brilliant business wherever possible with money borrowed from the public. She knows from experience what amount of money she needs to pay for the upcoming notes have to be kept ready, some banks are also required to that they pay the third part of the amount of the notes issued in cash in case should have. But with that, their duties are also fulfilled; the rest of the capital lent to it by the population remains at its free disposal.

Disposal.

Since one usually has a considerable amount of cash money can generate greater profit than the usual rental or the interest of about 4 percent per annum, so according to normal concepts of law and equity the bank just as it is with the state bonds, attach coupons to their bank notes and give the pay the respective owner the usual interest on it. It would then find themselves in the same situation as a man who, for the time being, ordinary interest a capital of one or more millions at As a capable businessman, he would pay the interest on it and still get rich, since the business operation would bring in far more than the interest.

But this has never been discussed before, and the Banks would probably cry out in despair if such a fays to her. Everyone is used to the To regard bank notes as cash and to charge interest on them pay.

This is therefore not a healthy economic relationship from the outset, and it can also hardly produce healthy consequences. Professor Tellkamp (The Principles of Money and Banking. Berlin 1867 p. 21) says that the over-issuance of notes has, among other pernicious Consequences of the artificial increase in commodity prices, the effect of uncertainty of contracts, causing financial crises, Causing fraudulent transactions, generally demoralization a large number of people, and he is right with the modification, that an over-issue of notes cannot be avoided as long as one fit is used at all, since the only real purpose of its use is the exploitation of the public, and if this is taken away from her, her Use no longer serves any purpose. Mr. J. Ph. Schneider (Staats- and bank notes. Gießen 1871. pp. 20–21) chases: "There is hardly a country that did not have its paper notes. The example of using only Making promises instead of working seemed so seductive, that the mind was lifted out of the saddle everywhere. . . . Those who receive loans in banknotes instead of in metal money, pay also interest, only the issuers of the banknotes save or gain Interest. The former are used by the latter as sponges, which substance to absorb from the rest." Here too, not a word the exaggeration. -

Since the paper bank will definitely do better business, the more of its She brings her notes to the people, and since her enthusiasm is further enhanced by the If she is encouraged to apply for the position of her sisters, then the natural Consequence that even with the best intentions of their management, with caution to proceed, will not be so strict in the selection of its customers, like a capitalist who demands a loan in cash It is a more pleasant feeling to place the notes than to the one to pay out the money. This will result in a large number of Businessmen again caused the notes from the note banks to: to use the loans held by the Company in an imprudent manner by relying on undertakings beyond their own capabilities. The interest Both the bank and its customers are halfway there to flood the market with paper that to deteriorate the national currency by reducing its quantity, its quantity is increased, because this weakens their exchange value, their purchasing power.

Under normal conditions and pure metal circulation, there is no lack of in the world on liquid capital, on money, precisely because it is liquid, and can flow in from all sides without difficulty, and also, because nowhere is it a question of a certain amount of money, but of fits exchange value, fits purchasing power. The less money circulates, the greater its purchasing power, the smaller the quantity required for every single transaction. But cash is currently rare in an area, at a place of business, the consumption increases first rent, the discount, and then money flows from all sides or metal to fill the gaps.

Above we have mentioned, on the one hand, that, as is well known, for every kind of human traffic value activity of the medium of exchange, of money in the form of national currency, a highly important requirement derniß is; on the other hand, that this value activity of money in the present Use of the note banks by two different currents in the liquid Capital, the strong production of precious metals and the increasing notes= issuing of the banks is continually being disrupted to the general detriment. We can add that for a prosperous flow of traffic also stability of the rental of money, the discount necessary or at least highly desirable, which activity also in particular by the arbitrary enlargement or reduction of the circulating liquid capital of the banknote issue must be.

If the national currency consists of pure metal money, it depends in this relationship depends at least on one factor, the metal market; but if it consists of a mixture of paper and metal, then it is un= exposed to two currents from different sides and finds itself naturally in a continuous state of swaying.

It has been mentioned above that the means the population to capital reduction by issuing banknotes by no means be increased, because before there were grades, always and everywhere the sufficient liquid capital existed because it was not about quantity, but on exchange value, on purchasing power; and if its quantity is determined by the issue of an enormous amount of paper has been increased, this Purchasing power has been weakened in proportion. If a A country blessed with paper banks would be completely isolated and would have no communic other countries, the previously available cash would be the issue of the notes together with these form the circulation, and the exchange value, the purchasing power of the goods formed from this mixture National currency would be directly proportional to the notes issued= amount to the previous metal circulation weakened, the currency also have been worsened just as much. Since such isolation but nowhere takes place, the real success of the music edition is everywhere the,, that the deteriorated currency, the prices of the goods, government securities, bills of exchange in foreign currencies, etc. fincrease, which drives the increase in imports, because abroad the prices of goods have not risen, but that, since foreign countries have not Banknotes, but only metal money in payment, one Part of the circulating metal money to effect purchases in the abroad, which part of the notes is thus displaced has been, so that finally the circulating liquid capital, made of metal: money and paper mixed, remains larger in quantity than the previous Metal circulation, despite the fact that part of the metal has flowed away, that they have not only been weakened in purchasing power, but also in greater Fluctuations in the discount rate and ultimately also in the exchange value of currency remains subject to.

But an often repeated experience has proven that the evil not limited to that, but that due to the fact that the Interest of both the note banks and their note buyers on increasing the issue of banknotes and replacing metal money through paper, often eluding the individual eye, but therefore no less logically valid chain of Causes and effects sooner or later to the general monetary crisis Even if he hesitates, the day of the Mb- calculation, at which the existing metal money is no longer sufficient to cover the need for payments to the foreign country where the Population knocks on the doors of the paper banks to demand their long-held loan in metal, and then realizes with horror, that fic) also converted the metal there largely into paper, that banknotes and bills of exchange of all kinds, but only a few coins are present. Then the crisis is there and with it the ruin.

The general course of money transactions under the direction of the paper banks, as it may appear in a longer or shorter series of years, ift with larger or smaller MW- deviations such as the following:

Let us assume that a country has been in satisfactory traffic conditions, but that a number of note banks

265

was founded therein, and that this gradually increased its influence to their advantage by increasing their note issue from year to year enlarged. |

It is a common view in the business world that a rise in commodity prices with approximately equal inventories a period of prosperity, because it is assumed that the increased demand from the side of the consumers and proof of the increasing prosperity ft and since it is easier to make money in trade when prices are rising gain, as when prices fall, so do the merchants well, it is obvious that a general increase of prices with satisfactory financial conditions of the country's population be identical.

However, one must not overlook the fact that commodity prices do not only exchange value of the goods, but also in their entirety the changes in the money that constitutes the national currency, indicate that a rise in all commodity prices is indeed an increase in consumption, in demand for goods, but with even greater probability a corresponding devaluation of money. If you ignore this, it can lead to very dangerous errors arise. 1

If such a rise in commodity prices occurs, that is, such a Devaluation of the national currency as a result of the fact that the banking banks have issued a lot of paper, so in all probability A considerable part of the previously circulating metal money has already been However, it is still in the mixed currency of Money and paper still have plenty of liquid capital in circulation, whose Amount together with the rise caused by the inflation the price of goods awakens the desire for enterprise and leads to speculation This gives rise to new demands on the money edition of the banks, on the other hand, a further increase in prices and new Purchases abroad, so that more metal money is being sold abroad. While the business world is eagerly involved in the lively movement of the market, some of them making considerable Make profits, as a result of which the expenses for their household and increase their other needs and also contribute to the increase of commodity prices, the situation is quite different for the rest of the population, especially in the countryside, which is by no means due to increased consumption had given rise to the increase in the cost of basic necessities, which rather, since the whole movement comes from the issue of paper and from its subsequent devaluation of money, with need and concern has to fight because most of their income is in fixed amounts of money exist and have lost their previous purchasing power.

266

The artificially created by speculation and mutual outbidding The increase in commodity prices gives rise to continued strong import of goods from abroad, where no special increase has taken place, although the increase in demand has not been entirely without effect. On the other hand, exports, namely the own industrial products abroad gradually decrease, because the manufacturers themselves in the devaluation of money who pay dearly for raw materials and other needs, and therefore also for higher Sales prices must be demanded and these the previous buyers of the property country do not want to grant because they cannot afford higher prices In the same proportion as such a state lasts longer lasts, its effect will continue to increase, it will become more and more

Metal money abroad, as a result of deffen, and also again as a reason
In addition, the quantity of paper in circulation is increased, the currency
This made things even worse, prices increased and exports increased and more reduced. But if a country no longer has the value of its
If the imports cannot be covered by corresponding exports, he has no other choice left than to use its circulating metal money for this purpose. Such Conditions do not immediately become clear, so that they affect the public Attract attention. The audience, once accustomed to the paper notes does not notice at all or only superficially the disappearance of the metal money, because it has the small change left. It feels the rise in prices, suffers from it, but does not know how to explain the reasons and has to
The export business of a country usually takes place under two forms Instead, through purchases of neighboring foreigners in the country itself and by sending goods, especially industrial products, which domestic manufacturers and merchants export for their own account land. The latter form is particularly common in remote Countries that are too remote to make direct purchases of their side in the production country. A normal Consequence of the decreasing purchases by foreigners (the advantageous stronger and faster sales) usually consists in the fact that the manufacturers inclined or rather forced to pay for the abundance of their
To seek out buyers for products in more distant foreign countries, i.e.
to multiply shipments for one's own account. The consequences of this are but of several kinds; firstly, such dispatches require many months, not infrequently years before they are settled and the result in figures is established so that it allows a firm judgment as to profit or loss;

267

secondly, the final result is usually stored in this form made goods exports less favorable for the senders than if they could have continued to purchase their products directly from buyers of the neighboring countries, but finally the Owners of such shipments of goods in the long time which requires will, before the proceeds reach their hands, sooner or later be converted into money-embarrassment, need advances and find them most easily with the paper banks, which, since they always pay in paper, again leads to a increased edition of music. One works on the
Into the hands of others, to bring a land blessed with paper banks to and to undermine its economic health.

The shipments of goods will be made despite the possibly unfavourable outcome.
following the lack of other sales and in the hope of better Results are repeated, and it can take a number of years while which for the statistician the export of the country to its import seems to be more or less the same, although in reality exports have significantly less favourable results for the assets of the residents than before.

But if in this way for a longer period of time the difference between import and export, the shortfall of the latter by outflow of the still covered by the transfer of cash circulating abroad and thereby the national currency has been continually deteriorating, a stage to enter where the traffic no longer requires cash for export can raise, because almost only paper is in circulation, which is why the Holders of the banknotes present themselves at the banks to redeem to demand money. This is always a very unfavorable sign and usually the sure precursor of the thunderstorm, which is now sudden rush of the public demanding metal payment, through which difficulty of its satisfaction and by eventual collapse the banks and general ruin tends to discharge itself; because as soon as since there is a greater need for cash, banks tend to to restrict their traffic; they seek the discounting of bills of exchange to limit and increase for this purpose the discount, which under In such circumstances, often in a very short time from 3 pt. to 10, 12 pt. and has risen higher. At the same time, they announce the usual Times when well-known businessmen opened credits and drove everywhere their outcry; because their aim is above all to Credit by continuing to present all submitted grades to redeem with metal money. But the demand is getting stronger and stronger. The

The financial squeeze caused by the increase in discount rates makes the
\

268

The business world was dismayed, people tried to sell goods, but no one now demands goods, everyone needs money, the prices of goods begin to sink, and just as quickly as the discount rises, they fall often in a few days in a quite unbelievable way. Nevertheless, But there are no buyers, the financial squeeze is getting worse. Now Everyone is suspicious and tries to protect themselves from all sides, The safest bills of exchange are rejected, they only want money, which nowhere to be found; the mistrust quickly spreads to those who are not belonging to the business world, the people besiege the Thitren the banks to get metal money for his banknotes. Everywhere There is fear, experienced businessmen lose their composure; Enormous quantities of goods are sold at ridiculous prices, some well-founded wealth is lost in a matter of days. Finally, the banks can no longer hold back against the rush, They stop their cash payments and the confusion is complete. ftändig. The factories stop working, the shipyards, houses= buildings are deserted, all traffic is at a standstill, even the day laborers find no longer have any employment and wander with their families starving on the Streets around until the reaction occurs, the low prices of goods the Metal money will lure in from outside again, gradually regaining confidence returns and outwardly things seem to return to the old Return to the track; but only in appearance; because for the To the attentive observer, such a place of business resembles, and sometimes

It are all the major business centers of the country, as one would expect in England and North America have experienced more than once – the election after the end of a great battle. A lot of previously highly respected Business houses are ruined and have declared themselves insolvent, the banks liquidate, a part can resume its business, the majority is bankrupt. Many families who have their assets in the banks or with the individual bankers on interest, find themselves on the begging stick come, and the general result is the destruction of a large Sum of prosperity and peaceful family happiness.

This is the approximate picture of a financial crisis, as it in highly developed traffic conditions, in the usual course of things according to regular periods of time from the system of free movement of many competing note banks, although external special circumstances can also contribute to the sudden and even less expected to bring about, such as general crop failures, wars, business disasters abroad, etc.

The seeds of this lie in the deterioration and gradual

269

Devaluation of the national currency due to the outflow of metal money and its replacement by mere paper, as well as in the interest that every bank has in maintaining its banknote issue as much as possible, i.e. the national currency to worsen. |

The danger may be greater where traffic is less frequented by individual Points concentrated where, as in Germany, the note banks on larger or are scattered over smaller distances across the country, than in England and North America; Jaber, as the same causes the same fufficiencies, then sooner or later the Root of the ruin, the economic unhealth, which From the beginning in the creation of banknotes, its growth from= broaden, expand their branches and become more and more entangled until They will envelop everything and finally drag it into the abyss.

If one studies the history of the various financial crises of this kind, fuch one almost always finds that the business world is immediately the catastrophe occurred in a period of general prosperity, or, more correctly, believed to be the cause of the destruction with suddenly like a thunderstorm broke out of a clear sky; and one does not read things like those who describe such calamities express their naive surprise at the sudden change. But it is clear that what was thought to be prosperity was only it seemed that in reality the traffic was already in a state was in a state of complete unhealthiness; because the high prices of goods, which the encouraged large numbers to speculate, were not a symptom of the general prosperity, they showed on the contrary that the national currency worsened that the metal money flowed out of the country and everywhere had been replaced by mere paper promises of payment.

Between all countries linked by trade there is a Circumstances fluctuating exchange rate. However, it always has a more or less solid basis, which the actual equilibrium (the "al pari" in business language) and either only in the business-weight of the same precious metal, which in the national currencies serves as a basis (festes al pari), or, if one country is after silver, the other calculates according to gold, as a further factor in the calculation of the price of the metal outside the national currency, foreign to it in each of the two countries (fluctuating al pari). As an example we can take two gold trading centers, London and Bremen. According to the gold weight of a sovereign, the same has in Bremen Goldthalers have a value of 6 thalers. 10% Grt. Consequently, the

270

Equal course, which al pari between London and Bremen 100 E = 615 Bremen gold thalers. The real exchange rate is by no means always at 615, but rises above it or falls below the par, depending on the influence of supply and demand. Is now England exported a significant quantity of gold coins to the continent shipped and in circulation through increased issuance of banknotes replaced, the English national currency will deteriorate accordingly Wefe. Suppose (despite the fact that they are not made of pure gold Sovereigns, but heavily mixed with paper) that the Nad-ask for exchange rates on England the course between London and Bremen until then on the equality rate of 100 L = 615 thalers of gold If the English had held on to this deterioration, National currency due to outflow of gold the real exchange rate to 612 610 or even lower; because the deterioration of the national currency, in which, as a rule, a larger quantity of paper is put into circulation If the sum of gold sent abroad had been natural course of things an increase in commodity prices in England. As a result, the Bremen businessman would have to. who used to purchase goods from England had a higher price; he could therefore no longer buy so much for £100 buy, as before, would therefore no longer be inclined, 615 Thlr. of gold for it, ie the demand would decrease, the The price would have to fall. The same relationship as between London and Bremen, however, exists between England and the whole foreign country, and For the same reason, a course less favourable to England would have to be change will occur as soon as the outflow of gold and greater issue of paper, the English national currency deteriorated. The Exchange rate changes are therefore in the same way as commodity prices the measure of the exchange value of the national currency. According to the newer English theory, which Sir Robert Peel in his banking reform, which was later supported by Mac Culloch has been represented, now follows above all these S hw an-effects of exchange rates on foreign countries as a measure of value be used for the national currency, so you should

- a. the national currency from a continuous mutual agreement proportions of the quantity changing mixture of gold coins and banknotes remain;
- b. one should try to achieve that the music edition for the The whole country will be concentrated on a single bank, because only such a one is able to find the right ratio of the quantity

271

both parts of the national currency according to a regulated plan to monitor.

c. as soon as a common change of direction of all courses (ie a joint change of all courses to foreign countries in favour of England, because a single course can various random modifications of demand) noticed, one can see that the national currency fi) that too much paper and too little money in the circulation. Consequently

d. In this case, the directors of the State Note Bank shall immediately to try to control the evil by pulling in paper and by restoring the correct, ie the previous, relationship.

This is done in particular by increasing the discount, which depresses the prices of goods whose owners have to suffer, i.e. directly through the existence of the bank= be harmed by fluctuations in the market resulting from notes.

If both must be admitted that a concentration of However, issuing banknotes in a single bank would provide better monitoring and thus protects the country better against financial crises than unlimited freedom and competition in the issuing of music; and furthermore,

that the fall of all courses to foreign countries is indeed a A sure symptom of this is that a deterioration of the country's currency through excessive issuance of banknotes, fuch reasoning suggests that the question tie:

e. if it is established that a paper and metal mixture national currency is worse than a pure metal currency; if It is also established that with such a mixed national currency Fluctuations in their value cannot be avoided.

– and a concentration of the music edition under impeccable Management can, in the best case, ensure that these values= to balance out fluctuations as soon as possible; finally if it is established that all fluctuations in the value of the land= currency not only for the entire population, but also in particular for the trade an undoubted evils,

why then do we keep the use of banknotes everywhere at? why not ban the issue of all and every banknote?

It is difficult to find an answer to this question other than 272

that one once gets used to the evil and that it is hard would seem to a number of bank shareholders, who also once the exploitation of the entire population through the issuance of banknotes accustomed to taking this privilege suddenly.
For everything that can serve to produce capital, the
the one who only has his work and not the necessary capital, Pay rent or interest, rent. If you rent a field, a factory, you rent a house, a ship, a car, – you always pays the rent for it, whether it is called rent, lease, Freight or if you hire work, salary or wages. the liquid capital cannot produce anything in and of itself but like the residential building, the freight car is required to
To help the production in a wider range, you also pay from liquid capital rent and calls it "interest." Now increased but a paper bank by issuing printed payment promises the amount of liquid capital available, it would in that case can also rightly claim a rental fee if through the national economy, for the entire population the ability ity of capital production would be increased. But this is not the Fall; because every increase in liquid capital increases its exchange value, this purchasing power is reduced accordingly, fo the productive power is of the circulating liquid capital has remained the same, it has only a assumed a worse form, as the metal was partly replaced by paper has been displaced. Will this deterioration of the national currency a lot of people whose income is in fixed amounts sluggishness, the entire population also suffers by the fluctuations in the exchange value of the paper caused by the National currency, the banknotes finally eliminate the danger of money-crises, – so the bank in question cannot reasonable grounds for deducting a rental fee from their payment promises rather, such a demand means the right relationship
It is reasonable to assume that a good organized state can make the same claim to credit as a well-funded bank. One can disregard the government paper money, since its Use is recognized as an old abuse, which at least hopefully will not be maintained for much longer. Likewise but as every state pays annual Interest paid, just as the enjoyment of a good credit does not justify him to exemption from interest payments, the best-founded Note bank, if it is allowed to settle its payment obligations instead of

to pay with cash only with promises of payment, on their part be obliged to pay rent, i.e. interest for the property in their hands retained liquid capital. It can only be seen as an imitation the old sin committed by the state governments of spending of government paper, if the note banks still have today's day, instead of paying interest on the capital received. pay, which in turn is paid by the population to the debt document or promise of payment delivered to her To be admired is in any case the – good-natured=ity of this population. –

Has a paper bank for a longer period of time the privilege of Banknote issue and refuses to stop doing so; this would fet would do it a grave injustice if it decreed that the issue of music may be continued, but like all other loans should be subject to the usual interest rate in the country, so that every note to be provided with the interest coupon to be redeemed by the bank.

According to what has been said, the first two of the above The questions posed (p. 1066) will be answered by saying that

1, impossible a bank share company or any other part of the Citizens can claim a natural right, in the previous To issue white notes, i.e. to obtain an interest-free loan at the expense of the entire population, but that it is up to the individual States, regarding the information given out of ignorance of the governments privileges with the individual existing banks;

2. that it is equally impossible for the states to their own interests, the further in to allow the previous way, because the same

a. in and of itself every national currency through teng the exchange= means must devalue;

b. because it must continue to contribute to this devaluation, by their natural tendency to direct their gravity towards aimed at eliminating metal money from circulation and to replace it with paper, thus worsening the means of exchange tern, to keep the discount in constant fluctuation;

c. because the economic conditions found are by their nature undermined and led to exaggerated speculation and fraud= business must give rise to it;

d. because sooner or later they arise from internal logical development its effects lead to bank crises, thus to general ruin of the state population's assets;

Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 18

e.

—

274

because it is in and of itself an injustice that the country= population, without even realizing it, let it be, the bank shareholders enormous sums of money every year without interest, without a corresponding To receive a counter-performance, since the banknotes do not represent the to facilitate traffic in a manner not possible through other means to replace it;

. finally, because the greater part of the population of the state, from the day=

wage earners up to the minister, insofar as their income is in fixed certain amounts of money, partly through which of the banknotes caused devaluation of the national currency, as Mixture of paper and metal, most difficult to hold in his interests are harmed;

All that remains is to hunt for the settlement of the third question,

3.

that there is no form of music edition at all which instead of the current one, because

A.

the currency granted to the circulation through the use of banknotes Relief, as shown above, not significant enough to for the damage they have caused in any form to pay the rate;

because their mere existence is sufficient to make any national currency mixing of metal money with paper, and the by increasing the already enormous metal production to further devalue the means of exchange already devalued worth.

because it would make no sense for the state to The country's population itself, instead of the bank shareholders, wanted to generate interest profits by issuing banknotes in order to pass them on to the
to allow the same population to benefit again;

because it seems absolutely impossible for several reasons that the state governments, in addition to the abusive manner, continue permanent existence of state paper money in Germany, a further direct influence on arbitrary increase of exchange and means of payment should be received; J ,

because the proposal made by other parties; the banknotes
to continue to use, but the cause of the effects they have brought about to eliminate the economic abuses by one ignores the interest in ever-increasing publication of the same and for this purpose use the sheet music instead of the paper banks of an independent, but without vested interest of the 275

senior officials administered institution, which under simultaneous supervision of the state government and people's representation in the white man would have to put notes into circulation so that they full amount of the issue in precious metal, – because Such a proposal is not practical for several reasons.
tic execution; because on the one hand, such an approach would ft, although the supervision of the people's representatives with fupposes, initially, to be directly dependent on the state government must, on the other hand, the storage of such a large Amount of precious metal in one and the same place multiple times driving; finally, it would also be very difficult to capable management of such a system certainly warrants the utmost confidence carelessness of the officials without any personal To gain interest in their successes. In any case, the the inevitable disadvantages associated with it may be more significant than the advantage achieved by facilitating traffic.

Therefore, the final decision can only be that the use of any and all paper money is reprehensible and must be created, not only by the state, but also by the private sector paper money, banknotes.

18 *

The Confolidation
des German government paper money.)
i Bon
Dr. Georg Hirth.

A judgment and confession that cannot be valued highly enough about the
The way in which certain economic matters have been dealt with by certain parties
The statement of the Hamburg Chamber of Commerce contains to the circular of the Trading Day Committee, whereby it well-known report of his bank commission from May 1870 for assessment
The Hamburg Chamber of Commerce says: "About the scientific and practical questions of banking have recently
Time so much written and published, and increased the estimate
The material on this subject is so abundant and varied that it is difficult to keep is likely to present significantly new viewpoints and arguments.
However, if the main purpose of this circular is rin, from the votes of the individual Germans trading corporations for or against the individual theses put forward Majority decisions and a predominant view of German trade ftate on the future Reich legislation concerning banking derive, we can only regard such an attempt as questionable and
At least within the individual Commercial colleges the result of votes on general theoretical reticulous sentences, which are usually in very different ways and extents can be realized and modified by various conditions and tend to be limited, often randomly and without any particular tical value. But it would be even more unfortunate to make a Number of corporations voting on the adoption of this or that Thesis and the desire for its application by the majority of the German trading class."

A very interesting judgment that the organizers of volkswirth

*) With the permission of the author from the publications published by him
"Annals of the German Empire" reprinted. Perrot.

scientific reports, enquiries and congresses on the one hand, and federal Council and Reichstag, on the other hand, should take this to heart.

But if one wanted to wait with the solution of the paper money question until the scholars disagree on the concepts of "money," "capital," "money surrogate," "exchange," and "circulation medium," "credit," etc., and the owners of all these beautiful things would have voluntarily declared, that although they do not understand anything about the scholarly dispute, they nevertheless want to forego the incredible profit they get from the ambiguity of the concepts and the inexperience of the legislators so far – then of course it would be better to remove the whole question from the program of the legislature for several decades. Fortunately but things are clear at least in one direction: justice demands a decision under all circumstances; First of all, it is not about new freedoms (which in Germany the German people have learned to wait patiently), but rather the elimination of a gross and dangerous injustice, in order to achieve the elimination of dual rights for the relatives of one and the same state system.

The owners of the German banks who are permitted to artificially to put the created means of payment into circulation, approximately 7 to 8 million thalers in interest on a capital that they did not possess, that is, they obtain under the protection of wrong laws from their fellow citizens a pension or tax, which incidentally almost corresponds to the income of the Coffee duty *). Such a "Reich tax" of several thousand

*) The Preußische Bank, for example, had in 1870 after deduction of all costs a profit of 4,478,854 thalers and after deduction of interest on the operating capital a net profit of 3,468,962 thalers; after deduction of the share for the The reserve account remained at 2,890,802 thalers, half of which went to the state, the others remained with the "bank share owners". In total there were 2250 Private, of which each has an average share of 8389 thalers in the operating fund had, but in 1870

- a) $4\frac{1}{2}$ percent interest = 400 thalers.
- b) Extra dividend = 642 "

in total 1042 thalers.

received, in total about 113%, pCt. of the invested capital. And yet It is precisely the Preuß. Bank, where, through the significant participation of the State profits from taxing the people for the benefit of individuals appears in a somewhat more decent light. Compared to the profit of Nearly $4\frac{1}{2}$ million thalers (or 27 percent of the operating capital) is the important items: 21,670 thalers and 27 Swiss francs for the production of banknotes! –

Privileged persons may no longer be raised, understands fih from felbft ; also
 It is obvious that half measures are the solution to the important question would only delay and make it more difficult; and that in a sensible way only two options are available: either complete freedom issuing or strictly prohibiting the private manufacture of paper money, in both cases, excluding any and all business transactions between state and private individuals.

Whichever of the two paths the legislation may take,
 the state will have to insist on the currently partially Privately ceded coin and money shelf again for themselves in the Even if every "German" is permitted by law, through interest-free notes also outside the Limitations of the right of exchange, even without stamp duty, at will
 "to exploit its credit," the state has justifiably only the Choice, either all these papers without exception or none only one of them to be considered as "money", for full payment to=

to increase and pass on. However, since the production of the
 The time has not yet come for the most flourishing communism,
 State only that which it itself and alone, without the participation of private fabricated "money" as such, it now consists in minted ten coins or in so-called cash notes. The effect of taxation can and will then, after the state has been responsible for the private money production=

protection and state supervision have been eliminated, only created by the state itself and not covered by cash
 Paper money, as well as the coins with compulsory exchange rates, insofar as their fineness does not correspond to their nominal value, a albeit entailing a slight taxation of the public.

Insofar as the impending solution of banknotes=

question is initially only about legalizing private money production to regulate, or to release or abolish, the question of what to do with what has to happen to the currently circulating government paper money, can probably also be done independently. This should not be misunderstood that their settlement in connection with the closely related bank= notes= and especially with the coin question would be very desirable;

 However, in this connection, she would not get much more than a financial=technical treatment can be given). Because it *) As soon as the German government paper money is consolidated and the Reich has acquired unconditional right of disposal by assuming the debt,

It would be a huge mistake if one wanted to immediately introduction of the gold standard and elimination of banknotes the latter in trade through a corresponding increase in the state= paper money. Apart from other serious concerns, On the other hand, the consideration that such an increase in interest-free debt indirectly increases the burden on taxpayers indicates that without urgent and permanently proven Need should not introduce new taxes at all, least of all those whose economic consequences cannot be fully understood and where in critical moments more than the tax amount felf is at stake. One would do well to keep the order the transitional state required by the monetary and banking reform use the most solid and simple means possible: for example, the mints and central treasury of the state the obligation to protect against deposit of coins or bars and payment of a small commission, coin notes that can be redeemed at any time (i.e. safe notes in the actual Without a doubt, "we would thereby be Realization of an economic ideal that is practically to have tested it would be an achievement in itself.") – N may at any time establish a different relationship under the terms of different denominations, depending on the coin reform required become.

*) Mr. Heinrich Kämmerer of Hamburg, one of the few radical Members of the Bank=Commiffion of the trading day (which consists of nine bank directors, including the President of the Main Bank Directorate in Berlin, Mr. v. Dechend, and a considerable number of other banking interests), recommends in a fine separate vote with general freedom of banking for all under the law above joint-stock companies "Permission to issue of banknotes with full cash backing under legally established control." The banks concerned would be legally obliged to maintain a separate account and to keep a separate cash box for the banknote business and to be entitled to it= to grant the courts a general pledge on all the assets of this case in favor of the holders of notes of their issue. Mr. Kämmerer thinks that the small premium that the borrowers of the notes would be happy to pay is I will make the business profitable enough for private individuals. I don't believe that; The creation of paper currency should not be left to chance be left to other tasks than the minting of coins; in my opinion Rather, the state has the duty to provide the possibility of temporary replacement of the metal for paper, just as he exchanged gold coins for silver= coins and coins in general against bars. The full cash Paper money backed by the currency is nothing but a special form of coin. State is able to carry out all these simple exchange transactions in the cheapest and most There is no need to justify the fact that it is the most annoying thing to do.

increase in government paper money in Germany, so On the other hand, the financial situation of the federal states is such that that even an immediate abolition or significant reduction the same, i.e. the conversion of non-interest-bearing into interest-bearing debts, would face great difficulties. Economics too=

For the time being, the continued existence of 40 – 60 million thalers of paper money to be considered harmless as soon as the same is done with full state authority all requirements of free movement throughout the empire are met.

This condition applies to almost half of the currently in Germany is not allowed to circulate government paper money; indeed, the Caffencours at the public caffen ift for none of the previous existing papers obligatory, only tacit and temporary one now in all federal states the Prussian banknotes (rather because of the urgent need for a general paper, and out of politeness towards the German supremacy, rather than out of love for their Finance) a kind of exceptional status. It also allows for against the fact that the federal states do not exchange their cash certificates among each “Money”, do not object in the slightest, because this interest-free=

Banknotes continually pay interest to the issuing governments, which are, they are carried out within the borders of the indebted State pays, as tax, they are collected outside, as a friend=

ual donation. Even by introducing simple counter=

fidelity, which in principle cannot be rejected, would in this
 In this case, a just situation is not brought about, since it only brings about an equal moderate distribution of unequal burdens, not also of advantages

Therefore, the federal states are still not only entitled, but to protect their financial national interests
 ly obliged to enforce the laws prohibiting “foreign” paper money

But if there is a distinction between the obviously just tendency of these laws and the general traffic interest of the citizens

*) Two years after the foundation of the North German Confederation, under April 22, 1869, a “law concerning the restrictions of Payment by means of foreign paper money and similar tokens of value in the newly acquired parts of the country”, in which the use not only of foreign banknotes or other non-interest-bearing bearer bonds of foreign corporations, companies or private individuals, but also of foreign government paper money, insofar as the individual pieces are amounts less than ten thalers, with a fine of up to 50 thalers.
 threatened ift. (Collection of Laws 1869, p. 561.)

281

as is currently the case in Germany, such a clear contradiction
 There is a risk that the public prosecutor would actually “embarrass himself” if he wanted ensure respect for the legal provisions in individual cases – then the current paper money anarchy appears not only as economic felf, but also as a moral emergency. Nothing harms the the state's laws are as sensitive as criminal laws that no one observes, against which even the appointed guardians of the law daily and hourly are missing; and in this painful emergency the high contracting parties, who have an eternal covenant under the name of "German Empire" have concluded:

The legislative factors of the former North German Confederation have As is well known, he has already dealt with the question of government paper money twice. On 2 June 1869, the Reichstag adopted with a very large majority a Motion by MP Braun (Hersfeld) to the effect: "the Federal Government= Chancellor to submit a bill to the Reichstag as soon as possible which, in implementation of Article 4 of the Federal Constitution, issue of state cash notes of the northern German federal states"). Since this resolution had no further consequences, the Reichstag in the ordinary SefSION of the year 1870 a proposal submitted by the MP Miquél and amended by MP Grumbrecht, fttige, which was then also accepted by the Federal Council and Federal= After that, up to the period specified by Article 4 No. 3 of the Federal the constitutional legal determination of the principles on the Issuance of paper money by the federal states only on the basis of a Reich law passed at the request of the state government concerned Paper money may be issued or its issue permitted; the current circulating paper money after withdrawal by new values It is permitted to replace or exchange characters, but here= for paper money of lower denomination instead of paper money higher nominal value cannot be set.

Neither this law nor the previous resolution affect the actual emergency, even if they aim to aggravate to prevent it. Already in the session of the Reichstag on 2 June 1860

*) Compare Stenograph. Reports of the Reichstag 1869 p. 1244 ff.

*) Law of 16 June 1870 on the issue of paper money, Federal Law Gazette. p. 507. The law was issued in Berlin on 5 August 1870 and was came into force on the 19th of the month in the Northern German Confederation; furthermore in Baden and southern Hesse, while in Bavaria and Württemberg fine binding Power takes effect on January 1, 1872. – See Stenographic Reports of the Reichstag, Ordinary Session 1870, pp. 574–582 and 708 ff.

Federal Commissioner Geh.-Rath Michaelis argued that the Difficulties in regulating this issue much less in the conditions the future issuance of paper money, but rather in the order of the existing paper money already in circulation, with which he very rightly sees as a task not only for the legislation, but especially and primarily the art of finance He explained that if the authorization of the individual Bun= des states to issue paper money retroactively, ie after the ratio of the population should be restricted, a larger number of states would be able to make very significant to have to bear the interest burden. However, this remained the case interpretation.

The matter is simply this:

The aim is to achieve complete free movement and full state support. identification of every "money" that is issued in the name and with the authority of the smallest federal state. This demand is a natural consequence of the economic unity and freedom of movement established: otherwise, it is absolutely necessary that in a union of states the dignity and the reputation of the individual members is not systematically ruined, which happens when the states publicly declare themselves among themselves as reckless debtors. In this respect, the reform is much more "federalist" rather than "unitarian" – at least from the point of view of public morality.

But if the Reich declares that the interest-free cash certificates of the federal states are treated as "money" by all public treasuries. In other words, that means in other words: The interest on the un-interest-bearing debts of the federal states will henceforth be borne by the entire Reich and his relatives, or: until the moment when the Repayment of these debts by the federal states, the Reich himself as a debtor, and since the quasi interest-free debts which is also non-cancellable, it will probably be this debtor remain forever.

That the states with relatively small paper money issues, Prussia in the lead, cannot enter into such an agreement, goes without saying. In order to bring about the necessary reform will be either, to enable simple reciprocity, each federal state immediately limits its paper money issue to a certain amount contribution according to the scale of its population to reduce or increase; or the empire formally acts as a common debtors and the settlement of the differences between the Federal states are governed by a Reich law.

283

In the former case, the independence of the financial economy of the individual states only insofar as those whose interest-free debt exceeded the conventional amount, would be forced to to withdraw the excess of cash certificates for cash or to transfer them to a interest-bearing debt, perhaps even a certain ratio among pieces of different denominations.

States would remain debtors to themselves and would have to issue their own notes. For the traffic this information would be sufficient, even if Notes of the same shape and design because of the relief would definitely be preferable to control. On the other hand, individual States significant and permanent burdens through the borrowing of interest-bearing bonds arise.

The situation is quite different if the German Empire takes over the interest-free debts of the individual states. The Reich may allow deadlines and grant relief, just as it does generally can levy my taxes. The empire is in a position to help the states. first accept their entire interest-free debt and the conditions interest and gradual amortization as cheaply as possible. I would like to place particular emphasis on this latter point. If one wants, as is urgently desired, to achieve the reform in question within To reach a conclusion that is satisfactory to all, the states whose financial resources are primarily used offer certain advantages, while the states that are in the favourable position to be creditors of the rich, having to forego a brilliant business. It should not be forgotten that the interest-free National debt dates back to a time when the reconstruction of the Reich of the German Nation was not yet mentioned, for reasons and conditions, in the design of which today's financiers mostly have no share"). In particular, it should also be considered that the Reichs= constitution gives the Reich the right to regulate the "principles" of the emission of funded and unfunded paper money, that this provision

*) One of the few exceptions is the Württembergische non-interest-bearing Loan of 16 July 1871 in the amount of 3 million guilders. This is still not issued, but still has room for manoeuvre until 1 January 1872, when this day the Reich Law of 16 June 1870 on the issue of paper= money in Württemberg (as well as in Bavaria) acquired binding force.

284

but it is difficult to give retroactive force in such a way that the individual federal states without their consent the right of disposal regarding their older liabilities. the negotiations in the constitutive Reichstag (1867) I have nothing known, which justified such an interpretation.

In general, it is a law that has a general my understanding among the federal states must be based, It is actually a compromise law. On the one hand, there are the States with large paper debt: the debt that can be taken from them and wants to transfer it to the Reich, it does not press too hard, because it does not have to pay interest; of course, they are quite happy for all sorts of reasons to get rid of the odious paper load, but because of the interest fung they try to postpone the solution as long as possible. On the on the other hand, the states with low paper money emission: they make claim that their cases are filled with amounts of previously unknown notes= fwamped, that they are not only a foreign interest-free debt, but also in fact take over their interest, so that they can must compensate in full. Among the latter states, Prussia to have the decisive say; from the Prussian government=

 But we can all the more make self-sacrificing resolutions in this thing, as not only the interest-free Prussian cash notes, but also the notes of the Prussian Bank regarding their circulation in German "abroad" have so far been cheaper than the paper money of any other state. Of course, it is always before= provided that the privilege of the Prussian Bank prevails or at least as a Royal Prussian privilege; because in the significant share of the state in the business profits of this bank is about half of the money issued by the same company and not exchanged for cash covered notes to the account of the Prussian government, i.e.
 if not legally, then factually as Prussian state paper money. If one calculates only 35 million thalers.
 Prussian banknotes for the interest-free national debt of 18 million.
 Thaler, that is the current amount per head of the population in Prussia= 2¼ thalers of paper money, the interest not being paid to the state as follows chen, but the Prussian or German public. Without The abolition of the banking privilege would therefore not be count among the states with "low paper money circulation"; it would fuch voluntarily find themselves in a similar situation as Oldenburg is in vis-à-vis the Oldenburgische Landesbank. |

285

My suggestion now is:

The states with paper money overload in general from the interest on debt exceeding their population rate= amount, but to impose on them the obligation pay this amount within 25 years, annually at 4 PCt.,
 to amortize; furthermore, the amount of the state loan cash notes issued by the Reich paper money at ½ Thlr. per head of the population.

With the prospect of having completely eliminated its deficit after 25 years,
 , the states in question cannot be considered fit is difficult to agree to an immediate settlement of the paper money issue=
 The standardization of the per capita amount to 1½ thalers brings the whole empire an increase of the now circulating paper money by approx. 4%, million thalers with fih, but ift by the fact that several states ten with a total of 2¼ million inhabitants have no paper money of their own possess, somewhat justified, and significantly reduces the amortizing amounts. This new interest-free debt of the Reich follows incidentally, have only a supplementary character and serve as repayment Annual subsidy of 4 percent to the individual federal states according to measure of the law. Its sole purpose is to To temporarily relieve states with large non-interest-bearing debt and to make them more inclined towards reform.

How the financial obligations and rights are structured
The following table shows how many people would be affected.
to note that the headcount of the population is the number of local residents of the national population, as in the calculation of the municipal contributions, is assumed. The specified figures for Bavaria and Alsace-Lorraine are not based on payment, but on calculation
According to the census of 1 December 1871, the
The whole table will take on a significantly different shape, since

Population not only the statutory share in the general

Paper money circulation, but also the calculation of the differences and amortization rates. Furthermore, it should not be forgotten that in the table the "amount of interest-free debt" is the actual amounts issued are indicated (including those still in this 3 million guilders of the new Württemberg that were to be issued in the next few years of the Prussian loan of 16 July 1871 and that of the Oldenburgische Landesbank of 2 million thalers of Oldenburg state paper money transferred to the bank); while the consolidation proposed here would only the pieces of the various issues presented for exchange

286

26. Hamburg

I. Prussia

2. Lauenburg

KS

4th Saxony

5th Württemberg

S 55...» Sa:

. ee

8. Mecklenburg-Schwerin
9th S.≈Weimar

11. Oldenburg..
12. Braunschweig .
13th S.≈Meiningen.

14. S.≈Altenburg ..

15th S.≈Coburg-Gotha
18th Anhalt

17th Schwarzb≈Sondersh
18. Schwarzb.-Rudolstadt

19th forest c

20th Reuss Old Line

21st Reuß jüng Line
22. Schaumburg Lipp
0 24th Lübeckfk

W. Dremen

27. Alsace-Lorraine

Summa...

New Guilt of the Reich

At all.

10. Mecklenburg≈Strelitz

SS mn

Effective amount
the interest-free

Legally permitted

bigger Thaler. |

ee

1,495, 800 |
| 8,506,060
812,662

1,280,007

200,487
358,785
1,554,862
184,866
345,632
287,825
364,359
688,082
54,888
94,654
127,040
69,111
199,088
327,914

er effective amount ift ith Ver found equal to the legally granted

= - - = Š

: To compensate, A Annually for 25 years

(4 pCt.)
less to pay to receive.

Thaler. Thaler Thaler
17,432,508 697,300

71,387 2,856
– 340,242 –
Era 32,506 — 355,687 – 14,228
– 51,200 – 826,526 — 33,061
– 8,019 BAR = 14.352 _–
– 62,194 – – 7,395 – »
– 13,825 –
— 11,513 _–
it 14,574 _–
— 27,523 – –
– | 2,196 —
* 3,786 – –
= 5.082 –
== 2,765
– | 7,964 –
EB 13,117 es
162,698 — 6,508

62,791 – 2,511
127.104 – 5.084
352,374 — 14,095

_ 2,362,500 | _– 94,5000
870,143

21,753,575 | 678,085 |

192,058

Headcount of debt (per capita population. | 11/, Thaler.)
i Aon

Thaler. Head Thaler.
– || 23,788,339 18,250,000 * | 76 35,682,508
47,591 – – 71,387
4,717,086 8,571,429 1.80 7,075,629
2,329,293 12,000,000 5.15 3,493,940
1,743,939 3,423,571 1.96 2,615,909
1,379,982 1,714,286 1.23 2,069,973
| 784,757 2,457,143 3.13 1,177,136

| 551.017 — | = 826.526
 | 266,342 600,000 | 2.25 399,513
 | 94,143 500,000 5.32 141,215
 296,759 2,000,000 6.74 | 445,138
 276,756 600,000 2.17 || 415,134
 169,579 600,000 3.55 254,368
 131,550 485,600 | 3.68 197,775
 157,094 600,000 | 3.82 235,641
 174,612 950,000 5.43 | 261,918
 63,408 150,000 2.36 95,112
 70,231 200,000 2.85 105,346
 55.00 210,000 3.79 82,960
 40,593 130,000 3.20 60,889
 80,608 | 320,000 | 3.97 120,912
 29,391 | 372,000 12.38 44,086
 108,465 — — 162,698
 41,861 — 4 62,791
 84,736 — — 127,104
 234,916 | — on 352,374
 | 1,575,000 — i — U 2,362,500
 39,293,655 54,139,029 | 1.36 58,940,482

a | 4,801,453 0.12 —
 39,293,565 || 58,940,482 | 1.50 || 58,940,482

| 21,753,575 |

16,952,122 |
 | 4,801,453

21,753,575 || 870,143 | 870,143

Digitized by Google

287

would be considered "but experience teaches that with every Redemption of certain amounts, especially from the smaller Apoints=
 For the rest, we refer to the Federal Chancellor's Office
 "Evidence of Paper Money Issues of the States of the North" German Confederation," printed in the "Annalen" 1870, p. 117.

The law concerning the issue of an interest-free loan
 On the part of the German Empire, I would like to have something like the following versio
 §. 1. The following, in the form of paper money eee xc.)

contracted non-interest-bearing bonds (Follows the list and detailed description of the bonds.)
are transferred as a common interest-free debt from the German Reich taken, with the proviso that the cases designated for this purpose presented pieces (cafenfenfheine &c.) of those bonds from the day of the In= entry into force of this law until 1 January 1873 against new Reichskassenscheine can be exchanged.

On the amount of the delivered and exchanged state treasuries=
In addition to the above, Reichscafenfcheques are only issued on the basis of the provision in paragraph 4 of F. 2 of this law.

8. 2. Up to the amount of one and a half thalers for each Head of theirs in the census of December 1, 1871 as local resident and nationals can claim on the individual federal states were not raised by the German Reich become.

If this amount is exchanged for the nominal value of the securities according to § 1= exceeded the limit of the state treasury bills, the federal state concerned the resulting difference in annual rates of four percent to be paid to the General Treasury of the Reich until full settlement.

If, however, the nominal value of the government bonds exchanged under Section 1 remains cash certificates fall short of the amount referred to in paragraph 1, the
The Federal State concerned shall determine the resulting difference in annual Installments of four percent until full settlement from the general
cash of the German Empire. |

Insofar as these payments are made pursuant to paragraph 2 of this section amounts to be paid to the Reichstreasury are not sufficient, the same by means of interest-free Reichskassenscheine. (See §. 1 paragraph 2.)

8.3. The Reichscafenfcheques are divided into one third Pieces with a nominal value of 100 thalers and 50 thalers, and each one sixth in those of 25 thalers and 10 thalers

288

An obligation to exchange for the State Treasury Notes of one and the same nominal value, ftstand not.

§. 4. The Reichscafenfcheques are used for all payments from and to Cases of the German Empire and the Federal States to their full nominal values accepted.

§ 5. From July 1, 1872, the State Treasury Notes will no longer be no longer in public cashes as payment, but only for redemption against Reichsbanknoten accepted at those cashes which the Reich Chancellor will be appointed. |

From 1 January 1873, state cash notes may not be issued at all no longer be passed on or offered in payment.

The received state treasury notes are destroyed by fire and the amounts destroyed, stating the series and nominal value value of the pieces made public")

§ 6. On investigation, detection, prosecution and punishment of counterfeits or imitations of Reichsbanknoten, except for the relevant provisions of the Criminal Code of the German Reich, the legal provisions passed so far in the individual federal states for criteria for the detection of counterfeits or imitations of Case instructions or forgery of public documents apply.

§ 7. The administration of interest-free debts shall be governed by the Provisions of the Law of 19 June 1868 concerning the administration of the provisions of the law of 6 November 1867 taking federal bonds (Federal Law Gazette 1868 p. 339 ff.)

The benefits arising under the present law expenditure and income are to be added annually to the Reich budget bring ***)

8. 8. All provisions contrary to these laws will be lifted.

The instructions necessary for the implementation of this Act

0 This draft obviously does not take into account the changes made necessary by the coin reform.

) See § 17 of the Prussian Law of 24 February 1850 (Law Collected works 1850, p. 57.

K) You would have to appear here in two places: once at the Administration of the federal debt, then in the matricular contributions, where the differences to be paid or received by the individual federal states in would have to be included in a similar way as the shares in the postal surpluses, discounts on embassy costs.

5,289

The law leaves the cashes where the exchange of the state cash notes against Reich cash notes, the same determines according to the Federal Council's Committee on Accounts being.

Finally, I expressly state that I support the proposed Standardization of the amount of the interest-free Reich debt at $1\frac{1}{2}$ thalers. per capita of the population only as long as the states which are burdened by the reform, on far-reaching concessions. In principle, I am in favor of complete creation of interest-free government paper money, in the fixed over-creation that with always redeemable, fully covered by cash "coins-femen," the expenditure of which the state can pay for at low costs, just the costs to arrange refundable commissions, the interests of the would serve the community most perfectly; above all, the interests the civil service and the so-called working population, whose income is fixed Salaries and wages and which are included in the "financial operations" of the which has been so monstrously pampered by governments Big capital suffered first and most. From a sudden However, there can be no talk of its abolition now; if by the friends of the same on the generally favorable State of our state finances, especially due to the French war damage is pointed out, with the help of which the repayment of the undisclosed interest-bearing debts must be easy, so the financiers It is not without reason that the German Empire, in its present state, Prospects with 50-60 million thalers of paper money and exchange rate differences nor other difficulties to expect. As things are now in carefully avoiding any attack on "legitimate peculiarities," one will have to be happy to first of all to achieve a cheap consolidation of German government paper money, leaving the gradual reduction and complete abolition to the future.

Munich, end of September 1871.

Postscript. A recently published brochure by Mr. HV v. Unruh") is therefore of particular value and interest because ) The banking question before the Commission of the German Trade Day illuminated by HV von Unruh, member of the Reichstag. Berlin, J. Springer, 1871. Perrot, the fight against the exploitation of the public. 19

290

the well-founded judgment of a person familiar with the economic situation intimately trusted, in the legislation and in the control of the Prussian experienced in the financial sector and at the same time completely independent and unbiased free man about the solution of the next practical task in the Paper money question, namely the reorganization of the conditions of the Prussian fche Bank. This is also of particular practical value, that the author initially criticised the decisions the commission appointed by the Trade Day Committee, referred to as "experts" as is always useful – we did that last year experienced on a large scale by our western neighbors, – if an illusion≠ Authority is firmly reduced to its modest extent. Mr. von Unruh has taken the worthy effort to qu. Handelstagbericht a flower reading of bank-theoretical sayings to organize, all of which will be presented by the experts majority. We share them as important "material" here, adding that the sayings a. to c. were written by a follower of the Centralbank monopoly³, those to d. to f. from the friends of the private note banks.

a. "The advantage of banknotes is that they provide a certain amount of capital to create, in whose interest one (1?) participates."

b. "The note is a representative of easily realizable exchanges."

c. "The circulation of notes is similar to the circulation of paper money and therefore demands the highest level of trust and security).

d. "Banknotes must not be considered as a form of paper money They are a form of credit, a business form, and must therefore be free, like any other form of business."

e. "The most ideal condition for the existence of circulating media fe perhaps that instead of every bank-like, at the Bank deposited bills of exchange for the corresponding amount of notes would be issued, but no note without such a background situation may circulate."

f. "The possibility of transporting traffic in unlimited quantities through To support notes without full metal coverage, there must be fe, because an absolute limit for the en cannot be determined men laffe," etc.

Now combine a. with f., and you get the very profitable

) Mr. v. Unruh did not take up this sentence, but it is not less interesting than the others, especially in connection with a. and d.

291

Formula: "The advantage of banknotes is that they have a certain cash to create capital in unlimited quantities, from whose unlimited interest one participates unlimitedly" .. One – ie the lucky owners of bank shares.

The partly contradictory "resolutions" of the Handelstagcommiffion, which is responsible for the preservation of the Prussian Bank as "Reichsbank", but the establishment of private note banks by special conceffions independent and only to the observance of normative conditions, namely the / =Cash coverage want to bind, *) Mr. von Unruh counters with the following, strikingly motivated theses:

1. Issuing notes that are not backed by cash means: the involuntary claim the credit of the public, everyone, or, as it is also expressed, to tax the public partly In favour of the bank itself, partly in favour of those who want to exploit bank credit as much as possible.

2. It is not a children's fairy tale, but a naked reality that notes and all paper means of circulation the export of metal= favor money, or drive it out of the country.

3. Cheap money – high prices of goods, expensive money, low prices; The next consequence of the artificial price increase is one not in harm to consumers due to natural conditions and all those who live on fixed wages and salaries. Not with Metal-covered notes are the enemy of cash, both gold than silver.

4. The most serious consequence of the liquid made liquid by paper money and the resulting artificial price increase of the goods lies in the stimulation of an unhealthy speculation= tion. The natural limit which the supply of cash Money that is otherwise used for speculation is continued through the printing press= fallen.

5. The danger of major crises is not reduced by large-scale banknote issuance averted, but by stimulating and facilitating the over= speculation and overproduction are made considerably easier.

6. The State can at least be responsible for granting a Share in the profit of a bank is an equivalent for the

*) Regarding b. the normative conditions it says: "The amount of emitted Notes foll = fully paid-up share capital not to be exceeded; on the other hand, Resolution IX "between the height of the note emission and the height of the stem= There is no internal connection between the capital and the share capital; the share capit the importance of a guaranteed capital." 3

: 19*

exorbitant obligation to accept notes in public coffers
Such speculation is not based on sound financial policy, but nothing but the application of ban-quier policy on public finances.

7. The state has no reason to protect buildings not covered with metal.

notes in his cases under all circumstances and at all times to be accepted in full. Ä

Mr. v. Unruh summarizes his program on the ban issue with these words: "We strive for restriction and gradual-complete removal of all notes not covered with metal,
the greatest possible restriction of all paper money in general-and release of the deposit and giro banks. We We want to ensure that we neither lose sight of this goal nor moved too far away, but also not rushed. We do not consider it dangerous if a well-founded and well-organized Bank still a number of years a quantum not covered with metal= of notes in circulation, which with its metal stock and other gen, always to be converted into metal covering agents in such a ratio is such that a stoppage of cash redemption will never occur
After the introduction of the gold standard it will soon become clear whether and when this artificial increase of the circulating medium is still necessary is or not."

This program would probably have some consequence must be stricter, more radical. Mr. von Unruh compares the previous banknote nonsense with the equally reprehensible protection= customs duties; these too should not be abolished suddenly, but gradually,
if one did not want to cause the most serious embarrassments and losses
But the example does not quite fit: the protective tariffs, which Moreover, in Germany we behave towards the paper banks like a molehill into an elephant, only make certain necessities of life more expensive, while unbacked paper money makes life more expensive and continued to the worst abuses among the entire "fair population", i.e. civil servants and wage earners. All salary= and pension increases, all wage increases with or without ropes find only very imperfect remedies"); as long as the state has the "money"

*) Given the constant fluctuations and devaluations of money, which is primarily based on artificial fabrication, and only secondarily on the natural increase of the latter (ie the precious metal production)
It would actually be fair that all fixed salaries and wages are not in money, but in kind, or at least at short intervals

Strictly ensures that no one "manufactures money", because he himself, for
It will not be long before we can speak of a solution to the social question.
The gradual abolition of unbacked banknotes or the law
licit abuse that individual private individuals use to their advantage
From a purely economic point of view, this means such as if one were to speak of the vigorous prosecution of a false minting society only wanted to refrain from doing so because the development covering mass counterfeit money the interests of the temporary holders feared to harm it.

I think that, for reasons of justice alone, the state the great endowment of the note banks not a moment longer continue as long as he is forced to. "In financial matters, the "Comfortable," ask the Executor and other people; and opposite the paper banks, should the state completely forget this true word?
Just imagine, not the current "money," but grain formed the general legal means of payment and exchange, and it is speculative Minds succeeded in "supporting" traffic, not only in providing instructions young on grain, but even legally recognized paper money—to put the money into circulation; one is finally behind the fraud and fine dangers for the national economy (especially agriculture) men, but do not dare to prohibit it all at once, and the paper grain manufacturers received for a considerable transitional period time the permission to compete cheaply with the honest farmer to continue! But in the case where the farmer is here would find, the entire population is currently – with the exception
Those who live on "percents" where the larger or smaller lower value of money plays no role.

If, after the expiry of the various banking privileges and after the gold standard has been implemented for a certain transitional period still a need for paper money not backed by cash should, only the state has the task of creating such a thing; probably assessed according to the respective prices of the natural products necessary for life

Of course, this would require that taxes would also be raised in a similar would be corrected or calculated in a wise manner. All our taxes, salaries and wages sentences are based on the false assumption that the state authority
"Money" that is provided with or gives the appearance of such authority is a certain has a constant exchange and purchasing power; but this is not the case, with every new million thrown onto the world market in metal or paper, changes the power of money. The feeling of this process is the "ge-healthy core" that lies in the strikes.

The state tax currently circulating in Germany is sufficient paper money, the consolidation of which is recommended above. In any case, normal conditions in our money and price relationships then a healthy basis for solving the social question will only be will be won when the state has taken what alone of the state is: the money shelf.

G. Hirth.

Printed by Leopold & Bär in Leipzig.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

eo

G

* yest wort ht
rah SG 1 RR, |
> * KS e . * oy ~
7. er N ' we'

' _
* Haet

<x

7 7 a TY Maire

1

N

Vak
ea
KAD

%

a TA

DENE es 3 i
+ . > * IMGs f
3 22 . m 1
eh]

x, Rich?

4
- * * s T
1 A *

i Just published and available in all bookstores:

The German railways.

By F. Perrot.
Contributions to the knowledge and reform of the German railway system.
Price 12 € gr.

3 cif tîr agen
| i by F. Perrot. |
Contributions to the solution of contemporary social and political issues Price 1 Thaler.

German Diocesan Church
Trade, shipping and Derkefirswelen.

| Edited by F. Perrot.

Contributors: K. Oraun-Wiesbaden, H. Dannenberg, J. Sauder, W. v. Freeden, 9. Karften, A. Lammers, H. Tecklenborg, W. Wiefe, E. Wif, Sr. Witte and A.
ö Tendency: decidedly German free trade policy – powerful uplift of the German transport system – radical railway reform – creation of a German Canaluetzes – uniform treatment of all German trade and traffic affairs by the Reich's central authority. The German monthly publication brings In addition to original educational works, a comprehensive monthly overview of all important events in the field of trade and transport, as well as i the regulations of the post and telegraph which are worth knowing for the merchant verwiltuug 3c. Half-yearly 2 Thlr. 15 Sgr.
|

|

|

The Railway Reform

| by F. Perrot.

ö Contributions to the knowledge and reform of the German railway system.

l : 1 he 1 Thlr. !

|

|

|

i

a

i

On the history of the trade.

|

| Dedicated to all educated people by F. Perrot.

Bi zn 2217 pane |

|

Under the press is:

7 The application

baun m to- Spftems on the railway tariff.

by FJ. Perrot.

sun Kuhn's publishing house in Rostock.

Printed by Leopold & Bär in e

Digitized by Google

German

English

Full text of " Ludolf Holst "

See other formats

This is a reproduction of a library book that was digitized by Google as part of an ongoing effort to preserve the information in books and make it universally accessible.

Google books

<https://books.google.com>

Google

About this book

This is a digital copy of a book that was kept on library shelves for generations before it was carefully scanned as part of a project to make the world's books available online.

The book has outlived the copyright and can now be made available to the public. A book in which was never subject to copyright or whose copyright protection period has expired. Where they vary from country to country. Publicly accessible books are our gateway to the past and research and scientific potential that is often difficult to discover.

Traces of use, notes and other marginal notes contained in the original volume can also be seen. A reminder of the long journey the book has taken from the publisher to a library and then to you.

usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize publicly available materials and make them accessible to the public. Public domain books belong to the public and we are only their custodians. Nevertheless, the work is costly. In order to continue to provide this resource, we have taken steps to prevent commercial parties. This includes technical restrictions on automated queries.

We ask you to adhere to the following guidelines:

+ Use of the files for non-commercial purposes We have designed Google Book Search for end users. Use files only for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ No automated queries Do not send automated queries of any kind to the Google system. If you are interested in machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to the data is useful, please contact us. We encourage the use of publicly available material for these purposes and may help.

+ Retaining Google brand elements The Google "watermark" that you will find in every file this project and helps users find more material through Google Book Search. Please do not

+ Stay within the legality Regardless of your intended use, you must be aware of your responsibility to ensure that your use is legal. Do not assume that a book that we believe is legal for use in the United States is publicly accessible, is also publicly accessible to users in other countries. Whether a book is available varies from country to country. We cannot advise whether a particular use of a particular book is legal. Do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means that it is available in every country in the world. Copyright infringement can have serious consequences.

About Google Book Search

Google's goal is to organize the world's information and make it universally usable and accessible. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books and supports authors and publishers by making more books available. You can search the entire book text on the Internet at <http://books.google.com>.

Fs van 0

Digitized by Google

ue be r bo 8
Berpättniß der Suden

work

in

| the German –

tz) Those

ee

presented from a cosmopolitan perspective, and all statesmen of the entire fatherland to serious examination.

22S^e Suu...

Leipzig, Rostock and Schwerin, in the Stiller bookstore.
| 1 8 1 8.

2100508

T be ma 6

7

First section.

Overview of the, apparently, insurmountable 5

Difficulties which hinder the progress of the youth which, in the previous recording of the same, contrary to eee Br E 3 e

Second xb fd nite

On the manner of receiving the Jews, namely in terms of the smaller gap. = E 2

Third section.

That, the more affluent class of Jews

their reception in the German trading cities granted means of acquisition. "

28

67

Beer section.

Intervening causes, which are caused by the very large Extension of almost all conceivable means of acquisition to have contributed most strongly to the advance,

ö to stop the powerful spread of the Jews

promote. ss ee a p. 92

Fifth Section.

From the character, the natural dispositions, reli= fundamental concepts, principles, maxims of the , + Seraelites, who strive most vigorously to rise=
come of the same have contributed. K- 2 1598

Sixth section.

What are the current requirements of the Jews to an even greater sphere of influence? – 265

Conclusion=Note. 2292

Theme.

* N 7

* . 5 ae

+ – 38 ; foe

Rn *

No. 3 0

1 8 1

! re wa

; N Pr A

17 ee, 2 wf. of Bo 2 1

od ER 27 ' * N e N s

This paper has the development of not so easy to give reasons: where the fo extraordinarily outstanding »rise« of the Jews, their gigantic growth, which resulted from this past and now existing imbalance between them and the Christians, in challenge of the acquisition= means of advancement to the incomparably higher level

objects, and the ominous, ever more transcending upward swing of the same to the subject of their research, especially respect for the age

chooses. =

Both to facilitate the company,

as well as from an overview and assessment
1. f * |

4

4

of the whole, and thus for wiser instruction and firm conviction of the truth of the presentation=
she has chosen a historical standpoint,
one of the most respected trading cities in Germany country above all and especially .

= ,sr

| Starting from this historical standpoint,
the path through a number of later decades exactly pursuing, she develops the fo extremely 1 8 of the Söraelites, from:

Br Zu

40%

4 2

4 * ae * 7

*

el The. ie RT lchrreichen Wr d memorable Type: like the followers of the Mosaic religion were taken up in German trading cities
" den; what is given to them for their subsistence

ftenz believed he could allow; which, with a look back at the spirit of the then Eh. Time, Far. pexzeihlicher, but never again to eve
-fetaking state error, the ruinous= most hopeless means that the on:
- taken strangers are infinitely more than N was able to keep watch; -

* from the following from many sides powerfully intervened primal subjects, all of which

i

\

have served, ,dan.fhpn: noticeably far around drawn traffic circle very much. a most striking way to expand and whiten;

c) from the fpecific national ellen,

than about the situation, about the business, about the ratio to the 1 - ne

"<5 gacter of that people 5 a oe

7

ch from these customs, religious concepts, ans |
ee basic vessels, merchant marines 2.

bie in total served as lifting ladders, have, of = Level gu level fto raise yourself higher and higher, which gave them the richest support, to an ever-increasing wealth of open= which allow them to see the future in the distance;
like withering, atrophying, declining.

fink their counterpart i always more valuable and valuable. 8 licher become. |

| The whole thing is with historical fidelity

stated: that the designated "from facts" leynte, now already existing disproportion between the means of earning and the advancement of assets status of the Jews and the Christians themselves:
| proceeds.

mn ron

j "
led x N u

»However, a special overview is still required bent towards that one: how infinitely much of the Ge= total number of food branches already by the Jews

is completely bent over to them, as it is; with= which extremely rich sources of aid are gradually to an ever greater rise opened, and how such Christians are led to an more pepborrung brits un

| have. . Ä
| Where then u the fo questionable, the
Humanity is faced with an extremely important question: .
Even if the stated disproportion is effective ti rag it if a any 95 from the character
8 from the thinking line, especially i in Hin= view of the common spirit, from the assumed principles, and especially from the trade measures:
rimen of that people is evident, can the Christian (fic) does not appropriate everything that given to the Jew as a means of his upward striving | been; instead of useless, futile complaints about the
to lead to the atrophy of its counterpart?
I express here the pious wish: that I one of our most worthy writers
1 * 2

~

Highlight the important moment, make it more subtle= but consideration may be devoted to it; in order to do so=

do: what then becomes of the whole of humanity

how humanity is completely destroyed and crushed should be done if it could ever be possible, '2 that Christians gain Jewish principles and Maxims for their actions; and, we assume den, not to mention: . something like that from an Em vile lig impossible. d

The few binges I have on it and since " I have laid, a thinking man= ne be enough to send him to the hand to go.

Finally, Rasifilee's belly leads to the following:

| for closer examination, for legal 3

and more correct assessment, namely:

a) what exactly are the further aa: - demands of the Jews especially in German trading cities?

"b) what of such in relation to the ison'

. prevailing misery that is almost impossible to remedy

"to keep a close eye on things; like the others claims, 1 au 6 and to be appreciated . -

-

/

But not only this, but it also leads to the serious consideration:

what unpredictable – unfortunate consequences the future
from an ever-increasing misconduct

not just for the non-Jews, but for both,

for Indians and Christians, and therefore for humanity, for the good of the European peoples

8 cannot lead itself.

and this of humanity and justice serious, fo questionable, fo extremely important Mo: ' ment is also the only thing that makes me ever asked, ever moved me, this writing to be understood by the audience.
But whoever, after reading the felen does not find that I have religious and political tolerance is very far apart when Unfortunately, this often serves as a cover for the who must (Louis XIV), that I therefore only the .

People, regardless of their religion,
humanity, whose well-being, whose salvation alone
whoever cannot find this,
uoch find – wants, for the Rn “ nig geY0

have. |

First Abs fonitt.

Overview vs. appearance, and the difficulty
ities which hinder the advancement of the Jews, in the previous recording of the same, to refute men and two men

ae 3 2 :

..

8 man ai bie, from the Jewish side, through the already experienced traffic at an= other nations, just as correctly calculated as by Urty, which was rashly granted to Christians,
the Jews were received, under eyes;
It would be the boldest, the most daring undertaking:
men was what a people could ever dare; mur
the idea of joining the Christians, even more northern lands, and also mod), near the Dar mals vore. Belt d der Zeit, wah ae z want.

2. They knew the equally great as unjust= hatred of the Christians against them; not just

Tradition they knew him, but much and often from own sad experience 9, where hatred had been inflamed to the highest degree against them; a Hatred, which is not merely a cursed fanaticism deeply engraved in the hearts of not only countless Legends and malicious inventions now and then

Rentzündet, but their own behavior often to the point of anger had flared up. They looked strangely nüsigg, one and the same religious book in their and the Christian hands, and yet felt the impossibility possibility of ever being able to approach the Christians, since the sanctified by ancient times, on

Millions of transmitted simple obvious from in=

interpreting from posterity Myfticism has been shrouded in darkness so that forever a dividing wall between them religions. They knew that fwonderful fantasy even in some Indian viduen of them a great-grandson, a descendant

EN

a 5 S. die, diefen Ali single, historifische ° supplement.

\

*

ewe a> – –

of those who believed they saw the Pr verre;
chen, immortal man, who, every danger for fine
Not respecting the person ,26 in a hierarchical Naz |
tion dared to reform their priestly religion
to be, sacrificed in the most shameful way.
| a were convinced that their exile, their banishment their homeland, their dispersion on the Earth not as the only one? Consequence of the cheeky Ueber:
muths) of the Romans, but also here religion interfering 0, as an effect of God's punishment=
They were special and above all |

) Even if indignation has its just as severe hatred against the non-Jews to disloyalty against the usurping Roman power, which fproverbial right did the Romans also have a Land over Jeraelites? Bez 25

ae) The deity would mean little to the Christians
gen, if the Jews were banished from their homeland know, and consider the Christians good enough te, to live with them as prison guards= “But no detours lead further than those on which which misunderstood religious concepts lead to here too often in the most hideous fanaticism 6

e find their end, |

' en 10 5

remembering the memory of the Gentiles, how inhospitable, hard, inhumanly oppressive, with what deep contempt their own nation, misunderstood religious concepts, every Stranger once in ai; gene, land * eas | =

§ II.

1. Were there difficulties on the part of those | which they were supposed to take up, was almost insurmountable. lich, and from which so many and many phenomena gen explained, fo also made her fo completely | unparalleled devotion, her so stubborn, and: relentless adherence to ancient habits and practices use, insofar as they have only the slightest, void: – first point of contact with their religious concepts

have made all those difficulties so much more difficult riger. |

2. Verily, every one in a similar situation be=

| sensitive, thereby examining, in a legal way ge to get away thinking people 'would have through,

considered with reason and consideration, W | ken it as a maxim nn

a ay we ar

felf, at least outwardly, with Sacrifice of every foreign, and of that Se: remonial, the exercise of which is a completely different situation,

a completely different time, location and circumstances

those who sought hospitality, not directly permitted, as much as possible, the Christian fts to approach; all the more so, since they have a wefente | essential part of their positive religion: the delay. not i in eu bring. could. |

3. But no, dear Re, a beffere future, waiting for its initial | | Acceptance of every possible mockery, even every scorn=

laughter the most insulting contempt with example- |

endure with patience and iron perseverance.
They, the men, appeared then at half past tomorrow: |
Undisch costume, almost entirely with a | hanging down from the belt, often extremely dirty towards the disgusting beard; as if the coal-black,
curly hair, with raised eyebrows, |

which form the inquiring, looking eye |

fhind, the (arf curved nafe- of the Orient, |
as if the through unpleasant guttural sounds, which the Hebrews are so eminent, more open

E

| - 12 m

Mouth, with more fully formed lips, than if the Jewish one with a cutting, screaming tone dialect made inaudible, as if this was all not yet more than characteristic, not yet *

which would have been extremely striking.

4. They, the women, are afraid for their hair=

ly concealed, showed themselves in truly adverse shape, as it represents the noblest part of the face, the free, open forehead, covered down to the eyes= ten, and thereby, in fact, the W Aug

ear

5. But what is far more than that N :

= will, they wanted even the most detrimental narrow-mindedness tion, awaiting a brighter future "of their beginning of the very sought-after bread-making with many

Sacrifice would rather endure than their Sabbath, to unite their day of rest with that of the Christians,

on which significant circumstance we in one of the

We will come back to this in the following sections.

6. Yes, it was fanaticism or conviction of what the means of acquisition in their hands

one day it must become certain and inevitable "what one thought one could feed them; they thought

*

They did not even dare to go there, where they asked for hospitality, a kind of contempt against the Christians under the guise of

~

Religion is good to remember.

7

unholy and impure foods of Christians

contained, although this award was so limited to the Christians rejected the idea of multiple or lesser holiness on both sides,

and in the like and dislike, in the approach,

| no small influence in dealing with people could have; but that she even had the one from Christ slaughtered animals as unclean and unholy which they do not touch, much less fen, therefore, to bring it there right from the start knew that, with no small amount of arrogance,

Observance, killed by a consecrated Jewish hand alone
What fanaticism of the most ridiculous kind | also came into collision here), namely with the er= most basic needs of life, with bread. But this to buy from the hands of Christians, that= Only the iron inevitable could kelt: to want to exist, to exist alone, be it still

. 4

"a ck that they n ek tii

a!

reluctantly, only necessary, because at that time on the part of the Christians showed no leniency in this regard.

g. UL |

1. All these obstacles to the will glad and joyful reception, easier and bef-

fer advancement, which the Seraelites from rigid Attachment to the traditional is becoming increasingly important partly in the way, are still unequal more worrying if one considers the spirit of the Time when their admission happened, a review |
throws, which is so far from the present, one .
Ennte fagen infinitely far, is different.

2. The extremely strict morality, whereby the honest North = Germans for centuries
| was noticeably distinguished by the pure, bright feeling

for the decent good (honestum et. bonum)
= of no raunchy images of never-before-seen Roma= ne touched; the dark, but also the stronger
effective, dangerous pious, devout faith,
on which no ray of light of the folds, examining,
verse that never exceeds the limits of order
ö reason had fallen; the deep, unfeigned, but;

| ih ae reverence, which the third party; |

the vicariate of the deity in question was paid tribute to;

t

the inner, firm, living conviction, supports by the power of first impressions, reinforced by the power of education, and enlivened by the Bey=

fpeace of All, of what parents, educators, Pries
fter had engraved in the heart; the fter strictly wise but also angry, to the poison cup,

E cross and pile of wood, easy for every bold deed overcoming resentment against anything that even slightly stood in the way of the religious way of thinking of that time;

all this, which reflected the spirit of that time

and evil characterized, could, with the above. |

led meaningful circumstances united, impossible easy advancement in dealings with the Israelites= give; but had to accept them themselves.
BURN. –

3. And yet if, to no small extent.
surprise, the possibility of this became possible
And how? To the no small honor of the honest religion can only be found in

) Perhaps the later posterity, as and after the spirit of a solemn alliance in the following

*

the spirit that is so different from Jewish hum

of the same, which the Deity as author, and father of all men, who after the founder's spirit of general love for humanity
dam, especially to stop any outbreak of revenge:
teaches to press, and says in explicit words:
"Bless your enemies, refuse those who offend you duty, not human duty."
| a 4th Sez

1 @

developed, strict about this, and perhaps too strict.
will be; insofar as this striking possibility ity, contrary to the above, only in the inter= | pretation of the Israelite documents.
– How? can she possibly say, how, if no would have been a point of contact if the basis of the Christian religion: its unchanging principle of Morality and law, such and such, uur for
fic) would have had existing origins if the=
according to the basic concepts of the Israelite legislator,
in relation to civil society.
(haft, which would have been subjected to strict scrutiny which poses immense concerns for the = Recording would then inevitably have had to occur fen ? = a =

\

; - LY, -

4. Every glimmer of gratitude should therefore in the bosom of every thinking Jew so completely extinguished when he one day, the historical origins customers in mind, instead of martyrs of the greatest patience and composure, heroes in enduring the hardest fate in his ancestors, and to inflame the hearts of people through legends of the past, |
| if instead he does not have the greatest reverence for our ancestors would cherish what the Söraelit itself made it almost impossible to become a reality=
ity, and the less in the in= inevitable appearances of the early pages
Guilt A could. . | !

*. we

*.
A

5. For who loves the man who fears * I woo fo many enemies! He says to= before: where did he get so many enemies? Who would guess?
gen not the man who, without knowing that he most glorious testimony of his character, fays: I know no one who is my enemy, nS

Because we Nenfchen are only too often angry about the uBad habits of others, without examining, without in ourselves.
to want to descend: who actually at the to us
a 2. |

/ - 18 ee ö : 1

the guilty bad habit, the cause of which is often lies far more within us than outside of us.

*. N :

Historical fragment for this section.

§ IV.

T: The few sufficient, or scattered ten fragments that the yearbooks of the world of to deliver to the Jews outside their homeland, since, so active,

for intrusive their private lives also in the world's citizens
when conditions have been everywhere, and from the present |
| ,next Scripture will shed light on it, but it is nowhere
| the attention of a direct influence into political history, can be
It can easily be interpreted that, although not everywhere and N always "but mostly religious rage and low greed on the part of the priests and princes almost the primary cause of their persecution.

2. "Ludewig the Fair, says a story book, drove the Jews out of France in order to – first of all:
to be able to take control of his assets, and – the Religious hatred approved of fine proceedings!' |

' é "
' . 25 7
* D
*
a 5 7 RR: a – 1 : 2 0 ts – 5 a "

' : 7 '

3. Stand really = in the history of France
What an eyesore there? How different it became one can judge if the now and then indicated
Facts everywhere from m. had seen vor FR |
would be. | as a

* 4. For it is true to know that N Re hatred of religion as greed often prefers the hateful main motives of the persecutions against them, such is just as little contrary to the truth / to speak when: that such causes on the part of the Jews are not 0 were present, which those wantonly Gite

* Pa ra

sn ai R before :@. 3
. . * ay red ' - & B " 0t " 4 a n. N : . Lee oe, nie Fe - 2
* e

' aye wes ug ae
he - and DE

5. Even the more unjust, the more cruel

| fanaticism has again expressed itself; the more guilty and deserving of reproach stands up and the Israelite on the scattered leaves of the, Gefhic te there, because he was too often and too much where he found acceptance=
him, himself and those who received him= |
men, forget, so that he could forgive the umer:
spirit of usury, which, from its own resources, from its own |
never to satisfy the demands of the poor

the urge to accumulate wealth; and the sb powerful spirit of oppression too much and ae Jan

| [2]

1

6. For, if a passion is still so common,
no matter how despicable, the one who foments it, is just as punishable as the person who brings it out Assemble a firing frame that has a spark of mere chance can ignite, and then to scold the fury of the flames is more than

| Madness. The more the Jew is affected by religious hatred
| the Christians of earlier times had to be convinced - could well, one judges for oneself, be an idea of raging,
more terrible and horrible effect on the minds,
as the most misunderstood idea of the people: fine
to have crucified God, and could already of any gathering, let alone of an reconciliation, to compatibility, reconciliation
both sides ever be thought of? - the more prudent,
His entire dealings should have been more prudent.
But instead of the mobile of all actions, the holy Enter the people as much as possible,

nen, the Israelite resorted to the proverb and in thousands of novels and legions of . stories and reports passed on interest= and spirit of usury the warmth on my most sensitive side te on.

SE; N
; fe 1 5 N 4 o
a

Sede Lingle, equally innocent, or

J sent own oversight; either from the harsh fate

fale pursued, or wasting wreckage, which in Domestic life had fallen so far behind that he was loans had to be handed over to the Jews, faw himself now completely hopelessly lost; 8 now felt only as he sank deeper and deeper into complete poverty, sank into bottomless misery; and what was with the One and had to make others even more active in their mischief, was: that, since the Jew had given the most emaciated yoke to the in arithmetic inexperienced people knew how to hide, some felf, despite all efforts, becomes impoverished, without being able to clearly explain the cause; just like the Israelite in others the strict, implacable Gee fet against usury completely avoided by =

The one who only has 1,400 thalers, for example, as a loan pfurg, listed in cash by a prescription, ba ar received 2000 Thlr. fhich must lie to himself= te, around the 36 percent interest (namely the 30 antique pirten, and the 6 i subsequently paying). the Ge= Pees flight to ener. e ke

* *
sonen ay aso *
1

8. If RS now has the " Bee 5

take, on every side fact -ift; fo can fchaa

nn 4

– 82 –

in general, but especially for the present time no more desirable work could be carried out than:

a pragmatic history of the believers of the mofaif chen

Religion, which is a faithful representation of its reception, their progress “their spread, also their fate= fale in all those nations where the

found a way; in which, however difficult it may be,
on their actions and activities, on their maxims and principles, their methods and the means they use.

must be looked at promptly. The latter belongs to her everywhere, –fo as well as presently ange= applied, easily executable by their ability remedy with golden key to open ways, which they could not enter, whereby it was due to the instructive

It will not be missing a comment on how much the mood

there had to be outraged, where the achievement omission of their intentions, all the hopeless consequences are calculated could be, and off: au ve. den 8 die eyes * =

—

9. Bas bie Jews in . and Portugal be ba Mr. Moldenhaver in Copenhagen has already made some made important contributions to that history to which | de vonliegenben, sheets may be laid out. From the Sahrbacher of England like * Sansa |

serve for further research. |

10. Perhaps only in the iften Zapipunde tome = men Seraclites i in the history of England. Ruz f us, son of William the Conqueror, says the local History; received a fol= upon his accession to the throne |
fignificant gift from them that he full 8
her joy at this she called out loudly: about the bots
| publicity of their and the Christian religion, to bigs |
putiven ; they would, he said, take the victory
gen, he would confess to Judaism. 2

a Els Under John, King without and, were fig
The story asks, not of their religion, but of the spirit of usury and the accumulation of wealth because of being forced to pay very heavy contributions. . 4

12. Even under Henry III they had to rake Contribution. But during the unrest in During the reign of Henry the King had to bribe the civic council - knew: all civil 2
To be able to enjoy rights, "they purchased , it is said, .
houses, lands, and manors, 'sat on juries enjoyed seisin, and the wardships of Christian Heirs together with the right of presentation of

f

Aivings etc. - or German: they bought lying Grounds, heaps, land and nitter estates, exhibited Justices of the Peace, among them, had the right to fequeftrixes "were guardians of Christian heirs, has= the right of presentation for completed benefices which they arrogated to themselves, oppressed the people with un= heard usury and extortion so that an emp^o= uprising that was caused by a single Jew who an excessive weekly interest rate for a borrowed sum of twenty English shillings.
The unruly mob in London, the uprising=
Spirit of all great cities more or less breathing, now pulled themselves together, destroyed their houses, their synagogues, and cruelly murdered several hundred only in the Tower could the remaining be saved from the people's anger." What gruesome=

crimes on both sides! |

13. At the request of Edward I in Parliament, the citizenship won with money above, just like= which was abolished, and at the same time the growth under them the strictest punishment is forbidden, yes, the excited un= will against them was so great that they were ordered ward: to wear badges on their clothes

*

: - 25 =

8 Wo tes] for such a fuche una baue _ fear the guilt? Zr 7

14. Even sadder is the story: Under the Government of the same king, it is said, were the Pri= |
fe of food to an extraordinary height of the dama= '
In the case of serious undermining of the Reasons for this in Parliament were found that even | far-reaching curtailment of money, the= fer Staats = fraud, whereby government, people and

Country is methodically robbed, especially by the Jews that had happened. They were then i throughout the whole country de arrested, and, after investigation, the

Guilty hanged In London alone

N two hundred suffer this fate; just as those among the Christians who took part in it,

li Tobesfieae did not escape. | |

15. But far more terrible is what is under the reign of the same Edward, three years later, before= A bill was passed in Parliament: dis to expel Jews from England forever, they *

- having, leads the history of that time as reason for this, rendered themselves. infinitely _ odious to the whole nation by their usury and

aos

– 36 –

extortion, because they are the whole nation, they say Words, infinitely perverted by usury and extortion hated. The first of November 1290 was determined if she should, under penalty of death, leave the country= ten have left. Cruel enough, they were not allowed take more than travel money. The rest went Eduard. Among these unfortunate ones, some | in addition to this, the inhuman fate of the migration of the sailors on the ships murdered to be deigned because these funds and monetary value suspected to be hidden among them, and also such fan= which Eduard, however, upon his return home, considered as a punishable villains were sentenced to death. Whoever was now here at the misfortune of so many people |
Guilt? Appearances that are all the more hateful because the | Expulsion of Jews in almost all countries only

| was temporary. Thousands of times expelled, returned | they just go back again so often.

| 16. To the later times –
had the settlement of the same under George III again such an extent that it has reached the minifte= rium with gold to bribe to bring a bill into Parliament to grant the Jews which was already negotiated in earlier times and sold again

u =

– 27 – |

lone citizenship (naturalization) is granted.
The bill was rejected by the upper pile and placed in the lower pile.
House. Here the inhabitants of London presented all possible dangers that could arise from such a step would inevitably emerge, although | even then, and especially in England, more on – religious, as civil danger returned. May you reasons given with regard to the latter also fo emphatically, those also bought with gold

Members of the lower parliaments “what humanity, Duties of humanity, human rights not in their bosoms, but in their pockets, and from their lips, shouted over those around them= | tiger, and the bill passed. This was hardly feen, fo faw, because of the consequences, even the Minister admits the mistake he made. With the same

Zeal, with the same emphasis ' with which fie bie Bill before eh

the representatives of the people, and supported had, with the same emphasis and zeal they urged now on the re-abolition of the same, which from * Iamente: – 3

28

Second section.

about the manner of receiving the Jews, namely in Liu view of the lower class.

sv.

| . This will be remembered forever in the annals of the world remain pleasant and educational. Not only in general my because of the unpredictable and hopeless consequences that emerged from it; especially in

With regard to all those considerations concerning mis=
interventions can be made in the state and here |
find their confirmation more than anywhere else. |

2. For, if there is already in the moral world a not always a significant misstep from the path
it is often extremely difficult to make good again has already in the bourgeois private life: a, the Anse=

a qi od ö N

hea after, insignificant mistake often the complete Ruin of a family; can be under the creative hand of the artist a single light wave slipping of the same distort the whole at once;
what serious weight, what great
Significance then does not have to be a state error |

fe, since here an intervention in so infinitely many parts in a very large sphere of influence: Skaat, Volk, | Takes place where fo infinitely many, " often heterogeneous, :
conflicting forces are set in motion, where the next consequences will have an unstoppable impact
. causes become.

| 3. If therefore I am already in the civil prince live, in the circle of fine arts every process, every exercise which requires the most careful attention, |
what prudence, what prudence and what over: =
The interpretation does not then set the n 9 |
ahead. aes

| 4. When the Jews were received,

according to the spirit of the time, a proper'
to perform a septum, and this by to be able to achieve if one can only give them as mere hirelings, a certain district in the corner of the City to separate housing.

—

*

— 30

" 5. And, be it more out of religiofitate " than out of political reasons to prevent them from migrating strangers do not enter the food chains of the Christians wanted to intervene, they were, otherwise threatening enough, all civil business together and pecially prohibited! |

j 6. But this obviously meant: their existence was dead= ten want! But they took her, not her grave to find where they turned; but their
To maintain subsistence in some way 5
. fo they were, for lack of all, to consider= the study of history, the most hopeless, most pernicious advertising material, which never and never comes into their Hands had to be given: the haggling!

2. Not that I wanted to use a hateful expression choose; whoever strives to think nobly will also have a noble Try to make the choice of words, no, but because the language contains no name for that which, under the then granted means of earning alone,

only be lost, namely:

8. A junk business; or a 1 Gin 115 Ver= purchase of all conceivable worn, outdated things, like now made of woolen, linen, silk cloth=

| pieces of dung, bedding, old clothes X where= the shoes that were worn at that time and knee buckles, the silver buttons on vests and | Trousers of the lower class and the country people, the gold and silver clasps on clothing, books, etc.), from all kinds of used metal dishes and utensils, be it copper,

| Meffing, tin, lead, befisten, m denn auch al= a ted a to e is.

9. What now from piefen 1 Anfaß gradually became, had to become of him; how extremely perishable, how unholy a means of earning has interfered in the morality of people,

the following W is like and BER

to

10. On a separate, at least isolated restricted to the district, now forced that to them= |

business that it necessarily proves beyond its re apartment; ; sang: fie expressively, ih a To open up communication with the Christians. As if if their admission is only dependent on should not be common among Christians

live, by the way. the most destructive activities;

accompanied by unpredictable consequences, *
to be allowed to.

11. To perceive the steps here exactly, how they gradually entered into a relationship with the Christians; how they set that point of contact with the trade gradually became so incredibly profitable, fo ft would have known how to use it in a very wide variety of ways.
well, as a contribution to a pragmatic history
the Jews, are not unworthy of attention.

§. VL

I: At first the Jew could only go into the free!
streets close to a district. Years passed before he was able to dare to visit the distant alleys. The An= gaze had to gradually get used to the strange his appearance, and preconceived opinions
. only through gradually emerging traffic 2 and

| can be alleviated considerably.

a Wherever he went at first with fearful, fhedly turning around with a look of fight, and = exclamation that excited 0, so it was also said

Ä bd chen

'.

—

– 33 – 1

from all sides: here comes a Jew! 3 Young | and Alt came to the door, to the windows, to strange, from the reading of the Bible by name to see a familiar stranger and to be amazed.

Unfortunately, there is a lack of mockery, even of the remarkable

because of the train, it was not enough that the unfitted, from |

the steering ropes of the decent in the free; German |
Cities less guided, and at the same time by the blind:
Large crowds driven by religious hatred, too indecent harsh insults, too harsh insults, even not infrequently leading to painful mistreatment, is | = a sad one, 'humanity Fi .

Berung.

f he

3. Nevertheless, the mocking, scornful face of G |

ter regardless, the Jew greeted him, continuing his way on forced hypocrisy everywhere he goes seemed to respectfully greet each one. Then he said more:

| Thought he could read friendliness on their faces, |
he stood humbly with his head uncovered gend: whether one does not have anything, it fey nod) fo un significant, no matter how old or bad it may be, “ to him | to negotiate babe, he wanted. it r, and well be= numbers, ee, Saha. .. 46 |

Qe

A 4

4. . Here barely listened to, there insulted meadows, and even let them into the house to see to make senseless mockery of him,

The Jew nevertheless with the same kindness on the faces – even among a thousand congratulations and blessings that have been passed on at home in many _ and * may have changed.

f Sins and Pen were about such Patience touched by such an unprecedented fenheit softened. Such bearing of undeserved pain offenses pointed to the first, all virtues to underlying norm of the Christian religion:?

“Love your neighbor as yourself,” and said loudly and most emphatically for the Jeraelite, paved the way for him = for closer access.

g 5. This was the first attempt *), this Arquelie Ä des to all crimes , to all N hin=

* 7 wad

| N 'Bou bite and some other reminders? N someone could easily ask that; 0 to which I reply:
This paper is a contribution to one of the acetate needs of our time, a possible full leading; Hausirens, whereupon we enter the Bolge will come back again, procure to fis na to open a path for Christians,

ER PROS hr

1
N
: –
ay x 1

provide a permanent pragmatic history of the Ifraelites. as Yours from experience, from impartial observation

created loyalty. guarantees the future history

ther for the unadulterated truth of the matter. |

--

R

t-

| Moreover, this memory begins to be too and some reflections and teachings and serve as warnings; especially on the big ones measurable distance instructively point out: how small,

how poor and insignificant the Jew is in German houses delfftöden was only 5 centuries ago, and what has already become of him, and what the future may promise!

"At that time, the individual Jew was denied wrong |

i Religious hatred, access to hundreds of streets
Outside, he lives in his thousands everywhere and everywhere=
helbea= with his wild, penetrating bargaining=

"Crying for many a quietly working businessman
"deafening 3. At that time he only entered quietly and shyly the distant streets, "a Jew there on horseback, Jews there; pleasure carriage would have a.
entire large crowd: 'excited; now he dares to Part of racing through the streets, not Ababa, nen spn Babes and count of him

. "4 36 de

6. The Christian, previously completely unfamiliar with it:

knows, these and those worn-out things to the man to be able to bring, partly because the then simple life

. — —

*

be trampled upon; at that time he entered at most into the door of the Christians, asking whether there is anything to | trade, sell, no public gathering

The location was conceivable in the whole city, whose Threshold to touch he courage, inclination and up=

found encouragement; now, where would there be any open

—

gathering place of Christians, where would it be

There was a lot of publicity where the Jew, yes
not, not where he appears, but where he advances,
and often the most impudent arrogance

not released: at that time he was in his district,

to live on any border side of the city, especially ftränkt; now he has already fet himself in the most distinguished

Places pushed in, and not this, but the first prestigious houses (which are considered palaces,

which are the ornaments of the city, are now

partly in fine hands: at that time fine Gee

nuß in the countryside to mere walking be= forknkt, aach here there were teme Safer for recording me; now, where would there be a place for the most civilized class in all environments, woman, the

= tain ber Stave enciehend, vot dem screefchen

\

- * -

almost every completely used shell "behind the less blunted feelings for those suffering from redness, that Worn items of clothing almost without exception

. . . RN 'i * 2
9 ¥ 8 1 - ' In Cu „2 BEER To * . *eee Ee
. ek ' 8 ' > + ! . * - a woo! &
: [3

|

ls dem. 1 a still

"he.

fsten Landen can now be found in ye Bee: "bas,

The change = Jew was on the foreign exchange friendly, humbly greeting every merchant;
many a Jewish money dealer runs through with wild |

Screaming from one end to the other.
thoves one, hurts the other the foot, and holds it far below its dignity

only to excuse: at that time the Jew appeared honorably fearful of the Christians when he receives a request to the swindler and swindler; now you see one often sees the wealthy Jew, as he appears in public cher Straße makes it clear to the lesser Christian,

only listened to him with uncovered head"

the one inland = at that time het 8 extraordinarily heavy, the lowest from the lowest class on to find someone who helped him desecrate his Sabbath;

and now there is no such thing as a pleasant male and female servants who comply with the Ceremonial Law, and – even more, as we will see later will see seriously, flv him. Absteeten know.

4

cant? | 38 ER 3

to the poorer Zevingere class *) for their needs– 3 tigen Dedung vetfaft j yes for obvious sin and was held in disgrace: from this still a value, wanting to make a small profit, surprised fure that the Jew still has a lot of money for old, worn-out stuff

how could give. The story of it went from Mouth to mouth, and where the interested party is flattered is, the person easily finds himself with * mo=
calian feelings. |

7 7. But that purchase only on the public Ways of gawking. to find, was instructed by her.
fe business was not sufficient; this led her to initially only enter the threshold of those HBaüufer where public auctions Üductionen), . es fey the estate of the deceased, or the emigrants, or the fallites x. gee were held to see what they had learned from ancient times.

used and dismantled equipment by purchasing it

— * 1
a nn 7 x 22 . 2
J —2-; times ; or
s 7

. 2 2 Wes ur thereby the lesser poorer A the e been withdrawn? Which large
A burden is here for the poor= N a den
State zuhdgeäigie So

/

bingen; where they gradually, through wekter devious means listed below (.. XKDE 18. 19. ü. ff.) finally the first most distinguished buyers were; it was so that in later times numerous auctions that arose; (English Manufactured goods solely and exclusively in their hands be sefpiet fab. 7 i

"

8th Vit"
. . a ver
ake From this she now answered her question tung branch. Mumdgli, however, could not .Ginges bought only for the consumption of the Jews. Au

In such a way they would have had to wither away within themselves |

They therefore opened their homes to the public.
sale of the goods purchased. The) what file of the middle coffee bought as old was done by turning, spinning, sweeping, Trimming and pruning "by all possible means."
appropriate means to be used" the "lesser People's class sold again for * new.

. . 0 ' ; . a
1 ove le te a = g0
Pe . VIII. ae
" ® 5

de Hieran {just fi soon aqsecond acquisition= medium: the trade in new clothes. The old -reshaped garments soon became fol= secretly shoved under the carpet, which really is new,

although occasionally damaged, in public chen auctions of * brought fabrics
were made. ::

oe
"a it ", a. ug 4 > 43 ere 4

Em

I. A third Broder soon joined them= advertising, which, like a thousand other things that come from the Art bet 2 Reception of the Jews first and foremost, and preferably lich emerged, the most unfortunate influence, in bie Morality of snacking. : |

"ii

En 2. Shee pam Sesto, but + to ; stew | old rags (new clothes had to be | kept secret) opened apartments were

| ben. visited only by the lower classes;
especially from beggars, who, at that time when Gaffen= Betteley *) took place publicly, now everywhere

*

7. et 5 is Hey 2
" ae a ce fs & N " ' 7 ' 0 2 7 rol . * r „ . 8 *

*) At the very moment when the Jews arose:
were taken, the state would have already taken all

e Gaffen s: Vetteley on the a fte W Be müffen. 6ZC00 8

started, no longer about, Brod En about a threesome, |

but urgently for an old piece of clothing, and all possible representations of bitter poverty and ask, and from a dozen homes begged for daily = who knew of the Jewish money in Iöfen. This with their shared, precisely connected relationship= | | return with the most common, depraved class of people, with Beggars and vagabonds, gave the next,

Step away: that their shops open to that

Dwellings the hiding places of all stolen and stolen

stolen items, which have a deep,

ceremonial secrecy with an impenetrable FR veil covered, whose trace, many and many Reasons, spied out in a subtle way Already in their own interest in Continuation of this business will, even more through the vast remoteness (borderline of the city) awo fhe lived, even more through the community spirit of this people, with which it is firmly and indissolubly united fed by the antagonism "especially from that from which the forced hypocrisy p from the more than bonne |

mine to a more than mauvais jeu emerged= Bu burning hatred, bitter anger against the 1
* so that at the low outside *

– 172 –

| balec the fence a Seber Ate to the side
ft, what mischief could become even worse
knew "where the medium of two nearby cities the same a fi * opportunity to throw one
*

a Q : >

ce 228 8 dormers.
beige begging vagabonds, thefts, and Use of the stolen goods to every vicious person, and with this front, drinking parties, dance halls of the never= third class, were now increasing to the extent that easier and safer to find buyers.
If earlier, less a moral feeling, more the fear that many had left behind, a cover-up to stretch out his hand to his master's estate, to touch another's property, since he did not know where and how he found a buyer, a sure fence den konne; fo' he believed, it feet fure safer, * a rather e to = =

HE De er a oe |
1. Furthermore, add to that also the following |
Swerbaind, mae in respect of 'fine deceptive' |

the influence of the end e. .
1 * ie nd

8 2. Their dwellings will be ace only hiding place for stolen items that need to be concealed; 5 |
fotibern now also, "through the traffic of the smaller Bolts: Elaffe were fle the Zupfuchtszeter: Things to bet on money as a deposit

f To be shown. a, aoe % to

. Hienit w was the careless breath-holding.
especially gambling addiction! in general, "even more so ders at the emergence of the so pernicious, cursed J

ten numbers Lotto 8 (which we will discuss in the section of the following

many intervening primaries, a which the traffic circle of the Jews to the ruin of the Christians so immensely

have continued, will come back again) Door
and gates, a gray field opened.

4. Even our fatherly-minded ancestors ten the Fii montes, or the so-called repentants your 8 to control the guard fence err ichtek.

5. Shame and blushing, especially of the face |
dande des Bildantwerdens had Tanfeinde= books held back, nothing other than just nn

\

in the most urgent need, and at the same time,
which one should not be ashamed to show,
which had a not entirely 'low berth'; 7
Lombard to the pledge,

..

6. But now a new track 1
3 that the Jew the questionable embarrassment= use it safely, twice, even three times higher interest fen was taken, nevertheless the way went, out of evil appropriate shame "to the Jew living far away
| am; convinced here, just as little be it to be known as ever from him, above mentioned grin be tempted to be betrayed. But how far here

the mischief, in attack on the lower class of people, driven, is. further below 3, detailed bingefelt advertise, se

ee 0e As if from photo the following closed means of earning of the Jews with all the disastrous consequences to the dirty traffic mentioned above means to. st, & ae

* — — 8
kt wa. fe =,

= eo: Suse, or money eat Bingen E ae DENE: VHNUoi'in, ees pee F

y

— x —

2. . Arnuth and wealth let it be fein," taught one of their ln and with watchful

* | |

3. If those inheritances touch, then he finds them in consequences equal; so wealth leads very easily to an equal number of vices, in both Ar=
° courage can rush in, "even though these one |
Kmupigen — 8 n. '

>>>

4. In ate 3 some but .
and had to advise, "who had their believed to find last refuge, Ht one on experience=
rung too foft founded, from — en |
m. known * e

5. The same is far preferable to Istaelites than to turn to Christians, if the Necessity forced people to pawn things, and here too

Instead; it took place here so much more because the ze

Christ, to whom one would also like to discover oneself; fhe

Money- bonds were not willing to could show that he was a usury, as before a Gh knowledge must recoil, and to ordinary

un 46 -

interest makes money more profitable and more useful den could. e

6. But what was his lot with the Israelites prepared? This opportunity often deliberately not to complain to the borrower's relatives to be allowed to employ without fear of punishment;
to take a risk here and there,
demanded the most stringent regulations for his safety exercises; played the whole role excellently and above all the mere negotiator who comes from the second, third hand to get the money
'babe, in order to achieve the higher direct and indirect | percent at the same time, and you in advance to cover as much as possible. Also found here a pledge. important things instead; fo
It was, for the same reasons, bought for the J of | Berths are charged. The sum delivered by u is ft often stood half in high-set Bases, whereby the borrower is entitled to other
on the same to get cash, neh 30 to 40 percent had to lose; so that fine
few. received money often barely a tenth
"finer: guilt » prescription, and: who vr - ua '

' . ö a 4

- 477 -

1000 Thaler b cash on this slippery path: u drove, debtor of 10,000 SH with heavy interest,
'will be a ad 9 |

"

| 7 If the lower class were to be kept in earlier times there was much less practice in arithmetic
ten; generally for all inexperienced people the most common |

Usury hidden under ground – interest, where |
There are cases where 60, 70, 80 percent and even more been taken about it. a

Jeeta eet
 $zT \setminus 2 * i -$

8. For example, a Jew gives someone a Kagel, or whoever it from the # geingften Bolts: tafe Teoh ze

| A
SR

x

4 The incidents that a debt of Arti 1 ex x Kae. | to, but ex conditione as a result of one or the other is legally denied or denied was disputed, what influence does this have on the .

Perjury on the part of the Jews: lies and Would not have been without the dangers involved.
to confess? And how many non-Jews de in such a situation and under such circumstances, how he should proceed, not have trembled? No Unearthly, no vice stands – The Eme must be in the mer serve the other for security. he 5 mag, 16 shillings for the loan, for which the same wö–

has to pay only one three cents per week;
makes this no more and no less than 82 '/,
Percent per year

9. Sf it therefore ends pie all the un– lucky ones who fell into the hands of the Jews, gradually become poorer, "if not immediately, then certainly failed to reach the begging stick, the germ

so many beautiful virtues in this miserable state ft suffocate, 1 and 1 bevöl=

zen 8 where Maiden, as already said above, :
felf did not know what was happening to him: so easily explained-
It must be obvious to every thinking man. |

Here I am forced to a digression (the the reader may skip at will), as it is a Observation contains "to which the present Scripture is rejected everywhere. 7

n 8 XII.
1 721 a 2 5

1 Ce will give those 8 to every thinking

Man can thereby explain Rn because he | En

– 49 8 2

| mg the entire nature continuous site: dabey ,
with eyes, which is both in the yhn fcient, intellectual, as well as moral

bourgeois world, in short, is found everywhere;

and what the interaction of things in Anfes

hung of the sequence of consequences, therefore among other things also serves to explain how often the smallest Urfache to produce the greatest event in to it, namely the following norm: ne, ae

2 2. Everything that leads to upward striving, 45 to the Botts ftreat has reached, gains more and more, not only by itself, but by the influence from all sides |
even by the opposing side a intervening means, expanding power, in strength and scope. Sede acquired power N as well as each newly defeated Burel |

Pig gle

ftigt ' is Boru, to grow a new site .

8

3. Now, are the proposition and the counter-proposition everywhere?

adâquat; fo that must also be against it » was. fine

sinks, what atrophies, in and through itself and | noticeably dissolve. Every paralyzed force is at this and that attempt to this and that venture

men, too weak to apply greater force.

| on |

N

— 9. —

ao

4. There is never any happiness, never any misfortune alen A very large stretch in the forest is

Linen mighty storm devastated; not the storm,

not the compressed, falling air mass alone, but the trees seized first have the next ones through their burden with fallen down.

3. And it is just a look at the ime

7 intellectual, world, to immediately find that The more insights a man acquires, the more

the circle of his knowledge expands by itself. |
Insights lead to insights, knowledge to knowledge: |

| nisffen. Of course, this is asked in passing, it comes from

There is an ever greater ignorance in knowledge. The richer

| a folder becomes sane, he definitely feels poorer

fig because every knowledge shows what and how much more \ what remains to be learned; hence also modesty=
is the only true character, the true pro= Birftein of a truly thinking, educated man nes can be instead of the half-knowledge, the absence
fcöppen from the surface brims with arrogance,

and puffs itself up out of stupidity. .
6, And just for a look at the moras ical world. The more skill you have, the

é

2 eer

ner has acquired in the moral good, deste ha her the divine nobility of fine soul vibrates by itself
up. The very thought of a bad deed becomes alien to him, no low idea can enter his 7 soul. But the opposite is true where only a single vice takes hold of the soul, and animal fe has taken root, this will, even if – Circumstances it by force to cut out, nevertheless to the

to drive new vices from the roots, –
a N

Be "7 And in the same way it is in the civil or civil world. The more one the secures and expands his wealth " the easier it becomes it gives him one advantage, one gain to others and vice versa: "The poor are alone only poor," says a Roman poet. ; A | Sab, which needs no commentary, and is general
can be summed up as follows: The rich are the only ones who are rich.
The virtuous alone are virtuous. The La= ftillbaren only nut fect rc. os es

*
1 *
j
- * = ß
48
~

2
- *

6 XU.

1. We return to the present Objects back. The one who is on the historical

\

course of the current investigation in more detail Whoever pays attention will find out for himself how I preferably not from the essence, but from the derive this and that misfortune from the people te. In itself the mele is not 44 Mack like i
"re ek will. | |

2. From the Accidental For may the | Character of a people depends immensely on the soil, depend on the climate, it will certainly develop much more from the historical course of a people from the incidents and events that have occurred, above all and primarily from his situation, his conditions (whence else the characteristic of each class?) in – he with and to ans dern fthaltet. To oo.

3. Just take, with regard to the first attacking causes, Romans and Italians here as an instructive example. For both was, is and remains the same ground, the same sky, the= the same air to be inhaled, the same air flowing through, through the seas and mountains analogous wine be, the same foods (which are of newer times brought about mobilizations form in white niger consideration, the main ingredient of the Nah: : Food, springs, waters find and remain the fame) and yet, what an immeasurable distance between Romans and Italians, between the inhabitants ners of the same Hefperien W and jeeia time.

tos But also what a people is, which apart from the Gauls, Carthaginians, Goths, Wan= dalen the Lombards and Greeks of the orientali= Roman Empire, the Saracens, Normans, | Germans, Spaniards, French etc., which people is still left, which is not Italy, through the former usurpation of the Romans willfully abandoned= PL moved (which, as it were, intentionally drove the Nemesis to valid law, as in our 3

times, as it is now in another

parts of the world, and always and always takes place | |

the one who seeks secrets, it is not for thousands of years made the scene of the most gruesome wars; Kripge which thousands of cities, towns, villages, villas with the monuments of antiquity i in that klaffi= fh land destroyed, devastated, reduced to ashes,

Millions of people by sword, defense, hunger

\

emergency and civil wars sacrificed, which the gar:

soil fertilized with human blood, which, however,

even more the mercantile and hierarchical rights

ties themselves, even more so its fragmentation into vols kerfschaften, the whole character of the inhabitants
at the same time, through the permitted and unlawful misuse

fch, a completely different look, and the former character ≠ traits: except for the laid ru
: – BEN |

* a people from experience instruction draw, how instructive the Roman usurpation would be, because they are united against all, but also as a result: All against them! and which brought so much misfortune upon the world has brought. Meanwhile, , fo. scourge of many nations the Romans were also there; so many millions strangled under their hands, no matter how many countries they are:

devastated, so many nations . they once at their

Triumphal chariots; the greatest us salvation, which they pass on to the peoples of Europe as their heritage

have prevailed, is and remains: the Israelites from their

to have displaced Helmath. For where such heterogeneous forces come together and rub against each other,

Fant never be a successful success. |

6. Bet now immediately the itfaben'b ber. Befsigte 5 the Jeraelites in German trading cities, however has led to what he generally said to them):
nete pernicious spirit of usury, which in fo mans 2
countries have suffered the most terrible catastrophes and indignation against them, which the Humanity recoils from the accidental, from its i business situation and their circumstances 7 Christians arose; what did it help that already a
the noblest and most venerable men in the people | occur, and in classical writings the powerful ft, emphatic language against usury have, if the murky source, not the present .
of the Jews but their business, their traffic, their Doing and driving should not be thrown away if in Regarding usury human wisdom has no
Norm could devise how to avoid the 3
1 avoid fey. |

i 1 or

1. Koch also lined up fs an bie * ange led to hopeless means of earning a living: >.
The conversion of the coin types, at the beginning

¢

;
1 25 ie *
> - * x - j & 7 *
Io. . i
* . : *
2 2 . ö N
3 . er . 4
2 - 4

building construction – Wecölerey with all the usual Fol.

he, 56 eee
2 N 5

which develops from this “and in the well-being of the People had an incalculable influence Wa z

2. Everywhere and everywhere, in all nam^e competent countries where Jews were accepted, and just as in German trading cities
the older, less wealthy, less fortunate Coin types by melting the silver such as at once. But not only this was happening, but by the Israelites, from forced Exercise, so run ig become seesaws of yellow:
ftüde went aud) all in weight a little heavier Coins lost; not enough, almost all coins forts, each piece in the same, was simultaneously by This makes tipping money easier.

3. How many millions may be in the 'ite
Europe the Jews only on this slippery Ways, by tipping, rocking and melting all ler and every durable gold and silver müuz^e varieties fell into their hands?)

- = _ = = F

) Wherever the nation inflicts wounds, the un^e says |
| ee Herder, put the bowl of the balsam
a to the side to heal such. Also in the bür^e

4. But the question is more interesting: what input flow into the welfare of the peoples and into the morality of the Mienfchen has the fo. far driven Bees nme |

of the coin types " 2

f

55 That the rise in prices is

| 10 dep reduction of the money the next Bolge .

1

Br 5 ZN j R

In the human, political world there is no such thing as hot, which is caused by finely less or more spread influence, stimulate attention, spur to act contrary to rc. not something good hers i

: even if the evil never stops,
a evil to be. War, with the exception of defense ation of the fatherland, iff and remains a wicked
Incitement against humanity, from the power hunters to their enemies
. enough to see what beneficial consequences one whatever derives from it: What do you like now the Jews indirectly to the above all Praise the sublime, excellent institution of the hambur= aifische Bank, as also from the Tipping and rocking of money soon becomes a quarrel between fhe older and newer (the typed u | side pieces) coin types were created, ande the inside rises on means and think . gd
RR ee ee

\

38 |

is well known; and also: that when the craftsman increases the life=

needs not equal steps, for higher prices to work, to hold in a position, he then with less loyalty in regard to the material lien, and with . diligence in challenging the Processing delayed. |

6. But what is going on with all these numerous things?

cen classes, which, according to the needs of the time,
; for an improvement in their salary, a raise.

their salary or the so-called fixed salary

| bens nachús; or if an allowance is also given

= fhieht, fuche with the Beitbedixfnifen in gar is not proportionate?

um; What loose concepts of Gerabgelt, of | Loyalty, from. Incorruptibility may fi fic) through a certain feeling of suffering injustice in the penance then develop involuntarily? What greater stimulus could then have the gold which is already bribable in itself?

che means, which side roads may therefore be of Some people are taken? Where can one or the other will be brought to what he nin a more carefree situation would never have been able?

a

9

And how many "who in earlier times; in glowing R
Times with this and that salary. Wife and children could have nourished without worry, now increased by

= illegitimate relations the number of foundling homes, ftürzi |

many innocent girls into incalculable misery
down, or even trample here and there, forever, domestic peace. What influence does am the one who was so fharmed by the Israelites on the coins N 2

committed methodical theft not only in the Glucks
' bliss of so many individuals, but also in, 'big |
Population, in the type of population of the State, in Rational Dignity, left force ind 1
| Strength un = |
4. But if he who committed the coin
Nonsense to the Jews almost exclusively everywhere |

and is everywhere added; so we also want – beer our Borfag stay separate from the Bufälli

gen, and not from the essentials of the inhabitant ning character of people to develop such, 88
We would, even then, still speak out against the latter | occur "when a skull gauge on the jüßifchen Head preferably an organ of the 1 = pffigfeyns; ever discovered a age Re

3 60 -

1. 9. For this is already granted to the Israelites= dene means of earning money to fi, of the kind: that one does not the more detrimental to civil society |

kehr would have chosen fdnnens fo it will be in the following |
In this respect, all the more hateful. ;

10. The proceeds of the granted acquisition= tels was, at the first approach of the miserable= | ften Art; fo that the Jew absolutely on every, even on the smallest and most insignificant . e had to be. = 1

= T I. Know therefore this so deeply banished Raffi subsequently became part of the Christians' food supply | fo may have become harmful and pernicious, namely by the fact that it subsequently also entered the trade= Maxims of the Jews completely ignored, as further on ten in the intervening causes which the giant= | moderate growth of the Jews "promoted, will appear in more detail; it is the Christians
fts themselves, which the Jeremiah n on such corrupt different paths. N

5 a

u : "In the end, over Jew he had to, in order to five 5 to open a communication with the Christians, old Sa=
'en buy for the best possible price when one can only keep the sale of the rite in some way should. With kindness on the face, with N

With greater bitterness in his heart, he gave the money

No wonder he has the better coins ten held back as much as possible; where he was in Cre
due to a lack of poorer coin types, from these, as much as possible
which still raises the question of concern.
ft: whether (f. below religious and moral terms)
the common Jew really sees this as injustice, as wore, considering with whom – he believed he had something to do.

13. In addition, the Jew was with his Wandering back and forth the very different | Coin forts everywhere known through fine business learns, and pays attention to their inner value which of course entitles him to tion "which profit from usury
with coin by all sorts of means and ways au eveine |
gen Ie:

€ a
a

g. V.

Is 98 much and many, and watch
eighth of the reception of the Israelites,

\

and derived from the traffic granted to them; i fhowever, we are currently coming across the allergen= hateful thing that ever came from the turmoil of the South, like

| from an abyss nn could:

= = peddling. _

22 2. Ym corner of a city habitual "not off= % waiting for customers to take the appropriate items – which many, partly in private houses, partly in auctions (public sales),

not fashionable enough, as in pawning

" fallen as well as stolen and concealed things to be visited; it drove the Jews more forced= white into the open; showed him little by little the way to the country » annual markets, from there to the villages, Fle=

: towns and rural cities.

3. Initially, it was just things that were in N the larger cities no longer find buyers
All outdated, unfashionable Things (table and teaspoon, shoe and knee

f buckles, clasps, and buttons (c.), for which Above lower class lacked money, and the more
The favored one did not want to have such a thing. =

5 |

u " FE This was followed by the 1st Hayfizen with scarves, handkerchiefs, socks, hats xc., which later led to negotiations with all

W only conceivable ä = goods here proceeded.

4 .
. 0

| 4 Not laden with a burden, of course the country-dwelling Jew every footpath of the nearby way "which helps to lighten his burden, everywhere

where he encounters customs duties or other obstacles to push "he learned every trick and trick way; from the way less than from carrying tired, he often begged for a little something from. FJuhr= people, especially postmen = carters,

| to become, where it is, the: fan fích fuch redfeikir
to take care of customers as necessary:

the Jews, * to . and * feptte a

.6, Furthermore: At the place of Gintescens it was 8 ibm |

the Jew, who pushes himself everywhere, through

| not to be deterred by anything
saw himself compelled to do something easy, which took a long time | Sandman, at all where he asked where he came "the 1 the eden genay

€

\ .

to get to know, to see; where the farmer fine saved Thaler, without initially something Ages * to beabfi -

| 7: No wonder then that vagabonds of all
Art fell to them quite easily as if by itself,
from them, as if it were happening by chance,
fhing what they see in the villages, "spots, small Rural towns here and there noticed what

They were heard on the mail coaches, which travelers?

Where to? Where from? And since they are often referred to as Buyers for so many stolen items den, so for some there was only one step there to join a gang of thieves, or even to have it recorded. A step, which, through the relationship of the fence with the

The recipient was often already prepared by the fact that...

Many a thief steals what he has found in a city

'Coal, now once again in the hands of his fence in another place, as if by chance again . : 6 '

| 8. So only and only in this way has it surely can be: that it is a historical fact:
" that

RE RE u
that speaks of the time of the reception of the Jews):
net, the number of vagrants, thieves and .
Gangs of robbers even tend to disturb the public | peace has increased. Just read all the judicial records of captured thieves servile vagrants. They, the Israelites, make not only almost consistently the largest number: Savor out, fondern find selbft as leader of the dangerous:

thieves' gangs appeared in the same. |

9. And even if the state has any precedent= part by accepting the Jews,

which is definitely not the case, but rather the opposite is demonstrated; how much greater the impact wall has the same here too, and for safety:

ity of the public roads, it is by Gens dar-merie, or other police officers tend . -

10. Those princes therefore do not find enough to honor those who have so hopelessly perpetrated the Jews.
to prohibit in their country under severe punishment
have now started every now and then. |

\

- 66 BC -
; 4

11. Is he the peddling of the Jews in the Cities are not associated with the same outrageous danger den; fo it aims, however, as we will see in the following,
a serious consideration, so completely on the total ruin, on the völs ruin of the citizens, the Christian inhabitants ner off.

x

Third Xofgnitt

| That, woe to the enchanted Hage of the Jews during their takeover in the German trading cities means of earning a living

8

: " ; '

" * PR 1 '
* 0 « wht ae aoe ae Er Beg he ay, ao N roy i ate ou A 775
jr . dat

Ban have 8 the 5 initial Griwerbmite 14 of the Vefingern Volks – Klass had under their eyes,

seen: what is, as it were, of itself necessary= |

how it had to develop from this, as it is everywhere from accompanied by the lowest vices, the most unfortunate one:

influence on the morality of the people; what

but in the history of the Jews forever and ever memorable, highly striking and will remain so, ft: that at the same time the more affluent class

the Jews were granted a means of transport,

which, connected with the means of transport of the nie=

third and middle Volks= Halle, for the occasion

C5]

N t

– 2

Buin d bar ehrschrift party not brought forth, could not have been imagined, namely:

the Seld= trade, ä

here taken in the true sense of the word, money= money-changer, bill of exchange – =brokerage, bill of exchange'= trade or banking business, discounting, premiums x. encapsulating. 353

2. For more correct and clear instruction of the present subject—we must take a look we throw 5 1 vessels. "

3. They ", the Bejgäte over Menfähet, 5 dh | the yearbooks of all nations in the family
the succession to the highest, has become known= antiquity, offers many contrasts = ftstand before which the historian is in fta= lingering in contemplation, and, as if rooted,
remains standing, pondering.

4. Here he finds an individual, en ng
5 and insignificant man who not only the beginning of fine contemporary and fine steering ropes holds, leads and guides them according to their will and pleasure;

7

— m 69 u .

but the fine views, fine opinions, fine Sayings and principles of the kind in the human ical nature that it is from gender to gender worse, from millennia to millennia be propagated, and all this is the work of a individual man! That they describe events at Bege= | areas whose visible traces can be seen after a series of several. ea the eye still speaks represent. = |

6. There he finds: that in a nation a

Mistakes have occurred, which often occur during the creation of unforeseeable consequences, not the small= ft seems to have any significance, nevertheless, if
even after centuries, through unpredictable, |

Highly pernicious consequences with fine . pets

step forward. | | 0

6. The sins that Spain and Portugal

tugal through the cruel persecution of the Jews other countries, the due to incidental causes, extremely Bun
and pay heavy fines. | |

_ 7. Religions: Fanaticism, which the boy the pious Isabelle swelled, and behind which

¢

BERN. 46 —

che Ferdinand fine cunning politics, to Aude conduct of what was then called a holy war hid, overthrew the remnants of the Moorish .
Dyn aftie in Spain, and raised biefte – to Bine unit.

8. Her grandson, Charles V, King of Spain sib German Emperor, too often with the elements gure :
nend, gave himself over to the inherited fanaticism only then,
| when he had laid down the double crown.

9. His son, Philip II, had barely mal which is more than inhumane against the EEE ten raging Marie, Henry VIII's daughter= ter, the reins of government in his hands, fo wett=
he envied both of them: his wife and the boss
head of the Church, to surpass in heretic rage *), |

*, This human king once learned that about thirty people in the car died were; not having tackled it hurt fhis pious soul, he therefore demanded that in fhis presence immediately another such execution and now saw with deep, pious pleasure forty ane. in the flames

– Arrival.

sat 71 h > .

Lin the tribunal of hell of inhumanity far

The supreme judge was in Spain under with the name Inquisition, which is not instruction, not by persuasion and conviction= ment to guide and win hearts; but every Non-Christians, even any non-Orthodox on Le= pursue sin and death, and sacrifice them to the flames
As if what is the matter of God:
heit iff, not only before their judge=
chair belongs; as if people were presumptuous
could and might, a . of the deity |

/ .

5 x

*

Especially in N time such gree of Fauatism, the creeping Jesuitism not brought back enough to mind, and the
The question must be asked: with what disgust, with what deep contempt the hearts of the Antoni = nen, of Marcus Aurelius, of Frederick, of Ales randers, in our time that of Leibnitz, Pope, Her= .

Who, Reimarus, considered such actions?
how immeasurably far their attitudes, their behavior
| their behavior, only for the good of the people fchen thought, must have been of the one whose fen the fanatical superstition coupled with simplicity have been capable everywhere and will always remain so, -

*

to set up here below, to plead, to judge and by human utterance in the name of the Deity to commit all atrocities!

10. For more than seven hundred years the Arabs or Moors a large part of Spain

Muslims and Jews are known closely related siblings – children. The
The number of followers of the Mosaic religion was after, during the Moorish rule in Spain, | not a little considerable, far more considerable still, as history tells us that the great things she had acquired there assets, their accumulated there through usury riches.

11. But both, Moors and Jews, should fich now under threat of the car da fe *) to ) Words rule people, and through a | ftaking example, the world will never be more than currently ruled by words. .

The most horrible act had to be it happens everywhere, from religion its name borrow: Auto da fé Glaubens = Acte,

| Act of faith was called the gruesome execution

>

–

5 73 5 | . 5 . 2

Christianity. Hence denial of their Religion through coercion, power and violence,
the most shameful death! . |

12. This is the unfortunate grip that is on us intense power has few equals, which | “made at that time in those countries, and the sad consequences throughout the millennia of

| intervening . because – ann fein

N F0:

13. | For, this is how the significant number of New= Christians (Nuevos Christianos, like the history books of Spain call them), which, of course, only giving in to the iron necessity, in far larger number than were, and remained "what they were people: Joraelites or Muhamedans. =

Br ridjtung sie Sn, obne , Debrecen; bloem Mis

nations, merely deviating worship because of a 2 |

'and the same Godhead, notwithstanding that the purest, | the sublime ideas of the greatest thinker of the Deity always within the limits of the anthropo= morphism ftinnen, since the finite through= from not grasping the infinite, not understanding fen kannn. u |

14. From this it was possible to no less violent step of the following Phi= lips whose financial circumstances are the destruction of artistic diligence above all, and above all= were becoming more and more shattered; | which the later consequences of highly unjust usurpation tions of their predecessors like a bogeyman in the Should see in the distance when the first, the great th power of Europe, which, more than any other others, a universal monarchy for future destruction ruins could have been founded when the fate of every once dominant nation suffer and sink into complete unconsciousness would be the step from emerge themselves: walls and Jews entirely from to expel Spain. |

15. It happened. They could only their former homeland, or to their faith= comrades, equally feared, equally hated in the rest of Europe "since it is already partly (except Portugal, namely France and Italy) the scourge; her desire for conquest, coupled with infatuation felt, These, the Israelites, turned fi ha

7 - 73 = * |

ie: very large Aab to Portugal. : Dien stepped .

Urfachen, say the history books Lufitun lens 3 without specifying exactly which ones: kai fie auch m 0 ic could stay. N .

ty

16. Was now her – at the same time, as 9
almost everywhere, with the sequestration of their goods, justly connected, even more unjustly, even more outrageous then when priests a religious |
Schleyer wanted to throw the royal proceedings=
| ten; but the number of new ones remaining behind

Christians who reject every external aspect of the Jew |
thumbs, instead of small, insignificant
my considerable; fo therefore had those to expel already have the means in their hands, with whom

their faithful fellow believers, from the complete | outbreak of displacement and sequestration

to conclude cessation contracts with each other,

namely to cede one's property by fictitious sale,
to save, and not with effective gold and Silver, which is protected from other dangers could be (f. above §. IV. 15.),: dod mik same denominated in paper.

“ 17. And so the trade took a tremendous | grand, extremely important exchange transaction
its origin and progression in the following way:

18. Just as the lesser Jew first entered into the nearest streets of the Christians, and from there, only after a few decades, in the more distant city= areas; just as timidly approached the krilirte, that hard danger survived wealthy Ju=

de the external stock exchanges of the German trading cities.

19. Known by those merchants, the considerable trade links in those countries=

have "and do significant business there,
he offered them safe and advantageous instructions,
by means of a letter, a letter
f es (hence forever the name: letra de cambio;
lettera di cambio; letter of change; Change= |
letter, will remain) on bristly plague.

20. Whoever has the art, the gift, or the idea: to flatter the interests of the people gels, it consists in advantages, in pleasure, or even just for the sake of convenience, he can ft generally count on being heard and applauded;
as much as in such an important, trade-oriented

a ae

generally beneficial thing, how many overbite _ with the spirit of commerce, which is aimed at every, even the smallest advantage, and in this regard only adhere to legal ity can distinguish it from the Jewish procedure. x

. 21. Pafi ve and active debts on a fo

light, comfortable, less expensive, at the same time N secure ways (exchange= fraud settled, which often more disadvantageous than remittances in cash, which 7

lost by storms or highwaymen
can, not for exchange= letters, whose lost value= |
previous ones are replaced by Secundas, Tertias &c.)

| to be able to balance and liquidate, the –
Trade – traffic a very desirable solution

ö che feyn. 8 8 en u aa? Mae. =

22. But what at first was only

Negotiation of one's own in foreign countries of the funds was soon in their hands

a bill of exchange transaction on the largest scale,

ches, already for the sake of the origin, even more the Ge= because of the skill with which it is carried by them,
especially the most extensive correspondence, which |
for the sake of larger connections, with which the Jew in the world: traffic stands, finally almost alone, almost out –

The closure soap had to get into their bonds, and as a very important source of food, no gee – small share in the predominant acquisition= mögen het. N „„ gta

23. For he who has the Beitganbel in the large Knows Aut to some extent, and has seen him, | whose amount of circulating money is immeasurably large is, even if the parts often only a petty expression= |
spoils of profit, yes, not infrequently with bee
linked to significant loss. find, deffen rimeffen and drafts, however, with few exceptions, by Bills of exchange, and their purchase and sale
almost entirely through Jewish exchange brokers:
will easily understand that in View of the most important trading cities in Europe Every year several million are already in this way in the canal that draws everything into itself ation.

: a She 3 u like e the b Pharaoh ish

Billiard halls, or any other gaming venues. Alls bablen lost significantly there in the end, and the none of the players has won yet.

– 2 –

25. But what has already been said is not that The only thing that is detrimental to the Christian party emerged from that one; but rather,
also soon the shops: money exchange, discotheque
tiren, agiotiren, banks to invest x. to that.
And now the path to the monopoly of the fo was opened the money trade, so that the Jews now fill everywhere and everywhere not only the first

Bankers stand by their side, but here and there as:

the first, as the most respected . to all feen and e Ben: aa eee

26. But even that is far from being the Al=

leinige, what came out of that. The fo bee considerable money = trade and their partly un=

They placed their measurable wealth on my nisterial gold-covered path "among princes and rulers in a point of contact, especially when it comes to monetary transactions, be it loans, or Remittances of subsidies etc., the speech
With regard to money = loans, the Princes in large sums to find this together:
what they gave to the subjects in countless small sums of money. It paved the way for them

•
—

1 . — 80 FF

the way, less on open paths, more through | Bribes of all kinds to the courts: not just to become a court Jew, a court agent; not just to
to give himself and his people influence and weight create, probably even with titles and honorary degrees chen, which previously belonged only to the merit and Ru the Earning) . were;
* u fondern

€

*) Has there ever been a greater statesman than Frederick the Great? Even after thousands of years his immortal works will testify to this.

The question: whether he is a fanatic or intolerant ter Fürst, the ashes of that great ous, unforgettable man. The gracious rich reception of the French Reformed Church is a Proof of how the Prussian state has always thought. But Friedrich drew a precise demarcational line between religious and political Tolerance. This great thinker was not allowed to Character, the principles, and what follows from them |
previous actions and activities of the Israelites learn. How much he, through fine outstretched gestures foratology, through his lively, attentive .
Observational spirit knew him, he too often laid
. to the light. Supply a Jew, a sword carry

send in. the well-being of not only a single nation, but rather in the prosperity of many others= access that in the misfortune of those iugleidy with :

– have been inserted. e2

. 298 For, in order to ensure the dedication of trembling N and money = advances secure guarantee to have, and with financial Binfen otherwise quite noticeable=
ly increase, they sought the first important to obtain the highest state revenues in rent.
From this the original source of that 0 was Ba Sy ,

3 rn er

to be allowed to wear; u was called 28: N but PS , the right side. If someone else wanted permission

| have to be allowed to drive with beers; it likes it, was the decision, but one after the other. Friedrich

| saw through the boundless, outrageous excess – – courage, whose every out of the dust raise fic =

the individual, and therefore also every swept-back

People with too great expansion of its powers finally N capable, and not less, as many An=
the state purpose: general welfare, through= from towards, and held the saying: so far, and not N for Jonge errierte, unablässig Min. 3

*

– 83 –

, 4

– ftems, namely: the hopeless anticipation of the state; and
 . One-fifth, if a lease is on 10, 12 to 13 year in advance was offered for sale in cash. Here= from the possibility of an ambitious man, the scourge of a | war to continue for a longer period; but also an abyss of national debt at the feet of the throne. From this, through the extension=

the wars, the ever more deeply rooted, |
 : national hostile to humanity: = hatred of the lin:
 oppressed against the conquering enemy of the Fatherland from the outside "and from the inside the violence= most active extortions of unimaginable kind, since the State revenues are no longer paid directly by the state.
 raised, fondern of merciless, greedy
 Financial tenants often in an inhumane way
 This led to impoverishment and deprivation destruction of so many classes of people. Hence the Kas |
 gen, the discontent, the lesser respect for the same against the laws, because the administrator of the same is not fo respected) fo honored, fo loved, as it is necessary for the welfare of the state, indeed their wishes to put together a suitable measure gen, on which only a single spark was allowed to fall in order to – to put the entire state in names whose far= N

Sn

flying colorful attire of the fifth aon ents |

=

. e ,,, ee N

ae 3 7 * * a

– e 0 "

– % se vo ef eg

. 7 . . ' . 8 & e = 2

er xv, su – – „ ; *

' v. "4 „ af Al get 7 I.

,

1. Before c to the ftgenber What about:

| which the memorable, intervening Uta

chen represents the so vehement Enpordrin:

of the Jews, their more than gigantically wet bath: |

thum, I must mention the 'present

bc with the following remark.

' .

*

= One may also take a fine look at bas on |

You can turn the people you have led wherever you want, if you

merely the business relationship between the Indians and the Christians | often in front of your eyes, you already realize:

how much the Jeraeclit of the welfare of the bourgeois society and that it is the unfortunate idea that people could ever conceive is. and remains: to prohibit Jews from trading

ben on which fie, other important reasons

because, solely and exclusively" would have limited,

1

and them, under a completely opposite vek=

drive, fever: touch=punet= with the end should have been questioned niffe. u en

[6]

~ - .
"

3. On that way they would have had domestic ity, activity, diligence and morality;

They could never have gotten there: here and there.
to place a state next to the state that previously or helps to threaten the ruin of the same; never

| babin 'to get into the world = matters

ten indirectly to intervene so deeply; never and never

the morality of the people through their unfortunate

Influence a 'Yo höchst nadhthellige direction bek=
men, never a striving and counter-striving completely hetero= | forces, from which the later consequences

gen will not be able to calculate.

It may be true that what has been said

a very strange induction reason.

5. How many Derters are there in eb Vater= land, where in Utherian cities Catholics, Ree and vice versa, where in Catholic

N oo RN 3c. are recorded!

7

6. Wherever there is only the "tiff
Complaint, the slightest expression: that a recorded= |

my sect any * W will be tons? " © a et er

ur ö

m To do this, keep an eye on the music rounds

| a ican experience question,: borrowed from the Keil
gions = History of all Nations: that the nearer En | Religious relatives: with their Küfiten and Mes |

tions stand next to each other, the bigger, unfortunately,
in religious terms,, abie – a er. fo
if such things ever come to light. Spe –

| 8. and yet, that every day
che Secte all civil liberties with full | Rights undisturbed; every animal, every trade with original rights of humanity

fey drive ban and: may, finds nowhere even | the assumption / even less the statement Instead of: | that any advance of one or the other

: ee could be possible. e

9. Where does this strange connection with u a very large sub-ject in the case of the jü.
dian people? Previously different than: that the Christians |

fts, fhe may now belong to a sect, to which who want to follow the same principles, the same

observe the same maxims, the same norms at ifs rem procedure; in short, that one and the other.
the same spirit, one and the same honesty of the same

*

a

– $6, one,

in the general! Doing and doing of civil Businesses rule, and therefore with perbaltnifmtas sluggish steps for centuries undisturbed one others to the side; and that they also Principles and maxims that are consistent with those of all other sects not only completely analogous, but also to= immediately, which the consequences point out very seriously | is such that if not a complete ge Entsitt will be fol, fie i always fo fe and must stay! it ö

10. Jews, if they know the unfortunate
| u from the traffic granted to the Israelites means, in no way to deny, and with too obvious reasons ft has already been demonstrated; fhowever, none could human wisdom with the purest will, with | 'the best intentions and the most sincere endeavours
– suffice to ensure that the Jews are received by | thought to establish statutes that their predominant Advancement does not harm the state in any way=
| c will.

| 15 = 2

. Much and Many day: in febe many en |

Hidden in the deepest matters, which time,

railways take a significant share;
all and especially the newer states \approx Verhältniß \approx '

4 circumstances, especially the development of the human 8

spirit; the advancement of technological inventions
ments, which England's highly ambiguous Max

fe Europeans have brought about, and which t

| Schleyer of the future ps completely wrapped up lying there..

: 12. The spirit of the iii could produce a thousand ideas |
time, which is a completely different Moras

lity, a very different blessed Ginn athe mete, who followed other state maxims, in all of whom were then given the fi secured shoe: Behe |

rightly believed in find l

13. Even for that which is subsistence the Jews was granted, could, so see for the sake of minor reputation, no seer appears,
and demonstrate what incalculably destructive power \approx

tel into the hands of immigrants for the future
| be given. and if he really does the next \approx

would have been able to calculate the most serious consequences,

although he also uses exemplary, instructive history

other nations (but whatever the study,

4

mals still fehre was missing *) taught, on that I am in which they were in those countries from which both: Fanaticism of their opponents and their ei=

The spirit of usury was driven out, practiced and

fhiffen have; fo. he would never have suspected, never in the spirit. . what is happening on the day

located. | |

4. Only now, through a sad experience
| instructed, which too often sneaks after a disaster,

| there are no longer any means of remedying the same handen, zu. feinen, and the antagonism, ' with all these violent measures which only image with adversities must be left to be driven away;

Only now do we realize what could have happened
must have happened.

| 5 15. Let no one believe that I wanted to or that state to speak for it. No!
Sede flattery is foreign to me. Could
| age in all possible conditions and conditions

=) What influence do you have on bifenggafen in the welfare of the peoples? 2 5

- 8 - >

not understand what means of earning the South =

| will be left to you. In addition, the rules of Statesmanship in the following not with behörriger Bernation, concern and consideration have been applied, before the destruction spreads further and further fo it is now every state whose welfare –feinnt Citizens are genuinely concerned, so that the first and most sacred duty: through consultations of wise men, | | 5

To send selfless, honest men there.
which require thoughtful, serious measures.
must be met: not to meet a foreign,
to oppress the people we have taken in, fo 5

something could just be the hidden intention of a not good person |

misunderstanding human nature of being, much less to suppress; but that a proper relationship between the means of earning of Christians and Jews

| | den hergefstellt that the now {don shinaltende, mehn | 5
as a convincing misrepresentation to be presented in the following position is completely lifted; in order to avoid the inevitable ical consequences that are so loud and dangerous threatening from all sides. 5

16. But every government cannot attentive enough to what the Jews have always said:

U „ – 90 – ß

often and widely used bribery System *) , the conviction that this ensuring that each contribution is made together= fhot, any money given in advance calculated as they are on the basis of the Christian N – Zinfen, – ae

" ae but her . Legengenb= Stand only there= to the point that, in addition to what they already had in

Hands, still one thing or another with Money can buy what rights, what

The pillars of civil society are remain, which do not finally . down= become auen. .

4

18. at States where the Ju-which has not yet found any noticeable recording those historical documents may be

—

ö < * \ 5
) Not long ago there was a country town, and the monastery there, even the regent against the settlement of an Israelite there, and yet

∴ finally through – bribery became possible.

a warm Ala – Achrretthen–Vryppteale leren:
just as the manner of their reception may be can and must; and if this is achieved somewhere become follte ; fo the author of this writing to be happy, to be happy, rather, to be happy in vain= | to have worked. ee

* * " NB
& . > . – * we =; : 1 Read as 4 5 r wa he "> 3
, 4 ® sy
sd N 5 7 ere * f +
; x Fa e Fe ? > x * a es 4
: 5 . 5 ua 5 5
es . e 8 oe 8 © 2
*
– le = nu ga roe 1 A
ee
* *

- .
+
4 = 25 . i
* . : forty
L 2
. 8 v = 7 15
x  ia 7 vs 2 7 * 8 8 5 15 * ! é 770 er
* -
: 1 . "4 Fe.
D 4 7
"pre 374 7 j - |
-
* 4 > 2 + ae 3. Be = . 7 : S a 7 Fr 3)
-
8 55 = = " **
*
' Be ie u „ .
-
4
f 5
= "Ft 5 er ! * 4 * *
"m 4 * + i me = tos " NS Fa, ur
my;
* * a
: ' . xz A a
- - x ~' x I « 9 *
*
' 2 * 8 ER ef
%
- 1 ng
* a
= !
7 er 2 9
I 8 - 7 8 7 - Por r
- ' 7 - re
* * ' . . * Ks
*
- * *
f so 1 * 2
* - ö
h
-
5 2
4 = . ert: -
.
Dee t o 1 €

1
' f, r
x N
7 1
B a 5
!

Fourth section.

Intervening causes, which by the very soe Pei tte

' sung almost all conceivable means of earning to the strongest

| contributed to "the advance, the powerful to promote the spread of the Jews, |

! 1

* ET

These are so numerous and varied that I
,But the limits of possible shortness fvery far= would have to go out if they all sum up here= should be treated with respect. I will therefore only mention the most important highlight the most important moments that will be of great importance to the future shift writers will be enough to have the opportunity of the so memorable rise of the Jews, especially in German nn. fich erklåren to be able to.

t
'€

1 a

es ia 8 1 x
8. vum. na

The Golden Age of German.
| fic literature. 5

:

= 1. de more praiseworthy the Protestant German.
land, during the reign of Frederick the Only one, on the immense field of the meadow to take care of the poison < Unban carefully; the more it at the same time through the mighty advances of culture |
fine spirit feleven and high above the rest

: Parts of the fatherland rise up and begin, .

ON - . .

* I am far from having a skit look at the ka=
". to throw fholic Germany »It is no less noble, great, glorious and worthy of honor! How fear and how often has the generous Austria not for Germany's independence and at the same time for the independence of other nations with free -

fought for the good, loyal German people, and that colofal power many strong points

+ "yaubt, in order to earlier, at the first, daring Un:
" ftendeft to sink into nothingness; it is and yet it remains striking: that almost all He:

torn bee German literature, the ornament and the pride of the Fatherland, its Creator and Founder,

*

through the study of serious sciences the en in the e 2 the Radel « one, through g and 1 test to 3 the more inclined, of course, to early Christianity and, traced back ideas separated from the priestly sense,

Ideas that were identical with those of the founder,
to Judaism, even if only and solely to the Judaism to which the reformer of the Mosaic laws, as an Israelite, himself, with "ur sacrifice he had announced.

— — — 2

whereby Deutschland has earned such a high name in the learned world and an excellent respect acquired from other nations, that it is almost alone belong to Protestant Germany! You,
the Leibnitz, Wolf, Garde, Kant, Meimarus, Eberhard; fie, the Klopstock, Lessing, Göthe,
Schiller, Wieland; fie, die Heyne, Lichtenberg,
Bode, Käftner; 5 by Gellert, Sulzer, Meißner,
| Meiners Martens; the Gleim, Kleift, Voß, Gök=

Wed 16. 1c. which still have so many others, zie

| Men flee to the side. |
And what must be just as memorable here, |
ffs vale fehr en Beschützet uad Pflieger der Künste

7

2. The saying of that Roman ode "Poet N

the transition from one extreme to the Others have expressed too much hatred.

It is the inevitable fate of mankind.

unity: fi from the one opposite to the other

because the dividing line that is everywhere –
without exception separates two vices, of the kind that: where the one vice seems to cease, the one which is already beginning again, and therefore very easy to one or the other, both of which are the sole Good, the only beneficial thing. in. utterly gerrängur:

| Keep in the middle, can seduce! 5 85 us

1
f ' . "

and sciences a small country worthy of respect before the eyes of an entire nation

~

The Grand Duchy of Saxony= Weimar,

which is not at all equal in size to larger states

a = comes, has more learned men in his bosom=

Ge nufft, as in several larger Stanten together taken as not occurring, the input of which in the current deeply thought-out states: + Mae

zimen, whereby his government, other states N

shining, such a great, unfeigned respect and to gain the admiration of so many Germans

cee do not know how to misjudge if. t. cs

3. Had a lot of enthusiasm before the youth:
because of the significant religious distance,
pursued, hard and u Me fo raised fidy
from that time on, in speeches and writings of all kinds,
the loudest advocacy for them, even if only with excellent reference to religious tolerance, not thinking, pondering, and anticipating what Limits of political tolerance among such a people demand; as if the one so completely of the same Content as the other would be, and as if the against

ü every non-Jew so intolerant Zöraelit, those not just for this alone, and use it entirely alone
wind. as it is now evident!

A, In the humane, never enough praising Ge= inventions of those men, not conscious of any corruption, 2
not to fear that the gold found will fit
' they blushed, they went away from the truth of their actions=
treaty, its excellence and its Nur application is keenly convinced, so much so that it who had such a pleasing idea for humanity: Judaism
and Christianity could merge for the salvation of the world= | the will, not shrinking from the thought,
: but jackal of examining thought, as ede=
rich,

4

you, indeed the unfeilice; doc as a mortal

Earth's goal, and early or late entry into the earth

must be; even less aware that through a highly strange chain of things even a | cloudy time could come: that seriously committed political tic sins on religions: Neglect could thrown, and on a strangely crossing ways of the human spirit again into deep barbarism

Ginabfinten from the Aberglanden fogged, from Legen= |

den, of Erfüdingen and fictions of all kinds that will be numb and stupefying;' that all that,
which has long since fallen into the deep night of darkness

fen, comprehensive usurping investiture; Pråro=

negative fepen to separate one state from another to make it dependent; ; find religious interventions never
en. political purposes? (Vas teaches here:
| but the blood-soaked history of Italy ?) 3 upper Sefuiter- Above; 'Inquifitions - Gaichte; 5. Anbe= veneration of the saints; veneration of the relics; 5 'balls trips to holy Dertern 5. Miraculous images; monks and nuns; and to watch the measure fully, |

Gontrovers = sermons, heresies, persecutions
Learned men, who, had, say, could have punished

*

and that. something like that,! everything would be brought back to light

2

den knte, and that thick fog andy the peoteian isn en 6 tent cloudy e ae ae

"er 1 L 174 *t? 2%

ar ne

to = from. 1 all only infused ix. |
expressed my opinion most strongly to Lefing's mother
ftuck, fine Nathan, has more, much more to offer here?
judges, as what the humane herders
and Dalberge for a more lenient assessment, for a friendlier reception, for a more tolerant attitude
gen in powerful, masculine * ,vorgettas –
have.

6. Meanwhile, that was for the honored German= |
Yand forever memorable era “ which in the ge:
entire history of science the name Frederick the Unique forever bears, and fto present themselves with glory and splendour, with power and dignity
| elders of a Pericles, an Auguft, ; the de Medici, det
Ludewig and Clifabeth, it was that era
only a means of preparation, the business circle ae Expand Sraclites infinitely. 3 }

7. Encouraged by the loud BERN and by the new direction of the direction of

t

— — 992 —

People *) now began to see the fitfeters among them to get closer and closer to the Christians, the pre-Christ court of public meeting places more and more exceed, in dress, in behavior,
especially in view of the so unpleasant, unbearable
1 = to approach the difference more imperceptibly

7 4

8

) What powerful influence do ideas have on thinking = of educated men in general in the whole, even more so if it is in the way and How come they are presented? “a

2 1 \

#*) How can it be said that among old acquaintances
human voices that of the Jewish people fo uw mean, disgusting, so completely unbearable? Is it for example, the guttural= “letters” caused rattling, or the cutting, shrieking sound,

– into which the Jew falls at the slightest emotion;
or the wild jumping, which from Mo= dulation is far away, and the tone in the same “Instantly raises up to the point of screaming, and to | dullness suddenly sinks down again

~

But what may be worth noting here is:
About two decades ago, the Jew was trying to my an, with Hebrew emphasis as much as possible to suppress it; now it seems that where it is 1

–

and were, where they appeared individually, by those now incomparably more lenient, tolerant and friendly

8. Some believed, without much appearance, that to be able to undertake to be on public display play, but only in the company of an honest acquaintance ten, to go to the so-praised, white Na= than to see it in the picture. |

9. Such a five-stage approach led, in addition to 1 said, at the same time also to the effect that in the following numerous acquaintances between Christians and which was opened to the second sex of Jewish families which, at that time of course, was not a little more extremely flattered by the ruling party to be awarded, to be treated with courteous care activity, the access agreement thereby strengthened | tnitpfte, and thereby gave rise to further connections and therefore on that engine of becoming

N

cool believes, | to seek them in the lower seas, as if he no longer paid attention to it would have, rather this Kuniänng, ee us

– 101 Pie N „ a

~

the Jews had no less share, since the brother or the acquaintance a lot and many things on this way!

| provided, some access was opened to him, the five 8 i could not have been reached. 1 oe,

| 10. Now was that, as said, merely a, as= probably a powerful preparatory tool, only an indirect

Urfache for the extended doings and activities of the Israel= 5

liten, the following incidental circumstance intervened in the business seized by the Jews, which at the same time their middle class is concerned, the deeper, 5 and violent |
u tiger ein. | Ä

“e ’

§. XIX. |
Zapten lotteries.

1. Especially in the same epoch, when the menföli |
che Geist began to explore the inescapable field of Wif= fens fome seeds of more mature insights, of solid= knowledge than many German Men never withering wreaths, of the immortelles, which he planted, were twisted, just in the

| the same era threatened the food situation of the middle, especially the lower 1 a gear

,

*

destruction; as if there should be no blessing, no salvation in the world for the people ever stand alone.

2. It was created, as is known, under the Maz men numbers=Lotto the so infamous Lotto di Ge-nua. Never is there a more cursed, » Vets more vulgar invention has been devised: quite intentionally= ly, albeit in a hidden, deceptive way, especially the ignorant lower class of people to completely extract insignificant assets; but

and at the same time increasing the number of poor people, and thereby simultaneously the state burdens through increase construction and expansion of the poorhouses and hospitals
ö to increase, through widespread, from the begging=
the resulting vices were to populate the prisons 5 core, and penal courts and places to the shame of having to put humanity on display in greater numbers.

3. Jews and numbers = Lotteries now shared into the small property of the small class of people; but so,
| 7 that more than 55 of them in the hood of the e
cri. ö

4. Because the old lotteries were a wobliveidigy arranged by the honorable leaders so that only the wittlere Kae, 'only the Nu. of the Sofipicigen Ä

pegen «Darah: Fe take that what HE grasps gen; will; the hope of winning only after many months could be satisfied or deceived, with

bin. on the present or next eyes=
view to escape from embarrassment by profit=:
e had to make great sacrifices. 8

* 5. But then he discovered a game which the beggar can take a share of half a grošchen,

and for what he dared at noon,
next afternoon his destiny will be fulfilled
and as if the delirium of the seduced could not be resolved, such | German trading towns, which are located on the border of one or of the other state, in the world and often

Lotto - "Theater built for each week to play the game= | N and in uninterrupted ande au batten.

6; In addition, that by a small one and fet the way was open to everyone, a never seen external garment to the sensual human being immediately become a stimulant. A beautifully decorated Theg= |

ter was put up on the public market; and such as tightrope walkers and jugglers are accompanied by drums and Whistles attract spectators, so here was wate

Drums and trumpets = sound the sweet hope animated for profit; an artificially decorated electricity Machine had to blind the eyes just as much as the Lotto boy, adorned in silk, silver and gold, which still has the numbers he has extracted in it= their cases to the great pile as a gift of the were made. If all this were not true= thing, who would believe that something like that would fit ten states take place ton.

7. No wonder, then, if we of the j Jynx that magic drum of the Greeks ; seized, fe fo easily set in motion, from all sides
fo seductive gambling addiction of everyone, men, women, servants and even children.

8. Could the daily use be carried out with little happened, but the public pawnshops only took Things of a certain value; so those those who were unable to play at the bar,

the common, trivial things, of which low=

Whatever their content, only to the Jews, for whom the age or Vingft had become 1.

- 105 - |

" 9. Were the cupboards already completely emptied, bride « and wedding = dresses long ago scattered the one inherited from the parents = and bed: train
long since deteriorated due to the increasing amount of interest and by the impossibility of using the pledged property for a tenth of its value has long been lost;

such women addicted to gambling, after they had

which, by virtue of its now more than ever respected a |
fic spirit, their dreams interpreted infallibly, =

Number of communicants carefully researched, the he Ä
songs were carefully searched for, and from coffee cups, |

Wherever he is, and heaven knows what else,

had correctly prophesied what was really coming, fo –

they grabbed the pots, every household utensil and |

Kitchenware, not to feed the hungry “now quite to buy bread for neglected children, but rather to Luck – to try in that game. Even one= cher soup pot had to be refilled on Saturday

be newly created ' to give the man office
| To be able to prepare a meager meal on Sunday. aa,
10. In addition, as one is convinced | from the overflow, from which nothing can lead:
Loins Bubringlichteit of the Jews, the same the house:

(

– 10

firen with the old lotto tickets for early sale
| had granted them now Lotto; Comptoirs for each:
to build a game may or may not be granted:
was defended, thereby banning its own risk and to transfer them to so-called betting offices
: knew how to walk, and now among themselves the Haab

and property of the up to the middle class ring class completely devoured. From which era in itself the so immensely expanded aia
| Status of the ene dated. |

11. What age, corrupting influence feven this alone had an impact on the morality of the people has, others may calculate. : Jews and Numbers=

| Lotteries are, in this respect, primarily those

the number of poorhouses and hospitals increased,
and they populate, these, the numbers: lotteries, which the State burdens on the one hand are far more burdened

have, as they on the other side, through dirty profit, have been facilitated; both which Children of many thousands of families were deprived of education, and the world countless good-for-nothings and villains
who are sometimes to blame for it,
that many who, under forgfamer paternal guidance

f

— - 107 —

the noblest best human being, the most useful possible —

Burger could have become “fine through oneself”:
fes life under the hands of the n has *

must. | u

fo

= .

g. XX. —

The one that has emerged since the American War |

dene, unprecedented luxury in 8 trading cities

Bar belongs to those intervening nua. =

“Almost all wars of modern times were direct or ma |
8 trade wars have been; at least if its extension, its continuation and extension |
everywhere take the strongest motives from trade—
had to; if furthermore the most respected trading towns Germany, according to the then Constitution our fatherland, were precisely those who were free, independent cities in all wars except the
In recent times, people have merely been spectators of the bloodiest feuds.

and their neutrality for the continuation of their trade could be conditioned and maintained; If, furthermore, all parts of the immense world trade

— 108 5

be in a certain connection, since the Shops on so many, far in all directions beyond, "everywhere intersecting each other, Road - ways are operated; for already had to because of those cities where the commercial traffic of men remained, Con junctionen, ie from the times circumstances dependent ' numerous and advantageous Trade connections are established; even more so, if the war destroys the largest trading state among all men, who was now forced to take those cities for to use fine intermediary trade everywhere.

2. If one takes the human being as he is, and not as it should be; so one may no surprise if wars that have such consequences lasting conjunctions brought about, German trading cities a most pleasant, welcome matter; and just as little if these their peculiar view of wars, combined with the productive use of the same, little by little in their maxims, in their principles, in their thinking and trading methods, even in the statutes gone. i

3. Already over seven years of war had

Cities that have been since the discovery of America, and

"

\

cz. 1 rn

by the ancestors of all trades in those colorful countries of Europe an immensely large impact Circle for trade, some profit brought in; meanwhile, since Frederick had no school= denlašt wanted, and indeed under calculation of profit made at the expense of others, but only according to a raifon of state, mediate and Coin failed without causing a ban, so went | in 1763 by the tremendous Dutch outgoing money = Banquerott much of it lost. N = :

4. Lead to secure and profitable profits

But the persistent American War of Freedom and:

for the sake of England with the attacked

trading states became involved in feuds, and ends os

lich fogar by the Nordic Navigation Act with all sea= = warring trade = states Euro pens. in the highest tension, and at the same time in the most miserable situation in the world because at that time . are far from controlling the seas alone

| could, and therefore, in order to avoid a similar fate= |

where possible; to prevent, in consequence was very concerned that Toulon, Brest, Am= kerdam, Xbutis, Brafalgar,, Copenhagen the Ber.

m

– 1106 –

devastation of their fleets, what is more Sweden's former naval power in feud with Ruß= land shattered to go on the seas alone to become dominant.

Ye, far may “infinitely greater became the Trade profit, which the unfortunate revolutionary War lent them, even at its inception, and in proportion as that monster spread the same expanded more and more, then: the French dynasty, as well as a state in southern Europe, N immediately subjugated the same prohibited all trade relations with England, which finally gave rise to the notorious trade ban re of the entire European continent | went. Because already in 1801, as everyone knows, remember, Tuscany, Naples, Portugal and Holland

| country rich of trade = traffic with England completely and completely abandoned, to which in 1803 Spain and

Austria (the latter with regard to Trieste and Ve= |

nedig), as finally in 1806 Prussia, Dä=

Denmark, Sweden and Russia were asked to

N | without mentioning the Hanfeeftadte, which are completely of the Ep nn to follow BER, :

*

E

“ 6.5.80 but long the then rulers

France, as well as the one who followed in her footsteps

rulers, not to raise their iron sceptre over North= |

| Germany could extend; was and remained ‘for the German trading cities that will remain forever memorable

Ending epoch: the defeat places of the gef am me

world trade at that time, the letter

. Then = England's trade entirely in foreign trade

| have to have! – – |

“¢

7. From this ARE 1 never. to 8

de shops, and an equally numerous and at the same time

easy and. considerable profit emerge. Rich=

thumers would have accumulated wealth, what

Thrus, Carthage, Venice and Genoa individually

fen, "would have a single German trading city in itself |
| can be united when a glimmer of the Fru =
gality of the Batavians the trade profit for the Bue
| would have taught us to save in the future; ; rather, the so easy, |
The abundance of goods flowing in from all directions led to the inclined to the effort. National - Character to a never-before-seen luxury. -

i '

8. »Who likes to put his finger in his spring =
= from which incalculable poison gushed forth.

1
" - 2
41 4 -*

I therefore only touch on that which relates to which she has, namely Kbeidertracht.

9. At that time, when the Jews in German Han = |
belsftdetten found a recording, can one knew no |
other than wool and linen garments.

Only the first, most distinguished class appeared at the festivities teten in fetdenen and famtnn witnesses. ne ie '

B 2

| 10. Both men and women FR went into
| woolen ride dressed along, which the women the rich with gold = or silver = counter at hem trimmed, and the upper part with golden or me clasps, chains rc. decorated e

| 11. The wedding dress was also worn at the party = | and holidays for the rest of your life.
Modification of the cut or the so-called Facon was not so easy to imagine; moreover, he was too rough,
so solid and German, both in terms of the material,
than the manufacture made that he really many

5 decades could endure "to that which he was with us =

equal to several households and with an unequal:
small number of visits, banquets and Feasts rarely from the ä herporge= bet Nil) a 5 ey 12. 38

u 13 —

12. Subsequently, however, countless new Types of materials were created that had never been seen before even less known; especially started, which previously had little impact in Germany

knew cotton in endless branches partly

1 partly provided with other materials, to be processed

This is how Cattune, Sige, Batiste, Cam-

= Piquée's, Dimitis, which fih in the following Gingham, Nanquin, Satinets, Gachemir, Cali=
koes, Nanfooks, Madras, Mull, Tulle, Petinets,

Haircords, Seedings, and how the flock of them

ben may continue to be called, connect. ne

| 13. For this purpose, they had also begun to Wool no longer just for cloth, flannel, chalons,
Serge to process; but it also arose here
a very large number of new types of cloth: Bergen op. -
| Zoom, Summer - Sheets ; Gafensic, Calmuk, Tamis, Merino' 8, coatings, woolen shawls, or wraps
cloths of unpredictable uten , ie as in newer Bei |
ten, Bombapin rc. |

* 4

14. And if formerly the west and the rock were of ice;
one and the same cloth, according to common costume,
had to be; now there were wide - witness in

- . = 8 . " |

N

f

inexpressible quantity, both in terms of material atten, as well as the shades or the fonam= ten designs emerged. =

| 15. All things which are the daily increasing Luxury, the growing fashion = addiction and the never-ending vanity the desired advantage gave impetus, even more an unpredictable advance boost, as England had begun to hands of the working class through the sophisticated to deprive the most important machinery of their livelihood in order to the number of beggars, not the uninhabited in England:
fhamed guild: beggars, but those who died in silence= starving, the number of the luxuriating rich to make it equal; because in the same proportion that England's food-killing mafia |
to an ever higher degree of perfection |
| brought, it was able to foweft its machinery=
Goods that still bear the name Manufac-tur Goods (hand- work, handicraft) at kept, at ever lower prices on foreign Markets to bring the disaster there with all associated consequences here too, but far unfec-liger here to reproduce. |

16. As nus, at 8 advance of the Fashion addiction and vanity, in modern times the luxuriance= had reached the highest possible level, even therefore no reflection, no consideration, felbft after proven times, could come; since exa-
ft the dandy, like every dandy, seemed to be just a one= | umpteentimes in one and the same clothing in one and the same society. In general | the same dress never for longer than fourteen days, rarely worn for a month, just like,
a decade earlier, it was with the then still common= bare buckles had been the case. The Vorel= tern still wore the same flaxen
or golden buckles! on their shoes and legs=
clothes that she bought as a young man=
The modern man, on the other hand, chooses every month
. almost every week, a new Fagon. "

17. But where else was the tremendous uncountable quantity far from being consumed:
of things "), where else did she end up than in

») It was a small thing when the snow=
the order for two dozen vests of different

* 116 n

the hands of the Jews who trade in clothing now completely appropriated "and through the turnover in the rural towns, villages and at the annual markets
. fid) was able to acquire a considerable fortune= ten), and thereby gained such powers,

7

dessins was given each time at once z. von which many a beautiful gentleman one or the other immediately threw it into the corner when he was getting dressed

believed that his English mirror said French German: she doesn't make herself beautiful. But it is more than unpleasant to look at such and similar to throw low things. But how should the View of the whole can be achieved differently than,

JB here, from small', excavated parts of the ,
luxuriance to conclude the whole arrogance can, in order to deal with the issue concerning the Jews only a few= a in a brighter light?

1 This already explains it to me: that on o many and some now respected wealthy Jews there= who are considered, and even more so, immigrants= te, young men (with a few old trousers, as Sign of their business, on the arm) in ragged= ö clothed and almost barefoot in the city= sometimes heaps went.

\

the ones that are further outreached 10.
emphatically used fonts, Bee

| | 18. It happened just like that on a= 5
other ways in which it is found out; if nam

Currently, entire ships are being shipped to German cities.
Loads of finished clothes come "so that the inn

rural craftsmen completely wither away, so one wants only wore it for a few days in England, and which were bought by Jews there, knocked out and found that they have a completely new appearance.

E

— .]. —

| That in the German trading cities always looser system of guilds and guilds, and

The one that has developed there in recent times tab.

These two participating announce Fr ee of the Jews are in the en=

claim that they are also those who are wimps.

ckelte and accepted trade. =Grunda

ee 118 BEN
context, and require, especially what 7
As regards the former, a more detailed presentation is required.

| 2. I hereby ignore all the harmful things that on the one hand, and everything beneficial on the other in so many writings about the guild spirit and the Guild = Prayers have been asked, and here

merely the following considerations about the causes, whereby the system of guilds in German trade cities partly by themselves "partly by some

The underlying causes are becoming increasingly looser " even for
. * Time had to be resolved.

3. An object which attracts attention |
| seems to be particularly valuable as soon as one has the marriage the immensely great privileges of the guilds, their significant influence in the legislative power in the free cities under his eyes; so that it is the An= feeling wins: that their traditional justice fo had to be firmly established so that they almost reached the N) ög= 5 could be undermined. 7

4. We start from the sentence: Only for all and every craft=shop, which the first and hence the most ancient needs of human life

*

to satisfy, only for this none one N or guilds were established. :

5. Even many of the older ones have a + fehesh |
(Trade had; as e.g. the once, before the established= | led use) of cotton , fo fehr Bedeutung:
the stocking factories in wool, connected with the Preparation of the woollen yarn, certainly from no other primal reasons than: because women are the forefathers

even the wool was completely prepared, and

6. Just like that: Beer breweries have a Gils de, a so-called justice, | not but Brands wine = distilleries. Is this drink the earlier times were completely unknown, or even ten been opened? But it cannot be rightly | claim that there is far more brandy= "distillery= liquors than breweries, and that currently almost more brandy than beer in one * – mirt is? = |

7. What about the crafts and their guilds

What has just been said also applies to the committees or guilds. For a closer look at this matter
The following should be noted: So that no one Purchasing these and other materials, these and those products:

' bacte was disadvantaged, the ancestors had a Guild under the name Kramer – Amt 'errichtet, in which all those were and are included had to, who led measure and weight, and feach into some branches as: cloth merchant, silk merchant= lers, spice merchants, fat dealers, etc.

8. All new inventions, however, such as previously unknown, newly introduced products, fie mō=

now to more practical convenience of the Life, or even just for more refined enjoyment, for greater expense, belong to luxury, for these was neither to any guild nor to any association been thought of; nowhere was a statute present, which in similar work or similar Goods to this or that guild, to this or that Guild, or that for a newly invented Sa= che, for a newly introduced product a new guild

* body must be established.

9. Such circumstances had to follow;

= the system of the guild – being and the guilds of a threaten a coup.

10. I want to talk about that – in little ter * some examples ER Ä

11. Carriages, chaises, chair carriages etc. e.g. |
However, Wagener (Rademacher) could acquire | nen; but since their emergence was new, they believed everyone has a full right to use them in a foreign country=

to buy and import because no document |
7 was present that wagoners alone had the right to make them and sell them. | |

12. Furthermore: who had in North = Deutfhfand about six decades ago the walls were covered with paper clothed? Among the lesser ones they stood naked, only whitewashed, since 3 among the rich and noble
They were panelled, or covered with gold = leather, damask
c. clothed; France introduced the paper = = fashion us | to, and wallpaper factories, fuch as Rapeten 'Bane =
became a free trade. |

13. The same applies to the one in Germany: | previously unknown cotton, through whose fame=
becoming Cattun = factories, cotton spinning mills, Stocking weaving to free trades in newer times have become; just as it is also the case with the preparation of tion of sugar, from the previously unknown Tas' bak applies, both to the Wa and ER
sale of goods. |

*

14. It also applies to hair towels=, pofen= and Paper factories, soap factories, leather trade,
even when it comes to tanning.

9 N 15. The ancestors found at the lower

People = gap only wooden benches and chairs, which Befem and tubular chairs followed later; the middle Coffee fannte fine other, alé covered with jufts upholstery; the rich covered them with covers,
| which consisted of materials, in which figures in Wool, whose place was subsequently were replaced by silk ones, which later replaced the hair cloth covers had to give way almost entirely;
and haircloth weaving, trade in haircloth, fo
as with horsehair, were no less free
business. | |

16. Regarding soap and its boiling point:
What can be looked at more than pure water?
fche; and what better characterizes the orderly

= benign man, as in this especially to be orderly show? What much smaller need of the side=

But this took place in earlier times than those through the immensely large supply of wood, still easy to get to= supporting bueke (lye, wood ash) as the end=

a

u 13 be ;

beating and careful bleaching the enen bag |

had to prepare silver white.

17. But as for the preparation of the len, ben Laden – Trade with the same, fo wie

As far as paper trading is concerned, it could be in fit:
in the old days with the incomparably few shops, given the much greater rarity of writing, |

among the very large number of those who do not write

could N could it this and that family father enough of the goose slaughtered in the household fen to take the coils that need to be in hot ash

cash, which for the subsequent fachftsmann had to be much too petty, who had

this is far better prepared by the dedicated a hands of a likewise free trade.

28. And since in terms of paper Holland only in recent times had the invention made, for to prepare something from rags; ; this was also the case was not subjected to any guild, nor the store – selling the paper under "a guild. | 8

19. But what concerns the boot trade and the tanning | As for the reason, this could be very striking to some of, since footwear is one of the oldest living

needs, but you have to be very careful | differing customs of earlier times from those of later here under eyes of | 5;

| 20. To walk in boots, the only presence of Necessary fashion was formerly against all morality hold; for this purpose, the only worn shoes, the

Now in the lower class, moreover, only in leather coverings of their wooden soles, through receive a completely different care permanently, which thus a much lower consumption of leather required; instead of that costume already being in itself, even more by the decoration of the upper

Parts, even more so by the corrosive, caustic

means of achieving a mirror-like exterior men, for that many a stumper in a single month not needs more than a pair of new boots, a much greater effort than . with and here E leads. |

2. In addition to this, there is the far more considerable Consumption of the same in later times, namely in View of the horse and carriage harness and the much larger number of kept riding horses, such as in view of the not merely standing, to the detriment of the

| – 125 – civil society, for enormously expanded armies; the horde of gradually emerging dance halls, casinos, daily balls at the Winter = time to say nothing of, where, in the wildest dance, | a single evening every fine couple and

Shoe completely tangled, | | |

. No wonder if the difference of the Bu
8 of that material in earlier and later |
Times are so unpredictable *), hence in the larger Cities the shoemaker's office formerly had its entire
Need for the one set up by the same ancient man= | found in the Gerberhofe * and therefore no

* formed.

) That for about three decades now
gen, Pferde= Haute fehrwertig to help men that no shoemaker had previously processed, if not the only reason that the leather is not (don has risen to a much greater price, but the millions of imported Buenos aides = Haute ha:
have so far reduced the excessive price
| held, but also to the fatherland, which fhis

Livestock farming because of such a great abundance of leather, significant sums of money were stolen, -

\

= 1°

23. As for the trade fine status ten were present, to which guild these and that use should belong to, or which guild for a completely new invention had to be created in order to
To maintain the unity of the guild system; just as little | goods for the shop - sale (Kramer- Amt), for this body or for this guild strict regulations= |
ten available, although in the category: M aaß
and weight of each had to belong to which new.
Products, be it of nature or of art,
to this or that or even to a new one Seren folle.

24. Coffee, tea, sugar, tobacco, entirely previously unknown life needs were newly introduced. At the spice merchants they were had not been found until then. Everyone believed to have a right to an undisturbed shop= buy to create a new food source to be able to bend.

| 25. The same applies to the cloth and silk dealers. It was created earlier. completely unknown cotton, silk-cotton fabrics innumerable fpecies. Neither the former nor the latter could

" e

Baden = Sale exclusively of it, and they therefore went very easily out of the free nabe branches over. the

26. Such an incalculable series Pe Se advertising, free traffic and turnover, which we far from being fully cited, of course, cast a hateful light on everything that where guilds and guilds are only 8 in the West
stood. | ;

27. But this happened even more through the too large, formerly the guilds and associations 0

to considerable privileges granted in Anfe=
The lack of support for the artisans to increase estates, often threatened the state with danger,

Privileges that generally belong to the spirit of later times
instead of being appropriate, in the loudest opposition to it fay. The most unscrupulous abuse the many years of apprenticeship, which for some hardest years of service of the lowest, to fine craft or business that does not belong to the work | were working, not to mention, belonged primarily to those exaggerated privileges: that they are given a W

executive power in the hands of the Ma:
ger and judge in their own case.

– ee –

18 28. It was possible in Ipater times, than completely different attitudes, opinions, views=

reigned in the bosom of men, not missing

that human feeling reaches its highest was outraged when an honest, hard-working a man who knows his trade properly and fully: _
come learned, fine wife and fine children honest tried to feed with it, even if the hand=
, factory equipment from the so-called hunting
ftern be taken that one has a bourgeois Murder was allowed to be committed against him, just because of domestic= ftände, not at all a lack of skill on his part,

the strict and sometimes strange guild laws gen, unfortunately prevented, * a nes out to become:

. 29. and what of the guilds here 1 is also valid for the guilds. Only one and

The same loud voice was against it when, for example, a twine or linen ribbon=Jude also silk ribbon had foisted, which very often and almost in= mer happened, and went peddling it in the city;

and then he suddenly on a public road
n, and given to him by the merchant = office fine.
e

– 19 –

1 Sorath an n. Silk Ribbon taken away
The cry of pity of such an unfortunate creature.
chen, who also has to face punishment from his father at home expected that he was not smart), not cautious=

full, not attentive enough, aroused more than pity. His tears were replaced by penis
The gifts are often completely dried.

30. Also that, with ever greater Enneite |
"ung of trade, the commercial sector from the le= gilative power i more and more excluded was, could not at all contribute to the preservation of the reputation of
For, instead of in all= |
core pages in the free cities the representatives | | of the people only from the trade= status

N, the former main = "Food | 2
| Zweig, ia in even older times the "unified Er

4

5 Such Aucdele. fee nice. (ie ba gehen Der and . Man is by nature indifferent. What one can learn from 5 which makes man, which alone becomes and is.
Bin and some things would not be for the Israelites can be blamed if. that fons N negotiable relationship between them and the non.
din from before not found Spare,

a .
" " Pi
° 9 , ' ~ 5 - 5 * - . 7
.

N

2 4 * 74

ae
- 130 H-

advertising medium through which they gain reputation, dignity and have achieved independence as cloth makers, cafeteria workers, famacher (velvet and silk weavers), Schiff= farmer, beer brewer, wool + spinning mill, etc. not only for locals, but for very large ones:

current needs the emerging state from a Level to level raised 3 fo they are now in the trading cities almost exclusively from the trade elected, although the elders of the Offices are given the right to attend the meetings of the |

elected commercial representatives to see that their voice is for the protection ,growth of trades and arts under the ma i

31. Also that in kai favors bie Merchants no committee, as in the oldest trading states, formed, as sure proof, wi:
by only the free cities originally raised up and established their prosperity
"ben) also had to undermine the hand=
"works= guilds serve. The candle =casters, for example, bil= |
aden an almost monopolistic guild, which The merchant went by foreign

– 131 –

richter fitenweife offered for sale, because ü w=
There were no statutes, which was only * trade should be started.

aa Much more och contributed to the paralysis of the f | Guild system: that many and many trades and Handling partly completely absorbed; partly | finally got so down that they | Needs of the buyer not only in terms of goods and prices, but even in terms of the demand and quantity can no longer be met,

and therefore could not make a full claim that only domestic manufacture for sale must be brought, since they have so much and many

'von dem were not able to provide what was the stranger was now introduced, whereby to.

finally a complete whistling of the same 095 u

Hen must, BE ee se

33. The various causes involved here |
the decline of many industries to be enumerated here, |
I was pushed far beyond the limits set for me
But each one will have his own
be luminous: that in proportion, as the Han= | “bel more and more flourished, as the ne bl | |

;

*

>

-

State began to persuade me more and more that he, the trade, represents the place of all trades

| finne, and just as he through his considerable efforts brought about ever greater luxury “which | {don't forget the increase in food prices, enormous Hauëmiethe, fvery noticeable elevation of the hand= wages, that under such circumstances the fimperative for this reason – the trades more and more more paralyzed, less and less respected, soon to the pushed aside, and finally completely displaced

. had to.

34. This leads us to one of the most important thre

things which not only almost dissolved the guilds, |

But it has almost completely destroyed all industries,

The one in recent times in German trade=
eee developed, according to assumed, even in the State maxims passed on to the group:

Trade must be carried out without the slightest Consideration for the trade completely

m.
free and uninhibited feyn.

38. Sf each one object in countless inscriptions:

tem for =) again discussed, EM the

– 133 –

complete or with wise caution to be restricted han= |

dels = freedom! Can be found among the large number

those who have made this object of their investigation have honored several venerable men, which with care, with consideration and reflection
proceeded here', and with truth, what almost through= .
common case ift, found lying in the middle have; on the other hand, in German trading posts ten men who were almost devoted to trade
the word spoken, and against the trades loudly and = occurred subsequently,

36. Of course, those men who belong to the category 7
“of those who are great in small things and

Great ones are small, to whom the far-reaching, the above

Whole over-view was definitely missing to see all and every part of any object in the narrowest,

in order to be able to present them in a concise context, and 5

. have not presented any evidence anywhere.

37. But requires some art, some a science, not to individual parts stick, these only apart from the rest of the context

ge under eyes – to have only that to go through what only has direct connection with the same.

*

hangs in order to be able to ask a lot of questions about it;
instead of all and every part of a whole exactly into one other to grab, so that a splitting, bins
a complete system in which the main parts | serve as support points for each other, and the ordered parts have nothing to do with those in regulated strength give in, so that the whole remained unshakable he; requires; say, some art), in gend a science a comprehensive view; if it is the theory of the state, already its infinite | chen, even more of their heterogeneous, and so easily with because of the warring parties. That light-hearted
Some judgments can therefore be made by the calm, scrutinizing
Man who, as much as in his powers, 55 parts N

}

he The person who has a spindle, a ratchet or If you know how to make a snail excellent, the fimperatively, he has earned the glorious name of a Mecha

5 nikers? Can the most perfect portrait: Mas ler, who is no more than this, for a tunfteeis
the draftsman, 2 He would tremble himself if he portrayed Laocoon, who was tormented by countless entire position, in order not to contradict
. the en plans to be missing. and

J m

. | ' u \ : |

to combine it, mr different than mashere
* gn e N – 14
238. Because in the mistletoe it is not well, to say afterwards “I was wrong; I I take my judgment to the next level. Here it depends on the Wealth and woe of many Zanfenpe: “many – millions
It is also not enough to have all parts really in Contexts – to think of oneself, simply calculated.
for the present moment, merely in relation on one's own state, rather than in relation to what.
can be, and in wines of * deri
. States, FFF 5 39. May: hence the bloody words of nate uta should be considered: Be:

ron , : he 4.
8 f SS 5 1 5 a, bs .- 3 . 8

ae pee To:

not on individual sonatas, but on the compositions
a “+ ition. fheavy operas have the Haydn 1 and Mozart their genius, which is almost above humanity,
u | proved. And, verily, if one also. Dye.
| . Thagorean theorem on ninety-nine flirtatious |
Types a: Could, iD if he and just ee |
Acchitett may be called, which in 133 a Zune!
ee ER ee eee 9

here the love, the respect, even the kind of reverence, which the German nation formerly for its very beloved trading cities? Where else but:
that they are the places where their busy lives are located:
drive, their thoughtful artistic diligence, that they

such as the buyers and distributors of their various considered a versatile trade, which as a result: praised, honored and respected, since from their trade sources you, the German nation, food, cheerfulness and life= aft, through the National = Strength and Nation-

nal=wealth increased immensely, and the father= land strength and power from within and without lichen'; and the idea therefore also more than

'fee once had to be: the fatherland's soil

to exchange thousands with distant foreign countries,
to be there, oh shame! as hirelings, as slaves to sell yourself! But where does this increase opposite of all that, where else,

4

than: that Germany currently only considers them for Fac= 7
. tor en des nad) monopoly-fired England. anfe,

that they have become especially the unfortunate paths,

on which England fine factory= and manufacturing

Bears are pouring into Germany in huge numbers men; sees them as such all the more displeased, the

*

become (and the more just the more 1 5 country is doing everything in its power to achieve the last and at the same time the main food branch of the beds, |

the linen = - trade, completely paralyze to fine ips

rural manufactures with all their strength alone

tend to do so, the more it only provides security for itself |

| on the seas) , only in German clothed in fabrics, and at the same time loud

Requests to meet, meetings to hold ten, to agree on means: such as the complete un= decline of German manufacturing and factory industry

fens can be prevented; the more often state knowledge

| scientific writings present the sentence “

: len: “Germany’s general and special financial Administration must strive to ensure that through the highest possible production (be it primary production or art production) the capital assets of the state. – not only preserved, but also increased (1) * \

oa

Ne AE ge 5 cos the

po a eee ' 4

* In which enormous Gonteaft would please test Statement appear when one now more than ever.
desirable statistical overview of the study

|

Germany's balance sheet in trade would be made greater now and then the noble, glorious pursuit

Se

= werde; the louder the Ss is movirt: "that an N and the same industrial system all German states connect and hold together;" the more unberes, cenbarer the quantity of imported goods is, so that, if here and there the German spirit, which solemnly, as said, alliances were made in secret, not he= awake, not more and more awake, and the _ Bheften: would call for support, also the
the entire German industry finally completely destroyed destroyed, then countless families completely
- would be.

40. To the gel * world likes it * bap, .
| England fine. State administration in the eyes of a
Everyone is publicly daped. But it can easily
It should be noted that exports are
: 60 million in just one year,
. pounds sterling or 300 million thalers banknotes, -
which amounted to almost 400 million thalers Reichsgeld are equal. But whoever money and money= | Value knows who only does some financial calculations to make is able, will know what meaning sum of that. The purchase knows even more closely= man in the mass of the . walker in in a

88

-

*

Land, if he discount to the barometer |

5 takes, which is between England and the German Hans x,
3 delsfsts a difference of more than 600 percent cent, since it stands there at "/ percent= and driven here between 9 and 10 is; even more so if the same is based on the mercantile

Thermometer at the same time, because in England

Gold and silver are piled up among the rich, (while, due to the extremes in all trade= states, an equal number of impoverished people from starvation

tormented) that the capital is not for a – 3 Procent to accommodate, instead of in German= country, because of the glaring lack of money, the Wu= cher with 12, 15 to 20 percent a free game

to drive, and from level to level down people into the deepest misery)

3

41. Sa. it 85 hr that yellow the ing | |

u lever of all wars; then it is not true: that. nam 5

any kind of balance of European states can ever be imagined. Bring to that polis tic scale everything that one: just always stand on it», a gen will: GConftitution , Serlen= Sahl or Bevölle .

| . . unf, rounding off the same, "ge;

a ur un 140 –

Natural and artificial fortifications, warlike spirit and courage, military talents and strength, one count the unfortunate, pernicious nation among them nal = hatred against the enemy; as in rightly burning= patriotism and deep affection for the Princes ɹc. The nation which is richer than all= taken together, also predominates on that eternally swaying scales. Such a na= tion can with such excess weight at any time and under all circumstances by providing information

lend with golden keys every country, every city

open and close, which they close, open, and .
von n wants to make himself dependent. " 3

42. Where would be more serious to consider gen, in the whole history of the world even one only given example, | which, it also still so late, not somehow copied and imitated

e

E would be? –

13. Now have those gentlemen who have the sentence on= posed: "Trade is our sole business," the have made suggestions to the Fin on this matter, through which further stunts the trade, E

,

– 141 = T0 u

must be paralyzed and destroyed, Have you ever thought of such a critical, ominous time? |

44. We too would say: "Trade is the sole trade," willingly and happily a rout men, if he excels above all and especially in it hen would: the artistic diligence of the fatherland other nations in order to ensure the foreseeable money-consuming series of foreign "partly once accustomed, sometimes not easy to get rid of the natural products (coffee, tea, sugar, tobacco,

Wine, rum, conjac, arrack, oil, almonds,
Figs, lemons with the other sweet fruits, figs

be=, spice= and apothecary= goods, dye= and | Furniture= = types of wood &c.) only a worthy rs fet to win. If, just to give a single Article to highlight 20 million pounds of coffee
probably suffice to consume annually in Germany be miret? And for this, the Mafchiee should England's countless sufferings, sorrows, courage and misery at the ruined factories= ken of the inland; their hot bitter, melancholy tears not in vain on the earth fall, and a budding seed of a future ask"
moisten the fruit |

/

u 142 ra =

45. But that larger states and those which to a small, commercially advantageous | located area limited to deviating from their maxims
N ; does this need to be mentioned?

4856. Those can and must, according to the high, sublime models of a Frederick, the most important thing: the three pillars of a state, Acker= construction, industry and trade, which by invisible band latch on the feftefte fi & serve each other for support, with completely equal To maintain care. Because where agriculture almost alone is valid and predominant, Poland serves
| for an instructive example; or where his so important
Culture more through war devastation, more through Lack of proper supervision, such as land = economy
be operated more carefully for the good of the whole must, as through rough, adverse weather ge= inhibited and endangered, our rich Fatherland made an embarrassing mistake); where 3

a8) How must the thoughtful, stubborn one
Be brave if you eat whole potatoes planted fields, which are overgrown with weeds

*

—

* 3 i ; ' . : IN

143 — „ = 3 a
only the ganbis the cultivated attention feyte full; dau about Genoa and Venice! give the appropriate answer to future; where the expansion of trade to

| by machines produced works of the

| Levers of the state should be, which the Acberban everywhere stand in the way, and the 'hands — earnings rob the last bite, there is unleashed
* present and future history.

Furthermore: that a state may never believe:

all A every manufacture~~en~~ and factory goods achieve “

to want is an equally obvious, completely trans. |
sweetly mentioned basic question.

5 48. If the loud. Advocates of the vong

| Free, unrestricted Han~~en~~
dels therefore ask: Should German trading towns~~en~~ |
,te. build glassworks on their markets 2. fo ite ee
“Such a mean parody is more than ridiculous.

49. Biel and some things can and that HE = tan Rachel did not do, 7 but We *

* A i +, a : 3

wn ee 28

ue guard find, who do not pass on the sowing, | ne
ung: + ferbgigflteiy bey getinger Mühe days could, mes anf thousands to see,

and can do a lot with definite advantage |
In this respect, not only that much as possible, which leads to paralysis of the Gee advertising, but also those possible
Means are used which, I do not want to say,
Legal raising of the same, but at least 1
| completely ". can fend off.

50. This refers to the words omitted from A ar | per that, . Basic principle in the state

. which is infested with countless weeds: weeds, haddik, ALTl.eefpen, Widen, wild Camomit, EN x. fat |
currently suffocating. |
Can and may the farmer (a frog that,
as a contribution to the modern teaching of human rights
ten, for which the modus in rebus may apply not recognize) with his field, with this his property to do what he wants? Is this responsible for human rights; these would be authentic

then found again, if it ever the entire candid people could think of saying: we want 5 This year we will leave our fields completely uncultivated.

| The application of the drug is as follows:

thumbs, Hirar merely depends on Ru Foo's will.

7

State Maritimes of German trading cities, namely too visible and conspicuous. Not as if we had the bitter, unjust, of others |
already overused words of a certain scripture:

fellows there under eyes, who to say fure bold: the constitution of a German trade department is calculated only for them, their administrators are the and the merchants, no – Germans. They find 5 no other obligations known than the small household demands. What the rest of the fatherland= de encountered, is so indifferent to them, so strange, as it would happen at the extreme end of Asia; especially it Here we find a word that describes one of the most difficult parts of the Suotouifenfghaft, the financial = Weer is concerned. .

He
51. To him who is above state – detonomy only a little thought, it must be most striking fein, “as it is at present, just at a time, if a lively, warm, sincere zeal instead finds the mutual welfare of the prince and the
to establish a folk festival, if in this endeavor, in terms of finances, as State = Marime is assumed:

ww

10

That the whole with relative.
moderate carrying parts to the state needs.

If, in order to achieve such a righteous purpose founded on activity, white, deeply loved by the people beloved princes, honored everywhere by the fatherland follow the spirit of the times so far: that they exemptions brought about by age, under certain replacement I to be determined in order to access traditional rights, |

as much as possible, to be considerate, now lift, fi fully and with all rights entitled fez ben; as it is in such a time and in such laudable endeavor could be possible: from the fundamental principles of the ancestors, and by maintaining the French-invented those and introduced Magnetifir – machine, the

to grant tax exemption to the wealthy elite.

52. One should not ask: this judgment about in di= reete "from the first necessary necessities of life=
nis strictly imposed taxes are too strict.

33. For it is not necessary, one must refute it, that most needy person, even the beggar, for every bite fen bread just offer the same to the state,

a

— *r —

what the millionaire has to kill? On Ben fault and then actually the burden? Or is a penny in the

The hand of a poor man is not worth more than several hundred thalers in the hand of a rich man 2

On whom does the burden fall so much more, since the advantages parents built buildings with their own resources,

fit as a fideicommissum inalienable to the descendants= men, to their sons, where a great pre=

rath Horn always kept ready for sale to the needy | should be preserved? Or has the immortal Leonie 5 the Germans were probably wrong, even if

He, in unison with so many other statesmen,

the indirect tax system as a custom

—

corrupting agent certainly ä wifen wanted ?

—

64. And, verily, it is just as if =
Sari XI, the creator of an army indelta

(one composed of proportional supporting parts = : | army to be raised and maintained, namely

according to the ratio of the number of acres for the commons, |

and according to the value of the crown goods for the Office animals) as if that king had given every dandmanne, without such this smaller or greater ä

\

"far from property, to provide the same number of soldiers, fie to MERLE ER): and to be laid out Aan,

535 Can therefore a well thought-out, only pr right taxation otherwise than according to the seat, the assets, the powers of the citizen or of the subject from the richest to the poorest be calculated beyond this? or is there any
another, paved path, no matter how much the journey | then strive to bury it? May it be no matter how true it may be: that human wisdom never to a financial system that will benefit all and treat everyone, without exception, strictly fairly.
For example, someone owns capital assets of hundreds | taufend Thalers; another the same. That but lives alone. This must be accompanied by a numerous Family far more limited by the interest of the same life. Even then it still does not completely resemble if the former as well as the latter receive the rents consumed and put into circulation. Only then can The compensation will be somewhat achieved if saved, and after years one hundred fifty thousand

Thaler becomes rich, and to have become richer speaks=lich confesses, for which larger sum he

– 149

State, the relative Brae oy always do justice to YOU

56. But if in ni geösern PR a | excessive increase in the price of food
tel, which has kept pace with luxury, which |
Increase in rent, even more, apart from the fwe= |
ven coin = foot, the shameful abuse of the pre=
and purchasing, which stands in the way of trade, | how much they must: there, as if it were happening recklessly, wither away, as if completely ruined 5

where the first necessities of life
are subject to heavy taxes, which are nevertheless in the Gea |
the majority would never have to be burdened in order to

not to oppress the lower class, not to: poverty |

to produce from poverty; not the corruption of morals, with all the unfortunate consequences, still bigger.
To make a begging tablet; to, what is just as important,
the small, miserable remnant of possible fa= brikate not to completely remove the competition in order to fo rather not since merchants have begun in one or the other barely existing factory system
| To expand; or does it require the speaking, irrefutable: reason that such a thing belongs to the finite,

~

| Aiming at the ruin of the same? The merchant N would like to become a factory owner, but he will stop doing that,

To be a merchant, since both parties n and= a f ind.

57. The Merchant Navy ft was not only theoretical, but was now without the slightest consideration for the trades, oh=
re the least protection of the same is practically

E

benefits: that all and every import without exception,

whatever handling it might concern, freely

open; so that many who had an honor in it found it possible to say: that even the sulphur barrel:

the English in the crowd, gladly, except ships and vehicles, fine house in * would have rooms cups like.

58. It has already been noted above: what was once in Sinking is, falling by itself ever deeper and ti:

history provides countless examples
that even the overwhelming party will shake hands to their own downfall more and more, be= especially when circumstances of the time add to this led to intervening causes taking place.

59. The initial exercise of that Marime

| had to fall into a time (French Revolution

~

– 151 – 5

Wy :

tion; ; immigration of many thousands of emigrated

Concentration of Curopai trade, unexpected profit, unrequited effort t. _

when the urge of the business itself on the mobile werkern so incredibly large, so handsome and impressive=

It was clear that even if they were involved in lawsuits against the drove and the shop= selling foreign products there | and reappeared, but it was still in the turmoil

of the business with such easy, rich earnings
not with the seriousness, with the emphasis,
as they had their ancient, acquired rights have to defend, and) under other circumstances.

which would certainly have happened; so that at that time something

carelessly let go of his |
Perlust they lament in vain in gloomy pages; 3 wo= |

also some prerogatives; traditional customs ties and customs are to be expected. Because, if also the Tußen side with the weft of things through= has nothing to do with it; some covers still serve for the safekeeping of the same, and for the sensual

The view of very inclined people lies in the Geremonial, more formal than Manchee |

dldauben would like to:

~

rey

: 60, In such a situation of things, in Such a circumstance of the guild system was necessary

only one, given the circumstances of the time= cause, to make it complete, for a wife or in white trading cities

875 Of that strange man is from tau= fin tongues have already spoken so much that it must finally become disgusting, just a
To listen to a single word spoken about Him.

| 62. Is such a thing possible where would it be a political science subject in and outside | Europe, where the gaze is not directed towards Him with force=
is drawn where His intervention is not for present |
tig, not for centuries, even to the north of | Thousands of years * Purification serve and

63. The one who first says the words aöptab:
When Napoleon set foot there, he Traces in bronze and marble so deeply pressed that after thousands of years with all applied

effort will be ineradicable," makes more sense placed in it, as ae in it * ha= ben mag.

*

!

—

64. And, as I said, as long as this World and its yearbooks will last,

the utterances concerning praise and tay;

dels, guided by different interests, begins.

remain different about Ibn. e ee 65. It cannot fail that even those who for whose interests He did not work, but who

by no means means and execution, so the meaning.

{your words, and thereby not intended purpose

enough to see in the history of the late

times, under strong criticism of the present
Failures, not enough to increase His praise, terland for serious consideration. Whoever

German-French connection does not know sufficiently, does not know how France's Politics has always striven with all its might towards this hat): to undermine Germany's former constitution |

– eee

1 *) It is striking how many men have the various causes of the gradual decline of the German Constitution most famous in history =

\

66. As for the former, in hands ha= |
available means for execution, is our own responsibility

4

f

*

*

You

"

® = Ri

dig, he will establish the Rhine Confederation,

from which the laying down of the crown of the. Gäfarn equal: | fam had to emerge by itself, as the greatest Meifterftüd consider what ever a statesman

conceived, devised and carried out, so immensely os fo er pie encompasses the same.

—

7

67 'The German princes became sovereigns=

ats rights, not to increase their dignity,
| as kings, He wanted them to be vassals of Him
fei n; nor to separate them only from the Confederation

Germany at that time, but so that they may lead their people to His own purposes, to

of the fatherland, and almost All have not responded to the countless machinations
France: as the Constitution
Germany, as there is a club of such male ftreitbate forces destroy, we will put Germany in wants to split several independent states, 5

to make it possible to withstand the attacks of France

by exposing: that everyone has good health
i seek in and through himself to which forces he belongs= can never be achieved for no reason, and the after Aut fich should prepare their downfall, |

N.

f

*

[2

To direct one's own purposes all the more arbitrarily.

He thus broke the bond between the people and Government, so that it gains more internal strength lose. Because the love, the respect, the attachment=

ity that a previously fettled people for its government, and in time of danger * era

had to be weakened in the relationship

be, as now the doubly unbound res

governments of imperious measures to aebieteie
* 8 could. Fee | rei

oe

68. But what far 'oli 16925 wants, the : 8
1 was not only for the then Beit :

« . 8 , . Vol 7 ; .

* = : 8 ae oe - . * ' 2 — 2 toe WS

* ~ x

*) Not from the outside, but from the inside. | Because. the ancient Habeas Corpus Act of the Germans, which here as the epitome of all civil rights

then followed, was, as if by a magic band foisted

and wisely embraced, so that all nations stood there= then, and they followed in their ships and then worshiped.

Every subject of the various a:
revered his ruler, but he saw in the same

a vassal of the so exalted German Empire, and thus kept his righteousness against him completely

– 156 5

he was for the future, he was always HE calculated. ö

69. Should ever, could He, ; even better hope finer power, thinking, a connection of individual states by own or externally assisted Mo= tive against Him, the call for community matter to those vested with sovereignty by Him
deten, from the former federal states of all |
led out princes could, assuming that If something like this ever becomes possible, it cannot possibly be otherwise gefhigen " as: already in advance their independence= ity, even if not outright acknowledge, but followed:
important attention for Germany, combined to replace it with that of a general head

*

| oo \

future, led to an open, free, male approach to the same.
Language, consciously, can never be suppressed.
But with this feeling of independence
every subject is like a bronze wall, if ever the boss, who is not for himself, but only for the entire empire as feudal lord, as supreme was considered, honored and highly celebrated, the just thought could be the righteousness of the Bible and perfections,, the justice of the whole too close

– 157 – z

7 Yen, or problematically to 1 And thus
He could be convinced that Germany, without a Miracles of the first "greatest kind" never again to the former unity, never again to the former | National – dignity and strength. He had to be convinced that the alliance, the | –Soederative = System currently still so white,
no matter how cleverly thought out and formed, it nevertheless, in an impossible way, duration for the mer kne. Or the fates of all Foederative = systems, of all United States would have to. the historical truth speak against the truth that, in all of nature,
without the .. near. for talking stomach |

And this was in this former Constitution

tion is the first of all state problems, as it is a

9 inquiring, clever, intelligent nation comes, solved, in which relationship namely, in which. Balance the executive and legislative Power to bring, how to bring the heavy on the great state = scales to calculate that one does not pull the other down, that the Waa could always be maintained fairly and undisturbed.

– 158 —

Law of unity for every expression of force |
'would have to be madness and ferthum, the whole of nature had to abandon its eternal "unchangeable laws" give way, admit: that surrogates have the essence of thümlicher things could take. And with this

He had to be convinced at the same time: as that in the Consequences will affect the mood of the Germans, which powerful, indescribably great influence it has in the national spirit of this solemn nation, which in terms of individuals at a support point of the aftermath seeking their rights everywhere in the future –

must be missing, and in their future history in Regarding their 8 power ee The Ven we nn | |

70. That memorable man will therefore statesmen of France forever dear and valuable remain, even if they make these and those mistakes never be able to forgive. Because what Franz, the Richelieu, the Ludewig, the entire state = politics
France could not achieve in any way, was
To execute it extremely easily and possible: German=
| land forever shattered, its sublime appearance
| fine, high standpoint that exists in the poli=

–

–

N

– 150 –

snatched from the 1 world, and Beant for all future times a noticeable preponderance |
vera to have.) | "

)) This statement may be too much for some.
Meanwhile, what does the future hold? if,
| ,notwithstanding the eternally memorable origin, those august assembly, to the amazement of all;
diplomatic Europe, on such a difficult dfas
de, because of the conflicting interests, slowly and carefully walking through the labyrinth not being able to get through all the difficulties

| nen fhin=
view of the restoration of fine, supple upper mainly in divided opinion; if at the still vivid memory of it, 5
what the people have done, nevertheless, now on ~ whose voice is here and there little respected, and 5 courtly flatterers can dare to

If he says a word for it, he also belonged to the number of that exalted assembly as Dema=

gog to be allowed to distinguish; if now of all Men ignorant of political science for unity and f
Heil even believe in a foreign protector
N, just as the Greeks once did chen made if present already over Mis=

4

t

3 160 – | 5

71. As for that: meaning of beautiful words, or purpose from procedure,
The naturalization of the Israelites applies. Sit each director=

need and interventions not acquired, but merely inherited advantages and distinctions here and there of the loudest discontent is expressed; if now already here=

Chinese power more than ever should be, besides the Pas i

State is able to establish a state, which poisonous feudal system the germ of non-concordant collisions of the most dangerous kind,
if already now, through whatever isolation it may be,
6. B. the fruit that has rightly been picked up again– {perce the self-interest another state as foreign= difch, regarded as foreign; if already present here and there a language is used that,

formerly free, ftabulated people so completely unknown

was, and with the noble, heartfelt tone of others

very contrasting, if now unfortunately a friction between the governed and the deniers finds, if it is said publicly that this,

because of their right to help against them

must be secured, and the horrible word, Bürs war, seems to disappear; if African pirates, despite England being Germanic.

Confederations of States, with all the duties that entail,

1 © belongs,

Ze 161 =

Government, which played with words, with words to blind and deceive; so ift
it is that of the Napoleonids. In what hateful light |

* - *
1 : " 6 : :
\ . f : 5

heard, could already dare to piratical attacks on German shipping according to to face the world: that never a common fcient pursuit, never a club of the entire forces for the general welfare, great slightly heterogeneous parts in the union of states whose interests and those of Germany in general
my well-being must definitely collide; if so.
Now fanaticism is rising again, and sects in religious respect for advantages impetuous want to make a statement; if, in order to speak of small things to talk about, now already a tap into the publicists

| prevails among and against each other: how and after
Some believe that their government
Word for the most noticeable deviations to speak must; if now already a distinction, a heraldry to elevate oneself above others in speeches and Expressing place. Situation Italy the consideration= ical view, as Germany appears to the rest Europe, and one (fe there: Florentiner=:
thum, Neapolitanerthum re.; one would the people there must be sick

I = j
7 8 ,
+ +

- 162 -

She knew how to set up the feudal system and has Feudal system surpassed in spite that which He has established under another name?

72. But he who has written on the history of all nations looks back at how the Israelis' actions and activities ten with colors that are as true as they are vivid, which would, if he did not understand the purpose of that man there=
If one had seen it before one's eyes, it would be considered delusional that He, apart from all the loud-speaking historical Fact that comes from the revolution, from this gruesome abyss "emerging civil rights of the Söraelites, through the intended shot = orders (f. above §. IV. 6. Note.), to confirm in order to | enough to make you believe: feeling for people= right to * Instead: that He ae here and on Understanding suffer? Says this, and so many Ai Others, really common spirit from: a community=

| nal endeavor, a union of will and we= kens All for One and the same purpose; or Is it not rather the visible, clearly recognizable?
ing character of the "so self-sufficient" spirit, of the selfish and just a IE probin-
| cial sense 2:
2 * | Ba

U

!

ei Haupt: Purpose, no matter what means He chooses for this "and also in this His well-calculated self-interest: an even greater number than a few million people who don't care at all and can be, to whom they chain their interest, to

to draw Him in all circumstances and Bor:
cases of the most beneficial and productive use left could have been, and found; and those to be | most loyal followers, and for Br time (or at least) will be counted there.

73. The same applies to the above-mentioned guild system. Already long ago (1801)
The then French ruler had bitterly Discontent with the places of traffic in England angry look. The demarcation line, which covers the entire German land from the north to the east: – |

the eventual downfall of both, was a slightly built outer wall, over which He, standing so high,
could look away, but could not yet overcome it.
She fell. The noble people of Brandenburg and Prussia had to bow before a foreign scepter, to distance himself from the noble, never enough revered Oefer= pond powerfully underpinned, powerfully raised again vide ten to form, 0 © "

el

14. Now His purpose was fully accomplished.
England's colonies in Germany also fell.
but soon the formal (form goes with all Ufurpa= tors of the deed) incorporation into the great

French Empire; guilds were and guilds to give the company a to give a noble appearance, for a branch of the Lehn= system explains that the whole thing is based only on Fi= ö nanz= income from the annual Paz

i tente had been calculated. Because now the 5

already passed masters of the trades, who have their right:
to carry out a trade publicly, once with heavy money, the same annually anew a= buy; just as that government generally has its territory

7

—

1

.) Do not think that I am among these and those expressions Zunft= and Gilde = Wefen

5 definitely wanted to speak. By no means “I consider the guilds only in political terms for German trading cities. Can they, the guilds, that trade 2 Macime and thus the encroachment
do not work against the Israelites, why the reasons for their retention?

—

: 165 9

—

teriřical writings everywhere etree
anbog. 1

75. Of course, after that man's fall, u :

Restoration of the independence of those cities,
| the guilds their rights, their patronages, and the associated emoluments, even their son=

modifiable statutes *) restored, ordered,
and without further ado "has been conceded again, but only in the sense that no one who is not a guild master is able to carry out a trade freely and publicly;

gens that trade maxim remained in full force;

More than ever, full shiploads of all kinds bare articles, all and every ä and Ge= advertising "

) Not long ago, the following was mentioned among the complaints:
very skilled carpenter wished to master
He shall, however, give the guild one hundred thalers
| killed. And for what? perhaps for merry feasts,
'to be used cheerfully? Suppose now, a wheelwright, in possession of no more than hundred thalers, settles in a small town down, fic) creates wood for that money for the supply

— 166 —. 1

76. When all the previously mentioned, 8 , manifold causes which the Guild and association entities were completely paralyzed, had entered; thus the Jews received an un=
measurable, incalculable field for their traffic.
Now they could not only deal with all those in later and more recent times, partly above mentioned guild trades, countless shops not only to engage in extensive trade in | all the newly introduced; both natural and artistic= Products, open up; not only what the so-called called detail» trade with the manufactured goods are concerned, the same almost exclusively in their

as this craft is primarily based on dried wood species; he can thus determine the reason for his entire future civil prosperity.
Here he should give up his entire fortune, and

If he wants to work legally, should he start debts, or the wood to be consumed

work away quickly just to get money again
men, and – is through, of course, e aut to be able to achieve something.

borrow money for expensive purchases; then

ze 167 w–

hands; but what is more evocative to say here weighing, the factors were now all

Trades and industries of the foreign country, which u destroying the natives, they entered the position of the master craftsmen of the country, and saw the craftsmen of the foreigners merely as their fell as now no article of any trade;

tion remained, which they, it was through peddling or "

store– n ; not! in umfat brought =

77. How and in what way such things are Seraclites "from a people who were ruled by the mǎch= motives spurred on to possible dominance which is characterized by its restless activity, through the desire for the soul that is so peculiar to it win, and through the vigilant effort thereby made, every opportunity presented should not be wasted

to let, combined with a well thought-out turnover Maxim, and which is furthermore characterized by a whole lack of feeling for the fatherland that exists between .
the well-being of the Germans and every other foreign nation not to make any distinction in the Stan:

de is, fo noticeably distinguishes; how and. in which Was this opportunity offered by the Israelites been used, will only be clear to those who who, upon reading this writing, will have those so powerful, appropriate place cited motifs.

$. XXII.

7

1. Furthermore, the intervening causes include of the so powerful F of the Re

The most common in England. 1

machines, and thereby in our incredible amount of open air auctions of English manufacturers for goods, and their purchase and The Jews gradually and almost entirely appropriate
: knew.

"2. Both this paragraph and that
The problems he refers to can be justified
Right to all statesmen of the entire fatherland=
It requires only one Look at the contents of the same to see:
with what great dangers the industry of Fatherland has to fight, and what about The Bole |
gen von sein can. ee ee er

– 169 –

3. In general, the states of Cus ropens in such close connection that not easily something powerful that emerges in the one Part is felt, the rest should not be felt the same, which is even more because instead
u finds where they are in different contact points z ws |

| fammenteeffen. we aa N

4. To what extent England has a 5 driven by machine works is a well-known matter.
But is it true what has been said for several years about fo |
Many people have claimed that this is so

| England, which is striving for exclusive trade, among other things, is deeply rooted in means: how to constantly expand trade, how

this and that art of a foreign country ftören fe, also apply the following:

,

5 capitalists shoot where the speech i. |

like a factory or manu= in a foreign country |

factur to ruin fey, through shares signified sums together. To get more than the Concur=
To gain a competitive edge in the foreign market,
excellent quality of the goods and at a lower price= |
fe processed the first years with noticeable loss
Once the foreign factory has been destroyed;

J

fe the quality of the goods can fall and the price ne be increased because the now created Al=
Yes and no = Trade ensures the scope completely by ensuring that the former factory owners, through initially permanent constant opposition, through countless sacrifices gen, and through an equally gradual, complete go into oneself, finally inclination, will, finish= a keit and – powers lose; to ever again become a Fae brit to get going, even if they
for the competition to be achieved the same artificial chen drive machines, with all necessary
Skill ee wanted to apply and ä

6. Is it further true what has also already been said 6
It has often been claimed that even the government
there, to see the restless 'business'
loose pile, for which machines are in operation find, to employ, to provide the manufacturing facilities with significant To place orders in large quantities and to define cit to cover; fo follows foon, without referring to the fo weitzwe= to see the natural manufacturing nature of England,

that, where there is access, the countries with manufacturing² Goods must be overflowing "which, for which can low price be also sold, a

– ö to EC ze

| Barfdaft nad) the other an fid) see, definitely more to attract, because the vanity in one also greater effort, often from small sums of money proceeding, can be easily satisfied, and wel che, the lower their price, the more the domestic ruin the German manufacturers, and in the following;
gift * to that country the sole = trade ovens
7. No evil stands alone in the world. A Bad things always come from something else.
had to, in every respect, raise the prices abroad far goods deeply, and the industry of fatherland the most severe blow;
| but now it had to come that the Jews who were in | German trading cities to attract as much knows that the above-mentioned auctions are almost exclusive have seized ,so that the weapons ren, through the specified manner of Shopping (8. XXIX. 12 – 28.) nod) for less. than purchased well below their real value
can, and what foreign machinery=were they,
the Israelites, by peddling, even in the cities
than in the countryside, by visiting the annual markets and fairs, by far exceeding their former former apartments, through granted freedom of public shop = to be allowed to sell, everywhere in the most significant turnover with the most productive 2 Aus= knew how to bring booty.

8. But as they, the Jews, 8
To get those auctions requires to get into the to go back a little to the past. In= we will postpone this discussion until then on (9. XXIX.), when from the fo important Han= dels= maxims of the same in the sequence, to a one;
to meet the throw, the speech will be. | | –

9. Anyone who has carefully considered the foregoing=

gen will think: it has been said enough how the overwhelming rise of the Jews possible

become, and yet we have only a small

Part of the intervening causes. The following
The following paragraph contains a no less powerful effective . .

Su
' ' i : 7 25 .

g. XXIII. wi
' To

The Jews subsequently received a new doctorate Permission: Christian servants in 1

ren pay to .

1. This circumstance appears at first glance

fvery slight, but we will see where it goes finally had to lead.

2. We have already discussed the | Remark of the stubborn, even more so in opposition

fay sticking of the Jews to traditional

Customs and traditions include: that, without= considered an essential part of their positive religion:

animal =, even human flesh “) for sacrifice=

could not be retained, but nevertheless,

all the difficulties of the initially easier progress

men, notwithstanding, their Sabbath with the soot

wanted to celebrate the Christians' day at the same time; as if it would be certain that the series of time=

follow, counted by Moses, nowhere cut off,
| never interrupted; as if it were the eternal xa

ae) 3. B. Jephthah fulfilled this vow.

1 NN /

ä

creator and sustainer of the infinite world, wherein to count earthly days and nights not to think is, could not be the same, on which day

the people on the changing earth their nose
| celebrate the day; as if Muhamed's faith: Genoffen had committed a real crime, their

Sabbath on our Friday; as if the western inhabitants of the earth the kingdom of heaven

must be denied at all costs, so that they can only follow the following |

following day of the eastern side, whose Monday,
vr have a rest day? |

; 3. But what great importance must for their possible better advancement that stiff firmness= adhere to ancient, time, situation and circumstances absolutely not applicable customs; since the Prison days of Christians and their rest days, and which the Jews gave the so stinging wine ten = 6: around 52 2.

4. What an incredibly big difference arises
| eus foon for the acquisition of a single Jew,
only for months, only calculated for a single year
net; but what difference for the total number,
brought into due consideration for several decades.

1

7

– 173 –

5. The strange calculations of the Campo= manes for the industry, in view of the Catholic and Protestant holidays, come here in great fat a comparison, all the less so, since in addition to those there are Jewish holidays are added, which in number exceed the Christians almost surpassed, so that the Jew still more than a third of the whole year from his business, and thus three years ago
more than a whole business year was lost go Baer – 2

– 6. And this fdyon for the individual! What
But I want to say this for the entire number, for many Decades, calculated for a century? It is It is striking how the finite understanding is so reluctant to fine, narrow circles emerge. How often and Many relationships are presented whose deviations chung is striking, and as such is considered become; however, as in the extreme cases, the reflection expires= ken on it, a calculation for all parts, for a
A number of years have been spent designing, whereby only the striking nature of a disproportion is brought to the fore

gen occurs, and to serious, mature reflection ef can be a reason.

>
+ 1
*

–

or 7. No wonder, therefore, that the Israelite, for soon he moves from one lower level to another more and raised more; as soon as he saw a much closer Communication with Christians opened up, and the catchy adverse impression is much more weakened

had been that he should now direct his attention there: how he could bring the Christians here into means to step in. |

8. The beginning of this was: the ban on Mo

. According to the Saffian religion, no fire was lit on the Sabbath

on the Sabbath, priests or priestesses

= to be allowed to do. A regulation that is far from

was a law calculated for cold zones.
Or are those glorious men wrong who

with historical evidence have demonstrated:

that a completely different part of the sky, in general |
the climate, not only in the organization, not only

into the customs and traditions of a people, but also even in the legislation, in the form of government, for:

even asserted its powerful influence in religion.
If therefore Moses, instead of being an Egyptian, was born a Scandian |
dinavier, and pressed in the cold north had done, he would not instead of prohibiting fire out of

| from the then care of the Riches fens, fie

have ordered; whose holy law would have been, .
even on rest days and holidays of the deity –
to throw off the religious veil here too –

e holy sacrificial flames to maintain 2

9. But instead of those, with the land itself
The confessor thought that he would be able to justify the decree –

The Mosaic religion was thereby able to circumvent

when he sees poor, needy people among the Christians |
needed for that, which was only for him, only for his |

Command, and with fine will fire prepare him |
| before winter: protect Malte and the n er

just had to.

*

10. But woe to the horde which magne:
letter of the law through detours and backdoors

to be able to handle without the express will of the legislator. The resulting developing indifferentism towards everything that Re= ligion, and which is not so loud among any people than among the Jews, who inevitably say:

ically emerging loose concepts of all that humanity
ennobling truths, too easily reach into the Moras ity, even more so with a people who are fine

ws - j 178

~

FR; . Br .

Being calculated only for the present world,

ten fie too much there: everywhere and everywhere wants:
recently every letter of every non-religious book and fet, and the interpretation to the private=

Interest regardless of right and wrong everywhere

'to puff on.

11. Now this brought one and the other Be:

goods among the Jews to try: a Christian servant girl in the house. It succeeded! Of course, the first to undertake it, to serve a Jew, none other than such

feich "who through their own or another's fault

| . could not possibly move forward.

12. There, for natural reasons, at that time

" friendly, with a new ' until then un= familiar tone of address *), taken, affable

A

*) The women of our ancestors said to the servant,
Maid with just as much earnestness and strength as Bieder=
ity and benevolence: goes, fetches, buys, brings c.; ö
The Jewish mistress, on the other hand, could and was only allowed to gen: go and get them rc., Our women soon found themselves in an awkward situation; some followed

– 279 –

treated, 990 by this. devil, happy, Bey |
take their Jewish rule also improved; waz can do more to the most degenerate human being than him, even if it were on the wrong path, to “own, one wishes his well-being, one means it with good to him; man is far more through goodness than to direct and guide by force; furthermore, to Nah;
food and nutrition, not suffering the slightest lack,
in addition, enjoying a much higher wage to provide free time for so-called going out to the evenings of weekdays and,
which wants to say more than anything, and the observation.
particularly valuable, not subject to any coercion in challenging the
To be subject to clothing: the former very simple, based on morality and economy
nete Dienst=Coftum entirely according to liking and discretion:
now change; completely satisfy every female vanity

— ö

ten dem, others changed the greeting to du;
Others went even further: Go, Wils
helmine, it was said, to market, and fetch them, listen to this conversation

tone of the higher, even the highest classes,

= dirty business that occurs in domestic life

phone

gen, the outside of a maid completely to be able to set! All this had to be more than become a powerful motive to join your family
hen, and with enthusiasm from their strange service, and – also to encourage others tern to enjoy the same happy fate, to the descendants a harder service among the Jews, and about that class of people in general to cause destruction.

men to find the most ridiculous of it and to think of the head of a whore who had just

'was perhaps still a cattle maid, thereby being twisted
must.

But everything should be destroyed in our times=

Let become; If one keeps the formality of the serving Class fo completely useless without the power of the formal without knowing that between {the brutal tyrannizing, and mild fatherly spirit=
There is an immense gap between subordination;
So let us begin the matter here with this: that
To obtain the highest possible education beforehand
ben, so that they, already through the salutation, more e the ladies « Aleidentacht and ein=

» 0
a

8 re 181. pee – a

–

13. For, from that time on, Achat fích, sis
when a hostile fate everywhere and everywhere |
wanted the most pernicious influence of the Israelites= 7 te, the complete elimination of the relationship of serving class to their rule, with all that from the unfortunate consequences that have arisen; the “finally clothes that went beyond the utmost opulence= 1

costume of female servants in German hane delsfts. But vanity and love of the bow are far

7

cleared freedoms, completely abolished distance not to abuse it in the most shameful way; not to everyone and everyone in terms of their rule completely equal = respect, do not believe with the backsliding of all and all respect, all consideration for those who.
that class serves, behind the back of the unfortunate= | lichste talk; not think of a possible
noticed weakness of their rule on public | Markets, at the meat and fish stalls to be allowed to speak; is now, in order to achieve folded,
a development of pure, noble, moral feelings proceeded; then one should see whether that class to this have air, inclination, will and strength. That »Everyone knows that order rules the world, but Truly not everyone in whom this order exists, –

– 182 = .,

more than the wildest sexual drive the excellent

dangerous cliffs of a long-preserved guilt, how many and many young women just to avoid rivals in a new, modern clothing to be able to show off in the arms of a scoundrel, and their lives=
Happiness has been destroyed forever!

.. 14. But what initially seems insignificant seemed, and which one hardly thought to pay attention to,
was already of significant importance in the next few years Importance! Every wealthy Jew now began – To keep his others as Christian servants.

The next consequence of this was: You, the Christians,

| | previously paid moderate wages to their servants
lives, which nevertheless has a very simple costume
Bt could collect treasures, found themselves against= | forced to increase it more and more

gladly, saw themselves compelled to indulge in lavish, costly entertainment like clothing, to a lesser extent even the

To have to offer a hand, since the constant advance throw of a better, more profitable, more compulsory to avoid duty where possible *

~

15. But this was by no means the only

Consequence. When the Jew was already far beyond his beyond his assigned residential area

was; when he had already begun to focus on the center | moved closer to the city, public shops for the 'gar, 1

large number of older and newer so-called Many.

factur = to open goods; he also undertook this, 2

to hire two Christian servants.

Egg 4 =

16. With this, fi changed the above led to the disproportion of Jewish working days such as.

with a magic stroke at once, it went with the very big difference of 8: 2 to 7 1=

"about, where, in the opposite proportion, the same

The above sia aa naturally takes place.

17. On Saturday the critics shop assistant by touching the money) the jûdi=

desecrate the Sabbath, and on Sundays

the Israelite, all respect, all reverence for the

. >
location

9) What a fine distinction; making money, winning money et nen to be allowed, if it only after the mer Sefege does not get narrower.

– acs –

–.

– 184

sweeping the Scriptures out of sight, the La= | which with all its might to the mockery of the Christian open to rest; just as the common Jew now also bolder and bolder, with fine skin firen the Christian at the n ER under the 3
j au step.

18. Later the police were keen to protest= Verse | regulations such "most outrageous nonsense to prevent; but what man of feeling would probably want to go into the details, such as They are observed to be air, from the energy and the enforcement of police regulations
free' cities to speak!

19. incredibly many ; loud and 1185 fo 11 |
te complaints, e.g. somewhere about the defeats of the Jews under the open sky in the main streets
the city by the citizens, and police= regulations against it are loudly called) but all so far in vain.

20. For the information of those who do not know such things=
nen, it says the following: In a stretched row, the Jew the ones located on the sides of the house steps Sitting at a table: Oh, here and there through Ge=

/

~

Old fie 8 expanding; . he also made a bank, |

a table to the heaps where he can arrive,

or takes the entrance of the hallway of a house to his general store; or chooses carts to fine ' mobile boutique, where it is not missing that the

The latter's audacity goes so far as to stand in front of the store of those citizens where...

you buy

» .

21. But how and in what way can the Citizen who has a heavy rent for his house and Shop has to pay, which carries the city=0nera

must be in the shop every day in decent clothing

appear; be, or be one's shop assistants, respectable | to be rewarded; his wife, his children gerlich, to dress according to his status and for the Education of the latter as human beings, even more

"as a father, as a citizen, to take the greatest care,
It is polite; how can a folder with people prices hold who have only heaven as their shelter, de= = their domicile is probably somewhere else, in miserable clothes, walking in dirty laundry, and the necessities of life, as they are mostly given to others

2

consist only of raw food, which has nothing to do with ten hr ;

bring wiffen.

have to deny what is decent to the citizen,

Morality, honor and duty are sacredly laid down 2

22. For what is most striking here is must is: that if a German trading city

situation that another is near it, where there is no peddling, no exhibition on the streets

is tolerated, from here several people individually ner Hauser to be sent to those who a significant, net income on a weekly basis

$. XXIV.

. Furthermore, to n Ur=
agen: 5

The far-reaching transition
fchreen of the previously given to them residential area.

2. It has already been pointed out above that the reception of the Jews no human wisdom

with the purest will, with the best intentions

could suffice to take such measures, 5 which can adequately prevent all future dangers ten, rather, that according to the spirit of that time.

– 187 –

Time, according to the situation at that time, mistakes were unavoidable, the hardships of which it only developed in the following period; precisely because of this but it becomes all the more striking to have to see;
that precisely such statutes, which the paternal Front intentionally chose, where possible, a future to prevent a collision, later completely out of Eight were left, which currently more than ever applicable. he

3. This includes, above all and especially, that 5 that people whose (see following section) Chaz
'racter, way of thinking, customs, customs, religious;
and moral concepts, traffic and trade with those of the Christians in such loud, obvious opposition= fay, which are everywhere like hostile stars, and through whose fault? meet each other “ a was assigned to a specific residential area.

| 4. Now if the Israelites, as the | Borfahren “by virtue of a unanimously established Statute, wanted to have recourse to the same in the Han= the cities would have remained limited; this would have been one of the most powerful means of protecting oneself from striving for the same belonging to *. "> bes

B " 2 _
true, no + xx * Ei ' y one — 2 i — ee ou 4 2 *
. - i . '
> R 9 '

—

; – 188 ö –

N 5. For the houses of the district there, of which they, by virtue of another then designed,
and more than ever, currently unstoppable Sta= tuts, could never become owners, would be with their then not so noticeable increase ratio=

Ä moderately increased in price. The higher rent had their shop prices with those of the Christians in the better

Equilibrium is maintained. The disproportionately further distance

nization of their homes would not have such a large open to traffic, especially the fifth Manu=

factor = trade not a fo enormous expansion |
to the detriment of the fatherland's industry ben, and all the dangers arising from this threatening consequences would result in much less grass have taken place; the opposite is only that to serve: a better light on the present serious consideration of the Jewish issue to distinguish between right and wrong, between make the right choice between the good and the evil fen, especially to be able to understand: that what is on the a State is applicable, so not yet to each 1
can be applicable to the other. 7 |

6. We must for that, as the 5 Passing over the prescribed statutes without=

u Far '

respected, and could be, so literal become | found that they, the Jews, were almost everywhere spread out, also here the . under Au:
gen sm a 1 i an u The Jew who undertook to it is not very far from the Jewish district= |

to rent the gaffe, where, however, the laws
According to the law, no Israelite should live there was no

. Such a one would never have been

Purpose achieved. It was, without any reservations, a Man of particularly engaging character, this domestic and social virtues according to others

. Fannt waten; who from earlier years has been most eager strives to every outside, costume, language, life | |

wise of an Israelite who on Sabbath of the Jews in their domestic dress continued, and the Sunday of the Christians by suit, through life seemed to celebrate, even unto the step of sending his children to Christian schools; thus through his entire external behavior it is doubtful and uncertain for many and some whether the man was really Jewish or secretly blessed Christ, and age 7

i

– 190 –

8. One should not say, if only because The fact is: what would the leaders of the Jewish community, they, the Jewish priests to the said? Without ignoring them foremen and to be allowed, since the Jews have no hierarchy more, such a worldly-wise man could less speaking, that such is the excellent Be on the way to a greater wealth among the Christians to open up a circle of knowledge, from level to level, more and more through never-ending antagonism to soar up "and even to the Church" to be able to become more fruitful.

* 9. The mood for such a man was therefore advantageous for the Christian side from many sides; liability; even if one or another disgruntled neighbor was soon and easily won over by the kindness of the fame taken; even the most disgruntled was finally Aich, they it through the neighborly compassion shown to him. me, through his helpful hand under these and those incidents, forced to confess: that he never a better, more peaceful and friendly neighbor bar could wish for in his whole life; and how almost everywhere, including here, silent written laws, where no plaintiff file through the: iste to loud on Eu "3

| 10, Now it is necessary to look for a generally different= known empirical proposition, only a single gap, the

in any statute, in any regulation, or is drilled into any law, the loophole is widens by itself, and the crack soon becomes so large, that he no longer, or at least only with the utmost effort is required. |

11. The second Jeraelite, who was also there wanted to settle, was regarded as the same as the first, so did the third, and so continued for some time until the deception fell completely to the ground by itself, and what was left of Christians, from on fet had to give way. |

12. But suppose a Jew ventured into bie x noblest, first parts of the city so deeply, | that the (F. XII. 2.) with incomparably higher rent | bribed owners through judicial coercion:
should be kept, the Jew has a place there not to let the house be inhabited; there was, except that behavior, which is not mentioned here= could be used, another means of achieving

– 192 –

chung of the purpose, which in the following elite relevant circumstance is cited, and a fold serious side that it rightly calls the N
folitude Everyone deserves. |

The later very different type of | Acceptance of Jews to Christianity

achéct especially to the number of already mentioned en Urfachen. N

"If the saying proves itself somewhere: that dew

fend things only at the time, human limitations= | ter insights, can be tested; so is it here. |

7 2. If in earlier, long-gone times N the rare case occurred that a Jew gave up his religion

| wanted to deny 5 fo fonnte and had to be finely confession taken, and the associated Ceremony, only public in the Churches before the eyes of a large assembly happen; so that he can lay down the safest guarantee

| te,

– 1293 –

1

te, in future be considered as ont and regarded by i
. ene": aau

3. Let us take a look at the n fas 3
| natic sense of some priests of earlier times, and= among whom the most zealous Zion guard cannot speak out ly fortunate, even if for him in

Inquisitorial courts were established in Protestant countries

Who would have done that back then, with the reception of the Jews, under those regulations,
and with such a hierarchical way of thinking |
think, suspect, and in spirit, to avert ation of all future dangers,
28 that a time could ever come: that a simulated Christianity a cloak of sophisticated plans and

Drafts are that Jews can freely socialize be able to say: "If one or the other

Circumstance ever occur, hey now, I turn fo and fo much that id receive a baptism = a "

Verily, I know by the displeasure of the Ge= |
Ä feel no matter that requires greater seriousness; and a more important meaning than this. 1

4. How should one proceed under such circumstances?
bie : Secacticfpen Gyriken modern time wu, the 13

– 194 =,

even less than previously in Spain the Nazis
men New = Ghriften deserve that find and stay=|
ben what they had been; but to those through such a Appearance = Christianity everything and anything becomes possible, possible: to rent in the cities, even at buy where and how it suits them, not just for themselves, but for others with them in near or distant Israelites who were connected to each other, in order to obtain every advantage:
te position to win the Christians, just any which paves the way for them to enter into every bourgeois business, even to intervene in such,
through which they acquire many dependents at once can, since thousands of people benefit from them at the same time have to depend on those who, because of their considerable wealth,
, because of the situation, it becomes very easy, seat and voice=|
me in one department or another ten; those, still, outside the family ban
de, except for commercial transactions, in the narrowest possible
gang, in the closest contact with the Jews,
then under the name of Christ nothing stands in the way: | their sumptuously furnished, perhaps even with stages to make the houses seen into places of invitation, where at the merry banquet, even if it is still so un=|
notices, for the interest of the Israelites the head=

\

– ' a

Hugenmerf, everywhere. worked hard

can be: how to use the same feed
after the other, as one now this now that would have a beneficial effect on them, as can be seen on the Ruin of the Christians always continues; in short, those
This makes it easy to understand the whole relationship of Christians and Jews the most powerful, direct and | to have an indirect influence, the latter already through in the most effective way; even if the rection of the plays; ever fall into such hands de, because then every evil in the character of the Jews to show off would be avoided

den, although the ridiculousness of all the Christian classes
ften ad Perfiilage is given daily as.

5. Sincerely found, ak the view

May be too close to the heart for some in the Shat. What
But if one thinks of a New Christian,
who, during serious discussions about what is happening today,
days is moved, it is not necessary to ask: Set also (a statement that leads to the creation of this E

Scripture has contributed a lot, but still sweat
| To want to do this is to commit treason against the fatherland hen), the Jews became dominant at that time;

(13

en 196 wu

they had not been the suppressed party long enough

fen; the cycle of things never stops in them either Or, if other men, who that suspicion cannot be directly accurate, nevertheless act with so little caution that where loud Claims regarding a theatrical piece by both sides Instead of findings for which one party
been decided iff,

6. But how infinite is this from the high, noble purpose of the spectacle! What the lake= drivers of earlier and later times, his guiding star, his

Compass, his nautical charts for the deviation of the Magnetic needle, its plumb line for the purpose of measuring deep, fine log line to calculate the speed

the journey, its octant, the altitude of the sun and northern

To measure breadth is and must be; this includes everything the spectacle, all this is for the family:

humanity, not for individual sects. Not enough that it can calm the storms of passion in a floating in an equally violent, dangerous whirlpool –

| forms, as it is virtue on a flat, ficher
Bahn lovingly depicts; it should also make people on the changeable, uncertain sea of life

shallows, from hidden eee, from all and

i
+ –
4 ar : 5 ' *

\

especially warn. And it is this, so the 6s tiff 2 the eye am and again the rapturous intervention of the Ju= who have no influence on the actions and activities of people ges be removed from theatrical performances;
rather, since the influence of the Israelites in the Moras quality of the people is predominantly large, ift, fo must every adversity, to attract greater attention
the more warning they are presented to the viewer;
or one commits more than one injustice | = guilty, and, since it depends so much on who acts, one infers without wanting to: that only

3 Christians, from the prince to the lowest rank
«out, out of the ridiculous: ben a port fen a. to give N en a 19 8988

Fifth Section.

From the character, the natural dispositions, teligen concepts, principles, maxims etc. of the Israelites, ae which most strongly contributes to the rise of the same with have worked. .

“toe

it | §.., XXVI.

1. We have previously discussed the excellent= most intervening, time and circumstances had in mind the causes that led to the gigantic growth of the Israelites so immensely have contributed a lot, although much and man= che side circumstances (f. Conclusion: Note, 2nd An= merk., *) passed over find), where among other

*) I did not even remember one of the most important moments want to put it downright. It is so true that the

a

A

— 199 .

the lesser eee belongs to the haufi^e :

immigration of foreign Jews took place. =

(But are they family ties that have a youth?
that in another place, or a certain reverence for such and such a government, under which he wishes to live in the future? No, this g Ordinary people know no other motive than wo= to which they turn to open their market, no other motive than for more extensive purposes.
liable; wanting to care for a higher interest.

2. Is now the observation in the general |
nen true: that the stranger, who is not exactly Ar= courage from his homeland, because this remains almost everywhere go begging, much more likely to strangers, than many locals, because in

For those more agility to progress, more nz Ä ftrenchment, but not only * more 5 Zu=

A

Writings everywhere bear the mark of the times that the most correct thinker has passed things by hen, at least she must only gently touch, which, so true and certain as they are, from the spirit of Time is not appreciated as it should be.

rarity takes place, which, manifold Ver= conditions, not easily possible for the locals
is, also because the stranger, on the other side,
an easier absorption through never taking place Col= life, whether it be your own person or your a fine family, his acquaintances, his Friends concern, find everywhere and everywhere
can, in addition to the isolated state,
in which he is considered worthy of support;
How much more must that observation be made in the Istaeli= ten as true, as soon as one understands its character and the nature of his traffic and activities and ten eyes. |

3. How much must this circumstance be extremely detrimental to the Christians' work, all the more so since the immigrant Jew, like the considerable migratory number of Israelites, who were Travelling from fair to fair and returning home, in our equal greater connection to the outside world, and here= with infinitely more resources in his hands, fe= to give a larger extension to traffic, since it was everywhere for him to reach the correspondence

ner intentions cannot be missing.

= 5 201 uw

4. But this nonsense becomes more frequent, if there are examples of Jews after a: left the state just to go to Ber

. 'for some time on the praiseworthy path of cessations | their falliffement with less difficulty and with considerable profit than fshould the state become a dead for fraudsters.

5. At present we see what the Character, the maxims, the principles of Joraelites have achieved no less in that case.

6. Here the Bolks character exactly and fundamentally= ly, and at the same time unbiased and fair in his judgment wanting to develop, . leads to an immeasurable field of considerations. Because, what determines the National = Character? A question that belongs to the 2 most difficult problems that science fchassis gauge can be set up. | .

But here the essential thing is the same

Indwelling, that characteristic which ground, which is analogous to the celestial body and on foreign:
transplanted into the soil, modified, but not degenerate, from the " of, the Angenoms.

*

what time, location, surroundings, conditions
gradually into the character of a people= have to wear, carefully separated, and carefully be separated! And not just what happens only too often and too unkindly, in highlighting of the faulty, but also in connection with lation with the praiseworthy, since the good everywhere comes so easily close to evil, because the most beautiful Basis often by a too easily possible, slanted application takes on a nasty appearance.

8. But who can with a firm hand bier
To draw a demarcation line, since many things in Character of a nation as Cigethimlid, as In= appears to be living and is accepted, which is only by accidentally introduced customs, traditions and Customs, as the Olympic Games at the older Greeks, the low slave struggle among the former Romans, the noble, high-minded knightly game of earlier times, the jealousy-fueled knock= fencing in the old Pifa, ennobling humanity Toros in Spain, the most prize-worthy | Bellows in England &c.; furthermore, which is directed by= form of government, the spirit and the ceremonial of Religion ; especially from the smell of a nose

tion depends on and arises from it; fer .
well what their origin, their nature, how they are green= |

been established), their progress, their future fate |

fale; and with regard to the Sörgelites, especially and especially what the ratio of a bolt to
with whom it resides. |

9. This would be the place to turn into a to deepen the investigation; so I humble myself

j eat . !

*) On the banks of the Tiber lies the connected |
History of the whole of Europe' 8. Romulus green; | created such a state that its watchword:
"War against all who do not accept our supremacy= know," had to continue for thousands of years;
it can also take on other forms, a native
hierarchical, into a foreign usurpatory
He knew the wildest passion of the,
People: to be dominant, to ignite,
to foment and make it inextinguishable that even if several Numas had followed one another, yet that which once fit so deeply in the bosom sunk and rooted, not uprooted can be. The legends of the work uw j powerful on the minds. : |

-

gladly, whether I may trust such a thing to my abilities;
as soon as the fragments scattered here are brought together in a unified systematic context in detail

should be.

10. For, it is said, there is a physi= ognomony, which I do not deny in any way. It m

even gives, say others, a teaching of the Lord Gall, which, however, depends on the evidence: whether,
such as inclinations, passions, moods

the delicate, soft, flexible facial parts

obviously fold, and finally be able to make permanent;
whether the attitude of the soul also has solid parts

organize, or: whether those excesses express and show themselves before and during birth, and therefore, it seems, this strange Doctrine returns to the question so often considered: whether

. there are innate virtues and vices that can only be overcome by the greatest misdiscoveries of the doctrine of the soul are affirmed= that can.

11. But no one has yet asked whether not also a prariognomony takes place, the An= “lead: individual specified traits in the character of people to a W, and

*

rd

. not this only, but whether found heads= traits, so to speak radical virtues or vices

be brought back under one and the same approach

can, and which one? from which everything else comes= go, everything else can be advertised? to the

– extremely close connection between both ings as vices), ; ladies and war=

to be able to represent?

This is enough and how do I wake up that in the character of the Israelites I worse=

dings to limit, which especially refers to

Businesses a on their activities and their traffic |

13. What characterizes the Israelite for the

As far as the revival of business is concerned, the same a double support that provides the residents of the northern sand dune has been denied. Not only that | the Jew the lively, fiery, even highly un= silent spirit, as the inheritance of his early fathers

ter, still remained peculiar, which is in fine, unsteady gait, even more in fine, lively

Gesticulations, most strongly in the violent Modulating his language by himself, but this folk character was further enhanced by its

\

\

later situation, through the resulting Antagonism in a powerful way, seft, immensely
* and reinforced. | | 7 :

: 14. With this spirit he connects a vigorous, tireless activity, the strictest Attention to fine shops, the use even the smallest thing wins.

15. The extremely lively and regfame ner S soul, by the way, connected with a fi= | imagination, which everywhere makes him lose applied heterogeneous things in the picture, which shows his

Imagination that makes him talkative, communicative makes him cheerful, gives him a boost to wit, cheerfulness, and sociability; but fo often spurs him to mischievous teasing= | to quarrel, to stubborn quarrel and biting mockery=
te; just as the spiritual, the high-flying i in its

N organization, enhanced by its way of life, its tendency towards all sensual pleasures, and did not allow him to indulge in the greatest excesses, as well as the associated constant striving to exalt oneself, to want to excel, to

Expenses, to show off; to pride, to the highest arrogance, to contempt, W and pressure leads to 7

16. Even if sig and Scharffinn ae vt go in divergent ways, if this, to the bottom;
ftiff from that, the features that differ
cation sign of even the most homogeneous things, and thus the spirit of the Israelite more to the Phan=
tactile; nevertheless, it attracts a great deal of attention.
folitude, awakened by the living of the spirit;
finely animated imagination; fine, light
His power of comprehension makes him capable of any skill, every art, every science, like sad therefore that his historical situation, which pointed out: first and foremost to having to think about his existence, which necessitates him everywhere

thigte: to the antagonism of livelihood fine |
to take refuge, and instead of those excellent
To develop facilities, only for this purpose almost exclusively and little one should serve, him, in the broadest sense of the word tes taken to make smart. N

17. Here, digrefion cannot be proven:
chen. That means, because that too, one will say, is lig judge? How then, I ask, should one extremely strange, and so difficult to explain explain the phenomenon, how to follow it on the | most leniently judge: namely that all centuries | derke, throughout the millennia among the many N million Jews, among whom especially those have always lived among the most educated nations, Despite all the excellent qualities, even if:

—

| some excellent men appeared,

138. Have lived: with the famous, artistic, scientific Arabs in Er.
| in the so intellectual and scientific France,
through arts and sciences
England, in which there is a lack of thorough knowledge and insights into the other countries rising Germany! But is ever, there and here, has ever risen up a man among the Jews;
to an Averroes, Defcarted, Newton, Leibnitz
could even look up? | |

19. What did Spinoza, Mendelssohn find?
| these brave men compared to the millions,
the RN in comparison with the unforeseeable

row N

– 209 –. i

ü A series of immortal men from all countries of Europe, .

in comparison with the endless parts of the –coasts,
the vast field of science; they are a drop of the ocean that you can hold on your finger=
gen fee.) 7

20. In general, there is only one useful invention that is beneficial to humanity,

even a single beneficial discovery that one would have to thank a Jew, How? if humanity only attributes the level of its culture to the Jews should have owed it; if the divine facilities of the understanding in which only their development would have must find what they, the Jews, have always liked it, in short, if people only have the what the Israelites have always done for the good of the humanity; in what poor,

dark, barbaric conditions would find them 8
| den! But bow and enjoy the will, the Israeli= ten, Everything, but only the smallest thing for the good of the people, they lack this entirely. It is that there is a lack of inclinations, of will,

in strength, insights and talents. a | |

21. However, no one will be called upon to resolve the matter.
* one * . want to assert: that |

14th

– 210 –

her lively imagination, her tense imagination power, the oriental hyperpoetic flight of her spirit, in short the spiritual organization of the same, after a fall, more to be devious
directed, which is the right thinking, the healthy= research, as in civil life the straight, honest procedures are directly opposed

is. And just as little will one want to claim:
that their historical situation, so powerful the influence the same is to completely eliminate the aesthetic in man=

dulled; so that the sense of beauty,
| Sublime, noble and good * lost=

gen fey.

22. Everything that is here carefully for the near Discussion of that strange phenomenon is: access to higher schools
| and academies were denied to them, however; the =

Access to public libraries is difficult, although these are even less the sole sources were to gather knowledge; and found that against the attack of all and sundry, both domestic as foreign works and writings to them completely: = unhindered free; here too, however, the first priority is igen: e that the Jew naturally participates in the works of the.;

et easy

*

– 211 –

| Shifts, for many reasons, do not live

interest, not the deep pleasure of being close struction of his spirit, which he far would have had more if they had taken feta from the middle

A people would have emerged.

in ab

23. There he had to come across ideas too often,
his views, his feelings, his inclinations
to be too alien to its customs and traditions
ren. Here, many things would have been woven into it fein, which is entirely part of the ideas = circle of his people and which, soon consisting of fine
Allusions to Jewish customs and traditions, soon Containing legends of the past, the spirit in happy brighter or darker times of past events,

past fates = an attractive way of telling feet would have

24. So the following remark may be more can be derived from that, as from a decided aversion to science,

namely: that, since it is not a rare phenomenon
among Christians, that many who are taught by the doctrine= ten = Stand may still be so far away, fine.
Poison in a new way through reading classical works,

[14]

both ours and other nations, |

merely leafed through, but carefully considered, and in whose possession he is; that, on the other hand, even with the previous lower class of Jews not even a shadow of

to find everything about comedies, about and

Theater, which is definitely more diligent, the Ver= for the sake of conversion, is visited by them, in this he is much: lig crude, and extremely ignorant. Ä

25. No wonder, if that is why little Geifted culture is found among them,
The opposite of which one cannot find in a somewhat freer way of thinking, as a need for better communication,

I believe I can find it among them, since the same,

and strives to create works that he may not completely devoid of all knowledge of higher truths

exposed, into a complete indifferentism among them degenerate iff: to be completely indifferent to everything, what is holy, what is called religion, and morality act can be no less pernicious; especially must be pernicious, where {there is a usury= spirit corrupted heart takes place! Meanwhile Others are also taking action here.
with one. in ee ee ee

26. Is there any class other than that of the taught, who had much and many glorious knowledge |
as an aid, it is above all and especially the trade, this n. .
of the Israelites. |

27. But what about thinking purchase= mann History=, States =, Countries, Peoples: and Geography to calculate any events,
any incidents in order to make them conjunctiva
to be able to communicate with the rest of his knowledge= fcies are, and must be; all this replaces near the Jew the so immensely extensive, the so extensive correspondence, which with each Post days incomparably more incoming messages coming to him from foreign countries from all sides.

28. If the Christian clings with deep love to a father's candidature; on the other hand, the Jew is subject to the entire earth as his home. He therefore has only for the present moment sense and spirit, it is therefore it is completely the same: from whom a country, a race tion, a people is governed. He strives just as eagerly for the one who now occupies the throne, as he consecrated to the cause of the one who follows him first.

,

—

What can be used as a defense is 1 if only no one stands in the way of his interests, much more promoted the same. The history of the Nazis tions, their sacred privileges have therefore no white greater interest for him than what is connected with it a trade influence, and only the place, only the land where he found the richest source of his crops= |

bes believes to find, he only sees inside mental stay as worthy.

29. Here too the above remark returns to back: that in the good as well as in the evil

| String original threads to causes that make the good better,

and make the evil worse.

30. How far must the Jew therefore know

niffen always lag behind, since he is everywhere, neither in the ttm:
go with himself, nor with the spiritual works
foreign faith comrades, nor in the one with fine

own faith relatives find such, and fic to correct these and those ideas that fe and that false view, and from fo man |

to lift the veil of preconceived notions
can. 5

31. So ile inbafen dieß and so viele an

1

~

m

– 216 –e–

and may be; it still remains on the other Page indisputably true: that no difficulty abilities are still so insurmountable to think that the

Genius does not know how to climb, especially when fo some advance is given to the hand, with that too visible the doing, the writing and

The Israelites only strive for refinement, only for Profit and monetary value, which is far is removed: any love that only poorly nourishes

,to allow the arts and sciences to germinate fen; even if here, as almost everywhere must be understood that such a thing arises from their behavior

niß to the Christians, from their business situation

lich emerged, and also ee forever from them under *.

Bu 32. For, do you find the sciences all | in which the Jews have never achieved anything?

Are they not subject to any guild constraints, any in= subjected to nungögeite, how much less the an= significant number of free arts, which, already their Naz men, their sanctuary is freely available to all unlock; give everyone the most freedom:

best access to the same, hospitably

gr

N {

dend, grant. Where, however, and when ift je and) only one famous Mahler, one single note= artist, sculptor, mechanic among the Israelis ten occurred? Stands among the immortal Na= thousands of masters, as soon as the number of Artists of all nations, not only those of the Ra=

N fael, Titian, van Dyk, Rubens, Rembrandt, Holbein, Kaufmann, Poußin, Schein, the Haydn, Bach, Mozart “ but all the other venerable
| gen men are listed, even a single
Name of an Israelite? He who in world trade, in haggling, in the art of all mints: money to attract, the first, the most cunning, the
The most mischievous of all is the one at the stock exchanges of trading cities through an almost unbelievable skill in the head and percentage calculations are very good set, and not felten with it a larger ä aroused than ed deserves. +) |

) Since with infinite, literally speaking,
can be calculated in terms of numbers, and therefore when calculating do not rely on fie, the numbers, felbft, fons but what matters is their relationship to be maintained, which always leads to one and the same result

1 '
– Ad

ee) 217 3 *

33. What 40 more than that PER wilk, ise:
In more recent times, the Jews have been granted permission to lead | to focus on pharmacology, so that in Diefer Intention of our academies and higher schools free can visit. But what is so unusual in this praiseworthy Biffenfthafft already any of them

hen, and what do you have in the future also beer i

to expect rape from them? © ah a

Kes) here is about: Jew fine people –
u * fvery faithful to everything and everything that is to be counted among the higher, more abstract sciences, which does not refer to its practical exercise, to the f art to make money, has a direct connection, everything

he will surely be too close to Laffer. |
In this way he wants to earn both and shine. Above all and especially it will be of the utmost importance: the powerful tendency towards 5

ten; there are countless tools available for calculation
to the side, which is far more than in a few methods
"find sathalten, even if you have an overview, a require special acquired skills, which Me: ' method is always the most applicable among the others 2

– 218 –

vanity, the impetuous drive to ambition of his people, which lies in their striving,

which striving for a higher position

founded, and to which the n the Im=

| 2 bergiet. 2

35. For he who is pushed back will find a |

completely into nothingness, or, if means to do so

E

in hands, he rises with power, with all drastic means, outstandingly high. Here
There is no medium. This can only be found there where, in striving upwards, calm, cat

Consideration, an undisturbed path, an uninterrupted broken path to a noble destination. 4

6. i

' .

*

That feeling of strangeness would therefore very often disappear.
len, if you want to use one or the other for quick easy calculations to be used in this process method under my eyes; so that it is for these feet
that hardly a sentence is spoken,
and the bill has either already been completed,
or with the greatest approach is immediately there.
The Jew, for example, listens to 1350 pieces of ducats the difference 4 5 Q per piece; this makes just de 10 thalers together, is, immediately his . .. Answer. ve -

- 219 -

36. Above all, it will be flattering to him

fein: the academic dignity, the goal of his

ea

Wishes to achieve. If you have the previous experiences that, truly, do not bring much promise, under eyes; so it is al-
However, it is true that if one considers the character of People in general have in mind for whom _

. those who are of a non-respectable status,

generally raised from dust to something have, tremendous amount of prudence, tremendous amount Self-denial and self-abnegation belong to their Verfon not wanting to assert everywhere, the Limitations of modesty, of cautious retreat not to violate the law, but rather to preserve its value to be determined by others! In any case, which

Arrogance could probably ever surpass the one
one generally goes to a Jewish doctor;
the place, especially if another

whose title, who knows where from, a certain honorary chen, who knows how, to that of a public teacher of pharmacology is added. It is almost unbelievable how a folder babets and boasts,

how he behaves in public societies in all respects ten, so that everyone can see what he is entitled to

" _ *
- | 220 -

what nobody wants to see and what nobody pays attention to finds; how loud and fhoussing he makes himself heard,
to draw the eyes of all by force;
how decisive, intervening in every conversation, he alburthelt, how deeply he looked down on the Christian doctor= fee; despite the fact that every word that comes out of his mouth comes, his complete ignorance of higher knowledge=
niffe too betrayed and too loudly revealed.
Or are the sciences not in any way
a close connection, so that a single one of the rest, especially from the abstract knowledge=

ö fcities, would be completely abolished? or is there much=

nothing more A knowledge which is not sufficient= N
the forces of individuals are completely fragmented and had to be broken down into *? |

37. And how could it be so easy in the algae. _

The Jewish doctor received further training in the N spirit, except the assumed beginning, in a become a completely different life wise. 5

38. If the doctor among the Christians practice during the day, he applies his 'Leisure, quiet hours for further night= think, to the sweeping study of the too fine -

- 221 .

| pache gebirge Writings and works before the abi
fchian doctor, on the other hand, who is primarily concerned with customer
For those who have something to do with society, the theatre will be a fine study.
Rooms, public entertainment and verse

fembly places his auditorium to study there |

fine: Aanthropology can be swept away.

39. We return to the proposed 7

Subject! concerning the character of the Joshua elites |

Not only that the already mentioned, partly original, partly on their historical situation

developed character traits in the Thun and Trei= .

which has intervened so deeply; 3 but rather
In addition to these, there is an excellent character trait, = which in their minds is no small Support points, namely: the unprecedented, never
feen intrusiveness, with a high degree |

shameless audacity, which in the, consequence, a

as it is now apparent, into an outrageous impudence
ity, where it is concerned, can degenerate. |

40. We are far away, even these extremely hateful trait as something peculiar, Inwoh=

something new in the character of the Israelite;
we see it rather from the circumstances uu

* d "

those among and under whom he dwelt, as complete;
as the only borrowed word. ö 5
, 41. Because the possible advancement of the Ju= which was through reflection, through skill of spirit, through active, careful reflection, through Exercise of all applicable forces is not alone; not even through a related bound indefatigability, through a tireless Effort, through an almost unprecedented activity, glides from an attention that her eye everywhere and directed in all directions, from a choice of ler's useful, both permitted and prohibited means tel supported; but in the fo fundable, one could ask, only position of the same had to be to Je= Everything to achieve traffic, as already
| mentioned above, an extraordinary=
| ly smooth composure to endure every mockery
bear, an unparalleled iron patience to withstand any setback instruction not to be able to respect a necessary | feigned friendliness, just to be to be heard; begging had to take place,
that cannot be deterred by anything.
But through had to be the beautiful garment of virtue, the bribeibene blushing with all . companions

tt

– gg –

be thrown off completely by them at last. |
What was initially calm patience, persevering determination wear, hypocritical behavior when buying and selling was, and unfortunately had to be faithful, all this happened as soon as the Jew feels freer, more independent, as soon as he felt more relaxed, in a never-blushing intrusion= gen, in the rude intrusiveness, and where Gollifions took place, to such a degree over= courageous impudence, of which almost none
Examples can be found elsewhere. a

42. No wonder, study the history of of all usurpers, that of an ambitious man, whom after i a throne; that of the demagogues, who have a | put your hand on the reins of government ; ; the one nes minister, who left them in the weak hands of a weak rulers; that of a Prince, who made his people holy through his renunciation

| privileges to prepare for despotism; the one clever mistress, who remembers the name of her lover
the state = acts, or those of a sect, or that of almost all orders, not the Jesuit Order alone, which strives to become dominant, one will be the above main features everywhere and everywhere

find more o or less w again ; |

m –

43. That less restraint that is separation finds a complete lack of non-blushing, as just said, not only in the traffic of the Sue with the Christians, but in general in dealings
Instead, things that are often of the kind that the educated Christ could not come back from his astonishment, how something is possible; how Biel in general and some things that arise from his individual situation developed, with him gradually nn gee seems to have been

$. XXVII.

~

1. We turn to the Brunbfägen, Rarie ur men, especially trade maxims of the Israelites, and see what powerful influence this into their machinations.

2. Less belongs here the one from their 1 from their attitudes, from their behavior at all= possible collisions with the Christians following sentence, fo meaning he closely to fich ist: u |

* One for ale, and rule for one!
| bes

—: 2256 en

about itself a solid ig ; af a thå -

effective, powerful support in all life events

bens founded, and by such a, for the glorious= common spirit of business life, and a very peculiar national love, with teligide fen terms are interwoven, supported, so that hardly any of it was found among the non-Jews.

the will.

3. But if there is any convincing evidence den: how much character, way of thinking, assumed ne principles, virtues and vices of the history of a people, then the same here, and founds the sentence of that glorious Men, Helvetius, ever more firmly: namely, that everything that man is, only through education in | taken in the broadest sense of the word, is what A he is! |
| 4. Hume asks somewhere: in the woods sits the Germans expressed their love for freedom.

fe words better understood than happened, it must be

| gen ; I want to put the following here. |
5. Back then, when the ancestors of the Germans, the Greek tribe leaving the soil 15

| entered "which their descendants now inhabit, ft
The land is uninhabited and peacefully open to them.
ne, and at the same time unfriendly nature, a then un= Grateful soil, a through lakes, meadows and
The muddy, rough sky invited them to give up their strength | trusting them so much, a. Already by this,
| through peaceful possession, and even more so through the glorious cultivation of the same, through the entire transformation of its wild climate, its raw bo=

dens, the German rightly calls the one he lived on fine ground! – |

6. And, the more effort, the more effort whose cultivation previously cost him, the more he the Germans' diligence, which is praised by all nations 6
, fine grandchildren as the most excellent virtue to avoid= | idleness, the father of all vices, recommend, and the reward for it everywhere= "
| tete; the more dear he became to him, the more intimate his | Love for the one, (don't mothers love those Children most tenderly those who cause them the greatest worries | caused?), the more fiery his efforts towards the better the preservation; the purer and more fitted the fine grips for property and its rights 1 the

•
–

a

! a '

– –

' e

after fine claim for the rightful owner, 'fine |

to be able to call it one's own property; the more unanéla jy
her fine love of independence and freedom | which national spirit is nowhere more dangerous than in the Germans are misunderstood by those in power Fann; the more outrageous fine feelings. against every one E attacks "against every violation of the law, nor empb=

render where a given word is broken, short, hence the German fo fvery 9
| Loyalty and honesty. |

7. Peaceful acceptance, validation, wiley

ly the vast size of the country, and of .

powerful neighbors around it
fen to be, put another trait in the character
racter of the Germans, namely: that the families us:
disturbed went their own way, caring less about N
Others are saddened, but at the same time the mäch=
The greater the love of freedom and independence, the greater the ,ger in her Bufen- nährte. a

8. Common sense, in political terms, could therefore, with the growth of large families, later of the peoples, only then S take place when Ger
but there were those from outside who loved Va=

sl

,

. kerlande, that drive for self-sufficiency but also
then cheered on as much as possible, everyone as night tion under a ftändige head to one union; which even the later fragmentation
the German nation, not even the provincial - Giz ferfücht could be completely extinguished, even if F
* only take place 8

9. It is completely different, far different with ben

Icraelites. From the impudent arrogance of the Romans their homeland (how I would like to do this with example= let the land taken by force be called their fatherland=

nen) are reluctantly received everywhere; where the recording happened, a thousand dangers, previously, exposed; in eternal civil war with their opponents party living, and this should not be entirely common sense of business life have awakened, this should in so many situations, and

.

under some circumstances, to an ever greater

2 Spread of the same, not very a and 'bez stand there interpretatively?

10. The strong attachment of that people is evident but not only in consultation with= and among themselves,

a to support fid in occurring cases, a Ge=

7

– 229 –

drive away from a part of the fellow believers
whose honour and name, where possible, save, so the less danger, the less Shame falls on the whole; even where it is to be carried out, the verb is foreign to the arm=
the justice system, even if it were only through ransom, withdraw; but that community which is glorious in them= spirit, that strong cohesion also appears in a
a more joyful light, which every friend of humanity
min fo much more willingly and gladly highlights, since it
He must be pleased, among the many hardships also this ER to be able to set up. 5

11. There is no people in all the known= earth, which is a tender, compassionate
| Care for the sick, the elderly and the impoverished than the Jews. Their deep interest in the unfortunate part of the people, their willing Support, their careful care of the kind,
that everyone likes to forget the source of the turbidity
This is where this great virtue came from. It is 7

there, we must honor them. P

12. This is closely related to the she fo commendable willing assistance, da, me

the Israelite diligence, activity, insight and justice work with a fellow believer
Such a person can certainly count on that he uses every conjuncture, every opportunity to | be able to use the opportunity that presents itself
can, since he has significant capital to disposing almost anticipates, even if one's own wins by calculating; on the other hand, the Christian,
such a close connection, such a strong togetherness
ment, such a kind of community spirit, for which no historical situation, not a relationship of Israelite nature the becoming could not give up, to develop
| was possible, mostly only from one's own resources
| tell, can only work their way up through self-power. ö
13. This must be no small advance to the ever-increasing rise of the Israelites ben; for it provides even more the associated enthusiastic national love, to deep contempt against all other religious relatives, which in the religious concept: only people of God
ity, deeper than one might assume, founded | may be.
414. According to this national love, the Jew
If only Jews everywhere had the – Borate.

Every purchase and sale "every trade, in short * sabe'
business transaction that was concluded with a Jew |
can be, will in no way be associated with a Christian |
"The money," it says according to one of The maxim everywhere is, "money.
must remain among us." Against this, the to where he can find the most advantageous trade.

fen: believes that this is, with completely different things in the soul underlying feelings through religious and moral principles for cures, feelings, may also be self-interest

just as strong a mobile at the same time, this is it doesn't matter to whom he turns; the man is a Jew de or Christ. He turns even more to the Shopping for the Juben, since this, from further down

reasons, completely cheaper
Prizes in his hands, yes he can even in many cases len sich turn to no one else, because the Jew fo

Some things were able to attract to themselves by exclusion:

b. XXVII. |

| 1. The following maxim i has an even stronger impact on the ö ever higher, ever further distances |

men of the Jews: he a3

—

— 232 —

No fatherland, the world is our base terland! Where we are well, only there ift our lady.

2, Never run afoul of the relationship between | Jews and Christians out of sight, and consider it for this maxim also from the following side:

3. To let foreign authorities rule fen; to no warden, to no state offices,
| as numerous as they find to take part; as Expellees, as immigrants, even as opponents cher of the dominant religion, everywhere only as strangers and indeed the most deviant customs, traditions,
to be respected for one's character and actions that which is most solemn for every people: its

7 Religion freely and publicly according to the rite of the urvä=

ter, according to the sacred regulations
practice, to be forbidden; even the ashes of your loved ones

now and then on foreign, purchased soil, in foreign urns, far separated from Christian corpses, having to collect; can one still expect: | that the Jew Italy, France, Holland, England country, Germany, Poland etc. as his fatherland consider? may he also use the name English, dent=

\

– 233 –

u fher, Polish sc. Jew; that he fatherland= love, that he possesses civic virtues in 1 Busen nãhere *) observe civic duties?

*

8 a
at 1

a) Just search for ba, where wealth tax is a led, like the Jew, who, as I said, for every civic virtue does not have the slightest duty feeling possessed and can possess, as he feels fine Ca= everywhere pital= wealth, the name of being rich, it is by purchasing land in other areas, for which someone has to give up their name, or through

Allocation of fine funds to other places, and by remittances not to be made directly to him, or through what other means there may be to hide "to conceal and hide. knows how to help the state There have been examples that a Jew who paid only a single thaler in tax killed, after the discovery of his very fignable assets are set at 50 thalers had to, and perhaps only half of the 'fine i But state fraud of this kind is not as a deception of an abstract, for which State, unfortunately, is taken only too often, fon= but rather to the totality of the state relatives. Because the more the

Enriched the state and people, desire

~

– 234 –

7 4. To what completely different attitudes, to What completely different procedure leads to this

With deep love for the fatherland,
the German, the Englishman, the Frenchman, | his family at home *), find their

to enjoy company, in fine undivided family

lien = circles to become grey and old, to lose sight of the thought= to enjoy: with what sadness she once follow the funeral procession and see him buried in the tomb

as if he would then rest more gently and happier. |
5. Not so the Josraelite, the father of all tender hearts=

Despite his love, he lacks the highest motive and knows how to convince those governed in this, definitely larger Laft falls, through no fault of the governor, on the middle, smaller population back= This thief=

ftahl, perpetrated on everyone, is the more secret |
he is operated. oe

) How infinitely great must therefore be the ie and Ver= doubts of those who are calling for a national murder
fi) commit the crime of having to leave their homeland.
How serious, how holy and dear must therefore the duty of the rulers, not only the loudly speaking, almost sole cause of those – Pores and listen with all your might –

of humanity, the bond of all civil affairs belonging: the homeland, the fatherland soil paternal customs and traditions, patriotic

Government and laws over everything in the world
tzen. Therefore, if the much larger fruit availability of Jewish women (the physical causes of which were to develop is not the place) a family « father 6, 7 and has several sons; then Je= is intentionally a foreign country for his future residence which is his native soil |

of traffic. For example, if it is a German

Jewish family father, so one goes his

' dr
; – i

to want. Should the Vox populi, vox dei fo ae be valued little? Give people work, |
j fo they have bread, even if it is in bad years have to be bought very expensively. Jes
the German takes the products of the other from him |
artistic diligence, and cast a curse on the “strange | hands in action; then the one can German to the other, the very rich sources because of the inherently rich fatherland, ‘everywhere and | to lend a helping hand everywhere in need and misery
> Offer, and never can then a I 0 lchealing need |
2 will be possible. to e

*

ner « @iitde to England, the other to hal:

country, the third to Sweden etc., as this

"*

from other countries to Germany, namely

ly to the trading cities, so that the number of those leaving is increased by those coming is replaced.

6. The main purpose here is: that these family branches are bent forwards,

nor instilled into the Jewish family main line remain that through such expansion they will be able to most important nutritional juices for the most extensive activities

from all sides, while secret

To be able to form societies without the company to lead it (Sffenlid), and under ge know how to take appropriate measures in this regard,

that the fall of one part never affects the whole,

Yes, what is more, that part is still with a significant profit in the end! –

7. Here only the practical businessman can

sett, of great importance

this is the only circumstance. Not only in respect the secure and extensive correspondence, the serves the Jews to obtain reliable breaking news

– 237 ee.

hold; their ignorance. often with the most unfortunate deed, .

with the complete fall (the strict right of exchange

the positive assets in comparison with the against:
current cash payment nor so significant if) of their

Hauser is accompanied. How often and how much, for example, has a | Dutch or French Jew an urgent message from a house in England, which is on the point to fall, to fall, and in that moment when has failed, who now immediately with more than speed, .

cannot and must not be spared, even if

with more than winged haste an express to a

a German trading city to exchange bills of exchange |
Acceptances to be presented by that failed
House in England, and often in the name:

be accepted at the moment when the unfortunate news from the local Banquerott, but to Late, arrives. Which also from German trading cities to other countries and regions 3

which can happen if, with regard to that island,
Wind, weather and opportunity were favorable,

Not in view of this, I say, will the experienced Kaufmann find that of immense importance,

. but with regard to all other perishable circumstances and secret paths, which under those circumstances easily lead to

; – 238– –

Bang, can be put into practice; it may now the deceitful cover, or the even shameful wicked abuse of the cessation and simulated persecution purchase =Acts, the antedated annulments of So;

tietåts=Contracts etc. wu f. w. concern.

8. In general, whoever has the spirit of commerce in his most secret, most intricate folds, the countless ways of deceit and deceit, of decay

fhaking and fraud are better known, true lich, who is frightened when he thinks of what will happen
the like, if the Jews have more trade routes
and more should be paved. |

9. What has become of the venerable name, of the formerly respectful reputation of German

Merchants have already become what can and may become of it when it comes to the point where it “means: fraud must be committed in self-defense against fraud= be made when examples lead to examples= tear! Because, at first sight, the Man from every hateful idea; with frequent

She will look at it less and less, and how easy it is then moved on to imitation. Examples of

.

= :

Examples follow . finally blur the meaning |
completely, it becomes habit, perjury becomes Ufann Hasn't a publicist long since come up with unheard-of " frivolity, as if it concerned the most insignificant matter

from the world, so that one really does not know whether it

Joke or serious, even banquerotique with in "

| the balance sheet of the ö Bu drawn?

" $ XXIX.

—

}

in itself correct maxim in trade to the Jews their fo mighty Emporion even aaa relieved:

Praying Scope 116 small advantage
7. (Percent) is worth much more, i as a rare antes with Bohemian Ge |

= winn,

4 5
' " XX

. Once again to the immense difficulties.

abilities with which the Jew was initially admitted= me had to fight, was just as

be superfluous, ! than to enumerate the versatile means

,tn, which he necessarily needs to maintain ~ tung fine Syofens seize. knew... =

4
" –
" = ; 1

1, Far more, infinitely more has the following,

*

3. The latter includes, in particular: through incomparably lower prices, however hopeless the ways fuffifcife to be able to perform such, with a small e to l when selling.

4. But if there is anything that the growth of the Jews has increased so dramatically;
ft it is this very important circumstance which is
The nature of the matter is that, unless a secondary circumstance had worked, the shops of the Christians would have been completely ten have to stop, and have long since been completely closed fen would have been! Of course: one has not yet to win the Jews firm, unchanging confidence
nen that one does not have to buy a material
| or stuff of far more than little value,

5 in

\

) In general, to be satisfied with a small advantage
where the Jew had to look for the Christian.
Not so with usury, where the unfortunate Christian is ne miserable refuge to the Jew. For two | contains different, mutually canceling sige
This does not constitute a contradiction. They are Successes of one and the same force, but on different related to different objects. –

Se

– 24 m

ia regard to the consistent quality “or the döllig

' Infallible ones are being deceived; therefore,
Now several of the rich are shopping,
but only such articles, the conscious under= fharvest from 1 to 20 Prorent regardless, to the up to N

* still existing ones of Christians.

8. But how much the Jews W for reasons to be stated further the noticeable difference in prices as follows.
ten detail or manufacturing trade soon noticeably open had to be in order not to have a considerable traffic 5

and give them a far greater yield in

It must be obvious from the outset that we should hand over our hands.

6. For, given the ratio of profit in the sale between a Jew and a Christian,

a: 3 of a certain measure or weight; so is on the other hand, in a much greater inverse ratio, the
: possible, incomparably lower prices because of number |
the daily customers of the Jews and Christians = 9: r. .
This is calculated on both sides for the whole,

and continue the calculation for a while,

to see what Hoot u aa we 8 |

you get to.

—

“7. The profit from the turnover of only one e in zi= gen year: one million thalers, so the= to ?/, of which into the Cáffffe of the Jews, and only J in that of the Christians. If the Christian Families with extremely restricted lifestyles tel for the so incredibly numerous and diverse needs of life in the year, If, on the other hand, the Jew himself, with much greater Expenditure 3/5 of fine / consumed; so he remains still /e to Sursee, to the Mule of Gel= the rest.

a 8. How useless is the question everywhere: where This is where the immense wealth of so many Jews comes from fic families; where do riches come from Riches accumulated among them, and how may it come that this people the money-machine always more and more to itself? I don't want to be it main nor dispute; but it is said: that here and da $\frac{1}{4}$ of the total capital assets cher inhabitants are now already in the sea of Sue the un |

9. It cannot and will not fail, dex some statements of this writing some objections be opposed; 5 it is! Especially it will mean: does not shine clearly from the past and everywhere it is clear that they, the Christians, may now, without giving up the income granted to them= means to see usurious owners who sought to obtain a high rent, or those who, when buying a fake, give their name to the Inter: nephew of a Jew; ; or be it the merchant= spirit that looks at a 716 per mille when it to be won by the Jew; or venal persons of both sexes who are in Jewish service, the .. interest to promote, have devoted themselves to, etc.

—

"that they, the Christians, themselves alone

It is because of this, what = the Jews; and become vach?

10. It is and can never be enough for some feyn, to have prevented this objection by:

that every emerging, every fur=
ö viren the party, whatever it may be, so because of the conflicting interests of the people, here and there at the opposing party assistance, support

Kung, active participation P Appendix, ways and

I only ask for one example

"

1 from the N history, which is the counter=

LE

thheil, without referring to the experience we ourselves have
. memorable time. If the Franks ever made progress in the fatherland, if shameless Germans did not pave their way
But should Germany now bear the yoke of the Franks forever, because those unworthy people so willingly bent their necks?

11. And if it becomes very difficult for some where from the character, the thinking= type, the way of acting, especially from the religious fen and moral concepts and related Principles of the Israelites are discussed 8 the requirement change: that Christians, for the preservation The same thing also happens when the equilibrium is would like to own; on the other hand, thousands will be at 7 believe at first sight: Nothing is easier than the above mentioned trading maxim to secure Make an objection to Finns: why Christians do not choose the same maxim as their guideline, which many, both direct and indirect, N the fie according to one | 7

| 12. This now gives us the opportunity.
show: how impossible those men about the

| u |
to judge the current affairs of the Jews maturely len are capable of the trade in their
The parents are far away.

13. For if the Christian also ge Handelé = Marime really wanted to follow, ei= must follow properly: if he fuch fuch fuffi fts ... lead, as the Jew, is absolutely not possible, and this for the following reasons. ;

14. It is not enough that the Jew finally has arrived at the purchase of the incredible quantity . 5

held auctions of English manufactured goods to have attracted almost exclusive attention;
but the type of purchase specified must be – at the same time) should be considered. The presentation was of requires but, in the * times gush to go.

15. Whether he will be allowed to meet Jaden right from the start= was allowed to attend the public auctions, is a separate question. Who could have imagined that at that time? some consequences that currently result from it= proceeded? Even the greatest connoisseur of human nature.

war. then, the later intervening causes we=gen, in fine calculation came up short; if -

-

- 246 - / moe

he would have had all that in mind, about which history and ethnology teach, namely lich: if heterogeneous parts, they may now be political or religious or moral views,
Opinions, principles are very different,
a state or states that
from a constant friction of forces,
but that the striving of the usurping Partly everywhere and always with the opposition in completely opposite! -

16. Because there reigns a completely different Spirit, which through careful consideration, through Prudence, prudence, reflection, even through Using all and any weaknesses of the devices

they, through common spirit: one and the same Sutereffe never to lose sight of it; there is a completely different, partly natural, partly borrowed Character that leads to a completely different action and Drive powerfully spurs on, in which a zeal, a Striving, a restless activity, a never-resting one.
vigilance, a choice for all and everyone allowed= ter and illicit means nn. perceived men will be. ; >

- *

- 247 -

17. Now if a certain spirit has such a cha:
-vacter, and such a procedure would lead to brought that the heterogeneous part has a certain equal attitude with a fine counterbalance; for

'never remains such a person, as the yearbooks

teach the world, stand by it; only now will all

| powerful impulses of greed, ambition, pride, aggrandizement, dominance in the set a more powerful pace in order to, the opposite Because of the never-ending antagonism, the achieved

forces, the stolen value, the usurped wealth then more and more to secure, more and more to
And only then will you find the feeling of being secure, completely

lig protected, preserved forces instead, then a

Such a class of people is all the more usurping, the more widespread, only then do they dare to

To boldly seize the rights of others, begin to suppress, persecute, and listen

~

on: with destroy, if not the often good late he=

Antagonism stood up against them most forcefully

ftresses, leads them back into their nothingness.

18. Enough that the Jews' initial business only consisted of haggling; that was how their opponents were seen

\

: wart at so-called death houses and fallites=
Auctions are welcome because they offer the best ft highest prices, each one under their Hands up and to dress it up so that it

'gained a completely different appearance, and at the same time,
. because the junk trade will soon be particularly popular in Hân=
ben liable, and a large supply for selection ey Br W could become.

19. – Character, with out-inquiring gaze, with gradually acquired fervor activity that arises from the situation, pressure of the circumstances | had been gone and acquired, the Jew now knew to check exactly how far he could reach the
| of a Christian may and could drive up; – that u against one Jew to another, the glorious community spirit everywhere strictly observing, never the purchase value elevated, instead of relying on individuals among themselves was, this and that, the one and the other first= hen, and – after the auction is completed,

to settle the matter. ec

20. How it came to this was that they, the Jews, through this elected community

– 249 –

tel, there the much larger number already .

fuch they could with the Christian, according to what is told will play an easier game. To dissuade him from buying to shrink back more and more, they drove, under agreed to have everything that the same wished to go as high as possible, so that he had to stick to it to his detriment. :

Did it happen that the last exaggerated Both at the side of a Jew; so here and there, I suspect because of the loud murmuring, the question: whose both is the last one; what is it about the same number of Jews unanimously said: the and who, namely a Christian, commanded last. Forget= bens wanted the opposite and the truth claim "he was through the glorious commonwealth= spirit shouted too loudly; and, probably, to
To calm the discord, it is said here and there have, it should be put aside, and * another:
thal BEN will be,

21. Far . fhall it, they say, with the in Auc= f, which has emerged in enormous quantities in recent times tions of English manufacturing goods. It
It is said that an alphabet of Jews was found there

*

fhinin: A bids on a caveling, the rest filence; the same happens with B, with C and all 1 rest, and so they divide the booty,

22. Would it still be admirable that fhich in the hands of the Jews also on specula= tion, the purchase value of which not the fourth part of the inner content (the ingredients, substances, materials), and the fie by peddling, by visiting the annual Markets, fairs, by wandering around the 'Villages, in the towns and country towns everywhere the German people with considerable profit, all low
Regardless of the price, you know how to get there.

£ 23. Where from, and how now on German Markets for German industry the competition any can be achieved if the infinitely high Machinery of England the number of hand-made Processors have already mechanically processed thousands of times increased; if so, except for those who are based on speculation goods, those dead, the livelihood of the Human-killing machines the prices without any Comparison so extremely low, and to

– 25. –

a

this, besides many other secondary causes), that and blessed, pernicious circumstance still a

24. Not enough yet. That is mostly only said of those goods which in England on speculation, made in the most frivolous way

) If you want to have the sentence vividly before your eyes ben; that for the promotion of every good, as well as : every evil thousand and thousand unnoticed, the Eye completely removed things intervene; that just there=
No human wisdom can predict the consequences, except of the latter, and hence the fpå .
consequences that have occurred since then in terms of their arrival and its Weng, often, but 8 ange=
. will. oe Ä

The following is in view of the saying ten a small remark, but true. What contributes the vanity of women to that which Eng» land gives them the means to fic) mos ncthlich for $x \frac{1}{2} - 2$ Thaler a new dress to

to be able to create, instead of the women of our parents 20, 30, 40 thalers for her clothing

len, but which was calculated for 15, 20 years, and therefore a tremendous consumption ratio of about 1 24 ee

v2

– 22: –

become, or even become shelf-warmers who have no Farmer in the country wants more there, and should be good enough for Germans (that's right) |
this with national honour, with national dignity
a?), but the _ types 9 fall here
. before. | nr

~

25. England had previously, like every . | trading nation, its committers in German trading cities. At that time, Germany was still not become Lufitania. In recent times but let those from that country in German fian cities in Perfon. That here the | = German merchant the provision= or commission= Fees are lost, is a small thing in the bargain

just as here in the most sophisticated way refined, every profit that can be made from trading and during the shipping, to escape the Germans “draw, which is too extensive to detail here, and and at the wrong place. 3

26. Since now the trade with the manufactures=
Baaren has fallen entirely into the hands of the Jews;

fo the business of the British is mainly only with these. Now the Englishman may in everything, 7

u Fe

what I refer to 8 trade, still so skillful, still so clever and extremely skillful, he will
nevertheless disadvantaged by the agen, |

27. If, for example, prescribed goods are the inner Germany to a Jewish trading house '= sent; find the goods, the general praise=

most recognized, real character of the English
according to, also in the most precise way according to submitted pro= ben delivered; is the strictest, most precise attention

speed in terms of quantity when packing | observed, and the whole thing about two | Months of credit, after which cash remittances are to be made

len, 5 sold; fuch it is said (not as above according to Er= | payment, but from experience) in letters to £ Receipt of goods almost continuously, mebe or less: |

x

"The money you have received re did not drop out after the rehearsals, for which Please allow us the following decoration: On bale no.
3. has this, at No. 4. has that missing, makes a Refactie of –" It is also sometimes said: the
The freight forwarder or the shipmaster does not have to pay attention have been enough; these and those bales have

~,

| ae suffered, the bial Haverirte made a Difference of –. And, instead of after two months ten cash remittances, drafts are sent in Payment was made, which was still two months to run fen, and often a noticeable loss of Course nor about the un can be found.

28. To this Alen comes, among others, that the Jew seeks out the smallest advantage.
If he measures ten cubits, it is only 9 /. The Christ knows it, but he says: the Jew measures narrowly,
there is always a little thing missing in ten cubits; he | but sold so much cheaper! That little thing but gives him the advantage of a whole yard, which, given the significant turnover, does not small profit. So the Jews have 8 million) ells sold, then the pure Er=
A contribution of 800,000 ells flowed into their coffers.

*

*) How easily the author pronounces the millions!
But is it not clear from the statistical works that England only had 7 million yards

cotton fabric is imported annually in Germany,
which, surely, alone is far more than the obie

*

f

29. Without first asking: how the Christian=ly merchant on such paths and at such a chen procedures to keep the same steps in a position fe; which advantage the Jews thereby more and more must be? Without first asking: whether the Christians, for example, maxims and procedures of Art fic), one should rather look to how through such nonsense the industry of the Var .

, terland completely destroyed, and completely * =
must be. Ä |

g. XXX.

Religious and ori terms of Je-N zaelites, who to that ö less with=

have worked.

1. Who can make a 'stinging' Kine Ge-grasp the object without wounding it, in order to

' ua 4. N

/

gen: make up of the ones mentioned; as if from the same reports make it clear that almost the entire ten English machines to be seduced to Europe
nerie=(manufacturing) goods to Germany alone go! And one asks where ä

1

*

more if you have to intervene more deeply than, under each the other circumstances "never inclination, will and reluctance= fight teen. Everyone should venerate, where there is no profession, out of wise consideration for others, the deity in style= len for themselves, as and after fine understanding to' a sublime worship of the Supreme Being,
I therefore honestly confess that I am lying would have liked to avoid, since. but it is

Representation of the whole is absolutely essential, essential common necessity; so it could not be Wefe be passed over, even on the One and Others were to point out what was happening under= which would never have been touched under the circumstances.

2. Moses, probably the initiator of the efote= sifhen religion of Egypt, this cradle of the later wi: hin

misery, anger and despair in German country, if factories that employ 500 to 1000 »People fed under the foreign government ben, now we have to let such people go around without bread!
Why is Sweden's Bey not praised enough?
fpoke not from Germany long ago to imitate mung bins -

- 257 - u:

am Steufnifen Secrets and similar religions, fraternities of the past, took the fo erhodig=
. a correct idea of a single supreme being with | with the pious mind, which is superior to all cruder people eigen ift, The one important 3: obvious truth to counteract the cherished superstition,

who choose every means that they can.

pale to them *

3. Be it baptized that he has that ecatene idea | really not fully grasped, or even the son of Israel who is inclined to idolatry more firmly fel'n, fine view of the God he taught,

more attraction, more warm affection, more firm loyalty, more unbreakable obedience in the | fen penance for the same would be enough to awaken instead of a supreme eternal being, which is the author, Provider, caregiver, father of all people, without difference of religion, to teach, to teach hear what that immortal, never enough to revere=

the Reformer remained, he formed the God=

ity merely to a national god. | where Ieracl, id
fayed he, the Lord and he God * one |
God!' |

17 vw] aa * 258 EEE –

4. In doing so, however, he achieved a fine purpose, a very peculiar concept of high nationality
nal = value of religious content in the bosom of fine people deeply; but also at the same time a strength inseparable from pride, a strength that lasts until rigidity, a firm sticking of ancient customs and habits, a we the will and a striving against it in its character who do not adapt to the time and circumstances nestled where and when (Roman rule) National: Value and Nationality – Power of political restraints showed themselves in all their powerlessness and need;
as if it were heading towards total destruction go; as if it were true that in the Nile
the entire history of Israel was hidden.

5. Furthermore: the time = calculation of the Egyptians and other ancient nations, or also abbreviate the period of the Earth on his own initiative
zend, he led to bring his people into closer kinship fposition with the first people, the Forefather of his people from the first man, from Father to son, and so on in a straight line, and if he did so, he would thereby become a natural He:

he 8 \

ben of the 3 oaths; gef to ene fcem=
the property. at, *

6. Not enough without the consequences 1 to be able to: whether contempt is not counter-contempt= hatred does not inevitably produce counter-hatred:
whether not to suppress everything or to curse or fpat to be suppressed inevitably from this must emerge; whether to suppress everything cken, the more strength he, his people, could have,
because it never became a national force in was; certainly not the small, needy because of the fertile soil it acquired had been constrained by powerful nations, and keeping unequal steps with them; even less could get there, the so large number of Pelee and wills that consumed the marrow of the land; nor less because his people were subjected to strict fagung des Völker = Verkehr never to futures and Sciences rise, through the lack of who cannot gain support for their artistic endeavors, even less the invented, the edited bring into circulation through trade with other peoples

He was afraid that his Boll does not return to sensual images » worship= ul |

a

t

| return that at the same time through seclusion it creates a particularly high national value, a

such in the entire history of mankind

knew, unparalleled intolerance of everything that was not Jew, but also the noblest germ of humanity humanity, general love of humanity, was completely stifled.

7. Furthermore: ignorant of the close connection
| ges moral concepts, that impossible.
being able to imagine what even Lycurgus,
a Solon cannot actually be demanded,
that: as the principle of all civic virtues,
just as the basic concepts of morality on iron Tablets with indelible, unchangeable letters must be dug in so that nothing remains perishable cher, nothing more unfortunate can be thought of than:

by means of a caufuiftics the letter of the laws, the
the strictest duty, that of the most sacred oaths
To be allowed to go, he gave the instruction: "you fshould honor the property of others," but emphasized this related to property rights, thus one of the most important norms of civil society "whose strict adherence, whose unchanging observance never in further application a dividing line between

–

– 26 ee

princes= and people= morale, so that we=

who said: Say, he said, say to the Egyptians, lend us silver and golden vessels for sacrifice trustworthy hands, we are, he added, only *
away, it is our property. |. eos
8. It is a serious question: whether without such loose concepts of "morality, the influence of infinitely larger scope than ever before

thought: whether the Psalmist to his created | |
ever said, 'I have given the sons of the man,
I have taken the throne and sworn to save their lives

ben to spare, you, my son, "bid on this

| Oath not bound, secure your throne.

9. and should the influence of that one really be 0
great and powerful in their dealings with one another, in | Action of the Joraelite with an ae
and have been; how infinitely greater must the One be.
ö river there was, there will be, where the Jew the facing the Gentiles. \

"10. If, however, it is asked, that

Religious book in the hands of Christians finds; fo ft are the holy precepts= ten of the immortal reformer as the sole proposition:

– 262 – 2

ii bent, which is unique to the Christians and af:
lein should serve as a norm, regulations: those with a brief look back at the gaps in the Mosaic pre= bears morality everywhere on its unchanging principles so that the civil Society serves to maintain a fair attitude, and therefore then also, in an irrefutable way, they, the Christian religion, in the spirit of the founder, fic) Wel= ten far, in dignity, value, content and power above that of the Jews, and the more solemn "glory= worthy to be an object of a holy covenant their faithful, inviolable observance
te; fo could become that when the great, sublime

Q3^epurpose of the same would ever be possible to achieve, the Founder of the League, to the powerful influence will in princes= and people=morality; in states= and international rights; in the peace, security and well-being= journey of the nations; in the row then never seen he, never believed states=History 2c. an imperishable= fame, as long as this earth lasts,

would remain, that celebrated king of pious Desire, those men philosophical, on rough Paths fid) through-winding dreams were then, for Signs of the imagined impossibility, on the straight

U

– 263 – “ & ©

the, secure paths of the rare bed,
nad) the prescription of the founder of our Regilion, the=
still come true, and from the north aug | would be the highest level of your humanity

reached. – . ee

| ee "ET; And finally, to complete the capstone of that fo |
strange, unique in the yearbooks of the world system; to find, he ordered to higher prestige, to increase the income of the priests, an annual atonement sacrifice – festival, through which the people of | | all the sins and transgressions of the past year= |
res was removed and completely acquitted.
But folk concepts are not enough to feekness, prudence and guardianship

become, (One foot set in the realm of vices, | draws the other irresistibly over,) so they could

| | People's concepts very easily, as if by themselves, nem the unfortunate idea of a Blanquet for the annual chen transgression bill; ; which certainly |
“ and all concerns have not been ignored.

7

12. If now a people such of humanity |
is detrimental to morality, not at all evs.
fprosperous, and the Birger = and Völker=Wohl fo harbors less than pleasant concepts and principles, Power of firm, stubborn cha= racters so deep, so indelible, so indelible in whose heart is rooted; if, in addition,

has such a decided aversion to use his mind to clarify more and more; so others may whether such ideas, such concepts and notions religious and moral content, also any have an influence on civil society,
and which one? and to whose detriment?

13. Only one thing: if the Jew sees the one on a Christian most common exploitation, usury, in short,
che injustice, which deviation from loyalty and Honesty it may be, he really sees it as what it is? at least as the gebik Christian, his religion, his education, his according to moral concepts, it has to be considered sees and must consider? What firm confidence has one still has to take the oath sworn in court nes Jew? How many measures ft have always been devised to protect themselves from to secure perjury; but then it is everywhere and everywhere= half the purpose (don completely and certainly achieved?

– 5

265 +---

Sixth and final section, | 7

21st century

I. We have the, albeit excellent, diverse, directly and indirectly in the fmuch profound causes of the ri=
fensual rise of the Israelites so far | paid and presented, which together amount to a now already prevailing imbalance of the business, the means of earning, the state of assets between Christians and Jews; we are currently coming

tig to illuminate that: in which, beby fo

circumstances, actually the present
The Jews' call for an even greater "we" ō ...
brief overview of all those means of acquisition and

| Raheungs = silence, which the Jews partly acquired by way of exclusion, partly in have a decided, too significant preponderance, and in respect of other business with the Christians completely equal parts, or even without them to allow the minimum of means of earning to connect where it should not be, where the the holding of both parking lots even more noticeably must be shaken. |

A. First of all, the so very considered ly, in greatness entering, in their hands almost money alone = trade, connected with Agiotiren; Discounting, Bills of Exchange – Brokerage, Money= Changer, even with tilting, 5 rockers, especially with the melting of the richer coins ten 2c. How many hundreds of thousands are not now in European affairs with regard to the Subsidia "Gontributions", restitutions; Complaint= ö mation through purchase, sale and repurchase, through mittiren, Traffiren, Provision, Cours 3c. in their

Casses flowed. | |
" B. Möller business line, with the exception Ser Schi. 3Mäkler and some others – |

'heegeftalt with the Christians, that even if the number

the Christian brokers are much more impressive, against a single Jew in this and that country; volumes do more business than twenty to * ; brokers among the hot ones. ee ee

Here 8 nog, bes foser bide Jews bod
Mine Ber drive, without sworn *) Möller |

*) For a more detailed discussion of those who have great
If you are in a distant trading town, you may find the following words serve: chance, need and antagonism have

9 ben, of course, everything and anything in the world
Already in ancient times, the
in all trading states men under one certain names (Mäkler in German, and Mezzanos or sensales; Corredores; courtiers;
Brokers etc. among the Italians, Spaniards, French

Zofen and English) publicly ordered and sworn in, under the condition that everyone legally provable purchase and sale in trade by fie completed, and above it (covered with linen End = piece of paper) must be certified in order to oral – from sudden rise or fall

the goods dependent purchase Contrast er

1 5

'be good, since here no positive law can be enacted
can find; how someone can decide about his property
disponieren whether to keep it or sell it, and how he wants to sell it. Because, if it is his own,
thems law is the basis of civil security,
so it can not help but be free for everyone will have to wait and see whether over the mouth
ly concluded, self-written, but witness

am.

~
+ for ner the official delivery of the goods according to the Samples etc. provide legal evidence; also inspection valuation and taxation (valuation), according to their

Were there any knowledge about the sea?

. no haverirte (from the lake: water-damaged) goods
| to offer for public sale the same

Exercising the rights of the shipper, Em= to be able to attend the security and the insurer, etc.
f. w. Whoever now has the entire trade with us ter eyes, it will be easier to get an idea of

: given the immense volume of business in this city
dves can do, all the more so if it is ge= |
It is thought that there may be cases where one and the same product in one day in three, four Hands over: | 2 |

– 269 = =

open purchase "Contract may result in a lawsuit in court could stand; in which case only plaintiff, since he has no ne evidence from a publicly sworn broker sen can, with fine complaint at the trade = a completely back to N.

But such a case rarely occurs,
where the non-sworn Jew negotiates as a broker,
and has concluded the purchase and sale, through which the emergence of any dispute, any a lawsuit itself can be possible, since he business on a secure footing, and at the same time the con= contracting parties a certain brokerage advantage (Mätler: fee) to be paid. =

C. Furthermore: all trades, all Gandthiccune
Ages of new inventions, new discoveries, new Conveniences, for which, as well as for some older trades, the past no guild , no Guild, has not established a body, find in their hands, and in some cases more significant than in those of the Christians. These include: tobacco =, cigars e, American = dam=, wallpaper factories; haircloth= weaving mills, Cotton = spinning mills; soap = boiling mills; gar= factories connected with the leather trade; wood sawmills

N = RES 270 victory

veien united with the timber trade; even Cattun=
| Gabrifen and. Sugar=refineries rc. 1 .

D. The junk – = trade in all fine endless parts, which also include antiquarians. 5

E. The entire, so incredibly significant= full, consisting of countless, infinite articles Detail= Trade of all conceivable so-called Ma:
– aufactur = goods "with the foreign trade of the= connected to the same, for the reasons given above because of, fot " in their e |

F. That they are admitted to practical pharmacology fen, less concerned with the ferefserious, ferious study of the feit= E that has to be explored so deeply science (which among all sciences is:
fpeculiar has the peculiarity in itself: that when which are treated theoretically, no matter how systematically den, it can still practically adapt to the changing times is too subjugated, as and after the noticeable changed customs, changed ways of life – not perhaps only with regard to new, previously unknown Enjoyment of food and drinks, but here in the broadest sense – their powerful influence

N

flow into the constitution of the "body: Auth o that therefore periodically one kind of disease in the Alige;

my like disappears, another but to her place is planted; which is a type of disease

| weakened, the other appears all the more dangerous;

in short, where a thousand things have a historical reputation

get, which science, therefore, already in the fer Refection / a study which encompasses more than any other scientific subject in the field of knowledge the causality connection must have the necessary information constantly under one's eyes.

without the higher, more abstract sciences

are to be learned, and which only such venerable men
ner, such as Selle, Platner, Reimarus and others to use) as well as intercourse with sick people:
ities, need not be mentioned here:

den; but well, that they also belong to the so extremely important, in civil affairs fo immensely deeply intervening notary – field, where trust and Belief is so incredibly important, I am and I will.

fishing and being found.

6. It is and fhr pale. Lotto

* could, with the not enough to. Joining stove

–

– 272 –

firing and pushing the lottery ticket, no bef= far away than are entrusted to their hands. Much= but it is easy that such a finely thought-out lottery could be worth considering; where, except the Giro of the Losers, the A Claiffe be= promotes (8. XIX. 4.), in addition to the attractive purchase until the last moment, even an agiotiren with the remaining numbers take place. |

H. Furthermore: It is true, they do not yet find in the ancient guilds of shoemakers, tailors, carpenters,

Blacksmiths, hatters etc. have joined; against this reprå=

fentirt, as mentioned above, the Jew here and there

1 German trading cities the masters of almost all of the | most important trade, and can, as already mentioned:
said to be the factor of all foreign, foreign Chinese transactions can be viewed.

The Jew who owns fine shops
with foreign hats, shoes, stockings, leather gloves, tinsmiths, copper= fchmidt work, Lakir = work of all kinds, with, Mo= bilien, with made garments of every kind, which brought here on English ships, filled
4 = | phat,

/

– 273 – af =

1

. has suffered completely, he who has not a spark of

5 * Gelahbäiebe: in the bosom can have, it can laugh watch as the laborious craftsman, the hat= maker ' shoemaker, tailor ' carpenter, sheet metal worker fchmidt &c. earn their bread poorly, to

Some are not able to support their wives and children.

der von ä = retten.

2. Wherein HE can then, under fos be= | circumstances, their further requirements
You are a craftsman without the name

men to lead; no actual goldsmith, en 2

but buy all and every new, conceivable gold = and

Silversmiths= "Works of English manufacture; no=ne watchmakers, but they deal with watches, as well as with Jewels and precious stones the most extensive hand=

del. To live in the cities where they want= len? to also take advantage of every advantageous location for whatever the price, the Christians more and to be able to gain more? or: lying . 'to be allowed to buy Grinde? How many of the same has | ben fie through Schein = purchase already in their hands. to 8 I knew it! Should this go any further,

aum with rent = bids the worst usury, and

N " +5 18

\

at Bürger all of a sudden except for all his food gen to be able to? . In the guilds, in the gentle to be accepted as Profefftonists under Jews and non-Jews, probably not their actual purpose; but probably To take part in state offices, the Jew likes to bring it to ulles for more, unequal stronger and more effective according to his wishes, will and intentions for the lively Suterefle © to be able to guide and lead a fine people. :

N 3. If you take a look at the out= statements of their possible representatives, so others may judge "whether they come from a place other than a country" fihtepunet can be considered: 2

4. "They, the Jews, are called his, feeling for human rights, also Citizens are even more so because every Exclusion of people born in the state from »Citizenship of the general, perfect Er= | submission of the . Purpose Header in the way laid down. " 2 . 5 155 menfgerredtet PEN ie She too shall be blessed with beautiful

fought words, for which u France the signal ae | 1

| try, where possible, to win the hearts of the.
To bribe people, where possible, the country's kenden, the so-called sober souls, with Us nn in to be distinguished. 5 ee
6. But the Prem le word: Whom, 5 any from time immemorial, especially soon after the Anz beginning of the French Revolution in the mouth of the Sag kobinism, in the mouths of impudent, unruly people
been abused, so abused that,
| if such a thing were possible, it would almost destroy his nobility lier; just as much it is also pon: the prince | speakers of the Söraelites not used up, but bole lig misused. They use it everywhere, |
as if the Contrat social, like any contract, no mutual obligations, no mutual mutual inviolable obligations hold; as if it were rather on a complete state of nature, a right of the star= 7 core, regardless of direct or indirect force, in abstain; or at least, as if All and Je= which is retained in him from the raw state of nature |
– as if in cosmopolitan relationships
bel

– 276 –

sniffen, everyone and everyone said: Marie pre-emptively, make any claims reckless, and could lean towards Jacobinism; as if the term human rights is a synthetic term grasp in infinitum and absolutely not to be limited by anything as if human rights were to be intertwined with global civil rights nowhere and not at all in any a collision could occur. (Compare §. XXI. 55.
Note) “ ei

7. What can contribute more to human rights?
claim, as the holy, inviolable Maintaining personal safety and security, and nor is it in the famous freedom-loving Eng= country the suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act. to has become possible several times without us getting into the = righteousness of such a momentary removal, which in other less constitutional countries probably not vachnungswath fein . N to admit. :

. 8. To the Israelites not only their sides; except their Hermath, "their dwelling among us will= N love and enjoy; rather, they also

| legal means of earning a living for their subsistence |

—

4

3 – 2 –

Alas, if such are equal under the Shug

to allow laws to be enjoyed undisturbed and unhindered; |

This is how far the application of human rights goes. |

By no means, "but by no means: that one should give them all ways and means to provide all food=

springs gradually into their midst; that one sees their progress, their gigantic growth=

thum is subject to unlawful state action; that oneself
offer a hand; little by little a predominant | de, thereby becoming a party to be reconciled, a

a hostile state next to a ficlish state
| i file, ae = es 2

8 " . 1 Een ' 5 5 + *
"" 1. " 9

el : . ' Be - D

2.06 Even more inadequate is the above mentioned led reason: why the Israelites in Staarsbûr.

gerthum to be recorded, from the following side:

te considered,, so inadequate that he - to own Dar Bun bt 4

" a ee
+ -

10. Contains; like an extremely powerful every statesman of our time asks, the word

| State more than five letters, will therefore be the concept of purpose, final intention of the state everything that which sums up a well-ordered |

- 4

A

- 278 -

Constitution sets its sights on achieving the state
purpose; only the welfare of the course, and by no means the interest of individuals
Mr, still dilzu foreign parts, that n he gtegat ies borfieten, 7G"

ra ' en 35

until Demnad stands that dann RE
The following antithesis irrefutably opposes the above sentences= | about: You, the Jews, can, with the progressive tense rent conditions do not make them squatters,
at least not where there is already a misconduct niß prevails, and where the encroachment is not so very light measures can be taken en, 9, and this because the inclusion (the inclusion

a) 'Weta a dnerbiich distance for the narrowing N "would here be between Germany and England
Instead, in these two countries those

The matter would be moved at the same time. Already at the

.. ting comparison this becomes clear to everyone

tend to be, so that there is no need for discussion.

3 But what Germany and England have to say in this ae can be dictated, also applies with regard to of the various states of Germany, whose abs

" weifyende Modifeattonen du Art fines that, what

7 2 275 – ee
Federation) diefer marine, State ge, but men
heterodox humanity in citizenship, bet |
general, ball-conmwn achievement of the state,
mwefes the mowers x the most dangerous ones " |
N apparently puts in the way
ey 48. But if they, a0 from one another= be blessed on the side, in view of the meltbärg fundamental rights, the acquisition and free exercise of all ler and every trade; would this, not alone" for the moral improvement of the Jews
my contribution, not just their commercial | Direct poison into other channels, furthermore, demand=
dawalge potions erfolge ter bring so that each u

7 mM rp .
wi. a Mae ore

a oe bette wi m Nod 7 5555

"on a FR completely eye Senn: like, in ane
. | but impossible without their entire »state=

ar .. Houshagfupg, zn zerstören, Statt finden kann. So 9 as in general. according to the inevitable fate or a nation divided into ethnic groups, already in we Generally bry one fome, especially with the=

those where form of government, garment of justice

ligion, spirit of Selene, modulation of the state Br Merimm: the Derfungeatt, the Life= and Hand= lungs = white noticeably mn eal aie

%

71

" 8

– 280 ZEN

nem MieverhättaiFFE) ba wor it unavoidably instead finds, on a far more practical Ark, than by a constitutional restrictions “through strict policies ciy.= Laws that too easily prevent the emergence of hateful

Be given coercive measures, be forced to do something?

13. This question “I wish that someone 9 from the following points answer

ar Pl

2A. What is important in the admission of the confessors of the > fic religion on a completely opposite Ways should have happened: ih=
| only pursue trades, and they are free from everything
To prevent trade! This is still possible a presently with the now once taken 1 Direction of the Jews, with their deeply thought-out= good, highly correctly calculated trading =reason= “, the execution of which is already in | Hands-on means is possible, is this,
I ask, still present on any
ri conceivable way, executable? |

See ED

and bifelben norms in all and ian bus. to 3 e ftehnem. |

* ar –
b. Will this mean that all the changes made, | be the disproportion of the owner of the 1 Beeb gen Standes inc, a have produced, |
thus in the 3 1 1 0 Sieve of the "Gabe fine 4 in 1 Shack,
in its religious and moral terms,
deeply founded, by location, environment,
deeply rooted attitudes, opinions,
process= and 1 ns, |
lich 3 C

Re ry 5 2444 rn | * 8 4
8 y goat Coy " A

. > fi
{ Ln

d- 1 wanted to go to the above mentioned precautionary measures
" geln engenfaen, dt the above-mentioned tela:
chen should counteract, who gives the "
Certainty that there are really means to do this cs Lime; and. if they should be available – that they are successful for now and in the future. Su= 2

– in " * e can 2

Wises ' ets 1

* a]
*

e. ican: Manner in den and, PAPER and University cities trade = poison works only to some extent in the whole scope?

the

K Stad? them the nameless Schlei,

and., Rebertineges jc e bekanse geworden; pw

te which ben. Jew; every norm for every pre= fchrift , id: fey ; soft flesh, may the highest human wisdom has devised it

Ev. ben, to sneak around / you taw=

N 1 ea 5

et ae a u: em n now. dieß Alles not. Aug sit Guß

ity, not reassurance, for the future, into which man so rarely

lowers your gaze, should be able to be answered,

2 what would happen next: UR Dep: ec

l. of the fp heterogeneous parties?

1 SUN % «a ete Ga Es

23 vel: Instead of all trades, one; only | serve for. illustration here. He, the leather trade, partly connected with tanneries, eats here and there in German trading posts almost entirely in the Hands: the Jews= What would now inevitably

The result will be if Jews, apart from their considerable trade in foreign shoes,

in addition, the shoemaker's craft is practiced publicly

* could have done? The so lively, moving,

—

A

common interests of the people, fine
a community spirit, its strong, everywhere at expense

the. Christians, unity, being and:
quenching thirst for profit has already been achieved!

fich, by all means at his disposal, : 7 keaft of all the paths they have chosen, with the! professionals from his midst, those in= conclude lasting contracts that Christian

Profeffionists will soon stop working completely, would have to disappear completely. Sihon An fich would

aud. their common spirit this emerges, nor world

more from the striving and counter-striving, the then a new railway would have been opened,
irritating due to the unexpected tolerability:

poder: and“ cherfstricher Hanswörks: seren, Re
Vishně and Christian master, irritated turn bie Safin inevitably to be created ;Eolliftoneir,
where anger, spite, hatred are all enemies= |
gen Art on the part of the latter only to the Jewish

Puofefftoniſten to an ever greater spur,

supported by the means at our disposal

would serve the 3rd season *

lg you dafchlaunigen. " nl

. a : BEN .
sets}

eee ai ees

F. XXII.

i Pai . oy a ae

" 1. Instead of defensive, truly adverse opposition= stood to pursue further, whose decision I like to overtake others, I want to do the following the thoughtful, unprejudiced Böraelite, the righteous man among them, his own. gen wee, bei fstellen:

= ige penn be inverted old. Instead of fine de, when the Israelites nody: present in. Sus. that formed a state and an empire, and: if it could ever have come to that with them= to tolerate: that non-Jews there in the cities, even in the capital ten; and if these non-Jews, of the striking ratio of food sources and Regardless of their wealth, they dared to licherweise there with even greater demands to appear; whether then Jewish rulers, Jewish Priests, in short, the Jewish people such demands= even listen calmly to the arguments, let alone how and on what occasions one can find there – men. was!

2. Even less should the unprejudiced Jew de decide here: to what further rights 5 and claims he has in a foreign country in the That he could hold himself entitled if, not he, the educated Jew, but rather his people as opponents subject of the religious and moral concepts of Christians among them are nevertheless so tolerated, that there is no imbalance in the state. in the state fe: EM: a ee eG

3. Not bes eo be PEN sufi |
ried Israelites to their own.
| dinge felt 9 * |

"whether in the current circumstances .

niß of the means of acquisition between the Israelites and = Not = Jeraelites, with the highly unequal An= growth of the population of the First Nations in German trading cities, with such a different approach mogens + Stande it in fact for the Jewish people desirable. (ey: that this misconduct= niß even more extensive, . sod) further out= ft, and more and more . and more expanded will be." | it Ä N |

3,286–

“ 4. We want to look into the future
j throw, and by comparing the counter= uriotigen with what “emerged from it can ben. z ee

| Currently in German trading cities
the number of Christians against that of Jews, despite the mighty increase, still: over;
Are the Christians' businesses not nearly as productive as those which
The Jews gradually, and in some cases completely, have drawn; on the other hand, those are unequal numerous and varied, many of them to Part of the kind that no Jew can easily cing tel would like to take part in it., It prevails therefore still present a complete physical equilibrium, no dangers of inner unrest pen threatening. What the Jews have in terms of population goes, replaces, the humility and the complaints without=

respected, the tolerant, peaceful, less envious= | fch character of the Germans infinitely more than
The. – Strength and Enlargement | Ga mn BOERS. ee : a

– 287 –

6 But what if the present wax |
'tim der Jaben, both in terms of the: Voltsmen ge, as well as the income, continued uninterrupted go; when 'the Israelites, more and more more the “food sources direct to themselves, and thus completely seizing the powers of the state
if their number were to exceed that of the Christians not only equal, but even predominated be spread widely, so that the Christians fiche in a a state of complete dependence and with it the pressure, not only the poverty,

but of the low-level businesses that remain to them,
feel stronger and stronger. were it could and when de it then at a fermentation of the two so immensely heterogeneous parts lack their characteristic
The Jews in particular then focus on your would develop in a normal way, in which
. showing parts, whose discontent on the one hand, |
and a lack of courage on the other side, here Vera:
Aung and scorn, there hatred and despair, in Kinem retinue of all the perpetrators of all crimes, equal |
Steps were kept? Bliss and dignity ez
| then the less lack of food, the less
| which then . * in traditional Bor

nee toe fi

ATiechte, its ancient value, its former reputation,
and having the stolen goods under their eyes,
| still rely only on powerless names
5. On the other hand, the stronger part of the firm will lens would be, relying on its authority, the once usurped, not to give up again, and the en 1 a Rn = ae
“ 2. What is happening in so many other countries happened in earlier times in the attack on the Jews: a Friction of completely heterogeneous forces, which is a loud indignation, would also be here |
W then instead of * " i
8. But see, begin Su 1 An f 1 and through those in hands= the means, where here especially the large number of their clients (f. end ≠note),
their opposing party would really have to be defeated. fo
the result would be none other than a foreign
The power would immediately rush to the forefront, party not only humiliate, but also choose such drastic measures, such strict
* * seize, bie * “uf die engfden
U.N

– 289 m

| Restrictions would be removed; so that whoever de from the achieved height suddenly into a

Nothing sinks down “and the saddest consequences | fine, poorly calculated striving, and nes equally unmoderate 'arrogance' den de

9. Every Jewish person will and must 7 therefore, from the following, still not enough tested ae be convinced:

a. That welfare is fine" Bolts | only with the welfare of Christians could exist united permanently.

That it is therefore an enemy of his people, a Enemy of humanity, who believes that salvation on the ruins of the Christians under the | Appearance of the long-promised, but still in:

mer absent " and never appearing Mefs fins could be built, that it was rather for the

For the good of humanity, for Jews and "=?"

must be desirable: |
Ä b. That the Jéraelite within certain fer, to be enthusiastic about white caution 19

nender, of law and justice
me cut off borders quite fteh en remain miffe, which fhis relationship to the e eye
e can. |

Wanting to exceed these limits cannot

but with the greatest dangers for both parties
| accompanied, but which on Judaism e more terrible back N would be. |

*

c. That . his people in cing et countries, in individual states and cities must never strive to become predominant, probably even to seek oppression

if it is not for the preservation the achieved greatness everywhere and are predominant everywhere
can. | |

But the role that the Jew partly plays in

| previously played in some countries, partly in others countries, at least in their trading cities,

t 12

*

currently knows how to play, he will never and never more in other countries, even less in the country=
cities of the same, least of all on the flat Land there. This impossibility possibility of all other impossibilities must first become possible, only then could his wrong

Enthusiasts remember the West Day in their minds ken at which the signal is given: all
To eliminate Christians at once, Germany for example. to make it the second Canaan, to once again the curse of many innocent peoples against Ufurpirung, once again the W role on to load.

=

Conclusion ≠ Note.

1. That the relationship of the Jews to the Christians often with a very large expansion of the first stars
also linked to a number of political views
It cannot be denied that this would be the case. |

2. The large the number of clients of the Jews, I mean those more than any other people,
apt, immensely large number of their low Folk classes, which have such a significant number of their needs

gen, their beggars, their sansculottes 9, which everywhere where Jews are accepted, heaps of se, as in the southern provinces of Poland, in the most disgusting, most repulsive and most dirty suit ee appear.

" 3. It is already generally a established truth: that the more rich the more wealth a people accumulates, the greater the number of beggarly poverty; the more corpses ter the rich of a state one guinea for the co . He | ' Especially her cingéum peddling Sina, bie for everything and anything, where only a speculation to make is, must find out, in order to the Christian to hurry ahead everywhere, and the above-mentioned, a= underlying causes of their powerful rise rightly, among many other circumstances, could have been.

If my house had not been protected by the weather forecaster met, said a countryman recently, id), would believe that the Jews had infected it. Already on

a – 29 –

The more you can enjoy the entrance to a play, the more

Others are more tormented by hunger;
the more palaces rise into the air, the more huts crawl in the dust around the same
This truth already applies in general;
meets her no longer anywhere, and at the same time in a incomparably higher degree than among the Jews,
and this for the following obvious reasons:
There is no such even distribution of Means of subsistence among the Jews, because

*

The next morning, twenty people reported, lumber to deliver to the new building.
It lies with the Christian, in his soul, a wis moral feeling, not immediately on the Place his interest in opposition to the damage another, so that it does not harm the ftstrich a kind of schadenfreude, at least not the appearance of complete indifference towards the bitter misfortune befalls his fellow Christian.
The Jew also asked the famous mercantile advantage. | Ä

tS
¢

: you are partly in the Schachen; cheile in the Han=

del is concentrated; so the wealthy,
the wealthy through the in hands have the money = advance of that, on a larger scale;

to drive, business too much, through use every advantageous opportunity presented to .

fhich; it therefore remains a very large Number of them only the smallest retail trade, and,

Where that is not enough, the Betzel stick remains.
Nevertheless, however poor they may be,

they cannot become completely impoverished, much less

starve because they lack the close, strong bond |

tens because, as Glienten of the many beneficiaries,

find their strong support among them,

even as a beggar still a beggar; children highly be=

can be generated easily. |

4. So 8 but the Jews, even in regard for their poor, their, so very prominent uphold the appropriate community spirit as vigorously as possible;

long would also be the case with a future, even very excessive growth of Jews a smaller

Danger of a rebellion=spirit of the fo numerous= poor, lower class of people is to be feared. 7

e .

– 29 –

5. But what if the Jew, the more he
I am becoming more confident, more important, more independent, more protection-free, more predominant, he begins to hold with the more weakened "to finally die out completely= the feelings for the once necessarily narrow

Band, fic to fur lower class of people a little ger to start worrying follte 5 what could then distress and despair will not give rise to and for what purpose could the spoils then be the large number of their easily accessible
" not apply?

6. And how, if there ever be such E could then occur if in a later episode:
a strange state = Euro ratio pens instead, if there is a long in the working from home, but again excited= te politics of the disregarded muhameda= African states could ever get there and would, with more than usual emphasis,
a holy alliance for the protection of the Muslims Danish flag, how would the followers of the Mosaic religion, at very threatening dangers of the Christian party,

| – 07 eee

between Muslims and Christians?
| Or is their traffic, their influence with the people there ty farms of no importance at all? Is it about the first general example that at a Muslim court the current first head of state
nister Söraelit ift that all agents of the nämli=

court in the European states throughout | gig Israelites 'fine 2 or will the latter be much= more of each nnn. Yeast not just paid such close attention?

*

z

. 7 NN j
"mereteteteetererereeeeeee?333737737973323772733%

„„ „ Ku do lft ad t.

—

Printed in Dr. Carl Poppo Fröbel's court printing house.

—

nere ese eee ttt tete tete tete EE EC ES

f

Se

he 5 4 He,
AREA

11 aut

L l ii | ih iil

* A „ - ; .
A TER N
r ä *

This is a production of a library book that was digitized by Google as part of an ongoing effort to preserve the information in books and make it universally accessible.

Google books

<https://books.google.com>

Google

About this book

This is a digital copy of a book that was kept on library shelves for generations before b was carefully scanned as part of a project to make the world's books available online.

The book has outlived the copyright and can now be made available to the public. A book in which was never subject to copyright or whose copyright protection period has expired. When they vary from country to country. Publicly accessible books are our gateway to the past and research and scientific potential that is often difficult to discover.

Traces of use, notes and other marginal notes contained in the original volume can also be seen. A reminder of the long journey the book has taken from the publisher to a library and then to you.

usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize publicly available materials and make them accessible to the public. Public domain books belong to the public and we are only their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is costly. In order to continue to provide this resource, we have taken steps to prevent commercial parties. This includes technical restrictions on automated queries.

We ask you to adhere to the following guidelines:

+ Use of the files for non-commercial purposes We have designed Google Book Search for end users. Use files only for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ No automated queries Do not send automated queries of any kind to the Google system. If you are interested in machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to text is useful, please contact us. We encourage the use of publicly available material for these purposes. We may help.

+ Retaining Google brand elements The Google "watermark" that you will find in every file is part of this project and helps users find more material through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Stay within the legality Regardless of your intended use, you must be aware of your responsibilities to ensure that your use is legal. Do not assume that a book that we believe is legal for use in one country is publicly accessible, is also publicly accessible to users in other countries. Whether a book is publicly accessible varies from country to country. We cannot advise whether a particular use of a particular book is legal. Do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means that it is available in your country or the world. Copyright infringement can have serious consequences.

About Google Book Search

Google's goal is to organize the world's information and make it universally usable and accessible. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books and supports authors and publishers in making their work available to the public.

You can search the entire book text on the Internet at |'http://books.google.com.

REN

—

Fr

:

2

3

1

5

in

*

Beye) ee “yn e

vibe

sy

—

2 '

Tree JE FEN

'th

FT shee

ret

hon

2 = ae; : ; ? ee

eee pe © pak er ab ake |

1 “ele. “ “ fat \ 2 ” “ 5. gi

. he * ~ 7
ad penton hk} 4 telnet, <= Agel Feat .
rr re, or a ie |

9 +, =
2 - ea

FA

Digitized by Google

Judaism

all defensive parts

- from a Political scientific positions
| considered. | From

among others
Dr. Ludolf Holt.

*
Mainz, 1821.
Bel Florian Kupfer bers.

ae
4
* *
a 4
*
. +
¢ *

ca * — - '
- =

Foreword.

Ane and every object which is not noble, unwelcome views,
at least those who do not think at the highest level dignified, far above the ordinary Considerations "which are probably not the opposite, and their unpleasant shape because of requiring a warning voice to all Such objects are reluctant to turn, at most feldom a man who, after higher education, spirit.

I have this very well-founded aversion,
in view of the present document, still far more than had to fight. It was, in the Indeed, finally, high demand with seriousness and dignity, in the tone of the educated moral world, Jews=
thum in every and every respect scifence=
to illuminate. | |

=
i
*

But who would possess, I do not want to say, Courage and strength, but will, desire and inclination such a highly adverse, beyond all measure unpleasant, business to undertake. A business which, moreover, is no small sacrifice:
demands. |

I have, nevertheless, said goodbye to it my endeavour has also gone in this direction: the un= possible completion of so many endless contemplations ments about Judaism, I still have a= times, where possible, to acquire the name: a classic work of German literature which will form the basis for future can serve for detailed work. 1
| To what extent I may have succeeded in this, | fuch depends less on the judgment of the times= enjoyed more of the decision of the .
judging posterity.

Hamburg, at the end of March, 1820.

—

Contents.

Introduction. Page

Where the ever-increasing confusion of ideas comes from in general, and in particular with regard to J u= denthunnnnnnnnn 4

First Section. E

General overview of the past times
so numerous published writings for Judaism, especially with regard to those of Jewish origin ren been written rüce . 442

Second section.

Judaism viewed from a religious perspective . 126

Third section.

Judaism in moral terms, both in= considered outside his homeland – 195

Fourth section. "

Sudenthum viewed from an intellectual perspective, with regard to arts and sciences . . 240

Fifth Section.

Judaism in business life, where the fowerful source is to be seen, from which Ju= denthum an ever higher level of wealth, to be able to acquire wealth for oneself, and thereby the relationships of the total parts more and more ierrüttet " " ee 1 B0T

A

| Page

Sixth Wbfdhwite; 5

Judaism in its own respect " 331

. Giebenter section. ö

Judaism from a historical perspective . 355

Eighth Section. 2

. Sudenthum, in the direction of all previous sub= investigations, at the same time in political terms, from a political science professor, especially 1 ee : " Aina ae 0T

Sdugwort. ers

Addressed to Judaism itself . . 403

Aung 08

printing error. =

Page 8 line 3 instead of: all follow, read: all follow.

– 22

– 2

– 29

– 39

– 39 –

– 42

– 67

– 75

– 85

6 and 8 vo ft, Decenien, l. decades.
of the old insurers, the old guides.
etc. Ruffiars, I. Ruftians,

. ft. solved, l. solved.

“ ft. loßende, l. Jöfende,

ft

. ft.

1

old, l. all.

Prometheus.

8 vo ft. From speech, first appeal.

17 v, o. ft. Aetiom, l. Axiom.

11 bo ft. Messiahhs, l. Messiahhs.

17 vo ft. Benaria, l. Beccaria. |

10 v. 5 ft. That Prince, l. That of Sirk.

10 vo ft. then, l. then.

11 of ft. words, l. works.

7 bv. b. ft. the national god, l. of the national god.

1 vo ft. Das, l. das.

8 vb ft. Dem, since that, l. Because, since that.

7 vu st. 19217, l. 19-211.

9 vo ft. and yet, l. and, demuach.

7 vu ft. much advertising, l. Polygamy.

6 vo the word finden is omitted.

9 vu ft. wash under eyes, I. wash

just under the eyes.

3 vu ft. aber gar, l. aber noch gar.

11 v, u. fi. (sun) l. (Suns).

4 vo ft. Leart, l. Lifestyle.

5 vu ft. prakifk, l. practical.

14 vo ft. im, l. um.

16 vu ft. - 1.9 l. 1:

2 vu ft. Profcheliken ys mea gal

7 vo ft. are based, l. is based.

1 vo ft. in, l. im.

literary, l. a literary.

. ft. Cubes=Prometheus, l. N

*

Page 371 horny 3 vu instead of: Carissimi, read: Carisalma.

eee

E n

111

372

375
385
388

402 ;

405
405

405

420
423
423

424

425

in

Ras

a

l

Ju. o. ft. bürgerlichen, l. verbürgerlichen.

13 vu ft. emptiness, l. emptiness.

3 vo ft. hineinleiten, l. hineinleiten.

9 vo ft. Idea world “ l. Idea world.

4 vo ft. at higher ftill, l. at ever rising higher.

ft. S. in the cited document, the, l. these.

9th in the
1 vu
6 vu ft. prompts, l. Requirements.
9 vu
l

ft.

p. 284 in the cited text.
ft. Rahtlefs, l. Kahtlefs.

ft. Scete, l. page.

. ft. information, l. information.

. ft. as which, l. as those, which.
ft. people become, l.? Rene
n

fey .

The reader is requested to note the, albeit insignificant,

Printing errors, especially those of punctuation “ which is not shown here, and the long distance because of the place of printing, not to be attributed to the author, – nn even tougher. –

Introduction.

Where do the ever-increasing confusion of ideas come from in general, and in particular with regard to Jews=
thum? | N

1. There is no subject about which our times so much talked back and forth than about Judaism. It is not lacking much that the confusion of ideas finally became so great 9) that the scholastic,
oracle-like words of an old famous legal scholars almost as a motto the relevant investigations must be carried out den knten *). en

--

) One only has to consider the ones listed below, a= other completely canceling, sentences and opposites 5 under your eyes, and you will find that opposition= faÿche in the present case, namely Judaism is concerned, to push it even further almost possible. | R |

) And this is just the clothing of the defense speeches for the sake of Judaism. Namely the words of Alberieus Gentilis, which he over the fo hard= naked feud of the peoples= maritime rights as it were

1
a

2

€

2. Ideas confuse but to follow ift not such an easy thing, even less easy is the task: from which incredibly meaningful Source *) they spring.

3. However, since the ambiguous things in the world: praise and blame, defense and Dispute a matter solely on the basis of its nature parts; since every sound judgment is based on the correct estimation of things; since every carefully considered estimate only in the correct,
complete view of things, and it was said
What matters is how the power of thought works in both more subjective than objective point of view

as a theme for all later writers wrote:

Est aequo, he says, aequius, et favorabili favorabilius, et utili utilius. Lucrum hi (in the present dispute Judaei) sibi perire nolunt;
illi (Pagani, Non-Judaei-Christiani)
nolunt quid fieri quod contra salutem suam est.
Magna quaestio! hinc jure stricto per his, illine stante per illis aequitate. More here= about what one sees in my «The fear of a critical Overview of the 18c. Hamburg 1802
8. 406 pages.

9 From which numerous Alel kes in the majority spoken, would perhaps sound a little more learned.
But where scientific errors are concerned,
When we talk about it, the more rigorous investigation leads us into together, no matter how numerous they may be in terms of size material, the stuff of thought, may be, on the sole source: thinking power, back.

3

goes; there, furthermore, but the less together= posited objects often the case occurs: they not to have looked at it from all and every side but; since, consequently, highly one-sided views there can occur primarily where abstract concepts, whose synthesis contains extremely numerous parts grasps, occur: for must come from all this,
it is more due to a lack of complete information
the matter, rather than out of intention, self-interest, pride vanintereffe, passion etc. guided, a significant
a growing number of confusions of ideas arise, which contains just as many wrong judgments, errors and contain untruths.

4, But it is difficult to say whether that,
what happens everywhere with abstract concepts, in historical discussions, especially those that lead back to the most ancient times, not show it more noticeably; just for that reason, because no science in the entire field of knowledge is available, which so many misunderstandings been subjected to changes when the treat), even more so with regard to that,
what the history of humanity points to.

5. The study of the latter, asked incidentally,.
may well be the most instructive, the most sublime, but

*) Except for own lack of careful examination, except own motivation of self-interest, private interest there are still intervening causes from outside come: so that countless things are the news of the world had to be withdrawn forever and ever.

4

also called the most difficult, the most unattainable

what the human mind can ever grasp can dare.

6. From the main moments which the same have to keep an eye on it everywhere, I just want pick out two:

a) Every age is the logical result all previous ones).

Because the germ of all human abilities in a progressive, progresses.

b) Between the result of the progressive progress of the earlier and later age that is capable of such great development of the original, so delicate germ, a immeasurable distance, and with this also so great is the difference in their needs.

> I have seen this sentence everywhere in other works had in mind, so I also at the strict illumination of the writing of Mr. Dittmar (Expected weather in the summer half of 1819) raised the question: whether the present current state of the weather with that of all past ten millennia until the formation of our present Earth is closely connected?

because, already in terms of the gradual training of northern and southern America, and poaching of other countries, a consequence in Anfe= hung of the following centuries would arise.

See Hamburg Address Office News, 31, 32, 33 St. 1819.

–

5

Because, as just indicated, the approach of developmental capacity of all and every intellectual capacity against humanity only from a very low level could go out; so mighty big it was also shown in the sequel, and with always white term cultivation of the arts and sciences will show through all the following millennia.

7. Therefore, only the researcher of the history – ftory of humanity, and also him extremely little, allowed to return to the earlier times=
old man to be able to think about it completely).

8. Therefore, in historical research, ments, without the most rigorous possible investigation,
fufficiency of mistakes has occurred,
which also leads to confusion of ideas contribute. |

9. Perhaps even more influential
The following circumstance also had to be taken into account.

10. The old logic was a kind of Jynx Gauber=

*) Only pride and conceit of people can imagine that the inventive spirit is probably exhausted
That which after several thousand years fend will be discovered, what has now been discovered very far behind.

) Who could, for example, completely put themselves in the position of Jewish religious founder, transfer him to another fideal relationship to himself and to his people strive to be able to ask in the guidance of:
This and no other way he could and could not do it.
drive? –

drum), I don't like to ask for some kind of bag=porterft. No wonder if fle with contempt=ment of oblivion so completely surrendered had to. But in later times, according to the character of all human actions, from one extreme to the other.

11. But can not have a quiet day=investigation, no calm judgment other than from highly precise rules of thought, which with the general, unchanging norms of nature are one and the same, concern: fo is – since so many and many cautions in the Causality must be observed – any irregular irregularity investigation, every irregular judgment just as fad, if not worse, than that of that the fetters placed on reflection. There (in the old so-called reason=doctrine) was bondage, subsequently expulsion fung; there stiff posture within the limits of the forms; here unruliness; there anxious compulsion to submit to such and such norms; here comfortable frivolity unregulated over every to be able to judge; there was a certain Hocus pocus often the most ridiculous (even the essence of things!); here nothing, absolutely nothing that could be compared with the most ridiculous has the same value. And are from that, except other intervening causes, such as too narrowly set Limits of freedom of thought have been the unfortunate consequence that on the one hand, disfigurement upon disfigurement fuffifcife ...

under peculiar, but under rejected names, to which this and that sense can be bent, and just as many interpretations. What highly pernicious This influences the even greater disruption of ideas, into the inner essence of morality, into the welfare of the people has, does not belong here.

12. An even more unfortunate influence on the ever-increasing ideas of confusion in our time has, furthermore, the highly immoral procedure:

the actions of people false, dirty motives), since this would mean that the fo rude word invention) in precise terms

* How terrible have already present Jewish Writers (evidence of which is given below)
men) tried to use the fact that a Criticism of Judaism may not dare: in to illuminate the interior of the same, and the.
therefore allow all possible attacks
can, have undertaken.

) This significant circumstance is discussed below
been subjected to closer investigation.

*) It has been often and frequently recalled that the exercise of that tribunal which the conscience before the secular judge's seat, and that alone only belongs to the forum of the deity, of the three Graceful goddesses of humanity: Faith, Love,
Hope borrowed the name: Auto da fe.
Faith=Act, Faith + Action. How many thousands of names, from the area of the noble and Borrowed from the good, but stand alongside it.

8

connection, especially where one's own actions
need to be decorated.

13. Furthermore, the relevant provisions include Causes the numerous secret steering cables, to which the deity leads humanity, to which che the problem that is so difficult to solve when studying the history of humanity: what general need of humanity, be= especially with regard to the power of thought, fey. .
This, on the one hand, has an immeasurable effect circle, but on the other hand had to certain limits are set for them, over which the common sense to achieve what which is good for humanity, must never go beyond.

14. Among the many to be mentioned here

The following examples may suffice here.

15. As true and certain as it is that, under many other naturalists, including Peyrere, v. Jufti (which Mr. Ballenft in his so-called primeval world, strangely enough, with quite passes in complete silence) la Metherie, Wendelstadt on older before the present existing forms of our earth; fhowever, this idea, as bright and true as it is also before the eyes of every naturalist, are far removed from the common sense. Because, who would then still have the inclination to use his name to perpetuate – if all proud thinkers= painters, all the splendors, all the splendor of the past have the fate: that with their decay

\ 9

here walls whitewashed, there with their coals
Fire prepared, mud huts built here, there fife of all kinds can be prepared from it.

16. As true, furthermore, and as rightly as the Platonic idea is: that every violent shock of the spirit, every rising passion x. ge= shorten certain moments of life; this must after all, this unfriendly idea is far from our field of vision, so that not in every suffered injury is seen as a mortal enemy.

17. Even more noticeable are those steering cables in the moral world where this and that not with excited, raging passions. should not be exceeded without hope.

Our feelings do not just speak loudly, not just violently against any crime committed, violent means; but it must be bad
However, we speak out loudly against it. Our sympathy must, apart from the guilt that the eye, because of the past, not for nothing *) distant lies, for the suffering part of the moment of time,

9) I will also discuss this sentence further below, where from the insulting attacks of the Jews on our Ancestors are mentioned, who in their eyes are only monster, the persecutions that were meted out to them gen, stand there, whereby they neither people nor government

ments, and rely on the statement of one and supporting the other Christian writer, those persecutions into harsh accusations against Christianity to bring seek.

—

10

be very strongly and powerfully aroused, so that past crimes no longer have to be atone for.
Our compassion, based on self-preservation, must, overlooking the guilt, forgetting it, through= from the middle person, so that not too much so that crimes not committed by even greater crimes will be responded to.

18. No wonder, then, if this natural Compassion historical representations so far beyond pushed beyond the limits of reproach, and just= if his influence in the confusion of ideas
out of it. | Ä

19. Furthermore, as with every good, every Beneficial, every virtue, without the slightest taking, in the narrow crowded middle of two, in
With regard to their consequences, they are completely equal in content vices), whose dividing line is difficult to drawing, even more difficult to observe, and in ge= wisp cases cannot be described at all; fo must also every healthy, complete judgment in the forced to remain in the middle of two extremes:

not too little, but also not too much of ei=

a matter. But since the excessive,

the deviation from that dividing line everywhere

both in the theoretical and practical world to noticeable: for this must also be

*) A topic full of serious considerations, fuller instructive it for the theoretical Moral.

/

11

many and some untruths, and to for just
for many ideas lead to confusion.

20. The following also has to do with the same . contributed incalculably much:

The more the development progresses
the intellectual forces of the circle of ideas to one an ever more immeasurable extent; the more thereby the knowledge, the insufficient
Because of the strengths of individuals, always in more and more countless parts, or so-called sciences), broken down, and thereby the overview of the whole in= more and more hidden from view
had to; the more literary knowledge diffuse through some vehicles *) over several Estates spread; the more the writing courage= willingness of so many and some people powerful *); the greater the

*) This is precisely why the classifications of science then, as well as the external constitution of the higher schools,
never moved away from the needs of the times.
Just think of the immense parts that are still are currently considered to be philosophy;
for many of its parts, namely: physics, mass
subject, astronomy, history etc.
above all, and especially political theory
Faculty sciences should have been raised.

*) Novels, folk tales, magazines Reading= libraries, reading societies, reading rooms, etc.
for public. Haufen re.

*) Which literature in Europe counts as deserving men of the nobility, except Buch=

12

number of the most one-sided views, the amount the contradictions, the urge of disputes, and quarrels; so that some opponents= would be plunged into the most confused chaos
find; to which we must painfully add:
that the expansion of science with the advance
sometimes almost bordering on superhuman veneration High respect for the learned profession in such reversed the situation, that the Respect for the same almost not sinking lower
can. \

21. That, among other intervening causes, also the balancing of our forces powerful influence on the standard (guideline)
the exact, correct estimation of things because the more or less we have strength
te) feel in us, something with great praise to be able to imitate the drawing, the less or more our applause will be raised or lowered
ftigt; fo how, furthermore, the undertaken Fragmentation of the power of thought, from which so many numerous merchants and learned women, even scribes, Tailors, chimney sweeps, lead roofers, even Night Watchman to the number of their public writers, for which in recent times the crudest class of the Jews has been added, and everywhere people can find people who trumpet their creation.

) Hence the enthusiastic attachment of the female gender to the names of great warriors (Mrs. v. Stael).

13

loose confusion of ideas emerged, we:
de to investigate further here not on site and Place fiehen 9. | Ä

) Since the, even in philosophical writings occurring, splitting of the power of thought, this Unity of all operations of thought, even in the Morality has been taken over, so I want to share a few Put words about it. To

Not only that one has to put the power of thought aside reason, intellect, imagination, head, spirit, soul; but sense, mind
feel, mind, chest, heart, even kidneys Mil; and gall must also, here and there, for they work, they must feel for them, think,
judge, conclude, act.

The reason for this may be primarily the following,
namely: that not on the exact change interaction between mind and body is respected and been looked at: what emotions in these and those parts of the body, through such and such mood of the thinking power, in joy and pain, proceed in all countless degrees of the same
can. 5 as 5

Thrice blessed is he who has never experienced what it means: my heart was bleeding, or: it my heart was so warm. Such a Unfortunate person has suffered illnesses, the slightest Remembrance of the heart, the use of language follow, tear, and proceed when the Denfvers may be filled with extremely painful ideas, which are more as violently shake the brain cells, more than usually set the nerve juice in motion, more or less accelerate the circulation of blood,
to pause for a moment, to be seized.

One has therefore that which is merely the consequence of the thinking power is,, a self-acting force

14

22. But to what extent this solemn is serious= comprehensive study of the history of humanity – to guard against countless errors that no less a pernicious influence on the confusion of ideas – belonged where affairs of all humanity considered and wherever the lighting of the Ju= denthums is to be reckoned with, I must, in An=
view of the propositions extracted from that doctrine, the reader's own examination and consideration
overflow. | |

23. How much finally to the confusion of ideas contribute when such men as Professor Lips, which I will return to often,

an even less than one-sided approach

What is said about the power of thought in intellectual achievements situations alone, one has this and attributed to that body part, and by a incredible confusion of ideas Cane set up, which far surpass the following in wrongness:
His mind is good, but his heart is fick. » No! whose mind is completely healthy and good is, whose heart (which is not really in Consideration comes) it truly, in moral terms,
also completely healthy and well. ce

This is precisely why it has become so easy for some people to that which takes place in the power of thought alone, a

to find another seat, and by substitution of motives on the moral human being to make an attack.

Enough of all this, what about further reading

think that I may give permission.

u

: 15

view of the whole; this even less as a one-sided view as a matter in itself
len, and then from simple, generally accepted= ten saws, go out, and those not on the thing itself, but only on a highly insignificant applying the tenth part of the whole, I will to identify on the spot.

23. From all the numerous reasons mentioned above contributing causes of the ever increasing Number of confusions of ideas, which probably do not bring joy Prospects for the sciences are fract fynthetic concepts, wherever Judaism, especially in consideration to pull, how much namely to their separation= other substitution is required; so that here, above all,
the most one-sided views can occur,

which are even among the most unintelligible eee .
lead. |

25. There are abstract concepts whose synthesis contains extremely numerous parts); and whose parts are often incalculable *); nor others, whose infinitely innumerable parts never the mortal, with the F look,

can be overlooked **),

*) For example, the word consisting of the letters
State, and an epitome of so many . and mutual relationships.

) E.g. Judaism, because it is involved in the affairs the whole of humanity has been deeply affected.

who) This includes the term Nenfchheit. des

f

—

16 =

26. But now the synthesis of still fo many parts of a whole, the Analysis must, insofar as the whole is complete, true and correctly presented, and competently judged thereon

shall be divided, all and every part of the

Take the whole thing apart exactly, alternate it fideal relationship, in connection with the whole to contemplate the indwelling spirit, the content of the whole, on an unmistakable proof be it to be able to bring.

27. Should we finally talk about Jews?
thum scientific: – under a lecture who appears with dignity and seriousness, who is distinguished by the tone never to deviate from the educated moral world

Analysis of so many endless incalculable parts has shown that the study of the history of Humanity, as long as this globe never lasted can be completed.

Not for nothing did our Herder entitle his immortal work: "Ideas for the Philosophy of History of Humanity. v

And how infinitely much in every subsequent time
What can be achieved can be deduced from this:
that, despite what the Ifelin, Meiners and Her in their representations, as the facilities of humanity gradually developed have, in relation to civil society
it of speaking and truthfully spoken, yet a strange contradiction, I don't want to say ridiculous content, a Wendeborn, a Rofarius, a Rouffeau of more recent times to those men could follow. g

47

strives to make every statement of evidence
not leaving one exposed – be judged;
for is Judaism in all its parts, in every respect that has any reference to the same
have to illuminate, so that from the representation
all its parts, the main moment the corresponding investigations, as it were, of itself emerges from it, namely:

28. What Judaism is, and whether there is a State (and which one?) in the state, and whether a political tendency was ever linked to it the knne.

20. But in order to preserve Judaism in all and to consider each part requires such,

the same " |

a) in intellectual terms, taking into account his intellectual faculties – arts, sciences, Scholarship, literature – what expectations the future formation of the same promises etc.

